"THE COMMUTER'S WIFE" (Edison), February 6.—A picture with some pretty scenes and one in which, although each incident is convincing and almost typical when taken by itself, lacks, as a whole, the power to give a very deep impression. Perhaps this is largely due to the fact that the action is not very significant. It shows a little boy who wakes up in the night and goes out to the yard to bring in a forgotten toy. He makes a noise and his mother, who is nervous, thinks it a burglar. A pistol is flourished and the back door is locked. Father comes home and finds little boy asleep on the porch. One of its faults is that it happens in a thickly settled community. The photographs are very good, as are the scenes. It is also well acted. Bigelow Cooper plays the commuter; Mrs. C. J. Williams, his wife; and Elsie McLeod, the serving maid. It has human qualities and is a good filler.

"THE SWIMMING PARTY" (Kalem), February 7.—An unusually fresh comedy, caused by a mischievous youngster's hiding the clothes of four cowboys who are in the canal swimming. They have to steal such things as hang on a drying line and are chased. The exhibitor came to this reviewer and complained about the picture's photography. He said, "Here is this dandy comedy. I've just put in the most expensive projecting apparatus I can get and then I get such photographs. Why, that picture would be the talk of the town; it would be a screem, if it were clear.

[illegible] just as it is filled the house with laughs; it made 'em roar. It is [illegible] feature.

"FLORAL PARADE AT SAN DIEGO" (Kalem), February 7.—On the same reel with the above this scenic of a parade goes very well. Parades are not the most interesting subjects. I have yet to meet with any picture fan who especially wants to see them. This picture shows floats decked out in all kinds of flowers. One view is unusual and the audience liked it. It was the flower fight. The carriages as they pass with pretty girls are pelted with roses and the flowers are sent back. A group of navy officers take part in a lively bombardment.

"FIRST AID TO THE INJURED" (Selig), February 9.—A valuable object lesson showing how to care for badly injured people. It was taken in a coal mining region and the injured men are sufferers from a coal mine explosion, played, of course. It is a worthy film.

"THE MYSTERIOUS GALLANT" (Selig), February 9.—On the same reel is this farce in which a middle-aged colonel, who is courting big sister, and a mischievious youngster sister, play the leading roles. The younger sister is the mysterious gallant. In her father's wig and a man's clothes she makes the colonel, a fire-eater, very jealous. There is nothing very fresh in it and it didn't seem to get over very strongly, although there was a short laugh at the end. It is poorly photographed.

"A BROKEN SPUR" (Selig), February 12.—A melodramatic picture to which most of the audience payed strict attention. In it there's a rich suitor for the hand of a girl who loves a cowboy. The rich man holds the usual mortgage and is a very mean villain, but "gets his" in the end. The broken spur was the cause of his being exposed. It wasn't photographed clearly; but is well knit and the story is plain.

"AN AMERICAN INVASION" (Kalem), February 12.—A dramatic picture of life in Southern California just before the Americans came. Three American visitors figure in it. They are in danger, but are rescued by the heroine who wins the governor's favor and extends it to the visitors, one of whom she loves. The scenes and backgrounds are very pretty. Miss Alice Joyce, the Mexican heroine, is also very likable in this part. It is a good filler.

"THE HEART OF A MAN" (Vitagraph), February 12.—A Western love story that has good action; but whose chief object is to picture a girl from the East who couldn't help being a coquette, even with the man she loved. Miss Helen Case plays the part very well; opposite to her, Mr. Tom Powers plays a manly cowboy. The audience was interested and seemed to like both very much. The backgrounds (Garden of the Gods) are fine; there are some grand mountain views. It makes a very desirable filler.

"DISILLUSIONED" (Selig), February 13.—A rattling good comedy that plainly pleased a large audience. The fun comes from the difference in the appearance of a character when seen in a different environment. To get such a situation over as fun to an audience demands naturalness, sincerity. It has been attempted before in pictures; but we do not remember seeing it so well done. It's the girl and cowboy again, but that makes no real difference; the audience caught the spark from it and rippled and roared. In the West, the cowboy seemed a hero to the romantic girl from the East. But he came on a visit to Boston, he and his pal. He didn't cease to be a man, not one whit, but the hero-glamour soon wore very thin. East didn't meet West very well. It's a pity it wasn't more clearly photographed, for it was very well acted and set. Mr. Hobart Bostworth plays the cowboy.

"THE PUPPET SHOW" (Cines), February 13.—A picture in which two children figure largely. The daughter of the traveling show and the rich little girl made friends. The rich little girl got sick and demanded the puppets. The two little friends, in the end, are brought together for good. It isn't very well photographed and is fairly interesting. The audience didn't express itself.

"JENKINS ON THE DONKEY" (Cines), February 13.—On the same reel with the above is this farce in which a man takes the part of a boy and acts like one. There is real amusement in the trip through the clouds of the boy and the donkey, carried up by a bunch of toy baloons. It is better than the first picture on the reel.

"WINNING IS LOSING" (Vitagraph), February 13.—A comedy whose climax is the ending of a race. There are no crowds about the track, but the horses come down the homestretch more effectively bunched than is usual. It is played by a distinguished cast and there is no character in it that fails to get over or to give amusement at some time or other in the picture. Perhaps, Van Dyke Brooke, as the veteran horse racer, and Hazel Mason, as his daughter of whom he is a little afraid, are perhaps the most interesting chiefly because more side-lights are thrown upon them, they seem more human in their changing moods. Mr. Costello, as the girl's lover, also gives a convincing interpretation but it hasn't the same depth. The picture is a sure winner; the audience laughed heartily and seemed to like it very much. It is well photographed.

"TRACKED DOWN" (Essanay), February 13.—See page 489, Moving Picture World, February 10, 1912.

"HIS DAUGHTER" (Edison), February 13.—A very good picture, because it is concise, well set and well acted; but chiefly because it is full of meaning and teaches (not so much as a tract as a picture of life's possibilities) a wholesome lesson. In it Gertrude McCoy plays the part of a stage-struck young girl who falls in love with a strolling theatrical hero and follows him to New York to go on the stage, he holding out false hopes to her as a lure. He meets her at the Penn. Depot and takes her to a restaurant. From this point on, the picture is dramatic and intensely interesting. The waiter unknown to her is the girl's father and the situation is handled in a masterly way. This is the scenario's chief claim to distinction and it is no slight excellence. It is well photographed and intelligently acted.

"BILLY'S STRATAGEM" (Biograph), February 12.—A picture that surely gets over. The spectators gave it more marked approval than any other release shown for several days. It is an Indian picture; but such, when well produced, is not to be despised and this, besides its exciting action on the elemental plane, has interesting psychology and other good things. It is full of little actions that seem, in the atmosphere of the picture, to carry straight home, to be the truth. Plainly it was planned by someone who was willing to take pains to be sincere.

The most interesting roles in the picture are Billy, aged about ten, and his sister, about five. It is they who are in danger from the Indians and their escape, the result of Billy's stratagem, is convincing enough even for the critical. The picture opens with a few convincing sketches of frontier life, the log cabin, the father and mother, a doddering old grandfather and the two children. The boy's plaything is a gun; the children's best game is "the hunt." The father is then shown as out at work in the forest. The mother gets dinner for the children and the old man and then takes her husband's noonday meal to him. After dinner the children play hunt and have wandered a hundred yards or more from the door where the old grandsire sits asleep. The Indians come. The children hardly have time to get back. The old man, wakened suddenly, loses his wits and falls in a coma. The savages break into the stockade. There are two rooms in the cabin. Into the first and then into the second the children retreat, barring the door each time. In the last room there are two kegs of powder, that the father had just bought with a pile of pelts from a traveling trader. The boy sets a slow fuse to this powder and then the two escape from the window. The magazine goes off just as the Indians break down the door. They are hidden behind a flash and volume of smoke. The timbers of the house are seen scattered amid clouds of smoke. Only three Indians escape. They do not stand upon the order of their going forth and their exeunt gives a very welcome bit of comedy to the picture, the more because it is a proper anti-climax and relief.

The mother and father hear the explosion. This gives a well utilized chance for good acting which, with the coming of a group of well-armed frontiersmen, suggesting human help and safety, produces the emotional ending. Such an ending is nearly always desirable after the nerves have been strung by the elemental struggle. It is very well photographed.

Independent.

"THE DEFENDER OF THE NAME" (Rex), January 28.—A war-time picture some of whose scenes have more than usual grace and charm. These are mostly well-lighted and well-staged interiors. It is not a convincing story, in spite of its being very well acted; but there are in it some emotional moments. A Southern officer is sent on a dangerous mission; but becomes panic-stricken and takes refuge in his home. His sister (Miss Leonard) tries to waken in him some sense of duty; but he is so crazy that he goes into the next room and commits suicide. The girl goes across into the enemy's lines, gets the information needed (it is a paper) and then, placing it in her dead brother's hand, drags him out where the sentries will find him. She thus defends the name from shame. The photographs are excellent, the film of full length and it will make a feature. It should be advertised as Miss Marion Leonard's picture.

"THE SILENT WITNESS" (Thanhouser), February 13.—Is a very commendable melodrama, closely knit, artistically staged and acted, exciting and well photographed. It has an intensely dramatic ending. The last scene is in a court room where a young husband (Mr. Russel) is on trial for murder. The district attorney is making a passionate plea for conviction, but we know that this district attorney killed the man himself. At the critical moment the silent witness is handed to the judge. Its photographs are often very pretty, indeed. It is an excellent feature picture.

"SURELOCK JONES, DETECTIVE" (Thanhouser), February 16.—An amusing burlesque showing how a girl and her sweetheart got rid of Surelock Jones whom her father wanted her to marry. The quality that this picture has comes from the way the theme was handled. There have been other pictures that have followed the same general outline in burlesquing the "great" detective; but there have been none quite so good as this. It caused many a laugh. It is also well photographed. Where a burlesque is wanted, this will make a first class feature.

"INBAD, THE COUNT" (Nestor), February 12.—A brisk farce comedy in which a pretty young girl, her mamma and papa, a count who is mamma's favorite, and an American young man, who is papa's favorite, have parts. The count is given the advantage at first and the American man has to do his courting on the quiet; but the count loses in the end. It doesn't fall down in interest, is well acted, photographed and has some very pretty scenes. It will serve as a good feature.

"SIDE PARDNER" (Nestor), February 14.—It tells the story of a "salted" gold mine. One of the two partners was honest and he discovered that the other had salted the mine. He had himself, received the check from the duped purchaser and doesn't know that a rich vein has already been discovered under the surface. The situation is complicated by the fact that he is in love with his partner's sister. It is speedily conducted and has many excellent photographs. The story isn't wholly clear and the picture can hardly be called a sure feature, although the average spectator will get enough of it to be interested.

"BILL TUNES THE PIANO" (Lux), February 16.—Bill fell in love with a girl and followed her home. He gets in the house as a piano tuner. The girl's mother, her father, the real tuner and Bill furnish an amusing farce. It is very light; a filler.

"BABY'S GHOST" (Lux), February 16.—A child scares burglars by holding up a sheet on a broom to make them think her taller than she is. It makes a cute picture of a child's acting. It is well photographed and will be generally liked. Together, these pictures on the same reel will serve to lighten a program.

"A FATHER'S FAULT" (Ambrosio), February 14.—A strong, clean picture with a purpose. It is not so much a work of art as it is a showing up, with an educative intention, of the ravages in the second generation from fathers who have been afflicted with venereal disease. The picture isn't entertainment nor does it deal with a subject that women like to have discussed in their presence; but it surely is a good and worthy picture. It is, of course, very tragic.

"HUMAN NATURE" (Republic), February 17.—A well acted picture and a fairly convincing one. It amuses itself "showing up" two women, daughters of an elderly father. They had been ashamed of the old man and relegated him to the garret. But when they discover him counting a bag of gold pieces, they change their attitude markedly. Father, now has a soft bed and warm room. It is a satire, but it doesn't overdraw the situation and is not at all displeasing. It is not a dramatic picture nor one that will make a very deep or lasting impression. It didn't quite cover the situation. Yet it will be acceptable as a feature. It is well photographed.

"THE TURNING POINT" (Powers), February 13.—A very well knit and artistically played and pictured drama of office life. It shows us the heart of a man, Robert Carlin, who had suffered in his youth and had grown rich, but had hardened. A skilfully made double exposure gives us a convincing glimpse of dream-memories that come to him at the critical moment (it is just before the policeman he had called entered the office) and soften him. It is fairly well photographed, well set and acted, and is a sure feature.

"CHARLIE, THE COMEDIAN, WANTS A CONGENIAL SON-IN-LAW" (Eclair), February 18.—A farce that is like a bad dream. Charlie's daughter's choice of a sweetheart didn't please the great comedian who thought him more or less of a dummy. Sweetheart proved to him one night that his estimation was wrong. For a while Charlie thought that the young man was a burglar, a policeman and the great bugaboo, all rolled into one.

"GONTRAN IS FOND OF ANIMALS" (Eclair), February 18.—A good character farce, showing a man who is kind to all animals including his mother-in-law. It is a picture that will be laughed at, well photographed and pleasing. On the same reel, these two pictures make a safe selection to lighten a program.

"KEEPING AN EYE ON FATHER" (Eclair), February 15.—It was no easy job, as this amusing farce comedy shows, to do this. Father was old enough to enjoy slippers and a comfortable seat in a sunny window, but he didn't enjoy them. His children tried to "keep an eye on him"; but he led them many a dance. He was no foolish, doddering old man, as shown, but an old boy, as bright as a steel trap. The scenes which picture the developing complications are so wisely conducted that we don't lose sympathy with father nor yet with the children. After all, the great feat of a farce or farce comedy is the sympathy the spectator can feel for the characters. It is a good farce, well acted and photographed and it gets over.

"THE PATRIOTIC SONS" (Eclair), February 13.—A picture whose chief and most interesting feature is the photographs of the costumes, baby's and children's parade, held last summer at Asbury Park, New Jersey, and its interesting views of the town. Some of the costumes in the parade and the decorated baby carriages are very pretty. The story is of the prize wining display and tells how three boys, whose grandfather had been telling them patriotic stories, got the idea of making an American flag of red, white and blue flowers. The picture is well photographed and of full length. It tells no absorbing story, but because of its good views may serve acceptably as a feature.

"THE GAMBLER'S DAUGHTER" (Reliance), February 17.—An interesting picture that gives a story, not as a whole dramatic, but with one or two highly dramatic episodes. The first part of the film shows what the gambler's daughter's parents were. Her mother had loved and accepted a minister's son, but had been compelled to marry the gambler at the pistol's point. The minister who performed the ceremony didn't see the pistol—it was in the gambler's pocket. After a few years, when the girl was born, her father was arrested for gambling and sent away and her mother died. She was adopted by the minister and his wife. She grew up into a young girl (Miss Robinson) and her father, once more out of prison, is able to do her a service. Because of this, the minister's son, who loved the girl, told her that the gambler was her father. It is a pretty picture, well acted, well photographed and pleasing. It is a fair program filler.

"WANTED, A WIFE" (Reliance), February 14.—By his uncle's will, the youth had to be married in twenty days to get a fortune. He advertised for some one who would marry him and then get a divorce. Amusing applicants filled his parlor. A pretty newspaper woman was sent to get the story. She was in great need of money and told him so to persuade him to give her the interview. He asked her to marry him and, for her sick mother's sake, she accepted. He gave her the large sum of money that the advertisement offered and they separated. But they really loved each other and it came to pass that no divorce was needed. Miss Ruth Robinson, who plays the lead, never had a prettier role. The plot is simple and clear, and also dramatic. The photographs are excellent and the film about full length. It is almost a feature, will serve very well as such on ordinary occasions.

"THE UNEXPECTED DUTY" (Great Northern), February 17.—A story that will hardly be fully understood by Americans. It is a comedy that springs out of the exigencies of compulsory military service. A man is called back to the barracks and has to leave his newly married bride. She follows, but arrives at the quarters of her husband a moment after he has got permission to go home. The officer of the day is about to go the rounds and the wife gets into her husband's cot and is counted with the men, then she, too, makes her escape. It is somewhat amusing, is well photographed and will serve as a filler.

"REFLECTIONS FROM THE FIRELIGHT" (Imp), February 12.—An old armless G. A. R. man calls on a lady whom he hadn't seen for years, but who had once been his sweetheart. They sit before the fire and recall old times. A series of very prettily pictured scenes show a courtship that happened years before, including a soldier's going off to war and a battle scene. It is a good picture, well photographed and acted, especially by the leading man, and has the qualities that make a feature. It is commendable as such.

"THROUGH THE FLAMES" (Imp), February 15.—A dramatic railroad picture, showing a town hemmed in by a prairie fire. The railroad is the town's only hope. One engineer alone can get his train there in time to save the inhabitants, but the engineer's wife is dying. He leaves the bedside and takes his train in and brings out the people. There was an actual fire utilized and many of the picture scenes are very well suggested. Not all are perfect, but the impression they give, taken together, is very pleasing. It is a picture that probably will be talked about; it is deeply emotional and its sensations are all wholesome. It is a sure feature. The photographs are good.

"WHERE BROADWAY MEETS THE MOUNTAINS" (American), February 12.—A picture taken mostly in and about a bungalow that overlooks a broad mountain valley with hills beyond. This bungalow is owned by a playwright with whom a mountain girl has fallen in love. An actor and actress who are to play the author's new drama and who are in love with each other, come on a visit. The mountain girl grows jealous of the actress and she has some reason. The picture makes of the playwright a light-weight villain and of the actor, a hero, who is both courageous and wise and who brings "Broadway," as represented by the playwright, and "the mountains," as represented by the girl, together. It will serve as a feature because of the good things the players have put into it. Mr. Kerrigan plays the actor; Miss Bush plays the actress.

"AN INNOCENT GRAFTER" (American), February 15.—Perhaps, at the very start of the picture, too much is left to the imagination. We see the innocent grafter being used as a catspaw by a clever crook. If he were a Westerner, he should have known that the oil well had been abandoned because it was no good. If he were from the East, he hardly would have had the influence with the neighbors that enabled him to persuade them to invest their all in it. When, although his eyes are opened by the fact that the government secret service men had frightened the crook, he kept him from "beating it with the money," and promises to buy back the stock at face value. The well proves rich in oil after all. The love story is slight; but the heart-interest is well brought out and makes the picture very interesting. Mr. Kerrigan plays the hero; Miss Bush plays the sweetheart. It is a very good feature picture, clear, well acted, well photographed and of full length.

MR. WHITNEY RAYMOND.

Mr. Whitney Raymond, of the Essanay Eastern Stock Company, enacts a remarkable female impersonation in Essanay's bright comedy entitled "The Lemon," which is booked for release February 22d. Mr. Raymond is a handsome young man, and his portrayal of the mysterious "woman" in the above mentioned photoplay will certainly cause the ladies, who view the production, much wonderment as to how he manages to appear so strikingly in feminine finery. His photo, in female garb, is shown here, and we leave you to judge for yourself

---

MIRROROID SCREEN BUSINESS GROWING.

The J. H. Genter Company, of Newburgh, N. Y., makers of the Mirroroid screen, are receiving some very flattering testimonial letters in regard to the merits of the well-known projecting surface manufactured by them. The Mirroroid screen seems to hold up well in the open air or in damp salt air, according to what the users write. There have been many repeat orders filled by the Genter Company of late, and the Mirroroid business is growing at a rapid rate owing to the enormous sales of that article.

Manufacturers Advance Notes

SOME REPUBLIC PICTURES.

Independent exhibitors will be interested in some of the forthcoming releases of the Republic Film Company. From the Saranac Lake Company comes some more of the snow pictures under the title of "Retribution" and "A Brand from the Burning." The famous $10,000 dog team and Eskimo sleds are features of these pictures. The winter scenes are especially beautiful. There is some very good photoplay acting and plenty of action in both subjects. The stories give evidence of being of the home-made brand, rather hurriedly put together to meet an emergency. In all other respects the subjects are up to the average and contain enough of interest and novelty to put them over.

Scene from "A Brand from the Burning" (Republic).

In the comedy line Republic offers a subject entitled "The Tangled Skein." The story of this picture is of a newly married couple. The husband entertains his friends one evening at a little poker party at which all gets very much under the influence of liquor. After bidding his friends goodbye the husband lies down on a couch and goes to sleep. A burglar breaks in and is about to loot the place when the wife comes down stairs and drives him out at the point of a revolver. Her efforts to awaken the drunken husband are unavailing and she decides to go home to mother. After a time she finds employment in the office of a man whose first name, "Harry," happens to be the same as that of her own husband. A note from the girl's husband falls into the hands of the employer's wife and gives rise to the situation which is solved by the reconciliation of the girl and her husband. The story contains sufficient amount of interest and the picture is well photographed.

Scene from "The Tangled Skein" (Republic).

FIRST FLORIDA THANHOUSER IS RELEASED.

The Thanhouser factory at New Rochelle is working overtime on the first Florida negative to be issued, "The Arab's Bride," releasing Friday, March 1. Some "peachy" photographic effects are reported by the dark room men and it is patent that the New Rochelle firm is ushering in its Florida subjects with a strong opening attraction. New Rochelle, of course, says that all the Florida pictures will be up to the standard of this first one.

Scene from "The Arab's Bride" (Thanhouser).

The Southern producing company is headed by Flo La-Badie, Marguerite Snow, Viola Alberti, James Cruze, William Russell, Joe Graybill and Calvin Dix, all under the direction of Producer Nicholls. Miss La Badie, Mr. Russell and Mr. Cruze have the leading roles in "Arab's Bride."

The Thanhouser Niagara Falls company issues "A Message from Niagara" on the 23rd of this month, and the next feature by the home (New Rochelle) company is the two-reel "Nicholas Nickleby," from Dickens' story, out March 19.

"THE YEGGMAN" (Reliance).

"The Yeggman" is a story of a grateful fugitive who is given food by a girl at a railroad station in the dead of winter. Cold and hungry, he knocks upon the station door and the girl operator admits him and allows him to warm himself, and shares her food with him. To all appearances, the man is not bad at heart, but has fallen among evil companions in his day and is wanted for breaking jail. He reveals his identity to the operator and, thanking her, goes on his way. He arrives at a den of thieves who are proposing to rob the safe at the station from which he has recently come. Grateful for the young lady's aid, he determines to frustrate the plan, which he does at the cost of his life.

There is some extremely good acting in the picture by members of the band of yeggmen. The picture is one that will hold its own on a popular bill. It does not contain any scenes of violence that will shock a nervous lady or child.

SUPPLY HOUSE FOR BRONX DISTRICT.

To the Exhibitors:

Mr. Frank Petters of the Belle Paree Theater, a pioneer in the moving picture business, has purchased a half-interest in the firm of Tyroler Bros., the only moving picture supply house in the Bronx. The firm of Petters & Tyroler, as it will now be styled, take this method of assuring the exhibitors that they will carry a full line of supplies and that they will give careful and conscientious work on all repairs. We further wish to state that we have quite a few good machines on hand and suggest that you come in and make your own terms on same.

Assuring you of our undivided interest and best efforts in your behalf, we are, yours for business, Petters & Tyroler, No. 2936 Third Ave., Bronx, New York City.

"A LEAP YEAR COMEDY" (American).

Pete Miller, a widower with a grown son and daughter, sees his new neighbor, the widow Bonnie, also the mother of a grown son and daughter, and falls in love with her.

The first intimation Peter's children have that their father is a victim of Cupid is when his daughter Jessie finds him in Sunday dress vainly trying to conceal from her a generous bouquet he has gathered apropos to calling on the widow. Jessie immediately informs her brother Jack who instructs her to keep an eye on her father.

The widow's daughter Pearl comes upon her mother in gala attire and suspects that the mother is receiving attentions and when her brother Bob returns immediately informs him of her suspicions. He instructs her to keep an eye on her mother.

Scene from "A Leap Year Comedy" (American).

So when Peter calls to pay his respects to Mrs. Bonnie, Pearl made an unwelcome third party and courtship was at a standstill. Peter departed in a huff and Mrs. Bonnie scolded her daughter in her vexation.

But, if the young folks imagine themselves smart, the old folks have had more experience and are quite clever in the matching of wits. They get their sons and daughters together and the young people become so deeply interested in each other that they neglect to watch their father and mother. When they come to it is too late.

Pearl and Jack wake up from their love dream to remember that the old folks need watching. The same thought possesses Jessie and Bob and both couples make a simultaneous rush to where they have left their respective parents. All they find is a calendar with the date February 29th and Peter's note, signed "Father and Mother," and telling them they will be back in a week. It dawns on the girls that it is leap year and they mockingly propose to their sweethearts.

MONTGOMERY GETS TWO MORE.

The Montgomery Amusement Company, with headquarters at Jacksonville, Fla., operating theaters there and also in Atlanta, Savannah, Columbia and Valdosta, will open a house in Dayton, O., at 212-214 South Jefferson Street, on March 1st. The house is to cost over fifty thousand dollars and will be elaborately furnished, and a large pipe organ will be installed. The decorations, both interior and exterior, are in Egyptian style, and the front presents a unique appearance with its quaint figures standing out in bold relief. The seating capacity is five hundred and there are a number of boxes on either side of the screen containing reserved seats which will probably be sold at an advanced price. This is another Montgomery innovation in the motion picture business. The manager has not been appointed, but, following this company's usual custom, he will be selected from the list of stockholders. Everything will be conducted on the same high plane as in the other houses of this company.

A contract has just been closed in Columbia, S. C., for the erection of another house for the Montgomery Amusement Co., of Jacksonville, Fla. The opening will be on Main Street, and the entrance will be through an attractive lobby eighteen feet wide. This house will be in keeping with all the other houses, and the seating capacity will be seven hundred. The new house will in no way interfere with the present Grand Theater in Columbia, as the company intends operating both houses.

A NOSEGAY OF NESTORS.

Rollicking Red's Big Lark.

Rollicking Red's Big Lark is a ripping good Western story, original in plot and interesting throughout. There is plenty of good riding in it, all of which is pertinent to the story. Rollicking Red is an outlaw. He aids an injured cowboy who has fallen from his horse, taking him to his hidden retreat. The man recovers and is later elected sheriff. There is a reward offered for Rollicking Red and the sheriff, knowing his secret abode, goes to capture him. Rollicking Red discovers the sheriff's purpose and outwits him. He escorts the ungrateful sheriff back to the village, bound with his own handcuffs. Upon the sheriff he pins medals made from the tops of tin cans with the derisive word "Hero" painted upon them. On the sheriff's back he places a huge tin star labeled "Sheriff." Taking the man to the center of the main street, he leaves him there and beats a retreat amid a volley from the cowboys who later join in a big laugh at the sheriff's expense. It is an A-1 picture, both in story and technique.

Blind Man's Buff.

A humorous story, evidently enacted in the vicinity of Los Angeles. The hero is a city street contractor and in examining the work of street pavers it is his custom to wear a large pair of blue goggles to protect his eyes from the glare of the sun. A pretty young lady coming by, sees him tapping the new concrete with his cane, and forms the conclusion that the young man is blind. She offers to assist him, and the street contractor has the wit to allow her to do so, much to his amusement. They exchange cards and the girl sees him to a street car. She was so sorry for the handsome contractor that she sent an eminent surgeon to see what could be done for his eyes. The surgeon was taken into the joke and proved to be a very capable go-between in the humorous incidents that followed. The street contractor and the young lady become engaged after a series of ups and downs that furnish much amusement. It is good comedy; but the scenic selections bear some evidence of haste.

Settled Out of Court.

A story of a country couple and a young school teacher who came to board with them. The school teacher was charming and naturally the young farmer's wife became a little jealous. Later on she became very jealous; so jealous, in fact, that she packed up her belongings and started for the divorce court. The justice being absent for the day, she determined to stay at the hotel rather than go home again. The astonished hubby could not stay at his empty home and took a room also at the same hotel. At the hotel a fire broke out during the night and hubby rescued wifey from an awful death by smoke, for there was very little fire in evidence. The young farmer's wife was glad to see him but would not return home unless the school teacher went elsewhere. The school teacher went.

There are some very laughable parts in this film. Any picture that can get a laugh out of a room full of hardened critics, as this one did, ought to get a laugh anywhere.

HAIL THE "THANHOUSER KIDLET!"

And now it's the Thanhouser Kidlet who comes to Fame's shrine. Early in 1910 when there was an abundance of "girls"—Biograph, Vitagraph, Imp and the rest—Thanhouser Company cut away from the regular advertising path with an announcement of a "kid"—a sort of child wonder—"The Thanhouser Kid." Now that other producers feature their "kids," Bert Adler, who christened the original one, sends exclusive information of a kidlet, "The Thanhouser Kidlet."

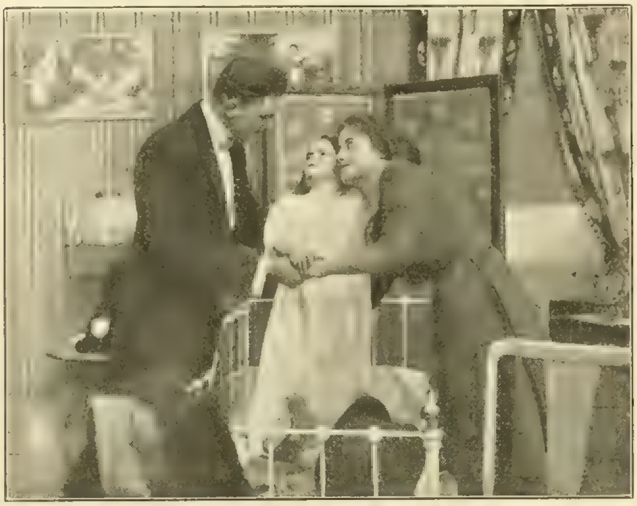
She is almost two whole years old and her name is Helen. Last name doesn't matter as she is too immature to be called "Miss ——." Bert discovered her in a recent Thanhouser issue called "Brother Bob's Baby" and now she is to be regularly featured as "The Thanhouser Kidlet." Exhibitors should watch for her. The tot's last film appearance was in a comedy drama called "The Guilty Baby." This will be released Tuesday, February 27.

AMERICAN "SANTA CATALINA" PICTURE MAKES SENSATION IN EUROPE.

London daily newspapers have been advertising the famous December 14 release of the American Film Manufacturing Company, entitled "Santa Catalina," much more extensively than any other negative made in America, if one can judge from the quantity of space devoted to this remarkable picture by the Daily Mail, London Post and similar publications. The picture was also widely advertised on its appearance in America as being the first and only negative ever made showing the famous submarine gardens of the Pacific Ocean with kelp, an octopus, coral, sea-weed and other under-water vegetation.

FEATURES FROM ECLAIR.

Under the title of "The Guardian Angel," a dramatic picture to be released on Tuesday, February 27th, the Eclair-American Company presents the first subject produced by M. Arnaud, the expert French director, who is now in charge of the American studios at Fort Lee, N. J. If any fears may have been felt that Mr. Arnaud would have trouble getting the American idea in his work of production, this picture should dispel them. The settings throughout are wholly American in form and atmosphere and there is nothing in the acting that has the French flavor. The story is an interesting one and has been well set forth.



Scene from "The Guardian Angel" (Eclair).

Scene from "Jealous Julia" (Eclair).

We are introduced in the first scene to the home of a struggling musician, an artist of the violin. He and his pretty wife are struggling with poverty and have no hopes of success. Friends call to invite them to some social function, which they are compelled to decline. His friends leave and the young violinist is coaxed by his little daughter to play for her and mamma. The strains of the violin are heard by a woman of wealth who ha pens to be passing in an automobile. She is known to the frien who have just left the house and induces them to make her a quainted with the musician. Shortly after this woman invites th young artist to a soiree at her home where he meets many pe sons of influence and gets his first start toward a successful caree after which we see the young artist and his family in more con fortable circumstances. But the society woman is not satisfie with securing the artistic abilities of the violinist, but seeks win his affections and does to a certain extent wean him fro his home, much to the distress of his beautiful wife. In th meantime the friend of the violinist, who was largely instru mental in securing recognition for him, becomes infatuated wit the beautiful wife and endeavors to force his attentions upon he His stories of luxury tempt the wife to accompany him to th house of a mutual friend where he seeks further to win her lov At the same time the young man is paying a call upon the woma of society, who is exerting her charms upon him. But just a he is about to yield to her charms he happens to glance at h watch within the case of which he sees the photograph of h child. This recalls him to his senses and he bids a hasty goo bye to the temptress and starts for home. Similarly the wife reminded of her baby and she too hastens home. They bot meet at the cradle of the sleeping child who proves to be the guardian angel and complete love is once more restored to the It is a beautiful subject, delicately portrayed and is entitled to leading position on any program.

Another product of the American-Eclair studios is an inte esting comedy-drama, entitled "Jealous Julia," depicting th troubles of a young girl whose jealousy is aroused by the a pearance of another girl with her sweetheart who turns out t be his sister. The girl gets very much worked up and she se her lover escorting the other girl about town and is on the poi of committing suicide when she discovers the identity of th other girl, after which her fears are dispelled and she is aga happy in her lover's arms.

The Eclair Company has a number of equally good picture on the way, of both American and foreign manufacture. Th subject is of the highest character in quality and should b eagerly looked for by every exhibitor.

"THE POWER BEHIND THE THRONE" A STAT RIGHT?—NO!

Considerable confusion seems to exist throughout the coun try regarding the Mildred Holland, "Power Behind th Throne," two-reel release of the Power's Motion Pictur Company. This company has received dozens of letters in quiring for the State right prices for this picture play, an this, in spite of the fact that all of its advertising specific ally states that it is a regular release at an ordinary, releas day figure.

The Power's people are, however, handling this regula release in a manner of a State right proposition, having got ten out a full and complete line of paper and other advertis ing matter for it. The demand for the one, three and eight sheet lithographs and booklets has already gone far beyon all expectations, while the numerous requests for cuts of th scenes, etc., prove the universal interest the announcemen of this film has created.

As a free lobby display, the company is issuing a beautifu eight-sheet in four colors showing several scenes from th play and a picture of Miss Holland in a characteristic pose Several exchanges have ordered duplicate prints of this stu pendous production, as the demand of their customers fo definite booking dates has been far beyond anything the anticipated.

MONOPOL CATCHES "ODYSSEY" INFRINGER.

The Monopol Film Company, promoters of the Milan "Odyssey" picture, report that they have captured an in fringing copy of that picture at Ottawa, Ont., and hav secured the arrest of the owner, Rodo Cimmitiquez, who, i is alleged, was attempting to sell the Canadian rights t exhibit the picture.

SPENCER GETS BERNHARDT-REJANE PICTURE FOR CANADA.

F. G. Spencer, a well known amusement promoter of St Johns, N. B., has purchased the Canadian rights of th Bernhardt-Rejane pictures from the French-American Fil Company, paying the top price of $20,000 for the privilege Canada is big territory, so Mr. Spencer has expressed a will ingness to part with some of the provinces if the offering are attractive. In the territory retained, Mr. Spencer wil present the pictures in the high-class houses, touring in th same manner as though he were exploiting Mme. Bernhar herself.

"THE BROKEN LEASE" (Imp).

In "The Broken Lease," the Imp release of February 24th, e have an ingenious story worked out with very telling fect. Just suppose that you occupied an apartment and anted to vacate it and could not. You cannot afford to pay e rent for a long period because you had not the money, d you could not get anybody to take the apartment off ur hands, yet you must go to a distant part of the world take up an appointment that was waiting for you!

This was the problem before Mr. William Gleason. Disuraged in his attempts to have the lease broken by formal eans he makes himself an all round nuisance to his neighors by allowing a lot of children to create a noise in his partment; by introducing barking dogs and other means.

Scene from "The Broken Lease" (Imp).

While he is carrying out this scheme, his wife who is abent, returns and thinks her husband has gone insane. But here is method in his madness. He has become so intolerble to the tenants that they induce the agent to turn the leasons out of the apartment.

This is one of the pictures in which J. R. Cumpson is a arked success, and generally the comedy goes with a cream and a bang.

INCREASED DEMAND FOR HALLBERG D. C. ECONOMIZERS.

Mr. J. H. Hallberg "The Economizer Man," reports a gratifyng recognition of the merits of his Direct Current Economizer, s well as the Alternating Current Economizer; this is evidenced y the large number of orders he is receiving for these outfits. e is also furnishing complete theater outfits in various parts of e country.

WE CAME FROM MISSOURI, THEY SHOWED US.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Levi Co., Inc., have not as yet announced the release date of the first set of Motion Song Slides, illustrating Jerome H. Remick & Co.'s song, "That's the Kind of Fellow That I Could Love," every mail brings numerous inquiries and requests for service. This, added to the great number of exhibitors who have already contracted for service, proves that a good novelty, new and original, receives attention.

Did you, Mr. Exhibitor, ever think slides could be made that would produce motion like moving pictures? Naturally, your answer is no. So did we think, but believe us, they showed us. It's marvelous.

Being skeptical, we decided to see for ourselves and attended the first preliminary tryout. The first slide had been flashed on the screen no more than a few seconds when suddenly a roar of laughter was heard from the small and select audience. There before us on the screen was a real motion picture, comedy personified. As each and every slide was flashed the roar of laughter increased, the exhibition was a scream from beginning to end, and a sure treat to those who attended. We cannot speak too highly of this wonderful invention and consider it a welcome addition to the moving picture theater program.

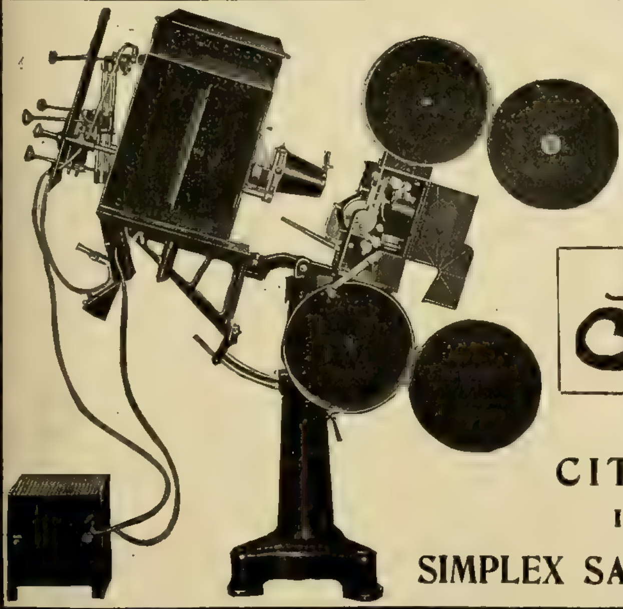
Mr. Billings and Miss Rose.

The models, Miss Amelia Rose and Mr. H. N. Billings are splendid character actors, their work being clever and original. Both are well-known in high-class vaudeville and very popular among the Broadwayites.

The Levi Co., Inc., have now under contract some of the best headliners in vaudeville to pose for the Motion Song Slides. It is their intention to use only first-class performers with big reputations to feature this new invention. Motion Song Slides will, without doubt, revive interest in song slides and should become the leading attraction of the moving picture theater. The first release is being held up awaiting the manufacture of the special double action slide carrier, which will be ready within a week or so.

DAVID WARSHAUER,

formerly connected with company talking to the pictures, please send address. Letter awaits you at World office.



As Exhibitors say "Years Ahead of Other Machines"

EASIEST TO HANDLE, THREAD and OPERATE
ABSOLUTELY FIREPROOF

Simplex THE PEER OF ALL PROJECTORS

No More Trouble With
CITY OFFICIAL INSPECTORS
If dealers misrepresent, send order to
SIMPLEX SALES AGENCY, 23 E. 14th St., New York

Calendar of Licensed Releases.

CURRENT RELEASES.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 19th, 1912.

BIOGRAPH—The Fatal Chocolate (Com.)
BIOGRAPH—Got a Match? (Com.)
KALEM—The Alcalde's Conspiracy (Dr.)	1000
LUBIN—Army Aviation Practice (Novelty)	200
LUBIN—A Midwinter Night's Dream (Dr.)	800
PATHE—Pathe's Weekly No. 8—1912 (Topical)	1000
SELIG—The Danites—Part 1 (Dr.)	1000
VITAGRAPH—The Struggle (Dr.)	1000

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 20th, 1912.

EDISON—The Nurse (Dr.)	1000
ESSANAY—The Biter Bitten (Com.)
ESSANAY—Curiosity (Com.)
C. G. P. C.—The Gamekeeper (Dr.)
C. G. P. C.—The Motion Picture Man in the Dark Continent (Scenic)
CINES—Leah's Trick (Com.)
CINES—The Valley of the Umbria (Scenic)
SELIG—The Danites—Part 2 (Dr.)	1000
VITAGRAPH—The Love of John Ruskin (Dr.)	1000

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 21st, 1912.

EDISON—One Thousand Miles Through the Rockies (Scenic)	350
EDISON—Everything Comes to Him Who "Waits" (Com.)	650
ELIPSE—The King's Command (Dr.)	1000
KALEM—The Girl Deputy (Dr.)	1000
PATHE—Marriage or Death (American Drama)	1000
LUBIN—In Dis-a-Countree (Dr.)	1000
VITAGRAPH—Her Last Shot (Dr.)	1000

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 22nd, 1912.

BIOGRAPH—Under Burning Skies (Dr.)
ESSANAY—The "Lemon" (Com.)	1000
LUBIN—Her Heart's Refuge (Dr.)	1000
MELIES—Melita's Ruse (Dr.)	1000
PATHE—Poor Jimmy (American Drama)	1000
SELIG—When Memory Calls (Dr.)	1000

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23rd, 1912.

EDISON—Children Who Labor (Edu.-Dr.)	425
ESSANAY—The Little Black Box (Dr.)	1000
KALEM—Back to the Kitchen (Com.)	1000
SELIG—A Persistent Suitor (Com.)
SELIG—Seeing Detroit (Sport and Scenic)
C. G. P. C.—The Presentiment (Dr.)
C. G. P. C.—Ancient Rome (Scenic)
VITAGRAPH—Cure for Pokeritis (Com.)	1000

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 24th, 1912.

EDISON—New York City Street Cleaning (Vocational)	425
EDISON—The Lost Kitten (Com.)	575
ESSANAY—A Western Kimono (Com.)	1000
CINES—Daughter of the Regiment (Dr.)	1000
LUBIN—Willie, the Hunter (Com.)	700
LUBIN—Pottery Making in America (Edu.)	300
PATHE—Phantom Lovers (American Drama)	1000
VITAGRAPH—Cowboy Damon and Pythias (Dr.)	1000

ADVANCE RELEASES.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 26th, 1912.

BIOGRAPH—The Sunbeam (Dramatic)
KALEM—The Bell of Penance (Dramatic)	1
LUBIN—A Matter of Business (Dramatic)	1
PATHE—Pathe's Weekly No. 9, 1912 (Topical)	1
SELIG—When Women Rule (Dramatic)	1
VITAGRAPH—Stenographers Wanted (Comedy)	1

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 27th, 1912.

EDISON—How Motion Pictures Are Made and Shown (Vocational)	1
ESSANAY—Positive Proof (Dramatic)	1
C. G. P. C.—The Tumbler's Kids (Dramatic)
C. G. P. C.—Asbestos Quarry (Ind.)
CINES—Happy In Spite of Herself (Dramatic)
CINES—Jenkins, A Perfect Steward (Comedy)
SELIG—In Little Italy (Dramatic)	1
VITAGRAPH—Justice of the Desert (Dramatic)	1

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 28th, 1912.

EDISON—My Double and How He Undid Me (Comedy)	1
ECLIPSE—Cousin Bill (Comedy)
ECLIPSE—A Glimpse of Tripoli (Scenic)
KALEM—A Tenderfoot's Troubles (Comedy)
KALEM—A Visit to Madeira (Scenic)
PATHE—The Squaw's Debt of Gratitude (Dramatic)
C. G. P. C.—Wrestling in Indo-China (Wrestling)
LUBIN—Love and Tears (Dramatic)	1
VITAGRAPH—The Patchwork Quilt (Dramatic)	1

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 29th, 1912.

BIOGRAPH—A Message From the Moon (Com.)
BIOGRAPH—Priscilla's Capture (Com.)
ESSANAY—Her Masterful Man (Comedy)	1
LUBIN—Betty and the Doctor (Dramatic)	1
MELIES—Oil (Com.-Dr.)	1
PATHE—The Ordeal (Comedy)
C. G. P. C.—The Great Market in Tananarive, Madagascar (Sc.)
SELIG—The "Diamond S. Ranch" (Western Drama)	1

FRIDAY, MARCH 1st, 1912.

EDISON—Tony's Oath of Vengeance (Dramatic)	1
ESSANAY—Do Dreams Come True (Comedy)	1
KALEM—Trapped by Wireless (Dramatic)	1
SELIG—As Told by Princess Bess (Dramatic)	1
C. G. P. C.—An Adventure of Van Dyck (Dramatic)
C. G. P. C.—Hunting Bears in Malaya (Scenic)
VITAGRAPH—The Diamond Brooch (Dramatic)	1

SATURDAY, MARCH 2nd, 1912.

EDISON—A Cowboy's Stratagem (Comedy)
EDISON—The Jam Closet (Comedy)
ESSANAY—The Ranch Girl's Mistake (Dramatic)	1
CINES—A Sister's Stratagem (Comedy)
LUBIN—A Mexican Courtship (Dramatic)	1
PATHE—His Mexican Sweetheart (Dramatic)
VITAGRAPH—The Telephone Girl (Comedy)	1

WATCH THIS SPACE EVERY WEEK. FEATURE POSTERS FOR FEATURE FILMS

Three-sheets 30c. (A. B. C. 3 Sheets 35c.) Eight-sheets 75c. With Correct Title, (Include 1c. for each sheet for prepaid postage, if ordered sent by mail
THE DANITES. THE NURSE. THE GIRL DEPUTY. UNDER BURNING SKIES. THE LITTLE BLACK BOX. DAUGHTER OF THE REGIMEN
AN AMERICAN INVASION. CAPTURED BY WIRELESS. BROKEN SPUR. WINNING IS LOSING. TWO CONVICT BROTHERS. HIS WIFE
JEALOUSY. CAUGHT IN THE TOILS. HOBO'S REDEMPTION. BATTLE OF POTTSBURG BRIDGE. PASSING OF J. B. RANDALL & C
TRICKED INTO HAPPINESS. MELODY OF LOVE. EQUITABLE FIRE. PLAYMATES. THE TEST. THE JEWELS. TIMELY RESCUE. THE STOWAWAY. THE IMPOSTO
The Blind Miner. The Heart of a Boss. His Mother. Through the Drifts. Joseph In Egypt. Delhi Durbar. Brutus. Desert Trail. Jack and th
Beanstalk. A Just Verdict. To Save Her Brother. Tom Tilling's Baby.
Two Spies, Little Organist, Southern Boy of '61. The O'Neil, Question of Seconds, Meeting of Ways, Moses, Cinderella, Revenue and the Girl, Vanit
Fair, Arrah na-Pogue, and all Licensed subjects worth featuring, past or future releases.

AMERICA'S POPULAR PHOTOPLAYERS
Full Sheet Posters in Colors of Arthur Johnson, Alice Joyce, Costello, Bunny, Gene Gauntier, Florence Turner, Anderson and other favorites.
Complete Set of 10 for $2.00. Postage Prepaid

POSTER FRAMES OR BORDER DESIGN
Fit exactly 3-sheet boards. Space in center for 1-sheet posters.
Complete Set of 10 for $1.00. By Mail 20c Extra for Prepaid Postage
Every One Different in Colors, Designs and Wording

Send Money Order or New York Draft with Order. No personal checks or C. O. D.

EXHIBITORS' ADVERTISING AND SPECIALTY CO. 105 EAST 14th STREET, NEW YORK
ARTHUR D. JACOBS - President and General Manage
BEN TITLE - - - - Secretary and Treasure
"IF IT'S ANYTHING TO ADVERTISE A PICTURE THEATRE WE HAVE IT"

The Latest Sensational Novelty

SPIEGEL'S

MOTION SLIDES

Illustrating

Jerome H. Remick & Co's
Big Song Success,

"That's the kind of fellow that I could love"

is positively the greatest comedy hit ever produced!

Every Slide a Scream!

Restricted to One Theatre in each city.

Write for particulars,

LEVI CO. INC.
1560 Broadway, N.Y.

We also make Motion Advertising Slides.

"THE IMMIGRANT'S VIOLIN" (Imp).

In "The Immigrant's Violin," the Imp drama release of Monday, February 26th, Miss Vivian Prescott, the new leading lady of the Imp Films Company, makes what is virtually her first appearance in the Imp pictures. She takes the part of the little Italian girl Rosa, who shortly after her arrival in New York is separated from her parents. She is a violinist of some ability and she attracts the attention of a society woman who is instrumental in getting her to appear before the public. In the course of her adventures Rosa re-encounters her poor parents and for the time being is inclined to pass them by, for she has a lover in the person of the son of her benefactress. However, she is true to the call of filial duty, and besides recognizing her parents is at the end of the story happily united to her American lover.

Scene from "The Immigrant's Violin" (Imp).

In this picture the producer of the story, Mr. Otis Turner, has been successful in illustrating the characteristic life of the poor Italian colony in New York City. It is full of atmosphere and picturesqueness. Miss Prescott looks the part of the Italian girl to the life.

GAUMONT POSTERS FOR "THE TRUST."

The expensive character of Gaumont posters in all sizes has made it necessary for the Gaumont Company to establish the price of seven cents on all future one-sheet, fourteen cents on two-sheet and twenty cents on three-sheet posters. Even at this slightly increased price, the charges of this manufacturer for his posters are considerably less than that placed by other concerns on the lithographs which accompany their releases.

Especially designed posters of unusual artistic merit have been prepared by the lithographer and those who have seen them admit that they never before have seen large displays that were such good business getters. The very character of this feature two-reel March 9 production, being as it is an exposé of some of the dark, nefarious, crooked and crafty methods employed by monopolies to gain the avaricious goals, allows for exceptional advertising.

GEORGE LARKIN ENGAGED BY ECLAIR.

George Larkin, late of the Pathe stock company and sometimes known as the daredevil of moving pictures, has been engaged by the Eclair stock company. Mr. Larkin played numerous leads while with Pathe, amongst them "A Cheyenne Brave," "Under Both Flags," "Advertising for a Wife," "Cowboy Justice" and "Hobo Luck."

Calendar of Independent Releases

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 19th, 1912.

AMERICAN—Society and Chaps (Western Drama) .
CHAMPION—The Merchant Mayor of Indianapoli
(Dr.) ....
IMP—A Modern Highwayman (Dr.) ....
NESTOR—Blind Man's Buff (Comedy) ....

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 20th, 1912.

BISON—Deputy's Sweetheart (Dr.) ....
ECLAIR—The Fateful Diamond (Dr.) ....
POWERS—His Brother Willie (Com.) ....
THANHOUSER—Washington in Danger (Hist.-Dr.).

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 21st, 1912.

AMBROSIO—Accursed Rock ....
CHAMPION—A Wife's Discovery (Com.) ....
NESTOR—Rollicking Red's Big Lark (W. Com.)....
RELIANCE—Bedelia and Mrs. Busybody (Com.) ....
SOLAX—Hubby Does the Washing (Com.) ....

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 22nd, 1912.

AMERICAN—A Leap Year Comedy (W. Com.) ....
ECLAIR—Jealous Julia (Am. Com.) ....
IMP—The Lie (Dr.) ....
REX—Under Her Wing (Dr.) ....

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 23rd, 1912.

BISON—War on the Plains (Dr.)...................
LUX—The Cook's Revenge (Com.) ....
LUX—Bill's Motor (Com.) ....
SOLAX—God Disposes (Dr.) ....
THANHOUSER—A Message from Niagara (Dr.) ...

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 24th, 1912.

GAUMONT—The Smuggler (Dr.) ....
GREAT NORTHERN—Those Married Men (Com.) ..
IMP—Ice Boating on the Shrewsbury River, N. .
(Sporting) ....
IMP—The Broken Lease (Com.-Dr.) ....
NESTOR—Grand Canyon, Arizona (Sc.) ....
NESTOR—Settled Out of Court (Com.) ....
NESTOR—Tightwad Almost Saves a Dollar (Com.) ..
POWERS—As Fate Would Have It (Dr.) ....
RELIANCE—A Child's First Love (Dr.) ....
REPUBLIC—A Tangled Skein (Dr.) ....

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 25th, 1912.

ECLAIR—A Terrible Night (Com.) ....
ECLAIR—The City of Mosques (Scenic) ....
MAJESTIC—Bought (Dr.) ....
REX—The End of the Circle (Dr.) ....
SOLAX—His Lordship's White Feather (Dr.) ....

SPECIAL PICTURE SHOW FOR EXHIBITOR

The Kalem Company will give a special exhibition notable picture "A Spartan Mother" for exhibitors onl Tuesday, February 20, at 11 o'clock at the Auditorium ter on 23rd Street near Seventh Avenue, New York. this occasion music, composed and arranged especiall "A Spartan Mother" by Walter C. Simon, will be with the picture by Mr. Simon. This will give added est to the occasion. Exhibitors of Greater New Yor vicinity are cordially invited to be present at this exhib

WARIOTO FILM COMPA

Renters of Independent Films

Fifth Avenue Theatre Bldg., Nashville, Tenne

WE RENT FEATUR

Notre Dame de Paris, 3 reels, hand colored—Siege of Calais, 3 reels—leon at St. Helena, 2 reels—Scandal in Society, 3 reels—Dante's Inf reels—Italian War, Cines, all editions, and hundreds of other Americ European productions. LITHOGRAPH FREE WITH ALL BOOK

METROPOLITAN FILM CO., 179 Third Ave., New Yor

Agents wanted for city booking Large stock of features and education film

Correspondence

NEW ENGLAND.

le, Maine, has been invaded by ten members ie Edison Company, under the direction ar Apfel. They came in search of snow d expect to take several pictures, one ance-cutting setting, another with a min- ound, and another that will portray life logging camp.

adway Theater, Everett, Mass., was the doors on Wednesday evening, Feb 7 when the house was given over to a formance for the Home for Aged Per- verett. The audience was made up of of the town with "claw-hammer" low-neck gowns as the prevailing dress.

g Monday, February 5, the Olympia ynn, Mass., inaugurated a slight change and the shows are now run on a little stem than formerly. At 1.30 afternoons, performance will start, and seven acts ille, together with the usual Licensed are presented. The second show lasts e supper hours and is repeated again in ings. This makes three complete shows dnesdays and Fridays have been set a special bargain days, and the program hanged on Mondays and Thursdays. The certainly putting out the finest kind us, and is making good with miles to February, the Lyceum Hall, Milford, ned as a picture house, under the man- f Albert and Alfred Luby. Mr. William f Taunton, Mass., who rented the theater thers, attended the opening. The theater matinee and two evening performances. Warner is the operator and Miss Sadie Milford, is pianist. The theater opened a orough renovation, and the reports state s is fully up to expectations.

ary 14, Louis M. Boas, Eastern manager arcus Loew enterprises, was married to Marguerite H Gallagher of South Boston. received many gifts as he is very popu- is associates.

rusaders, or Jerusalem Delivered," to be a big paying attraction at the heater, Springfield, Mass., on February ager R. J. McDonald speaks well of res as box-office attractions.

I. Dillenback of the Nelson Theater, Mass., is kept fairly busy looking after ts of his house, but found time to be- ason, and is now a full fledged member mpden Lodge of that city.

Theater, Providence, R. I., which has ng vaudeville and pictures, will change stock company attractions before long. is given for this change.

Z. Poli, who controls a large number throughout New England devoted to and pictures, has gone to the Bermudas ure trip which will last about one month. i is about to build a new theater in , Conn., which will be located on Main he house will no doubt eclipse anything port, as it will be 80 x 150 in size, l give it a seating capacity of at least ns have been drawn and accepted, and cts will be let out immediately.

nderstood that the Central Square The- , Mass., is finding that its recent switch eville and pictures to stock comic opera one. Col. W. G. Stanton is managing the efore.

Foster, a moving picture operator, is for a lot of credit as a result of his Foster was turning the crank at an of films at the Hotel Somerset, Boston, film caught fire. Foster stuck by his xtinguished the fire, but not until he had s hands. Mr. Foster is connected with h's Bijou Dream, Boston.

rusaders" made a lasting impression at sex, Middletown, Conn., when the reels bited February 9 and 10. The prices for were ten and twenty cents, and jammed re the rule.

ry Engel, proprietor and manager of the Theater,' Middletown, Conn., is doing a factory business, and gives his perform- photoplays every afternoon and evening. prices are ten cents, with children at ace Robbins of Medford, Mass., wife of bbins, formerly treasurer of the Park Worcester, Mass., is suing the Goldstein Amusement Company of Springfield, for rs. Robbins claims she has sustained being hit by the drop curtain in the ' Springfield theater. Mrs. Robbins is er.

pire Theater, Salem, Mass., was "dark" week of February 5, with the exception of Saturday evening, when a program of vaudeville and pictures was given.

Although Lynn, Mass., at present has four theaters, with a total seating capacity of 7,000, representatives of the United Booking Company of New York, are investigating conditions and are looking for prospective sites for a new theater to seat between 2,500 and 3,000 people. The lots under consideration are on Mount Vernon Street, at the corner of Liberty Street and Central Avenue. The house will be built with stores flanking the front entrance, provided this site is taken. Lynn has always been a big show town, but too much of a good thing may spoil everyone's business.

These columns have set forth in a recent issue, the bill proposed before the Massachusetts Legislature with the purpose of closing all moving picture theaters during certain hours each day. This bill was never brought before the committee, as it was withdrawn by the petitioner himself.

Representative W. J. Sullivan of Boston, appeared before the Committee on Mercantile Affairs on Monday, February 5, for the petition of E. T. McDermott and others to change the law in regard to moving picture operators by raising the age of assistants from 18 to 20 years, and providing that they must have served at least one year under a competent operator before appearing for a license to operate. Representative Sullivan, in urging the bill, stated that moving picture machines are most dangerous, and that there are schools which turn out operators very quickly. Some of these men obtain licenses, claimed Mr. Sullivan, although not able to operate properly. E. T. McDermott, president of the Boston local Operators' Union, and the petitioner of this bill, stated that an operator's occupation is very dangerous. Mr. M. Douglas Flattery, representing the Marcus Loew interests, spoke in opposition, stating that the machines are not dangerous, under the precautions which must be taken under the present laws. Ex-Representative Guy A. Ham opposed the bill, and asserted that it was designed simply to make it difficult to secure operators, and thereby raise the wages of the men. It may be stated that it is a well known truth that supply and demand regulate prices, and that the fewer operators there are, the higher pay they can command. Local managers are interested in the bill, which has not yet been decided upon by the Committee.

Marcus Loew has been having a great deal of legal difficulty over his South End Theater, ever since he secured it last spring from Edwards & Farren, through a foreclosure sale. The case again came up in court, the Marcus Loew interests appearing under the name of the Columbia Amusement Company. The decree which was given by Justice Braley of the Supreme Judicial Court was that the plaintiffs were restored into possession of so much of the lease as they were entitled to, due to the alterations that they made after their lease was consummated. This really means that Farren & Edwards can take possession of the entrance to the theater, as they remodeled this after the lease was made, provided they will pay Marcus Loew the rent for it. Imagine it! Farren & Edwards may rent the entrance to the South End Theater from Marcus Loew, which of course, would force the Loew people to build a new entrance somewhere at a large expense.

Providence, R. I., will soon have a new house, as the Allen Theater and Realty Company is building a theater on the corner of Union and Worcester Streets. The Scenic Temple, also of Providence, is operated as a vaudeville and picture house by this company, but the new house will be superior to the Scenic in every way.

The S. C. Taylor Amusement Company of New York City, are about to enter Hartford, Conn., and have several sites under their consideration. As soon as the location is chosen, work will be started, in order that the house may be ready by early spring. Vaudeville and pictures will be the policy.

The new B. F. Keith Theater of Lowell, Mass., which opened recently, is finding business unusually good, according to every report. This house seats very close to 2,000 people, and is giving very good shows.

The picture and vaudeville houses of Lawrence, Mass., have been slowed down a great deal, due to the great mill strike which is going on there. As a large portion of the mill operatives are not working, the people have but little money for the photoplay houses.

The John J. Quigley Theatrical Agency, Incorporated, of Boston, booking vaudeville acts into a number of New England photoplay theaters, seems to be having its hands full these days. The White Rat Actors' Union claim that the Quigley people are unfair to the actors in the matter of contracts, and started to boycott the agency. A large number of White Rats took up positions in front of the agency at 88 Boylston Street, and encouraged all actors to keep away from the office. After much talk, the agency came to an agreement with the White Rats and decided upon a board of arbitration to look into the matter. Attorney Herbert Kenny for Mr. Quigley, Joseph Callahan, official organizer of the White Rats, and Dr. Lothrop of the Bowdoin Square Theater, Boston, make up the committee. The pickets which were placed about Mr. Quigley's office were called off, and each party has deposited a bond of $1,000 with a surety company. The idea being that whenever the actors' claims against Quigley for salary due them on contracts are proven valid, the amount will be deducted from the $1,000 bond and paid to the actors.

The Quigley Agency has also been "in wrong" with the Goldstein Brothers Amusement Company of Springfield. It seems that Quigley sent several performers to play houses in Springfield and Westfield, Mass., which are operated by the Goldstein Brothers, and that when they arrived at the theaters the performers were told that Quigley had not been authorized to send any vaudeville talent to these theaters. The Goldstein Brothers paid the actors their contract salaries under protest, and with the understanding that the money was to be returned to them, if it were proven that they had given no orders to Quigley. At a hearing on the matter, an arbitration committee composed of J. Callahan, a director of the White Rats, W. C. Youngson and Manager Nelson of the Nelson Theater, Springfield, it was decided that Quigley had acted without any authority from the Goldstein Brothers, and returned the money to them. Things like these have harmed the agency with the photoplay theaters, who wish no trouble with the White Rats, and several houses have made arrangements to procure their talent elsewhere.

Poli's Theater, Norwich, Conn., which has been playing vaudeville and pictures, has eliminated the vaudeville, and is now showing a straight picture program. Mr. James Clancy states that the house does very well, and doesn't need the vaudeville.

The Arab Patrol of Bektash Temple, A. A. O. N. M. Shriners, has secured a lease on the Auditorium Theater, Concord, N. H. The house has lately been operated by Messrs. Marcus and Cohen. It is also understood that these people have obtained the Park Theater, Manchester, N. H., and the Opera House of Dover, N. H. Mr. Roy M. Burbank will manage the houses, which will play one night stands of vaudeville and pictures. The Shriners hope to make enough money from this venture to allow them to pay a visit to the Imperial Temple at Los Angeles next May. The idea is unique, and local picture interests are curious concerning the outcome.

A costly midnight fire which started in the Outlet Clothing Company's store, visited Pittsfield, Mass., January 28. The World in Motion Theater, owned by John F. Cooney, was destroyed. The theater was located on the second, third and fourth floors of the Academy of Music Building. It is stated that the loss to the World in Motion Theater was about $3,000. Cause of this fire is unknown.

The Eagle Theater, Fall River, Mass., which was opened this fall, has closed for lack of trade. Conditions in Fall River have been damaged by the strike of mill operatives in Lawrence, Mass., as there is talk of extending this strike to Fall River.

The Premier Theater, Fall River, Mass., has a new manager in the person of Michael Reagen. The Premier usually does satisfactory business.

F. E. Page, president of the local branch of the International Alliance of Theatrical Employees of Providence, R. I., was presented with a gold medal. Mr. Page is employed at Bullock's Theater, Providence, running vaudeville and pictures.

The Boston Amusement Company, of which Mr. P. J. Gallagher was formerly president and general manager, will have to pay $150 to a singer whom the company employed. There was some trouble about the payment, and the matter was brought to court.

Rutland, Vt., evidently is the proud possessor of a board of education that really is on the job, as moving pictures are to form a part of the regular courses in the schools.

The Y. M. C. A. of Rutland, Vt., is giving entertainments of photoplays to its members, and finds that the pictures serve as a great magnet to draw the members to the local club house. From these two items it would seem that Rutland is more than usually enterprising.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Sheafe, of Keene, N. H., paid a business visit to Boston recently. Mr. Sheafe is the proprietor and manager of the Majestic Theater of Keene, which plays Independent pictures and Vaudeville. While in Boston Mr. Sheafe dropped in on his old chum, Mr. George I. Appleby, manager of the Star Theater, and renewed his old friendship. Mr. Sheafe became interested in the clever "song-revue" used by Manager Appleby, and decided to use this novelty himself. Mr. Sheafe is one of the original "Independent" men, and always has used their pictures.

Zenicon Temple, Roxbury, Mass., closed on Monday, February 5, to reopen on the 15th. This house has just changed hands, but will reopen under the management of the original owners. The house was slowed up, due to the opening of the new Shawmut Theater, but expects to come back strong when the original owners take up the management again.

"Pop" Lubin was in Boston last Friday, and met all the local managers at the office of the General Film Company. "Pop" invited all the boys to Philadelphia next June, when he promises them a big time. With the trip to the Vitagraph Company's plant still vivid in the minds of local managers, the invitation was taken up on the spot. "Pop" was given three rousing cheers upon his departure, with the final words, "See you next June, Pop!"

(Continued on Page 702.)

State
Rights Now on Sale

TO ALL STATE RIGHTS BUYERS:

Best
Box Office
Reels in the World

Genius, Glory, Greatness
Make Our Motion Pictures Magical
That Splendid Sovereign of the Stage

THE DIVINE
THE INCOMPARABLE SARAH

BERNHARDT

and her Parisian All-Star Company Have Played with Pride and Perfect Art Before Our Cameras

Dumas' Emotional World Classic

"CAMILLE"

United States, Mexico,

Bernhardt
in
"Camille"

2 REELS—2,275 FEET

All
North
American Rights
Selling
Fast

Class
Counts

and the millions who worship her can see Bernhardt henceforth without awaiting her brief, sensational, immensely costly visits.

"I rely on these films to make me immortal."—Bernhardt.

Also another masterpiece—The Greatest Comedienne of France

RÉJANE

in

"SANS-GÉNE"

Sardou's Supreme Napoleonic Comedy

3 REELS—3,075 FEET

in
"Sans-Gene"
Give
Two and
One-half Hours of Exciting
Art

Absolute
Copyright
Protection

BOTH PLAYS ARE VIVID AS LIGHTNING

FRENCH AMERICAN FILM CO.
400 Times Building, New York

Special
4-color Paper
Perfect
Publicity
Courier Co.

(Continued from Page 699.)

The Amusement Association of New England held a meeting at the exhibition room of the General Film Company on February 8, and went over the bills relating to the industry soon to be brought before the legislature. At the next meeting officers are to be elected.

HENRY.

LOUISVILLE.

The Princess Amusement Company recently announced a reduction to five cents in admission price, the cut taking effect in all of the houses operated by the company. The Orpheum and Casino are the theaters affected in the downtown business district. The reduction has already produced results, according to J. F. Mayer, treasurer of the Princess, the attendance since the lower prics were announced showing a perceptible increase.

The Orpheum Theater, 320 West Jefferson Street, was damaged to the extent of $5,000, by water, attending a $50,000 fire in adjacent buildings.

Miss Ora Burch has been brought back to Louisville from Chicago by the management of the Casino Theater. She has been special soloist at the Savoy and Congress for the past few years. Miss Burch comes of a singing family, a sister being with a musical production in Chicago.

"Dante's Inferno," which was seen in Louisville at the Shubert Masonic Theater, was presented at the theaters of the Falls Cities Amusement Company in Jeffersonville and New Albany, Ind., recently, scoring a big hit with the populace of the two towns. The regular prices of 10 cents were maintained, in contrast with those of 25 and 50 cents which prevailed when the films were shown in Louisville.

M. Switow, head of the Falls Cities Amusement Company, is contemplating the erection of a new house in New Albany, Ind. Mr. Switow has not yet definitely decided on that step, however. The Novelty, the recently erected theater on Fourth Avenue, Louisville, has continued to draw good houses, the films of the new Kentucky & Indiana National Film Exchange having attracted much favorable comment. The management of the Novelty is negotiating for the state rights for Kentucky and Indiana for several feature films made by various companies.

"A Blot on the 'Scutcheon," recently presented at the new Majestic Theater, attracted much comment. It was made by the Biograph Company.

The Hungarian Orchestra, which was recently secured by L. J. Dittmar, manager of the Majestic, is winning popularity by rendering "request" programmes, as well as the regular music.

The Parkland Amusement Company, 2815 Dumesnil Street, has filed articles of incorpartion with a capital of $1,000. Henry Bauer, F. L. Richards and R. Lugenbuhl are the incorporators.

H. D. Ticknor, until recently with the Globe Film Service Company, in charge of the Louisville branch, has severed his connection with that company, and is now with the Standard Film Exchange, with offices in the Tyler Building. Miss B. A. Plessinger is now in charge of the office of the Globe in the Wayne Building. The title has been changed to the Independent Moving Picture Service. The Globe sold its interests in Chicago and incidentally changed the methods of its branches.

Manager Robert Jacobstein, of the Crystal Theater Market Street, near Third, has recovered from a slight operation on his neck and is now in active charge of the theater.

Ray Conover and George Montgomery of Columbia, Ky., have made arrangements for operating a new picture playhouse in that town. George W. Lowe will have an interest in the venture, and will have charge of the music. The owners went to Cincinnati, where the necessary equipment was purchased. "The Parlor Circle" will be the name of the new house, which will start some time in February.

Moving pictures were used in the local option fight in Madisonville, Ky. Rowland Clark, proprietor of the Imp Theater, and a champion of the "drys," moved his show to the Tabernacle and showed prohibition nightly following anti liquor lectures.

In line with its recently announced decision of establishing moving picture houses in Kentucky towns, the Colonial Amusement Company, of Lexington, Ky., has leased a building in Paris and will open a modern theater about May 1. President John B. Elliott engineered the deal for the building at Fourth and Main Streets. About $5,000 will be spent in improvements and alterations. Other towns also will be invaded in the near future, it is said. Frankfort, Georgetown, Richmond and other towns are included in the list of places which will be given theaters.

E. E. Maggard, of the Maggard Opera House, of Morehead, Ky., is having built a new moving picture machine which he expects to greatly improve his projection. Mr. Maggard has secured a patent on the device which, it is claimed, will eliminate flickering. Mr Maggard is a mechanic of ability and moving picture men are much interested in his machine.

With the arrival of somewhat warmer weather the moving picture business has resumed its normal proportions in Louisville which means that it is in splendid shape. The rather slim crowds which were on hand during the extremely cold weather have increased with the passing of the snow.

Charles Reinhart, formerly of the Orpheum, has been secured by the Falls Cities Amusement Company for the Novelty Theater.

The officers of the Princess now have lines out for a first-class singer, and it is expected that the entertainment will come up to standard in this respect. The result of the reduction in prices to five cents has already been apparent in augmented audiences, and the management is quite satisfied with the change.

The Casino Theater, Fourth Street, near Jefferson, has continued to attract good crowds. While the films shown have been consistent with the high class of the theater, pictures showing current events have been greeted with unusual enthusiasm. One which made a decided hit was that showing a disastrous wreck about 20 miles from Louisville a short time ago.

Larry Gero, house manager of the Novelty Theater, Fourth Street, near Green, has resigned and has re-entered the legitimate field, taking a position with the Walnut Theater, Louisville. Mr. Gero was in the theatrical business before working with the moving picture houses, and is at home there. The Novelty, which is conducted under the auspices of the Falls Cities Amusement Company, has secured the Kentucky rights for a number of stellar attractions, among them the American Press Association slides, of current events. Kentucky and Indiana rights have been secured on "Love and Aviation," and "The Thunderbolt," both of which have been highly spoken of. Indiana rights have been secured for "Zigomar." Other exceptionally important films will be shown by the Falls Cities Amusement Company. Charles Reinhart, better known as "Cy," rendered a musical program out of the ordinary recently. Mr Reinhart is the possessor of a voice that still captivates audiences as when he was a member of Feld's minstrels, and his signature to a contract means money in the coffers of the Novelty.

"Lend Me Your Wife" is all that is claimed for it, if the opinion of Louisville theater-goers is a standard. The comic film was shown at the Novelty recently, and stood out brightly in a bill which was well above the average.

"Vanity Fair" was the feature at the Majestic, and created much favorable comment.

Thomas Paffer, a Louisville boy who has appeared at various moving picture houses, will shortly be placed on a regular circuit, following the recommendation of several managers. Paffer is only 16 years old, but has displayed marked talent, and moving picture men have assisted in boosting him. He evidently has a bright future in store.

The Pastime Theater, Winchester, Ky., will, in the near future, be remodeled and redecorated at a cost of $500. The house will be closed pending the improvements, and will open again about the middle of March.

H. H. Phillips, owner of the Lyric Theater, of Winchester, Ky., has purchased the major portion of the stock of the Winchester Baseball Association and will have active charge of the Bluegrass League baseball team in that town during the coming summer.

The Lyric Theater of Owensboro, Ky., opened to the public recently with success. A continuous performance will be given. The house is a handsome one, having been thoroughly remodeled to suit requirements. Carl Mertes, a talented musician of Tell City, Ind., will render the music.

Hess & Dugan, proprietors of the Manring Theater, Middlesboro, Ky., have decided to use the Independent film service in the future. The change has gone into effect.

S. N. Dupuis has leased the Duke Building, Eddyville, Ky., and it will blossom out as a moving picture theater about the first of March. The Electric Theater will be its name. Mr. Dupuis is a well known photoshow man, having operated theaters in various Kentucky towns.

Several moving picture men have been looking over Harlan, Ky., where the Edisonia theater recently opened, with a view to erecting other theaters, according to reports from the coal mining town. The popularity of the new photoplay house and the prosperity of that locality have acted as magnets for the moving picture capitalists.

G. D. CRAIN, JR.

BUFFALO.

Keith's Columbia Theater, on Main Street, midway between Seneca and Swan Streets, recently began business. The new theater is of fireproof construction. It is 40 feet wide and 150 feet deep, extending through to Washington Street. It's main entrance and interior are modeled in arrangement and decoration after the Royal Theater of London. Extending over the sidewalk is an awning of ornamental wrought iron, inlaid with stained glass and studded with 500 glowing lights, which merge with the illumination of beautiful French chandeliers with prismatic lamps, so that the light is equally divided and shadows are absent. In addition is the light of six flaming arcs.

The elaborate tiled flooring of the lobby extends half way across the sidewalk. On the side walls of the entrance are beautiful paintings, 14 feet high and 10 feet wide. Over these pictures is lattice work, illuminated on the back, and giving the impression that the paintings are some distance away.

The side walls of the interior are decorated in white with delicate shades of pink and green beautifully and harmoniously blended. The decorating was done by Joseph Valk of Buffalo. The theater is perfectly heated and ventilated. interior of the theater is adequately illuminat yet there is not a light visible inside the ho The floor is covered with cork linoleum, an i thick, and absolutely noiseless.

The booth is suspended from the ceiling. tached to its only door are fusible link cha which would melt in case of fire in the booth close the door instantly. This door is also rated by a single lever, so that the man in cha by one movement of his arm, can close the door once in case of accident in the booth other fire. These precautions make it impossible anything to drop from the booth in the event fire or accident therein. At the left of the st is a magnificent pipe organ, the like of wh Buffalo had never before seen. It has 2 pipes, and represents an outlay of $15,000. Un a cuhrch organ, capable of producing only mus sounds, this organ emits in addition, many o sound effects, such as the pounding of horses' h on a hard pavement, the swishing of surf o rock-bound shore, the chug-chug of an auto, rumbling of a cab, the whir of a train, etc. cause of this big feature, Keith's Columbia ater is becoming known as "The House With Organ."

It is possible to empty the house entirely in minutes in case of emergency. The theater ha seating capacity of 1,000. The admission to parts of the theater is ten cents. Continuous formances are given daily.

ED. SCANLO

PHILADELPHIA.

A curfew law is to be applied to the mo picture business in Philadelphia if an Ordin of Councils will suffice to make such a police r lation effective.

Some of the managers of local houses favor proposition, particularly those in the center the city. Most of those in the outlying sect strenuously oppose the suggestion, claiming the bulk of their night patronage is children.

Director Porter of the Department of Pu Safety, is in favor of the proposed ordinance has assumed an attitude towards the moving pic houses that amounts almost to hostility de the fact that he is a live wire, young in his h and figures big in the Boy Scout movement, a which would suggest a more friendly attitude.

Investigations will probably disclose the that he has been wofully misled by hairbra women who have no children, will never any and could not care for them if they did them, but assume the right to regulate the and all the affairs for the benefit of women have children with a degree of regularity, who really know what they want.

The curfew law proposition was tried here the matter of girls selling newspapers and mat after sundown. All these children were d off of the streets, where they were under the trol and eye of the police, into white slave ho where they were protected by police-politic Scores of them were taken in raids.

Mr. Philip Quigley, of Quigley & Bennet, 50 North Tenth Street, was in charge of the ing picture entertainment given at Lu Lu Te by the Ice Drivers' Union.

Miss Catherine Taylor was the winner of a p drawing contest at the American Theater cently. The prize was a handsome set of fur

Mr. George W. Malone, formerly propriet the little Girard, Ninth and Girard Avenue, bought the Royal Palace, no. 758 South Street, which has been closed for some time.

The Victoria, No. 1619-21 South Street, changed its management, now being owned Messrs. Thomas & Clark. The name has also changed to the Gem. It was formerly owne Mr. William Scott.

The Opera House, and the Delaware H Smyrna, Del., has been bought by J. Goldsbor The Opera House will be run in conjunction the hotel and will show vaudeville and m pictures. Mr. William Boyd of Dover, was merly owner.

Mr. George Graff has sold out his intere the Eagle Film Company, to his partner, W Sachenwair. Mr. Graff has just returned fr tour of Europe, after being gone five weeks. says America is far behind England in proje Messrs. Truckenmiller & Stahl have opene Lyric Theater at Emaus, Pa.

Young's old pier, Atlantic City, N. J., has sold to a Philadelphia corporation.

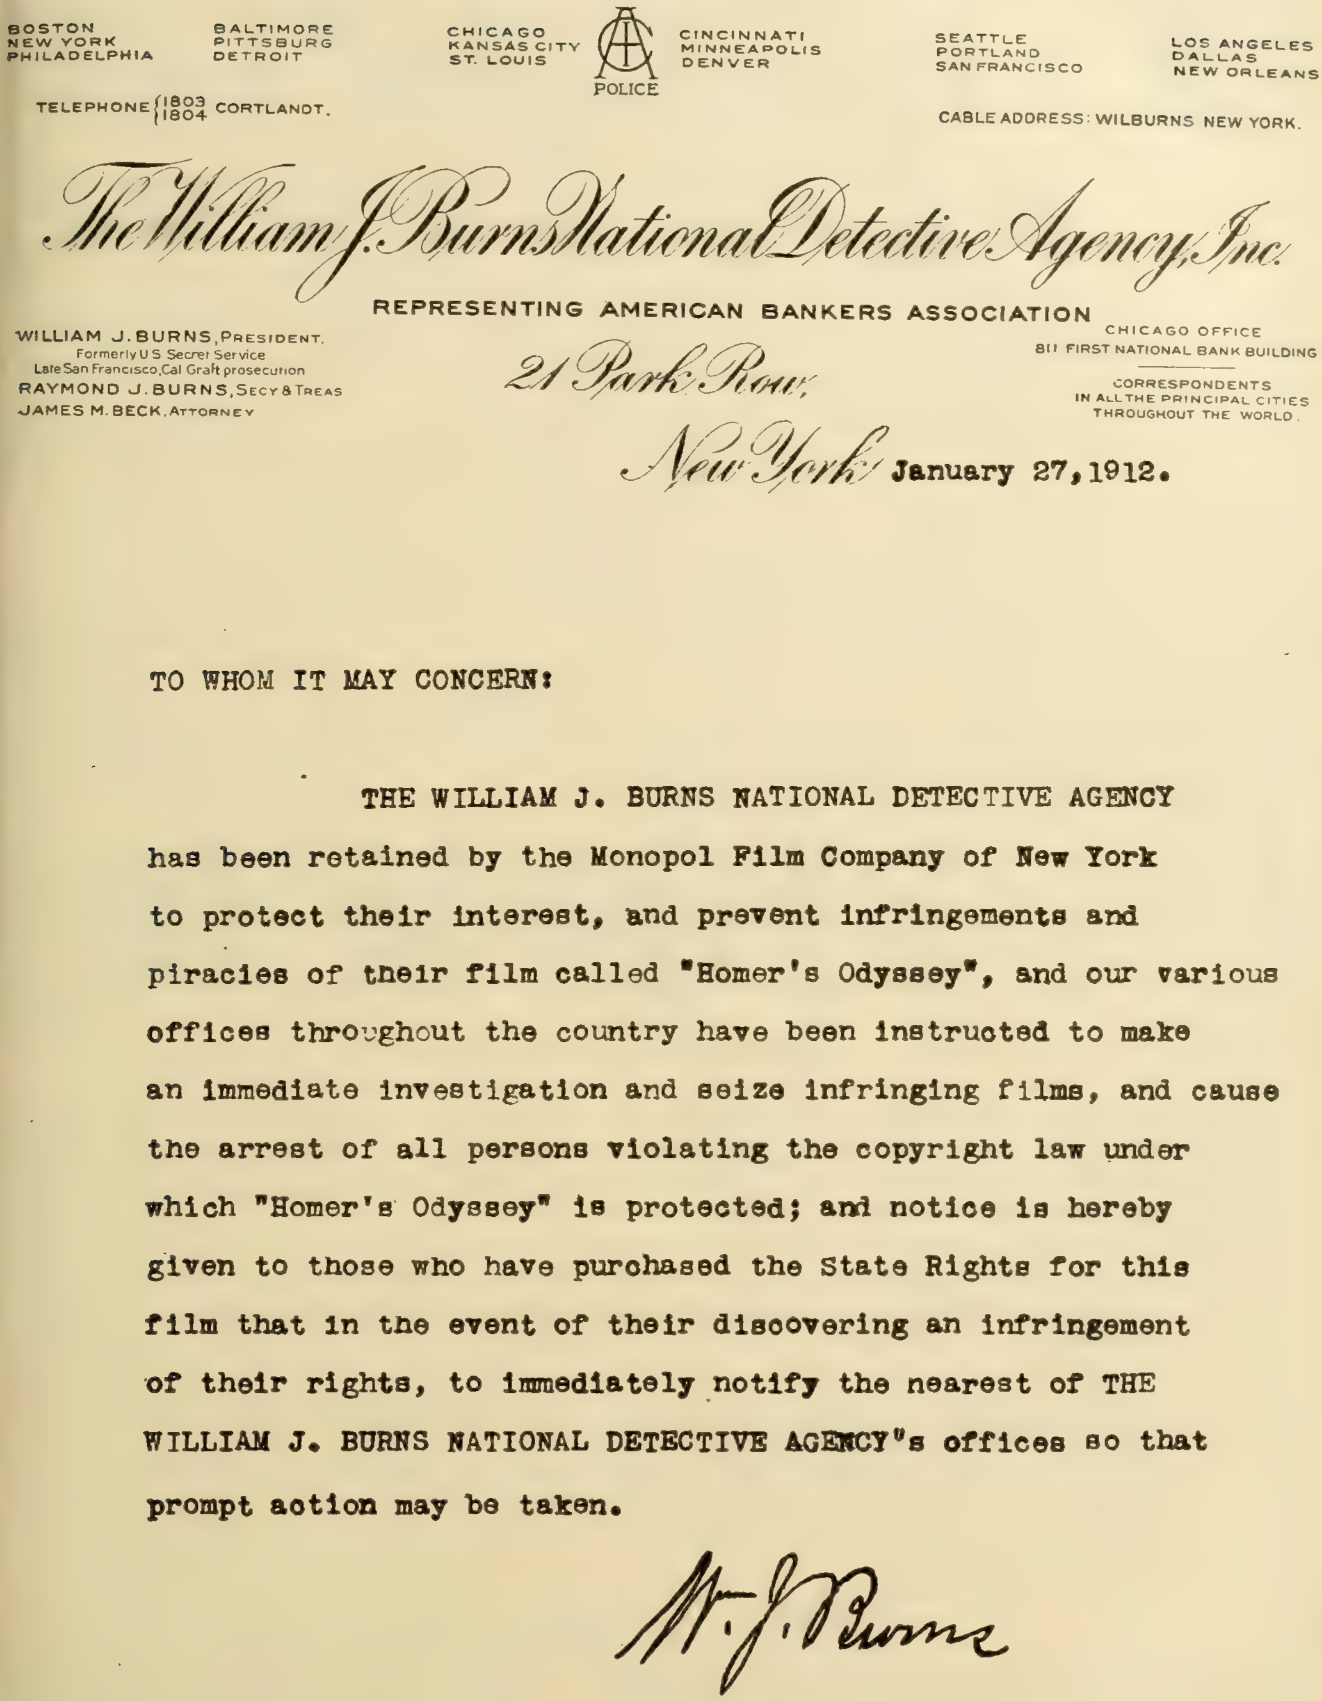
The Fulton Theater, Chester, Pa., under management of Howard Roberts, has closed. house was taken over by Mr. Roberts se months ago and was changed from a colored white house but was unsuccessful.

The Broad Street Palace, under the ma ment of Nicholas Commander, is being com remodeled. Fire, which started in an adj building, partly damaged the Palace several ago. The stage will be set back against the and many other alterations will be made.

The fire department of West Collingswood, are giving moving picture shows every week proceeds to be devoted to paying for improve and additions to the fire house.

Alterations are being made to the moving p house at No. 3139-49 Frankford Avenue, own

(Continued on Page 707.)



BOSTON
NEW YORK
PHILADELPHIA

BALTIMORE
PITTSBURG
DETROIT

CHICAGO
KANSAS CITY
ST. LOUIS

POLICE

CINCINNATI
MINNEAPOLIS
DENVER

SEATTLE
PORTLAND
SAN FRANCISCO

LOS ANGELES
DALLAS
NEW ORLEANS

TELEPHONE {1803 1804 CORTLANDT.

CABLE ADDRESS: WILBURNS NEW YORK.

The William J. Burns National Detective Agency, Inc.

REPRESENTING AMERICAN BANKERS ASSOCIATION

WILLIAM J. BURNS, PRESIDENT.
Formerly U S Secret Service
Late San Francisco, Cal Graft prosecution
RAYMOND J. BURNS, SECY & TREAS
JAMES M. BECK, ATTORNEY

21 Park Row,

CHICAGO OFFICE
811 FIRST NATIONAL BANK BUILDING

CORRESPONDENTS
IN ALL THE PRINCIPAL CITIES
THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

New York January 27, 1912.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

THE WILLIAM J. BURNS NATIONAL DETECTIVE AGENCY has been retained by the Monopol Film Company of New York to protect their interest, and prevent infringements and piracies of their film called "Homer's Odyssey", and our various offices throughout the country have been instructed to make an immediate investigation and seize infringing films, and cause the arrest of all persons violating the copyright law under which "Homer's Odyssey" is protected; and notice is hereby given to those who have purchased the State Rights for this film that in the event of their discovering an infringement of their rights, to immediately notify the nearest of THE WILLIAM J. BURNS NATIONAL DETECTIVE AGENCY"s offices so that prompt action may be taken.

W. J. Burns

$16,527.00

PAID FOR TE

NORTH and SOUTH CAROLINA—FLORIDA—ALABAMA—AR

STATES EXHIBI

JAKE WELLS, General Manager

Washington Idaho Montana	Were Sold by wire to Geo. Emms.	1500 Inquires Have Bee Received lo Open Stats

HOMER'S

$200,000 PRODUCTION

STATE RIGHT BUYERS

1—Homer's Odyssey is a Milano Film. It is the successor to Dante's Inferno—Only—Bigger—Better—More Thrillin

2—Wm. J. Burns, the world's most Famous Detective, with his ten thousand operatives, are prepared to immediately Arrest infringers and seize piratical films.

Don't wait to write---Wire---or come to New

MONOPOL FILM CO.,

Was the Price

OUTHERN STATES

A—MISSISSIPPI—LOUISIANA—VIRGINIA—TENNESSEE

G CORPORATION

Suite 1001-1002, FITZGERALD BLDG., N. Y. CITY

H COHN, of Seattle, Washington, came into our office on coln's Birthday, wanted the State of Washington—It was sold. In than Five Minutes, he bought the State of Oregon—Didn't see film, did not want to; the fact that it was a Milano was enough!

DYSSEY

$200,000 PRODUCTION

ONSIDER THESE POINTS

re Pictorial Paper—Complete assortment from 1-2 sheets to 24 sheet ands—Lithos and Block—20 Varieties—Assortment ample for a circus—bsolutely Free.

ublicity Campaign—To stimulate interest in the Odyssey is most pretentious fct of its kind ever conceived or executed—100,000 school students, for instance, are competing for a cash prize essay on the "Odyssey." 0,000 pieces of literature, booklets, etc., have been sent broadcast throughout America. $20,000 cold cash is being spent on this campaign for the benefit of State Right Buyers.

k--Railroad fares refunded to buyers

5 W. 45th St., New York, N. Y.

Homer's "ODYSSEY"

SPECIAL ADVERTISING MATTER

In Any Quantity

Paper—Full line litho and block paper made by Morgan Litho & Courier Co., of Buffalo. 24 sheets, 8 sheets, 3 sheets, 1 sheets, ½ sheets, in litho, 4 colors, and black. Dates, snipes, throw-aways, hand bills, programs, and type sheets.

Music—Grecian music, overture and scene music, written by Mr. Edgar Selden, general manager Shapiro Music Co., of New York City, who spent three months in the musical libraries of Greece.

Effects—Lighting and novelty effects by Kliegl Bros., of New York City.

Statues—Plaster of Paris busts of Homer made by Lucceshi, Italy, imported by us. Six inches to seven feet high. Prices, 50c to $100 each.

Costumes—Grecian costumes for lecturers made by Rovilo & Co., of Turin, Italy.

Souvenir Booklets—10½ x 14½ inches, 24 pages. Fifty half-tone illustrations; bound in royal blue ribbon. Finest deckle-edge paper. Printed by S. L. Parsons & Co., of New York. To sell for 25 cents each.

Cuts—One hundred and fifty varieties of halftones, in copper and zinc, and line cuts made by Standard Engraving Co., of New York.

Photos—One hundred and fifty varieties made in Italy.

Lobby Displays—Glass-front folding frames. Cloth Banners, in all sizes.

Heralds—The biggest, best, and flashiest herald ever printed. Four colors, lithographed front and back. Size of a one-sheet, folded once. Positively the greatest piece of advertising matter ever seen. Absolutely original in design and execution.

Booklets—For your patrons, 10 x 12 inches; good quality paper. Complete story of "Odyssey." Program of film profusely illustrated with cuts.

Books—Complete book of Homer's "Odyssey," the greatest epic poem in all literature; paper covered, cloth or leather. Either in Greek or English; in quantities of 1,000 to 100,000.

Post Cards—Bound in covers with perforated edge, announcing the playing date of "THE ODYSSEY" (to be filled in). Beautiful halftone illustration on reverse side. Distribute among your audience; they address these cards, leave them at the box office, you put on the one-cent stamp and mail the cards. This is a rather new publicity stunt and is finding great favor in New York. Nearly all the theaters, prominent hotels and cafes have adopted it. The cards are cheap, but very attractive, and will result in good press work for your theatre.

Press Matter—Fifty different stories, all kinds and sizes, written to fit every occasion; written by practical newspaper men under the personal direction of Frank Winch, late General Press Representative for Buffalo Bill's Wild West Shows. Stories either in separate sheets or neatly bound in booklets, each leaf detachable.

Lecture—Written by Stephen Bush. Comprehensive, elegant and in simple language.

Literature—Any or all of it supplied in any language (special low prices). Translations by Prof. Hallen.

Programs—Printed on one side only, giving description of each scene in the film.

Lobby Display—Decoration, grottoes, caves, stucco effect, very elaborate. Directions for grotto-effect making without cost.

Photos for Lobby Displays—Life size for lobby. These are made by Apedo Studio, New York, and at the following prices: 30 x 40 inches, $8.00; 40 x 60 inches, $12.00.

In all—We have ordered twenty million pieces of printed matter for the exploitation of "THE ODYSSEY." There is no limit to the advertising possibilities that you may take advantage of. Everything at cost price.

Write Now or Wire Prepaid. State Rights are Open

MONOPOL FILM COMPANY

145 West 45th Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.

(Continued from page 702.)

egheny Amusement Company, which will 000.

“B Jones,” the popular superintendent of the n Theater, Girard Avenue and Franklin will conduct a benefit under the auspices ssociation that bears his name, on February nusement company of Trenton, N. J., has d a site in Millville, N. J., for a moving ure and vaudeville house.

Thompson is building a vaudeville and picture house at Atlantic and Tennessee Atlantic City, N. J. It will seat from 1,500 people.

CLEMENT H. CONGDON.

PITTSBURGH.

The Acropolis is a neat, well managed theater located at 4829 Second Ave., Hazelwood. Mr. Smith, the manager, ran a lecture on the Panama Canal recently and the advertising matter distributed was sufficient to crowd the three hundred seats and the 100 standing room to its capacity.

The Superior Song Service Co. has formed a circuit of eighteen theaters which will each get a service of a different song and a different singer for three weeks. They also furnish elaborate photographs of each singer for lobby display as well as the name of each song six days in advance. This concern has secured the services of Mr. Matthew Teplitz, who was formerly with the Dequesne Amusement and Supply Co. in the capacity of manager of the music and illustrated song department, and later as head booker at the Pittsburgh Photoplay Co., on Ferry Street. This concern asks a very low price for their service. The concern furnishes its own song slides. Offices have been secured at the Jenkins Arcade.

The Elliot Theater, at Elliot, Pa., has opened. There was an opening address by Mr. Fred J. Herrington, president of the Motion Picture League, and a song by Mr. Harry E. Reiff, the manager of the Lyric Theater, Boggs Ave., Mt. Washington. Mr. Frank Adams is the manager of the Elliot Theater.

Mr. Chas. Couch is the enterprising manager of the Arcade, at Carnegie, Pa. Mr. Couch is also the owner of the Grand Theater, Carnegie, a straight photoplay house, which is managed by his son, Mr. Bill Couch.

EDDIE WHEELER.

LASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

sified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum; postage stamps accepted.

HELP WANTED.

RAIN DETECTIVES, YOU CAN BE ONE. l opportunities. Travel. Earn $100 to $300. This fascinating profession taught prac- and scientifically by mail at a nominal AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CRIMINOLOGY, , Detroit, Mich.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

OP ATOR—Desires position anywhere. Experi- n all machines. Can deliver the goods. OPERATOR, 331 Pleasant Street, Ionia, PERATOR—Desires position anywhere. Can the goods. Good references. Address P. O. 25, Sullivan, Ill.

AT IBERTY—Operator, four years' experience, Edison, Standard machines. Wishes posi- Jersey or anywhere. LEMEL, 253 Dumont Brooklyn, N. Y.

AT IBERTY—For immediate engagement. Ca- anager. A-1 vocalist. Expert operator and l electrician; 17 years' experience; married; te. Will accept position anywhere. Ad- PRACTICAL SHOWMAN, care of Moving World, New York City.

O RATOR OR MANAGER—Knows business hly. New York license. In replying state E. H., care of Moving Picture World, ork City.

FI T CLASS OPERATOR with Philadelphia Wishes position in or vicinity of Philadel- $12. Address OPERATOR, 105 Chambers New York City.

AT IBERTY—Experienced operator on Standard owers machines, with New York license. nd competent. Address A. BORGMAN, 457 8th Street, New York City.

LA Y PIANIST wants position; experienced in le and pictures. Excellent picture player. eks with one house. Address “PIANIST,” Robert Bradley, Jr., 2215 South Webster Fort Wayne, Ind.

OPERATOR—Massachusetts card, wishes to change present position. Boston or vicinity. MARR, 124 Jefferson Avenue, Everett, Mass.

THEATERS WANTED.

THEATER BROKER—Motion picture theaters listed and purchasers found. Paying propositions wanted. B. C. ARMSTRONG, Box 83, Station A, Columbus, Ohio.

HAVE LARGE NUMBER of inquiries for Moving Picture Theaters from all over the States. Send for Agency Blank and commission rates if you want to sell. MOVING PICTURE THEATER AGENCY, Box 485, Madison Square Station, New York City.

WANTED TO BUY—Good paying picture show, or lease small theater or store room in large town, Middle West, Iowa preferred. Address R. C. SAGE, Box 716, Des Moines, Iowa.

THEATERS FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Modern Moving Picture Theater in Pennsylvania town, over 70,000 population; clearing from $100 to $300 weekly; long lease; $20,000 proposition; half cash; balance weekly payments for one or two years. Gilt edge proposition; will stand investigation. No money, don't write. Address ECONOMY FILM CO., 315 Fulton Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

FOR SALE—Leading Picture Show. Texas city 90,000. Up-to-date equipment. Will pay 100 per cent. dividends on price asked. Act quick. H. L. G., care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Edison Exhibition Machine, complete, $75. Powers No. 5 Head $35. Manager BIJOU, Orange, N. J.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE—80 Hardesty “Anti-Panic” Theater chairs, in good condition; wire hat racks, and floor rings. Will sell all for $50, or what have you to offer in exchange? Address H. E. HARTMAN, Lyric Theater, Siegfried, Pa.

FOR SALE—Two Powers No. 6 machines. Used only two months during summer. Brand new. Bargain. SLATER Theater, Pottsville, Pa.

FOR SALE—Two complete Edison machines, one model “B” and one Pin Movement. One Motiograph machine, A-1, used only five weeks. A few Powers No. 5 Heads and American Standard Heads, Halberg Economizers, a Powers Inductor, 110 volts, rheostats, etc. All kinds of Moving Picture supplies. Open daily until 10 P. M. Come in and make your own terms on the above. PETTERS & TYROLER, 2936 Third Avenue, northeast corner 152d Street, New York City.

FOR SALE—One Edison and one Powers No. 5 Picture machines. Both in A-1 order. W. D. ECCLESTEN, Huntington, L. I., N. Y.

FOR SALE—200 seats in good order. JEFFERSON Theater, 811-813 Myrtle Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

FOR SALE, CHEAP—Electric sign “Idle Hour.” For particulars write CHAS. NAMUR, 617 Walnut Street, Des Moines, Iowa.

EQUIPMENT WANTED.

WANTED—At once, 75 extra seats, not too far from Petersburg, Va. Must be in good condition and cheap. Send picture or design and price. Address COCKADE Theater, Petersburg, Va.

WANTED—50 second-hand Motion Picture Equipments or mechanisms, or will allow towards the payment of new mechanisms or equipments. Give full particulars and lowest price on outright sale basis. Address Department A, AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY, 107 N. Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SCENERY AND SCREEN for your picture house free. Write for proposition. JESSE COX SCENIC COMPANY, 1221 Roberts Street, Estherville, Iowa.

In answering advertisements kindly mention the Moving Picture World.

Song Slide Releases.

Excelsior Slide Co.

've Got to Go and Get Myself a Girl Like You”—Pub. by Song Review Co., New York.

'd Like to Have You Do a Little Something for Me”— by Head Music Pub. Co., N. Y.

The Barbary Prance”—Pub. by the Head Music Pub. N. Y.

ith One Smile You've Won My Heart”—Rogers Co.

Who Knows?”—M. Witmark & Son, N. Y.

wo Lips”—Pub. by Gus Edwards Song Review Co., N. Y.

De Witt C. Wheeler.

ixie Moon”—Pub. by J. H. Remick & Co., New York.

omebody Else Will If You Don't”—Pub. by Remick & N. Y.

ust as Long as the Suwanee Flows”—Pub. by Remick & N. Y.

ove-Roses”—Pub. by Metropolitan Mus. Pub. Co., of Y. City.

um-Tum-Tiddle”—Pub. by Jerome & Schwartz Pub. Co.

A. L. Simpson, Inc.

h, You Little Rascal”—Pub. by Geo. W. Meyers Music N. Y.

When a Boy Without a Girl Meets a Girl Without a Boy” ub. by Geo. W. Meyers Music Co., N. Y.

My Old Girl”—Pub. by Wm. Cutty Music Co., N. Y.

Wee Little Drop o' the Cruiskeen Lawn”—Pub. by J. d Helf Co., N. Y.

ing Me a Song of Twilight”—Pub. by Wm. Cutty Music . N. Y.

“Only A Bunch of Violets”—Pub. by Church Paxon & Co., N. Y.

“Twilight Reveries”—Pub. by O. J. Walter, Lamoni, Iowa.

“I Am Lonesome Without You, My Dear”—Pub. by Joe Reinhoen, N. Y.

“It's A Girl Like You That Keeps A Fellow Guessing”—Pub. by Walter Jacobs, Boston, Mass.

“My Girl of the Golden Days”—Pub. by J. H. Aufderheide & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

Scott & Van Altena.

“The Undertaker Man”—Pub. by Harold Rossiter Co.

“Take a Tip from Father”—Pub. by Ted Snyder Co.

“Every Time I Smile at You Your Eyes Smile Back to Me”—Pub. by Jos. Stern Co.

“If I Forget”—Pub. by Harold Rossiter.

“My Bill from Louisville”—Pub. by Ted Snyder, N. Y.

“Girl of My Heart That's You”—Pub. by W. Rossiter.

“You Don't Love Me Half as Much as I Love You”—Pub. by Harry Von Tilzer Co.

“Remember Me To My Old Gal”—By Harold Rossiter Music Pub. Co.

Levi & Co.

“The Gaby Glide”—Pub. by Shapiro.

“My Marguerite”—Pub. by Shapiro.

“He Never, Never Said Good-Bye”—Pub. by Shapiro.

“You're Just the Girlie I Adore”—Pub. by Shapiro.

Niagara Slide Co.

“One Kind Word”—Pub. by Burdick.

“If I Knew”—Pub. by Burdick.

“Knight of the Road”—Pub. by Burdick.

LICENSED Film Stories

EDISON.

HOW MOTION PICTURES ARE MADE AND SHOWN (Feb. 27).—We are first shown the studio operations, building and painting scenery, setting up and dressing a set, rehearsing a scene under the watchful eye of the stage director and then the actual taking of a scene, showing the camera recording pictures at the rate of sixteen a second or sixteen to every foot of film. Then we see how an actor makes up for a character part and next a party leaving the studio for an outdoor scene. We then take up the mechanical end of the business, being shown how the film is developed, washed and, finally, how the various scenes are assembled into a complete picture.

Our next visit is to the factory where the projecting machines are made and many portions of the exceedingly delicate and ingenious manufacture are shown with wonderful clearness and interest. Finally, after seeing the complete machine assembled, we are made acquainted with the actual way that the film is projected.

MY DOUBLE AND HOW HE UNDID ME (Feb. 28).—An overworked minister chances upon a man in a poorhouse who looks very much like him, and decides to engage the man to impersonate him and attend the stupid committee meetings and social functions that take up his time and prevent him from doing the work which he wants to put his heart into. The plan succeeds admirably at first and the double is introduced at a sociable at the minister's own house. The guests do not seem to notice that their pastor is at all different or at all unlike himself when the real man slips out to do his writing and the double takes his place among the guests. At committee meetings he has been taught always to complain of a sore throat and never to make a speech and when at the social always refer to his "wife," that is, to Mrs. Ingham, the minister's wife, and let her answer all questions for him on the same "sore throat" plea. All goes well until the double is invited to a dinner and there a city chap gets him to drink a little champagne. He points to his sore throat in extenuation, but the champagne has already begun to do its work, and before the dinner is over he makes a speech which results in his being led from the table by the deacons and taken home. Poor Mrs. Ingham, confronted by the irate deacons and their frisky charge, doesn't know what to do, but the real minister appearing on the scene, caps the climax and brings the story to a ludicrous finish, for his double promptly embraces him and turns him around so that the two men, seemingly so much alike, face the shocked and horrified deacons, making an explanation unnecessary.

KALEM.

THE BELL OF PENANCE (Feb. 26).—Henry Fitch, a young American, arrives in Spanish California in the year 1820, but hardly arrived when it was his good fortune to rescue two young ladies from a band of ruffians. Refusing to pose as a hero he goes on his way and presents a letter of introduction to Joaquin Carrillo, and much to his surprise again meets the young ladies he had so recently protected.

He is much impressed with the younger one, Donna Josefa, and as time goes on presses his suit, which is encouraged by the Spanish Don. That the young American is not to have a free field in his love adventure is soon demonstrated. Junipperro Serra, a Spaniard of means, is also enamored of the fair Josefa. Serra learning that Donna Josefa is about to marry the American, attempts to prevent the ceremony by underhand methods. His schemes are frustrated and the sweethearts elope and are married.

A year later Fitch and Josefa return to Josefa's home, where upon Serra's instigation, Fitch is arrested and tried for violation of the laws of the church and territory, and condemned to imprisonment and banishment, unless he will produce penance and reparation that can be noticed through the whole of the Pueblo. Good father Vincente suggests to Josefa that Fitch secure a bell to place in the empty tower of the church as the original one had been stolen many years before. A month later Fitch stands before the three judges. A sudden commotion goes through the whole court; everyone is listening to an unexpected sound. The bell that was silent now rings again. Young Fitch, addressing the court, says: "This is my penance and reparation, which I offer to the church. It's voice can be heard and noticed throughout the Pueblo, and will, in time to come, proclaim the wisdom and clemency of this court."

THE TENDERFOOT'S TROUBLES (Feb. 28).—Helen's father desires her to marry Arthur, an Eastern man. She agrees to the arrangement but asks that her father allow her to accept Uncle Charley's invitation to visit him on his ranch. Helen's father consents and in two weeks we find Helen on the ranch being taught to ride by Jack, one of her uncle's cowboys.

A month later Arthur arrives on the scene, but his snobbish ways are not appreciated by the cowboys, and Helen soon discovers she is far more in love with Jack than with Arthur, to whom she is engaged.

Arthur readily sees his chances are extremely slim, and he starts to force matters by urging Helen to consent to an immediate marriage. The boys on the ranch fix up a scheme to play a joke on Arthur and help Jack and Helen to elope and get married.

How this scheme succeeds is cleverly portrayed in this Western comedy.

A VISIT TO MADEIRA (Feb. 28).—The Kalem favorites on their way to the Holy Land are shown taking part in the games on board ship in mid-ocean, and we see them visiting various points of interest in Madeira, a spot that contains many surprises for the traveler.

TRAPPED BY WIRELESS (March 1).—Joseph Burke, City Editor of the "Star" is in love with Alice Marshall, daughter of the reform candidate for mayor at a forthcoming election. Alice's young brother, Bob, has a wireless telegraph equipment and explains to his sister and her sweetheart how he receives and sends messages.

A reporter on the "Star" conceives the idea of taking a photograph of Marshall as he is giving money to a beggar, using the picture with a sensational article alleging that Marshall is buying votes. He secures an accomplice who acts as a beggar and the reporter accomplishes his underhand purpose.

The article is brought to Burke, who refuses to publish it, because of his love for Alice and his faith in her father. The reporter is highly indignant and complains to the managing editor—when he fails to find his "feature" in the evening edition. The managing editor, deceived by the reporter, and believing that the article is bona fide, has Burke discharged and makes the reporter the city editor.

The "gang" is highly elated at the stain upon the reform candidate's character and they send a wireless message to the state "boss" who is en route to Europe. It happens that Bob's instrument catches the message, which he shows to Alice. She immediately sees that there has been a plot against her father, who has insisted that she break her engagement with Burke because of the outrageous article, for which he thinks the ex-editor is responsible.

Marshall sends word to Burke to meet him at the newspaper office where the matter is placed before the managing editor in its true light. The conduct of the unscrupulous reporter is made known, Burke is reinstated and happily reunited with Alice.

ESSANAY.

POSITIVE PROOF (Feb. 27).—Tom Morgan, a factory hand, is tempted by drink, falls, is summoned before Williams, president of the concern, who discharges him. Morgan reels out swearing to be revenged on Williams. Returning to his home he broods over his discharge, finally secures his revolver and rushes out to kill Williams in spite of the frantic pleading of his wife and daughter. Gaining admittance to Williams' mansion, Morgan confronts him in the library in a towering rage, but is restrained from violence by Williams, who cautions him to think of his family. With the promise of work if he swears off drinking, Morgan leaves. A moment later, Williams seriously wounds himself with a revolver he is cleaning. He is found unconscious, the revolver beside him, and Morgan is instantly suspected of the shooting. Morgan is arrested at his home, brought to Williams' bedside, where matters are finally straightened out through Morgan's own revolver which is produced and shown to have not been discharged, and Williams' statement of how he accidentally shot himself. A few months later, Tom signs the pledge and is reinstated in a good position by Williams.

HER MASTERFUL MAN (Feb. 29).—Martin Ryerson, a wealthy suitor, is rejected by his fiancée, Barbara, who tells him she wants a masterful man—one who will win her by force, not a moneyed idler. Returning for his forgotten cane, Ryerson hears Barbara telling her aunt she would rather marry a coal-man, who is outside in the street, than wed Ryerson. This gives Ryerson a great idea. Descending to the cellar, he bribes the coal-man to change clothes with him, smears up his face and hair, then returns to the library and makes the biggest kind of a hit with Barbara, who, not recognizing him, plans his social culture to the great disgust of her aunt. After several calls, each time in his grimy disguise, Ryerson finally hits on a plan to conquer Barbara, secures the use of his coal-man friend's rooms, then send a note to Barbara that he is "turrible sick" and to come at once. Barbara does so, is locked in by her "coal-man," who flashes a marriage license before her eyes and savagely declares she will have to marry him. She manages to drop a note for help from the window, help arrives in the form of a minister and two policemen, whereupon I rson reveals his real identity and Barbara, realiz he has indeed won her by "force," yields her eart and hand.

DO DREAMS COME TRUE (March 1).—hen Cassie Heliotrope, a pretty young woman, mes to Mrs. Hash's boarding-house, all the bo fall in love with her. Percy, a ribbon clerk, fir the greatest favor in Cassie's eyes during the ening and, when the party breaks up, he has the onor of escorting her home. Percy now has reet visions of the fair Cassie everywhere he goe He begins to dream of wooing, winning and m ying her and, on one occasion, he has a beautiful sion of Cassie and himself bending over the cr in which little Percy, Jr., coos and blinks up at am. One evening, while Cassie is entertaining th ther three boys from the boarding-house in her me, Percy calls. He is immaculate in a dres suit he has rented for a dollar, and has spent h last cent on candy and roses for the object of l undying affection. Cassie escorts him to the rlor, where Percy is horrified to find the other oys. The front bell rings, Cassie exits, and ercy instantly mixes with his rivals in a brisk rap over the floor. He is a sorry sight when ssie enters with a clean-cut young stranger and, hen Cassie allows the intruder to place an engagement ring on her finger, and introduces him her future husband, poor Percy collapses in the rms of his pals realizing that some dreams not come true.

THE RANCH GIRL'S MISTAKE (March).—Pretty Nan Morgan is admired by all the b is Lariat and likes them, every one, but her art belongs to Broncho Billy, who proudly ann ces to the boys one day that he wants to in oce them "to the future Mrs. Broncho." ers glide along smoothly until about the time B cho is thinking of putting the ring on Nan's ger. Nan meets a young stranger from the East, ho, after several meetings with her, persuades to elope with him. Nan does so, leaving a ote which Billy finds, saying she has gone wi another and for him to forget her. Hear ck. Broncho leaves the ranch. At the railroad tion he meets a pretty young woman who asks in mation concerning her husband. It is not unt she shows Broncho a picture of him, that he r ses it is the scoundrel who has taken Nan from im. Assuring the little woman he will send her h and to her, Broncho rides wildly along the trail, ads off the fleeing scamp, and forces him to ret to the station with Nan. There Broncho reunit the patient wife with her husband, whose perfid she is ignorant of, and Nan, realizing what B cho has saved her from, sobs out her repentan on his shoulder.

VITAGRAPH.

STENOGRAPHER WANTED (Feb. 26).— ks & Shanks advertise for a young lady stenogr er. In response they are deluged with a bevy of tty girls who apply for the position. The offic boy receives them with great dignity. When th wo bosses arrive they find it very hard to m a choice, but finally decide upon two. While hey are trying them out a homely old maid con in and insists upon seeing the heads.

Shanks peeps from his private office and lls into his chair. Hanks then takes a look a he falls on top of Shanks. The stenographer a look and falls into Hank's lap. While i his position, Mrs. Hanks and Mrs. Shanks arriv and find their husbands with the pretty young s ographer in their arms. The two wives emplo the old maid. This is too much for the two par rs, so they leave the office and seek consolation a "bracer" at a nearby café.

JUSTICE OF THE DESERT (Feb. 27).—M om Thomson, a banker in a Western city, is considered a power among his people. Amon the depositors is Ted Arlington, a hard working er. His little girl is taken sick. Ted is met neighbor, who tells him that the bank is c He rushes madly to the banking house, p his way through the crowd but cannot p hand on a dollar. He is pushed aside by M om Thomson, who is kept under the continual veillance of a detective. Ted draws his is arrested and through Thomson, is sent to il.

Thomson, finding himself cornered by the investigators, absconds. He is a defaulter He escapes further West. Under an assumed he becomes a general "bad man." He qu with another gambler and kills him, is con and hung by self-instituted administrators o law.

A few years later, Ted is released from p He, with his wife and child, start life anew, across country in a prairie schooner. They op one evening for the night's rest. Their daughter, wandering a short distance away camp, finds the bleached skull and bones a human being. She runs to her parents and of her discovery. Ted and his wife hasten t the spot, and Ted picks up the skull, while his picks up a watch case, with the inscription, " com Thomson," and his address. Ted's eyes upward and see a dangling rope with a frayed telling the whole story. The man who has fered through the villainy of the banker, heartily at the justice meted out to him

A CIN-ES
EVERY TUESDAY
and SATURDAY

AN ECLIPSE
EVERY WEDNESDAY

NEXT WEEK'S RELEASES

Cin-es, Tuesday, Feb. 27, 1912

HAPPY IN SPITE OF HERSELF

A clever comedy dealing with a wayward girl's difficulty in making up her mind that she loves the man chosen for her.

Jenkins, a Perfect Steward

A roaring comedy.

Eclipse, Wednesday, Feb. 28, 1912

COUSIN BILL

Bill comes in from the country to visit his city cousins and has a very exciting time. A whirlwind comedy.

A Glimpse of Tripoli

Showing the scene of the Italian-Turkish war.

Cin-es, Saturday, March 2, 1912

A SISTER'S STRATAGEM

This is a high-class comedy telling how Tom, with the aid of his sister's wit, finally wins the girl he loves.

Advance Announcements Free. Write to

GEORGE KLEINE

166 No. State St., Chicago, Ill.
LICENSED BY MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO.

YOU ARE NOT SATISFIED with your screen and never will be, no difference what kind of a finish or coating it may have, until you have installed one of our unless you are different from the hundreds we have interviewed and received letters from regarding their screen troubles.

"PERFECTION CONCAVE SCREENS"

While we think we furnish the best coating in the world, there is nothing to prevent you from using your own preference if you have one.

IT IS SHAPE, NOT FINISH, WE ARE OFFERING YOU

WRITE FOR PARTICULARS

INVENTORS SPECIALTY MFG. CO., 401 Ashland Block, CHICAGO

showed no mercy for others. Mrs. Arlington reminds him that as God has dealt mercifully with them, so must they be merciful to others. Ted [illegible] the skull, takes his wife's hand in his and they go back to prepare their evening meal.

THE PATCHWORK QUILT (Feb. 28).—Mrs. McCoy is filling her son's dinner-pail before he starts on his run as engineer for a passenger train on the D. L. & W. Jack makes haste to the train-yard, climbs into his engine and pulls out.

The next night, about the time that Jack is expected on his return trip, his mother is sitting at the table working on her patchwork quilt. Suddenly a terrible storm comes up. She discovers that the trestle across the stream has browen down and that the tracks are strewn with débris. Hurriedly throwing a shawl over her head, she grabs up the old patchwork quilt, saturates it with kerosene, and taking some matches with her, hurries from the house in time to reach the trestle, where she sets fire to the quilt, and signals her boy's fast approaching train.

Upon seeing the flames, and his mother madly waving her shawl, he jumps from his engine cab, rushes to her side, and she falls helpless in his arms, while the pasengers, who have been aroused by the sudden stopping of the train, gather around them in an impressive tableau.

SELIG.

WHEN WOMEN RULE (Feb. 26).—The quiet and peaceful home of John O'Connell has been invaded by the growing spirit of the suffragette, and what was once a happy fireside now finds O'Connell doing the family washing and Mrs. O'Connell a candidate for mayor.

It has been decided that radical changes are imperative in both the police and fire departments, and it is up to Mrs. O'Connell and her brave followers to set the municipal machinery on the right track. They show their diplomatic instincts by opening their campaign with a blare of trumpets, and the O'Connellites sweep everything like chaff before the wind. Once in office they demonstrate, at least to their own satisfaction, that no city government is complete without them.

IN LITTLE ITALY (Feb. 27).—Tony and Rosie appear in all their finery before the priest to seal their marriage vows. They learn that it is necessary to procure a license. Tony quickly goes for the permit when he learns that Rosie, too, will have to affix her signature. Confused and anxious he hurries to fetch his bride. When he again appears at the License Bureau he is informed that the document costs two dollars. Tony has left his money with Rosie's papa—he hastens to get it. On the way his passage is blocked by a freight train. In the meanwhile, Rosie's papa goes in search of the groom-elect, pays for and secures the license, and hastens to the church. He is arrested for fast driving and taken with the license to the police station. Tony, who has tried to climb over the obstructing train, is carried to a distant part of the city, and when he and papa finally get back to the waiting family and guests, the story is permitted to run along in a logical way until it reaches a happy and jolly end.

THE "DIAMOND S" RANCH (Feb. 29).—The "Diamond S" ranch abounds in thrilling scenes of dare-devil cowboy life. One feature of the great subject is a number of scenes showing the Champion Woman Bulldogger and Steer Thrower of the world in action. She is shown, in close-up, intimate views, accomplishing this difficult feat in record time. This, with the congress of Rough Riders, Broncho Busting, The Round-Up, wild riding, etc., make a picture of unexcelled skill and excellence.

AS TOLD BY PRINCESS BESS (March 1).—Princess Bess is an ancient Modoc squaw. In her early days, when she was a beautiful forest princess, she championed the white settlers, saving an entire community of Americans from massacre at the hands of her fellow Modocs. As the story opens, the old crone is seated before the fire outside a tepee, dreaming of her tragic past. Two little brown children run up to her and ask her to tell them the great story of her girlhood. The ancient princess takes them into her lap and graphically weaves together the dramatic events of the saving of Yreka, Cal., from surprise and burning by the Modocs.

LUBIN.

ARMY AVIATION PRACTICE (Feb. 19).—A picture showing the army evolutions in practice of aviation warfare. The aeroplanes and biplanes are skimming through the air five hundred feet high. Signals are sent and received by the officers and engineers of the garrison and every movement is watched and noted by the crowd of spectators.

A MIDWINTER NIGHT'S DREAM (Feb. 19).—A tramp is asleep on the end of a freight car on a railroad siding. He awakes—snow covers the ground. He makes a snowball and throws it. It strikes another tramp asleep in an orange grove. The tramp awakes. The other tramp leaves the snow, walks over to the orange grove. It is too [illegible] so he walks back to the snow with the other tramp. Two girls appear in the orange grove. The tramps take the girls over in the snow. The girls are cold and run back. The tramps write a note asking the girls to meet them at a certain place, and placing it in a snowball, throw it to the girls. The girls receive the note and agree to meet the tramps. While the hoboes are walking down the street they see an actor taking clothes from his trunk in front of a theater. He gives each of them a costume and they dress up and meet the girls. They discover a big wad of stage money in the pocket of the coat and proceed to spend it with a lavish hand. They have a great time until the money is discovered to be stage money, when they are chased by a large crowd until one of the tramps falls down. A policeman is fanning his foot with a club, when he wakes up on the freight car and is ordered away by the policeman.

IN DIS-A-COUNTREE (Feb. 21).—Angelo Ragone, a young Italian peasant, marries Marie Perfetti. After two months of wedded life, Angelo decides to go to America. Arriving in America, Angelo begins life as a laborer. He makes a companion of Tony Bosso, a fellow laborer. The two share a room together with another laborer and an organ grinder. One night Bosso and the other laborer attempt to rob the organ grinder of his bag of money. A struggle ensues. Angelo attempts to protect the organ grinder but is knocked senseless. The organ grinder is killed, Bosso and his accomplice escape. When the police arrive, they find Angelo just recovering consciousness in the room with the dead man. Angelo is accused of the crime and thrown into prison. In the meantime, back in Italy, a son is born to Marie. After waiting in vain for word from her husband in America, Marie and Petro, her father and her baby come to America to search for Angelo. They learn of his misfortune but are powerless to help him. They rent a modest room and the old father goes to work to support his daughter and her child. Tony Bosso is now living in the next room to Marie and her father. He is taken sick with pneumonia and on his death-bed confesses his misdeed and Angelo's innocence. Angelo is released from prison and he and his family commence a new and happy life in "dis-a countree."

HER HEART'S REFUGE (Feb. 22).—Fred Miller is an artist and Harry Lewis, a society man, is his chosen friend. In their social set Florence Chapin is the belle and Harry is badly smitten, but Florence fancies Fred, who moves to another town. There he mixes with the Bohemian circle and meets a beautiful model named Gladys Stewart. They fall in love. Lewis endeavors to make love to Florence, but she tells him of her love for Fred. Fred proposes to the model and is accepted. He writes home to inform his parents of the engagement, who, upon receiving the letter, are much vexed and 'phone to tell Florence the news. The poor girl is frantic, and sending for Harry to accompany her, goes to consult Fred's parents. After discussing the situation it is agreed that Harry go to Fred and endeavor to get him to break off his engagement. Harry commences his errand in earnest, but finds it hard to move Fred. The next day Lewis receives a wire stating that unless he can persuade Fred to return Florence will lose her reason. Fred returns and after a painful meeting takes Florence for a drive. Harry brings Gladys up and shows her the scene. She is heartbroken. Fred marries his first love and the heartbroken Gladys enters a convent.

POTTERY MAKING IN AMERICA (Feb. 24).—The workmen are seen kneeding the clay, molding, spinning, finishing, stamping and decorating. The vessels are seen complete and then carried to the ovens. Finally the packing for transportation.

WILLIE THE HUNTER (Feb. 24).—Willie Tait appears one day at the club room, dressed in a new hunting suit. The boys enjoy a good laugh over his costume. While in the club, some of the boys extract the shot from his shells and then hurry off to a costumer's and rent a bear suit. One of the boys dresses up like a bear and, followed by the other members of the club, hurries to the woods to overtake Willie. Willie is frightened to death at the sight of the bear, drops his hunting bag and gun. He is chased some distance by the supposed bear, and when he finds the bear close upon his heels, he climbs a tree, only to be pulled down by the bear. He is finally allowed to escape, and the boys hurry back to the club house to hear Willie's story. Willie tells the boys of his terrible battle. The boys give him the ha! ha! and produce the bear.

A MATTER OF BUSINESS (Feb. 26).—Charles Erskine, a broker, hands a life insurance policy to his wife. A year later a financial panic wipes out Erskine's money and brings him down to a lingering illness. The doctor tells Mrs. Erskine that her husband must go South. The wife goes into Erskine's room where in spite of her attempt at concealment he draws from her the doctor's verdict. Raymond, the son, goes to the desk and finds the policy. Erskine declares thankfulness that they will be provided for after he has gone. Raymond goes to draw the policy money, but is refused. At last he succeeds in reaching the president's office. The president goes to Erskine's home, but says he cannot pay the policy until after the death. However, he gives them a substantial check—enough to take the sick man South.

LOVE AND TEARS (Feb. 25).—It was quite an event when John Levanon married Barbara St. Denis and they very soon became leaders in society. After a year the young wife was taken with a severe illness. The doctors admit that she will be a sufferer as long as she lives. After a while Levanson becomes wearied of the sick-room and gradually relaxes his attention. Barbara is heartbroken. One evening, the doctors feeling that the end is nearing, advise that Levanson be sent for, but he is dressing for a ball. In full dress he responds to the call and Barbara begs that he will stay with her. He begs to be excused and promises to be back very shortly. Influenced by the gaiety of the dance, he forgets his wife and the hour promised passes in the revelry of the scene. The sick one waits and watches until the light of life goes out. After the ball John goes merrily home. At the door of the sick room he starts back as he looks over the kneeling sisters.

BETTY AND THE DOCTOR (Feb. 29).—Mrs. Snowden and her daughter Elizabeth see an advertisement in the newspaper stating that Dr. Richard Gordon desires board and lodging in a private family. Elizabeth answers the ad and the doctor being satisfied, is duly installed in the house. Being alone in the world he enjoys the company of the young girl and after a few months of attention and courtship they are admirable sweethearts. One day the doctor is out on a call when a note is received, stating that Jack Harley, who has been absent for some years has returned and will call. Elizabeth and Jack had been playmates when children and to see him again will give the mother and daughter great pleasure. The doctor returning is just in the frame of mind to ask Elizabeth to name the day, when Mrs. Snowden and Jack bounce in. The reunion is so effusive that the doctor is jealous and retires to his office in a fit of the blues. Harley takes Elizabeth for an auto ride and an accident occurs in which Elizabeth is rather badly hurt. She is taken home in a farm wagon and the doctor attends her. Dismissing the mother for a while he watches by the sufferer until nearly dawn, when the mother again takes the watch. Elizabeth, who has rested fairly well, wakes and asks for Gordon, who has had another call. On his return he finds Jack in attendance, but a full explanation of their friendly attachment satisfies the doctor and the mother and Jack leave the sweethearts alone.

A MEXICAN COURTSHIP (March 2).—Within the sunny little Mexican City of Juarez, Alonzo, the famous bull-fighter, is to match his skill against the bull from Chihuahua. Pretty Dolores wanders one day without the Plaza El Torres, hoping to get one peep at the wonderful animals. Juan, a young Mexican employed at the Plaza, sees the girl and attracted by her beauty, offers to show her the bulls. He takes her within the Plaza and shows her all the interesting sights. The young people are mutually interested in each other and it proves a case of love at first sight. Alonzo also meets the girl and proposes for her hand. While Dolores loves Juan, she is quickly given to understand by her parents that Alonzo is a much more desirable match and that she must give up poor Juan. This Dolores reluctantly agrees to do. Finally the eventful day arrives. Alonzo, however, reaches the Plaza far too drunk to enter the arena and the management is in despair. The time for the fight to start having passed, the crowd begins to hoot and howl. The manager is at his wits' end. Young Juan volunteers to take Alonzo's place and kill the bull. The manager laughs at him but finally with no other alternative and impressed by the lad's earnestness, he consents and Juan, garbed in all the regalia as a matador, enters the ring. He kills the bull and at one bound secures fame and riches. The parents of Dolores are quick to realize that the famous matador is a very different proposition from the poverty-stricken hanger-on of the Plaza and the newly created bullfighter is happy in his victory and his love.

CINES.

HAPPY IN SPITE OF HERSELF (Feb. 27).—A comedy-drama, describing the interesting love affair of an impetuous and wayward girl.

The story deals with the struggle to make up her mind that she really loves the man who is chosen for her.

The final reconciliation between the lovers is brought about through the intervention of her younger sister, who impersonates her and clears away all the difficulties.

A SISTER'S STRATAGEM (March 2).—Amy has two suitors, Tom, a poor but eligible young fellow, and Mr. Hart, a banker of great wealth. The clever miss keeps both her admirers on the tenterhooks of suspense: not allowing either to propose to her. Tom's sister Mary, a handsome, vivacious young widow, seeing her brother in distress, promises to bring the merciless Amy to terms, if he will assist her to carry out a certain stratagem. Mary is introduced to the company by her married name and she and Tom soon become engaged in an apparently violent flirtation. Amy becomes extremely jealous: she believes that she has lost Tom, whom she really loves. When matters have progressed far enough everything is explained to Amy, who forgives Tom and promises to marry him. And to cap the climax, the rich banker falls in love with the pretty widow.

Capital Wanted

To introduce a new process which will produce Moving Picture Positives of Superior quality, at half the present price. Experimental plant in operation. Greatest invention in the moving picture line since its inception.

For Particulars address
CHEMIST........ ce of Moving Picture World

THE NEW BELL
SLDERLESS TERMINALS

Wt increased twenty-five per cent, and diameter of holes increased to one-quarter inch.

Ey attached by the use of pliers, making a sure contact.

	Per Dozen
N 1, for No. 6 or 8 wire, - - -	$1.00
N 2, for No. 10 or smaller wire, -	.75

All Exchanges, or
THE BELL & HOWELL CO.
21W. Illinois St., CHICAGO

M E YOUR LOBBY DISPLAY ATTRACTIVE

ROYAL
IMPROVE YOUR Lobby
FRAME YOUR POSTERS
BRASS EASELS AND BRASS RAILING
BRASS POSTER FRAMES FOR EASELS AND WALLS

¶ Put in our Easels and Poster Frames and watch your attendance grow.

Brass Rails
B ss Push and Kick Plates, Door Guard Rails, Etc.

LOW PRICES BEST WORK
D N'T DELAY but write today for complete catalog
AGENTS WANTED

T NEWMAN MFG. CO., 717-719 Sycamore St. CINCINNATI, O.

PUT THIS IN YOUR PROGRAM

The Guardian Angel

Tuesday, February 27th

A story sure to prove lasting in the minds of all who see this beautiful Production.

Getting Dad Married

Thursday, February 29th

A film which will further establish ECLAIR'S Reputation for producing original Comedy.

The Interrupted Telegram

AND

Prague, The Beautiful

Sunday, March 3rd

An Appealing Drama, together with a highly interesting educational subject.

NEXT WEEK

MARCH 5th—"A CHILD'S PLEA"
A Drama.

MARCH 7th—"NO WEDDING BELLS FOR ME"
A Rip-roaring Farce.

MARCH 10th—"ALCOHOL" or "The Poison of Humanity"
An impressive Temperance Production in two parts.
A Revelation, startling, compelling and lasting in effect.

Valuable Illustrated Book sent free to those not now on the ECLAIR mammouth mailing list. Write for one to-day.

ECLAIR FILM CO., Fort Lee, N. J.

Sales Company Sole Agents

The Operator's Bible

A MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK

Price $1.50 Postage Paid

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
125 EAST 23rd STREET :: :: NEW YORK CITY

ECLIPSE.

COUSIN BILL (Feb. 28).—Bill is a regular country bumpkin and it is a great event in his life when he visits his city cousins.

They greet him warmly and tell him that he must immediately get into some dress clothes for a party to be given that evening.

Bill in a dress suit, three sizes too small, creates quite a sensation at the party. After disgracing himself and his hosts, he is enticed outside for entertainment under the care of the butler.

After a glorious night of it, Bill finally is put to bed. The next morning he arises much the worse for wear, and sneaks off to the train. He decides that he has had enough of city life and that the farm is good enough for him.

A GLIMPSE OF TRIPOLI (Feb. 28).—Owing to the present trouble between Italy and Turkey, this film is especially interesting. It shows scenes on the Tripolitan frontier; the queer inhabitants and their dwellings, several kinds of fortified buildings. A detachment of cavalry and a caravan of Tripolitans seeking refuge on account of the war.

BIOGRAPH.

THE SUNBEAM (Feb. 26).—The little one is playing with her doll while her mother lies sick. The poor woman dies, and the child, thinking her asleep, goes downstairs in search of a playmate. First she visits an austere old maid, and by her artlessness soon melts her coldness. Next she goes across the hallway to a crabbed old bachelor and affects him the same way. The old maid misses one of her hair puffs and goes after the child, thinking she took it. While she is in the bachelor's room talking to the child, several tenement-house youngsters steal a "scarlet-fever" notice and stick it on the bachelor's door. This quarantines the three until the health officer appears and releases them, They then take the child to find its mamma and are horrified at finding her dead. As each wants to take the child they end the argument most logically—a wedding results.

A MESSAGE FROM THE MOON (Feb. 29).—The old astronomer objects to his daughter's choice of a fiance, and orders him away. He vows to get even. An idea strikes him as he passes a store where fireworks are sold. Procuring a lot of Roman candles, etc., he mounts the roof and holds the sputtering torches in front of the telescopic lens, at the same time throwing a stone through the skylight. The old professor is decorated by the Astronomical Society as receiving a message from the moon in the shape of a meteor. Here is the young man's chance. Papa must give his consent or be exposed as a fraud.

PRISCILLA'S CAPTURE (Feb. 29).—Priscilla knowing that thieving tramps are in the neighborhood, thinks she sees one in a not very reputable looking stranger who suddenly appears in the courtyard. With a gun, Priscilla drives him into the chicken-coop, where she holds him a prisoner, and awaits the return of Fred, her brother, who has gone to the station to meet his college chum. But Fred reached the station an hour late and missed his chum, the latter having hired a boy with a motor cycle to act as guide in finding the ranch. The finding, however, proved very disastrous to Fred's chum as evidenced by his tramp-like appearance, and most embarrassing to Priscilla when Fred recognized in the occupant of the chicken-coop, his chum.

PATHE.

THE SQUAW'S DEBT OF GRATITUDE (Feb. 28).—An Indian girl, accidentally wounded, is nursed by a pale-face maiden, and when she regains her health, is sent back to her tribe. Later, the pale-face is captured by the Indians and is destined to the tortures for which the Indians were famous. The little Indian squaw, however, frustrates the plans, by helping the maiden to escape, which she does after many thrilling adventures.

THE ORDEAL (Feb. 29).—Mr. Babyless receives a telephone message, which greatly excites him, and he rushes from his office, posthaste. Upon his arrival at home, he learns that his wife is hovering on the edge of the Valley of the Shadow of Death, and he is not allowed to see her. The doctors come, and hold consultations, nurses rush hither and thither, and through it all, the man suffers the tortures of a mental picture of his wife in her dying moments. When things reach a point, when it seems impossible to longer bear the strain, the doctor appears, shakes Mr. Babyless by the hand, and turning, presents him to his new heir, Mr. Babyless, junior, who is quickly followed by his brother, Mr. Babyless, second junior, and finally this is followed by their brother, Mr. Babyless, third junior.

HIS MEXICAN SWEETHEART (March 2).—A lieutenant, in the United States Army, in times of peace, falls in love with the a charming Mexican girl, whose father objects to the American's attentions. This lieutenant, subsequently, when war has been declared between Mexico and the United States, is sent to spy on the Mexican fortifications, but he is seen, recognized and pursued. He finally reaches his sweetheart's house, and she successfully hides him beneath the Mexican flag, which she is making. Later, he makes his escape to the American lines, but he takes with him the lady of his choice, and they are married by the army chaplain.

C. G. P. C.

THE TUMBLER'S KIDS (Feb. 27).—A traveling showman sends his children forth into a city to give their exhibition and collect what money they may. They discover a woman, sick and almost ready to die, and turn the money over to her, in return for which she gives them the best in her possession—the knowledge of the beauty of Christian life, and teaches them that sacrifice is rewarded with an inner consciousness of a good deed well done.

ASBESTOS QUARRY (Feb. 27).A very interesting, lucid and instructive film, on the method by which asbestos is blasted out of the rocks in a quarry, carried to the works and made into commercial form.

WRESTLING IN INDO-CHINA (Feb. 28).—The gentle art of wrestling is very much in vogue in the Malay peninsular, .and much time and money are spent on such entertainment. In this particular film we see two Chinese champions endeavoring to the best of their ability to overcome one anther.

THE GREAT MARKET IN TANANARIVE, MADAGASCAR (Feb. 29).—This picture is interesting, because of the novelty of the scenes, which, taken in a country little frequented by a motion picture camera man. Various marts of trade are beautifully depicted on the screen and the audience is, for the time being, transported to the sunny Madagascar town.

AN ADVENTURE OF VAN DYCK (March 1).—The famous painter is called to the castle of a wealthy Count to paint the picture of the Count's lovely daughter. The daughter proves so charming, that Van Dyck falls in love with her. Finding, later, that she is already betrothed, he fights a duel with the young lady's fiance, and the young lady, rather than marry the man she does not love, enters a convent. From this Van Dyck attempts to rescue her, and is killed in the effort.

HUNTING BEARS IN MALAYA (March 1).—This picture of a bear hunt, is right thrilling and stirs the good red blood of every one in the audience. The sport is adventurous, but fascinating, and many find great pleasure in its pursuit. The picture is remarkably well taken and shows the from great points of advantage.

MELIES.

SEVEN BARS OF GOLD (March 7).—Ma
the sly miner, has seven bars of gold tied t backs of his donkies for delivery to the ra agent. The problem in his mind is how to a part of the gold without any likelihood of
At the town drinking place he meets Nell her mother and confides to the latter his sc which is to use Nell. Nell, much against her is forced by her mother to become a party t infamous plot against Joe, the station agent, she really loves.

Manuel delivers the gold to Joe, carefully c seven bars and gets Joe's receipt for that nu
A scream is heard—Nell's—planned to com that time to divert Joe's attention. Joe re nizes her voice and rushes out to save her the faked-up attack. Manuel hastily seizes a of gold and shoves it through a little hole to roof where he can get it later.

gathers and before all Manuel accuses Joe of Joe returns and discovers the loss. A c theft. Manuel rides for the sheriff. Joe telegr the next station for help and the division inspe and his squad hasten on a hand-car. Sheriff inspector arrive at the same time and an impro court is held. The receipt is shown and th look bad for Joe, when a noise is heard on roof. Nell, repenting of her deed, has located bar and means to save Joe. She accuses Manue the theft and his actions are sufficient proof he is the real culprit. The sheriff takes Ma and bids all the others depart, winking significa at Joe and Nell.

Among the Exhibitors

New York, N. Y.—Shampan & Shampan plans for a two-story moving picture theater
155 Monroe Street, for Geo. D. Segal, to cost $
000.

Des Moines, Iowa.—A new office and the building is to be erected at Fifth and Wa
Streets by I. Ruben at a cost of $150,000.

Graetinger, Iowa.—A new $10,000 opera h is being established here.

Cleveland, Ohio.—The Marquise Amusement will erect a new theater on Crawford Road.

South Bend, Ind.—It is understood that Indiana Theater will soon be operated as a mov picture house.

Moving Picture Camera
WANTED
Give Price and Description
ADDRESS:—
Cameraman, care of Moving Picture World

LECTURING the PICTURES
HUGH F. HOFFMAN
Lecturer of Special Releases
NEW YORK CITY
AND VICINITY
Now booking engagements for Homer's "Odyssey," Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, East Lynne, Dante's "Inferno," Delhi Durbar, She, and other Topical or Dramatic feature pictures.
Address care of
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
Telephone Gramercy 1344
125 E. 23d St.
NEW YORK

NOURISH

Your Box Office Receipts
by Booking the Following

CHAMP FEATURES:

Sherlocko & Watso

Great and only sleuths, for the first time in pictures, the first one being

"The Robbery At The Railroad Station"

A split reel Released February 26th
Handsome lobby sheets free. On the other half

"A Higher Power"

A stirring drama, bristling with action, splendid photographic features. Get it.

"Wrongly Accused"

is a beautiful picture, starring a little girl and her little doll and a missing necklace. A necessity to an exhibitor's program.

NOW HERE ARE TWO BIRDS

"The Manicurist"

It's a film that will take on with everybody because it's a pleasing story, withal strongly dramatic.

Released March 4th, 1912

"Blind"

Released March 6th, 1912, is a good one. Ask for it.

THE CHAMPION FILM COMPANY
MARK H. DINTENFASS, Mgr.
145 W. 45th Street
NEW YORK : : N. Y.

Buy Film As You Would Buy An Automobile

COMPARE THE VARIOUS MAKES OF PICTURES—CONSIDER CAREFULLY WHAT EACH MANUFACTURER HAS TO OFFER—AND WE LEAVE THE VERDICT WITH YOU

You wouldn't buy an automobile without knowing something of the manufacturers' reliability. You would compare his car, part for part, with that of his competitor, and then YOU WOULD PAY MORE FOR A BETTER GRADE CAR!

AMERICAN FILM costs no more than any other. The good, bad and indifferent are shuffled together and the price is uniform. Hence, it's up to you, to your business acumen, to SELECT and DEMAND THE BEST.

We make the following Features of Paramount Interest in ALL AMERICAN PRODUCTIONS:

THE STORY PHOTOGRAPHY
CALIFORNIA BACKGROUNDS PANTOMIME

The Stories from selected sources; The Photography Best that Cash and Skill Can Buy; El Cajon Valley Backgrounds of Suberb Beauty; Pantomime the product of Trained Artists, especially adapted by nature and experience for the work.

COMING AMERICANS

"A LEAP-YEAR COMEDY"

(Release Feb. 22. Western Comedy. Length, 1,000 Feet.)

A timely, dainty, enticing story showing what happened to Pete Miller's family on the 29th day of February. Exceptionally good and seasonable.

"THE LAND BARON OF SAN TEE"

(Release Feb. 26. Western Drama. Length, 1,000 Feet.)

Concerning that great Western problem of water supply. A stirring, powerful tale, scintillating with strong dramatic situations and well acted throughout. A house-packer you are sure to like.

"AN ASSISTED ELOPEMENT"

(Release Feb. 29. Western Comedy. Length, 1,000 Feet.)

How Jack Collins, mechanic, bested Bert Bruce, attorney, in the race for a girl and made him pay his marriage fee and sundry other expenses. An extraordinarily good picture, full of rapid actions and many funny situations.

"FROM THE FOUR HUNDRED TO THE HERD"

(Release March 4. Western Society Drama. Length, 1,000 Ft.)

A really wonderful picture containing gems of photography never before seen on the American market, illustrating to their uttermost those wonderful California backgrounds. A tale of an English earl and a Western chap and a pretty American duchess.

The American Film Mfg. Co.
BANK FLOOR, ASHLAND BLOCK. CHICAGO, ILL.

Independent Film Stories

THANHOUSER.

THE GUILTY BABY (Feb. 27).—The society woman honestly believed that the workingman was the thief, and the case of circumstantial evidence was sufficient to make the police agree with her. The workingman was repairing a leak in the pipes in the bathroom that opened off her boudoir. The woman entered her room, and in taking off her veil, snapped the catch of her necklace. She was about to fix it when her baby entered the room, and she dropped the jewels on her dresser to play with the baby for a moment, and give the child a box of candy. Then she crossed to her desk telephone, turned when the nurse entered to take the child out, and could swear later that the nurse was not near the dresser. A few moments later she turned around in time to see the workingman dash across the room and out. She walked over to the dresser and her necklace was gone.

That was the story she told the police and it was absolutely true in every detail. The workingman was arrested and denied his guilt. He explained his hasty departure by saying that he had a sick wife and that when he left home he told his little girl where he would be during the day and to summon him if her mother grew worse. From the window he saw his daughter in the street, and fearing the worst, had rushed out.

Like the statement of the woman, his story was absolutely true. But she was believed, while he was cast into a cell. The daughter of the prisoner found the thief when the police were all at fault. It was the baby, and the little girl proved it. The case, however, taught the mother that sometimes even the clearest of circumstantial evidence is faulty.

THE ARAB'S BRIDE (March 1).—A wealthy Moor had one treasure he failed to prize at its real value, his beautiful daughter. To him she was simply a woman, a source of expense while a child, and a treasure only, if a rich suitor came along to whom she could practically be sold.

In course of time the rich man did appear, and was enthusiastically greeted by the father. The daughter, however, had the temerity to say that she did not love the man; in fact her heart had been won by another, a young Arab she had seen while in the market place. She knew little about him but was convinced that he was far more worthy than the suitor her father had selected. The father was obdurate, however. He did not deign to argue with the girl, simply commanded her to prepare for the ceremony, and with sighs and tears she did so.

The girl had a faithful attendant, homely but quick-witted and resourceful. The attendant proposed a plan which she thought had merit, for it would make three persons happy. And affairs came out as she had predicted.

The father was happy because he got the money that had been promised him; the daughter and the Arab were pleased because they married; and the attendant was satisfied, for she won a rich husband although having neither cash nor beauty. The only unhappy person was the rich suitor, but then he was wealthy, and riches bring their own consolation.

REPUBLIC.

IN THE GOVERNMENT SERVICE (Feb. 27).—A Frenchman deserts his wife, and stealing her jewels, comes to Montreal, where he marries again. They go to Alaska where a pal tells the Frenchman of a chance to steal a shipment of gold. An old mail carrier transports the gold over a perilous country and he bears many hardships only to be overpowered and have his precious load stolen. Mack, who is also in the service of the government, rescues the mail carrier and defends the Frenchman's wife, whom the latter mistreats. He loves the wife but she will not go away with him until the first wife appears on the scene for her jewels, setting the second wife free. The Northwest mounted police and people in the trail of the Frenchman find that in his attempt to hide the gold and make a "get-a-way" he has killed himself.

HIS PARTNER'S WIFE (March 2).—Tom Langdon discovers that his wife is carrying on a clandestine love affair with his partner, Jim, and rather than cause trouble he counts out Jim's share of gold and tells him their business relations are at an end. Jim leaves and Langdon's wife follows him to Denver, where they live happily for a time. Jim finally proves his unfaithfulness to her and she, in a moment of unhappiness, writes fo her husband to take her back. He in turn cautions Jim to treat her well, but later Jim deserts her and goes back to the gold field to regain a squandered fortune. Becoming ill in the cold climate, Jim one day falls on the trail and is discovered and rescued by Tom. The latter learns of Jim's bad treatment of his wife and the men fight the matter out with their fists. Tom is getting the worst of it, when his wife, who has followed Jim, shoots and kills him through a window. Tom wishes her to stay with him but she feels she must go with this crime on her hands, and we are left to wonder if she goes or stays.

SOLAX.

HIS LORDSHIP'S WHITE FEATHER (Feb. 25).—A nobleman, interested in art, comes to America to study the natural beauty of our country. His friends here introduce him to a Western ranch owner and soon the nobleman goes West. The noble artist falls in love, naturally, with the daughter of the ranchman and she reciprocates his affection. The foreman of the ranch is a rival for the girl's heart.

Soon difficulties arise on the ranch. There is a joint outbreak of desperadoes and horse-thieves. They threaten the lives of the ranchman and his family. In the course of the struggle, in which the desperadoes are worsted, the nobleman escapes without an attempt to help defend the home and family of his host. Thus showing his true mettle, the girl repudiates him and permits a real nobleman of the plains to lead her to the altar.

ALGIE, THE MINER (Feb. 28).—Algie is in love with Clarice Jackson, but Clarice's father will have none of him. To a real man Algie is unendurable. His "sissy" manner makes him look like a jellyfish. Algie cajoles and is persistent, so in order to be rid of him, Mr. Jackson advises Algie that he may have his daughter, provided he goes out West for a year and "makes good."

Algie thinks well of the proposition. After many unnecessary preparations he departs. His arrival out West among the rough and ready cowboys, gives these hearty men of the plains many hours of amusement. Algie is soon tied down to a job and is bunked with one of the toughest specimens of the ranch. His constant association with this man brings him in touch with many hard places and rough experiences. These hard knocks change Algie completely. After a year expires, Algie comes East, a wealthy miner and to the staggering astonishment of all, asks for the hand of Clarice. He emphasizes his claims with a big six-shooter.

BLIGHTED LIVES (March 1).—Charles Kingsley and George Barr are both in love with Edith Marsden. Edith is partial to Charles. Soon after Charles has proposed to Edith, he finds himself financially embarrassed. At this time his mother's plea for financial assistance increases his embarassment. As a last hope, after applying to many others for loans, Charles applies to George Barr, his friend, the district attorney. Barr, not having forgiven Kingsley for his success with Edith, decides to ruin his career. Barr sends Kingsley a check and when Kingsley attempts to cash it, he is held for forgery. Circumstantial evidence is against Charles and he is convicted of forgery.

Conscience, in the meanwhile, plays havoc with Barr. He lives in constant terror of visions and nightmares. Finally, in order to expiate his crime, he goes out and traces Charles' mother and offers her his assistance. He meets Edith at Mrs. Kingsley's home, and she, seeing the man's softness of spirit, and not knowing his offence against her lover, accepts his offer of marriage.

Years later Charles is pardoned. He sets out to avenge himself on the wrecker of his career. He then learns of all that Barr has done for his mother. He leaves Edith's photograph near their home with the inscription, "I forgive you and him." Some days later on their way out, Edith and Mr. Barr find the photograph. Edith understands the significance and turns away from her husband with hate and repudiation. So lives are blighted.

NESTOR.

BLIND MAN'S BUFF (Feb. 19).—Robert Morris, Superintendent of Streets, while examining some newly finished paving work, puts on a pair of green goggles to protect his eyes from the strongly reflected light, and as he is tapping the pavement with a cane to test it, he is mistaken for a blind man by Mildred Black, who offers her assistance to him in crossing the street. Morris, struck by the appearance of the girl, does not tell her that he is not blind, and exchanges cards with her. She, much impressed by Morris, solicits the help of her friend, Doctor Horton, a famous eye specialits, giving him Morris' card, and asking him to call and see what he can do for the young man. Horton, when he calls, finds a mutual friend at Morris' house, and the three men plan to further a love affair between Mildren and Morris. To this end the doctor writes her that he can cure the "blind man," but wishes some suitable person to read to the patient and accompany him on his walks in the park. Mildred herself decides to do this.

During one of their walks in the park, a couple of toughs pick a quarrel with the "blind" man, and are surprised when Morris tears the bandage from his eyes and proceeds to hand out a thorough and much needed thrashing to them. Mildred, learning thus of the deception which has been practiced, leaves him and refuses to see him again.

Morris and his friend call in the doctor, and insist that since his suggestion has caused this trouble, it is up to him to straighten out the tangled love affair. The jolly doctor manages to make the girl believe that he has cured the supposed blind man, and she forgives Morris, who at once avails himself of this opportunity to propose, and he is accepted.

ROLLICKING RED'S BIG LARK (Feb. 21).—Rolicking Red is an outlaw who is being pursued by the sheriff and his posse, including Joe Curtis. The outlaw evades his pursuers by doubling back on his tracks in time to see Joe fall from his horse. The posse ride on ignorant of the accident. Red rides back to Joe, helps him on his horse, then after tying a handkerchief over his eyes, takes him to his shack. He gets Joe's promise that he will not tell what he sees, and removes the bandage from his eyes. He dresses Joe's wounds, and cooks his meals, etc., until he has recovered sufficiently to ride home. Again blindfolding him, he takes the young man within sight of his place, removes the handkerchief, and points out the way to him.

Joe gets home safely, and later, when a new sheriff is wanted, Joe runs and is elected. One morning a man from another county brings Joe a note from the sheriff of another county, and a placard asking for the arrest of Rollicking Red. Joe recognizes the picture to be his friend of the shack. Thinking it will be a big feather in his cap to capture Rollicking Red alone, he sets out alone toward Red's shack.

Red sees him coming, and steps around the house to observe his actions. As he knocks, Joe throws back his coat and displays his sheriff's badge. Red is then on guard. He comes forward, invites Joe inside. Joe watches Red closely, but is never able to get the drop on him. At last Joe falls asleep; Red then cautiously removes the cartridges from his gun (Joe's gun), and as Joe sits up with a start, calmly lights his pipe. At once thinking he has caught Red unprepared, he draws his gun and commands Red to throw up his hands. This is what Red wanted. He goes to Joe, covering him with his gun, and with Joe's handcuffs, he handcuffs the young man and commands him to lie down until morning.

The next morning Red has breakfast ready. He gives Joe some, then pinning medals on the sheriff, which Red has made during the night from tin pans, which read: "Reward for bravery," 'Hero," etc. He then takes Joe to the outside of the saloon. Red rides up shooting and calling to the boys, that he has brought them their brave sheriff; he then turns and rides away before the others can recover from their surprise. Joe is a general laughing stock for all; even his sweetheart and her mother, who came along, turn from him. Joe runs off to the blacksmith's to sever the handcuffs, while the men discuss electing a new sheriff.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT (Feb. 24).—Silas and Mirandy are young, married and happy. Miss Bright, the new school teacher, comes to the village and makes her home with Silas and Mirandy. Mirandy shows her displeasure quite plainly and keeps Silas busy laughing away her unfounded jealousy.

Mirandy finally leaves home intent on getting a divorce. When she finds that the family lawyer is out of town, she puts up at the hotel for the night. Silas' strenuous efforts to locate his missing wife land him at the same hotel. Here, a somewhat jolly and semi-intoxicated man, having the room between those of Silas and Mirandy, creates a big commotion, which brings out into the hall the runaway wife and the pursuing husband, who fall into each other's arms, kiss and make up. The pretty school teacher, however, is obliged to take her bright personality elsewhere, and happiness is enthroned once more.

TIGHTWAD ALMOST SAVES A DOLLAR (Feb. 24).—Why should Mrs. Tightwad pay a dollar to have the ashes carted away? Thus soliloquizes Tightwad, and prompt action follows his soliloquy. He upbraids his better half for her extravagance, dismisses the man and embarks upon his dollar-saving expedition by doing his own ash-carting. Unfortunately he selects the wrong dumping ground

DANTE'S INFERNO
(Milano, 5 Reels, Licensed—Helios, 2 Reels, Independent)
Open for Bookings in Greater New York City and State
SUPERIOR FEATURE FILM CO. 32 UNION SQUARE, EAST NEW YORK CITY

American Moving Picture Machine Co.

MANUFACTURERS OF THE

STANDARD

Automatic Moving Picture Machine

101-102 Beekman Street New York

BIG BOX OFFICE WINNER

Feature The Nihilists' Conspiracy

Over 40 Scenes IN TWO PARTS By an All Star Cast

AWE INSPIRING and DRAMATIC, ending with a sensational climax

THE MONEY GETTER

A VICTIM OF THE MORMONS

Only a Few States Left for this Sensational Three Reel Feature

Elaborate 1 and 3 Sheet Posters, Four Page Pamphlets. ELEGANT LOBBY DISPLAY

Other Big Features Coming

The Call of a Woman, Great Northern	(3 Reels)
Cell No. 13, Itala	(2 ")
Dead Man's Child, Great Northern	(3 ")
Golden Belt, Ambrosio	(2 ")
Mysteries of Souls, Itala	(3 ")
Last of Frontenacs, Ambrosio	(3 ")

NEW YORK, NEW JERSEY EXHIBITORS, WRITE FOR BOOKINGS

GREAT NORTHERN SPECIAL FEATURE FILM CO., 1 Union Square, N. Y. City

The Buckeye-Lake Shore Film Co.

Independent Film Service

Special attention given to each customer's needs and to all the little details.

We buy all the good Independent film released.

Good service and right treatment at the right price. Is there any good reason why you should not give us a trial ?

422 N. High St, Columbus, Ohio

EXHIBITORS' HEADQUARTERS

CALEHUFF SUPPLY COMPANY

(Incorporated)

50 North Eighth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Jobbers in Edison Kinetoscopes, Powers Cameragraphs.

Machines repaired by expert mechanics. Genuine parts only used.

SPECIALTIES

Mirror Screens
Chairs
Tickets
Pianos
Bio & Electric Carbons
Special Gundlach Lenses
Condensers
Edison Transformers
Ft.WayneCompensarcs
Asbestos State Booths
Asbestos Wire
Switches
Plugs Spotlights
Gas Making Outfits
Limes Film Cement
Disinfectant
Scenery
Stage Effects
Theatres Bought, Sold, Rented

CHAS. A. CALEHUFF, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

THE CINCINNATI-BUCKEYE FILM CO.

America's Largest Film Renting Concern. Entire Building 236 W. 4th Street, Cincinnati, O. Private Exchange connecting all Departments. Phones Main 1910-1911. Buying the entire Independent Output. Have every big feature production for rent. Write for prices. Dealers in Moving Picture Machines and all accessories pertaining to the business

LECTURES ON SPECIAL FILMS

Prepared by W. STEPHEN BUSH

EACH $1.00 PER COPY POSTAGE PAID

How to Put On the Passion Play (SECOND EDITION

FOR PATHE FRERES WORLD-RENOWNED PRODUCTION

How to Put On The Crusaders, or Jerusalem Delivered

FOR WORLD'S BEST FILM CO., FEATURE FILM (Copyright 1911)

Key and Complete Lecture for Dante's Inferno

FOR MILANO FILM CO., (Italy) FIVE REEL PRODUCTION

ORDER NOW Only a limited edition of each $1.00 PER COPY

COPYRIGHTED AND FOR SALE ONLY BY

MOVING PICTURE WORLD, Box 226, Madison Square P. O., New York City

and is unceremoniously dragged to jail by a lynx-eyed officer of the law.

Mrs. Tightwad is apprised by 'phone of her husband's predicament, and A. Trimmer, the legal light, is called in to liberate Tightwad from his plight. Lawyer Trimmer trims his client to the tune of eighty dollars in addition to a twenty-dollar fine which Tightwad has to pay.

GRAND CANYON, ARIZONA (Feb. 24).—Magnificent panoramic views of the Colorado River taken from the end of Bright Angel Trail, and showing the immense and indescribable grandeur of the famous canyons.

REX.

UNDER HER WING (Feb. 22).—Marion Leonard sees her irresponsible brother's family suffer and want because of his shiftlessness. She obtains a position for him at the office, where she is the confidential cashier. One day the safe is open, Marion is in an adjoining room; the call of the serpent is too strong for ears eager to hear and heed; and Bob falls.

The girl returns. The missing money and the absent brother tell their sordid, familiar tale. She rushes home, confronts the sinner, demands the money. Reluctantly he hands it to her. Her employer, in the meantime, had entered the office, observed the open safe, the missing money, the vanished cashier, and started straightway for her home. He enters to see her with the money in her hands. She looks upon her brother's children, and she confesses her guilt of the theft.

A man's watch-fob is found near the safe. The clue is followed, and leads to Bob. Marion, despite her protests that she alone is the guilty one, is liberated. Bob pays the penalty for his own transgression. And the noble girl takes the little wife and the two tots "under her wing," to be for them a more reliant bread-winner than ever their father was.

THE END OF THE CIRCLE (Feb. 25).—Discouraged and disheartened with her uncompromising poverty and the narrow prospects for improving the bleak conditions, she goes away with another. It was hard to leave the little tot and the husband vainly struggling against the relentless tide of invincible circumstance.

In the lonesome night the child prays for the mother-woman, and across the dreary waste of desert life she hears the call—and heeds. The telepathic tie that binds the child's mind to her own transmits the wistful message, and the mother-heart conquers. The nebulous shadow of night and blight departs; the withered hope buds and blooms anew, and she takes the narrow path back to those to whom her life is consecrated.

ECLAIR.

American Make.

THE GUARDIAN ANGEL (Feb. 27).—The Guardian Angel in this great drama of to-day proves to be a sweet-faced child who intervenes at just the critical moment to save a young wife from her thoughtless folly, and a fond husband from treading the downward path.

No prettier scene could be imagined than that enacted by the trio when father and mother are again brought together through a child's influence.

GETTING DAD MARRIED (Feb. 29).—Ellen's mother is dead and she becomes dad's housekeeper. She wants to marry Harry and succeeds in obtaining dad's consent by promising to stay with him until he secures another housekeeper.

Applicants are tried, but they fail to please dad, and Ellen has about given up hope when she conceives the idea of getting dad married, so with Harry's help they advertise for a wife.

Out of a mass of letters they select five and ask them to call on dad. Among the first four to call, there's a fat widow, a deaf widow and two impossible old maids. Dad's fortitude exhausts after the fourth one has nearly kidnapped him, but to the motive underlying all these visits, dad is both ignorant and unsuspecting.

Finally the fifth one rings the bell and dad escapes. Ellen cautiously peeks out of the window before she asks this last one in. Dad in passing out the front way sees the one in question and he is impressed, for No. 5 is "some woman," a blonde widow, with "all the looks." Ellen admits her and dad slips back in the house. Dad "falls" for the widow and Ellen and Harry marry. Dad gets married also, so all's well that ends well.

ECLAIR.

A TERRIBLE NIGHT (Feb. 25).—A woodcutter and his daughter are having their meal. A poor man comes along and the girl invites him to join them. Leaving the man asleep, they go to work. Awaking, the man sees a barrel of wine and drinks deeply. The young woman returns and is attacked by the fiend. Seizing a piece of wood, she strikes him on the head. He falls as if dead. Believing that she has killed him, she rushes to her father. He also believes the man dead. At night they hide the body in the woods.

Back home, their fancy shows them terrible things. The door opens, the ghost of the man appears to them, walks towards them, takes a seat. Father and daughter draw back frightened. They dare not speak or touch the ghost. Night is over. The man is still there. The woodcutter then goes near the man and touches him. It is not a ghost, but the very man they thought dead.

THE CITY OF MOSQUES (Feb. 25).—This film shows us the splendid scenery of Egypt. The celebrated mosque of the Sultan Hassan, the bronze gate of the Monaiyad, the tomb of Mohammed Ali, the minarets of El Monaiyad, the tomb of Touloun, a view of Cairo from the minarets, an evening view of the mosques and other novel scenes.

THE INTERRUPTED TELEGRAM (March 3).—George Delorne receives a telegram that his presence is indispensable at the factory. He must leave his family, though his little daughter is very sick. They will let him know, even the worst, so the mother says before he goes.

A few days have elapsed, the child is saved. Mother remembers her promise and gives a telegram to the doctor to send it to her husband: "State of loved daughted hopeless after your departure has suddenly become better. She will soon be cured."

The telegram is delivered to the telegraph office. In order to close her shutters the girl in charge of the post-office goes out. A tramp noticing she is out goes in, he may find something there to take. Hardly has the woman transmitted the first part of the telegram "State of loved daughter hopeless" than the tramp jumps on her and ties her up. The telegram is delivered to its address.

Mr. Delorne comes back, at night, to the hotel and asks whether there is a telegram for him. Yes. He takes it and reads: "State of loved daughter hopeless" and falls into the servant's arms.

He comes back home without sending word. On her bed, he beholds his daughter asleep. She hears noise and wakes up. Delorne can't believe his eyes, calls his wife, who comes in quite happy. At the same moment Mr. Delorne is informed that a burglar has attempted the life of the telegraph operator and that for that reason only a part of the telegram has been transmitted, and so everything is explained.

PRAGUE (March 3).—Beautiful Prague appears in this film to us in a most realistic way. Here a train comes across the city itself, the celebrated City Hall clock, made in 1490 by Master Hames, is before us, we find ourselves on the Moldau, we stop at the Charles Bridge, built in 1357. Persons condemned to death were thrown into the Moldau by the executioner. A view of a young Slovak closes the film.

RELIANCE.

BEDELIA AND MRS. BUSYBODY (Feb. 21).—Bedelia lives in the same house with Mrs. Busybody and it is Bedelia's delight to make Mrs. Busybody's life one long series of exciting incidents. Every time she learns of Mrs. Busybody prying into other people's affairs, she has some unique means of punishment for her. Finally Mrs. Busybody is taught a lesson and Bedelia and the other tenants settle down to a more comfortable but monotonous existence.

THE KEY WEST CELEBRATION (Feb. 21).—Showing the completion of Flagler's famous railroad over the Florida Keys, which marks one of the most wonderful engineering feats of the century. The railroad covers an area of sea and small islands of 156 miles running south of Miami to the island city of Key West, making it possible to travel by train from the state of Maine to the southernmost points of the eastern coast of North America. The picture concludes with a military and carnival parade, a panoramic view of the city showing the distinguished guests, foreign and American cruisers.

A CHILD'S FIRST LOVE (Feb. 24).—Cooley, having met with an accident, is brought to the Fearnley home by the doctor, who finds it will be impossible to remove him. Hospitality is extended and he is faithfully attended by Georgia, who finally falls in love with her patient. During Cooley's convalescence, Jane returns from college, and, forgetful of his declared love for Georgia (his feeling for her being merely gratitude) his heart passes into the keeping of Jane, who is a willing recipient. An elopement is planned and one morning Georgia awakens to find both sister and sweetheart gone. The young couple meet with misfortune and Jans is left a poor widow.

Her pride prevents her from returning home and she sews for a living, while her daughter is employed in a toy shop. Day by day the little one is seen worshipping a beautiful doll, which she dreads to see pass beyond her vision. It is purchased by Georgia for a friend. Gladys delivers it to her mother's old home, and, upon entering, falls. The doll is broken, and while being comforted by Georgia, the child tells of her mother. Through this a reconciliation is brought about and Gladys is soon the proud possessor of a doll a beautiful as her first love.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST STUDIOS
Paris France ECLAIR FILM CO. Fort Lee N. J.
BRANCHES THROUGHOUT THE EARTH

MAJESTIC.

BOUGHT (Feb. 25).—A tiny waif left adrift i a mining camp grows to girlhood under the car of the owner of the chief saloon and gamblin resort of the camp. At the age of sixteen sh finds herself exposed to continual insult by th habitués of the place and finds but little protectio from her self-styled guardian.

A newcomer to the place, James Halpin, come to the girl's rescue one night when a drunke miner tries to kiss the child. The miner find himself looking into the barrel of Jim's gun. Jin dares him to play a hand of poker for the girl The deal is made and the frightened child is ordered by her guardian to leave the place in th company of the man who had just won possessio of her. Realizing the child's fear of him, Jin sends the girl to his sister, living in Chicago.

Jim works the next four years as never before and then a lucky strike places him on his feet He hits the trail for Chicago. He arrives o New Year's Eve and just misses his sister an the girl, who, under the escort of a natty youn gentleman, have gone to a New Year's Eve celebration at one of the great restaurants of th city.

Jim follows them, but arrives after the departure of his sister, who, taken ill, has left th party, refusing to spoil the young people's pleasure and, leaving the girl unchaperoned, has returned t her home and the care of her maid. His littl kid consistently refuses the wine pressed upo her and then to Jim's rage the young fellow wh had escorted her to the party, attempts to kis the girl. He goes to the insolent youngster an hurls him across a table.

The girl recognizes Jim and he takes her fro the place to his sister's home. There he misinterprets the girl's tears to mean that she is i love with the young fellow. He returns to th restaurant and quieting the young fellow's fur by the assurance that the girl is weeping her hear out at home because of the night's trouble, h takes the young gentleman to the girl to plea for forgiveness and to beg her consent to be hi wife. The young man finds himself promptly refused and Jim finds the girl still in tears. H finally learns that there is only one way he ca make the kid perfectly happy—he finds that th memory of the night he protected her four year before has never left her; he finds that she feel her only happiness and safety lie in the strengt of his arms about her and quite oddly Jim realize that he has never known what happiness was before

STRIP POKER (Feb. 27).—Dear old Uncle Francois finds himself in his club with a party of ol college mates upon the evening of his arrival fro abroad. He had wired his expectant niece tha he would appear before them in the course of th evening after an hour's reunion with the old boys

The hour's reunion lengthened sadly, for afte much banqueting the boys gather in the car room for a game of college days—"Strip Poker." Here are two of the rules of the game: (1) Th articles of clothing worn by the participants a the time of sitting in to be the basis of all bet made. (2) No winner may return at the end o the session any article of apparel lost by an participant.

Nephew and niece are in despair of the no coming of Uncle Francois. Nephew is in a te rible financial hole and needs $10,000 to margi his accounts the next morning and while his wif is positive that Uncle will come to the rescue the unhappily wait up the entire night for Uncle coming. Come he does, in a barrel, shoved throug the library window by the rest of the crowd, wh flee before the advance of a policeman.

Matters are finally straightened out to the satisfaction of all except the condition of Uncle' head.

AMERICAN.

THE LAND BARON OF SAN TEE (Feb. 26).—The wealthy land baron orders the water suppl shut off and an armed guard is stationed to protect the dam. The baron's foreman, Jim Mallor is in love with Clara Blair, the daughttr of poor old widow, and plans to take advantage o her helplessness. When their water supply give out, Clara hurries to the baron and tells him o her sick mother, but is refused even a cantee of the fluid. She returns home in despair whe Jim Mallory follows her and offers her a cantee of water for a kiss. She indignantly refuses an hurries to her mother, but the sight of her mothe suffering forces her back to accept the forman' offer. He hurries away believing that he no

COMING—
"THROUGH FLAMING GATES!"
Sparks Will Fly March 3d
Sunday REX!

ndependent Exhibitors

Send us your name and address and the name of your theatre and we will mail you the devoted to stories of INDEPENDENT made pictures and profusely illustrated.

HOTOPLAY MAGAZINE

Stories of the best plays of the month.

We prepay it to you.

MANY INDEPENDENT EXHIBITORS have requested us to send them the Magazine, and we will be glad to have the opportunity of sending you as many as you think you can sell. YOUR PATRONS WILL LIKE IT, and by pushing the

HOTOPLAY MAGAZINE

you are boosting that which will react to your own benefit as an exhibitor. Write to-day and we will send you full particulars.

PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE
ite 401-402, 600-630 So. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.
FRANK A. LEAR, General Manager

ILMS FOR RENT

Lowest prices for A-1 Service.
Are you using ASCO Service?
If not, advise us of your wants today.

Our Machine and Supply Department growing larger every day. Do need Repair Parts? If so, let this department show you their prompt- and reliability. Address, Dept. A.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY,
1 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

"Das Lichtbild-Theater"

most up-to-date and most comprehensive Journal of the Cinematograph Industry in Germany.

Editor-Proprietor: LUDWIG BRAUNER
ERLIN SW 68. MARKGRAFENSTRASSE 92/92.
An subscription abroad, $3.00. Write for specimen copy.

AKE 'EM YOURSELF SLIDES

Make them yourself. Written with pen and ink or typewriter. Three minutes to make a slide. Used for advertising slides, to announce future or feature programmes, for chorus slides when chorus slide is missing. We send four colors of gelatin. The slides look well and any one can make them. They are handy also for announcing vaudeville acts. In fact they may be readily used for anything you may wish to say to your audience.

For the sum of three dollars ($3) cash with order, we will send by express, charges not prepaid, or $3.50 by registered mail, prepaid, the following: 24 cover glass, 1 package binder strips, 1 dozen mats, 1 instruction sheet, 1 form sheet and 50 strips assorted colors gelatin—enough for from 300 to 400 slides. Order now. Address

UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO.
17 West 9th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Safety of the Public FIRST

The only practicable NON-INFLAMMABLE FILM is manufactured by the Actien - Gesellschaft fur Berlin and is known as Anilin, Fabrikation.

AGFA

FILM

Sold exclusively in the U. S. A. by THE RAW FILM SUPPLY CO.

Read This. Reprinted from the NEW YORK HERALD:

Dec. 28. 1911.

FIRELESS PICTURE FILMS

Berlin, Wednesday.—An incombustible cinematograph film which will lessen the possibility of panic in moving picture theatres was demonstrated recently before the Berlin Chemical Society and is now reported to be a success. The invention is greeted with enthusiasm in Berlin where several panics have occurred at film shows, the latest of which happened yesterday, passing off, fortunately, without loss of life.

All particulars mailed on application.

Raw Film Supply Co.

15 E. 26th STREET NEW YORK

has her in his power and can enforce any demand. A stranger comes to San Tee and stops at the home of the widow. He asks Clara for water and is told of the famine.

He goes to the dam and fills his canteen, is fired upon by the guard and in returning their fire seriously wounds one of them. The baron is sent for and he hurries on the trail of the stranger seeking vengeance. Lurking in the undergrowth the stranger awaits his coming and captures him. He ties him to a tree and hurries to the widow's home for salt. The foreman is there and forcing his unwelcome attentions on the helpless girl. She screams for help and the stranger arrives in time to grapple with her assailant and turns him over to two of the men who arrive and they force him out of the country.

Returning to his captive, the stranger proceeds to feed him salt and soon he is suffering the same torment he has meted out to the public. Unable to stand the torment longer the baron agrees to lift the famine if the younger man will give him a drink. The stranger forces him to go to the dam and make his announcement and call off his guard. The population is wild with joy, and Clara takes the stranger home to introduce him to her mother. And it is rumored that he stayed in San Tee to force the baron to remain true to his promise and also to become better acquainted with Clara Blair.

POWERS.

A TANGLED COURTSHIP (Feb. 27).—Bob Hill has a college friend, Ned Langdon, who is laid up with a broken leg, the result of a football game. Mae Hill, the wife, has a dear friend, Irene Bryce, who is sick and confined to her bed. Through the instrumentality of the married couple, the two invalids, who have never met, are drawn into a correspondence with each other. Neither Bob nor Mae know of the other's interest in the correspondence.

When the young people recover their health, it is but natural that they should desire a better acquaintance and a time, place and manner of meeting is arranged. At the last moment, however, both Ned's and Irene's courage fail them and, in order to prevent the courtship from falling through, Bob and Mae take the places of the lovers and meet at the appointed spot. Then something happens. Each accuses the other of unfaithfulness, and both rush back and denounce their friends for their apparent duplicity. The four finally get together, explanations are forthcoming and all ends as it should.

THE PATH OF GENIUS (March 2).—The old composer vainly sought for public recognition for years, his sole inspiration being his daughter, who urged him ever onward. He finally composes what he considers his masterpiece, a symphony, and takes it from one music published to another, but not one of them will grant him an audience. As he leaves the last place, overcome by disappointment, his hopes blighted, he drops his manuscript on the floor. One of the partners of the concern observes the music and picking it up, glances over it and hums it. Becoming interested, he sits at the piano and plays it through and, realizing its remarkable merit, he seeks the old musician and expresses his admiration for the symphony. The daughter is delighted over the young man's complimentary criticism upon the work and learning that he is, also, the director of a noted orchestra, she urges her father to allow the director to announce the music as his own composition and have his orchestra play it at the next concert. The old composer has been cheated so often that he hesitates about accepting such a proposition, but his daughter and the young musician finally prevail upon him.

The eventful night arrives. The young director has the old composer lead the orchestra, the symphony is played and the audience is thrilled by the wonderful music. During the ovation which ensues, the young director is called before the audience as the author. He goes out, but he leads by the hand the old musician, whom he introduces as the man to whom all the honor is due. The old composer thus becomes famous overnight, while the young director receives as his reward the hand of the composer's daughter.

GREAT NORTHERN.

THOSE MARRIED MEN (Feb. 24).—Three married men make up their minds to enjoy themselves and with the connivance of a butler absent themselves from their respective wives on various causes. One has a business call, another a headache and the last goes to fetch the shrimps, leaving the women folk to be entertained by the local cleric, whose intellect evidently does not aspire higher than pinochle and "patience." The three hubbies meet at a pre-arranged place and then proceed to a neighboring fair. Here they enjoy themselves to the full with the various amusements, and with the liquor they consume, soon become quite jovial. Meanwhile their wives wonder at their prolonged absence, go in search of the one with the headache, discover where the others have gone. They ultimately run the men to earth, but instead of showing themselves, steal the basket of the one sent for the shrimps and then return home. Later the trio make their appearance and congratulate themselves on not having been found out until the shrimps are asked for. The one sent to buy them enters into a long harangue about all having been sold out, until his wife produces his basked. Their subterfuge is discovered, and they are last seen being led off to their own rooms by their ears.

IMP.

THE IMMIGRANT'S VIOLIN (Feb. 26).—Lora and her parents coming from Italy were met at the pier by a friend, but on their way to their new home she becomes separated from them and is lost. She attracts the attention of Mrs. Radley, a society woman, who takes the girl to her home.

Mrs. Radley has a son, Albert, whose heart goes out to the Italan violinist. Lora becomes a talented musician and she is invited to appear at an east side club entertainment and here she is recognized by her poor parents. For a moment she is indifferent to them and faints at the recognition. She is taken immediately to the home of her adopted mother. But filial duty asserts itself and the girl recovering decides to seek out her parents, and so exchanging her fine clothes for her old Italian garments, she visits them, is reconciled to them and they show their happiness at having found her.

Mrs. Radley in the meantime has discovered the absence of her protégé. Albert succeeds in finding her. He offers to marry her and proffers an engagement ring, which he returns to him. But he tells her that he truly loves her. The protestations of Albert overcome the girl's scruples and the story ends with the engagement of the poor Italian girl to the son of her benefactress.

THE ROSE OF CALIFORNIA (Feb. 29).—Don Enrique Carrillo, a Spanish ranchero, is living with his wife and daughter, Dona Rosa and Senora Rosa, in the stately style peculiar to that time. The Mission Church, presided over by Padre de La Pena, still exists, and the family is attended by Pedro, thé Mission Indian servant. Soon there comes a young U. S. government official from Washington, D. C. Rosa and the government official, George MacCurdy, fall in love. Despite the protests of her mother and father they hold clandestine meetings and, subsequently, are married by the good old Padre. No sooner is the marriage ceremony performed than the wrathful Don Enrique appears and attempts to stab the bridegroom. During the conflict, Rosa hastens off to the priest and persuades him to intervene between the combatants. His priestly authority is sufficient to deter Don Enrique from his murderous act. Meanwhile, George hurries away with his bride.

BEAT AT HIS OWN GAME (March 2).—Harry Spencer is jealous of his fiancee, Pearl Brown, and Pearl is jealous of Harry, and each resolve to cure the other. Harry persuades a friend to dress up as a woman and sent him (her) to commiserate with Pearl. He did it so thoroughly that Harry becomes alarmed at the display of affection on the part of the disguised man towards the unsuspicious girl. After a series of cross purposes, however, the disguise of the spurious woman is accidentally revealed and he is ejected from the house. Harry confesses his fault and then learns that the original suspicions were unfounded and that Pearl's alleged admirer was only her cousin.

THE RIGHT CLUE (March 2).—Mrs. Phillips sent her confidential business man a parcel of bonds to deposit in a place of safety. Mr. Forbes, the gentleman in question, was about to put them in a safe, when an interruption took him from the room, and the precious papers found their way into the waste-paper basket, and, subsequently, into the waste can out of doors. A detective being called in, discovered in the course of his investigations some cigar ash and comes to the conclusion that the man who smokes this kind of cigar must be the recipient or custodian of the lost bonds. The detective following up this clue examines the cigars smoked by a great many persons much to their discomfiture and his own inconvenience.

Finally, he comes across a policeman smoking the identical brand of cigar and, this fact leads to the discovery that the lost documents are concealed in the policeman's hat, the same being placed there by his sweetheart, the cook, who thinks the hat too large to be becoming and thus pads it out sufficiently for a good fit. And so the cigar ash proved the right clue which led to the recovery of the documents and their return to the proper owner.

CHAMPION.

THE ROBBERY AT THE RAILROAD STATION (Feb. 26).—Sherlocko and Watso, the world-famous detectives, are quietly ensconced in their office when suddenly there bursts in on their cogitations a railroad official. He is evidently in great distress, and we soon discover its cause. He has met with a loss—a daring robbery has occurred at his station. It is no less than the loss of his lantern. Giving every assurance to the agitated owner of the stolen lantern, the keen-minded sleuths set forth on the trail.

An investigation is made at the station with the aid of the magnifying glass in the minutest detail, when finally his most ingenious methods unfold the clue. Seated at a table, is a man quietly reading by the light of a lantern. This Pecko, and he it is who has caused this upset in the station agent's affair. B
His answer to Sherlocko is, he wanted to a borrowed light. The sleuths, however the "glim" from him, leaving him his bit with the fair warning to never again tam his neighbor's goods.

A HIGHER POWER (Feb. 26).—The st with the coming of Ruth Claire to the Quarryville. At the station she is met friended by the young foreman of the Six months later we find these two eng sister of the young quarryman calls on and near the office is insulted by a drun can. The brother interferes in manly fas an exciting scrap ensues. The young for umphs and the Mexican retires, vowing v

Later on the wretch attempts to gain an to the home of the foreman's fiancée.
battles bravely with him, and at one poi him with a kettle of boiling water. The sister dashes off to the quarry and inf brother and others of the impending dan Mexican has at last gained an entrance a his way to her room, with the scornf
"No power on earth can save you now."
a storm was raging. The lightning fla that flash struck death to the villain.
foreman arrived on the scene, it was t his sweet bride unharmed.

WRONGLY ACCUSED (Feb. 28).—Will son is a wealthy widower with an only Alice. He has also a housekeper in t of Mrs. Commons, a lady of former pos now in reduced circumstances. Mrs. Com a boy, Arthur, a splendid fellow, who with the daughter of his mother's emp party is given in honor of the eighteent of Miss Johnson, and Arthur attends t with his little sister. Many costly pre tendered Miss Johnson, among these is a pearl necklace.

When the party is over and the guests
it is discovered that the necklace has di
It is then distinctly remembered that Ar mons was the last to handle the neckl upshot of it is that Arthur is accused the thief. It is a terrible accusation, a witness it, we feel that it couldn't be
And yet we know that he is innocent he carried home his little sister. That li had placed the necklace around the ne doll, so you see he was innocent.

The clarifying of the situation con through the young girl, Alice, who ina discovers the missing necklace adorning of the little girl's doll. The humiliati old man over the discovery of the inju the younger one is well worth witnessin happiness that comes to all makes a wo and a splendid climax.

GAUMONT.

JIMMIE SAVES THE SITUATION (F
Poverty stricken Jimmie and his workwon live in a tenement house. One morning mie after washing his face and hands pours the water out of the window, on it land on a passing policeman. The offic indignant, hunts up the offender and will have him fined. He does so, and the it unbearable for the indignant mothe little son, who haven't the money to demand. Little Jimmie, however, gets He reads an ad in a daily paper placed widow of comfortable circumstances loo husband with a good sense of humor.
man dresses up and applies for the ri heart. She regrets that she must turn offer but gives him the necessary mone the fine, which he pays just as the im lector was in the act of seizing the niture.

THE TALE OF A DOG (March 2).—
his master—and he loves the dog equall
They are inseparable, so much so, in when Fido's master marries, his love for quite sends his pretty young wife i jealousy. This makes things so unbe she orders the cute little dog shot.
satisfied, until she notices that her hu steals away from her most suspiciously she resolves to follow him on his se
After a long journey, she sees him ente able building. She prepares to tear frenzy as she peeps through the window, in her madness as she sees her husband dog she thought she had killed. She re jealousy and promises to take the dog home and thereby all ends well.

LUX.

THE COOK'S REVENGE (Feb. 23).
jolly young bachelor, had occasion his cook. The lady departed in tea with indignation, and vowed an awful
Going to a printer, she got him to set up notice announcing that Mr. Jones wo many children as one cared to bring Jimmy Jones found himself the fathe large family in the course of a few ho cook went elsewhere with a contented s
"Vengeance is mine."

WURLITZER

rld's Largest Mfrs. Established 1856

Wurlitzer PianOrchestra in Oriental Theatre, San Francisco.

Write for 32-page booklet, showing

Wurlitzer Automatic Musical Instruments

in the leading picture theatres of the country.

The Wurlitzer Instruments furnish better music than musicians an reduce expenses. 50 different styles; time payments; big ca og free. If you can't call, write to our nearest branch.

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Company

INCINNATI 7-121 E. 4th	NEW YORK 25-27 W. 32d	CHICAGO 329-331 S. Wabash	PHILADELPHIA 1835 Chestnut
T LOUIS 109 Olive St.	CLEVELAND 800 Huron Road	BUFFALO 701 Main	LOUISVILLE 426 W. Green	COLUMBUS,O. 57 E. Main

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Bound Volume No. 10

October to December, 1911

(THREE MONTHS)

NOW READY

$1.50 EACH NET $1.50

Postage 60c. extra, or Express Charges collect

PUBLICATION OFFICE

Moving Picture World, 125 East 23d St., N.Y. City

GEORGE WASHINGTON

NEVER TOLD A LIE

THE EXCELSIOR SLIDE CO.

HAS BEEN BLOWING ITS OWN HORN—WHY?

BECAUSE WE MAKE MORE HITS IN

THE LATEST SONGS THAN ANY OTHER SLIDE MAKER—THIS WEEK'S RELEASES

"When The World Comes To An End"

"I'd Like You To Do Something For Me"

AND OUR WASHINGTON BIRTHDAY SPECIAL

"We Swear By Washington"

DEMAND THESE FROM YOUR EXCHANGE OR DIRECT FROM THE

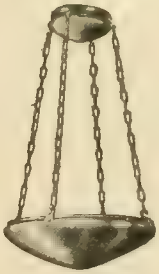
N. B. To keep in touch with all the hits, get on our mailing list.

Advertising Slides?? Certainly!!! We make the best.

EXCELSIOR SLIDE CO.

61 W. 14th St. Phone Chelsea 4351 New York, N. Y.

INDIRECT LIGHT



ENABLES you to have "Daylight Pictures" with any curtain or machine.

Thousands of houses have installed the "EYE COMFORT SYSTEM" of "INDIRECT ILLUMINATION" during the past year.

Not a light in range of vision.

No glaring light to detract from the picture—more perfect detail—saves expense of usher.

At small cost you can secure this equipment. Free Engineering Report. Send particulars to-day.

- - - - - - - - - - - - - - - -

National X-Ray Reflector Co.,
235 Jackson Blvd., Chicago.

Distance, screen to machine ....

Width of house ....Ceiling height ....

Name and Address ....

BILL'S MOTOR (Feb. 23).—This film is a most decidedly clever display of the versatile talents and unprecedented daring of Bill, the Lux comedian. It deals with his alarming adventurer as the owner of a motor car, and will produce a thrill unequaled in even the most exciting of dramas. After a very charming trip, in which Bill delights in many daring capers, the car comes to a dead stop. Discerning that something is wrong with the works, Bill searches for trouble with a match. Yes! He is feeling a little better now, thank you.

GREAT NORTHERN SPECIAL FEATURE FILM CO.

THE NIHILIST'S CONSPIRACY (Two reels).—Count Leo Zachokin, a Russian nobleman, is in love with Sonja Adamovitch. Unknown to him she is a member of a band of Nihilists. Sonja sends for Leo to come to see her, but is herself summoned to attend a meeting of the band on the same night and dares not refuse. Leo finds the secret message to Sonja and follows her to the meeting place. While groping about in the building he is startled by approaching steps and hides in a chest in the secret meeting room of the conspirators. They discover him and threaten him with death, but Sonja pleads for his life and saves him on condition that he secure in three days, a list of condemned persons, known to have been made by the secret police and bring it to the meeting place. Leo consents and is permitted to go in safety.

On the evening of the third day Count Leo has not yet secured the list. Sonja hits upon a plan to get the list. She goes into the chief's office and persuades him to show her the list and when the chief is called to the door, she tosses it out of the window to Leo, who quickly conceals it in his pocket. They go to the meeting place of the Nihilists and deliver the list. In the meantime the chief of police has discovered the loss of the list and sends two detectives to arrest Sonja and recover the list. They succeed in following them to the Nihilists' meeting place. Leo and Sonja get to their automobile, but they have been seen and the detectives are put on the trail. A most exciting chase follows for miles through the city and country at top speed. Curves in the road are taken without slackening the awful pace, fences and gates are smashed through without hesitation in the mad race for liberty. At last the fugitives come to a turn they cannot make. They cannot stop and in an instant they plunge over an embankment and the machine crashes in a complete wreck to the bottom with the occupants crushed amid the débris.

Among the Exhibitors.

Pierce, Neb.—F. L. Paterson has sold his interest in his motion picture theater to Miss Delia Colwell. It will be placed under the management of Dick Baker.

El Dorado, Ark.—The Bijou Moving Picture Theater has changed hands, W. R. Vance acquiring the half interest of A. S. Hadden.

Vicksburg, Miss.—Architect M. J. Donovan has completed plans for turning the Lyric Theater into a motion picture playhouse.

Atlantic City, N. J.—The new motion picture theater opposite the City Hall will be known as the Central.

Chester, Pa.—Ware & Wilson have opened their new motion picture theater in North Orange Street.

Oil City, Pa.—The management of the Princess Motion Picture Theater is making a feature of exhibiting local films, and the innovation appears to have made a hit.

Colorado Springs, Col.—A new $10,000 motion picture theater has been erected by the Stratton estate.

Quincy, Ill.—The Colonial Moving Picture Theater, 117 North Sixth Street, will be managed by Guy M. Sticale.

Biwabik, Minn.—J. E. Riley has purchased the Mrs. B. E. Lachner Moving Picture Theater, and will take charge at once.

Chippewa Falls, Wis.—F. E. Noyes will open a moving picture theater at Mondovi.

Dickinson, N. Dak.—J. J. McCarthy has opened a moving picture theater here.

Kanawha, Ia.—D. C. Petheram will engage in the moving picture theater business.

Chatfield, Minn.—George Harrington has rented a building in Chatfield, and will open a moving picture theater.

Chicago, Ill.—J. Kohlmann will erect a one-story $6,000 moving picture theater, at 5419 South Ashland Avenue.

Worcester, Mass.—The Worcester Auditorium Company has plans under way for turning the large Burnside Auditorium into a motion picture theater.

Elizabeth, N. J.—A. S. Flagg and associates will have plans prepared for erection of a $20,000 theater on Elm Street.

Sisseton, S. D.—Burt Strand has just opened the Star Moving Picture Theater.

Madison, Wis.—S. R. Hotle will close his moving picture theater here.

Fargo, N. Dak.—The Savoy Moving Picture Theater will be remodeled and new scenery purchased and installed.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—The Columbia Moving Picture Theater has opened.

Davenport, Ia.—James Michelstetter has sold his interests in the Elite Moving Picture Theater, 311 West 2d Street, to Hodgon & Earil.

Germantown, Pa.—The partially completed opera house at 42-48 West Chelten Avenue has been purchased by a syndicate headed by Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger.

New Albany, Ind.—The Star Picture Theater, on East Tenth Street, which has been conducted by Walter Klarer, has been sold to Simon Schafer.

Houston, Tex.—At a rental of close on to $10,000 per annum, Wm. Gerbig has secured a three-story building in the center of the business section of this city. Extensive alterations to the interior and exterior of the building are under way, and by the 20th inst., the Crystal, the latest improved motion picture house in the South, will be opened to the public. It will have a seating capacity of 250. Its equipment will include a concrete booth, first to be installed in the South.

Smithville, Tex.—Ruggles & Dashko are equipping a moving picture theater opposite the post-office. Its name is the Star Theater and will accommodate 200 persons.

Wilber, Neb.—A. Slepika will open a moving picture theater.

Bedford, Ia.—J. B. Ells has sold his moving picture theater to Miss Minnie Brown.

Abilene, Kan.—A. B. Sheelye will open a moving picture theater.

Roseville, Ill.—Byers & Nelson will establish a new moving picture theater here.

San Francisco, Cal.—A one-story nickelodeon will be erected here at a cost of $3,800.

Keokuk, Ia.—Messrs. F. L. Secoy and L. F. Chenoweth, of Muscatine, will conduct a five-cent moving picture theater in the building at 1101 Main Street.

Bedford, Ia.—Miss Nettie Brown bought the Fern Theater.

Milton, Ia.—Ralph Conner bought a half interest in the Dreamland Theater.

Moulton, Ia.—Joel Gregory bought the Crystal Theater here.

Sioux City, Ia.—Morris Fox will open a moving picture house here.

Ladysmith, Wis.—The new Gem Theater has opened its doors to the public of Ladysmith.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Saxe Bros. have leased the property at Grand Avenue, between 4th and 5th Streets, and will erect a new theater.

Port Richmond, Staten Island, N. Y.—Harry W. Pelcher, architect, is preparing plans for a new theater, to be erected here.

New York, N. Y.—Plans have been approved for the erection of a new theater at Monterey Avenue and 178th Street, to cost $40,000.

Roseville, Ill.—Edgar Byers is erecting a building here to be used as a moving picture theater.

Huntsville, Tex.—Sam Parish has succeeded R. Phillips as proprietor and manager of the Dixie Theater, located in the Henry Opera House.

New Orleans, La.—A new $100,000 picture theater will be opened here which will be under the management of Josiah Pearce & Sons. This new theater will be known as the Trianon.

Goshen, Ia.—Mr. Franklin Fox, who for two seasons managed the Irwin Opera House here, has returned to the musical comedy stage and is meeting with success.

Anita, Ia.—O. O. Conley bought a half interest in the Majestic.

Atlantic, Ia.—J. W. Joyce will open a moving picture theater here.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—A. F. Walker will open a moving picture theater here.

Clinton, Ia.—B. Sodini sold the Family Theater to James Galgano.

Eagle Grove, Ia.—C. T. Smith bought the Princess Theater here.

Nevada, Ia.—S. J. Bowers bought the Majestic Theater here.

Oakland, Neb.—James Williams has acquired a moving picture theater here.

Yonkers, N. Y.—Geo. H. Brennan is one of the promoters of a new theater, to be erected on Getty Square, at a cost of $200,000.

Warren, Ohio.—T. K. Albaugh and others will erect a new $85,000 theater on Federal Street.

Casper, Wyo.—Architect Rhodes has finished plans for a new opera house, to be erected by W. R. Sample.

Dayton, Ohio.—A new $250,000 theater and office building, to be ten stories, is to be erected here, at 5th and Jefferson Streets.

Dallas, Tex.—The Interstate Amusement Co. has completed final arrangements for the erection of a new $30,000 theater, to be called the Majestic.

Sedalia, Mo.—M. D. Moore has purchased the opera house from Mrs. Wood.

Douglas, Wyo.—Mr. Sheehan has leased the opera house and will conduct a new moving picture show.

Valley City, N. D.—Valley City is to have a new vaudeville and motion picture house. W. J. Curran has the contract for remodeling the Bank-Mudgett block and a new showhouse will be opened February 10, under the management of F. E. Nemec.

Cleveland, Ohio.—Architects Steffens & Steffens will erect a new theater building at Superior Avenue and E. 105th Street.

Indianapolis, Ind.—A new theater is to be erected at Massachusetts and College Avenues, at a cost of $15,000.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—A new theater is to be erected at 2114-16 Main Street by the Marks Amusement Co.

Negaunee, Mich.—Wonderland, the new ving picture theater in McDonald's Opera Hous has opened. Such alterations as were necess to adapt it to present purposes, together wi re-decoration, have made it very attractive, an with its seating capacity of nearly 700, it is of the largest moving picture theaters in ern Michigan. In addition to four reels of inte ting pictures, Messrs. Genette & McDonald, th proprietors, give an attractive vaudeville bill.

Chicago, Ill.—John A. Sand will erect new one-story theater, at 2410 W. Chicago Aven a cost of $7,000.

Colorado Springs, Col.—A new moving theater will be erected here at a cost of $15, 105 N. Trejon Street, by H. C. Goldstein.

Omaha, Neb.—F. L. Kerns has sold the M Theater to Messrs. A. R. Moss & Evans. T consideration was $5,000. For the past few Mr. Kerns has been conducting a picture sh Fairbury. He will run a picture show in L

St. Louis, Mo.—The new King's Theater, on Highway, between Delmar and Fountain A has been transferred to the Kings Theater Co which will operate it. The Vaudeville Construction Co. erected the building, and transferred it to O. T. Crawford and associate organized the King's Co.

Hickman, Ky.—J. T. Dillon, manager Lyric Theater, of this city, has leased the ing lately occupied by Fuqua, Helm & C will use it for a moving picture show.

Fond du Lac, Wis.—Weary, Russell & Gre operate a moving picture show, at Hus while the Donovan Building is being prepar them.

Des Moines, Ia.—The new Pastime Theater, and operated by Fred Devers, formally ha opened here. The new theater is located corner of South Dubuque and College Stree

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Charles Osborns ha purchased the Clare Theater here.

Houston, Tex.—Messrs. Ruggles & Dosn Houston, have leased a building on Main for a moving picture and vaudeville show.

Camden, N. J.—The Harris Theater Co Capital, $20,000. Object, to establish nickel V. A. Murray, M. L. Brennen and L. A. Mye

Colorado City, Col.—G. W. McClelland h the Photoplay Theater to John E. Carpent

Carlinsville, Ill.—The Messrs. Daley wil a new hippodrome theater here, to have a ting capacity of 1,800.

Rutherford, N. J.—A new photoplay theat has opened to the public here. This new const tion will be under the ownership of Messrs. Mc Collins & Laurence, who have had consider experience as picture house promoters. The lt of motion pictures are to be utilized. The loca n of this place is in Ames Avenue, near Park.

Atlantic City, N. J.—John Childs has clos the Criterion Theater after several years of phomenal success and has filed negotiations for the ing of a new photoplay house here.

Portland, Me.—Prof. Earl F. Bishop and J. Perevada have taken a long lease on the C Theater and will convert it into a motion theater.

Chicago, Ill.—Gottschalk & Co. will erect new moving picture theater, at 4045-47 W. Nort Avenue, at a cost of $8,000.

Crawfordsville, Ind.—Jesse Stevens, Ralp and Sherman Grimes will establish a new pictur show in this city.

Bedford, Ia.—John J. Clark has purchas the Vogue Moving Picture Theater from A. K.

Galva, Ill.—Wallace Emery has leased the Theater and will take charge of same.

Hedrick, Ia.—W. H. Jennings and J. E. of Columbus Junction, have made arrangeme to open a moving picture theater in the audi ium.

Gary, Ind.—An $80,000 five-story theater, a seating capacity of 1,000, will be erected this city. Architect J. J. Verplank has prepare plans for a new theater.

Pomona, Cal.—Architect Robert H. Orr w prepare plans for a new opera house, to cost Valley City, N. Dak.—A new moving pict and vaudeville theater is to be erected here.

Spokane, Wash.—The Gem Amusement C will erect a new moving picture theater fo East Sprague Avenue and Napa Street, to cost Zanesville, Ohio.—It has been announced t the new building to be erected on S. Fifth St by S. A. Weller will be used as a moving house by C. W. Quimby.

Chicago, Ill.—A. Pink will erect a o theater at 2006-08 Montrose Avenue, to cost Medford, Ore.—A new opera house is to be here at a cost of $75,000.

Youngstown, Ohio.—Ground will be brok for the erection of a new theater for a company by T. K. Albaugh and others.

Lynbrook, L. I.—Thomas F. O'Connor is ing to erect a new moving picture theate which will cost $125,000, and will accom 1,000 people.

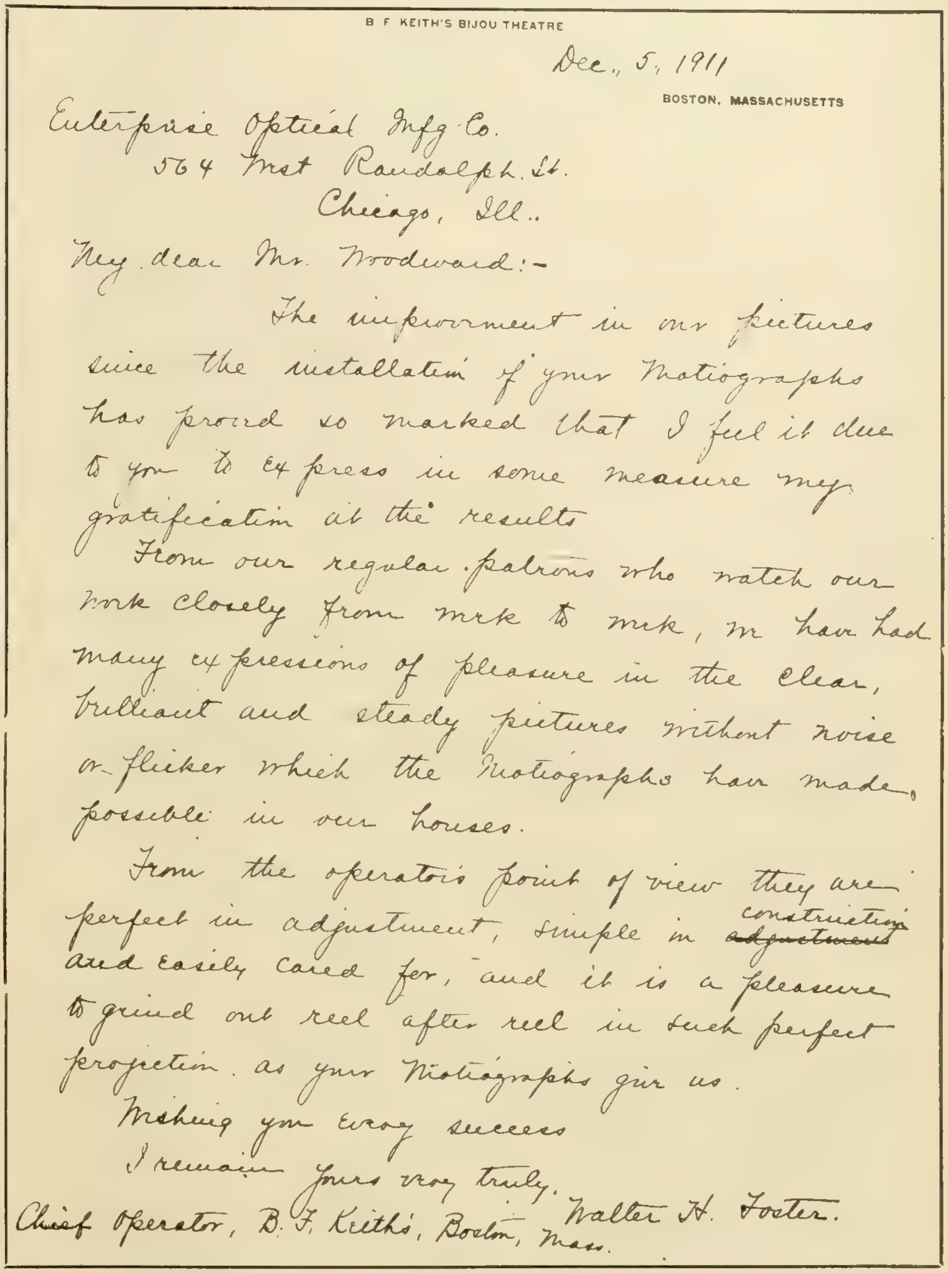
Greenville, Mich.—Bert Silver will erect new theater at Crystal.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—R. Thomas Short is pr plans for a new showhouse, to be erected Clarke Co., at Saratoga Avenue, Halsey and Streets.

Peoria, Ill.—The control of the Orpheu ater has passed into the hands of Messrs Greenberg and Charles Nathan, of the Theater.

The LEADING Picture Theatre in Boston. A Good Operator And a MOTIOGRAPH—Booth Result?—Perfect Pictures

Mr. W. H. FOSTER
Chief Operator



B F KEITH'S BIJOU THEATRE

Dec., 5, 1911

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co.
564 West Randolph St.
Chicago, Ill.

My dear Mr. Woodward:-

The improvement in our pictures since the installation of your Motiographs has proved so marked that I feel it due to you to express in some measure my gratification at the results

From our regular patrons who watch our work closely from week to week, we have had many expressions of pleasure in the clear, brilliant and steady pictures without noise or flicker which the Motiographs have made possible in our houses.

From the operator's point of view they are perfect in adjustment, simple in ~~adjustment~~ construction and easily cared for, and it is a pleasure to grind out reel after reel in such perfect projection as your Motiographs give us.

Wishing you every success

I remain Yours very truly,

Walter H. Foster.

Chief Operator, B. F. Keith's, Boston, Mass.

AN INVITATION TO EXHIBITORS—

When in Boston visit Keith's Bijou Theatre and view the famous—"Painted on the Wall" Motiograph Pictures. Something distinctive.

FOR SALE BY GENERAL FILM CO., BOSTON
And by Live Dealers Everywhere

The Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company
564-572 West Randolph St., Chicago

THE ENTERPRISE (Portable) CALCIUM GAS OUTFIT

Price with carrying case, $35.00

Is the only Substitute for Electricity for projecting Motion Picture or Stereopticon Views and is the

ONLY SATISFACTORY PORTABLE OUTFIT

because it operates by WATER PRESSURE, IS CONSTANT, REGULAR AND RELIABLE and has no complicated spring valves to corrode, choke up and otherwise get out of order. Is patented.

"OXONE" in SQUARE CAKES is most satisfactory for the production of oxygen gas.

For Sale by Dealers Everywhere.

nterprise Optical Mfg. Co. MANUFACTURERS 564-572 W. Randolph Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

HERE AT LAST

A place to buy parts for M. P. machines for less

One of our SPECIALS

Intermittent SPROCKETS $1.50 FOR POWERS EDISON Machines

Write for Price List

PITTSBURG M.P. SUPPLY CO., Pittsburg, Pa.

Films For Rent

Reliable Service. Independent Films. Banners and Posters supplied. 12-Reel Shipment $12.00

THE FILM EXCHANGE
61 West 14th Street, New York City

INDEPENDENT Release Dates

AMERICAN.

Feb. 1—The Best Policy (Com.)..............1000
Feb. 5—The Real Estate Fraud (W. Dr.)......1000
Feb. 8—The Grub-Stake Mortgage (West. Dr.).1000
Feb. 12—Where Broadway Meets the Mountains (West. Dr.) 1000
Feb. 15—The Innocent Grafter (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 19—Society and Chaps (W. Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 22—A Leap Year Comedy (W. Com.).....1000
Feb. 26—The Land Baron of San Tee (Dr.)....1000
Feb. 29—An Assisted Elopement (Com.).......1000
Mar. 4—From the Four Hundred to the Herd (W. Dr.)..........1000
Mar. 7—The Broken Ties (W. Dr.)...........1000

CHAMPION.

Feb. 5—Aviator and Autoist's Race for a Bride (Dr.) 950
Feb. 7—A Divided Family (Dr.).............. 950
Feb. 12—Robert G. Fowler, Trans-Continental Aviator (Topical) 500
Feb. 12—Mr. Piddle Rebels (Com.)............ 500
Feb. 14—For Her Father's Sake (Dr.).......... 950
Feb. 19—The Merchant Mayor of Indianapolis (Dr.) 950
Feb. 21—A Wife's Discovery (Com.)........... 950
Feb. 26—The Robbery at the Railroad Station (Com.-Dr.) ....
Feb. 26—A Higher Power (Dr.)..............
Feb. 28—Wrongly Accused (Dr.)..............

COMET.

Jan. 8—Mr. Whoops, the Detective (Com.)....
Jan. 12—The Widow (Com.-Dr.)..............
Jan. 15—The Braid (Dr.)...................
Jan. 19—Thirty Days (Com.)................

ECLAIR.

Jan. 30—Man's Best Friend (Am.-Dr.)........
Feb. 1—Willy Plays Truant (Com.)..........
Feb. 1—Education of the Blind (Educational)
Feb. 6—The Awakening (Am. Dr.)............
Feb. 8—The Hands (Dr.)....................
Feb. 8—Arabian Pottery (Educational)........
Feb. 13—The Patriotic Sons (Am. Dr.).......
Feb. 15—Keeping an Eye on Father (Am. Com.)
Feb. 18—Gontran is Fond of Animals (Com.)..
Feb. 18—A Congenial Son-in-law (Com.)......
Feb. 20—The Fateful Diamond (Dr.)..........
Feb. 22—Jealous Julia (Com.)...............
Feb. 25—A Terrible Night (Com.)............
Feb. 25—The City of Mosques (Scenic)........
Feb. 27—The Guardian Angel (Am. Dr.)......
Feb. 29—Getting Dad Married (Am. Com.).....
Mar. 3—The Interrupted Telegram (Dr.)......
Mar. 3—Prague, the Beautiful (Scenic.)......

GAUMONT.

Feb. 10—The Waterman's Bride (Dr.)......... 686
Feb. 10—The Red Mountains of the Esterel (Scenic) 282
Feb. 13—Calino and His Boarder (Com.)...... 433
Feb. 13—Zigoto, King of Detectives (Com.).... 535
Feb. 17—Fire At the Mines (Edu. & Dr.)...... 817
Feb. 20—Mr. Le Black Learns to Fly (Com.)..
Feb. 20—He Insisted on Being a Cashier (Com.)
Feb. 24—The Smuggler (Dr.).................
Feb. 27—Jimmie's Artful Dodge (Com.)......
Feb. 27—Panorama of Bruges (Scenic)........
Mar. 2—The Tale of a Dog (Dr.).............

GREAT NORTHERN.

Dec. 30—Sea and Landscapes, Denmark (Sc.).
Jan. 6—The Temptress (Dr.).................
Jan. 13—The Inevitable Johnson (Com.).......
Jan. 13—Waterfalls in Sweden (Sc.)...........
Jan. 20—A Summer Flirtation (Com.)........
Jan. 27—A Friend to Children (Com.)..........
Jan. 27—The Man With the Puppets (Com.)....
Feb. 3—Vengeance vs. Love (Dr.).............
Feb. 10—A Burglar's Love (Dr.)..............
Feb. 17—Unexpected Duty (Com.)..............
Feb. 17—Along the Italian Riviera (Scenic)....
Feb. 24—Those Married Men (Com.)..........

IMP.

Feb. 5—The Helping Hand (Dr.)............1000
Feb. 8—Mrs. Matthews, Dressmaker (Dr.)....1000
Feb. 10—The Tea Industry in the United States (Ind.) 400
Feb. 10—Who Wears Them? (Com.).......... 600
Feb. 12—Reflections from the Firelight (Dr.)..1000
Feb. 15—Through the Flames (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 17—Pushmobile Race in Savannah (Top.). 200
Feb. 17—The Tables Turned (Com.-Dr.)........ 800
Feb. 19—A Modern Highwayman (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 22—The Lie (Dr.).......................1000
Feb. 24—Ice Boating on the Shrewsbury River, N. J. (Sporting).......... 400
Feb. 24—The Broken Lease (Com.-Dr.)....... 600
Feb. 26—The Immigrant's Violin (Dr.).......1000
Feb. 29—The Rose of California (Dr.)........1000
Mar. 2—Beat at His Own Game (Com.)....... 400
Mar. 2—The Right Clue (Com.)............... 600

LUX.

Jan. 19—A Mad Dog (Com.).................. 219
Jan. 19—The Harm That Gossips Do (Dr.).... 747
Jan. 26—Oh! You Kid (Com.)................ 511
Jan. 26—Making Paper From Wood (Ind.)..... 416
Feb. 2—Fickle Woman (Com.-Dr.).......... 550
Feb. 2—The Skivvy and the Mat (Com.).... 873
Feb. 9—The Tramp's Dog (Dr.).............. 744
Feb. 9—Weaving Carpet (Ind.) 239
Feb. 16—Bill Tunes the Piano (Com.)......... 541
Feb. 16—Baby's Ghost (Com.)................ 400
Feb. 23—The Cook's Revenge (Com.)......... 459
Feb. 23—Bill's Motor (Com.)................. 414

BISON.

(N. Y. M. P. CO.)

Jan. 5—An Indian Maid's Elopement (Dr.)...
Jan. 9—The Gambler's Heart (Dr.)...........
Jan. 12—The Laugh on Dad (Com.)...........
Jan. 16—The Honor of the Tribe (Dr.)........
Jan. 19—The Run on the Bank (Dr.)..........
Jan. 23—War on the Plains (2 reels—W. Dr.)
Jan. 26—The Ranch Girl's Love (W. Dr.)......
Jan. 30—Love and Jealousy (Dr.).............
Feb. 2—The Empty Water Keg (Dr.)........
Feb. 6—The Protection of the Cross (Dr.)......
Feb. 9—A Tenderfoot's Revenge (Dr.).........
Feb! 13—"Broncho" Bill's Love Affair........
Feb. 16—Wild West Circus....................
Feb. 20—The Deputy's Sweetheart (Dr.).......
Feb. 23—War On the Plains (W. Dr.)........

AMBROSIO.

Jan. 10—An Autumn Sunset Dream............
Jan. 17—The Burden of Shame (Dr.)..........
Jan. 17—Tweedledum's Financial Distress (Com.)
Jan. 24—The Supreme Meeting................
Jan. 31—Sammy, the Little Bootblack (Dr.)...
Jan. 31—Tweedledum's Father and his Worthy Son (Com.) ....
Feb. 7—Tweedledum a Riding Schoolmaster..
Feb. 7—Called Back on the Right Path........
Feb. 14—Father's Fault ....
Feb. 21—Accursed Rock ....

ITALA.

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

Jan. 13—A Mania for Caricature (Com.).......
Jan. 13—An Abundant Candle ....
Jan. 20—No Release On This Date............
Jan. 27—Toto Enamorato (Com.)..............
Feb. 3—The Ascent of the Matterhorn........
Feb. 3—Anarchical Attempt (Com.)............
Feb. 10—Toto, Door-Keeper (Com.) ....
Feb. 10—Hunting Ducks (Sporting)............
Feb. 17—The Italian Army in Tripoli..........
Feb. 17—Making a Cinematograph Scene.......

MAJESTIC.

Jan. 19—Next (Com.).........................
Jan. 21—Spare the Rod (Com.)...............
Jan. 26—That Expensive Ride (Dr.)...........
Jan. 28—A Mother's Sacrifice (Com.-Dr.)......
Feb. 2—An Old Lady of Twenty (Com.)......
Feb. 2—Lucky Man (Com.)...................
Feb. 4—A Game for Two (Com.)..............
Feb. 9—Honor Thy Father (Dr.)..............
Feb. 11—Arresting Father (Dr.) ....
Feb. 16—His Step-Mother (Com.).............
Feb. 18—Petticoat Perfidy (Com.)............
Feb. 25—Bought (Dr.) ....
Feb. 27—Strip Poker (Com.)..................

NESTOR.

Feb. 7—White Cloud's Secret (Dr.).........
Feb. 10—I Never Said a Word (Com.).........
Feb. 10—Tightwad Pays for a Dog (Com.)....
Feb. 12—Inbad, the Count (Com.)............
Feb. 14—His Side Pard (W. Dr.)..............
Feb. 17—Brannigan's Promotion (Com.) ....
Feb. 17—Tightwad Gets a Bargain (Com.).....
Feb. 19—Blind Man's Buff (Com.).............
Feb. 21—Rollicking Red's Big Lark (W. Com.)
Feb. 24—Settled Out of Court (Com.).........
Feb. 24—Tightwad Almost Saves a Dollar (Com.)
Feb. 24—Grand Canyon, Arizona (Scenic)......
Feb. 26—The Smugglers (Dr.)................
Feb. 26—At Rolling Forks (W. Dr.)...........
Mar. 2—His Good Intentions (Com.).........
Mar. 2—The Battle of Roses (Topical)........

FEATURE AND EDUCATIONAL FILM CO.

Nov. 20—Love and Aviation (Dr.).............
Nov. 20—Zigomar (Dr.).......................
Dec. 18—The Love Chase (Com.)..............

GREAT NORTHERN SPECIAL FEATURE FILM CO.

Feb. 5—A Victim of the Mormons (3 reels—Dr.) ....

POWERS.

Jan. 20—Beautiful Christiania (Scenic) ....
Jan. 23—Four Yale Men (Dr.).................
Jan. 27—Cardinal Farley (Topical)...........
Jan. 30—Billy's Surrender (Dr.)..............
Feb. 3—The Explorer (Dr.)..................
Feb. 6—The Nurse (Dr.)....................
Feb. 10—A Waiter of Weight (Com.-Dr.).....
Feb. 13—The Turning Point (Dr.)............
Feb. 17—A Woman of No Importance (Dr.)....
Feb. 20—His Brother Willie (Com.)...........
Feb. 24—As Fate Would Have It (Dr.)........
Feb. 27—A Tangled Courtship (Dr.)..........
Mar. 2—The Path of Genius (Dr.)............

RELIANCE.

Jan. 20—A Mountain Tragedy (Dr.)...........
Jan. 20—Hubby Minds the Baby (Com.)........
Jan. 24—The Deception (Dr.).................
Jan. 27—The Little Darkies (Com.).........
Jan. 27—Rosanna's Dream — Natural History Series No. 2 (Educational).......
Jan. 31—Solomon's Son (Dr.)...............
Feb. 3—The Man Under the Bed (Dr.).......
Feb. 7—The Stolen Letter (Dr.)..............
Feb. 10—Bedelia's Busy Morning (Com.).....
Feb. 10—Natural History Series, No. 3 (Edu.).
Feb. 14—Wanted a Wife (Dr.)................
Feb. 17—The Gambler's Daughter (Dr.).......
Feb. 21—Key West Celebration (Topical.)....
Feb. 21—Bedelia and Mrs. Busybody (Com.)..
Feb. 24—A Child's First Love (Dr.)........

REPUBLIC.

Jan. 20—Retribution (Dr.) ....
Jan. 21—Marital Mirage (Com.)..............
Jan. 27—A Blue Ridge Romance (Dr.).......
Jan. 28—The Power of Innocence (Dr.).....
Feb. 3—When Men Love (Dr.)...............
Feb. 4—Northern Hearts (Dr.)...............
Feb. 10—Mother's Old Armchair (Dr.).......
Feb. 11—The Reckoning (Dr.)...............
Feb. 17—Human Nature (Com.-Dr.)..........
Feb. 18—The Girl Who Waited (Dr.).........
Feb. 24—A Tangled Skein (Dr.)..............
Feb. 27—In the Government Service (Dr.).....
Mar. 2—His Partner's Wife (Dr.)...........

REX.

Dec. 21—The Martyr (Dr.)....................
Dec. 28—An Unwelcome Santa Claus (Com.).
Jan. 4—The Parting of the Ways (Dr.).....
Jan. 11—A Boarding House Mystery (Com.).
Jan. 18—Angels Unawares (Dr.) ....
Jan. 25—A Sane Asylum (Com.)..............
Jan. 28—The Defendar of the Name (Dr.).....
Feb. 1—Fine Feathers (Dr.)................
Feb. 4—Readin', Ritin' an' Rithmetic (Com. Dr.) ....
Feb. 8—The Bargain (Dr.)..................
Feb. 11—Through Twisting Lanes (Dr.)......
Feb. 15—Taming Mrs. Shrew (Com.-Dr.).....
Feb. 18—So Speaks the Heart (Dr.).........
Feb. 22—Under Her Wing (Dr.)..............
Feb. 25—The End of the Circle (Dr.).........

SOLAX.

Jan. 26—Memories of '49 (Dr.)..............
Jan. 28—Frozen on Love's Trail (Dr.).........
Jan. 31—The Fixer Fixed (Com.)..............
Feb. 2—Mignon (Dr.) ....
Feb. 4—The Snowman (Com.).................
Feb. 7—Guilty Conscience (Com.).............
Feb. 9—Mrs. Cranston's Jewels (Dr.).......
Feb. 11—Lend Me Your Wife (Com.).........
Feb. 14—Bessie's Suitors (Com.).............
Feb. 16—A Terrible Lesson (Dr.)............
Feb. 18—The Wise Witch of Fairyland (Dr.).
Feb. 21—Hubby Does the Washing (Com.)...
Feb. 23—God Disposes (Dr.).................
Feb. 25—His Lordship's White Feather (Dr.).
Feb. 28—Algie, the Miner (Com.)...........
Mar. 1—Blighted Lives (Dr.)................

THANHOUSER.

Jan. 12—The Twelfth Juror (Dr.)............
Jan. 16—Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde (Dr.).......
Jan. 19—A Niagara Honeymoon (Com.).......
Jan. 23—Her Ladyship's Page (Dr.)........
Jan. 26—East Lynne (Parts 1 and 2—Dr.)..
Jan. 30—As It Was in the Beginning (Dr.)..
Feb 2—On Probation (Dr.)...................
Feb. 6—The Trouble Maker (Dr.).............
Feb. 9—The Signal Code (Dr.)..............
Feb. 13—The Silent Witness (Dr.)...........
Feb. 16—Surelock Jones, Detective (Com.)..
Feb. 20—Washington In Danger (Hist.-Dr.)..
Feb. 23—A Message from Niagara (Dr.).....
Feb. 27—The Guilty Baby (Dr.)..............
Mar. 1—The Arab's Bride (Dr.)..............

SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS The Big Ticket. Any Printin
Any Colors
5,000 - - $1.25 20,000 - - $4.60 50,000 - - $7.50
10,000 - $2.50 25,000 - - $5.50 100,000 - - $10.00
Get the Samples Stock Tickets, 6 Cents
NATIONAL TICKET COMPANY - - - Shamokin, Pa

COYLE'S
Fire Proof
SILVER SCREENS

Patented Oct. 31, 1911.

MR. EXHIBITOR, you will find it to your interest to get in communication with us at once.

We have the only patented fire proof Silver Picture Curtain in the World for producing

DAY LIGHT PICTURES.

DO NOT BE MISLED BY INSTALLING INFERIOR SILVER CURTAINS.

Write for our BOOKLET This will explain all

Coyle Silver Curtain Co.
MARKET AND EIGHTH STS., CANTON, O.

COMPENSARC

That's the device that saves Moving Picture men two-thirds on their electric light bills, and yet gives better light. Did you see our ad. last week? Well, don't look it up. Just write for our

Booklet 15018

Fort Wayne Electric Works
1402 Broadway
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA 733

MAKE YOUR OWN LOCAL MOVING PICTURES!
Get the "Junior Professional Outfit"

The only way to make your little theater prominent. Become acquainted with the simple art of making films. Help uplifting the business in general—do something for your town and for yourself—complete darkroom equipment with full information as to taking, developing, printing, chemicals, etc., furnished with the outfit. Get this outfit now. You need it at once. Original headquarters for film making machinery. My own patents. Everything in the Moving Picture line. Special films to order. Special lenses, slides and machinery. All "Imp Films" are made with my machines and you know Imp Films are good. Single arc dissolvers and M. P. combined. Perforating, printing and developing done. Best jobbing laboratory in N. Y. Negatives entrusted in my hands will not be "duped." Write me at once!

EBERHARD SCHNEIDER
219 2d Ave., near 14th St., New York

Ornamental Theatres

PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
2549 Archer Avenue, :: CHICAGO, ILL.

World's Greatest Moving Picture
ZIGOMAR

"Through Flaming Gates!"
REX Marion Leonard Sunday Release, March 3d
Will Make You as Rich as He Is!

When Your Picture Machine Needs Repairing

Why don't you send it to us?

We have the best equipped machine shop in the country and can repair any make of machine. Write us and get acquainted.

We buy second hand machines.

GEO. M. HOKE SUPPLY CO., 176 N. State St., Bet. Lake & Randolph Chicago, Ill.

DIRECT Jobber for Powers, Edison and Motiograph Machine

WHOLESALE

EVERYTHING IN MOTION PICTURE EQUIPMENT EXCEPT THE FILM

MACKIE HAS IT

RETAIL

H. A. MACKIE, Inc. 21 East 14th St. New York City

PEARL WHITE CONDENSERS 85c. EACH. SOLD ELSEWHERE FOR $1.

LICENSED Release Dates

BIOGRAPH.

Feb. 1—The Transformation of Mike (Dr.)...
Feb. 5—A Near Tragedy (Com.)..............
Feb. 5—Lily's Lovers (Com.)...............
Feb. 8—A Sister's Love (Dr.)..............
Feb. 12—Billy's Stratagem (Dr.)............
Feb. 15—The Mender of Nets (Dr.)...........
Feb. 19—The Fatal Chocolate (Com.).........
Feb. 19—Got a Match (Com.).................
Feb. 22—Under Burning Skies (Dr.)..........
Feb. 26—The Sunbeam (Dr.)..................
Feb. 29—A Message from the Moon (Com.)....
Feb. 29—Priscilla's Capture (Com.)............

CINES.

(G. Kleine.)

Feb. 3—Jenkins at the Circus (Com.).......... 280
Feb. 6—Besieged (Dr.)........................ 500
Feb. 6—Jenkins, a Conquering Hero (Com.).... 500
Feb. 10—Out of Tune (Com.)................... 500
Feb. 10—Zoological Gardens in Rome (Edu).... 500
Feb. 13—The Puppet Show (Dr.).............. 634
Feb. 13—Jenkins and the Donkey (Com.)...... 362
Feb. 17—Darling (Com.) ....
Feb. 17—Kerka Falls (Scenic).................
Feb. 20—Leah's Trick (Com.)..................
Feb. 20—The Valley of the Umbria (Scenic)...
Feb. 24—Daughter of the Regiment (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 27—Happy in Spite of Herself (Com.-Dr.).
Feb. 27—Jenkins, A Perfect Steward (Com.)...
Mar. 2—A Sister's Stratagem (Com.)..........

EDISON.

Jan. 19—The Little Organist (Dr.)...........1000
Jan. 20—To Save Her Brother (Dr.)...........1000
Jan. 23—The Stolen Nickel (Com.-Dr.)........1000
Jan. 24—Father's Bluff (Com.)...............1000
Jan. 26—For the Cause of the South (Dr.)....1000
Jan. 27—The New Editor (Com.).............. 570
Jan. 27—U. S. Volunteer Life Saving Corps, New York City (Vocational)........ 430
Jan. 30—The Jewels (Dr.)....................1000
Jan. 31—Mother and Daughters (Com.-Dr.).....1000
Feb. 2—His Secretary (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 3—Niagara Falls (Scenic)...............
Feb. 3—Lucky Dog (Com.).....................
Feb. 6—The Passing of J. B. Randall & Co. (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 7—The Commuter's Wife (Com.)........1000
Feb. 9—The Corsican Brothers (Dr.).........1000
Feb. 10—The City of Denver, "The Queen of the Plains" (Scenic)................ 575
Feb. 10—Von Weber's Last Waltz (Dr.)...... 425
Feb. 13—His Daughter (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 14—Hogan's Alley (Com.)................1000
Feb. 16—At the Point of the Sword (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 17—Curing the Office Boy (Com.)........1000
Feb. 17—The Little Delicatessen Store (Com.)..1000
Feb. 20—The Muse (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 21—One Thousand Miles Through the Rockies (Sc.) 350
Feb. 21—Everything Comes to Him Who "Waits" (Com.) 650
Feb. 23—Children Who Labor (Edu. & Dr.)...1000
Feb. 24—New York City Street Cleaning (Vocational) 425
Feb. 24—The Lost Kitten (Com.)............. 575
Feb. 27—How Motion Pictures Are Made and Shown (Vocational) 1000
Feb. 28—My Double and How He Undid Me (Com.) 1000
Mar. 1—Tony's Oath of Vengeance (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 2—A Cowboy's Stratagem (Com.)....... 620
Mar. 2—The Jam Closet (Com.).............. 380

ESSANAY.

Jan. 20—The Loafer (W. Dr.)................1000
Jan. 23—Widow Jenkins' Admirers (Com.)....1000
Jan. 25—Alias, Billy Sargent (Dr.)...........1000
Jan. 26—Economy (Com.).......................
Jan. 26—Dooley's Reward (Com.)...............
Jan. 27—The Oath of His Office (Dr.)........1000
Jan. 30—A Brother's Error (Dr.)..............1000
Feb. 1—The Grip Snatcher (Com.)............1000
Feb. 2—The Hospital Baby (Dr.).............1000
Feb. 3—Broncho Billy and the Schoolmistress (Com.) 1000
Feb. 6—Alkali Ike's Love Affair (Com.)......1000
Feb. 8—The Melody of Love (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 9—Her Boys (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 10—The Deputy and the Girl (West. Dr.).1000
Feb. 13—Tracked Down (Dr.).................1000
Feb. 15—There's Many a Slip (Com.).........1000
Feb. 16—The Wife of a Genius (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 17—The Prospector's Legacy (W. Dr.)...1000
Feb. 20—The Biter Bitten (Com.)............
Feb. 20—Curiosity (Com.) ....
Feb. 22—The "Lemon" (Com.) 1000
Feb. 23—The Little Black Box (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 24—A Western Kimono (Com.) 1000
Feb. 27—Positive Proof (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 29—Her Masterful Man (Com.)..........1000
Mar. 1—Do Dreams Come True? (Com.)..... 1000
Mar. 2—The Ranch Girl's Mistake (Dr.) ... 1000

KALEM.

Jan. 17—The Russian Peasant (Dr.)...........1000
Jan. 19—The Two Spies (War Dr.)...........1000
Jan. 22—Things Are Seldom What They Seem (Com.) 1000
Jan. 24—Accidents Will Happen (Com.)......
Jan. 24—How Jim Proposed (Com.)............
Jan. 26—His Mother (Dr.)......................1000
Jan. 29—An Interrupted Wedding (Dr.).......1000
Jan. 31—Walk, —— You, Walk! (Com.).......1000
Feb. 2—A Princess of the Hills (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 5—Battle of Pottsburg Bridge (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 7—The Swimming Party (Com.)..........
Feb. 7—Floral Parade at San Diego, Cal. (Topical) ....
Feb. 9—The Vagabonds (Dr.).................1000
Feb. 12—An American Invasion (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 14—Far From Erin's Isle (Com.).........1000
Feb. 16—Caught in the Toils (Dr.).............1000
Feb. 19—The Alcalde's Conspiracy (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 21—The Girl Deputy (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 23—Back to the Kitchen (Com.).........1000
Feb. 26—The Bell of Pennance (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 28—A Tenderfoot's Troubles (Com.)......
Feb. 28—A Visit to Madeira (Scenic)..........
Mar. 1—Trapped by Wireless (Dr.)...........1000

LUBIN.

Jan. 17—The Peanut Industry (Ind.)..........
Jan. 17—A Dark Deception (Com.)............
Jan. 18—A Just Verdict (Dr.).................1000
Jan. 20—A Boarding House Romance (Com.).. 433
Jan. 20—Making Hay (Ind.).................... 175
Jan. 20—A Compromise (Com.)............... 427
Jan. 22—The Lady Police (Com.).............1000
Jan. 24—The Heart of a "Boss" (Dr.).........1000
Jan. 25—The Office Favorite (Com.-Dr.).......1000
Jan. 27—Through the Drifts (Dr.).............1000
Jan. 29—The Poor Relation (Dr.)..............1000
Jan. 31—Love vs. Strategy (Dr.)..............1000
Feb. 1—The Physician's Honor (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 3—The Impostor (Dr.)....................1000
Feb. 5—A Cure for Jealousy (Com.)...........1000
Feb. 7—Tricked Into Happiness (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 8—What Fate Ordained (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 10—An Antique Ring (Dr.)...............1000
Feb. 12—'Tis an Ill Wind that Blows No Good (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 14—His Mistake (Dr.).....................1000
Feb. 15—A Note in the Orange (Com.).......... 680
Feb. 15—Oversea Celebration (Educational) 350
Feb. 17—Gingerbread Cupid (Com.)............1000
Feb. 19—Army Aviation Practice (Novelty).... 200
Feb. 19—A Midwinter Night's Dream (Dr.)... 800
Feb. 21—In Dis-a-Countree (Dr.)...............1000
Feb. 22—Her Heart's Refuge (Dr.)............1000
Feb. 24—Willie, the Hunter (Com.)............ 700
Feb. 24—Pottery Making in America (Edu.).. 300
Feb. 26—A Matter of Business (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 28—Love and Tears (Dr.)................1000
Feb. 29—Betty and the Doctor (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 2—A Mexican Courtship (Dr.)...........1000

MELIES.

Dec. 21—The Mission Father (Dr.)...........1000
Dec. 28—The Ranchman's Debt of Honor (Com. Dr.) 1000
Jan. 4—A Woman's Gratitude (Dr.)..........1000
Jan. 11—Roped In (Dr.).........................1000
Jan. 18—The Outlaw and the Baby (Dr.).....1000
Jan. 25—The Mortgage (Dr.)...................1000
Feb. 1—Cowboy vs. Tenderfoot (Dr.).........1000
Feb. 8—Dodging the Sheriff (Dr.)..............1000
Feb. 15—Smiling Bob (Dr.).....................1000
Jan. 22—Melita's Ruse (Dr.)....................1000
Feb. 29—Oil (Dr.) 1000
Mar. 7—Seven Bars of Gold (Dr.)...........1000

ECLIPSE.

(G. Kleine.)

Jan. 10—Lazy Bill and the Strikers (Com.).... 702
Jan. 10—Pottery Making in Thoune (Switzerland) (Ind.) 273
Jan. 17—Love Will Find a Way (Dr.).........1020
Jan. 24—A Woman's Wrath (Dr.)............. 980
Jan. 31—Kitty In Dreamland (Juvenile)........ 575
Jan. 31—Earl's Court, London (Scenic)...... 415
Feb. 7—Captured by Wireless (Dr.)............ 950
Feb. 7—Bird's Eye View of Rotterdam (Sc.)... 50
Feb. 14—The Gambler's Wife (Dr.).............1015
Feb. 21—The King's Command (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 28—Cousin Bill (Com.)....................
Feb. 28—A Glimpse of Tripoli (Scenic)........

PATHE.

Jan. 13—Bill's Bills (Am. Com.)...............
Jan. 15—Pathe's Weekly No. 3, 1912 (Topical) 950
Jan. 17—The Squaw Man's Revenge (Am. Dr.)..1000
Jan. 18—Is It Your Hat? (Am. Com.)......... 800
Jan. 20—Unmerited Shame (Am. Dr.)..........1000
Jan. 22—Pathe's Weekly No. 4—1912 (Top.)..1000
Jan. 23—Love's Terrible Sacrifice (Film d'Art Dr.)
Jan. 24—The Sioux's Cave of Death (Am. Dr.)
Jan. 25—A Windy Dream (Trick Com.)......
Jan. 27—Swiftwind's Heroism (Am. Dr.).....
Jan. 29—Pathe's Weekly No. 5, 1912 (Topical)..1000
Jan. 31—On the Edge of the Precipice (W. Dr.).1000
Feb. 1—Uncle's Strategy (Am. Com.).........1000
Feb. 3—Indian Blood (Am. Dr.)...............1000
Feb. 5—Pathe's Weekly No. 6—1912 (Top.)..1000
Feb. 7—A Boomerang Joke (Am. Com.)......
Feb. 8—Niagara Falls In Winter (Am. Sc.)..
Feb. 10—Two Brothers (Am. Dr.)............
Feb. 12—Pathe's Weekly, No. 7, 1912 (Topical)..10
Feb. 14—Two Convict Brothers (Am. Dr.)......
Feb. 15—His Wife's Jealousy (Am. Dr.)......
Feb. 17—Pawnee Love (Indian Dr.)..........
Feb. 19—Pathe's Weekly No. 8—1912 (Top.)..10
Feb. 21—Marriage or Death (Am. Dr.).........10
Feb. 22—Poor Jimmy (Am. Dr.)...............10
Feb. 24—Phantom Lovers (Am. Dr.)...........10
Feb. 26—Pathe's Weekly, No. 9—1912 (Topical)
Feb. 28—The Squaw's Debt of Gratitude (Dr.)..
Feb. 29—The Ordeal (Com.)....................
Mar. 2—His Mexican Sweetheart (Dr.)........

C. G. P. C.

Jan. 19—Mrs. Pussy Loves Animals (Com.).... 4
Jan. 19—Manners and Customs in Malaysia.. 5
(Educational) 5
Jan. 25—Life In Our Ponds (Edu.)............
Jan. 26—The Countess de Challant (Dr.)......
Jan. 30—Mr. Bughouse Is Cured (Com.)........
Jan. 30—Farming in Tunis (Scenic)...........
Jan. 30—How Plants Are Born, Live and Die (Educational) ....
Feb. 2—The Masked Ball (Dr.)..............10
Feb. 6—Roentgen's X-Rays (Scientific)........
Feb. 6—Excursion in the Swiss Alps (Sc.)....
Feb. 7—A Visit to the Dome of the Milan Cathedral (Sc.) ....
Feb. 8—The Three Kittens (Animal)........
Feb. 9—Philemon and Baucis (Mythological)..
Feb. 9—Hunting Marabout in Abyssinia (Ind. and Sc.) ....
Feb. 13—Quieting the Neighbors (Com.).......
Feb. 13—New Year's Celebration in Japan (Sc.)
Feb. 16—La Favorita (Dr.).....................
Feb. 20—The Gamekeeper (Dr.) ....
Feb. 20—The Motion Picture Man in the Dark Continent (Sc.) ....
Feb. 23—The Presentiment (Dr.) ....
Feb. 23—Ancient Rome (Sc.) ....
Feb. 27—Asbestos Quarry (Ind.)...............
Feb. 27—The Tumbler's Kids (Dr.)..........
Feb. 28—Wrestling in Indo China (Wrestling)..
Feb. 29—The Great Market in Tananarive, Madagascar (Scenic) ....
Mar. 1—An Adventure of Van Dyck (Dr.).....
Mar. 1—Hunting Bears in Malaya (Scenic)....

SELIG.

Jan. 16—The Cowboy's Best Girl (Dr.).......100
Jan. 18—Merely a Millionaire (Com.-Dr.)......100
Jan. 19—A Night Out (Com.)...................
Jan. 19—Seeing Buffalo (Sc.).................
Jan. 22—A Diplomat Interrupted (Com. Dr.)..100
Jan. 23—The Bandit's Mask (Dr.)...........100
Jan. 25—Two Old Pals (Com. Dr.)............100
Jan. 26—A Safe Proposition (Com.)...........
Jan. 26—Seeing Spokane (Sc.).................
Jan. 29—The Test (Dr.)........................1000
Jan. 30—The Scapegoat (Dr.)...................1000
Feb. 1—The Little Stowaway (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 2—Bunkie (Dr.)...........................1000
Feb. 5—The Girl He Left Behind (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 6—The Widow of Rickie O'Neal (Com.)..1000
Feb. 8—The Horseshoe (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 9—A Mysterious Gallant (Com.)..........
Feb. 9—First Aid to the Injured (Edu.).......
Feb. 12—A Broken Spur (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 13—Disillusioned (Dr.)....................1000
Feb. 15—The Hypnotic Detective (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 16—The Little Match Seller (Dr.)......
Feb. 16—The Taos Indians at Home, New Mexico (Educational) ....
Feb. 19—The Danites—Part 1 (Dr.)............1000
Feb. 20—The Danites—Part 2 (Dr.)............1000
Feb. 22—When Memory Calls (Dr.)............1000
Feb. 23—A Persistent Suitor (Com.)..........
Feb. 23—Seeing Detroit (Sport. & Sc.)........
Feb. 26—When Women Rule (Dr.)..............1000
Feb. 27—In Little Italy (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 29—The "Diamond S" Ranch (Western)..1000
Mar. 1—As Told by Princess Bess (Dr.).......1000

VITAGRAPH.

Jan. 22—The Blind Miner (Dr.)................1000
Jan. 23—Jean Intervenes (Com.-Dr.)...........1000
Jan. 24—Captain Barnacle's Messmate (Com.-Dr.) 1000
Jan. 26—Love Will Find a Way (Dr.)........1000
Jan. 27—For the Honor of the Family (Dr.)..1000
Jan. 29—Where the Money Went (Com.-Dr.)..1000
Jan. 30—Indian Romeo and Juliet (Dr.)........1000
Jan. 31—A Timely Rescue (Dr.)................1000
Feb. 2—The First Violin (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 3—A Problem in Reduction (Com.).......1000
Feb. 5—The Law Or the Lady (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 6—Umbrellas To Mend (Com.)..........1000
Feb. 7—The Picture Writer (Dr.)..............1000
Feb. 9—Her Boy (Dr.)...........................1000
Feb. 10—Playmates (Dr.)........................1000
Feb. 12—The Heart of a Man (Dr.)............1000
Feb. 13—Winning is Losing (Com.-Dr.).........1000
Feb. 14—Bunny and the Twins (Com.).........1000
Feb. 16—The Chocolate Revolver (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 17—The Hobo's Redemption (Dr.).......1000
Feb. 19—The Struggle (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 20—The Love of John Ruskin (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 21—Her Last Shot (Dr.)....................1000
Feb. 23—Cure for Pokeritis (Com.).............1000
Feb. 24—Cowboy Damon and Pythias (Dr.)....1000
Feb. 26—Stenographer Wanted (Com.)..........1000
Feb. 27—Justice of the Desert (Dr.)............1000
Feb. 28—The Patchwork Quilt (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 1—The Diamond Brooch (Dr.)............1000
Mar. 2—The Telephone Girl (Com.) 1000

TUESDAY AND SUNDAY

THE MAJESTIC

Announced at its beginning that it solicited criticism, whether favorable or otherwise, from all Exhibitors and Exchanges. In all this time we have had but two unfavorable comments—one from the Exhibitors and one from the Exchanges.

The Exhibitors do not like our posters—so heeding their request for something better and more valuable to them, we have arranged with our lithographer to provide us (commencing with our early March releases) with High Class Artistic Posters!

The Exchanges have complained of the full thousand foot length film—so we will nave to satisfy them—therefore commencing early in March, we shall endeavor to keep each picture within 950 feet, thus enabling the Exchange to buy the picture, posters, pay his express and return charges on collections, for the conventional one hundred dollars—consequently Shorter Length Film!

We admit that the two criticisms are just and timely, and we very willingly co-operate with both Exhibitor and Exchange, at the same time emphasizing our appreciation of the fact that neither one has, as yet, expressed unfavorable criticism of our pictures—and therefore Still Better Pictures!

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 25th "BOUGHT"—a drama that links the East and the West by a girl—it starts in the atmosphere of a cheap Western gambling place and ends in a New Year's Eve revel in a magnificent New York café, and shows how terribly alike are the conditions in each and out of each is plucked a flower to be worn upon a manly heart.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 27th "STRIP POKER"—a roaring comedy and decided novelty. Four old college chums meet after many years and play the favorite old college game of strip poker. "I'll see that bet of a hat and raise you a necktie" and so on—the situations and surprises will please everybody.

March 3rd, "DOES YOUR WIFE LOVE YOU?"—Comedy

March 5th, "THE BEST MAN WINS"—Comedy

ASK FOR TWO MAJESTICS EACH WEEK

The Majestic Motion Picture Co.

145 W. 45th ST. NEW YORK CITY

Sold through the Sales Co.

National Film Distributing Co.

FILM STORIES.

NATIONAL FILM DISTRIBUTING COMPANY.

FAITHFUL UNTO DEATH (Deutsches Bioscope). —A general captures a medieval city and receives a petition for clemency from the natives. He lodges in the house of the principal citizen and becomes enamored of his daughter. So does his adjutant who falls deeply in love, and she with him, and when the general tries to force a kiss from her lips the adjutant interferes and is straightway laid hold of, imprisoned, tried and condemned to death. The girl has a vision of his being hanged and to save him she gives her promise to wed the general and thus receives the pardon. She hastens to the dungeon with it and as her lover is released she takes poison and dies in his arms rather than give herself to the man in whose power both are.

A MATRIMONIAL MUDDLE (Clarendon).—Mr. Joy decided to buy his wife a bulldog for her birthday and he did, making a note in his pocket diary to "Call for Rosie." Mrs. Joy wrote to the piano tuner to come and tune the piano, then she tore up the note. Now, Mr. Joy was not usually suspicious, but the finding of half of the note was an excuse to arouse his ire. But he didn't consult with Mrs. Joy. He hastened to a detective agency and hired a man to trail his wife.

Mrs. Joy happens to find the note book. She also went to a detective agency. Now both were trailed. Mr.. Joy wired Mrs. Joy to meet him at an out of town railroad depot where he had been called on business. She went. So did Mr. J's detective. He went. So did Mrs. J's detective. To a hotel they journeyed and to their room and then and there they "had it out." He accused her and she accused him. And then in burst the eavesdropping "Sherlocks." All was explained and the sleuths found themselves in decidedly wrong. And out they were bounced and into the arms of Joy rushed Mrs. Joy.

BADEN BADEN (Meesters).—Few cities of Europe are more famous to the foreign traveler than is Baden Baden. It is a beautiful city, composed of wide streets, beautiful buildings of all sorts and descriptions and has some fine parks that rival any the world over.

SCENES FROM THE LIFE OF MOIS TRIBES (Le Lion).—This film shows black skinned natives in their peculiar dances and celebrations of semi-religious nature, in their daily tasks and life, as they pound out their corn in prehistoric manner, and as they weave baskets and make their crude implements of the war and chase. We also see them on a journey, many carrying burdens on their backs while others drive ox carts of two wheels hewn out of the solid wood, the wheels and covers being of but one piece each.

THE STOLEN PUPS (Hepwix).—In this photoplay a Scotch collie plays the role of detective and traces a thief who has stolen her pups and carried them to another town. The scenes are laid in England and include a roadway drive, a railroad journey and several interiors and exteriors.

THE OLD CARPENTER (Le Lion).—The old carpenter has reached that period in life when his employer believes him useless and casts him off. He returns to his wife and breaks the sad news, and for days after he goes on through the streets trying to get work of some kind. He falls beneath the weight of furniture he endeavors to help move and totters under other burdens. Then life seems useless and he jumps from a bridge into the cool waters below. He is seen and rescued and a little girl brings about a change in the heart of the old boss and he is taken back and once more life brightens for the old carpenter.

THE RECEIPT FOR RENT (Le Lion).—An artist is ordered out of his poor studio unless he pays his back rent. The irate landlady goes to a police official to evict him. In the interim he takes a dummy and hangs it by the neck to the ceiling with the feet just touching a chair. The horror and surprise of all is most amusing and then they take the supposed body to the station house when the fraud is discovered and the landlady "gets hers."

THE RESULT OF A PICNIC (Cricks & Martin).—Tom and Claude are rivals for the hand of fair Annabella. Tom makes the first proposal and Annabella tells him to wait for his reply until tomorrow, and then Claude takes his chance and receives the same answer. She entrusts her secret to Jane, her chum. Jane and she plan to find out which is the most worthy, and their plan works as follows. Jane flirts with Tom and Tom is entranced, and is caught in the act of reciprocity by Annabella. Thus Claude wins his loved one.

A CONTAGIOUS DISEASE (Hepwix).—Smith goes in to bathe, but Smith has no intentions of having his clothes stolen while in the water, so he leaves a note pinned to them stating that the owner is a victim of leprosy. A tramp who cannot read, finds the garments, makes off with them and then tries to have persons he meets read the note. Every one misunderstands and the poor tramp is avoided like a plague. Finally the police get on his trail. When Smith has discovered his loss, he, too, has scented the pathway of the thief and caught up with him. He soon explains matters and takes back his own, while the police take the tramp.

THE IMPEDIMENT (Hepwix).—A young artist decides he needs a model and goes out in search of one. On the thoroughfare he meets a fair maid. He gives her his card and persuades her to pose for him. Result: love affair, proposal and she slaps his face and rushes away. He calls for an explanation and learns that she is already wedded to a drunken sort of a husband. The years go by and one day he reads of the death of this man caused by a fire and the injury of the young wife. He hastens to the hospital and there wins her love and soon they are married.

THE FLY'S REVENGE (Hepwix).—Charlie is bothered by a fly and the way he tries to get rid of the pest is cleverly pictured in this short comic reel. Fly-paper gets him into an awful mess, but not until he has ruined a silk hat, a tennis racquet and no end of furniture.

BERTIE BUYS A BULL DOG (Cricks & Martin). —Bertie buys a bull dog and starts for home with him. The dog entangles him with every person and object they meet and as the dog travels at a lightning clip you can imagine the stress the poor man is in.

SAVED BY CARLO (Cricks & Martin).—Carlo is a fine bull dog, a fine playfellow, but a dangerous enemy. Carlo's master is waylaid by highwaymen and carried to a lonesome uninhabited house and there bound and gagged. Carlo gets the trail, follows it to the house and runs back and warns his mistress, who in turn warns the police. The officers jump into the trap with the wife and driving after the galloping dog they soon arrive at the house. The thieves are made captive and the husband is freed.

HOW HE WON HER (Shamrock).—Willard and Mary are deeply in love. Willard is the son of a wealthy banker, while Mary is poor. When Willard tells his father, he raves about it. So inflamed does his mind become that even late that afternoon while seated beneath the trees on the lawn with his wife, Mrs. Hammond, enjoying their afternoon tea, the maid happening to slip on the grass spills a cup over the still irate banker. He flies up in a tirade and orders Mrs. Hammond to discharge the girl. Willard hastens to Mary, tells her all about the teacup incident and begs her to take the position of maid. No sooner is she established as a regular member of the household than father "falls" for her charms. He even gives her a bracelet intended for his wife, and Willard finds the card addressed to his mother, and he also finds Mary and Dad in compromising attitude. His plan has worked better than he thought and with this double evidence of his father's susceptibility he forces the game and lays down his pat hand—the note about the bracelet, while Mary wears the trinket before Mrs. Hammond. There is nothing to it, either Dad must confess himself a flirt or a trifler with his own servants or tell Mrs. Hammond it was all a jest, and he takes the latter course, and thus are Mary and Willard united.

LIEUTENANT ROSE AND THE STOLEN BATTLESHIP (Clarendon).—A gang seizes Lieutenant Rose and his captain and secures them, leaving Rose in a cave with a powder barrel and a slowly burning candle to ignite the explosive. He escapes. Then he gives warning to the naval board of how the gang have made up as naval officers and stolen the new battleship. Off he starts in his aeroplane while a swift torpedo boat rushes after the slower going battleship. All ends in an exciting surrender of the gangsters and the reward and praises of the gallant lieutenant.

MY PARDNER (Carey).—This subject tells of the adventures of two prospectors who go to the far north on an exploring and hunting expedition, getting caught in the ice and snow on an icy sea, where one of them drifts for days on a cake of ice. With sledge and packs they have journeyed on and on until nearly starved and then one goes back for help. Meantime the sweetheart of one dreams of their sufferings and in the end help arrives and both are succored.

OH, IT'S YOU! (Clarendon).—Mehetible Jane Fearnaught is the wife of a meek and mild Simpson Fearnaught, but just how he came to his last name we are not concerned. He reads in the papers of many robbers who have been infesting their neighborhood and as they retire for the night, their one boarder also going "aloft" at the same time, all have the fear that perhaps they, too, may be visited by night marauders. Bang! Crash!

But we know what made the noise! Nothing but Tabby as she spilled the milk pitcher off the kitchen table and rolled it to the floor. But Mehetible did not, nor did the boarder, nor did Simpson. In the drawing room Mehetible saw the shadow of the valiant boarder and fired at him. He ran in alarm, thinking her a burglar. Over went the furniture. Mehetible grabbed a picture off the wall and hurled it at the supposed assailant and he hurled another back, and thus it went on through room after room until the whole house was a wreck. And then into the darwing room once more, when some one thought to turn on a light, and both exclaimed, "Oh, it's You!"

EXPIATED (Messters).—In a little German village there stood the blacksmith pounding on his anvil, while through the street went the little circus of traveling jugglers and strong men, and he, like all the rest of the townsfolk went along to see what was doing. He laughed at the feats of weight lifting. And to prove it he swung aloft the heaviest of all the weights. Such a hit he did make that the rovers begged him to join them and after much urging he made quick decision, rushed home, scribbled a hasty farewell note and followed the onward march. Years went by and his little girl grew to womanhood and became engaged to one of the leading young men of the village, while at the same time the blacksmith wandered on alone and homeless, for one day he had quarreled with the circus people over the division of the money and he had been thrown out of their band. Thus on and on he had plodded, until he became an aged man before his time. His wanderings took him back to the old village where homesickness became a disease incurable. There, at the familiar doorway came the wedding procession and his daughter passed him unknowing while her husband cast him a penny in generous pity, not knowing who he was, and at the town hall he looked through the window and saw the merry throng and watched them dancing, and the blow was too much and he sank to the ground —his deed of years ago had been expiated.

Among the Exhibitors.

Shelbyville, Ind.—A new photoplay theater has opened in the new Rembusch Building, under the proprietorship of Messrs. Rembusch & Wilko Earlington, Ky.—Messrs. R. H. Minn and G. W. Clements have made application to the building inspector for erection of a high class photoplay to be established here. Both Minn and Clements are members of the Idle Hour Theater Company, which is capitalized at $1,500.

Estrehville, Ia.—Hank Graaf is building a new $15,000 brick building for a new moving picture theater.

Union, Ia.—Mr. Moore will conduct a moving picture theater here.

Harlan, Ky.—The Edisonia Theater has been re-opened with moving pictures.

Valley City, Md.—F. E. Nemec will open a theater here, which will be devoted to moving pictures.

Winona, Minn.—Messrs. M. J. F. Glubka and David Janikowski will open a theater in the East End.

Fort Plain, N. Y.—The Acme Theater at this place has been sold by Mrs. Harriet Shaper to Miss Flora M. Spraker.

Farmington, Ill.—D. B. McFarland sold the Dreamland Theater to Mayor H. V. Johnson, and is moving to Charleston, where he will open a new theater.

Fulton, N. Y.—Herman Rakov has bought the property of Samuel Waldhorn, at 107 Oneida Street, where he will open a new theater.

San Pablo, Cal.—Fred C. Clift will erect a $7,000 building for a moving picture theater here.

Lawton, Ill.—J. C. Murray will open a new moving picture theater, at 323 Avenue C.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Thomas A. Clark will erect his new theater in the Bushwick section, at Halsey and Macon Streets, Saratoga Avenue, and Broadway and will cost $450,000.

Waverly, Ia.—A new opera house is to be erected here during the coming summer.

New York, N. Y.—Edward B. Corey has had plans prepared for a new playhouse, to be erected at 138-46 West 48th Street.

Fairbury, Ill.—F. L. Kerns has sold the Majestic Theater to A. R. Moss and Harry Evans.

Carrollton, Mo.—I. C. Bon has leased the [illegible] Theater here.

THE TOURNAMENT FILM CO.
TOLEDO, OHIO.
Owners of the following feature films:
1911 Cheyenne Cowboy and Indian Frontier Celebration.
Fall Round-Up on the Y-6 Ranch.
State Rights for These Films for Sale.
Bookings Can Be Made by Writing Us.

WE HANDLE NO DUPES

REMEMBER, WE HANDLE NO DUPES

Our Newest Importations!

NOTRE DAME DE PARIS
3 Reels (Hand Colored)
THE SIEGE OF CALAIS
2 Reels (Hand Colored)
A TRUE MOTHER
3 Reels (Intensely Dramatic)
Romance of the Mexican Revolution
4 reels (4000 feet)
A Woman's Strange Revenge
3 Reels (Pathetic)
Cardinal Richelieu's Rival
2 Reels (Hand Colored)
SICILIAN BLOOD
2 Reels (Tragic)
Fools of Society, or Simple Love
3 reels (3000 feet)
LIFE AS IT IS
3 Reels (Posters Supplied)
AND HUNDREDS OF OTHERS

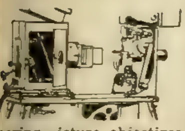
Ask for Our Special Bill Posters
It is a Scheme to Advertise Your House

FEATURE FILM CO.
108 East 12th St., New York

Agents for Every State Wanted
Must be Responsible. Exhibitors Preferred

REMEMBER, WE HANDLE NO DUPES

WE HANDLE NO DUPES



20,000 roll tickets, $1.20; 50 ⅝ cored carbons, $1.15; stereopticon objectives, 50c to $3.00; stereopticons, $15; rheostats, $3 to $5; arc lamps, $1.75, $2 and $2.25; condensers, 50c; calcium jets, $2.80; acetylene jets, $2.50; gas generators, $3.50; noving picture objectives, $2.75; jackets, $2. List of noving picture repair parts at fair prices. Sprocket vheels, 85c; films, 1c a foot. Catalogue. All makes f moving picture machines repaired at reasonable rices. L. HETZ, 302 East 23rd St., New York City

Swaab Film Service Co.

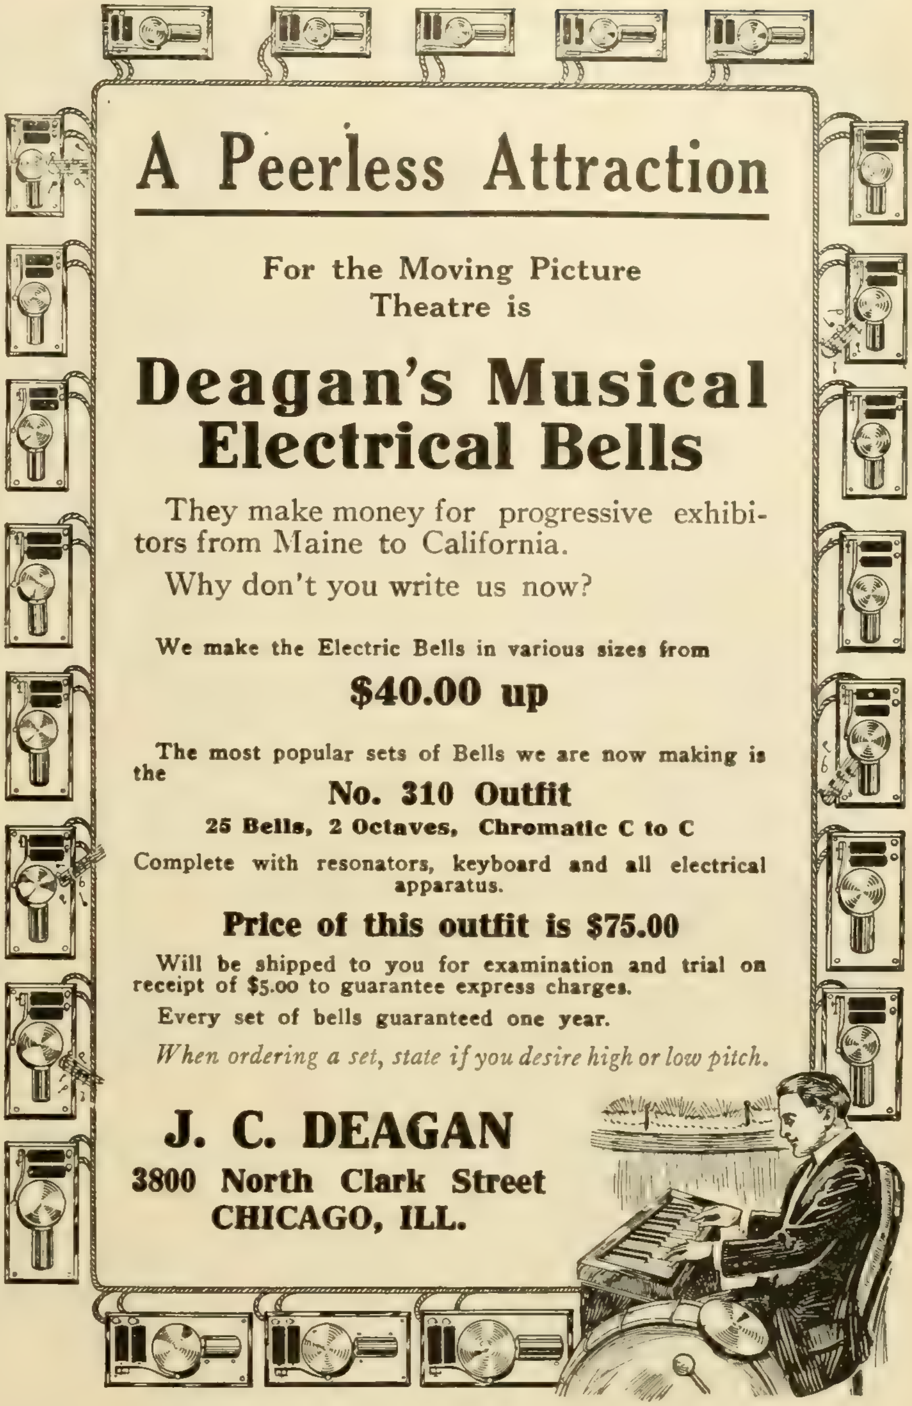
(INDEPENDENT FILM ONLY)

Will supply you with the Sales Co.'s choice program. Ask for terms.

Motiograph and Power Machines

Carbons—Electra, $2.00 per 100; $19.00 per 1000, and other supplies at corresponding prices.

129 N. Eighth Street Philadelphia Pa.



A Peerless Attraction

For the Moving Picture
Theatre is

Deagan's Musical Electrical Bells

They make money for progressive exhibitors from Maine to California.

Why don't you write us now?

We make the Electric Bells in various sizes from

$40.00 up

The most popular sets of Bells we are now making is the

No. 310 Outfit

25 Bells, 2 Octaves, Chromatic C to C

Complete with resonators, keyboard and all electrical apparatus.

Price of this outfit is $75.00

Will be shipped to you for examination and trial on receipt of $5.00 to guarantee express charges.

Every set of bells guaranteed one year.

When ordering a set, state if you desire high or low pitch.

J. C. DEAGAN
3800 North Clark Street
CHICAGO, ILL.

NOW BOOKING
EASTERN STATES ONLY
LOUISE M. MARION
IN HER OWN NOVELTIES
PATRIOTIC AND
ILLUSTRATED POEMS
REFINED, ENTERTAINING
TERMS REASONABLE

Great Novelty
and Drawing Card

LOUISE M. MARION
PRESENT ADDRESS
260 Crown Street, New Haven, Conn.

L. M. Marion can be engaged in the Connecticut towns for one month.

ADVERTISING FOR THE LICENSED THEATRES ONLY
FEATURE LITHOGRAPHS
FOR ALL THEATRES GETTING
FILM SERVICE IN N. Y. CITY

ONE SHEETS	THREE SHEETS	EIGHT SHEETS
5c	25c	50c

Handsomely Mounted on Canvas and Rented Only

ARTHUR BRADY 124 E. 14th ST., N. Y. C.

Use our Developing System

A. J. CORCORAN, Inc.
11 John Street New York

If you want Advertising and Song Slides
Write to
A. L. SIMPSON, Inc.
The Most Reliable Slide Maker in the Business
113 W. 132nd Street, New York City

"Through Flaming Gates!"

REX Marion Leonard Sunday Release, March 3d
Will Catch On!

The Slides that Please the Eyes

SCOTT & VAN ALTENA

Special Slides for Scientific Advertising Purposes
59 Pearl Street New York City

SCENARIOS WANTED

Indian, Military, Pioneer, Cowboy, Historick, for our two reel feature films. Best prices paid. Send scenarios to:

FRED J. BALSHOFER, BISON PACIFIC COAST STUDIO
1719 Allesandro St., Edendale, Los Angeles, California

ILG ELECTRIC VENTILATING COMPANY

Manufacturers of Ventilating Apparatus and Experts in Theatre Ventilation

160 Whiting Street :: Chicago

P. K. THEATRE PERFUME

Purifies and Sweetens the Air. Lasting in Effect. Economical. Germicidal without suggesting a disinfectant. Does not stain the most delicate fabrics. May be used during the performance if desired. On receipt of price, with name of your supply dealer, we will ship, 1 Gallon Cans at $1.50 10 Gallon Cans at $1.25

E. C. WEBB, Inc., 2137 Madison Ave., New York City

PURE AIR

is as necessary in your theatre as Fire Exits. The public demand sanitary conditions. On receipt of your remittance for $1.80 we will ship four quarts of our

Aroma Foam Perfumed Disinfectant,

Two quarts each of Geranium and Luxuran, and will include large compressed air sprayer of sufficient capacity for any theater.

SANITARY SERVICE CORPORATION,
82 Wall Street, New York City.
Address all communications to Laboratory,
1293 FULTON STREET, BROOKLYN, N. Y.

THE IMPROVED

SPIEGEL MOTION SLIDE

"MOVES WITH LIFE LIKE ACTION"

[Should Be the Leading Feature of Your Theatre

It Draws the Crowds It Pays the Advertisers

THE AMERICAN MOTION SLIDE CO.
Dept. W, 611 First National Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Pat. Appl'd for

OPERATORS' EMERGENCY TERMINAL

FOR MOVING PICTURE LAMPS

Quick relief in case of accident to regular terminal. Connects direct to carbon. Receives No. 6 wire including insulation and pointed thumb screw makes contact. Simple, substantial and durable. Prepaid to any address 75c each

PRESTO EMERGENCY CLAMP CO., Box 264, Syracuse, N. Y.

FOR RENT

Studio at our Coney Island factory, Neptune Ave., corner West 20th Street; well lighted; fully equipped with dressing rooms, etc.; floor space 40 ft. x 50 ft. Will rent by week or month. Fine opportunity for feature film producers.

Carlton Motion Picture Laboratories
Coney Island

E-Z SLIDE

MAKE THEM YOURSELF
Clear as Glass—Will Outlast Glass

You can write or print on them as easily as on a sheet of writing paper
Ask your Film Exchange for them or write to

BATTERSHALL & OLESON 39 W. ADAMS ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

WORLD WANTS WORK WONDERS

Read Classified Advertisements, Page 598

Why Spend Money for Experiments

When We Offer You a Perfect Screen, Long Past That Stage?

A screen that rolls
Beautiful Daylight pictures
Saves half your juice bill
No eye strain, glare
No veil to mar the perfect surface

A PERFECT reproduction and blending of the natural colors of your picture, with the soft, harmonious effects that are true to life and nature only

Our price less than many inferior curtains now on the market. Write today for particulars

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREENS

Manufactured by AMERICAN THEATRE CURTAIN & SUPPLY CO., Main & Chestnut, St. Louis, Mo.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST STUDIOS
Paris, France
ECLAIR FILM CO.
Fort Lee N. J.
BRANCHES THROUGHOUT THE EARTH

WRITE right now Postal to GEO. W. BIRT, Russell Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., for his book on the possibilities of the picture show, entitled

New Force in Business

Y would not take dollars for it—It's free—First edition is 10,000. No copies for Indianapolis people.

Fan Bargains

While they last $12.50 each

Ne 16-inch General Electric make for 60 cycle, 11 volt alternating current. 18-inch exhaust fan, current, $50.00. Several hundred other dynamos and motors.

GE BENDER, 82 Centre St., New York

Fms with Posters FOR SALE

All kes of Independent Films in fine condition for sale at sonable prices. Posters free. Also Feature Films.

E. B. Gordon,
Co Block, 80 Congress St. E., Detroit, Mich.

ATHE'S WEEKLY

The Motion Picture Exhibitor's Mascot

SSUED EVERY MONDAY

ook It Every Week

Dissolving Effect with Single Stereopticon

Evy Exhibitor and Operator should have a

Reid's Diffuser

Can used with any machine. Prepaid for $2.00
Reid Diffuser Co., 26 Waverly St., Chicago, Ill.

"Through Flaming Gates!"

Sunday REX Release, March 3d
Will Fire Your Audience with Enthusiasm!

Moving Picture Exhibitors!

We handle all makes of Moving Picture Machines, new and second-handed, and all supplies for M. P. Our guarantee goes with everything we sell you. Fourteen years wholesale manufacturers of M. P. Supplies should satisfy you that we are not a catch-penny concern. Send us your address for our mailing list which will be beneficial to you. We solicit your correspondence.

POWERS No. 5 MACHINE SLIGHTLY USED COMPLETE WITH LENSES guaranteed perfect $100. (No Rheostat). ONE LUBIN 1908 MODEL (new) $75.00; guaranteed to do good work.

Exit Signs, Reel Cabinets, Ticket Boxes, Condensers, Carbons, etc.

Circulars by request

THE STERN MFG. CO., 109 N. 10th St., Phila., Pa.
Manufacturers and Dealers of M P Supplies

BE AN OPERATOR

Our home study course tells how. It is scientific, practical and complete. Illustrated with many original drawings it goes down to the kernel. Our course makes you a skilled operator. You can secure a license anywhere after completing our course. Ask for Booklet B—it is free.

DIAMOND OPERATING SCHOOL
8 South 15th St., St. Louis, Mo.

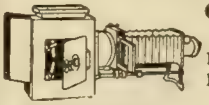
Any Local Repairman

can install Lavezzi's Outside Shutter, Oil Bath, Improved Cams and Stars, Non-Vibrating Adjustable Machine Tables, etc.

LEVEZZI MACHINE WORKS, 2940 Herndon St., Chicago

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES

Stereopticons, Slides, Accessories



CHAS. M. STEBBINS
1028 Main St.
KANSAS CITY, MO
Large Line of Edison Goods
Established 1899

If you are in the Market for

SECOND HAND FILMS

Write to the largest and most reliable Dealers and Importers of these goods in the United States

International Film Traders
Incorporated
5 West 14th St., New York City

Headquarters for

ASBESTOS

CURTAINS and PICTURE BOOTHS

SEND FOR BOOKLET

C. W. Trainer Mfg. Co.
39 Pearl St., Boston

BARGAINS---BARGAINS

Motion Picture Machines $35 up. Optigraph No. 4, only $55. Edison Kinetoscope, cost $150, only $75. Lubin Cineograph, $55. Edison Model B, only $125. Powers Cameragraph No. 5, only $110. Edison Mechanism $15. Optigraph No. 3, and Model B Gas Outfit, $55.

Get Supplement 33 Bargain List.

New Edison Model B and Powers Cameragraph No. 6 a specialty. Stereopticons, Spot Lights, Supplies, Carbons, Tickets, etc.

Motion Picture Machines Wanted.

HARBACH & CO., 809 Filbert St., Phila., Pa.

"La Cinematografia Italiana ed Estera"

IS ITALY'S LEADING PAPER FOR THE ANIMATED PICTURE
PUBLISHED FORTNIGHTLY.
32, 36 and 40 large pages, 8 shillings per annum ($1.60).
Editor-prop'r: Prof. GUALTIERO I. FABRI,
Via Cumiana, 31 (Barriera S. Paolo) Torino, Italy

MORTIMER FILM CLEANER

Makes Dirty Films Clean and Bright

Th only dry cleaning process—it cleans while film is being re-wound. Pctively prevents "rain" and spots. Simple, effective and guaranteed not to njure the film. Cost of operation but one cent per film. No progressive th ter or exchange can afford to be without it.

WHAT SOME OF OUR CUSTOMERS SAY

Worth their weight in gold." Miles Bros., Los Angeles.
Improves the films at the least 75%." Richard Dabb, Shenandoah, Pa.
We like the cleaners very much." Warioto Film Co., Nashville, Tenn.
Well worth the money to any motion picture house." Hyman & Hirsch, Chicago.
It does excellent work." W. E. Greene Film Exch., Boston, Mass.

If our exchange cannot supply you, send orders direct to MORTIMER FILM CLEANER CO. 704 Fidelity Bldg., Portland, Maine

---

FREE

Send postal card with name and address plainly written and receive free of charge sample pages of "Orpheum Collection" of Moving Picture (dramatic and descriptive) music. Until further notice these splendid collections will be offered at the following special prices:

No. 1 (post paid)..........58 cts.
No. 2 (post paid)..........58 cts.
Both numbers post paid for $1.15.

Clarence E. Sinn
1501 Sedgwick St. Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE GREATEST MONEY MAKING FEATURE PICTURE EVER PRODUCED

OLD WYOMING DAYS

in 2 1-2 Reels, and

WHITE SOX Base Ball Club at Practice

About 400 feet. Total, Three Reels

STATES AND PRICES

Texas	$850.00
Oklahoma	550.00
Old and New Mexico	450.00
Washington	450.00
North and South Dakota	400.00

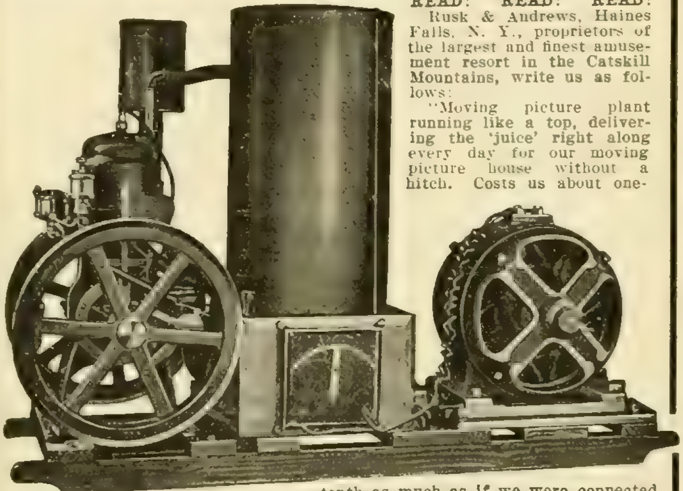
Each State includes 1 set of reels and 1 week's billing.
Discount allowed if same purchaser takes more than one State.
For State Rights and Bookings address

HENNEGAN & WHITE, Room 304, 167 West Washington Street, CHICAGO

The Biggest Sensation Yet is the $250.00 Detroit Moving Picture Electric Light Plant

READ! READ! READ!

Rusk & Andrews, Haines Falls, N. Y., proprietors of the largest and finest amusement resort in the Catskill Mountains, write us as follows:



"Moving picture plant running like a top, delivering the 'juice' right along every day for our moving picture house without a hitch. Costs us about one-tenth as much as if we were connected with the Public Service, also pumps water to all our buildings, 2,000 gallons per day, and have it for fire engine in case of fire."

Used and highly endorsed by the U. S. Army.

Many write us that the total cost of light for running their show for a week is less than one dollar. Think of it.

Gives you better light than you can buy. Gives you the same light in the afternoon as at night. Can be operated by a boy ten years old.

Larger sized plants at proportionately low prices. THE SALVATION OF THE MOVING PICTURE BUSINESS. Write for Bulletin No. 101. You will find it the most intensely interesting little book you ever read if you are interested in moving pictures.

IMMEDIATE SHIPMENT. Wire your order and let your remittance follow by mail.

DETROIT ENGINE WORKS, Dept. No. 102, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A. Sole manufacturers of the best and only real moving picture electric light plant in the world.

WE WILL PAY YOUR FARE TO DETROIT to see this wonderful plant in operation if there does not happen to be one of them at work in your immediate vicinity, the fare to be deducted from the purchase price. Write for full information regarding this liberal offer.

GET ENOUGH 3 IN ONE FOR A REAL GOOD TEST—FREE

Test 3 in One on your moving picture machine thoroughly. It won't cost you a cent. Send to-day for a generous free sample. (Don't mix 3 in One with any old oil in oil cans. Use nothing but 3 in One out of a clean oil can.)

Ask any experienced operator. He knows 3 in One, and will tell you that it is the ideal Moving Picture Machine oil. Lubricates perfectly star wheel, flywheel, shutter gear and every other mechanism. 3 in One won't collect dirt or clog. Contains no acid or alkali. Won't gum—won't run.

3 in One also cleans and polishes all wood and metal surfaces, and absolutely prevents rust in all climates, indoors and out. Try out this good oil right now at our expense. Send for free bottle and free book to-day!

Sold everywhere at 10c, 25c, 50c. (The 50c ½ pint size is the economical size for you.)

FOR LIBRARY SLIPS ONE IN EVERY PACK

3 IN ONE OIL CO.
42 NO BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

IS YOUR BUSINESS GOOD?

IF NOT, WHY DON'T YOU DO SOMETHING TO MAKE IT BETTER? DO YOU KNOW, MR. EXHIBITOR, THAT THE RESPONSIBILITY IS UP TO YOU, AND IT IS, THEREFORE, NECESSARY FOR YOU TO REDOUBLE YOUR EFFORTS? WHEN YOU SEE THAT BUSINESS IS FALLING OFF, YOU SHOULD FIND OUT THE CAUSE, IF POSSIBLE, AND THEN SET ABOUT TO OVERCOME THE DIFFICULTY. POSSIBLY YOU ARE NOT PLACING BEFORE THE PEOPLE PROPER INDUCEMENTS TO GET THEM INTO YOUR THEATER. POSSIBLY BY CHANGING THE STYLE OF YOUR ADVERTISING, BY USING A MORE MODERN AND UP-TO-DATE SYSTEM WOULD MAKE A DIFFERENCE WITH YOUR BUSINESS, THE SAME AS IT HAS WITH HUNDREDS OF OTHER EXHIBITORS.

Why Don't You Give Us a Trial and See?

EXHIBITORS' ADVERTISING CO. SUITE 604-605-606 117 NORTH DEARBORN STREET CHICAGO, ILL.

Nine Motion Picture Theatres—For Sale

(One or All—Just as You Like)

Five Shows in Oklahoma City, Okla.	Population 65,000
One Show in Houston, Texas	Population 90,000
Three Shows in Galveston, Texas	Population 40,000

Seating capacity ranging 250 to 400---All strictly up-to-date---Using licensed service

Under present management since April 1st, 1910, and have CLEARED OVER $75,000.00

Reason for Selling---Quitting the game

If you are interested and have the necessary cash, communicate with

E. H. HULSEY, Galveston, Texas, or O. McLANE, Oklahoma City, Okla.

FREE, FREE, FREE—FOR THE ASKING
-4 YARD—DEMONSTRATION SAMPLES—1-4 YARD
JUST TO PROVE TO YOU THAT

MIRROROIDE

CURTAINS AND SCREENS HAVE THE WORLD BEAT

Seeing Is Believing. Test Any Way You Desire. Compare with Any Curtain or Screen in Your City. Could We Make Any Better Proposition than This? The essential facts about 1912 MIRROROIDE are that it is the Latest Improved Product of the Oldest, Largest and Most Experienced Motion Picture Screen and Curtain Manufacturers in the World. It is the last of a series of formulas evolved in the course of our long experience, each superior to the last; the last superior to all. Results—A Pure Mercury Foil, applied by automatic machinery in Four Separate, Distinct Coatings; a Pure Silver White Finish on Canvas, that is Flexible, Durable, Permanent in Brilliancy. Won't Crack or Peel; Stands Any Climate—Wet, Cold or Dry.

MIRROROIDE Stands Alone, Unequalled in Producing Clearness in Projection. Perfect Pictures Without Glare, Haze or Eyestrain. Cheapest in Price; Unrivalled in Quality, Unrivalled in Sales.

Will you let us show you 1-4 yard A and B grades?

Our Booklet of Testimonials, Circulars and Guarantee Free for the Asking. Exhibitors in Minnesota write Benj. Huntley, Winona, Minn.

WE ALSO DESIRE TO CALL YOUR ATTENTION TO OUR MONARCH AND IMPERIAL BRANDS ARTIFICIAL LEATHER, ANY COLOR, ANY GRADE, FOR ANY PURPOSE. SEATS, WALLS, DECORATING, ETC., AND OUR ELECTRIC MOTORS FOR MOVING PICTURE MACHINES, NON-HEATING, VARIABLE SPEED, SINGLE PHASE FOR ALTERNATING OR DIRECT CURRENT.

THE J. H. GENTER CO., Newburgh, N. Y.

"ELECTRA"

PINK LABEL

CARBONS

POSITIVELY HAVE NO EQUAL

Imported solely by

HUGO REISINGER
11 BROADWAY NEW YORK

The Greatest Film Ever Issued

KALEM'S

"A SPARTAN MOTHER"

Released March 11th, 1912

ONE, THREE AND SIX SHEET POSTERS may be obtained for this wonderful film. Prices 15c., 35c., and 70c., respectively. Order from your exchange, or mail price direct to

A B C Posters Draw Capacity Houses
SEND FOR SAMPLES

A. B. C. Company

To All Producers of Moving Picture Films!

We make a specialty of commercial work for the Moving Picture trade at our Coney Island factory, and can turn out work on short notice at the following prices:.

Printing and developing..........	1c. per foot.
Perforating negatives	⅓c. " "
Perforating positives	¼c. " "
Developing negatives	2c. " "
Tinting	⅕c. " "

The above prices apply on lots of 1,000 ft. or over. First-class machinery and equipment; thoroughly reliable workmen; satisfaction guaranteed. Address or telephone:

Carlton Motion Picture Laboratories, Coney Island, N. Y.

BIOGRAPH BRAND
("Arco-Biograph")
Picture Machine
CARBONS

The original Reliable Brand
without abbreviation of marks

L. E. FRORUP & CO.
232 Greenwich St. New York

THE CARL BARCKHOFF COMPANY

Builders of PIPE ORGANS

with or without self playing attachment

POMEROY, OHIO, U. S. A.

ESTABLISHED 1819

Over 3,000 Barckhoff Organs in use in the United States which testify to their superiority and durability in construction, workmanship and character of tone.

We make a specialty of Organ Chimes manufactured from the choicest Bell Metal. Not made by any other builder.

A GUNDLACH PROJECTION LENS
Will Certainly Improve Your Picture

will make it sharp, clear and brilliant, and if you give the height and width of the screen and the distance from the Lens to the center of the screen we ca furnish a Lens to make the picture just the right siz

Gundlach Projection Lenses are furnished to ord with Powers and Motiograph Machines. They are sol by all Film Exchanges subject to approval.

Gundlach -Manhattan Optical Compan
808 Clinton Ave., So. Rochester, N.

Mlle. Camilla Dalberg

will undertake the most exacting roles in Comedy or Drama.

Past record in Europe and America a series of successes

American Directors will please address

Mlle. Camilla Dalberg,
c/o Moving Picture World

Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Nova Scotia Theatre Mgrs.—Attention

We have the above state and territorial rights for

DANTE'S "INFERNO"

(Original Milano Production in Five Reels)

Write or Wire to

MEYERS & REYNOLDS, 145 West 45th Street,
NEW YORK

Phenomenal success at the leading theatres throughout th United States at advanced prices.

EVERY CLASS OF SERVICE

A New Independent Film Exchange

Offering to the trade an

EXCEPTIONAL UP-TO-DATE FILM SERVICE

A perfect organization of experienced film men who know your troubles and will do away with them.

WE HAVE A SELECTION OF
24 REELS PER WEEK
FROM WHICH TO BOOK

PERFECT EQUIPMENT
RIGHT TREATMENT
PROMPT SERVICE

We Book Your Service One Week in Advance. We Send Posters One Day in Advance. We Renovate Our Films Every 30 Days.

THE MAJESTIC FILM SERVICE COMPANY,
216 North Fifth Ave., Corner of Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

Telephone Franklin 2330.

BIO
RECOGNIZED
STANDARD
CARBONS

THOSE fascinating pictures—pictures true to life—pictures that hold the public's attention—you will only find in Show Houses using

BIO CARBONS

They last 25 to 40 per cent. longer than the ordinary sort and give ⅓ more light than any other on the same current.

THERE IS ONLY ONE "BIO" CARBON and the Genuine Only is stamped "BIO" on the carbon — take no other. Substitutes are not so marked.

Charles L. Kiewert Co.

NEW YORK	MILWAUKEE	SAN FRANCISCO
165 Greenwich St.	114 Huron St.	19 Sutter St.

I WOKE YOU UP

To The Merits Of The

Hallberg Direct Current Economizer

And As A Result Am Daily Receiving

INQUIRIES AND ORDERS FROM ALL OVER THE COUNTRY

Mr. Reark Got Wise Long Ago

Read What He Wrote After Installing The "Hallberg"

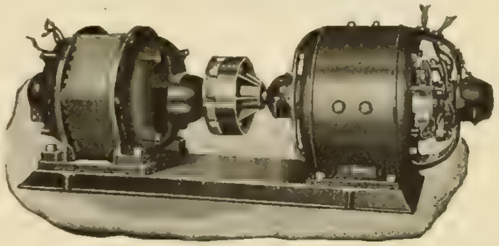
Sandusky, Ohio, Jan. 15, 1909.

Dear Sir:
Your Economizer for 550-volt direct current gives a better light, no heat, and a saving of $49.98 in 26 days' use. Before I changed from a rheostat, my bill was $71.04, and now it is $21.06.

(Signed) CHAS. REARK,
Prop. Theatorium.

This Economizer was installed over three years ago, and Mr. Reark has been daily reaping the benefits of his investment, and will continue to do so.

BUILT FOR ALL VOLTAGES



Hallberg D. C. or A. C. to D C. Economizer

25c. IN STAMPS

Brings to you Hallberg's Motion Picture Catalogue, The Reference Book.
Nothing like it ever published before.
Will prove a constant guide and money maker to every proprietor, manager and operator. Send 25 cts. today.

MR. J. H. HALLBERG,
New York.

PALESTINE, TEXAS, JAN. 18, 1912.

Dear Sir:
I beg to thank you for the 1912 Catalog which I received some time ago. It is certainly a beauty and full of valuable information to picture show managers and operators.

Signed TIM O'CONNELL,
Mgr. Lyric Theater.

Special Jobber of EDISON, POWERS, MOTIOGRAPH, SIMPLEX and STANDARD MOVING PICTURE MACHINES

I make allowance on your old Saver in trade for a HALLBERG.
GUARANTEED TO SAVE

On 100 to 125 Volts A.C., 60 to 70%.	On 100 to 125 Volts D.C., 50%.
On 200 to 250 Volts A.C., 75 to 85%.	On 200 to 250 Volts D.C., 70%.
	On 500 to 600 Volts D.C., 90%.

And To Improve Your Light 50% Over Use On Rheostat.

Over 2000 in use for A.C. as well as D.C. and my G. E. Mercury Arc Rectifier is the thing for those who want D.C. at the arc on A.C. circuits.

I Equip Theaters Completely And carry in stock the highest grade goods required for your theatre.

Free catalogues, circulars and pamphlets furnished of individual items you require.

J. H. HALLBERG, 36 EAST 23rd ST.
NEW YORK

McKENNA

BRASS
RAILINGS
EASELS
GRILLES
CUSPIDORS

BRASS
KICK PLATES
STAIR TREADS, DOOR SILLS

McKenna Bros. Brass Co.
PITTSBURGH, PA.

SCENARIO WRITERS!

If your scenarios do not sell find out why. Perhaps your manuscript can be rewritten and made saleable, and your mistakes may be corrected in future manuscripts. The author of "Technique of the Photoplay," etc., will give your manuscript personal criticism and revision for a fee of only $2.

REVISION—Scenarios having a reasonable chance of a sale will be edited and revised and a typewritten copy supplied for one dollar per finished page. Send the manuscript and a reading fee of one dollar. If the scenario will not warrant further expense, it will be returned to you; if it does, you will be advised as to full cost. Please note that this covers no criticism.

Exhibitors!

Submit your difficulties to the author of "The Photoplay Theater," and other articles on management, for advice and suggestion, the result of twenty years' experience in amusement enterprises. Simple questions $1 each.

Epes Winthrop Sargent
Box 70, Madison Square Station
New York City

Operators!

I guarantee quick and satisfactory repair work on all machines. Only genuine parts supplied. Get my prices on ONE DROP OIL and BULL DOG CEMENT the best articles of their kind on the market.

H. A. MACKIE
21 East 14th Street New York
'Phone: 2478 Stuyvesant

OPERA CHAIRS

FOR EVERY PURPOSE
1,000 STYLES

ESTABLISHED 1865
WRITE FOR CAT. No. 31

115-117 So. Wabash Ave.
Chicago, Ill.
The A. H. Andrews Co.
Branches in all Leading Cities
New York Office, 1165 Broadway.
Seattle Office, 508-10-12 First Ave., So.
San Francisco Office, 673 Mission St.

Get Our Prices
Before You Buy

The Wisconsin Seating
Company
New London,
Wisconsin, U. S. A.

OPERA CHAIRS

Get Our Prices Before You Buy
Largest Variety
Lowest Prices
The Latest and Best in Seats

GEO. W. BENNETT
34-36 E. 3rd Street
CINCINNATI, OHIO

OH! MR. EXHIBITOR!! THINK OF THE MOTHERLESS, THE FATHERLESS, AND THE

Childless homes as the result of theater panics. Protect the lives of your patrons by installing our "ANTI-PANIC" THEATER CHAIR. 26 Dead at Cannonsburg, 176 at Boyertown, 575 at Iriquois Theater, Chicago. Make these horrors impossible.

Our chair is a friend to the Public.
It advertises your theater and makes your business grow.
It is a space-saver, life-saver, money-saver. Gives 25% more seating.

IT IS THE ONLY SANITARY CHAIR

It will make your theater all aisles.
It is the world's greatest theater chair, perfected to the highest degree.

Write today for Circular A. THE HARDESTY MFG. CO., Canal Dover, Ohio, U. S. A.

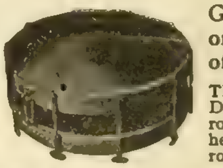
Independent Films For Sale

Low Prices—Send for Price List
F. C. LEIBOW, 61 W. 14th St., N. Y. City

We Offer 300 more to the Trap Drummers



Get your order in at once. At our special offer price—$10.00

This high-grade Orchestra Drum, 10 thumb screw rods, transparent drum heads, solid shells, maple, rosewood, walnut.

Size, 3 x 14—3 x 15—4 x 15—4 x 14. This offer for September and October.

E. P. Zeidler Drum Co., Cleveland, O.

CHEAP

STEEL FRAME
THEATRE CHAIRS
ABSOLUTELY
NON-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small Theatres and Moving Picture Shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs

Also seating for Out-of-door use.

Address Dept. W

STEEL FURNITURE CO., GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
New York: 150 5th Ave. Pittsburg: 318 Bissel Block.
Philadelphia: 610 Flanders Bldg. Chicago: 133 So. 5th Ave.

It pays to discriminate when you buy

THEATRE SEATING

WRITE TODAY for Cat. V2 (Mov. Picture Chairs) and Cat. V3 (Upholstered Chairs)

Send Floor Sketch for Free Seating Plan

Widest range of styles and prices. Large Stocks

American Seating Company

218 S. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO 15 E. 32nd St., NEW YORK

☆ G. MÉLIÈS ☆

SELLING OUT FOR $10,000

OIL!!

Getting wind that prospectors are buying up oil-bearing property in his vicinity, Morton sprinkles every rock on his land with oil and sits tight. His wife thinks him gone mad when he demands ten thousand, and nearly goes herself when he gets it. Morton becomes a lavish sport and brags with pride how he made his pile by "salting" worthless land. He does not realize that a man can fool himself easier than anyone else until receiving this note from the manager of the new company, with whom his daughter Molly has fallen in love: "Dear Father-in-law-to-be: We have struck oil—200 barrels per day. The land you sold for ten thousand is worth half a million."

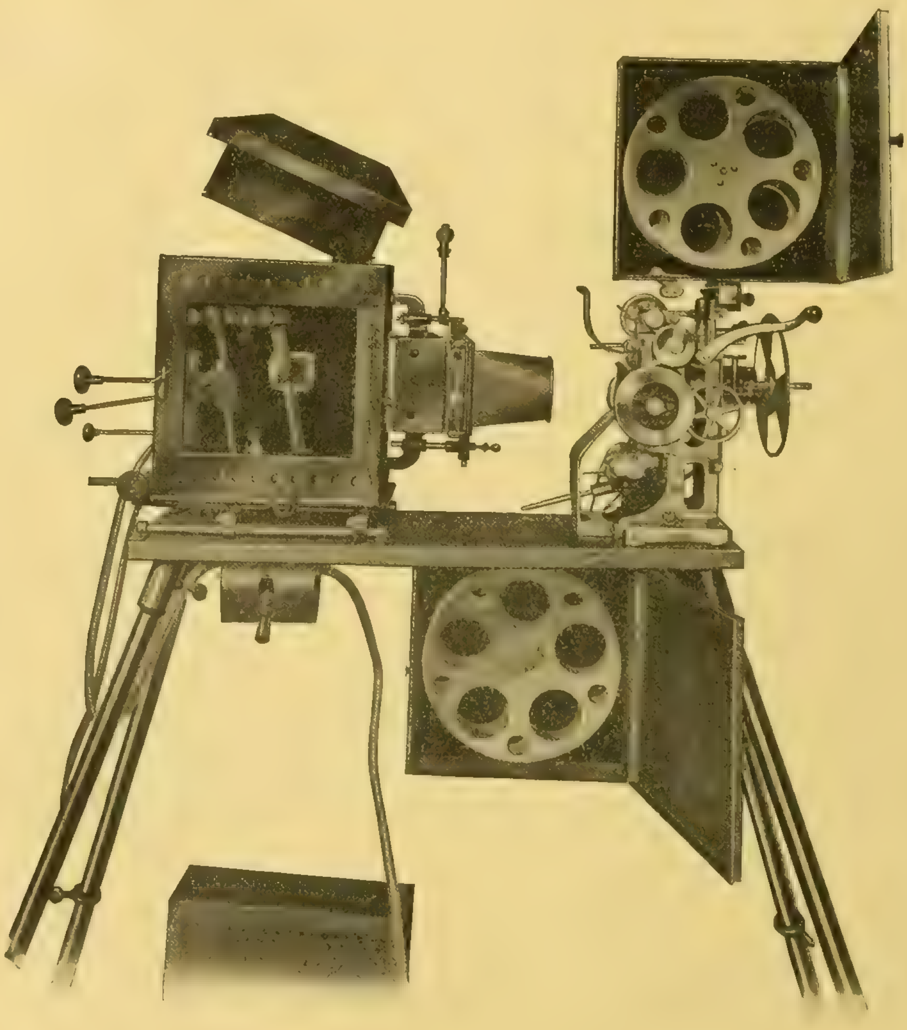
G. MELIES, 204 EAST 38th ST., NEW YORK CITY

APPROX. 1000 FT.

2-29-12

Popularity Proves Merit

That is why, in point of excellence and sales, POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH No. 6 exceeds all other moving picture machines on the market.



That is why POWER'S No. 6 is known throughout the world. That is why it has made friends and its praises are sung wherever civilization rules. That is why our orders are away ahead of deliveries. That is why we are compelled to move into a much larger and better equipped factory.

It is the handwriting on the wall. It tells you, Mr. Showman, that POWER'S No. 6 has proved its popularity and superiority by sheer force of merit. That is why it is the machine for you.

Let us send you catalogue G telling all about it.

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

90 GOLD STREET, NEW YORK

For fourteen years the leading makers of motion picture machines

CAREY PRESS, N. Y.

ol. 11. No. 9 March 2, 1912 Price, 10c.

H F HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "The Bandit's Child" (Essanay).

125 East 23rd Street New York—Chicago 169 W. Wasnington St.

THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

Tues. Mar. 19 "NICHOLAS NICKLEBY" by Dickens IN TWO REELS

Tues. Mar. 19 "NICHOLAS NICKLEBY" by Dickens IN TWO REELS

"NICHOLAS NICKLEBY"

By Charles Dickens, In Two Reels, Will Do for Your Box Office in 1912 What Thanhouser's "David Copperfield" (By Charles Dickens) Did For Your Box Office in 1911

ASK YOUR EXCHANGE FOR

3-SHEET LITHOS

RELEASED TUESDAY, MAR. 5

For Photofans Who Like TRUTH

EXTRAVAGANCE

was the last film made in the home studio by the company now in Florida, and as the director said: "We'll make our leave-taking memorable with THIS!" So you may look for SOME picture here! Every player in it worked with a vim that showed he wanted to leave a testimonial behind him, and we—whose word is ALWAYS good with YOU—ask you to "ask your exchange man" right away.

RELEASED FRIDAY, MAR. 8

For Photofans Who Like Trickfilm

HIS GREAT UNCLE'S SPIRIT

is just jammed full of amazing trick situations and it will really leave your audience dazed—and delighted! A professional magician has reason to revenge himself on the meanest miser who ever lived (ALL misers are that!) and he brings his knowledge of the black arts to bear on said tightwad. He scares the miser almost out of his wits and has the great, big, final laugh—and a lot of others along the way. Ask to-day!

"IN MARCH" — FOUR MORE FEATURES

TO CHECK AS YOU GET 'EM

☐ FRIDAY, 1st
The Arab's Bride
Florida Masterpiece

☐ TUESDAY, 12th
Flying to Fortune
Florida Sensational

☐ TUESDAY, 19th
Nicholas Nickleby
By DICKENS (2 Reels)

☐ FRIDAY, 29th
"My Baby's Voice"
Heart Interest Special

Thanhouser Co., New Rochelle, N. Y.

Send me FREE Lobby Decorations for your features "In March." I am / am not getting "The Thanhouser News"

Name.........................

Address.........................

Exchange.........................

THANHOUSER COMPANY

New Rochelle, New York

Sales Company Agents for U. S. and Canada

Mail ! Mail ! Mail !

GETTING 2 A WEEK? 2

FOUR-A-WEEK

Essanay

A TREAT FOR YOU!

Mr. Anderson in His Inimitable Character of Broncho Billy This Week

DON'T MISS IT!

RELEASED TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 27th

"POSITIVE PROOF"

(Length, approx. 1,000 feet.)

A powerful, gripping drama of an unjust accusation that is fathomed out in time to prevent a tragedy. A picture to make one think. Be sure to book it!

RELEASED THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 29th

"HER MASTERFUL MAN"

(Length, approx. 1,000 feet.)

An unusual comedy with a novel plot, showing how My-Lady-Fair is won right cleverly. How? Just see for yourself.

RELEASED FRIDAY, MARCH 1st

"DO DREAMS COME TRUE"

(Length, approx. 1,000 feet.)

Your audiences will be swamped in waves of laughter on seeing this funny photoplay. Those side-splitting Essanay comedians are a positive riot! Get it and tickle your patrons!

RELEASED SATURDAY, MARCH 2nd

"THE RANCH GIRL'S MISTAKE"

(Length, approx. 1,000 feet.)

A crackerjack Broncho Billy picture with Mr. Anderson in the role he has made famous, also introducing Miss Vedah Bertram, a new leading lady of the Essanay Western Co. This is a feature you cannot afford to overlook, Mr. Show-Man!

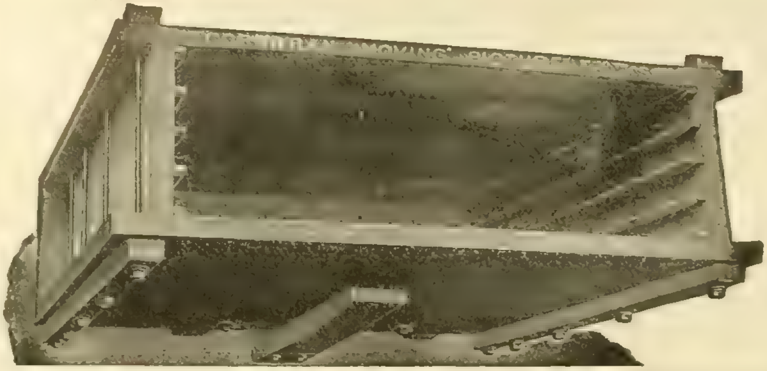
COMING!
"The Ranch Widower's Daughters"

COMING!
"The Bandit's Child"

TWO GREAT WESTERNS! Watch for Them

DO IT NOW! SEND IN YOUR NAME FOR OUR MAILING LIST!

Essanay Film Manufacturing Co.
521 First National Bank Building, Chicago, Ill.
OFFICES IN
LONDON BERLIN BARCELONA



For reference as to Quality consult the following: The Vitagraph Co. of America, The Independent Moving Pictures Co. of America, The Powers Picture Plays Co., Nestor Co., Thanhouser Co., Rex, Champion, Melies, Gaumont, St. Louis Motion Picture Co., Kinemacolor Co. of America, N. Y. Motion Picture Co., Bison, Crystal Film Co.

"What the Dickens"

Admirers have to say about his works is no stronger or more flattering than what the "Corcoran" admirers say of his developing tanks.

Suppose you ask them?

A. J. CORCORAN, Inc.
11 JOHN STREET :: NEW YORK CITY

LUX FILMS

THE CROWN OF PERFECTION

Released Friday, March 1st, 1912

Bill and the Lions

Comedy—Length 377 feet

See the great scene!
TWO FIERCE FOREST-BRED LIONS
Let loose on the roof of a house!
No Scenic Fake, but the real thing.
Bangs the Circus into fits!

The Skivvy's Ghost

Comedy—Length 557 feet

An exciting story of ghosts.

R. PRIEUR

10 East 15th St. New York City
Telephone 3427 Stuyvesant
Sold Only Through
MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING and SALES COMPANY
ONLY EASTMAN RAW STOCK USED.

COMPARE MIRROROIDE

With Any Other Curtain or Screen on the Market
Let Us Show You the Difference

Why MIRROROIDE Is Conceded the World's Best.

Our Free Samples, 1/4 Yard A and B Grades for the Asking Write at Once. It Costs You Nothing. We Just Want to Show You.

MIRROROIDE Has Been on the Market for Over Two Years. Unequalled in Producing Perfect Daylight Projection Without Haze, Glare or Eye Strain Unequalled in Quality; Unrivalled in Sales. Over 80 Now in Use. Testimonials from All Over the World Why Buy Inferior Aluminum, So-Called Silver Screens That Crack, Peel and Tarnish? Get the Pure Mercury Foil Canvas Coated Screen—MIRROROIDE—Coate Under the Same Principles as a Mirror.

IT LASTS A LIFETIME

Stands All Climates, Wet or Dry. Made by the Largest and Oldest and Only Thoroughly Experience Screen ad Curtain Manufacturers in the World.

MIRROROIDE Is Sold Under a Guarantee. Writ Now. Booklet of Testimonials, Circulars, Guarante Samples, Etc., Free.

Write Dept. D for Our Artificial Leather Product Decorate Your Theater! Re-Cover Your Worn Seats Samples Free.

Single-Phase, Non-Heating, Variable Speed Motors f Projecting Machines. Dept. E.

J. H. GENTER COMPANY
NEWBURGH, N. Y.

MODERN AND UP-TO-DATE ADVERTISING

A Beautiful Oak Frame 6 Feet High and 3 Feet Wide for $10.00
36 Posters Per Week, or a Poster for Each Licensed Film, for $2.00
All Back Posters Prior to Date of Order, for $1.00 Per Week

THESE POSTERS ARE LITHOGRAPHED IN COLORS AND MADE TO FIT THE FRAME

CAN — YOU — BEAT — IT?

EXHIBITORS ADVERTISING CO. SUITE 604-605-606 117 NORTH DEARBORN STREET CHICAGO, ILL.

Us Is Growing! Uncle Sam has a new nephew! Arizona has joined the Union! Another star in the flag! Flag this: The brightest star in the independent banner program is

MARION LEONARD!

We Thought you were too busy making money with two Rex a week to have time to read very much; so—our advertisement this week is mostly cuts—illustrations of what we are doing!

"The Final Pardon"

IT WAS NOT HER HAND BUT GOD'S

Released Thursday Feb. 29th

A tale that will make you hear your heart!

Let your Patrons Judge it!

"THROUGH FLAMING GATES"

RUINS AND REGRET—A MIND'S OBLIVION

Released Sunday March 3d

It will fire your audience with enthusiasm!

A Marion Leonard Release Extraordinary!

The fire department only helps to make the picture realistic!

It will catch on!

The Rex Motion Picture Masterpiece Co.

573 ELEVENTH AVENUE : : : : NEW YORK

"EVERY INCH A FILM"

Sold through Motion Picture Dist. & Sales Co.

Your exchange knows you want Sunday and Thursday REX, but REMIND IT!

? IS THERE

A Perfect Quality Film stock absolutely fire proof giving

Good results, embodying strength and

Few wear possessing fine photographic detail.

The answer is There is one

A G and that is F A

NON-INFLAMMABLE

Film Stock

The film of the near future will be on A G F A stock. Take time by the forelock. Use it

NOW

Sold only by

Raw Film Supply Co.

15 E. 26th STREET NEW YORK

Tel. Mad. Sq. 7876 Cable Rawfilm New York

EXHIBITOR'S "BUSINESS BOOSTERS"

Feature Posters, Banners, Heralds For All Feature Films

Licensed and Independent. Something new every week

EIGHT SHEETS 75c. THREE SHEETS 30 and 35c.
ONE SHEET POSTERS 15c.

(Add 1c. per sheet for postage if ordered sent by mail.)

Have in stock the following: The Danites, The Diamond "S' Ranch, Bell of Penance, Under Burning Skies, You Remember Ellen, Spartan Mother, War on the Plains, Indian Massacre, Justice of the Desert, Trapped by Wireless, Corsicai Brothers, The Little Black Box, Princess of the Hills, Battl of Pottsburg Bridge, Cinderella, Jack and the Bean Stalk Arrah-Na-Pogue, Colleen Bawn, Two Orphans, Vanity Fair Uncle Tom's Cabin, Pathe Weekly, Dr. Jykell & Mr. Hyde East Lynn, and all feature subjects for past or future releases

CLASSY DISPLAY BANNERS—3 x 12 ft., lithographed in 4 colors, on heavy muslin (with eyelet in corners for hanging), for any release, License and Independent. $1.00 EACH.

These banners are works of art, and as "BUSINESS BOOSTERS" they cannot be equalled, a they cater to both sides of the street.

HERALDS—The most successful money-getter ever devised for Moving Picture Theatres.

Every Manager who has used them is loud in hi praise of these heralds as business-bringers.

We have standing orders from many manager for every feature release.

These heralds are printed on good book pape 8 x 11 inches, with illustration and description c film.

We sell them blank, $2.00 for first 1,000 an $1.75 for all subsequent 1,000 lots, or we furnis them printed with name of Theatre, Date, etc., c first 1,000, $2.75; subsequent 1,000, $2.25.

Send a trial order.

PHOTO PLAYER POSTERS—1-Sheet poste (in colors) of Maurice Costello, Florence Turne John Bunny, Alice Joyce, Andy, and other popul favorites, 20c. each.

SOUVENIR POST CARDS of all popular pho players, $4.00 per 1,000. They are great mone getters for Photo Play shows.

HANDSOME COLORED PICTORIAL AN NOUNCEMENT SLIDES of every descriptio such as "Good Night," "Welcome," "New Pictur To-morrow," etc., 35c. each.

REMITTANCE must accompany order. Remit postal or Express Money Order or New York Dra No personal checks or C.O.D.

PHOTO PLAY ADVERTISING & SPECIALTY CO.
Main Office—121-123 4th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

BRANCH OFFICES:

Century Bldg., Cleveland, Ohio	26 W. Naghten St., Columbus, Ohio	Equity Bl Detroit, M dest

ad
Bst

3
A
EEK

NESTOR

Always
a Feature

3
A WEEK

"The Worth-While Film"

Scene from

HE SMUGGLERS

Release of Monday, Feb. 26th, 1912

A Foto-Drama of Remarkable Beauty

(1000 Feet)

Wednesday, Feb. 28th

AT ROLLING FORKS

Western Foto-Drama of Deep Interest

(1000 Feet)

Saturday, March 2nd

A Delightful Split Reel

IS GOOD INTENTIONS

A Snappy Foto-Comedy in 700 Feet

HE BATTLE OF ROSES

Topical) 300 Feet of Flowery Fragrance

COMING NESTORS

ch 4th, The Mills of the Gods (Drama)
ch 6th, The Double Trail (W. Drama)
ch 9th, The Village Rivals (Comedy)

For mammoth PHOTO of entire NESTOR FILM COMPANY, send 50c in stamps to

D VID HORSLEY : : BAYONNE, N. J.

ECLAIR

The wondrous success of the American produced Eclair Films proves that advanced ideas in Motion Picture Play building, supplemented by photographic beauty which appeals through its excellence, is readily understood and welcomed by Exchange and Exhibitor alike.

Superb Photos Supplied Free

Your exchange carries these photos in sets for each release, if he buys Eclair Films. Don't fail to get them with your service or tell us why.

Coming Tuesday, March 5th

A Child's Plea

Sympathy-Drama, Length 950 feet

Released Thursday, March 7th

No Wedding Bells For Me

A Ripping Comedy, Length 950 feet

Released Sunday, March 10th

Alcohol—the Masterpiece

Length 2000 feet

Get on Our Big List—Write

ECLAIR FILM CO.,

FORT LEE, N. J.

Sales Company Sole Agents

GREAT NORTHERN

Release for Saturday, February 24th

THOSE MARRIED MEN

The ludicrous story of three married men's endeavors to escape the monotony and restrictions of home life and of their subsequent exposure.

Release for Saturday, March 3rd

REVENGE IS SWEET

A pleasing comedy production - - - - - - - - - 519 ft.

OBVERSE AND REVERSE

A novel subject showing that things are not always what they seem. 389 ft.

ALL FIRST-CLASS INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES HANDLE OUR PRODUCT!

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO., 7 E. 14th St., N. Y.

(NORDISK FILM CO. OF COPENHAGEN.)

THOUSANDS OF EXHIBITORS

Realize that these Trademarks signify

THE HIGHEST STANDARD OF FILM PRODUCTION and are using the following programme:

MONDAY—American, Champion, Imp, Nestor.
TUESDAY—Eclair, Majestic, Powers, Republic, Thanhouser.
WEDNESDAY—Ambrosio, Champion, Nestor, Reliance, Solax.
THURSDAY—American, Eclair, Imp, Rex.
FRIDAY—Bison (2-reel subject), Lux, Solax, Thanhouser.
SATURDAY—Great Northern, Imp, Nestor, Powers, Reliance, Republic.
SUNDAY—Majestic, Rex, Eclair.

AMERICAN FILM MANUFACTURING CO., Ashland Block, Chicago, Ill.
CARLTON MOTION PICTURE LABORATORIES, 540 W. 21st St., N. Y. C.
CHAMPION FILM COMPANY, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. C.
COMET FILM COMPANY, 344 East 32nd St., N. Y. C.
ECLAIR FILM COMPANY, Fort Lee, New Jersey.
IMP FILMS CO., 102 West 101st St., N. Y. C.
LUX FILM COMPANY, 10 East 15th St., N. Y. C.
MAJESTIC MOTION PICTURE COMPANY, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. C.
NESTOR FILM COMPANY, 688 Avenue E, Bayonne, New Jersey.
NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE COMPANY, 251 West 19th St., N. Y. C.
GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY, 7 East 14th St., N. Y. C.
POWERS MOTION PICTURE COMPANY, 511 West 42nd St., N. Y. C.
REPUBLIC FILM COMPANY, 145 West St., N. Y. C.
REX MOTION PICTURE COMPANY, 573 Eleventh Ave., N. Y. C.
SOLAX COMPANY, Congress Ave., Flushing, Long Island.
THANHOUSER COMPANY, New Rochelle, N. Y.

Motion Picture Distributing and Sales Company
111 East 14 Street, New York City

Colossal - Dramatic - Military Production

REPLETE WITH THRILLS, SENSATIONS AND SURPRISES

"The Deserter"

TWO-REEL FEATURE

Released
Friday, March 15

Stirring Military Life in the Early Days of the West

Thrilling Battle

Whirlwind Cavalry Charge

"THE BATTLE OF THE RED MEN"

IN TWO REELS RELEASED FRIDAY, MARCH 8

A wonderful subject of Indian warfare, interwoven with a dramatic story of breathless interest showing how a squaw by her strategy avenges the death of her husband and succeeds in destroying the tribe of his enemies

"101" BISON FILMS ARE THE TALK OF THE WORLD

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO., 251 W. 19th St., New York City

Give Me YOUR Attention!

Please Notice the FEATURE FILMS
I am giving you as Regular Releases

ON MARCH 12th

The two-reel picture play masterpiece presenting MILDRED HOLLAND in

"THE POWER BEHIND THE THRONE"

Remember the paper, 1, 3 and 8 sheet lithos, booklets, cuts, heralds, etc., etc.

ON MARCH 16th

My ST. PATRICK'S DAY Offering, the Strong Drama

"SOGARTH AROON"

For Tuesday, March 5th	For Saturday, March 9th
"The Honor of a Pugilist"	"His Daughter's Loyalty"

SEE SYNOPSES

POWERS MOTION PICTURE CO. 511 W. Forty-second Street, New York City

SATURDAY, MARCH 9---1960 FEET

DRAMA DAY

THE TRUST

The Two-Reel Sensation of the Season

A candid, fearless, exposition of the crookedness of large monopolistic corporations. A film that will open your eyes and wrap you in surprise, because of the courage of its story.

TUESDAY, MARCH 5---998 FEET

COMEDY DAY

Jimmie Saves the Situation

A good, hearty laugh that will lend further proof to the fact that the "Jimmie" series of comedies are superior and without equal, and

THE WONDERFUL ADVENTURES OF

HERR MUNCHHAUSEN

A hand-drawn comedy depicting the risible stories of the German humorist Reuter.

GAUMONT INDEPENDENT

A COMEDY EVERY TUESDAY

A DRAMA EVERY SATURDAY

Scene from The Trust

THE GAUMONT WEEKLY

Thursdays Regularly

Note.—Release date of the weekly is identical with shipping date, thereby latest news assured.

Scene from Jimmie Saves the Situation

Saturday
March 16
977 Feet

Maternity

Tuesday
March 12
928 Feet

Calino and His Boarders and What's in a Name?

LAST MOMENT TO SEND ORDER FOR

Feb. 27---Jimmie's Artful Dodge and The Panorama of Bruges

March 2---THE TALE OF A DOG

GAUMONT CO.

FLUSHING, NEW YORK, Agents

COMING!

Saturday, March 30———One Reel———Hand Colored

A picturesque and interesting story dealing with the days of chivalry and the golden hours when knighthood flourished supreme.

THE MARGRAVE'S DAUGHTER

EUROPE and ASIA bowed in homage to this hand colored masterpiece. The London Times credited it with being a series of oil paintings replete with interest, because of the noble story that grips the whole theme.

Start to Holler for it Now! A Big Box-Office Booster!

FEATURES?

How many times do you see the word used in connection with cheap and tawdry make-shifts called "productions"? How often do you find, to your sorrow, after buying or renting these impositions you have simply "fallen for the press agent's patter," and not only deceived yourself and your patrons, but have invested your money in "padded," cheaply thrown together melodramas of the worst calibre, exploited by so-called "Feature Film Co.'s," whose only asset is printers' ink and a letterhead.

Eclair Features Surpass

because they are made by a company whose sole ambition is to last. Every scene in an Eclair Feature impresses with its bigness. Expense is evident in Eclair Features because Eclair invests in Productions which advertise themselves and not in false publicity.

A BIG FEATURE EVERY MONTH

Just enough to allow Eclair time to make them perfect and to allow you to advertise well in advance. You get these Features through Accredited Sales Co. Exchanges at a slight advance on your regular service and need not fear being imposed on by traveling fakirs.

First Big Two-Reel Release — Out March 10

introduces a Subject about which the whole World is talking.

ALCOHOL—The Poison of Humanity

Produced in TWO parts and 41 Awe-Inspiring Scenes. Enacted by a veritable army of players culled from the most prominent theatres in all Europe.

Eclair's "Alcohol" is entirely unlike other subjects bearing similar titles. Nothing like it has ever been seen before.

PHOTOS, POSTERS, HERALDS, HANGERS AND BOOKLETS IN ADVANCE

Ask your exchange or send 25c for full line of samples.

Next Release—Out April 7

THE LAND OF DARKNESS

or, Through the Bowels of the Earth

WRITE FOR FREE BOOKLET

Exhibitor's Note—If, for any reason, you are not able to get Eclair features from your exchange, notify us promptly and steps will be taken to serve you through other offices.

ECLAIR FILM CO., Fort Lee, N. J.

Sales Company Sole Agents

Another Prize Winner In the Imp Contest will be released on Saturday, March 9th. It is a dandy comedy from the pen of Charles Ade, of Joplin, Mo. Will you get it or miss it? It is entitled

"The Home Strike Breakers"

(Copyright 1912, Imp Films Co.)

On the same reel you will get one of the best animal life studies ever snapped by a moving picture camera. Title,

"Rhoda Royal's Trained Horses"

(Copyright 1912, Imp Films Co.)

Horses, ponies and dogs from the famous Rhoda Royal Circus are put through some splendid evolutions. On Thursday (March 7th) you will get another glorious Thursday Imp made in California. If you are missing these Thursday Special Imps, you are not getting your money's worth! Fight for them. This one is called

"The Call of the Drum"

(Copyright 1912, Imp Films Co.)

On Monday, March 4th, there will be another drama of the Northwest—the kind which has helped build up the Imp's reputation for thoroughness. Watch every little detail of this picture called

"Far from the Beaten Track"

(Copyright 1912, Imp Films Co.)

What is the talk of the moving picture business? The "Implet," of course. If you are not getting it every week, why in Heaven's name don't you say so and send in your name and address? Watch it grow! Watch it improve! It is the moving picture newspaper.

IMP FILMS COMPANY
102 WEST 101st ST., NEW YORK
CARL LAEMMLE, President

COYLE'S
Fire Proof
SILVER SCREENS

Patented Oct. 31, 1911.

MR. EXHIBITOR, you will find it to your interest to get in communication with us at once.

We have the only patented fire proof Silver Picture Curtain in the World for producing

DAY LIGHT PICTURES.

DO NOT BE MISLED BY INSTALLING INFERIOR SILVER CURTAINS.

Write for our BOOKLET This will explain all

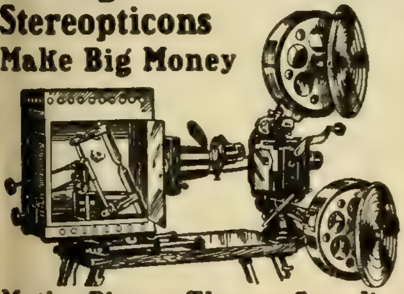
Coyle Silver Curtain Co.
MARKET AND EIGHTH STS., CANTON, O.

OPERATORS WANTED

I can furnish profitable occasional assignments to free lance moving picture camera operators wherever located. Let me have name, address quickly.

DIRECTOR,
Care of M. P. World
New York City

Moving Picture Machines
Stereopticons
Make Big Money



Motion Picture Theatre Supplies

We carry on hand at all times the largest and most complete line of Repairs and Supplies for all Standard Machines, also Tickets, Carbons, Screens, Chairs, etc. Can ship at once. Special Slides made to order. We also handle Motiograph, Edison and Powers Machines. Write to-day for THEATER CATALOGUE

CHICAGO PROJECTING CO.
219 S. Deaborn St., Dept. A, Chicago, Ill.

You Can't Beat It — Why Try —

This is the only book that keeps all records of your show day by day and week by week. Send at once, we pay the postage, $2.00.

MARPLE THEATRE CO.
WICHITA, KANSAS
Ref. Merchant's State Bank

COMING

Friday, March 15th.

"Falling Leaves"

When Critics Say:-

Cleverly worked out—better than Lubin's. (Mirror)
Fine Photographic effects. (Morning Telegraph)
Beautifully staged and acted. (World)
Original Comedy situations. (News)

What do you think they all mean? See our February and March releases for the answer.

Released Wednesday, March 6th.

SEALED LIPS

Chords, surcharged with human sympathy and human suffering, permeate this dramatic moving picture symphony. The fortitude with which the Catholic Priest endures poignant suffering in order to keep the secret of the confessional, reveals a characterization that will take root in the hearts of the most hardened.

Released Friday, March 8th.

"THE ANIMATED BATHTUB"

This bathtub is an invention which disturbs the quiet of Billy's uncle who comes to spend a quiet day with his nephew. The comedy was produced by Madame Blache, and an all-star comedy cast which includes Billy Quirk, Darwin Karr, Lee Beggs and the others.

Advance Announcements

Wednesday, March 13th,—Nearly an Heiress.
Friday, March 15th,—Falling Leaves.

Solax Company
CONGRESS AVE., FLUSHING, N. Y.
SALES COMPANY Agents in U. S. A. and Canada

LUBIN FILMS

RELEASED WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 28th, 1912
Length about 1000 feet

"LOVE AND TEARS"

John Lavanon and his wife are a well-to-do and admirable couple, but after a year of happiness, Barbara, the wife, falls sick with an incurable malady. For a while Lavanon is frantic with grief and ever at her bedside, but finally he wearies of the sick-room and seeks more pleasant scenes. One night the doctor, seeing that the end is near, sends for the husband, but he is going to a ball and promises to return early. On his return, he enters the room to say "Good-night," but Barbara has passed away. He is too late.

RELEASED THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 29th, 1912
Length about 1000 feet

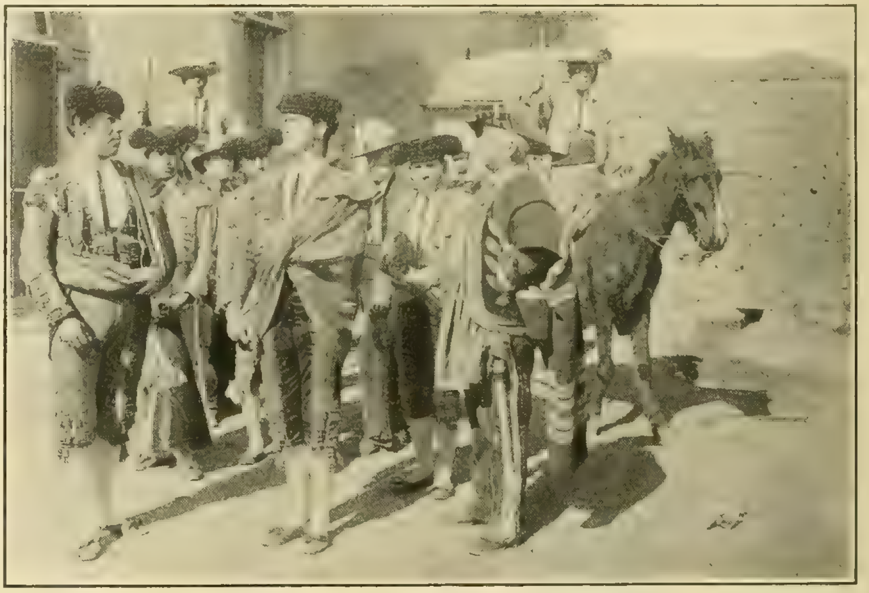
"BETTY AND THE DOCTOR"

Dr. Gordon, who has just bought a practice in a small town advertises and secures board and lodging with Mrs. Snowden and her daughter. The doctor being alone in the world falls in love with the girl. An old playmate of Betty's makes a call and takes her for an auto ride, which ends in an accident. The doctor becomes jealous but full explanation satisfies him and he is made happy.

RELEASED SATURDAY, MARCH 2nd, 1912
Length about 1000 feet

"A MEXICAN COURTSHIP"

Alonzo, the most famous matador of Mexico, and Juan, a hanger-on at the Plaza El Torres, are both trying to win Dolores Duanes, the prettiest little maid in Juarez. The girl's parents, of course, favor the rich bullfighter, but Dolores loves Juan. A fierce bull from Chihuahua is to be put in the arena and Alonzo is heralded to meet the beast, but he is too drunk to enter the ring. The crowd clamor for a matador and young Juan offers to face the bull, which, after a brave fight, he kills. His name and fame quickly flashed all over Mexico, and Dolores' parents are proud to give their little girl to so famous a bullfighter.



SCENE FROM "A MEXICAN COURTSHIP"

RELEASED MONDAY, MARCH 4th, 1912

"THE BABY TRAMP"

"Shorty Sam" being rather small is made up by Weary Jake, an associate hobo, to impersonate a baby. They work the Park promenade, and the ladies and children make much of the new, plump baby. Nickels, pennies and fruit are freely dropped into baby's go-cart until a Dutch baker strokes Shorty's chin and suggests that baby needs a shave. There is a quick demonstration which ends to the hoboes' discomfort.

RELEASED MONDAY, MARCH 4th, 1912. Split Reel

"FISHING IN FLORIDA"

A very interesting picture graphically illustrating the combined sport and industry of catching the monster Jue Fish of our southern coast. These fish often weigh upwards of 600 pounds and fight hard for life and liberty. The killing and skinning is a rapid process, accomplished in less than five minutes.

LUBIN MANUFACTURING COMPANY,

MODEL NEW STUDIOS,
20th and Indiana Avenue
Philadelphia, Pa.

CHICAGO: 154 WEST LAKE ST. B. NICHOLS, 86 WARDOUR ST., LONDON, W., ENGLAND BERLIN: 35 FRIEDRICH STR.

A CIN-ES
EVERY TUESDAY
and SATURDAY

AN ECLIPSE
EVERY WEDNESDAY

NEXT WEEK'S RELEASES

Cin-es, Tuesday, March 5, 1912

THE CHAUFFEUR

A high class comedy-drama. The story is extremely interesting and is very well produced.

LUCCA, ITALY

(Colored)

An interesting travelogue subject.

Eclipse, Wednesday, March 6, 1912

THE FACTORY GIRL

Describing the love affair between Francis, the owner's son and Susie, a charming girl in the designing department. A drama of intense heart interest.

Cin-es, Saturday, March 9, 1912

THE MOORISH BRIDE

A thrilling story of long ago. It tells of two rival suitors and their struggle to win the hand of the fair Moorish maiden.

Advance Announcements Free. Write to

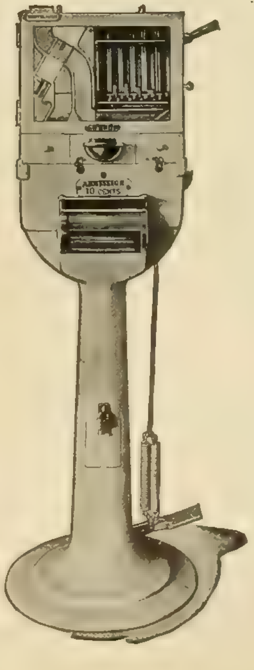
GEORGE KLEINE

166 No. State St., Chicago, Ill.
LICENSED BY MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO.

RELEASED!

IT WILL SAVE YOU FIFTY DOLLARS A MONTH

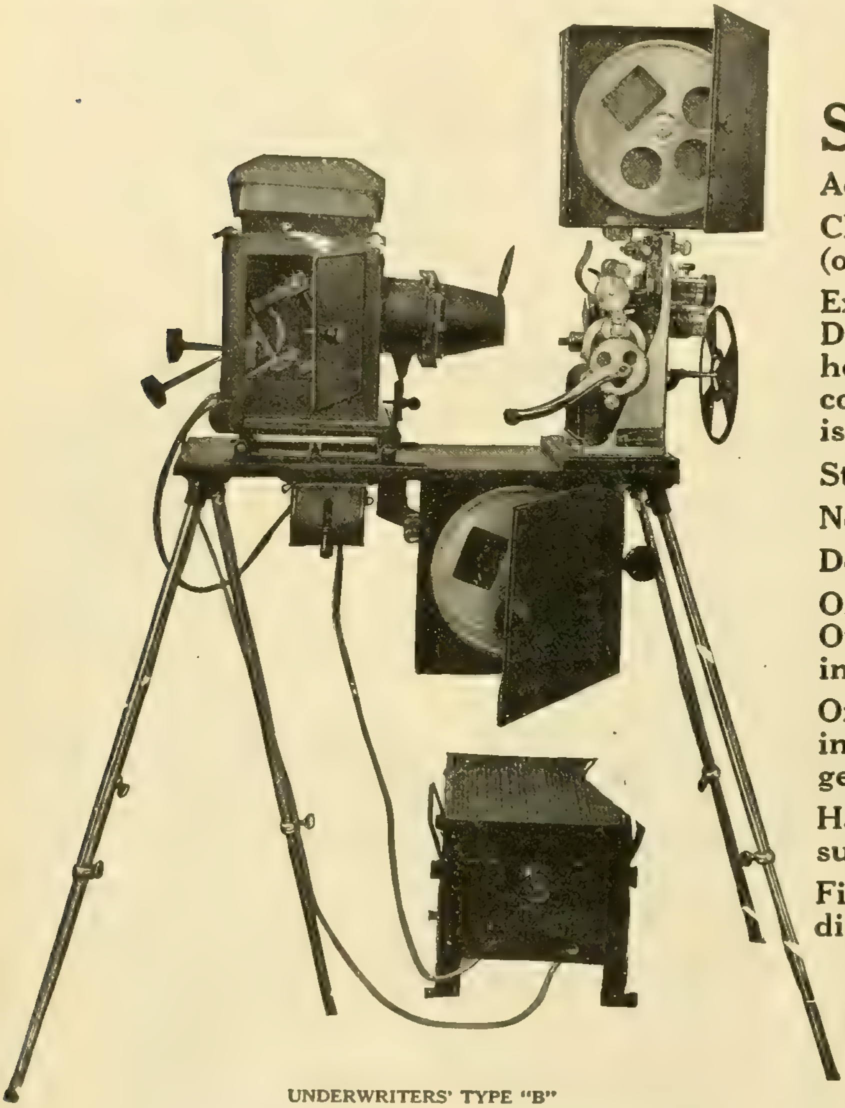
Guaranteed In Writing



Coin Machine Manufacturing Company

Sales Office: Coin Machine Bldg., Dept. M
PORTLAND : : : : : : OREGON

THE EDISON KINETOSCOPE



UNDERWRITERS' TYPE "B"

The Acme of Perfection in a Motion Picture Machine

SPECIAL FEATURES

Adjustable Outside Revolving Shutte

Chain Drive (new) or Belt Drive Takeu (optional).

Extra large and improved Lamp Hous Double doors and square condense holder. With this style no more i convenience when a condenser chang is necessary.

Steel Bearings and Hardened Shafts.

New Heavy Brass Arc Lamp Terminal

Double Magazine Rollers.

Oil Guard over gears operating t Outside Shutter so as to prevent splas ing of oil on film or lenses.

Oil Cups on shutter shaft bearings a intermediate pinion of the chain gears driving the shutter.

Hardened Bearing in the Brack supporting the outside shutter.

Five extra-heavy legs, 1¼ inches diameter.

Edison "B" means Efficienc Durability and Satisfactio Guaranteed to be Mechanical Perfect.

No other business to-day holds out s rich promise of big returns on such s investment and at such low operating cos the moving picture business.

No other business gets under way so quic gets into its stride and starts making mo within so short a time. A show starts ma money from the minute you open the do A good show keeps on making money, keeps its profits clear by starting with the machine made. Send to-day for complete formation regarding the Edison Kinetos and a copy of the Edison Kinetogram.

THOMAS A. EDIS
INCORPORATED
239 Lakeside Avenue
Orange, - - - - New Jer

COMING EDISON FILMS

Tell Your Exchange You Want Them

Mar. 5—Lost, Three Hours, by Ethel Browning, 1,000 feet. Comedy.

Mar. 6—The Yarn of the "Nancy Bell," by Sir W. S. Gilbert, 970 feet. Comedy.

Mar. 8—The Heir Apparent, by Marion Brooks, 1,050 feet. Dramatic.

March 9—New York Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association, (Madison Square Garden, N. Y.), 540 feet; educational. The Patent Housekeeper, 460 feet; comedy.

March 12—The Baby, by H. B. Marriott Watson, 1,000 feet. Comedy.

March 13—Her Polished Family, 1,000 feet. Comedy.

March 15—For the Commonwealth (Produced in co-operation with the National Committee on Prison Labor), 1,000 feet. Dramatic.

The Leading Motion Picture Producer of the World

FOLLOW THE FLAG

SELIG

MAR. 4th

THE Shrinking Rawhide

A romance of the care-free early California days, before the Gringo came. Picturesque and very dramatic. Messrs. Bosworth and Rawlinson and Miss Harte in the leading roles.

MAR. 5th

THE Ace of Spades

A dramatic episode of the West in which fate plays a hand. Laid in the Klondyke and the city. A really remarkable plot, with intense situations. Miss Harte and Messrs. Rawlinson and Clark in the leading parts.

COMING COMING

TWO BIG FEATURES

MAR. 12th BOUNDER

The tale of a mountain lion. Another great big thrilling, gripping, dare devil Selig animal feature. You can't afford to miss it.

About 1000 feet

MAR. 15th Across the Isthmus of Panama in 1912

Showing Uncle Sam at work on an engineering feat of far greater magnitude than ever before attempted. Best topical of recent years.

About 1000 feet

TRADE MARK

MAR. 7th

THE Brotherhood of Man

A heart interest drama of the Lower Five and the Upper Ten. One tremendous scene shows a wrestling match between two excellent professional wrestlers. Messrs. Duncan and Weed and Misses Stedman and Williams in the leading roles.

MAR. 8th

Hypnotized

A screaming farce comedy showing the exciting and ludicrous experiences of a country town editor after being hypnotized by a traveling exponent of this wonderful art. Messrs. Cox, Duncan, Stowell and Rosselli and Miss Greenwood in the principal parts.

Selig Polyscope Co. TRADE S MARK Chicago U.S.A.

EUROPEAN OFFICES

LONDON — BERLIN — ST PETERSBURG.

KALEM

A Spartan Mother

A Thrilling War Drama

Released Monday March 11th

This is, without question, the most sensational and dramatic war production we have ever made

We have prepared special music for this feature film consisting of a complete piano score, which will be sent, postage prepaid, on receipt of 25c.

The A. B. C. Co. have made specially attractive one, three and six sheet, four color litho's for this subject. For sale by all licensed exchanges or advertising distributers.

A Victim of Circumstance

This story is an exposé of conditions as they still exist in the Turpentine convict camps.

Released Wednesday, March 13th

The Belle of New Orleans

A typical story of New Orleans while under French rule.

Released Friday, March 15th

KALEM COMPANY
INCORPORATED
NEW YORK, 235-239 W. 23rd St.
86 Wardour St., LONDON, W.
BERLIN, 35 Friedrich Str.
PARIS, 13 Rue du Faubourg Montmartre

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING COMPANY
(Beach Building)
J. P. CHALMERS, Editor and Manager.
125 E. 23d. Street, NEW YORK
Telephone call, 1343-1344 Gramercy

Entered at the General Post Office in New York City as Second Class Matter.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $3.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada, $3.50. Foreign Countries, $4.00, Post Paid.

WESTERN OFFICE: 169 W. Washington St. (Post Bldg.), Chicago, Ill. Phone, Main 3145. Automatic Phone 32732.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES ON APPLICATION.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS (No Display), Three Cents per Word; Minimum Charge, 50c.

Address all correspondence "Moving Picture World, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square, New York," and not to individuals.

Vol. 11 MARCH 2, 1912 No. 9

INDEX TO CONTENTS.

DVERTISING FOR EXHIBITORS.............763
MONG THE EXHIBITORS 802

ERNHARDT AND REJANE IN PICTURES...760
RICK CHURCH ENDORSES MOTION PICTURES 772

ALENDAR OF INDEPENDENT RELEASES..786
ALENDAR OF LICENSED RELEASES 792
AMPAIGN FOR A MODERN SUNDAY.......759
HICAGO LETTER 761
OMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Licensed)......780
OMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Independent)....781

URBAR IN KINEMACOLOR, THE...........774

DISON PLAYERS IN COMEDY AND DRAMA..768

ESSANAY WESTERN FEATURE.............768

FACTS AND COMMENTS......................756
FILMING THE BIRTH OF A STATE..........772
FROM THE 400 TO THE HERD (American)....775

INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES 804
INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES.............812
INQUIRIES 767

LIGHTHOUSE KEEPER'S DAUGHTER (Edison)769
LICENSED FILM STORIES 796
LICENSED RELEASE DATES 814

MANUFACTURERS' ADVANCE NOTES........783
MEXICAN COURTSHIP, A (Lubin)............769

OBSERVATIONS 767

PROJECTION DEPARTMENT 776

ROASTING THE MOVING PICTURES..........757

SCENARIO WRITER, THE 765
SONG SLIDE RELEASES 795
SPLENDID KALEM FEATURE.................770
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Licensed)........796
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Independent)......804
STUDIO SAUNTERINGS, by Louis Reeves Harrison 758
STUDIO NOTES FROM CALIFORNIA........773

VOICE FROM THE DESERT, A................771

INDEX TO ADVERTISERS.

ARBON IMPORTERS.
RORUP, L. E. 820
IEWERT, CHAS. L. 821
EISINGER, HUGO 820

LECTRICAL EQUIPMENT.
NTERPRISE OPTICAL CO. 809
ORT WAYNE ELEC. CO. 815
IALLBERG, J. H. 810
LG ELEC. CO. 807
IACKIE, H. A. 822-820
CHNEIDER, E. 817

ILM BROKERS.
NTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS............817

ILM EXCHANGES.
ALEHUFF SUPPLY CO. 819
EATURE FILM CO. 805
REENE, W. E. 818
IETZ, L. 817
AEMMLE FILM SERVICE 805
IAJESTIC FILM SERVICE 820
UPERIOR FILM CO. 817
WAAB FILM SERVICE 817
HE FILM EX...................................809

NDEPENDENT FILM MANUFACTURERS.
MERICAN FILM CO. 801
HAMPION FILM CO. 801
RYSTAL FILM CO. 821
CLAIR FILM CO. 747-743
AUMONT FILM CO. 746
REAT NORTHERN FILM CO. 744
MP 748-787
UX 740
IAJESTIC FILM CO. 813
IOTION PICTURE DIS. & SALES CO.........744
ESTOR FILM CO. 743
. Y. MOTION PICTURE CO. 745
OWERS MOTION PICTURE CO. 745
EPUBLIC MOTION PICTURE CO............813
ELIANCE M. P. CO. 815
EX MOTION PICTURE CO. 741
OLAX CO. 749
HANHOUSER CO. 738

ICENSED FILM MANUFACTURERS.
DISON, THOS. A. 752
SSANAY FILM CO. 739
ALEM CO. 754
KLEINE, GEO. 751
LUBIN FILM CO. 750
MELIES CO. 823
PATHE FRERES 817
SELIG POLYSCOPE CO. 753

MISCELLANEOUS.
A. B. C. Co.......................................818
AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO. 807
BALSHOFER, F. J. 795
BATTERSHALL & OLESON 795
BAUSCH & LOMB 807
BELL & HOWELL 815
BENDER, GEO. 810
BRADY, ARTHUR 813
CHICAGO PROJECTION CO. 749
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS 794
COIN MCH. MFG. CO. 751
CORCORAN, A. J. 740
DALBERG, MME. 807
DIAMOND OPERATOR'S SCHOOL 817
ERKER BRO. 822
EXHIBITORS' ADV. CO. 740
EXHIBITORS' ADV. & SPECIALTY CO........792
CHEMIST 815
HOKE, GEO. 803
KRAUS MFG. CO. 794
LAVEZZI CO. 810
MARPLE THEATER 749
McKENNA BROS. 822
MIDLAND TRANSPARENCY CO. 810
MORTIMER FILM CLEANER CO. 805
MOVING PICTURE WORLD (bound volume)....818
NATIONAL TICKET CO. 812
NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO. 819
NEWMAN MANUFACTURING CO. 815
OPERATORS' HANDBOOK 815
PHOTOPLAY ADV. & SPEC. CO.................742
PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE 807
PITTSBURG PHOTOPLAY CO. 809
RAW FILM SUPPLY CO. 742
REID DIFFUSER 803
SARGENT, E. W. 822
TEACH, J. W. 817
TILLEY BRO. 817
U. S. FACTORIES CO. 813
UNITED ROOFING CO. 785
WINDSOR, E. S. 819
TRAINER, C. W. 817

LECTURERS.
HOFFMAN, H. F. 821

MARION, L. M. 813
MOVING PICTURE WORLD........................807

MOVINGPICTURE MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN MOVING PICTURE CO..............820
EDISON MOVING PICTURE CO..................752
ENTERURISE OPTICAL CO. 809
POWER, NICHOLAS 824
SIMPLEX M. P. MCH...............................782

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
DEAGAN, J. C. 813
SINN, CLARENCE E. 813
WURLITZER, RUDOLPH 819
ZEIDLER DRUM CO. 822

OPERA CHAIR MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN SEATING CO. 805
ANDREWS, A. H. 822
BENNETT, GEO. W. 822
HARDESTY CHAIR CO. 822
STEEL FURNITURE CO. 822
WISCONSIN SEATING CO. 822

PROJECTION SCREENS.
AMERICAN THEATER CURTAIN CO. 818
COYLE CURTAIN CO. 749
INVENTORS' SPECIALTY CO. 803
MIRROROID CO. 740

SLIDE MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN MOTION SLIDE CO. 795
EXCELSIOR SLIDE CO. 795
HUNTON FELL ELIIOTT 803
KANSAS CITY SLIDE CO...........................817
LEVI CO. 793
NO. AMERICAN SLIDE CO. 817
SHEPARD, D. J. 795
SCOTT & VAN ALTENA CO.......................795
SIMPSON, A. L. 810
UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO. 819

FEATURE FILMS (released by).
FRENCH-AMERICAN FILM CO.............798-799
FRENCH-AMERICAN FILM C..............798-799
GT. NORTHERN SPEC. FEATURE FILM CO...791
MONOPOL FILM CO. 788-789-790
NATIONAL FILM DISTRIBUTING CO.........816
TOURNAMENT FILM CO..........................810

THEATER ARCHITECTS.
DECORATORS' SUPPLY CO........................805

Facts and Comments

A PREACHER in Wichita, Kansas, has greatly added to the gayety of nations by a furious onslaught against the moving pictures. The reverend person spoke on a text taken from the words of Moses, and by some process of reasoning too deep for solution by the common lay mind, thought it quite appropriate to denounce the "picture shows." The person's name is Smith, and he is an avowed emulator of the Billy Sunday and Sam Small methods of religious campaigning. Of the intellectual and moral calibre of the Rev. Smith these extracts from his "powerful" sermon bear eloquent witness:

> "Oh, you cowardly fire-escape religionists; you think you'll get religion when you come to die. You dirty sneaks; you think that when you get sick enough to die you'll call on some preacher and ask him to help keep you out of hell. Don't you ever call on me at such a time. It would serve you right if there were not a preacher within a thousand miles of you. I would never be such a quitter. If I had lived clear through without God, when I took typhoid fever or something of that kind I'd be a sport and die the way I had lived, just in order to be consistent."

After perusing this chaste piece of ecclesiastical eloquence we were not wholly unprepared for this withering denunciation of ourselves and moving picture patrons generally:

> "There isn't a chance for two of every 200 of you fellows who chase these shows to amount to anything. If you would drive up 500 of them outside this tabernacle door I wouldn't give five cents per hundred for them. The coming man is hunting these shows. Where is he?"

Happily we are spared the necessity of refuting the absurdities of this preacher. The leading newspaper of Wichita took him to task, and we print its article in another part of this issue. We recommend it to our readers as an indication of the trend of public opinion and as pleasant reading for every friend of the moving picture. The educated clergy are everywhere veering around toward a friendly feeling for the motion picture, and it is altogether in accordance with the eternal fitness of things to have men of the Smith type come out so strongly against it. In the moral economy of things, it seems, there must be such persons as Smith and his ilk. It is one of the inscrutable mysteries of Providence, and we have neither time nor inclination to inquire after these things too deeply.

* * *

ONE of our esteemed British contemporaries—we cannot just remember which one—challenged us some time ago to prove our allegation that the European manufacturers produced films of a nasty and immoral character and that, in catering to the European markets, our manufacturers would have to be careful not to descend to a low level. Well, we cannot, even to please a contemporary, analyze the contents of a garbage can. Whenever we have to pass a cinematographic Barren Island we try to get away with all convenient speed. We may, however, mention as one of the lesser offences a film released by some obscure German firm and frankly entitled "In a Champagne Jag." We are translating with the aid of powerful disinfectants in giving it the above English dress. The advertisements announcing this precious production are profusely illustrated with the portrait of a supposed theatrical lady whose personal pulchritude is absolutely on the bovine order and is very freely displayed in various attitudes which, no doubt, are believed to be very sensational, but judged by our standards are simply nauseating. The Gallic nastiness comes to the surface in a production called the "Four Devils." A due regard for the taste of our readers forbids us to say more on the subject. It is in no boasting spirit that we maintain our contention for the moral superiority of the American-made picture. We are only stating facts. We repeat that the American-made film is doing missionary work in Europe both in a moral and an artistic sense. As to the British makes we can only reiterate that they are too utterly soporific to be immoral.

* * *

TWO small boys were looking with wide-open eyes at the last series of the cinematographic Inferno of Dante. They commented freely upon the pictures as they passed along the screen. The circle of the giants was flashed before them. The first of the giants was Nimrod with a horn about his body. For a moment the boys were puzzled. "What's that big fellow in for," asked one of the other. "Why," replied the other little chap, "it must be for having blowed his own horn too much." The incident with any good moral it might possibly contain is respectfully dedicated to the earnest consideration of our distinguished friend and collaborator, "The Spectator," in care of the D—m-t-c M-rr-r.

* * *

> The apologists for moving pictures are free to admit their present deficiencies. But they have decidedly improved in quality while the invention is yet in its infancy, and it is believed that in the end they will profoundly influence public taste for the better.

No, reader dear, this little paragraph is not, as you might be tempted to believe, an excerpt from some old issue of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD, but a quotation from an editorial in the New York World, the same paper which but a few months ago indulged in all kinds of foolish and indiscriminate abuse of moving pictures. Some time ago we prophesied in these columns that for every line of condemnation the press would eventually write two lines of commendation, and the prophesy has come true. The comment of the New York World was made in connection with the report of the National Bureau of Education, of which Dr. Dresslar is the head. This report is an extremely interesting document and offers much food for thought and reflection for every friend of the motion picture. We have at this writing no complete copy of the document before us, but will comment upon the numerous interesting points made by Dr. Dresslar in a future issue of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD. We trust then to be able to convince Dr. Dresslar, that the moving picture is very far indeed from being an hindrance to education and that on the contrary it will help and save expenses. The apparatus, now used for education in the primary grades especially, is heavy and cumbersome compared to cinematographic methods. With less cost the motion picture will lay the surest kind of a foundation for the mastering of the higher branches of all the exact sciences.

Roasting the Moving Pictures

From the Wichita (Kas.) Eagle.

CONCURRENT with the stupendous multiplication of moving picture theaters, and with the enormous popularity of these institutions, there has grown up quite ittle fashion among the high-brows and public speakers take a shot at this popular form of entertainment. Only ently a gifted speaker connected with the Men and Re-ion movement, in Wichita, as a portion of his mes-e that this country is imperiled by the frivolous habits of people, soaked the moving picture business with a very prehensive club, included them all, good and bad, in one sweep of his arms and voice.

In a general way," this orator's message was truly in-red with helpfulness, as was proven by the scores of men o were moved by his words to announce publicly a desire lead better lives.

t should not be the purpose of a daily newspaper in any y to depreciate such a valued worker's efforts, nor to ke any comment which anybody might misunderstand as lt-finding with a gifted man, and an earnest and sincere n trying to help other men.

t is, however, the business of the press to endeavor sin-cely to present various sides of public questions, and to d a hand in protecting and to help boost anything which of benefit to mankind.

his speaker who roasted moving picture shows as a ole, taking the trouble to explain that he did not mean rely those shows which are immoral or degrading, we be-e, hit this modern invention too hard. We believe that overreached in this respect. In delivering a great mes-e of his own, he hit, and hit without truth, another means benefitting mankind.

t is true that the American people are showing a tendency dawdle away their time and money on frivolities. But s mere dawdling of opportunity is nothing new under the . Before the book of Ecclesiastes was written, humanity st have shown this tendency. "Vanity of vanities; all is ity, saith the preacher."

But before any people can come to the realization of this at fact; before they can as a mass of millions of souls ne to the appreciation of what is opportunity, and what is value of time, and before they can select between the lities of life, and the mere charlotte russe of life, they st from some source and by some method be trained up these distinctions.

nstead of thundering at the moving picture show, and in-ad of weeping jeremiads at the ubiquitous films, we take ery opposite attitude, and venture to disagree with those o repudiate the entire institution.

n a way, the moving picture shows are invading the field the publisher, so that selfishly any publisher might be ected to join in knocking on a competitor. But on the trary we welcome this new sort of publisher, who has n a more graphic medium than the man who deals with per and ink. The newspapers and the magazines fill a ording purpose in the world, and we believe also that the ving pictures are of an enormous benefit to carry on the rk of civilization. Thanks to the moving pictures, the rld is getting better acquainted all around.

To repudiate all moving picture shows as such is as in-sistent as to scorn all newspapers and magazines and oks. You can't call all books good and tell the truth, nor n you truthfully call them all bad. Quite as inconsistently uld a critic discredit the art of public speaking, sweeping ay from the rostrum a righteous man with a real message obbing to the hearts of other men, just because some er men with gifted tongues are liars and fakirs and rkers of subterfuges.

To lament the fact that hundreds of thousands of American people daily spend their nickels and their hours in moving picture shows is quite as indiscriminating and quite as unjust and as lacking in distinction as the criticism by those short-sighted persons who regret that multitudes pack tabernacles to hear spoken messages.

We decline to accept as truth any criticism of the moving picture show as a modern institution. We admit, however, that just as there are mere word-milliners among writers and mere hot-air merchants peddling oratory, so are there frivolous, dawdling, time-killing, immoral moving pictures and picture shows.

But to get out the hammer and to knock all picture shows is just as unjust to the inventor of the moving pictures, and to the artists and the actors who prepare the films, and to the managers who provide the houses to show them in, as it would be just because some people read Laura Jean Libby instead of Shakespeare, or the latest smut instead of the Bible, to decry that Gutenberg ever invented movable type, or that printers and editors are giving millions of people matter to read.

In the days of Homer the stories of actual history and the stories of the joys and the woes of human hearts were distributed around by word of mouth; men later hammered laboriously with ink and quill, a distribution, less tedious since the invention of movable type and process engraving. Until the Twentieth Century history and literature were distributed entirely through the medium of type and pictures which sought by symbols to conjure the appearance of actual occurrence. But the printed art at its best trusted entirely in the convincing delivery of its message to the imagination of the reader or spectator.

But suddenly as a further step in this series of centuries of improvement on man's method of depiction of the story of mankind an inventor prepares a means of rebuilding the past, and of bringing to the beholder things that are absent, which do not take for granted an imagination working in the mind of the beholder, but which show the world in actual motion. Already the invention is being supplanted with the attending sounds of the action, and of the synchronous spoken words of the moving pictures.

"The children of the stage, who with fancy's wand rebuild the past," suddenly are more economically presented, and the dollar and a half theater ticket is marked down to a nickel, with which millions of people are daily responding.

Yet a man stands up in Wichita before 6,000 other men, reads the great oration of Moses as a text of his wonderful sermon, and then proceeds as part of his message to slam without discrimination into the moving picture business, not knowing that the greatest realization the people of Wichita ever got of the life of Moses was at a five-cent theater in this city.

All the parsons in Wichita can paint vocal word pictures for one year, and fail to bring home to any man as real and as beautiful and as inspiring the story of Moses and the scenes of the Chosen People in bondage in Egypt and their wanderings in the wilderness, as was shown in this city in that little theater. If the men of religion had been as up-to-date as they claim to be, those films of "The Life of Moses" would not have been sent away from Wichita until they had been shown in every church in this city.

If a man would think also that the whole face of the earth with its natural wonders, its peoples, its buildings, its processes of nature; that not only the living present but the dead past, with mythology, and history; and that the books of Dickens and the Dumas romances, and Dante's Inferno, all take on life to the masses at the five-cent theaters who never before had the time or the price or the tip that these things were worth their while, he would go slow in bucking up against an institution that has come to stay.

CLASSICAL DANCING ON THE SCREEN.

On Saturday, March 16, the Imp Films Company will re-se a picture illustrative of interpretive dancing by the untess Thamara de Swirsky. The services of this lady re secured at great expense by the Imp Films Company, d she will not again dance for moving picture purposes.

The lady made her American debut as a dancer at the tropolitan Opera House at New York City in the season 1909-10 in Gluck's opera "Orfeo." She then appeared fore New York society at Newport; subsequently at the ston Opera House and elsewhere.

The Countess de Swirsky was educated in Paris. She is of a noble Russian family and a very skillful pianist. It was her study and knowledge of music that led her to take up the new art of interpretive dancing. One of her critics say: "Mlle. de Swirsky shows perfect understanding of her composers, her whole body seems alive with music as vibrant as a sounded string."

The lady gives first of all a humorous dance and then one entitled "The Spirit of Music." After another dance called "Anitra's Dance," the Countess is shown in a series of plastic poses. Suitable music for the dances is suggested by the Imp Films Company.

Studio Saunterings.

By Louis Reeves Harrison

I CROSSED the uppermost ferry on the Hudson side of New York City, zig-zagged up the Palisades, scooted across the wilds of New Jersey, where shivering motion-picture companies were doing snow scenes in Alaskan dramas, caromed to the West at historic Fort Lee and finally came in view of the neat-looking structures of the Eclair studio and factory. Parlez vous Francais? J'te crois! I learned it on the Boule Miche, and I was glad that I knew enough to get at the ideas of the Eclair Company's officers, though they were kind-hearted and polite, as Frenchmen of the better class always are.

Another well-known French company established an American factory about a year and a half ago, and I happened to learn about the first picture turned out for this market. It concerned the assassination of Lincoln, on the same general principle that an American company would open up in France by telling the people all about Napoleon. It is hardly fair to relate how they had Booth pass the liveried flunkies at the entrance of Lincoln's box and make a speech on the stage after assassinating the President, but they turned one of the nation's greatest tragedies into farce-comedy. The Eclair Company has a new director fresh from Paris, M. Arnaud, long associated with Gaumont, of whom superior work is expected, and I was given an opportunity to criticize his first picture. I was prepared for the inevitable false estimate a man entertains of anything that is strange to him. The Irishman was afraid that God could not understand the Pope because he prayed in a foreign language. France is rich in tradition, and for three hundred years French dramatists have been writing plays that are much alike in purpose, the theaters retain ancient forms, the French have done more for the drama than other people, and it is to be expected that a director hailing from the home of the drama would fail to grasp the fact that he is dealing with an entirely new audience.

The plain truth is that French stage plays are not nearly so popular with our people as they were a few years ago, and the American photodramas are more successful outside of this country than those of any other nation. Any man who comes here from abroad is setting foot on the home soil of the photoplay, where the art is in process of rapid evolution, though this class of production is still very primitive in all countries. He is coming to learn, and New York City is a poor place to study the native American audience. I did not expect much of the foreign director's first effort for the Eclair Company, but I was agreeably disappointed.

The theme of his first production, "The Guardian Angel," was simple and not new, but it was universal and especially well adapted to American picture exhibitions attended very largely by women and children who are quick to appreciate and enjoy whatever reaches out for the heart tendrils. "The Aching Void" (Vitagraph Company) was on exactly the same lines and received widespread commendation. There is nothing in this first presentation to show what the new director can do with a really great play, but he has used extraordinary judgment in selecting a clean and wholesome motif with a strong social purpose. He has apparently started with the right idea.

In order to present a purely American drama it will always be necessary to reflect in action and characterization our life and people as we recognize them, with the purposes of our thinking men and women embodied or suggested. The settings of the playlet I saw were appropriate and the types well chosen, so it is to be hoped that the Eclair Company has scored a "find" who contribute materially to the popularity of moving p tures as a form of entertainment as well as to their va as a fine art.

I was most deeply interested in what President Jour had to say concerning educational films in preparation the Eclair Company, as this line of work is bound constitute a distinct advance over the great majority reels now being turned out for temporary, purely co mercial and not-at-all entertaining purposes. The wea some screen-stories with the unfailing and easily forese embrace at the end are beginning to get on people's nerv they are to the ideal photoplay what the hand organ is grand opera, suited only to monkeys with or without tai A large percentage of our photoplays are not even fit American children.

The educational value of stage dramas is just begi ning to be understood, while that of presentations on t screen, with their wider opportunity and influence is o appreciated by the enlightened few who realize that s perior character in the next generation is bound to developed by combining the acquirement of knowled with what appeals to live human interest. The intel gent direction of the dramatic instinct, so common as be universal among children, is being given considerati by our most advanced teachers, is bound to replace pre ent methods and systems so far as representing importa phases of human history is concerned, and may lead more active interest in the natural sciences. The Ecl Company has in preparation reels demonstrating many the beauties of chemistry and physics which, if they not actually instruct, will arouse interest in branches study, ordinarily regarded as dry, to the tremendous a vantage of all who see them. There are millions grown children who will enjoy these educational ree not only among those who like to refresh their memori during intervals of leisure, but humbler people in eag search of what may better their condition.

An interesting tragedy exhibited during my visit at t Eclair studio was "Rizzio," a photodrama showing t conspiracy organized by Darnley, the husband of Ma Queen of Scots, against her favorite and private secr tary, Rizzio. The latter exercised such a tremendo power over the Scottish Queen, even after he had pr moted her marriage with Darnley, that the husband gat ered a number of nobles and wounded the Queen's f vorite before her eyes, finally despatching him outside her chamber door. The tragedy was vividly correct unexpected details, and a clear picture of life in tho troublous times.

Another interesting and altogether curious drama w "The Glass Coffin" in three reels of a thousand feet eac depicting the restoration to life after apparent death an Indian Princess who had been long buried in a gla coffin. The story appeared to unravel the snarl of hum reality and define the proprietorship of the soul, showi that its perfect existence was impossible without its bei shared by another of the opposite sex in which it w merged. The personality of the Princess was attracti but it was an intrusion on modern social organization, it was returned to its imprisonment in the sleeping bo for a future awakening under more congenial circu stances.

The insistent artistic form of these presentatio formed their greatest charm and offered strong testimo in favor of scenic beauty in productions for the scree Therein lies the only expression suited to lofty success.

The Campaign for a Modern Sunday II.

By W. Stephen Bush

BEFORE publishing the draft of a proposed bill legalizing Sunday entertainments consisting of motion pictures we are called upon to consider t news from Albany that a measure has been introduced i the Assembly prohibiting moving picture exhibitions on Snday. This fact shows how much more active and vilant the enemies of the moving picture are than its fiends. The latter seem never to have realized that uder the law of this State moving picture entertainmnts are to-day, and have been for nearly two years, lgal everywhere within the confines of the State, from Bffalo to Montauk Point. We know of numerous cities i the State of New York where the exhibitors never mde the slightest attempt to give exhibitions on Sunday, tough the law of the State expressly and in the plainest lguage possible authorized them to do so.

Though the subject is of immediate interest only to ehibitors of the State of New York, the history of the aempt to suppress motion picture entertainments on Snday and the failure of the attempt are of general interest, and exhibitors in every State will do well to conser all the important points. The enemies of the movig picture sought to suppress Sunday entertainments on t ground that they came within the meaning of the stion of the Penal Code which forbids "all shooting, hnting, fishing, playing, horse racing, gaming or other pblic exercises and shows." The Appellate Division of t Second Department (People vs. Hemleb, 111 N. Y. pp., pages 690 and 691) has said that this law, taken i connection with the chapter prohibiting theatrical plays o Sunday does not prohibit one from "giving on Sunday a indoor exhibition consisting of throwing on a canvas ptures and of piano playing at intervals." Now, this is t law of the State at the present time.

It will be remembered that an effort was made later in a Brooklyn case to renew the agitation against Sunday ptures, an arrest was made of the alleged offending ehibitor and the matter was argued at the Special Term i Kings County on a writ of habeas corpus. The juste, sitting at Special Term, sustained the writ and libated the exhibitor. He cited for his authority in the pemises the decision just quoted and added significantly:

> "Moving picture shows are not, according to the Appellate Division, public shows. They are enumerated among 'other performances' in section 277 of the Penal Code, and I cannot find that they fall under the prohibition of any other section. I do not mean to say that these shows may not be of such a nature as to be illegal, but simply that all exhibitions of moving picture shows on Sunday are not necessarily illegal so long as the Hemleb Case is unreversed."

It follows, therefore, that moving picture entertainents on Sunday are absolutely legal within the limits of t New York jurisdiction. If the enemies of the movig picture and the Sabbatarian zealots did not think so, hy would they introduce a bill in the legislature probiting Sunday exhibitions of moving pictures? It is ite true that there was a mass of conflicting decisions, pevious to the definition of the law by the Appellate Ivision, but these obiter dicta were swept out of existece by the very plain and simple decision in the case of ople vs. Hemleb, mentioned and cited above. After nsulting eminent counsel THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD els justified in advising exhibitors to make a test case, ad if there is any exhibitor with enough courage and pblic spirit to bring the matter to an issue in any part the State outside of the limits of the five boroughs constituting the City of New York, we will see to it that his legal rights are protected by competent counsel and that the law allowing such exhibitions will be duly upheld in his case.

In reference to conditions in other States, we want to say that without exception all the Sunday laws of Puritanic origin are derived from one common source, i. e., the law as it stood in England immediately before or after the Revolution. The New York law under which it was attempted to suppress the Sunday exhibitions of moving pictures dated back to 1788. We firmly believe that the decisions of the New York courts would be of the utmost value to jurists in other States, whenever such jurists are to be called upon to interpret the similar laws of their own States. The courts of the various States are largely guided and influenced by precedents in sister States.

It behooves the organized exhibitors of the City of New York to watch this proposed hostile legislation which would injure the growing prestige and public favor of the motion picture and sweep away with one stroke of the pen a large and legitimate portion of their revenues. THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD will do its utmost to defeat this confiscatory and reactionary legislation, but hopes for the assistance and co-operation of the organized exhibitors. We cannot think of any subject so well deserving the united action of exhibitors' leagues everywhere as this question of Sunday opening. It is a practical affair and has a direct bearing both on the income of the exhibitor and the standing of the motion picture. There is no manner of doubt that persistent and intelligent agitation will bring the desired results. If a fund is necessary to retain counsel or to promote the campaign generally, every exhibitor ought to be willing to contribute his share toward defraying the cost.

We propose in our next issue to show how the courts in this State have not only declared the legality of the Sunday entertainment of motion pictures, but have pointed out how such entertainments are, under proper conditions, distinctly favorable to public morals and ought therefore be encouraged and fostered rather than prohibited by the State and its authorities. We propose further to show how the conditions in New York apply in every other part of the United States. Never before was the exhibitor or manufacturer of motion pictures in a better position to come up to the highest expectation of a clean, moral and uplifting entertainment on Sunday.

If the bill introduced at Albany ever gets far enough in its career to have a hearing before the committee to which it has been referred, the opposition to its enactment will come not alone from the exhibitors and THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD, but from every man and woman prominently identified with education and social reform.

M. P. Exhibitors' League of America

OHIO CHAPTER CONVENTION at Dayton, O.,
MARCH 26-27, 1912

Big program. Gala reception and entertainment by the Dayton Board of Trade and National Cash Register works.

EXHIBITORS OF OHIO

whether members of the League or not are invited with their wives or sweethearts. Exhibitors from adjoining states welcomed.

REMEMBER THE TIME AND PLACE
DAYTON, OHIO, MARCH 26-27, 1912

Bernhardt and Rejane in Pictures.*

REVIEWED BY W. STEPHEN BUSH.

IT may well be doubted whether money alone would have induced Sarah Bernhardt, the greatest of living actresses, to play "Camille" before a moving picture camera. To such a passionate lover of her art, it must have seemed glorious to defy the limitations of space and time and have the whole world as her audience. The cinematograph is indeed a monument, "aere perennius"—more enduring than brass and it is far more ornamental and useful as well. The immortality conferred by the motion picture is well worth having.

It is not the smallest tribute to the genius of Sarah Bernhardt to say that her art loses nothing in its transmission to the little strips of celluloid. The gifts of other noted artists do not shine as well in the motion pictures as they do on the speaking stage, just as some talented singers please us in opera, but are heard to poor advantage in the graphophone. The splendor of Sarah Bernhardt art remains undimmed in the photoplay.

"To paint the lily, or throw perfume on the violets" is no more of a "wasteful and ridiculous excess," than to pile up new adjectives in praise of the genius of Sarah Bernhardt. Of her it is true indeed, that "age cannot wither, nor custom stale her infinite variety." To body forth Dumas' conception of "Camille," an exuberance of youth is needed; "Camille" first wins our sympathy and stirs our profoundest pity because her youth is "cast in endless shade," though, of course, her noble sacrifice deepens the feeling. She possesses all the gayety of her kind; the animal joy of living, but not untouched by a certain womanly grace and sweetness. Until she meets Armand her finer nature has lain dormant, she was a beauteous butterfly and the sins she committed were of the kind which Christian charity is most ready to forgive. Sarah Bernhardt by a splendid display of her genius makes us understand the profound change that came over Camille after Armand entered her life. With consummate art she shows the ennobling and sobering influence of a sincere love. We see how the careless and frivolous demimondaine of the better sort becomes a true woman, whose soul grows stronger as her body turns chaste, who patiently bears suffering and humiliation and sacrifices her happiness for the sake of others.

It is, however, in the portrayal of the tragic element that the divine Sarah rises to the most dazzling heights of the mimic art. How subtle is the touch by which she gives us the first hint of the fatal nature of her malady, when the first reel has scarcely begun. This marvelous power in developing the tragic element is finely sustained throughout until it culminates in a veritable triumph of acting in the last scene.

To see these two reels is to realize to the fullest extent the art and power of Sarah Bernhardt and no greater boon could be offered to the theater-goer of to-day. Every audience looking at these films will be stirred as deeply as they were, who have seen Sarah Bernhardt act in the flesh. It goes without saying that these pictures will gain new friends for the motion picture by the thousands and that directly or indirectly every branch of the motion picture industry will have its benefit therefrom. I only hope operators everywhere will be kind to the pictures and not try to run them at a Saturday-night-rate of speed. There is no room anywhere for effects, but music of the right kind will be most acceptable. Pathos should be its dominant note.

REJANE IN "SANS GENE."*

Madame Rejane is a good foil to Sarah Bernhardt, just as Madame Sans Gene is a good foil to Camille. Though the comedy is the longer entertainment of the two it would seem best to have it precede the Sarah Bernhardt films, else Shakespeare's warning against the lesser element "lagging superfluous" on the stage might be disregarded with the usual bad results. The play is in Sardou's best style and is genuine, refined comedy as distinguished from the product of the same name, as defined by scenario editors in their rules of instructions to beginners. Madame Rejane, who has played in this country, thoroughly understands and enjoys her part.

The plot is based on a very charming little story, which it is claimed, does not lack its historic background. When Napoleon was a sub-lieutenant in the French army and had to subsist on his scanty pay, it was hard for him to meet his expenses. He was living in a poorly furnished garret when his laundress—called Madame Sans Gene by reason of her free and hearty way—came and presented her bill. It had been running for some months and when Madame Sans Gene, with all the delicacy in the world, asked for the money, Napoleon was embarrassed and begged for time. He wrote on the bill that he was in straitened circumstances and had to look after his mother and sisters. The good natured young woman was content with Napoleon's promise. She shortly afterwards married a companion in arms of Napoleon, the rough and ready Lefebre. Lefebre followed Napoleon's star and his fortunes rose with the fortunes of his chief until by his bravery and loyalty he had won for himself the rank of a Marshall of France and had been made the Duke of Dantzig. Napoleon was now in the height of his glory and having married a daughter of the Hapsburgs, he sought to dazzle the world by the splendor of his court as he had dazzled it by the victory of his arms. Madame Sans Gene made a poor figure at the social function of the Imperial Court—her manners still betrayed the queen of the washtub. The sisters of Napoleon finally became offended at her continued presence in the social circles of the court and they complained to their august brother and asked to have the ex-washerwoman dismissed. Napoleon was furious at the outraged dignity of his court and summoned the ex-laundress before him. She refused to be impressed by his storming and fuming and when he finally, in a perfect frenzy of anger, sought to send her away she handed him the unpaid wash bill which she had treasured all the years as one of her most precious possessions. The Emperor was softened. Gently and modestly Madame Sans Gene led his memory back to the days when he was a struggling Lieutenant in Paris and had been glad to accept her indulgence. This is the climax of the play and is rendered very finely. It is not quite apparent to me why the Neipperg incident was incorporated into the photoplay. It complicates matters, though, of course, it lengthens out the story. What this picture needs above all is an explanatory lecture, otherwise much of the charm and considerable of the meaning of the story will be lost upon the average audience.

---

* Made by the Society Film d'Art, Paris. Presented by the French-American Film Co.

CHILLICOTHE THEATER CHANGES HANDS.

The Queen Theater, at Chillicothe, Ohio, has been sold by Manager Lippsey, who has operated it for some time to C. A. Smith, former manager of the Peerless Theater, in the same city. The transfer took place February 15. Mr. Smith announces that he will make a number of alterations in the house, enlarging its seating capacity and redecorating within and without as soon as the weather will permit.

CHICAGO LETTER.

By Jas. S. McQuade.

MEETINGS were held Monday afternoon, Feb. 19, by members of the Chicago Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, and by representatives of exchanges, manufacturers and others, to oppose the proposed amendment of the ordinance raising the age at which unescorted children may be admitted to moving picture shows, from 14 to 16 years. The date mentioned was the regular meeting day of Illinois Branch No. 2, and, before proceedings were begun in the hall at 19 W. Adams Street, the members of the league were addressed by Wm. H. Dunn, president of the Dunn Mfg. Co., Chicago. It has been owing to the initiative of Mr. Dunn that the workings of the Juvenile Court and the conduct of its probation officers were recently given publicity.

Mr. Dunn stated that he had been watching for some time the Juvenile Court and others who have been engaged in reforming juvenile offenders. While not accusing any of the leaders engaged in juvenile reformation, Mr. Dunn asserted that the subordinate workers, who receive pay for their services, are prone to be influenced by the emoluments of the position and are ready to blame moving picture theaters for evils for which they are not responsible. Cases were pointed out in which delinquent juveniles were farmed out—none of their friends knew where—a fee of $50 in each case being paid the subordinate worker by the man or woman in whose charge the delinquent had been placed. Mr. Dunn strongly declared his opposition to the proposed amendment and promised to do all in his power to prevent its passage.

A committee of the Chicago League, comprising George Henry, president; Wm. J. Sweeney, treasurer, and R. R. Levy, of the executive committee, called on Mayor Harrison during the day and were assured by him that the ordinance would not be brought up at the Monday night meeting of the Council. He also assured the committee that the Chicago Motion Picture Exhibitors' League would receive due consideration before the passage of the amendment, as he realized that the members are men duly qualified to judge of what is and what is not objectionable in moving pictures. From this view-point he will be willing to co-operate with them in any proposed municipal legislation that might be inimical to their interests.

At Monday's meeting of the league, officers were elected for the current year. All the old officers, with the exception of the recording secretary, were reelected. Sidney Smith was elected to fill the place of C. C. Whelan, who declined reelection owing to the demands of the position of recording secretary on his time. The members of the executive committee are: R. R. Levy, I. Natkin, C. F. Hall, A. Balabier, L. Frank, Fred Schaffer and C. C. Whelan.

The opening gun has been fired in the campaign of preparation for the August national convention. The executive committee of Illinois Branch No. 2, has been instructed to proceed at once to secure a convention hall, and make all arrangements that will conduce to a most successful and memorable meeting.

Hotel Sherman Meeting.

The meeting in the Sherman Hotel was called by a committee, composed of Joseph Hopp, A. J. Flynn, Wm. F. McCollough, George McFarland and Ed. Tallman. The circular requesting attendance at the meeting appealed to "The owners and managers of theaters of all kinds, motion picture manufacturers, film exchange men, actors, performers, musicians, operators, theater construction men, etc." Joseph Hopp presided and A. J. Flynn was secretary.

Alderman Brittain, one of the members of the judiciary committee of the City Council, was the chief speaker. He spoke against the passage of the proposed amendment and promised to vote against it in the council. Dan Mulvey, theater constructor; Jack Miller, business manager of Operators' Union, Local No. 2, and Mr. Conway, an operator, followed. Joseph Grein, one of the owners of Forest Park and proprietor of the Clark Theater, on N. Clark Street, who was the next speaker, showed the importance of organization and a concerted front. He also reminded his hearers of the wisdom of watching closely municipal legislation, especially that affecting the welfare of the moving picture business. H. A. Toner, an attorney, next addressed the meeting. In declaring his opposition to the amendment proposed, he advised all interested to call on their aldermen and show them its injustice, and thus induce the judiciary committee to prevent its passage.

On the unanimous vote of the 200 people present, Joseph Hopp named a committee of ten to lay plans for the formation of a central organization, composed of representatives of Illinois Branch No. 2, exchanges, manufacturers, operators, federation of musicians, actors' union, theater constructors, etc. This central organization will work to prevent legitimate entertainment from suffering undue hardships, from inimical ordinances or other forms of discrimination.

The committee of ten was called to meet in the Chamber of Commerce Building, Tuesday evening, Feb. 20.

Moving Pictures Help Children's Morals.

"Nickel theaters, which were formerly injurious to the morals of our children, have grown to be beneficial since the films shown in such theaters have been censored," declared Professor Allis Hoben, of the University of Chicago, in an address on "The Delinquency of Children," at the Oak Park Presbyterian Church recently. "Where the children used to view pictures of crime, they now see pictures of an educational nature, and pictures conducive to better living," he said.

Lyric Theater, Minneapolis, Praised.

The following letter appeared in a recent issue of the Minneapolis Tribune, as requested of the editor by a patron of the Lyric:

"Kindly publish these remarks in behalf of the Lyric Theater: For one hour and a half one can be very much benefited and rested. The pictures on the screen are delightfully free from coarse suggestions. The songs and music are elevating. One is never afraid something is coming next to disgust you either in seeing or hearing. The Bible scenes and history of the same are surprising, and certainly an education for people who cannot understand the Bible by reading merely. The comic views are splendid. Parents and children will do well to patronize this theater. It is very quiet and orderly and satisfying.

"Mrs. J. K."

The Hippodrome, Cleveland, Case.

From what I can gather at this distance, H. A. Daniels, manager of Keith's Hippodrome, Cleveland, O., is espousing a rule or ruin policy. The Hippodrome is a fine modern structure, of large seating capacity, devoted to vaudeville. Like all Keith's houses, it gives splendid vaudeville programs. But it seems that Mr. Daniels, not quite satisfied with the fine volume of business he is doing by the attractiveness of high class vaudeville, is seeking to injure moving picture exhibitors who are offering straight picture programs.

On Sundays, for instance, or at noon time of other days, it is understood that he runs a perfect avalanche of fine pictures. That is, he has been doing so until curbed by those who have the future interests of the moving picture business at heart. The policy of Mr. Daniels was to deprive the small picture theaters in the business section of their Sunday patronage. The great seating capacity of his house and other attractions besides pictures enabled him to do that. Now he has been refused service either from Licensed or Independent sources, and has been obliged to resort to junk furnished him by some junk dealer in Pittsburg.

I have before me the copy of a letter sent out by Mr. Daniels recently, enclosed in a stamped envelope for return, with his address printed on the envelope, to exhibitors in the Cleveland district. It reads as follows:

> "Please read the enclosed. We are starting an advertising campaign, and will put out 100,000 of these in the next few weeks. If you are not a member of the Exhibitors' League, of which Mr. Christenson is secretary, then we will not advertise in the territory surrounding your show. If you ARE a member, you will not answer this letter. Then I will know you are, and will lay out my campaign of advertising accordingly. If you are NOT a member, it is to your interest to write and say so. Watch the press for a grand jury examination of the league, and a suit for damages against members as individuals.
>
> "H. A. Daniels."

Attached to this letter was a certificate, numbered and notifying the holder to present it at the Prospect Street entrance of the Hippodrome with fifteen cents. In return the holder received two street car tickets and a ticket to an excellent seat in the theater. Bertha Kalich, the great dramatic star, is referred to as being on the program, and never before seen in Cleveland at less than $2 a seat. The certificate impresses on the holder that the Hippodrome management pays the carfare both ways.

How long will the Keith powers that be support Mr. Daniels in his policy? If Mr. Daniels is wise, he will confine himself to high class vaudeville, and be satisfied to live and let live.

Chicago Film Brevities.

The Messrs. Le Marquand, of Winnipeg, Canada, father and son, were visitors at the World office last week. Mr. Le Marquand, Sr., is president, and his son, general manager, of the Starland, Ltd., of the Manitoban metropolis. The Starland, Ltd., is said to be one of the largest amusement enterprises in Canada. It is incorporated for $500,000. This company owns the Starland theaters in Winnipeg, Edmonton, Prince Albert, Brandon, Saskatoon, Calgary, Lethbridge, Regina, and Portage la Prairie, and is now contemplating the construction of a number of elaborate and modern picture theaters in the United States. One of these theaters, also called the Starland, will be opened about April 15th, in St. Paul, Minn. This house, located at 8th and Wabasha avenues, will seat 800 people, the total cost of construction and outtittings being $50,000. Manager Le Marquand states that the St. Paul house will be a model in every respect. The seats have been furnished by the American Seating Company, of Chicago, at a cost of $4,000. The floor heating system and ventilating machinery have been put in at the cost of $3,000. The indirect lighting system is used and Licensed film service will be furnished by the General Film Co., of Minneapolis. Twelve first runs per week will be used, with three changes. Educational and scientific pictures, with lecture, will be featured. Appropriate musical accompaniment, with sound effects, will be given each picture. The Starland, Ltd., has also commenced building a magnificent straight-picture theater in Omaha, at 16th and Douglas streets. This house, when completed, will seat 2,000 people. It is expected that the theater will be in readiness for opening on May 1st. The cost of the building is estimated at $75,000. 10¢ admission will be charged at both the St. Paul and Omaha houses.

* * *

J. B. Ross, of the Variety Theater, Canton, Ill., was a visitor at the World office, Wednesday, February 7th. Mr. Ross changed the entertainment in his theater about two years ago, when a strict picture program was substituted for vaudeville. Licensed service is furnished the Variety by I. Van Ronkel, of the Wabash branch, 429 So. Wabash. The Variety seats 750 people and five cents admission is charged. The Dreamland is the only other moving picture house in town at present, but a new one is now under course of construction and will be opened about May 1st. The Dreamland is showing to good business with Independent service furnished by the Laemmle Exchange, this city.

* * *

Percy M. Perretz, formerly on the office staff of Pathe Freres, this city,, has purchased the Aberdeen Theater at 1059 W. 59th Street, and will manage it himself, using Independent service at five cents admission. The theater is in the midst of a well-to-do Swedish settlement and Percy is satisfied with the volume of bus ness done during the cold weather. The Majestic Film Co. a tends to the booking.

* * *

The Northern Feature Film Company, under the managemen of Messrs. Louis B. Goulden and Fred Fischman, two young an progressive theater managers of Milwaukee, has established o fices in the Grand Opera House Building, Chicago, and are book ing feature films with lecturers. Their first features are "Th Christian Martyrs" and the "Siege of Calais." They announce tha business has been very promising and they expect to do some bi things in the feature film line.

* * *

Fred J. Murphy, manager of the Sioux Falls, S. D., branch c the Standard Film Exchange of Chicago, was in the city a fe days last week. Mr. Murphy states that the weather has bee very severe in his section, but that business kept up far beyon his expectations.

UNEXPECTED INTEREST IN NESTOR FIGHT PICTURE.

Nestor's fight picture, "The Parson and the Bully," i which a very realistic boxing match is pulled off, has devel oped interest in unexpected quarters and for singular rea sons, according to S. S. Baldwin, manager of the Uniqu Theater, Grand Forks, N. D. Mr. Baldwin tells the follow ing story and vouches for its truth:

"I put out a lithograph of 'The Parson and the Bully, Sunday, February 11, for Monday's attraction at the Unique A crowd of Swedes congregated in front of the theater an became interested in the portrayal of the contest betwee the parson and the bully. I had tacked a two-word sig about half way down on the litho reading 'Mon.-Tues.' Th Swedes got into a heated argument as to which one of th two contestants had the greatest reputation. One fellow declared 'Mon' was the best fighter and he had read of his fights in the sporting edition of the Police Gazette. Another thought 'Tues' was the best known and finally it was left for me to settle the dispute. I told the sons of Sweden the fighters were to meet at the Unique to settle the question the next night, as they had fought several times and had always finished with a draw. It is needless to state I had a good audience of Swede fight fans Monday night.

Scene from the Powers Picture Play, "The Honor of a Pugilist," Released March 5th.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT.

THE SPECIAL RELEASE.

I.—Advance Work.

(Copyright, 1912, by Epes Winthrop Sargent. All rights reserved.)

PERHAPS the greatest advantage to be obtained through the use of the two and three-reel subjects lies in the new business that their exhibition will bring to your house, business that you will endeavor to hold as permanent patronage after the special subject has passed on. Your regular patrons you may count upon holding so long as you treat them well; and treating them well consists in part of giving them an occasional reward in the shape of a special feature, but they will come anyway, and your principal object should be to use the feature to bring in those who are not your regular patrons.

To gain this end you should make a radical departure from your usual styles of advertising and direct your appeal to those who may be interested in the reel and whom you have reason to believe may not, at present, be interested in your house.

The most effective mode of accomplishing this result is through the local newspapers where the size of the town will permit you to take advertising space. As a general thing the more advertising you take the more extra matter in the shape of reading notices you can obtain, and in most cases this special matter will be far more effective in bringing results than the paid for advertisement. This does not mean that you should disregard the advertising space that you have paid for, but that you should give particularly careful attention to the reading notices. It does not always pay best to use all of the advertising appropriation in the form of an advertisement in the amusement section. Though the cost is much higher, the three or four-line reading notices scattered through the paper may yield a larger return than double or triple the space in the advertising columns proper.

Make Your Readers Crisp.

You cannot say much in three lines, so do not try to tell the entire story in from fifteen to eighteen words, but make each reader crisp and effective and make every word tell. Do not say "The Odyssey at the Gem to-morrow night." Only the Greek scholars will want to see the Odyssey as such. "See the Giant Cyclops in the Odyssey at the Gem to-morrow," will rouse interest and if successive readers refer to the adventures in the Cyclops' cave, the escape under the bellies of the sheep, the allurements of the sirens, the escape past the dragons and the other features even the children will find something that will appeal to them and demand that they be permitted to go.

The use of the paid advertising will carry free reading notices, but in most cases what you get will be determined by the interest you arouse. A certain amount of mention is given as a matter of course, but if you can interest the editor you can get much more. Tell him all you know about the reel. Read up in this paper, retell the facts interestingly, show any illustrated matter that you may have on hand and get all that may be obtained of the company making the release. If you can rouse the editorial interest you can get any amount of additional space. Editors, particularly in the smaller town, are glad to get readable matter and most of them will welcome cuts that cost nothing. Get the 50 or 60 screen cuts that the releasing company will furnish and give these to the paper free. If you arrange for special printed matter let the paper's job office do the stuff even if it does cost a dollar or two more than some other office is willing to do it for. You'll get it back in the extra notice if you work it right.

Perhaps a Special Bulletin.

Perhaps you can get out a special announcement that will carry some outside advertising and still leave you plenty of room for your talk. One live manager pays $20 extra for his special reels and makes the reels show a profit before it comes to his house because he sells $30 to $40 worth of advertising space in his announcement. You can do the same if you educate your business men up to it. Amusement advertising is more carefully read than the rest of the trade circulars and if you can get the tradesmen to realize that two dollars given you for a two-inch card stands a better chance of being read than their own circular that costs them the same sum, they will come in with you.

Have plenty of home made slides for your own curtain. Do not be content with four or five and running these every day for a week before the reels come. Change at least two every day and study to make the announcements attractive. Tell all about it and tell it interestingly. Get your regular patrons talking and they'll talk to others. The word of mouth advertising is the most valuable of all, exceeding even newspaper work, and you'll find your patrons willing to talk if you give them something to talk about.

Interest Teachers and Clergy.

If your reel is educational see the teachers of the grammar and high schools, the ministers, the doctors and the lawyers. If the subject is a religious one make an especial appeal to the clergy and Sunday-school principals; if it concerns the public health get the physicians interested. Send them tickets. Perhaps they won't use them, but send them and watch for the tickets when they come through the door. If the doctor gives the tickets to his cook, take good care of the cook; she'll tell the doctor's wife and so the doctor will come to know and perhaps the cook's description will interest him and bring him down the next night or the next time. Don't let the cook go home and report that she was not passed in because she was not the doctor. You gave him the tickets. Do not be discourteous because he lacked the courtesy not to use or retain them himself. It may not be pleasant to be nice to the cook and you may feel that the price of two admissions has been wasted, but you never can tell.

Try and arrange for a lecture if the film indicates the use of such a feature. If the running story does not require a lecture perhaps you can induce someone of local importance to speak before the reels are run. And make certain that the people know just when the reels are to be run. Few can get interested in the first reel of a subject if they've first seen the second and third. Get out posters that announce the exact time the first reel will start. Get these up well away from the theater. Make it appear that this information is so important that it warrants the special work and you've made it important to the man who might be induced to drop in. Give day, date and hour on all your advertising, advertise a special sale of reserved seats "in response to popular demand."

Try the Telephone.

If you live in a town with unlimited telephone service use the phone to help along. Do not make the message too familiar, but ask whoever comes to the instrument to remind the family that the reels are started at seven and nine and ask that they try to get there at one of those two hours that they may not lose the commencement of the story. Get the same information on postal cards if you have a selected list of names, but if possible have the cards pen written and addressed. It makes more of an impression. Make your announcement dignified but earnest and remember that anything you do to give dignity to your offering will be accepted at face value and that no one can do more to hurt your chances than yourself if you do not do things right.

The next article will deal with special paper.

A Wichita Novelty.

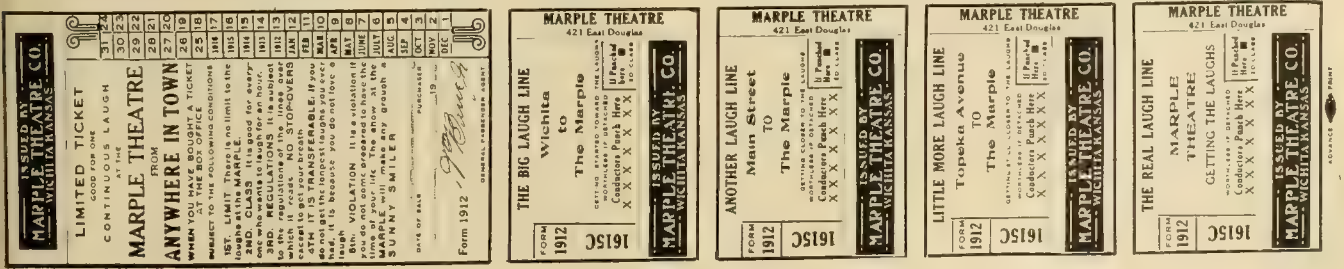
From the Marple Theater, Wichita, Kan., comes an odd novelty in the shape of a railroad coupon ticket concerning which the manager, (whose signature is too badly blotted to be legible) writes:

> Enclosed please find a novel way in which I am now advertising the show in and out of the city. I would be glad to see it mentioned in your department as it might be of assistance to others. It is quite expensive, but the results are sure for no one will throw the ticket away before reading and the novelty causes most persons to keep them, as they are out of the ordinary.

The advertisement is on "safety" paper of the sort used for railroad tickets to prevent alteration and carries four stubs as in the coupon form where more than one line is traversed. Each stub and the main coupon has the imprint of the theater in white letters on a black ground, done from a special cut. It reproduces in every particular the regular railroad ticket even to the months, years and days on the side of the main coupon and these are dated with a conductor's punch precisely as a railroad ticket would be. The main coupon and one stub are given for the guidance of others.

Things That Are Kept.

The first cost is not always to be considered. The piece of advertising that costs half a cent is cheaper than that which costs ten for a cent if half of the former are retained in the possession of the recipient and not one of the latter are kept. It's what sticks that counts and the longer it can be



ISSUED BY
MARPLE THEATRE CO.
WICHITA KANSAS

LIMITED TICKET
GOOD FOR ONE CONTINUOUS LAUGH
AT THE MARPLE THEATRE
FROM ANYWHERE IN TOWN
WHEN YOU HAVE BOUGHT A TICKET AT THE BOX OFFICE
SUBJECT TO THE FOLLOWING CONDITIONS

1ST. LIMIT There is no limit to the laughs at the MARPLE.

2ND. CLASS It is good for every-one who wants to laugh for an hour.

3RD. REGULATIONS It is subject to the regulations of the lines over which it reads NO STOP-OVERS except to get your breath

4TH IT IS TRANSFERABLE; if you do not get the longest laughs you ever had, it is because you do not love a laugh

5th. VIOLATION It is a violation if you do not come prepared to have the time of your life The show at the MARPLE will make any grouch a SUNNY SMILER

DATE OF SALE PURCHASER
19

Form 1912

GENERAL PASSENGER AGENT

31	24
30	23
29	22
28	21
27	20
26	19
25	18
1916	17
1915	16
1914	15
1913	14
1912	13
JAN	12
FEB	11
MAR	10
APR	9
MAY	8
JUNE	7
JULY	6
AUG	5
SEP	4
OCT	3
NOV	2
DEC	1

THE BIG LAUGH LINE
Wichita
to
The Marple
GETTING STARTED TOWARD THE LAUGHS
WORTHLESS IF DETACHED
Conductors Punch Here
X X X X X X X
If Punched here ■ 2D CLASS
FORM 1912
1615C
MARPLE THEATRE
421 East Douglas
ISSUED BY
MARPLE THEATRE CO.
WICHITA KANSAS

ANOTHER LAUGH LINE
Main Street
TO
The Marple
GETTING CLOSER TO THE LAUGHS
WORTHLESS IF DETACHED
Conductors Punch Here
X X X X X X X
If Punched Here ■ 2D CLASS
FORM 1912
1615C
MARPLE THEATRE
421 East Douglas
ISSUED BY
MARPLE THEATRE CO.
WICHITA KANSAS

LITTLE MORE LAUGH LINE
Topeka Avenue
TO
The Marple
GETTING STILL CLOSER TO THE LAUGHS
WORTHLESS IF DETACHED
Conductors Punch Here
X X X X X X X
If Punched Here ■ 2D CLASS
FORM 1912
1615C
MARPLE THEATRE
421 East Douglas
ISSUED BY
MARPLE THEATRE CO.
WICHITA KANSAS

THE REAL LAUGH LINE
MARPLE
THEATRE
GETTING THE LAUGHS
WORTHLESS IF DETACHED
Conductors Punch Here
X X X X X X X
If Punched Here ■ 2D CLASS
FORM 1912
1615C
MARPLE THEATRE
421 East Douglas
ISSUED BY
MARPLE THEATRE CO.
WICHITA KANSAS

ADVANCE PRINT

made to stick the better and more efficient the advertising. Scores of those who receive these tickets will keep them to show their friends in an effort to fool them into the belief that a railroad trip is contemplated and each time it is shown it again advertises the theater. The relative proportion of cost and effect is something that few photoplay managers study. It doesn't mean that the most costly advertising is the best just because it costs most, but it's not expensive if the high priced novelty will bring results. Sometimes the circular at a dollar for five hundred will be a better business bringer than some more costly novelty, but it is not the cost but the result that should determine the real value. For many purposes the Saturday Evening Post, charging say ten dollars a line, is a better medium than would be 200 papers charging five cents a line each, but for some local purpose the home sheet with its five cent rate will bring business where the ten dollar a line rate will fail. Study the relation of the advertisement to its purpose and let that determine whether the cost is small or high.

An Artistic Operator.

Persis Russell, local manager of the Palace Theater, Aurora, Ill., tells well a story that has been told in hundreds of other cases, but which cannot be too often told. He (or is it she?) sends a photograph of a house poster, which we reproduce here, and writes:

FEATURING BLIND MINER
Harry T. Morey
THIS PICTURE WAS TAKEN DOWN IN A COAL MINE 500 FEET BENEATH The EARTH'S SURFACE
A COMPLETE SET OF ILLUMINATING LAMPS, SPECIAL ARCS, WAS INSTALLED IN The DEEP, DARK COAL TUNNELS TO SECURE The REMARKABLE AND NOVEL SCENES PRODUCED IN THIS WONDERFUL AND INSPIRING PICTURE
SEE The EXPLOSION IN The MINE, The IMPRISONED MINERS AND The HEROIC RESCUE
-SEE IT HERE-
FRIDAY -AND- SATURDAY

The portrait used in making this poster is from one of the Vitagraph posters, the remainder being the work of Mel. Kirwin, our operator. The Moving Picture World seems interested at all times in what concerns the exhibitor and so I take the liberty of sending you the interesting history of this house.

W. H. Marple, the present owner, bought the house when it barely paid expenses. Poor projection on a poor screen, two nerve racking illustrated songs and two reels of film were not calculated to draw trade. We cut out the songs, put in an aluminum screen, installed a first class operator, added a cornet to the orchestra and ran three reels of association film, opening with an overture. We substituted courteous ushers for the former employees, put a pleasant woman in the box office and with Mr. Marple devoting his time to the building up of the proper spirit in his house staff and looking to the greater comfort of his patrons there was established a clientele that has made the house a little gold mine. The advertising, which is looked after by a woman, is plain and straightforward. We use the newspapers extensively, taking extra space for any worthy feature and it may interest you to know that there never has been an advertising slide run on our curtain. People come to see motion pictures; not to read ads, Mr. Marple argues, and for the sake of exclusiveness and tone money cannot tempt him to stoop to this vulgar habit.

Just Doing It Right.

It's the same old story of doing things right and is mentioned here because good projection, courteous attaches, a cordial ticket seller and the proper atmosphere are all parts of the general advertising scheme. We are inclined to differ with the writer as to the use of slides. If the prohibition extends to house advertising with slides one of the most valuable means of keeping in touch with the patrons is overlooked. The house slide is more important than the newspaper advertising and with an artistic genius in the operating booth the slides could be made attractive and interesting to the patrons.

For that matter the manner in which advertising slides are handled rather than the use of slides should be the determining factor. This is an age of advertising. There is scarcely a Broadway theater that does not have a Lee Lash drop curtain nor a high grade vaudeville house that does not use an advertising olio drop. It brings a certain income to the house, just as the advertising program does, and this has come to be recognized as a legitimate source of profit. A straight run of advertising slides between reels is a nuisance where it stops the performance, but two or three slides will not be objected to and exhibitors, like all other amusement caterers, must learn to strike an average between the intensely aesthetic and the grossly commercial. There is a happy medium that will yield a profit without hurting the tone of the house.

A Coupon Scheme.

In response to several inquiries we have queried the A. B. C. Company, of Cleveland, and have obtained the particulars of the coupon books, which are now in use in many theaters with decided success.

In brief the scheme is merely a form of trading stamp effectively applied to motion picture advertising, and the design is to hold trade to the house giving the coupons. The books consist of ten gummed sheets in a card cover, each sheet having ten ruled and numbered spaces, the cover copy carrying this explanation:

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC:

Each time you attend ________________ theater they will give you a small colored A. B. C. Postal Card describing a new film.

1—Pull the coupon, which contains the name of the theater, from the upper left hand corner and paste in this book.

2—When the book is filled with 100 coupons return to the theater and get

Five Admission Tickets Free.

The A. B. C. Company rebates these books at ten cents each. The cards cost 30 cents per hundred and expressage is paid on lots of 1,000 or more, the cards coming assorted, not less than 100 of each title, the subjects being taken from those subjects for which posters are made by the A. B. C. Company. The cards may also be had without the coupons where it is desired, and as the reverse carries plenty of space for a rubber stamped announcement of the coming of the film they serve for general advertising where it is not expedient to adopt the coupon feature. The coupon books are supplied without charge.

As the subjects are all from licensed films it forms an effective means of controlling business in towns where a Licensed and Independent house are in opposition.

The cards carry a picture from the subject, the trademark and a brief story of the film and are printed on the back to comply with the postal regulations as to private mailing cards. The small cost and the strong appeal to the desire to get something for nothing make the system effective in small houses as well as large.

Something Unusual.

We would like to see more of the advertising done by the Grand and Majestic theaters, Kewanee, Ill. The copy at hand consists of two issues of the St. John's Church Messenger, in which the theaters have the inside back cover page.

Appreciating the surroundings the advertising is in precisely the vein that should prove most effective. It is dignified, scholarly and appealing. A motion picture exhibitor who can quote from the Spectator and the English philosophers is something of a rarity, yet the advertiser cleverly converts Steele and Jevons into pleaders for the photoplay and does it in perfect good taste.

No churchman can possibly object to this dignified argument:

> "BEAUTIFUL PICTURES ARE THE ENTERTAINMENT OF PURE MINDS," says Steele in the Spectator, and we are demonstrating the truth of his words right here at our moving picture shows. More and more the best people of Kewanee are coming to see the pictures, which, of course, encourages and makes it possible for us to furnish the best.
>
> A contemporary of Steele, and likewise a contributor to the Spectator, wrote about the time that Steele penned the above: "THE STAGE MIGHT BE MADE A PERPETUAL SOURCE OF THE MOST NOBLE AND USEFUL ENTERTAINMENT WERE IT UNDER PROPER REGULATION." Our sole purpose is to demonstrate this great truth to the general public in an ever increasing degree by making our pictures and plays not only PASTIMES, that are so positively agreeable that they make time slip past unnoticed. but AMUSEMENT, amusement in its double meaning of keeping from ennui and giving occasion for wholesome mirth; and RECREATION that will refresh the tired and make them good as new; and DIVERSION which is even more than recreation, turning one aside, as it were, from ordinary serious work or thought to amuse him greatly.
>
> In fulfilling our purpose the patronage and appreciation of the best people of the community are essential. Are you, as an individual, doing your part?

It is always a healthful sign when a photoplay theater finds it worth while to appeal to the church element and an encouraging one when it is so well done.

Petey Wales, His Poetry.

Somewhat different, yet perhaps no less effective, is this from another Illinois town, the name of which does not appear in the postmark. We are not going to run a poet's corner, but Walt Mason never grew more joyous than this:

BARGAINS IN SMILES
That's What
PETEY WALES'
BIG KINODROME SHOWS
Afford You
TO-NIGHT
Smile a while
And while you smile
Another smiles,
And soon there's miles
And miles of smiles
And life's worth while
Because you smile
SOME PROGRAM TO-NIGHT
Admission—One Dime

In its last analysis good advertising consists in fitting the appeal to the prospective patron. Mr. Wales has done this as well as the advertising man of the Grand. It is simply a difference in the clientele.

A Keith Accomplishment.

We welcome the appearance of the first numbers of the Bijou Bulletin, "published each week, on Saturday," in the interests of the Keith Bijou Theater, Boston, of which Mrs. Josephine Clement is editor and publisher.

It was this self-same Bijou Theater that laid the foundation for the present large Keith vaudeville interests and in many ways it represents the highest present development of the motion picture exhibition, just as it was the home of the first persistent effort to lift variety to the higher plane of vaudeville.

Three or four reels of pictures are given, the program being changed only twice a week, and in place of illustrated songs or cheap vaudeville there is offered some one-act play—not just a scketch—or some special feature. For the Dickens Centenary, for example, there were impersonations of famous characters from the novels, twelve tableaux of characteristic scenes and a sketch of the novelist. In keeping the Bulletin carries a sketch of Dickens, an illustration from an old print and other germane matter.

Objection might be made that the film programs could—and should—be made more ample. A brief line or two for each subject would be vastly better than the mere announcement of the title. Some advertising is carried, with a hint of more to come, and furnishes an apt reply to those who regard foreign advertising as something detrimental to dignity. It is not essential that this Keith publication should be self-supporting, but there is no reason why it should not be made so and in consequence the advertising is carried. The first issue is very artistically covered in blue and white, with lettering in black, but the second number carries too light a tint to be effective. Too light a tone is as bad as a glaring red or green, but it's a mighty good starter and in its literary quality by far the best that has come to this desk.

TWO ESSANAY FEATURES.

Essanay's sensational production, "The Madman," booked for release March 15th, is without a doubt one of the greatest dramatic photoplays ever attempted. The film terminates in a thrilling hand-to-hand struggle between the madman and an aeronaut in the swaying basket of a soaring balloon, hundreds of feet in the air. The aeronaut finally over powers the madman and throws him from the basket to his death far below. This scene is a marvel of construction, and the audience will find it difficult to believe it trick-work as they watch the balloon soaring up through the clouds while the two men battle for their lives.

One of the best of Essanay's Western dramas, produced by Mr. G. M. Anderson, is "The Bandit's Child," which is booked for release in March. This picture was taken at Lakeside, Cal., the new headquarters of the Western stock company, and contains some splendid views of the beautiful natural scenery abounding in this vicinity. Mr. Anderson presents another of his famous characterizations in the rôle of the "bandit," and Miss Vedah Bertram, a new leading lady of the Western company, is prettily cast as the wife from the East.

IRISH DRAMA FOR ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

By way of observing St. Patrick's Day the Powers Motion Picture Company will release a picture version of the old Irish drama, "Sogarth Aroon." The picture is now in course of preparation and will follow four days after the release of the two-reel picture play presenting Mildred Holland in "The Power Behind the Throne."

All lovers of the true Irish drama will, no doubt, look forward with the most pleasurable anticipations to the presentation of this picture play which is being produced with that careful attention to detail which always marks the work of the Powers Company. This company has also other good things in store, the announcement of which will be made later on.

The SCENARIO WRITER

CONDUCTED BY EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

For Scenario Editors.

As a result of several recent chats with scenario editors, the writer has designed a card catalogue for the recording of manuscript entries that seems to meet the special demands of the studio conditions without involving undue labor, and this record is dedicated to those offices where there is at present no adequate system.

The requirements of a studio system are that there shall be a record of all scripts in the office, in hand and returned, and it is also necessary in most instances to keep a record of the director to whom a script has been given. The usual three by five card is used and the record is filed under the name of the author, all scripts by the same writer lying in the index in alphabetical order by titles. The card suggests this form. The italics suggest the matter written in; the print the form of the printed card:

Name: John T. Smith 1642 Main Street
Burlington, Vt.
Title: Saved from the Storm
Read by: Jones, Feb. 3 Returned: Feb. 6, A. J.
Brown, Feb. 9 Feb. 27, A. J.
Date received: Feb. 1, 1912 Returned: Feb. 29, 1912
Remarks: Idea not bad but poorly developed
Postage, 6¢ Own envelope Our cover Express

Under this system, when the scripts are received they go to the manuscript clerk who prepares the cards. If loose postage is enclosed the amount is stated unless the stamps are affixed to the return envelope, when this item is checked. If neither stamps nor envelope accompany the manuscript that fact is noted.

The scripts are returned to their proper envelopes or an envelope is supplied, if necessary, and the scripts are passed on to the editor, while the cards are filed in a temporary file convenient to his desk.

When he reads a script and believes that it will suit some one of his directors, he takes the proper card from the file. When the script is delievered to the producer the latter gives his receipt by signing his name on the card and stating the date. This card is then transferred to a desk file box where there are divisions for each director. When the director returns the script as not satisfactory, the editor initials the date of the return and sends it on to another or back to the author as circumstances may dictate. When the rejections come to the script clerk she removes the cards from the temporary file, checks off the date of return, notes that the proper stamps are affixed and files the card in the permanent file. After they have lain in the file for three months they may be transferred to storage boxes.

The advantages of this system are many.

The number of scripts on hand, but not read, may be noted at a glance.

The number of contributions from each author may be seen by reference to the file.

The script that passes from the possession of the editor to a director is fully accounted for.

The number of scripts held by each director at any moment is known, and his rapidity in reading may be noted while a script held too long may be rescued and returned.

Any script may be traced for a year back and the exact date and form of return be made known.

Scripts accepted and paid for may be filed in a special drawer of the case to form a permanent record, and by giving these a serial number and filing all release forms serially, the work of locating any release is the matter of a moment.

A card system that does not take into account the travels of the script within the studio is of little account, but where each holder must sign a receipt the script may be traced to the office coats that are the favorite script safes of the directors. The service of the card does not end with the exit of the script from the studio.

If John Jones sends in fifty scripts in three months, not one of which finds acceptance, John may be advised that he is wasting his time and that much work may be avoided in future. It frequently happens that a script may be queried six months after its return and much correspondence be avoided if the history of the case may be immediately recited. The system that destroys the cards—as is done in at least one studio—as soon as the script has left the building, is useless. Cards should be kept for at least a year.

This system takes little longer time, if any, than the record book and the time lost in making out the cards is more than saved in the subsequent rapidity and security in handling.

A Warning.

We have on our desk a letter from a person who signs himself a manager of a picture theater, but whose signature is confined to his initials and who forgets to state even the town, let alone the theater. But there is something in the writer's statements that more good stories are returned than are produced.

From the intemperate utterance of the writer we gather that he has received some scenarios back himself and that this is the reason for his complaint, but another theater manager, who signs his name, voices the same complaint when he says:

> When I see the lack of attention to details in some of the film productions of the present time, it makes me sick. I suppose this is the argument that comes from everyone who has tried to write scenarios and I might as well be classed with the sour-grapes bunch. I have tried to write them and, in fact, have eleven rejected ones on my desk now, and I might as well show my damfool conceit by saying that there are three or four that are a darned sight better than some of the stereotyped, time-worn stuff that I read the advance notices of every week.

And the answer is that some inexperienced girl or boy at from eight to twenty-five dollars a week is permitted to do the "first reading" and send back the stuff that may be good, but beyond the infantile grasp of the reader. One editor recently declared that he habitually read the rejections of his subordinate, getting better material from that than from the scripts passed to second reading, and in another studio one producer gets the cream of the stories by spending his spare time in the editorial office and reading stories that are about to be sent back. His trained mind sees the hidden story in the half hint of the synopsis or some scene of the scenario and while the editor tells himself that the director can make a good story out of anything, it is not that the director makes bricks without straw, but that he sees the straw amid the other litter.

We have headed this story "A Warning" because the first writer asked us to, and we like to be obliging, but there is a warning here to some of the studios where only the obviously good stands even half a chance to reach the attention of an adult intellect.

The editor of scenarios who does not read every synopsis personally does not perform his entire duty to the author and his employer. First readers are all well enough in magazine offices, where a story that does not possess literary value must be sent back, but the scenario is different. Only the idea is essential and it is absurd to suppose that the untrained person can grasp the dramatic possibilities of the half-told tale. The first reader of scenarios should be the editor himself and no one else should be permitted to assume this important task. That the work is passed along to some typist to perform in her spare moments is one of the reasons why stories are poor and hackneyed. For that matter we know a couple of editors who do not know good stories until they see them on the film—and not always then.

What Powers Wants.

Giles R. Warren, editor for the Powers Company, states that the needs of the Powers Company at present are society and sensational dramas, light comedies and Western and Indian dramas. Of late the company has done a number of special stories requiring special scenarios, but there is a demand for general material along these lines.

"Come On In."

When we recently printed an invitation to "come on in" on this page we meant to join the experience meeting. We fully appreciate the kindly sentiments of the writers who have replied to the invitation with words of praise, but we prefer your experiences to your appreciation so far as publication goes. We are glad you like this page and think it helps you and the craft, but we want to hear from you about your experiences that may be helpful to others. That's what the invitation means.

The Matter of Price.

This letter from S. Walter Bunting is printed here both because it appeals to the scenarion writer and because the editor of scenarios and the manufacturer of films can find in his first paragraph food for reflection. Mr. Bunting writes:

> Thanks for the notice in the Moving Picture World. It came as a surprise. I did not, however, intend my quasi-solution of price in the form of advice or I would have stated more carefully. Let me go a little more fully into the question. Quality you have covered, but as you say there are some companies that do not appear to care a tinker's darn for quality beyond the bare idea and pay five or ten for good stuff with the equal reluctance that they must put it out for bad.
>
> For two years I have been studying the market and experimenting. My purpose was not to sell so many scenarios, but to find out who paid the highest prices. I tried them all. I haven't sold to all as yet, but I've landed fourteen which is enough for my purpose, now I'm going after sales in toto. Experience has taught me, as it has others, that I can get more for the same stuff with certain companies. Well, then, I classify the companies. The highest price are Class A. They get first crack at everything I write. Not until all of this class have refused a story does it reach Class B, which pay medium well. Of course, the next class gets what is left. Companies to whom I have not sold are placed in the first two classes. I select one or two unsold companies, place them in Class A and bombard the life out of them until I learn by sale what they are likely to pay.
>
> Passing from price to "Names on the film," let me say that I should think the manufacturer's own interests would have dictated that policy long ago. Aside from the added incentive and attraction to contributors, did it ever occur to you that a plagiarist would go more circumspectly about his work if he knew his name would be attached to the film, thus increasing his chances of exposure. I think it would. Here would be immediate evidence of whether or not the scenario was stolen and there would be no doubts such as I expressed to you in the matter of those recent releases.
>
> I have seen you mention the fact that an idea that fails as one kind of story may be worked out as another. I have done this in a number of cases. In your last days at Lubin's you rejected a script entitled "Paid With His Own Coin," an Eastern drama. Melies also rejected it, as did others. I wrote it up in Western setting and Melies released it Christmas week as "The Ranchman's Debt of Honor."

Were it practical we would ask Mr. Bunting for his list of names, b it is not practical. Each writer must establish his own list, for in ma instances a company that might send Mr. Bunting $20 for a story w send another author $35 for a story no better, but which is done in a st that more strongly appeals to them.

Most companies pay little money for scripts save to some favored f whose work appeals to the editor or producer, and more than once we ha had, almost in the same mail, complaint from one author and praise fr another relative to the prices of a stated company. Each author m make his own classification.

We do not agree with Mr. Bunting that the plagarist will be checked any degree by the use of names on the film. If Mr. Bunting is famil with the fiction end of the game he will recall the fact that the most e thusiastic thief that ever robbed magazine editors took an absolute delig in the fact that he was the champion swindler of the lot. The name on t film is an incentive to greater effort on the part of the honest scenar writer, but the literary thief is a conscienceless sort of cuss and glori in his shame.

The last paragraph has reference to a recent suggestion carrying t heading "Have you a little Dickey?" in which it was argued that a sto failing in one form might appeal in another. It will be noted that t second form was accepted by one of the companies rejecting the first ve sion simply because the first version did not suit the company's style production.

Mr. Bunting is one of the earliest and best established scenario write and his experience cannot but be helpful to others. He is generous sharing his knowledge with the craft.

A Prize Contest.

The Photoplay Enterprise Association makes announcement of a pri scenario contest which, until now, has been confined to the advertisemen of their book on photoplay writing which appears to be the enterprise the association. Here is their statement:

> Two hundred dollars in cash prizes is being offered by the Photoplay Enterprise Association, of Boonville, Ind., for the three best pictureplay scenarios submitted to them before April 1st. The prizes will be distributed as follows: $100 for the best scenario; $60 for the next best, and $40 for the third best. The winning scenarios will be paid for just the same as any other scenarios, the prizes being extra and merely a bonus for merit. In addition to the three prize-winning scenarios, the Photoplay Enterprise Association states that they will buy all other scenarios of merit, and are willing to pay the very best prices.
>
> The contest conditions do not call for any special kind of scenarios, dramas being just as acceptable as comedies. There are no strings to the contest, the same being open to any person or writer who desires to submit his script to the Contest Editors.

A Present from a Friend.

Do you take stories from your friends?

Do you ever have some well-meaning but misguided individual back yo into a corner and tell you his great idea for a story?

If you do, do you?

It isn't polite to look at a gift horse in the mouth, but when someon hands you a fine plot for a story be suspicious. The fact that you got from a friend isn't going to help a lot when some film company explai that they are threatened with a suit by some publisher on account of story that possibly you've made oath as being of your own invention.

Just on general principles the trained writer avoids the plots his friend give him because he knows that he'll not satisfy them in his treatment o the idea and that while he is writing it he is burdened by the fear that will not please. At best you are hampered by your facts, and your imagi nation is not given free rein, and when you find out that the story ha been stolen bodily from the pages of some magazine you are doubly at disadvantage.

If you are just starting in, start with the determination that you'll writ your own story and no one else's, and stick to that rule no matter wha comes up. Literary vanity takes curious forms and the new writer fall an easy prey to the man who cannot write at all and yet who likes to bra that this idea is his and that plot the product of his imagination. Fight sh Beware of Greeks bringing gifts and friends who offer you plots. It's th surest way to keep your reputation and your friendships as well.

Court Records and Copyright.

This inquiry is so apt to interest others than the questioner that it i lifted from the Inquiry Department. The correspondent writes:

> Are court records public property? The case in question is this: Some years ago an article appeared in a magazine describing a notorious swindle, as it actually occurred, and as it was set forth in the court records. Would a scenario based on those records be an infringement of the copyright?

Court records may not be copyrighted and their appearance in a cop righted story does not alter their status in the least. In such a case cop right protection applies only to the original matter, and since the excerpt from the official documents are not original, the copyright does not exten to them, though in some instances the manner in which the records a compiled may be protected by copyright. But in this case the actual reco is the property of the people and is free to all. It is questionable whethe a story based on a swindle would find acceptance, but the introduction of public documents into privately written stories does not affect their status. The text shows—or should show—that these quotations are not original, but matters of record and this, in itself, is sufficient proof that copyright is not claimed for matter so introduced.

OBSERVATIONS.

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN.

SEVERAL weeks ago a friend handed me a clipping from the New York Sun which announced that Percy G. Williams, one of the vaudeville magnates, had declared an intention to build high class stock theaters in sidential sections of New York to draw the public away from the picture ouses. I have the highest respect for Mr. Williams' judgment and ability s a vaudeville manager, and on several occasions he has displayed some ne fighting qualities when some of the other powers in the amusement eld have attempted to encroach upon his territory. The success he has ttained in New York and Brooklyn sufficiently vouches for this. But I lace little confidence in the scheme he is now credited with hatching. His rescent and Gotham theaters have done well in the cheap stock field, the atronage being large and steady, but the success attained is not due in any easure to a conversion of his patrons from the motion picture. Let Percy ick to his line and build all the stock houses he feels disposed to invest , but steer clear of any war of extermination against the pictures, which e announced policy practically means. He will find it very expensive nd quite fruitless. Many men as wise as Percy G. long ago learned that e public is not strongly disposed towards stock, even when dished up at o, 20 and 30. Successful houses of that character are exceptions and on real test the pictures would win out easily. No stock company could and the ordeal of a nightly change of programme, and it would be a human npossibility to give two or three dramas and a comedy or two each vening.

* * *

Every effort has been made to override the pictures with straight vaudeville without success, although all experienced managers agreed that in no ther way could they be overcome. I think East New York furnishes one f the strongest evidences of the hold motion pictures have upon the amusement seeking public. Mr. Williams erected a splendid vaudeville house in at territory—the Bushwick—but none of the picture houses were driven ut of business, although the programmes offered at the Bushwick were excellent and the prices exceedingly reasonable. Located near this theater is a ombination vaudeville and picture house. It is called the Dekalb. The ictures form a large part of the programme and the house has held its own o splendidly that the Bushwick has absolutely nothing on it, either in atronage or net weekly balances.

* * *

A well known manager to whom I made mention of the scheme accredited to Mr. Williams said, "I do not think Percy contemplates any ar. The success his two stock houses in Brooklyn have attained has in all robability led him to the conclusion that similar houses, judiciously located in New York, should prove a profitable investment. Experience alone ill show whether he is justified, but if his undertaking is to be based pon the taking of public favor from the pictures he had better not start. rom an economical standpoint alone the pictures have a big lead and here are many other advantages that a shrewd manager can see before aking an investment. I am a careful observer and see that with constant improvement in the preparation and production of pictures they are teadily drawing supporters from classes of people that make good paying nd steady patrons. Much has been said adversely with respect to the haracter of vaudeville some of the more pretentious houses have been iving with the pictures, but the steadily increasing patronage is gradually ringing about an improvement and it would not surprise me to see some f the so-called straight vaudeville houses on the anxious bench very soon. have seen some acts on the so-called second-rate vaudeville circuits recently that made me wonder why the major circuits did not get them. I elieve some of the second-rate circuit acts are being worked under new ames."

* * *

Some of the larger picture houses are in as much need of advice bearing pon the management as the smaller places. I noticed this a few nights go when visiting one of the Broadway houses. Some of the ushers do not onduct themselves at all times in a manner that is conducive to the best nterests of the house and the comfort of the patrons. Ropes had been arranged so as to keep late arrivals standing at the rear of the orchestra seats rom the aisles. The house was full and the standees were aplenty. Among hem were many well dressed and apparently highly respectable—and I are say sensitive—people. The usher in charge of that particular part of he house seemed to think that his chief duty was to push, crowd, rope in nd corral these people like so many cattle. This was one of his outbursts; "Now youse people keep in there and don't move till I tell yer. When ere's seats yer'll get dem, and not before. Yer crowd around as if yer anted to see a crap game." Of course, to most of those addressed the ow-browed outburst had a color of humor in it; but it was quite apparent hat many of the standees withheld resentment more on account of an indisposition to become involved in a controversy with a tough than a desire o be merciful. The house I refer to is one of the best and no doubt everything is done to make the management as perfect as possible, but there ppears to be a lack of general supervision. A house manager cannot be verywhere at all times and for this reason many incidents of the character refer to occur. But this will not serve as an excuse to be offered the ublic when it feels that there has been a lack of courteous treatment. I ould suggest a rule, particularly where one concern has a number of heaters, and that is a system of inspection by people who are not known o the house employees. An occasional visit will bring to the eye and ear any little things that will bear elimination to the profit of the management and the contentment of the patrons.

I made another observation that is worth attention. The audiences in the balconies and galleries are disposed to evince their lack of appreciation and give vent to derision in a manner that is quite discomforting to people in other parts of the house. Nothing could tempt me to advocate that the occupants of the cheaper seats be gagged or muzzled. They have the same rights as those who pay the higher prices, but should be reminded that the rights of others be respected. Even justifiable displeasure has its limit and where unruly characters disclose their presence the house should have people at hand to at least attempt to restore order. These remarks are prompted by the silly and provoking conduct of some youths in the gallery of a Broadway picture house last Monday evening. In one of the pictures the garments of a child became disarranged through evident accident and during the most impressive part of the scene the youths I refer to indulged in derisive laughter. Had it been momentary the incident might have escaped attention, but when continued there were complaints in all parts of the house on account of apparent lack of provision to keep the rowdy element in restraint. It is well to state, incidentally, that the picture was accorded hearty applause by those who were not in sympathy with the derisive element.

* * *

All these things go to show that the management of the best of houses is not above criticism at times and that those in charge must be constantly on the alert if the reputation of the house is to be kept up to the expected standard and the patronage is to be held.

* * *

A man sitting beside me when the last incident I speak of took place, stated he had been reliably informed that there is a system in operation to publicly hurt and discredit the pictures whenever it is possible to do so. He declared that groups of youths are planted in houses to ridicule and deride upon the slightest provocation, the intention being to send the audience away with the idea that the pictures are losing their grip on popularity. When my informant saw I was inclined to doubt that there were such plans in operation he added that he had not attempted to verify what had been told him, but said that a verification of it would not surprise him. "Why," said he, "the moving pictures have had the strongest kind of underground opposition for several years because they have displaced many people and many established lines of amusement, and nothing that will hurt the pictures is overlooked by those who have not in some way become interested in them. It would be no more unreasonable to think of having houses planted with knockers than it is to plant them with boosters. It would simpiy be an old game with new moves."

Inquiry Department

EDRIC E.—We do not place the player for whom you make inquiry, but we do not believe that she is now playing pictures.

MISS L. H. B.—A Memphis correspondent courteously points out that "The Birth Mark," for which this inquirer asks, was recently produced by the Reliance Company with Henry Walthall and Miss Gertrude Robinson in the cast.

GEORGIA H.—The reason you see so little about Mr. Kerrigan in these columns is that Mr. Kerrigan is too busy acting to do many press agent stunts.

FRED ABBLEY.—This matter has been given several times, but if you will write Mr. Walter Storey, the secretary of the National Board of Censorship, he will be glad to give you full information. Address him in care of the Board at Madison Avenue and 26th Street, New York. Briefly the board is a section of The People's Institute and is composed of representatives of the leading welfare societies.

E. P. H.—The winners in the Imp contest are given on page 494 of our last issue. The Imp is still in the market for good half reel comedies and full reel dramatics that measure up to Imp standards.

M. E. L.—Miss Frances Gibson and not Miss Marten had the lead in Lubin's "The Blacksmith." Miss Pickford is still playing in the pictures. She is number 59742 in the Biograph company.

K. D.—We will answer in this department any scenario question that does not require the handling of your manuscript.

GEORGE M.—We cannot undertake the reply to questions as to the identity of players in imported films. It is seldom that the information is to be had even of the home office.

MISS A. F.—Inquiry fails to develop the present connection of the photoplayers you mention. (2) It is required that photoplayers shall have well marked features and pale blue eyes are apt to take so light as to rob the face of much of its expression. In photography white and light blue have almost the same actinic value.

A. G.—Tom Powers is still with the Vitagraph and at present is a member of the Western section, playing in the vicinity of Santa Monica, Cal.

M. V. H.—The story you mention will not lend itself to effective filming and it is seldom that adaptations are purchased from outside contributors since they can be better done in the studio.

A. C. W.—Most of the policemen you see on the screen are "studio cops" as you call them, but we have known instances where the regular police have helped out in a pinch. As a general rule it is not difficult to obtain the loan of a house-front for exterior pictures and permission is always asked.

J. J. L.—Owen Moore was the favored lover in Imp's "Second Sight."

P. H. D.—The reason so few questions about Vitagraph players are answered in this department is that the Vitagraph bulletins carry the full casts and house managers are able to give the desired information to their inquisitive patrons. The same holds good of the Edison product.

L. R. T.—There has been no date set for the return of the Kalem Far East company. They've just begun to get busy. The announced plans will carry the company well through the summer.

ANXIOUS.—There is no dramatic school we know of that can help you to a regular position in a photoplay company, or even fit you for one. You might get a position as extra with one of the companies, but even this is not easy nor is the work steadily remunerative.

EDNA.—We've missed this question for several weeks. No company permits outsiders to watch the making of studio pictures either gratis or for an admission fee.

G. T. S.—The Selig Company does not offer for sale photographs of its players. The same holds good with the American

A. L. G.—Jack Hopkins is not now with the Lubin Company and we have not heard of his connection with any other studio yet.

S. S. C.—The Mr. Warren now with Powers is the same who was with Imp. He is referred to as the recent Lubin editor because the interval between Imp and Powers was spent in Philadelphia.

ADMIRER.—No Biograph questions can be answered.

A. W. L.—Sydney Ayres was Lieut. Moore in Selig's "Capt. Brand's Wife."

Essanay Western Feature.

Beautiful Scenic Production with Strong Dramatic Situations —Anderson in Role of Bandit.

FROM out his plenteous horn of many splendid Western productions, Mr. G. M. Anderson, that versatile actor, photoplaywright and director of the Essanay Western Company, has given us no finer picture than "The Bandit's Child," a drama of old California.

Redolent with heart-appeal, and photographed amid the beautiful scenery of Lakeside, Cal., it is at once a picture to hold an audience's undivided attention to the very last foot. The plot is gripping and virile, the quality of photography superb, and the acting of the usual high standard always to be seen in Essanay Western subjects. Stepping out, so to speak, of his famous rôle of Broncho Billy, Mr. Anderson gives gripping characterization to the portrayal of Fleming, the bandit, and Miss Vedah Bertram is prettily cast as the young wife from the East.

Tom Fleming is a road agent and well known to the sheriffs of several counties because of numerous stage hold-ups.

One morning, after sending his pal to town to spy on the departure of the stage-coach, Fleming is surprised to receive a letter from his wife back East.

Leaning against the door of the shack he slowly removes the letter from the envelope and reads:

> My dear husband:—
>
> To-day is baby's birthday. Think, Tom, it has been three years since you went away, but baby seems to remember you and continually calls for her daddy, and every night she prays with me that you will always remain a true, honest father and husband. Anxiously awaiting to see you, I am,
>
> Your Loving Wife.

Slowly Fleming raises his eyes and stares off toward the smoky hills. "And every night she prays with me that you will always remain a true, honest father and husband." The words burn into his brain as he realizes to what depths he has sunk in the three years he has been West, away from his wife and baby—a bandit, with a price on his head, and his loved ones, with a prayer upon their lips, believing him honest and upright and true to them.

Scene from "The Bandit's Child" (Essanay).

A great sob wells up within him that he chokes down as the beat of hoofs are heard from the trail and Morgan, his pal, rides up and flings himself from his reeking broncho.

Hastily he tells that the stage-coach is coming, and that it contains a rich haul, then stops short at the look on Fleming's face. With an air of final determination, Fleming turns to his pal, shows him the letter and declares he is through with outlawing.

"I'm going to make myself worthy of their prayers, Morgan, so we'll be quits from now on." For a moment Morgan hesitates, then he takes Fleming's hand, clasps it warmly, mounts and disappears down the trail.

Fleming now sends in his gun to the county sheriff, and obtains his freedom for surrender.

Starting out to seek honest employment, he is hired by a blacksmith and is happy in his new-found work when a ranchman rides up one day, recognizes Fleming as the bandit, informs the blacksmith, who instantly discharges him and orders him on. With a heavy heart, Fleming next applies to a secluded cattleman for work, and the man takes him on. Fleming feels sure he is safe from recognition, but ill-luck is still with him. One of the cowboys discovers his identity, and the whole outfit threaten to strike if Fleming is not discharged.

Realizing the barrier between honest labor and his old reputation, Fleming becomes embittered against all mankind, buckles on his six-shooter, secures his rifle and desperately resolves to go back to his old life.

Taking up a position at the side of the trail, he awaits the coming of the stage.

But Fate intervenes and the stage breaks down a quarter of a mile up the trail. A little baby girl clambers out and, in the general confusion, wanders off among the rocks and boulders. With rifle held in readiness, Fleming waits grim-visaged in his hiding-place. Suddenly a snapping twig causes him to whirl with a snarl and his rifle covers—a baby girl! Filled with wonderment, the bandit takes the child in his arms and cuddles her fondly. A locket about her throat catches his eye; he snaps it open and sees—the picture of his wife! "That's my mamma," lisps the little one and, in another moment she is crushed to him in a great embrace. Suddenly he looks up at the sound of a step. Before him stands his wife, who has come in search of the little one. For a moment they gaze at each other, then with a cry of joy Fleming catches her in his arms and kisses her hungrily. With wife and baby in his arms Fleming suddenly turns toward the trail. The stage-coach rattles into view and disappears in a dust-cloud. For a moment he gazes after it, then with a prayer of joy in his heart at his miraculous deliverance from further crime, he hugs his loved ones close to him.

"The Bandit's Child" is booked for release March 16th

EDISON PLAYERS IN COMEDY AND DRAMA.

A comedy in light vein, to be released by the Edison Company under the title "Her Face," is an adaptation from a story by H. B. Marriott Watson. This subject might be adapted to the speaking stage with great success, but it does not lose any of its charm through presentation in pictures. A dainty little love story as light as the air which blows a piece of paper from a porch window to the boudoir of a beautiful young woman, results in bringing together two lives that might otherwise not have been united.

The scene opens upon a studio of a well-to-do lawyer who is more interested in the writing of poetry than the preparation of briefs. Across the court from his apartment he has fleeting glimpses of the figure of a beautiful young woman. Though the lawyer has never seen her face, yet his poetical imagination has enabled him to create the face, of which he writes a verse entitled, "Her Face." He lays the paper containing the poem upon his desk and a quick gust of wind blows it out the window and sends it sailing across the court to the windowsill of the young lady's room. In his search for the missing sheet the young lawyer discovers it on the window sill across the way and climbs out to get it. Just as he is about to reach for it the wind carries it over the sill into the room and he daringly climbs in after it. No sooner has he set foot inside the room than the occupant returns and he is compelled to hide behind the curtain. The young lady picks up the poem and peruses it to her evident satisfaction. She is pleased with the similarity of the description which she realizes is intended for herself. She is about to disrobe when the lawyer is compelled to make his presence known, to save further embarrassment. An explanation is demanded and he tells her that he came after the verses. While the two are discussing the incident of the poetry, the maid announces the presence of the young lady's suitor. The young man follows quickly and the situation is most compromising. The lawyer rises to the occasion, however and quickly slips his ring into the lady's hand. She puts it on her finger and announces that it is her engagement ring and that the young lawyer is her fiance. The other young man takes his departure.

Scene from "Her Face" (Edison).

Having extricated themselves from their dilemma, the young woman is about to return the ring to the lawyer when he urges her to keep it. The suggestion is agreeable to the girl and from the close of the scene we readily conclude that she has decided to entrust her future in his hands.

In this little sketch, Miss Miriam Nesbitt gives a delightful portrayal of the young lady and Marc McDermott appears at his best as the lawyer poet. The settings of the various scenes are rich and in excellent taste. As a comedy it belongs to the highest class and should be favorably received

---

"THE LIGHTHOUSE KEEPER'S DAUGHTER" (Edison)

A delightful dramatic production comes from the Edison Company playing in Bermuda under the title of "The Lighthouse Keeper's Daughter." While the subject and the treatment are not unlike pictures of similar title, the Edison players have given a human touch to this picture that adds greatly to its charm. The old lighthouse keeper is anxious that his daughter shall marry the man whom he has chosen for her, one of the young men of the island who is deeply in love with her. A stranger comes along and wins the girl's heart. Against her father's command she runs away with her lover and is married. Sometime after the husband goes to sea and his ship fails to return. After long waiting and watching she returns to her father and is received with open arms. Believeing that the husband has gone beyond return the former lover renews his suit and feels that he is about to be rewarded.

Scene from "The Lighthouse Keeper's Daughter" (Edison).

A great storm spreads over the sea and many ships are wrecked among the islands. Finally a signal is seen from a distant rock and the old lighthouse keeper and the lover go out in a boat to make a search. On the rock they discover the body of a man almost spent from privation and hardship. They recognize him as the long lost husband and bring him in. His recovery follows. The husband and wife are reunited.

Laura Sawyer plays the part of the lighthouse keeper's daughter with great feeling. The excellence of the portrayal, together with the picturesque scenery of the Bermudas, make this picture at once impressive and interesting.

Harvey Six, of the New Columbia Theater, Perry, Ill., writes that he is doing phenomenal business in that small inland town. "We always have large crowds and the Columbia is here to stay," he writes.

"A MEXICAN COURTSHIP" (Lubin).

For some time Director Wilbert Melville and a company of Lubin players have been working in the vicinity of El Paso, Texas, and have been sending back some very interesting Mexican subjects. One of the most recent to come to our attention is a dramatic production entitled "A Mexican Courtship," which is set in and about the Mexican city, Juarez, on the banks of the Rio Grande. The picture opens with all the excitement attending a bull fight. Alonzo, the famous bullfighter, is to match his skill against the brave bull from Chihuahua, and the game is looked forward to with great interest by the entire population. Pretty little Dolores Duanes shares the general interest and one day wanders without the Plaza El Torres hoping to get one peep at the wonderful animals. Juan Gracio, a young Mexican employed at the bull ring, sees the girl and, attracted by her beauty, offers to show her the bulls, an offer which she gladly accepts. He takes her within the Plaza and shows her all of the interesting sights. The young people are mutually interested in each other. They meet often and in a few days are firmly in love.

Scene from "A Mexican Courtship" (Melies).

As usual, however, the course of true love does not run smooth. A few days before the fight, Alonzo, the matador, meets Dolores and is equally smitten. He forces himself upon her and proposes for her hand. Dolores is not impressed with him, but the bullfighter is insistent and seeks the influence of the girl's parents, who, realizing that he is a rich and famous man, favor his suit. With his great reputation and ability to make money, he certainly presents a better match than the poor odd-jobs man of the arena. Finally the eventful day arrives—the entire town turn out to see their favorite triumph over El Toro. The arena is crowded, but there is a delay; something seems to be wrong. The matador is late. Finally Alonzo reaches the Plaza and is in such a state of intoxication that with all effort it is impossible for him to enter the ring. The crowd is impatient and yelling for the fight to commence; the directors are frantic; there is no man among the toreadors who would dare to face the Chihuahua monster.

In the midst of the crisis Juan dashes into the directors' room. He pushes the toreadors aside and declares himself willing to meet the bull. The directors look upon the proposition as absurd. The professional bullfighters, who have not the courage to take Alonzo's place, laugh at Juan. "He a matador? Why, the bull would gore him to death." Juan pleads with the directors, who, hearing the clamor of the people, finally agree, fully satisfied that the bull will win and praying for the life of the reckless boy.

Juan dons the uniform and in all the splendor of satin and gold salutes the crowd. They all see that it is not the famous Alonzo and hearts palpitate for the fate of the daring amateur. The gates are opened and the bull gallops in. Picadors and bandarillos tantalize the beast to fury. Juan calmly looks on for a while, then he takes the center of the ring. He shakes his crimson scarf at the animal, which immediately gives chase. Being pressed hard, Juan leaps from right to left in front of the infuriated beast. Presently he faces the animal and, with a well-aimed blow, his rapier is buried in the bull's shoulder. Two or three spasms and he is dead. Juan salutes the crowd, who yell and applaud frantically. Dolores and her parents are there. Throughout the scene she has covered her eyes with fear. Now she springs into his arms, and her parents are only too proud to bestow her hand on the daring boy who in short order will be hailed the greatest matador of Mexico.

MISS TURNER GAINING IN HEALTH.

Word from Miss Florence Turner, the Vitagraph leading lady, the state of whose health has kept her from appearing in the pictures for the past few months, advises the Moving Picture World that she is rapidly improving. Miss Turner is at Topango, Cal., a mountain resort, the climate of which is most delightful. Under its influence Miss Turner has recovered her strength and spirits and is anxious to return to work. Her admirers, who number thousands, will hail her reappearance with genuine joy.

Splendid Kalem Feature.

"A Spartan Mother" Combines Pathos and Patriotism with Stirring Effect—Presented with Special Music.

ABOUT 150 exhibitors of Greater New York and vicinity attended a special presentation of the Kalem production, "A Spartan Mother," at the Auditorium Theater, 23rd Street and Seventh Avenue, New York, on Tuesday, Feb. 27th. It was an interested audience and viewed the picture with rapt attention. In opening the entertainment Mr. William Wright, of the Kalem Company, explained tha the purpose in asking the exhibitors to view that particular subject was twofold: first, to show them a good picture, and second, to show them how even a good picture could be improved by the accompaniment of suitable music arranged for it. In this case Mr. Wright was able to present not only special music as arranged for "A Spartan Mother" but it was played by the composer, Mr. Walter C. Simon.

"A Spartan Mother" is scheduled to be released on March 11. It might be classed as a Southern war picture, one of a series of similar subjects which have been very singularly well portrayed by the Kalem players from time to time. Of the series, this particular picture is beyond question the strongest that has yet been produced by Kalem players, and illustrates most vividly the virtue of patriotism in woman, which has been the subject of song and story for ages.

The story in the picture opens upon a regiment of Confederate soldiers on their way to battle. Leading the column is the sturdy and commanding form of its colonel. He is affectionately greeted by his wife, who next turns to her eldest son, a soldier in the ranks. The column passes on and in a succeeding scene we are told that both husband and son have been killed in the battle that followed.

While still bowed with grief, the mother greets her youngest son, who has returned from college upon learning of the family tragedy. She realizes that his services are demanded by his country and urges him to take his place in the ranks. Regretfully the young man leaves his mother and goes to the front, where we later see him under arms in camp. Then comes the test of battle. The young man is lacking in courage and is seen to attempt to leave the ranks of his company, which is preparing to join in the engagement. He is detected by an officer and driven back to his place. A charge is ordered and, when the fighting is hottest, the young man is seen to desert his comrades and escape—he has proven a coward.

Dramatic Scene from "A Spartan Mother," by the Kalem Company.

The fighting is in the vicinity of the young man's home, and the old colonial mansion has been set on fire by exploding shell. Unable to save it, the mother and the few old servants are compelled to watch its destruction, but the mother has managed to save the pictures of her husband and her son, who have died for the cause, together with the flag under which they fought. With these relics she has taken refuge in the negro quarters with the two remaining servants, there to grieve over her misfortunes.

While in this attitude of prayer and mourning the mother is startled by the appearance of her terror-stricken son, who rushes into the room and grovels at her feet. At first the mother seeks to give comfort to the boy, but when the thought that he is a coward and a deserter in the face of the enemy comes to her, she is horror stricken. Determined that the boy shall retrieve himself she directs his attention to the picture of his father and brother and commends their bravery and glorious end. This does not inspire the boy. Then she seizes a revolver and compels him to face the enemy.

The flag which the mother has saved from the wreck of her home she has thrown over the boy's shoulders. He staggers out of the house with it in his hands and turns toward the line of battle. As he joins his comrades they are in retreat, but he blindly rushes through their shattered ranks and toward the enemy. Inspired by his action the retreating column turns and drives the enemy before it. Just as the battle seems fairly won, the boy with the flag is seen to waver and fall, but his mission has been completed and his name saved from dishonor.

Back in the cabin of the faithful old servant there remains only the heart-broken mother who has sacrificed her all for love of country.

The music arranged for this subject by Mr. Simon consists of a careful blending of a number of patriotic airs with other appropriate music composed by him for the picture. It greatly strengthens and punctuates the dramatic periods of the picture and adds to its charm and effectiveness. Many expressions of approval were voiced by the critical audience.

Exhibitors will be given every opportunity to feature "A Spartan Mother," as considerable special advertising matter has been prepared for it and can be obtained from the usual sources.

A VOICE FROM THE DESERT.

Miss Gene Gauntier, of the El Kalems, Writes Interestingly of Experiences in Egypt.

That the star players of the Kalem Company, now sojourning at Luxor, Egypt, may not be altogether forgotten, the Moving Picture World is pleased to publish the following letter from Miss Gauntier, just received from Luxor, where the El Kalems, under the direction of Mr. Sidney Olcott, are producing some unusual pictures.

"We have just completed two thousand feet of a two-reel subject entitled, 'Dust of the Desert.' The studio sets were built, and a ride of twenty miles a day with camels and donkeys to take the desert scenes. This two-reel subject, and a big spectacular Copt-Mohammedan picture, in which are used fifty camels and a hundred and fifty Arabs and Dervishes, besides Arabian horses. All scenes being taken on the desert. We have never put out two more finished productions, even in 'Colleen Bawn' and 'Arrah.' We have brilliant sunshine and cloudless skies every day, but we have unbearable heat and dust, and twenty miles a day on donkeys to counterbalance it.

"My first experience at riding an Arabian horse was during the production, 'For the Holy Faith,' the last of January. Ameene, our dragoman, knowing my love for horses, singled out one of a group brought by the Arabs for the scene, saying: 'I think this is a fast but gentle mare. Try her, but be sure not to use the bridle, for the bit is very cruel, and you would with a slight touch pull her backwards on you.' I mounted the wide Arabian saddle, with its heavy velvet trappings and tassels. It was peculiar, a cross between a cow saddle and something I have never seen. The stirrups are great brass ones, in which the whole foot sets flat and which is also used as a spur. This was a short way out on the desert, and Mr. Olcott and the rest of the company on donkeys were majestically wending their way farther out. I chirruped to the mare to catch up with them. Just one bound that gentle mare took, and in two seconds I had passed them and was still going. As the vast clear space of the desert stretched before her, she was like a wild thing, bound after bound with still increasing speed, until (I frankly admit it) I was frightened to see how fast one could go and still stay on. I'll bet at that last burst she broke the record of Salvador. I was sitting easy as a rocking horse, and the crowd thought I was 'showing off' and giving an exhibition of fine riding. They did not know the terror that was clutching at my heart. Well, Arabian horses have another virtue besides beauty, speed and intelligence. They are extremely bridle wise, and I soon found it out and tired her out with describing big circles, else I might have been across the Sahara by now instead of in my nice cool room in Luxor.

"A well nigh fatal accident took place last week, while we were engaged in 'Dust of the Desert.' Alice Hollister was playing the Arabian girl, and swathed in the long gowns and four metres square of heavy black goods which form the 'tah rab' or veil and cloak combined, was seated on the primitive wheel, which propelled by the camel she was driving round and round, brings up from a seventy-five foot well beside her, the earthen jars of water which irrigate the fields. Just as the Egyptians did two thousand years ago. This well is about ten feet long, and five wide, and the ends are utterly unprotected. In the scene in question she was to stop the camel, get down from her seat, walk around the well and greet her husband. But the camel, hesitating for a moment at the brink of the well, resumed its slow walk. She jumped, and the cumbersome clothes caught, throwing her into the well, but with a scream she threw out her arms catlike, and held backwards with them for one brief second, onto the sloping sides of earth. With a spring Ameene, our dragoman, had her and not a second too soon, as her entire body was in the well, which, filled as it was with jagged rocks and the great wheel of earthen jugs, would certainly have sent her senseless into the water, thirty feet below."

"Dust of the Desert," we are advised, is from a scenario written by Miss Gauntier who, aside from being the most versatile player of the Kalem producing forces, is a most capable writer of plays for the pictures. The presentation of this subject will be awaited with great interest.

ALPHA THEATER OPENS AT BELLEVILLE, N. J.

The first theater of any kind that has ever been erected in Belleville, N. J., was formally opened to the public on Monday evening, Feb. 19. The name of the new theater is the "Alpha," which signifies the first letter of the Greek alphabet and also means the first theater of Belleville. The new house was built and will be managed by Mr. Salo Ansbach, a well-known and enterprising man in promoting theatrical ventures. He is the only man who has ever been successful in establishing a show of any kind in Ocean Grove, N. J., which, as everybody knows, is a churchgoers' resort of considerable prominence. Also, by the touch of his magic hand a beautiful playhouse arose from a patch of weeds and is known as the Monticello Theater in Jersey City, N. J.

The Alpha seats 500 and will be conducted as a first-class moving picture emporium with occasional high-class vaudeville acts when they can be had. The management will not cater to the frivolous class, nor will it ever be accused of conducting a Sunday-school, but a high level of popular entertainment will be maintained with as many instructive pictures as possible.

PICTURES IN DETROIT HOUSE OF CORRECTION.

Mr. John L. McDonnell, superintendent of the Detroit House of Correction, of Detroit, Mich., recently installed a Power's projecting machine to give picture shows to the inmates of that institution. In a letter to Manager Ward, of the Michigan Film Exchange, who sold him the machine, Mr. McDonnell has written the following letter:

"Dear Sir:—The Power's No. 6 moving picture machine and stereopticon, installed in this institution by you in December last, has met our every expectation, and I believe it will prove of great benefit to our inmates from every point of view, particularly as an educational and reformative aid. In the short time we have operated the machine, a brightening effect upon the inmates is apparent, a condition very much to be desired in an institution of this character. We anticipate much pleasure and benefit from its continued use."

Filming the Birth of a State.

Vitagraph Company Gets a Series of Intimate Views of President Taft and White House Notables.

By William N. Taft.

FOR the first time in the history of the country the birth of a state—Arizona, the forty-eighth state in the Union—was perpetuated on a moving picture film when, on February 14, President Taft accorded permission to three moving picture operators to take views of the signing of the official proclamation which placed the latest—and perhaps the last—star on the flag.

When the subject was first broached to the President it met with decided opposition, both from Mr. Taft himself and from the officials at the White House. However, when it was pointed out that the filming would be nothing more than a pictorial representation of what would be described in detail in the newspapers throughout the country permission was granted to two government photographers to operate machines during the ceremony.

The Vitagraph Company, upon hearing that government operatives were to be allowed to take pictures of the signing, applied for like permission which, after appeals from the Arizona delegation, was granted. Accordingly the White House officials conferred with the photographers and decided that the President's study—which has a southern exposure and a number of large windows—would be an excellent place in which to sign the proclamation.

Fortunately the morning of February 14 was clear and bright and the sun streamed in through the open windows, flooding the entire room with light. President Taft sat facing the windows while the moving picture men grouped themselves along the walls preparatory to taking the first film ever made within the walls of the Executive Mansion. The arrival of the Arizona delegation—some forty in number—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, Secretary to the President Charles Dewey Hilles, and a number of other notables had already been photographed from the exterior of the White House and the machines focused in readiness to take the difficult interior views.

Prompt to the moment, President Taft entered the room at 10 o'clock, posed for a stationary picture and then seated himself at the desk preparatory to signing the document which would enable Arizona to be recognized among the states of the Union. The Vitagraph Company, through the quickness of thought of Mr. Hal Reid, obtained a bit of advertising by having Secretary Hilles introduce Mr. Reid to the President just before the attaching of the latter's signature, thus obtaining an excellent view of the introduction of a citizen to the head of the nation.

To the accompaniment of the clicking of the three machines and the single click of an "ordinary" camera, the President, after reading over the history-making document, took the pen from the hands of Delegate Ralph Cameron, of Arizona, and attached the "Wm. H. Taft," which transformed the bill into a law and provided for the addition of the forty-eighth star on next Fourth of July. The moving picture men also caught views of the presentation of the pen used by President Taft to Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock—for the past four years prominent in agitations to secure statehood for Arizona—and the departure of the delegation. It was announced that the films taken by the government photographers would be placed in the archives of the State Department for the instruction and education of future generations, while the President gave the Vitagraph Company permission to use the other film throughout the country as a medium of education for the people in showing them how such ceremonies take place.

Later in the day the President, yielding to the importunities of the photographers who desired permission to take a film entitled "A Day at the White House," gave permission to photograph the visitors to the White House, the servants attached to the Executive Mansion and even Mrs. Taft and himself taking a walk in the gardens behind the private portion of the White House. Secretary Hilles, after being instructed on the "proper manner" to pose for a moving picture camera, walked unconcernedly (!) out of the private entrance to the offices, chatted for a moment with Mr. Reid, who impersonated a casual friend, and strolled away up the concrete walk while the camera clicked behind him.

Shortly after this a number of senators, representatives and cabinet officers called upon the President and were all "filmed" before and after entering. The newspaper correspondents, some twenty in number, were also photographed while at work and, as a crowning achievement, the President and Mrs. Taft strolled near the tennis court—which attained prominence during the Roosevelt regime—and allowed the cameras to snap them in motion. This was the first time that a moving picture camera ever invaded the sanctity of the White House private grounds.

The President, having evinced a desire to witness the pictures before they were placed on public exhibition, a private seance before Mr. and Mrs. Taft, several members of the Cabinet and a number of the correspondents was arranged for in the cabinet room of the White House. The President commented on the clearness and distinctness of the views and expressed himself as being well pleased with the films, which will be immediately prepared for distribution and exhibition in this and other countries.

Now that the moving picture men have succeeded in breaking through the wall of convention which formerly hedged in the White House, it is thought likely that a number of films showing the performance of other official duties and functions by the head of the nation will be made, President Taft realizing that the motion pictures are a method of publicity second only to the newspapers.

Brick Church Endorses Motion Pictures

Committee Representing the Well-Known New York Presbyterian Congregation Submits a Formal and Favorable Report.

The civic committee of the Brick Presbyterian Church, of New York, some weeks ago was appointed to investigate the moving picture situation and report as to the advisability of requesting certain moving picture shows in the vicinity of the Sunday School of Christ, in West Thirty-sixth Street, to close their places during certain hours on Sunday. This matter was subsequently dropped for lack of substantial reasons.

The report of this committee to the church is distinctly in favor of moving pictures. The committee finds that the animated picture show is by far the dominant type of dramatic representation in New York. It goes on to record in detail the immense pro-rata attendance at picture shows by all classes as compared with the small percentage which attends the theaters offering spoken plays. The burlesque companies are hit hardest by the report, with vaudeville only one peg above in the scale of artistic degredation. The so-called "legitimate" theaters are let down fairly easy, but the "movies" get a clean bill of health. More than that, a good proportion of them are held to be highly entertaining, instructive and uplifting. A film production of Shakespeare's "Tempest" is praised in the report and cited as being the kind of picture that no church could reasonably find fault with. The report summarizes as follows:

> "Now and then, though in proportion extremely few, there are motion pictures which are morally objectionable. The Board of Censorship has brought about much improvement during the past year and a half. Something still remains to be done; yet it would be unfair to the motion pictures to condemn more than a minute proportion. No section of the work has received more careful attention from as large a number of observers, and their agreement came to be essentially complete. The moving picture is now offering to the public a more positively desirable form of entertainment than can be found at any other type of indoor commercial recreation provided at popular prices and at most types of the high priced as well.
>
> "The well-to-do young person who goes often to the theater does not have as high an average level of positive opportunity before him as is offered his poorer brethren in the moving picture show."

Unofficially, Mr. Knowlton Durham appended to the report some individual observations of his own, to-wit:

"I believe nothing will be gained by attempting measures to secure the closing of these shows at certain hours on Sunday afternoons, and we are opposed to an effort to repress a recreation, not harmful in its effect, which furnishes pleasure and occupation to such a large number of people, many of whom could scarcely come under the influence of the Sunday School. Possibly moving pictures in the Sunday School, with no charge for admission, would empty all the commercial show places. The educational possibilities of the motion picture are almost limitless and a movement to install them in the public schools is well under way. I believe the suggestion is worth serious consideration.

"With respect to the conditions surrounding the operation of moving picture shows, very serious criticism is deserved and positive improvements are necessary. Owing to our faulty Building Code the number of houses which can afford to comply with the regulations governing buildings accommodating more than 300 persons is comparatively small. As esult, the industry is practically confined to the so-called store front" shows—cheap and impermanent places with poor ventilation, dangerous overcrowding and inadequate ire protection. Our present law forbids admission of children under sixteen unaccompanied by a guardian or parent. This law is violated in common practice.

"An important piece of constructive legislation is now before the Board of Aldermen in the form of a proposed ordinance based upon the report of the Mayor's Committee, which will, if enacted, result in greatly improving such conditions, although it does not attempt to regulate children's attendance.

"Pursuant to the findings of the committee, I have sent he following letter:

> "To the President of the Board of Aldermen, City Hall, New York:
>
> "Dear Sir—The Men's Association of the Brick Presbyterian Church, at its regular monthly meeting, held last Monday night, considered a report presented by its Civic Committee with reference to the moving picture shows in the neighborhood above 23d and south of 42d Street. A rather careful investigation of actual conditions had been made and the substance of the report was to the effect that, so far as the character of the films presented was concerned, there was very little to criticize; in fact, that by far the larger number of them might actually be considered of positive value. The report did, however, severely criticize the conditions surrounding the operation of the shows, particularly those located in the west side of the city, along Eighth Avenue, on account of the poor sanitary conditions, the overcrowding, and what would appear to be dangerous fire conditions. At most of the performances visited, at least 50 per cent. of the audience was composed of children apparently under the age of sixteen, without being attended by parents or guardians.
>
> "The Association, after discussion, voted unanimously to instruct the Committee to write you, placing itself on record as heartily in favor of the immediate enactment of the proposed Folk ordinance, now before the Board of Aldermen, and urging you to use your earnest efforts to secure its enactment, and we beg to assure you that if there is anything that we can do to be of assistance in furthering this object, we are at your service. Yours very truly,
>
> "KNOWLTON DURHAM,
> "Chairman Civic Committee."

STUDIO NOTES FROM CALIFORNIA.

Mr. P. C. Hartigan, in charge of Kalem's Santa Monica company, had the joy of being a real, instead of a sham, hero a few days ago. He and Mr. Ed Coxen were riding along when they beheld a cloud of dust in the distance from which emerged the figure of a runaway horse dragging a light surrey behind it. The young lady in the carriage was vainly endeavoring to control the animal and crying aloud for help. The gallant Hartigan, who is an expert rider, raced alongside of the runaway and brought it to a halt. She was very pretty. He was very fetching in his cowboy rig. Will they live happily ever afterward? You can search me.

Miss Alice Joyce, Judson Melford and Melford, Pere, were enjoying a brisk ride along Hollywood Boulevard when a speeding motorist crashed into them, completely demolishing both machines. Fortunately no one was injured.

During the taking of a film in which Miss Joyce and Jane Wolfe play the parts of two sisters, a great deal of wailing is necessary to get desired effect. While this scene was on showing Miss Alice lamenting bitterly, comforted by Miss Wolfe, a farmer boy hearing the sounds of distress and not seeing the camera rushed into the picture spoiling fifty dollars' worth of film. Curses. By the director.

The United States Motion Picture Company, recently organized, are about ready to commence operations in their new studio which will be located at the corner of Temple and Lake Shore. A series of films is being taken and will be rushed to New York at once to fill contracts.

The Fox Company, which has been operating at Hollywood, were served with an attachment sworn out by W. E. Edwards, formerly stage manager of the company, who claims he is due back salary. For some time there have been rumors that things were not going as well as could be hoped for. D. Daniels, the camera man, took things in his own hands by stopping in the middle of a picture leaving the company without an operator or machine. This is the company with which Nat Goodwin was originally identified.

The old Southern Pacific passenger depot at Santa Monica has been leased by the Bison Company and will be remodeled and converted into business offices and dressing rooms.

"The Deserter," a two-reel military drama, was shown to Independent exchange men by the management of the Bison Company. From all accounts the picture will be a hit.

Miss Ficher, who was recently with the Essanay Company, has joined the Vitagraph Company.

Fernando Galvez, formerly with the Selig Chicago company, has been transferred to the local studio at Edendale.

RUSSELL BURGESS.

SCENE FROM "THE DESERTER," BY BISON CO.

"The Deserter" is the name of the Bison fourth two-reel release from which the accompanying cut was made. "The Deserter," as the name will imply, is a military drama. This subject, as with the previous "Bison 101" pictures, belongs among the greatest pictures of its kind.

The photo herewith reproduced is taken from the last scene in the picture. The deserter had numerous hairbreadth escapes following his desertion from the army. He became a deserter on account of the love of a girl he thought he had won, but was transferred to a brother officer. He retrieves himself by saving the lives of a party of pioneer settlers with whom he had cast his lot, after making a mad dash through a band of marauding Indians to his deserted post for help. He is shot and mortally wounded in the attempt. The "now" hero dies soon after delivering his message, and is buried with high military honors.

The Durbar in Kinemacolor.

All Expectations Surpassed by the Kinetic Wonder of the Age in Recording a Ceremony that Dwarfs the Fetes of Antony and Cleopatra.

KINEMACOLOR has outdone itself in much the same manner that a champion athlete sometimes beats his own record. The first presentation of the Delhi Durbar ceremonies in Kinemacolor took place on Monday evening, February 19, at the New York Theater, New York City. A large, fashionable and representative gathering filled the theater to its utmost. It was a full dress affair and resembled a night at the opera. Many noted New Yorkers were among the number, and also men of progress in the motion picture industry. A large proportion of the audience had not as yet witnessed any of the previous Kinemacolor presentations and accordingly were not prepared for the great surprise that the evening had in store for them. Others who had seen former presentations, such as the "Coronation" pictures, gravitated there, but for the most part could not bring themselves to believe that it was possible to surpass the "Coronation" pictures. There was a surprise in store for them as well as for the uninitiated.

The "Durbar" in Kinemacolor is a great success; probably the greatest success that moving pictures have ever scored at any time or place. After observing this spectacle one does not feel so sorry at not being a millionaire with a millionaire's opportunities for visiting foreign lands and foreign events. There in their seats the audience began to realize, perhaps for the first time, that it will be no longer necessary to undergo long and tedious journeys in order to witness ceremonials in obedience to deep-seated longings of the heart. They learned also that they can see more of such things by staying at home than they could by being on the spot. It is much easier to sit in a comfortable orchestra chair and get a close view of the principals than it is to be an ordinary mortal hanging on the fringe of a hot and dusty crowd and half of a mile away from the stage, in a far distant land. It is quite probable that most of the persons who actually witnessed the "Delhi Durbar" will see more of it afterwards through the medium of Kinemacolor than they did in the city of Delhi, to say nothing of the expense and fatigue they went to. According to the picture, if one did not happen to be a British soldier, there was not a chance of getting within gunshot of the Imperial Marque, and only a very favored section of the army got anywhere near it at that.

The exhibition was remarkably smooth; it had been carefully rehearsed and much praise is deserved by those who supervised the details of it. Two projection machines were used. One picked up where the other left off with such nice precision that the pictures were thought by many to be one long continuous film. The light was brilliant and the film, with all its color, was perfect. It is more easy to imagine than to describe the riot of color at an Oriental ceremony, but Kinemacolor is better than imagination and it can be truthfully said that none of the colors have been lost in this truly great record. The predominance of red in the British army uniform is well calculated to produce a brilliant effect and has much to do with the success of the "Durbar" pictures. In detail the program is as follows:

The landing of their Imperial Majesties.

Preparation for the Coronation Durbar—A series of animated snapshots of native workmen and the cosmopolitan population busily preparing for the great event. These were of great interest as side lights and furnished a very good idea of native customs and types, as well as being an exposition of queer vehicles and methods of transportation.

Arrival of their Majesties—Life size view of the King and Queen and members of the Royal Court.

State Entry into Delhi, December 17, 1911—Showing the arrival of the Royal train on the East India railway; an immaculate white palace on wheels. Also showing the ostentatious reception by various dignitaries, military and civil.

The scene then changes to Calcutta, furnishing one of the most enjoyable parts of the entertainment, that of the natives preparing for the coming of the King to their city. In this picture we observe the elephants, camels, sacred cattle and Oriental vehicles of state being prepared for the festivities. In this view the colors run riot, the like of which it has been given to but few Americans to witness in their native country. The profusion of rich and multi-colored silks and other fabrics is positively amazing and the audience was duly amazed. If P. T. Barnum could ever arise from his tomb and witness some of these processional scenes, he might be glad to hie himself back again, with all haste, at finding himself so far outdone.

After an intermission the Coronation ceremonies are taken up. Beginning the parade with the mutiny veterans, there a constant exposition of immense military maneuvers. Tin after time the audience burst into applause as the variou well-drilled regiments put in appearance. Much of the secor part was occupied by the procession of various detachmen through the Elephant Gate at Delhi. In the opinion of mar of those present, this was prolonged a trifle too much an it would be well if other scenes were substituted for tl sake of variety.

The Coronation ceremonies at the throne are seen at clo range; also the native chiefs swearing allegiance to tl crown. Interspersed in the second half are numerous cam scenes about Delhi and Calcutta, showing many interestin details incident to the occasion. A magnificent and impres sive part is the review by King George of 50,000 of h most select troops, regiments and batteries. Also a panc ramic view of the great throng assembled on the day of th Coronation. Spontaneous applause punctuated the picture at frequent intervals. It is estimated that 150,000 peopl surrounded the Imperial canopy, of which the camera coul record but one-quarter at a time. A spirited polo match wa well received, but the scenes within the elephant stockad at Calcutta pleased the audience as well as anything in th entire evening's exhibition.

The stage was beautifully arranged for the presentatio with a splendid piece of work by the well-known scenic artis Ernest Albert. It is a representation of the beautiful Ta Mahal at Agra. At the close of the exhibition congratulation were many for those interested in Kinemacolor presentation Automobiles by the score rolled away the departing guests profuse in their praises of what the Kinemacolor people, an others, are disposed to consider the eighth wonder of th world.

H. F. H.

MOTION PICTURE PRESS WORK IN ST. LOUIS.

Mr. Wm. J. Flynn, general manager of eight of the larges photoplay theaters, has been doing some valuable publicit work in behalf of the houses he represents. Recently h induced the St. Louis Sunday papers to accord extende illustrated reviews of some of the larger feature films and also supplied high art window cards of noted photoplayers t the several houses.

It's a good thing for moving picture men that there exists such a thing as the "Turkey trot." It takes the reform bloodhounds off the scent of moving pictures.

Miss Agnes Egan, Secretary of the Lux Film Co.

From the 400 to the Herd" (American).

Reviewed by Jas. S. McQuade.

T was really a pleasure to watch the unfolding of the story of "From the 400 to the Herd" as told in pictures by the American's Western producer and company. The ory is well connected, and it is by no means of the ele-ental type.

Skillful camera work is revealed in this film, which has veral fine natural backgrounds and beautiful perspectives. he technical work of the subject was done in the new fac-ry in N. Edgewater, Chicago, and Superintendent C. L. andall is to be congratulated for bringing out the photo-aphic effects uniformly and to the best advantage. Indeed, e photography merits unstinted praise. It is clear and ft throughout, and the half-tones, with right projection on e proper screen, are well defined.

Scene from "From the 400 to the Herd" (American).

From my viewpoint, this film has greater pretensions to class" than any yet turned out by the American. The cting is refined, and the portrayal of the principal charac-ers bespeaks careful rehearsal and capable histrionic bility. Warren Kerrigan and Miss Pauline Bush appear in he leading rôles of Jack Stevens and Clarice Weybrock, nd George Periolat and Miss Louise Lester assume the haracter parts of Earl Derbley and Mrs. Weybrock.

Jack, the American gentleman and the owner of $50,000,000 oves Clarice. She returns his love, but is capricious. When he Earl of Derbley appears on the scene, Mrs. Weybrock ecomes ambitious to secure a title for her daughter and n interest in the $50,000,000, which he possesses. She is purred on by the knowledge that the Earl loves Clarice and s anxious to make her his wife.

In a moment of girlish caprice Clarice tells Jack that she nay marry the Earl. She is merely bantering him, but he akes her seriously and writes a letter wishing her happiness vith her titled lover. On reading it, Clarice is humiliated nd angry. In this mood she listens to her mother's plead-ng and yields to the Earl's suit. They are married and ack tries to forget his disappointment by acting as fore-nan of the Earl's ranch in the West, under an assumed name.

While the mother of Clarice enjoys thoroughly the social aieties and luxury which have come to her, the young wife s unhappy and finds life a burden. The title of Countess has ecome a bauble in her eyes, and, although the Earl is the nost considerate of husbands and a knightly gentleman, she annot bear his presence. Her mother tries to smooth mat-ers, but fails.

At this juncture the Earl loses his entire fortune through nsafe investments. All that is left him is his Western anch, and he hurries there to sell it, in order to realize funds that may assist in saving part of his fortune. In the foreman he recognizes Jack, who buys the ranch. On his way back to the East, Earl Derbley dies, and Clarice and her mother find themselves penniless.

Not knowing that the ranch has been sold, the mother and daughter depart for the West to live on it. There they meet Jack. Mrs. Weybrock is incensed to find that he is the foreman, and commands him to leave at once. Then he shows her his title to the property and the haughty lady turns away in despair.

Scene from "From the 400 to the Herd" (American).

But Jack seeks Clarice, and once more she becomes part owner of the ranch by giving him her heart and hand. The release date is Monday, March 4.

"THE BROKEN TIES" (American).

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

"The Broken Ties," a full-reel film, to be released by the American on Thursday, March 7, has a story that is not altogether pleasant. The despoiling of an aged man by his unscrupulous second wife and her son has a disagreeable moral flavor; nor is the atmosphere improved by the appearance on the scene of the exiled son of the old man, with pistol in hand, ready to wreak vengeance on his stepmother and stepbrother.

Aside from this, however, the story attracts by its heart interest. The girl, who has dismissed her country lover in favor the city bred youth, who, in turn, throws her over for a city girl, reveals the gold in her character in the end. The old man, too, shows that age has still its lessons to learn, and that injustice may be wrought on one's own flesh and blood, when the judgment is warped by selfish interest.

Scene from "Broken Ties" (American).

The various characters are convincingly impersonated, and the scenes of the production have been well selected, all being exteriors, with one exception. As in "From the 400 to the Herd," the photography and technique are worthy of praise. "The Broken Ties" is also among the first films that have been turned out in the new factory.

Projection Department

Edited by F. H. RICHARDSON.

NOTICE.—Next week the entire department will be taken up with Part Three of the machine instructions, dealing with the Simplex mechanism.

NEW YORK STATE LAW.—New York (name of town suppressed) writes: "I am in receipt of your recent letter advising me that there is no law now on the statute book regulating moving picture exhibitions which deals with the entire State. Now, since the recent fire which destroyed the Imperial Theater in this town there has been more or less agitation concerning operating rooms. Mine is home made and is heavy asbestos lined throughout, while the one that burned had no protection whatever. I enclose herewith a paper which I received from the C. W. Trainer Manufacturing Company, a firm which is trying to sell me a booth. This firm is agitating the matter by frequent correspondence with the Mayor of this town, calling his attention to the law as stated in the circular. Will you again do me the favor of writing me, stating what you know concerning the law as mentioned."

A synopsis of the requirements of the State law was printed in this department last fall. For the benefit of all we will now print the law in full:

IN ASSEMBLY.

June 30, 1911.

SECTION 1.—Chapter twenty-five of the laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An act relating to general business, constituting chapter twenty of the consolidated laws, is hereby amended by adding thereto, after article twelve thereof, a new article, to be known as article twelve-a, to read as follows:

ARTICLE 12-A.

Public Entertainment or Exhibitions by Cinematograph or any Other Apparatus for Projecting Moving Pictures.

SECTION 209.—Fireproof booth for cinematograph or any other apparatus for projecting moving pictures.

210.—Construction of booth; approval of plans and specifications.

211.—Inspection, certificate.

212.—Penalty for violating this article.

209.—Fireproof booth for cinematograph or any other apparatus for projecting moving pictures. No cinematograph or any other apparatus for projecting moving pictures, which apparatus uses combustible films of more than ten inches in length, shall be set up for use or used in any building, place of public assemblage or entertainment unless such apparatus for the projecting of moving pictures shall be inclosed therein in a booth or enclosure constructed of iron frame work covered or lined with asbestos board or with some equally strong and fire-resisting materials, and unless such booths shall have been constructed as provided in section two hundred and ten of this article and the certificate provided in section two hundred and eleven of this article shall have been issued to the owner or lessee of the premises wherein such booth is situated.

210.—Construction of booth, approval of plans and specifications. The booths provided for in section two hundred and nine of this article shall be constructed according to plans and specifications which shall have been first approved in a city by the Mayor or chief executive officer of the city department having supervision of the erection of buildings in such cities; in a village, by the president of such village; in a town outside the boundaries of a city or village, by the supervisor of such town. Provided, however, that no plans or specifications for the construction of such booths shall be approved by any public official, unless the following requirements are substantially provided for in such plans and specifications:

Dimensions. Such booth shall be at least seven feet in height. If one machine is to be operated in such booth the floor space shall be not less than forty-eight square feet. If more than one machine is to be operated therein an additional twenty-four square feet shall be provided for each such additional machine. Twenty-four square feet shall be provided for each such additional machine.

General specifications. Such booth shall be constructed with a frame work of iron angles not less than one and one-quarter inches by one and one-three-sixteenths of an inch thick, the adjacent iron members being joined firmly with angle plates of iron. The iron members of the frame work shall be spaced not more than four feet apart on the sides and not more than three feet apart on the front and back and top of such booth. The fire-resisting material provided for in section two hundred and nine of this article shall completely cover the sides, top and all joints of such booth. The sheets of such fire-resisting material shall be at least one-quarter of an inch in thickness and shall be securely attached to the iron frame work by means of iron bolts or rivets. The floor space occupied by the booth shall be covered with said fire-resisting material not less than three-eighths of an inch in thickness. There shall be provided for the booth a door not less than two feet wide and six feet high, consisting of an angle iron frame covered with sheets of said fire-resisting material one-quarter of an inch thick, and attached to the frame work of the booth by hinges in such a manner that the door shall be kept closed at all times when not used for ingress or egress.

The operating window, one for each machine to be operated therein and one for the operator thereof, shall be no longer than reasonably necessary to secure the desired service and shutters of said fire-resisting material shall be provided for each window. When the windows are open the shutters shall be so suspended and arranged that they will automatically close the window openings upon the operating of some suitable fusible or mechanical releasing device.

211.—Inspection; certificate. After the construction of such booth shall have been completed, the public officer charged herein with the duty of passing upon the plans and specifications therefor shall within three days after receipt of notice in writing that such booth has been completed cause such booth to be inspected if the provisions of sections two hundred and nine of this article have been complied with, and if, in the judgment of such public officer such booth is otherwise constructed in a manner so as to render safe the operation of apparatus for projecting moving pictures, such public officer shall issue to the owner or lessee of the premises wherein such booth is situated a certificate stating that the provisions of sections two hundred and nine and two hundred and ten of this article have been complied with.

212.—Penalty for violating this article. The violation of any of the provisions of this article shall constitute a misdemeanor. This act shall not apply to cities which have local laws or ordinances now in force which provide for fireproof booths of any kind for moving picture machines or apparatus.

No. 2.—This act shall take effect immediately.

We are crowded for space, still I feel that some may profitably be co sumed in pointing out the utter absurdity of such a law. In the fir place, it will be noted that this purports to be a "fireproof" room, "booth" (Webster defines a booth as a "house or shed built of board boughs of trees or other slight material, for temporary occupation"). will also be noted that there is absolutely no provision for a vent pipe any sort whatever to the open air outside the theater. Film in burnir gives off large volumes of dense, pungent smoke, as well as much flam Allow me to inquire of our astute lawmakers (the late Senator Grady w father of this particular effort) where in the name of heaven this smol and flame is going to go? It certainly must escape or the whole thir would blow up. Answer is, of course, it will and must pass out into tl auditorium. There is nowhere else under heaven for it to go. What is injures an audience? Is it the fire itself, or is it the panic due to tl sight of fire or smoke? Answer that, Mr. Lawmaker! A ten-year-o child should see as obvious a point as that, yet our lawmakers simply ca not seem to comprehend the fact that fireproof walls are of slight value a protection to the audience unless coupled therewith are effective shutte for wall openings, absolutely automatic in their operation, and an amp vent flue to carry away the flames and smoke. This department has set th forth, time and again, and yet the same old farce goes on. Laws whi are mere jokes, so far as protection to an audience be concerned, are e acted. It is an easy matter to draft a law which would render operatir rooms so thoroughly fireproof that reels of film absolutely could be burne therein without the audience being aware that there was a fire in the hous With the room described by the Hon. Mr. Grady's law, however, the aud ence would be greeted with belching smoke, at least, if not flame itsel within five seconds of the starting of a film fire. Such law-making is a outrage, in that it requires managers to go to large expense without a commensurate gain in safety to the audience. Of course such a room the law requires could be made fireproof in fact, by the addition of real effective automatic wall shutters and a vent flue of ample size.

Again it must be observed that, while the "law" allows the use of "oth equally strong and fire-resisting material," than asbestos board, it ve cunningly prohibits cement, brick or hollow tile, since the material used f walls, etc., must be attached to the iron frame described. Again I mu remark: Piffle. The cunning hand of the asbestos man is hidden under very thin veil, methinks. Again: wall shutters may be operated mechani ally. Whole gobs of protection there, isn't there, when the excited ope tor forgets to close the shutters? The size of observation ports and le ports is left at the discretion, whim or fool ideas of the individual inspe tor who probably knows about as much about the needs of practical pr jection as a setting hen knows about the Tower of London. In fact, t whole "law" is a howling farce. If lawmakers don't know what is neede why don't they consult with those who do? This is strong talk I well kno but surely the time for whitewashing such outrageous examples of legisl tion is past. It is time to tell the truth, regardless of whether the Power That-Be like it or not.

MOTOR-GENERATORS.—Mr. J. H. Hallberg, New York City, co tributes the following: "The operation of a projector arc lamp from specially constructed generator or dynamo without ohmic resistance i series with the arc has been pretty thoroughly discussed. I note conflictin statements and opinions, but through it all, I have observed that your pe sonal opinion has not been altered, and that is that it requires either ohm resistance in series with the arc and the generator, or a generator co structed especially for the purpose. In this I concur fully with you.

"I have already stated once that the electric arc is of variable resistanc and it varies in the opposite direction to that required for good operatio without ohmic resistance in series with it, in that the resistance of th arc decreases as the amperes are increased, which means, in plain word if you have an unlimited supply of constant voltage direct current, the unt of current flowing over an arc would be limited only by the detion of the electrodes, or the melting of the feed wires, or the burning of the generator. In other words, an arc under those conditions would esent a dead short circuit. From this we understand that if the voltage nstant and the current supply is unlimited, or practically so, there must ntroduced something in series with the arc which will increase in rence with an increase of ampere flow, and the ordinary resistance wire lain iron wire possesses this feature and is, therefore, used as the ballast teadying resistance for the electric arc, being connected in series with arc and the circuit or generator which supplies the current.

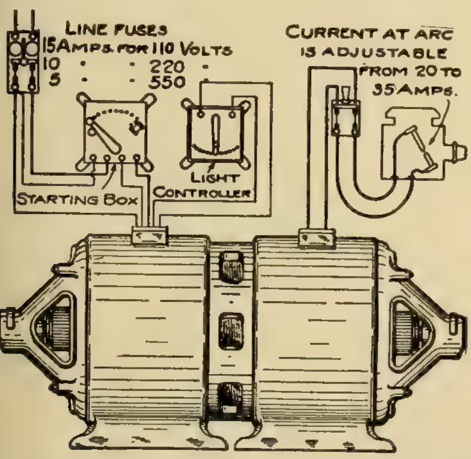
t is also understood that such resistance in series with the arc means ss of energy, and to overcome this many schemes have been proposed. ve personally, as you know, devised some years ago a line of econors for direct current, which permit the operation of a projector arc from a constant voltage unlimited supply without the use of any stat or resistance in series with the arc to control it. This control is ned by designing the economizer which is, in the strict sense of the l, a motor generator set, so that instead of delivering a constant voltto the arc, these machines will deliver a practically steady amperage to arc, but of varying voltage, depending upon the length of arc it is deto maintain. This regulation is accomplished by special differential ings; that is by shunt and compound windings of certain proportion, acting against the other, to secure the necessary regulation to counterthe tendency of the resistance to drop, and the consequent increasing of amperes across the arc. These machines automatically check this ase of amperes at the arc and hold the amperes steady, no matter if arc be maintained long or short within the ordinary limits of 45 to 55 v.

r. Cundy, of Leadville, Col., has made the assertion that he is using unt wound generator without the special differential windings and that securing satisfactory results from same. You have already commented his and, as near as I can recollect it, you came to the conclusion that nachine is not a standard shunt wound generator, but that it possesses in characteristics not common to a first-class shunt wound machine. his you must be right, because otherwise the arc could not be maind.

shunt wound generator is essentially, if properly constructed, a mae of high efficiency, which will maintain the voltage as steady as possible no load to full load. This means that the armature runs as closely ossible to the pole pieces of the field, and besides such a machine must be overloaded—if it is the voltage will drop. If an arc is struck on unt wound generator of normal capacity to carry the arc, the generator ld be subject to practically a dead short circuit and it would become agnetized. In some instances the armature reaction might be so strong o reverse the polarity of the pole pieces, making it hard, if not imible, for the generator to pick up the voltage again, unless the fields re-charged by a battery, or other suitable device.

y explanation of Mr. Cundy's shunt wound machine is that it may be ewhat special in that there must be a larger than ordinary air gap ben the armature and the pole pieces, which, in the first instance, makes it ry inefficient machine and, in the second instance, makes it a very poor lating machine as far as the maintaining of voltage is concerned. The iciency of the machine is detrimental under all conditions, but the poor lating quality of the machine is desirable for the operation of the arc ctly from the armature leads, and on this account it may be possible to ate the arc without resistance in series with it and the generator, by ful manipulation of the arc and starting it possibly with a small rence in series, which can later on be cut out. But it is a difficult probto say the least, and besides it must be inefficient.

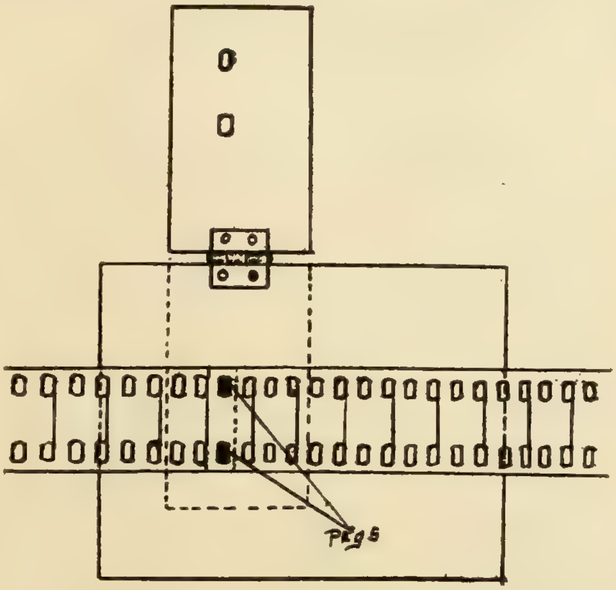
believe that the above is the true explanation of Mr. Cundy's success, I agree with you, Mr. Richardson, in that the scheme is not practical general use on account of the difficulty of its operation. It takes a ed man to handle it and besides the machine is very inefficient compared machines with the special compound differential windings which perthe armature to run exceedingly close to the pole pieces, still maintainthe proper regulating qualities for the maintenance of a steady noning and quiet arc.



deliver herewith also an illustration of how the direct current machine s in diagramatic form, showing the starting box, light controller and machines mounted together on one shaft for highest efficiency."

e are greatly obliged to Mr. Hallberg for his excellent letter, the subce of which meets our approval. We are also glad to print a picture of Hallberg's economizer, for the reason that when it is given intelligent and is rightly handled the machine seems to be very satisfactory. We looking into the matter very thoroughly and hope in the near future to be able to say positively that this type of machine is a pronounced success, since, as we have said before, a successful machine of this kind would mean the elimination of the enormous waste present in rheostats. We do not, however, in justice to those who value our judgment and might take action on the same, propose to make any final statement of this kind until thoroughly and completely satisfied that the matter is proven beyond any question of a doubt. We have, however, some excellent reports from operators handling Mr. Hallberg's D. C. economizer.

FILM MENDER.—Wahoo, Neb., writes: "Attached find sketch of handy device for patching film. It is made from plate glass. Make two pegs from iron wire, the size and shape of sprocket holes, and long enough to project through the glass. Bore holes in the glass a little larger than the pegs, using sharp drill and turpentine for drilling the glass. With a larger drill countersink under side of holes, then set the pegs in with lead or solder. Bore holes in the trap door, or gate, to fit over pegs and press the film-ends together. The gate is put on with screws set in the same as the pegs. I use a safety razor blade to scrape off emulsion. Set device in rewind table, with light under it."



The device is all right, but it would require considerable work, take it altogether, to make a really good one. Very nice after made, however.

BLUNDERING MUSICIAN.—Fairbury, Neb., writes: "What do you think of a manager accusing an operator of using more current with a ⅙ horsepower Kimble motor than through his resistance, which is a choke-coil? Recently I ran the two-reel feature 'From the Bottom of the Sea.' In the second reel, after the shooting of the lieutenant through the torpedo tube, the captain kneels in prayer. As this scene came on the orchestra whipped into a lively waltz. Do you know of any one in need of the services of a sober, competent operator owning his outfit, which is the best money can buy?"

The manager certainly is entitled to at least one more guess on the motor consumption, if I understand your question aright. As to that orchestra, it would no doubt cheerfully play "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelley" at the Crucifixion scene in the Passion Play. In the New York Journal comic page is a character called "Boneheado." I have often wondered if the artist got the suggestion for the name while listening to the wonderful, not to say fearful, efforts of some of our motion picture theater musicians. Not all of them are thus, however, thanks be. Should any one wish to employ the brother I will forward their letter to Fairbury.

HOUSTON LAW.—I am in receipt, through the kindness of some Houston friend, of a copy of the Houston law regulating the equipment and operation of picture machines, shows and premises. The law is a little better than some; still it is more or less farcical. It requires a metal-asbestos booth, floored with No. 20 iron or ¼ inch asbestos board. No shelves, furniture or fixtures are allowed inside the operating room except they be incombustible and "no material of any sort whatsoever of a combustible nature except the films and machine stand, which may be wood covered with asbestos or metal." (Query: is an operator combustible, or is he not? Also are the films to be covered with asbestos or metal, or only the machine stand?—Ed.) A vent pipe is required, but, alas, it only need be six inches in diameter. That is better than nothing anyhow, but that's about all it is. Observation ports may be 12 x 12 inches. In this at least, the lawmakers had glimmerings of sense. All electric wiring inside the operating room (Booth, they call it) must be covered with "non-inflammable insulation." (Gee, but they're particular. Never heard of inflammable wire insulation, except asbestos.—Ed.) The old, obsolete foot-shutter-in-front-of-the-condenser is allowed. Machine magazines must be "incombustible." Lawmakers in Houston must run to incombustibles, do they not? No person under 18 years of age may operate a projector, which is excellent indeed. Screen must be at front of house, with operating room at rear.

A six-inch vent pipe, forsooth! Even the machine table must be covered with asbestos or metal. Piffle. The wall-hole shutter provision, however, is really excellent as far as it goes. The exit light provision is also sound sense. Once and for all allow me to inform lawmakers of the fact that any vent pipe of less than two square feet area is inadequate in case of an operating room fire, regardless of size of room. Film makes exactly as much smoke and flame in a small room as in a large one, and the vent pipe is largely for the purpose of carrying off the smoke and flame. And there you are. It should have a damper weighted to stand normally open, only being held closed, when there is too much draught, by a cord the same as for the wall shutters.

DARK PICTURES.—Galveston, Tex., writes: "Would you kindly advise me. Have Edison Exhibition Model machine; 77 feet throw. Use two 7½ Pathe condensers and have a very dark picture; it is also out of focus. Have a good operator, but he does not seem to take much interest in the business. Lenses are new and aperture in good condition. Use ⅝-inch cored and ½-inch solid Electra carbons; 13-foot picture. Have been operating six years myself, but not now, of course."

From fact that you use ½-inch solid carbon I suppose current is D. C. You have not said what kind of screen you use, or what amperage. The poor light probably is due to (a) not using sufficient current. (b) Carbons not set right. (c) A poor screen. Examine (a) your lamp leads inside the lamphouse and if dark brown under the insulation and no spring to them, cut wires off at back of lamphouse, or as far back as copper is brown, and throw the ends away. (b) Examine all connections. Take them apart and clean them. (c) See to it that your carbon jaws are clean inside and making good electrical contact with carbons. (d) That your rheostat is delivering not less than 33 to 35 amperes—you can have the electric light company test it with their ammeter. As to the out-of-focus effect: is your projection lens perfectly clean? Maybe you have had it apart and on the inner surface of one of the lenses is a faint finger mark. It does not have to be sufficient to be visible when looking through the lens to affect the focus. Are the lenses of the projection lens tight in their mounts? The convex side of all the lenses of the projection lens should be toward the screen. Are your tension springs bearing squarely on the tracks of the aperture plate? A "good operator" who does not take interest in his business is not a good operator. No use possessing knowledge if you don't apply it.

PATENT.—Cloquet, Minn., writes, asking whether or not I think there would be a market for a carbon arm and jaw which allows of moving the upper carbon back or ahead in relation to the lower one, as well as preventing the burning of lead wires, provided it be patented.

It is utterly impossible to answer such a question without first personally having examined the device. Generally speaking, however, I do not believe the brother would make enough to pay for the patenting. Such things have been vastly improved within the past year. Provision has been made on one or two lamps for such a movement as you describe and wire contacts are removed further from the arc. Also a new lamp will soon be on the market embodying all these things in most excellent form. I can only express my individual opinion, however, as to your device, and that is it won't pay you to patent it, unless it is something very good indeed.

FUSE BLOWS.—Peabody, Kan., writes: "Have Motiograph machine and rheostat. The rheostat burned out recently. I fixed it up, but some way got a short in it and it blows the fuse. This is what puzzles me: have main house switch, with fuses attached; then, further on, operating circuit fuses. From operating circuit fuses one wire runs, to operating switch, thence to lamp. Other wire runs to rheostat, thence to operating switch, thence to lamp. Fuse blows in main house switch instead of in operating circuit fuse block. I claim to be an electrician, but this has got my goat. Use 60 amperes. Throw 50 feet. Picture 10 x 10 feet."

In the first place you were so very careless with your writing that I was unable to decipher the letter with certainty, but think I have it right. I presume your incandescent circuits attach between main house fuses and operating circuit fuses. It is quite possible that the former are loaded more nearly to capacity than the latter, which would account, of course, for the larger fuse blowing. You have not mentioned fuse capacity in either case, but I assume the main house fuse to be the larger. You cannot possibly have a 10 x 10 moving picture. If it is 10 feet wide it is exactly ¾ that height. You must be in error about the short in your rheostat. If there was a short you could not use it at all.

NEW COMMUTATOR STUNT.—Texas (name of town suppressed) writes: "Have long intended writing the department to voice my appreciation and add my mite to its columns. Will try and give some help in the matter of commutators and gasoline-electrical generating outfits. This in return for the immense amount of good I have myself received. My generator gave me a great deal of trouble. The commutator would get black and sticky. Tried clean canvas, with and without vaseline and compounds, but without relief. One day I happened in the dynamo room with a small piece of prepared chalk. I held it on commutator until it had taken up all the carbon it would hold. Cleaned the chalk and continued the process of holding and cleaning until the commutator was clean. Continued at intervals of half an hour and commutator began to take on a mahogany polish. No trouble since. Boiling brushes in vaseline helps also. Have a 10 horsepower Hogan gasoline engine, 125 volt, 6 K. W. compound wound generator. I am familiar with several makes of gasoline engine and this one undoubtedly is the best I have ever had anything to do with. After starting engine and setting throttle it requires no further attention. Takes care of itself from full to no load. Lights are steady as though hooked to city mains. Steadiest lights I have ever seen hooked to gasoline driven dynamo. Use 22 amperes at arc, 15 on sign and fans. Voltage never drops. Lights never even wink when projection arc is struck. Have 70 foot throw; 11½ foot picture, using painted curtain. Am between two cities of 67,000 and 73,000 population. Only one show in either can equal my projection. Can and have gotten good picture with 18 amperes, using Edison 25 ampere adjustable grid rheostat with all resistance in. Will gladly supply additional information by mail to any one enclosing stamped envelope. Am my own operator. Believe in having things just so. 'That will do' and 'That's good enough,' don't suit me at all. Try to make improvement every day. Will write again soon and describe some kinks I have not as yet seen mentioned in the department."

Thanks for your kind words. We do not expect or wish to have our friends flatter our vanity. When one is earnestly trying to do something, however, it is pleasant to know one's efforts meet with approval and appreciation. That chalk stunt "listens mighty good." I'm inclined to think it is of much value and I thank you for its submission. Prepared chalk may be had of any druggist, I believe. It is cheap, too. I am inclined to believe that perhaps boiling the brushes in vaseline was at the bottom of the blackening trouble. May be wrong, however, but don't see anything else to lay it to. You have asked that name of town be suppressed, but I will retain the address and forward any letters sent in. Seems to me you would do better to have got a generator of about 70 volt pressure; 125 causes much waste in rheostat. Let's have the other "kinks."

POWERFUL FEDERATION.—From San Francisco comes the news that the Musicians, Stage Hands, Operators, Bill Posters, Janitors and White Rats Unions, in all aggregating 2,000 men, have formed an alliance styled the Theatrical Federation of San Francisco. Musicians' Hall, three story and basement building, has been remodeled and devoted to housing the new organization. The address is 68 Haight Street. Within the building have been provided meeting rooms, large and small, offices, bar, billiard and card rooms. The Federation is thus comfortably housed under one roof and, as the correspondent naively puts it: "Hopes for peace—even if we have to fight for it."

It is to be noted that the man selected for president of the new and powerful Federation is Mr. W. G. Woods, president and business agent of the San Francisco Operators' Union. It is gratifying to know that the craft has advanced to a point where one of its leaders is selected for such an important post as this. The editor firmly believes that no better selection could have been made. He has not the pleasure of a personal acquaintance with President Woods, but knows of his work and has a very considerable "correspondence acquaintance." From the letters Brother Woods writes we are prepared to say he is a man of sound sense, conservative judgment and is, in addition, conservatively progressive. A rare combination indeed. Both the operators and the Federation are to be congratulated on the selection of Mr. Woods as chief executive officer.

At the risk of presuming I shall offer a word of advice. Let my excuse be an experience in the labor movement covering a period of full 20 years. Such an organization, if compactly formed, can wield tremendous power. Remember always, my brothers, that might never has and never will make right. With power always comes the temptation to exercise that power unjustly. Demand and enforce your rights, but remember always that the "other fellow" has rights also, and respect them. Success to the new Federation. In the words of the immortal Rip: "may it live long and prosper."

LIGHT TROUBLE.—Kentucky (name of city suppressed) writes: "I have been operating for several years, and for past four have been with a company which controls several houses in this city. Until lately I have been fairly well satisfied with the results of my projection. Have also satisfied my managers, which is the most important part. But a short time ago we opened a new house, and though I have received no complaint from the manager, I am not satisfied with my picture. Therefore I appeal to you. I am using 110 D. C. My screen is of the best grade of bleached muslin, which I change once every month. My picture is 18 feet; throw, 96 feet. My light is not bright enough. Have tried several rheostats and I find that I get the best results from one that I made myself. I am using one 6½ and one 7½ condenser and I think that is where the trouble lies. There is no ghost in the picture and the light is even all over it, but not bright enough. Please advise me as to what focal condensers should be used."

Probably two 7½ condensers would be some better. However, if there is no ghost the light fault does not lie there. The shorter focal combination, however, has the effect of bringing your arc a little closer to the lens, thus adding to liability to breakage of lenses. Look through your condensing lenses edgewise. If they look discolored, either yellow, green or purple, they are unfit for use and are absorbing light, as well as injuring the brilliancy of that which passes. You are throwing a large picture (13.5 x 18 = 243 square feet). For that size you should pull not less than 45 amperes D. C., or not less than 60 A. C. You will not get a very brilliant illumination with even 60 emperes A. C. through a rheostat. As I remember it, however, the current in your city is D. C. Use No. 6 lamp leads and be sure the ends inside the lamphouse are not burned. Using 45 amperes they should be cut off after about 50 hours' run.

SHUTTER LOCATION.—Sullivan, Ill., writes: "New York City asks for opinions as to proper location for shutter. My own idea is as follows: Suppose we have a shutter cutting 50 per cent. of the light. All the illumination passes through the film, but only 60 per cent. reaches the screen. If, on the other hand, the shutter cut the light between the condenser and aperture only the same 50 per cent. would be cut, but that would reduce the heat at aperture by just that much, which certainly would be a distinct benefit in several ways. I may be wrong, but will be glad to be corrected. It is my theory, but we may all be in error at times. I am going to ask you to express your opinion."

Your theory is perfectly correct, so far as elimination of 50 per cent of the heat goes. However, by reason of the rapid spread of the rays between the condenser and aperture the shutter would have to be set right up against the aperture, or else have a very wide blade and be of very large diameter or cut much more than 50 per cent. of the light. Theoretically you are right, but practically the thing is impossible. A moment's thought will convince you that locating the shutter in front of the aperture would not do at all from the practical standpoint.

UNEXPLAINABLE.—The New York City operator who asked for commutator advice writes: "Commutator compound is out of the question. The boss wouldn't buy it. Have tried fine sandpaper, but it scratched too badly. Took your advice and tried canvas with much better results. Although it does not polish, it cleans. Will use it until some better suggestion is offered. You are right about the holes in lamphouse not stopping condenser breakage. Here is the funny part of the story: Had a Powers Five lamphouse and broke only five condensers in 15 months. Had this one ½ months and broke about 50, working under same conditions as to draughts, etc. Have had operating room shut up so tight that a Turkish bath is a joke by comparison, but the breakage goes merrily on. Had screen coated with silver and reduced current from 40 amperes to 20. Boss claims condenser breakage is due to fact that I now use 25 ampere link fuses and switch. Says if I put back the 45 ampere fuses and switch lenses won't break."

You should have used 00 sandpaper, which will not scratch. Try prepared chalk on commutator, as suggested in another letter this week. As to lens breakage: the changing from 45 to 25 ampere switch and fuses has, in itself, nothing whatever to do with lens breakage. Reducing from 45

20 amperes, however, ought to have a decided effect in reducing break- . But condenser breakage is sometimes a queer proposition. I myself a similar experience once, in Chicago. Had an old lamphouse and ke very few lenses. Got a new one just like it and they broke as fast host as we could put them in. A lens would seldom last through one l. No apparent cause for it. Manager was himself an excellent operator, r we could not discover, and never did discover, any cause for the uble. Finally got another lamphouse, just like the breaky one as far as eye could detect, and presto chango, the trouble vanished. Kindly 't ask me what it was. I would have cheerfully given twenty dollars have known, just for the satisfaction of knowing. But I never found out. hink we tried about everything that could be done to a lamphouse and r of lenses.

ROM THE GOLDEN WEST.—Los Angeles writes: "Many thanks for ding complete drawing of rectifier. It has helped a few of us out here. o want to tell you that your handbook is kept always within reach. The tographic instructions on machines which you are running is a splendid a. It will help to prevent, or remedy many mistakes. As to Frank C. ok's letter in January 13 issue: I was raised in New York City and ed there until 1910. However, the moving picture houses out here are superior to those in New York, though I hope that city will some day ve real picture theaters on the order of those in Los Angeles. Take ne's $40,000 house, for example: its operating room contains three tiographs, a cloud effect machine, dissolver and spotlight. They run e first-run licensed reels on an excellent screen. Two separate boxes singers. In first part of an illustrated song, for instance, the lights und the singer are often changed, such as from red to green, etc. Dur- chorus the lights go out and singer sings from box under spot. Every ek there is something new in electrical effects. It draws big, too. Pic- e is, I think, about 20 feet wide; projection is always excellent, handled Los Angeles' best. Nine-piece orchestra. Prices 10 cents for front ts, 15 cents for back seats and 20 cents for loge seats. Lady ushers, atories for ladies and gentlemen. I write all this because I know you always interested in something higher up in motion picture theaters. ne's doesn't hesitate to give its patrons the best."

Yes, and every motion picture theater I have ever heard of that was run ng those lines has been a howling success, but hundreds of the other d have failed. I like that "front seats cheaper" scheme. It is the glish way and, as I said in this department long ago, it is the right way. s, reports of this sort are always pleasing, but the different points of w taken by different men is illustrated by a Los Angeles letter which peared last week.

VENTILATION.—Marianna, Ark., writes: "Have just opened a new use here. Am having great success. Attribute it to location, class of tures, attractiveness of house and, above all, to the work of our operator. e think him the best in the State, and that is saying something, for there some pretty good operators in Arkansas. Our house is 25 x 100, with -foot ceiling. At entrance is a 10-foot lobby. We want a system of air- oling for the room. What would you advise? We thought of using suc- n fans (two of them) in front and one exhaust fan in rear up near ling, say two 18-inch and one 30-inch fans. Do you think that sufficient cool the room? Front faces the west. Or would you suggest reversing installation—exhaust in front and intake at rear?"

The arrangement you suggest will probably be as effective as any, though fans should be placed as close to the ceiling as possible. As to size of ns, I would rather you consulted some reliable fan manufacturer, but I lieve your intake fans should be at least 20 inches each. You will, of urse, have to use wall fans in addition in hot weather. The changing air won't cool the house sufficiently when the air being taken in is tter than—well, I know how awful warm it gets down there. You must ve wall or ceiling fans also unless you blow a regular gale through the use.

NEW UNION.—Atlanta, Ga., writes: "I desire to report that the A. T. S. E. has issued a charter to the Local Union of Moving Picture achine Operators, in Atlanta, Ga. The number is 225. The charter was ued November 30, 1911, with 29 members, only six operators in the city ve failed to see where organization would benefit them; but we hope at their eyes will soon be opened and that they will join us. The Stage nployees' Local No. 41, of Atlanta, has been organized sixteen years, d has had success in every undertaking; every theater in Atlanta is a ion house. Our secretary, treasurer and business agent are also mem- rs of Local No. 41, and thoroughly understand the workings of the or- nization. Officers elected for the following year are as follows: J. H. aniel, Sr., president; V. O. Gettus, vice-president; Cliff Clower, financial d corresponding secretary; W. P. Raoul, recording secretary and treas- er; John McMillan, business agent; R. C. Rebb, sergeant-at-arms; Fred ester, delegate to central body; J. E. Dwyer, H. J. Glenn, W. L. Hudson, ustees. Local No. 225 is affiliated with the Atlanta Federation of Trades d the Georgia State Federation of Labor, and meets the second and urth Sundays at the Labor Temple, 112 Trinity Avenue. Labor Temple the third of its kind in the world; it is owned exclusively by organized bor. Local No. 225 has no agreement with the managers as yet, but are ing their best to please them, and perhaps later on that will come. In gard to eligible candidates, I want to say that our International Alliance quirements are that a man be 21 years of age; must have lived in the ty six months, and should have worked as a picture machine operator six onths. Our local laws require five vouchers on application; said vouchers ust be members in good standing."

Congratulations. I trust the new organization will prosper and be of st benefit to the Atlanta operators. Be conservative and careful, but re- ember that even those virtues may be, like everything else, overdone. end at least a portion of your energies to improving the projection (en- iling all that goes with it) knowledge of your own members, and thus be le to demand higher salaries on the basis of improved workmanship, as ell as on general principles.

SALT BRINE FOR CARBONS.—Westfield, Mass., writes: "Recently u spoke of a Baltimore operator soaking his carbons in salt brine, asking ial and reports on same. I soaked my carbons four days and then al- wed them to dry thoroughly. I believe the scheme is excellent except for e fault it seems to develop, viz.: carbons thus treated have a tendency to needle, i. e., burn to a long point. I believe, however, the light is whiter and fully 20 per cent. better. Am using 110 volt, 60 cycle Ft. Wayne compensarc and am well pleased with its performance. It is very much of an improvement over rheostats, coils, etc. Have 72 foot throw; picture 12 feet. Our screen has a black border on which the picture overlaps by two or three inches; screen is Alabastine tinged with blue. My machine is anchored solid and the picture is 'nailed to the screen.' A picture doing the Salome dance doesn't look good to me. Would like to know, if possible, what make carbons Baltimore uses. Possibly those he uses don't needle after treatment. I must credit my manager with being one of the best I ever worked under. I am a charter member of Springfield, Mass., Local Union 186, I. A. T. S. E., and proud of it. I heartily agree with you in eliminating the term 'booth,' 'coop,' etc. It is rooms we want, so let us speak of even the coop as a room and maybe it will in time expand into one sure enough."

I am not certain, but as I remember it the Baltimore brother used Electra carbons. Many thanks for trying the scheme and reporting. You are the only one who has thus favored me to date. I did not notice any tendency of Baltimore's carbons to needle. Will Brother Gregory kindly supply the desired information?

REMOVING SPROCKET.—McClure, Ohio, writes: "Will you kindly tell me the best method of removing intermittent sprocket from shaft of my Edison Exhibition One-Pin machine; also best way to get taper pin holes to match in replacing old sprocket with a new one. Should a broach be used?"

Provided your machine is the same as the Exhibition Model I have, proceed as follows: remove the apron, which attaches to lower cross-rod and comes up around hub of sprocket. Remove aperture plate and raise the piece behind it up out of the way. Loosen screw holding left hand intermittent bushing and shove bushing out. Sprocket and shaft may then be taken out. The machine I have has but one pin in sprocket hub. Place a piece of metal in a vise and lay sprocket hub on same, with pin close to metal. Have some one hold it while you drive pin out, using care and a small punch. Then if sprocket is tight on shaft bore a hole little larger than the shaft in block of wood. Lay block on vise, stick sprocket shaft through hole so that rim of sprocket rests on block, and carefully drive shaft out of sprocket. Never use steel punch for driving on end of a shaft. Use soft punch only, or one made of wood. If holes don't fit, by no means use a broach. Turn shaft and drill new holes at right angles to old ones, but be very sure you set sprocket so its teeth will be in line with aperture plate tracks. You asked for the best way, however. Here it is: have an extra intermittent sprocket, star and shaft, assembled. Put it in and send old one to factory by registered mail and have the new sprocket put on right. That is the best way; a whole lot the best way too.

CURRENT EQUALIZER.—Ft. Worth, Tex., writes: "Would like information as to a magnetic device used for equalizing current flow in connection with projection arcs. Have heard great deal about such a contrivance and many operators have recommended it as excellent for keeping flutter out of arc when using high amperage. Where can one be secured?"

Either I have not heard of the device, or your description is such that I do not recognize it. Can any one inform me as to what the brother means?

ASKS TOO MUCH.—Regina, Sask., Canada, orders a handbook and remarks that he wants a book which will explain every possible thing an operator wants to know. He doesn't want any halfway knowledge.

The book has been sent our Canadian friend. Had I myself seen his order before shipment I would have returned the money instead. There is no such book in existence as he wants; moreover, there never will be. I am amused at some parts of the letter. It reads, at one point: "If this book is complete in practically everything that may happen to a picture machine, also lenses, then it is just what I am looking for." I should think it would be.

WASHINGTON OPERATORS' BALL.

The recent first grand ball of the Moving Picture Operators' Union, No. 224, I. A. T. S. E., of Washington, D. C., was a big success. The committee secured a few entertainers from the local houses which included John Noel from the Imperial, the Cook Sisters from the same theater, and the American Minstrels from the Cosmos. Mr. Noel gave some songs and stories, the Cook Sisters entertained with vocal selections, and the Minstrels presented their entire act of twenty-five minutes. Everyone had a good time and enjoyed the entertainment. The hall was beautifully decorated with flags of all nations, flowers and palms. The music by an orchestra was excellent. The unique introduction of moonlight and shadow dancing gave a charm to the whirling dancers. Over the stage was a large banner declaiming "Edison Type B, Built Like a Battleship and Runs Like a Watch," under which was displayed the welcome of the local union. Confetti and paper ribbon made a delightful closing to the dancing in the early morning. A delegation from the Baltimore Local No. 181 was on hand to reciprocate the attendance of the Washington boys to the operators dance in that city not long ago.

Much credit for so enjoyable an evening is due to the good work of the Committee of Arrangements, which consisted of William Long, chairman; H. W. Keithley, J. Perkinson, E. Isaac, W. H. Mitchell, Dan Prettyman and W. H. Beatle. Indeed, Mr. Long was "some busy man" during those days of preparation. It was hoped that Mr. F. H. Richardson, of The World, could be present, but a letter of good will and well wishes from that highly esteemed gentleman, told plainly that the pressure in New York was too great at the present time to accept the cordial invitation.

W. H.

Comments on the Films

Licensed.

"THE HYPNOTIC DETECTIVE" (Selig), February 15.—Professor Locksley, the bizarre hypnotic detective, appears again in this picture. It has some very good things, including a good fire, and its sets and lighting are very good. The photographs are excellent. Yet the story doesn't get across very strongly, chiefly because it is very unconvincing. Most of the spectators watched it. It will serve as a filler.

"FAR FROM ERIN'S ISLE" (Kalem), February 14.—This comedy has been reviewed on page 401, issue of February 3, 1912.

"THERE'S MANY A SLIP" (Essanay), February 15.—A comedy in which two lovers who do not know each other, but whose respective parents insist that they marry each other, have met by chance and elope in order to put a spike in the plans of their elders. There is a little of it that is fresh but there were plenty in the audience who laughed heartily. It will make a good filler; for it is very good natured and is well pictured.

"SMILING BOB" (Melies), February 15.—A new character in pictures is played in the person of "Smiling Bob," a miner. He was in love with a girl and he smiled. A newcomer in the town grew more pleasing to the girl than he was, but still he smiled. The newcomer got into trouble through no fault and the girl got Bob to help him out. They ride away and poor Bob is left alone. In the last scene, when he hides his face in his horse's mane, he is no longer smiling. Bob's sunny character gets over and is liked and the story holds attention. The photographs have a pleasing purplish tint. It is a very good filler.

"THE GAMBLER'S WIFE" (Eclipse), February 14.—An extremely well-set and artistically produced picture of studio and Bohemian life in Paris. Its hero is a weak spirited sculptor whose work in marble has made him famous. We see his statues and know he is a great artist. He becomes a gambler and his good and beautiful wife finds a way to save him. It is not a picture to appeal strongly to the gallery; but it will be appreciated by people of culture. Many of its scenes are very beautiful.

"BUNNY AND THE TWINS" (Vitagraph), February 14.—A farce comedy that kept some of the spectators in continuous laughter. Yet at times it seems to make fun of its character rather than with them. Flora Finch and Kate Price are the twins. The quality of the comedy work of these unusually competent ladies is seen again in this courtship. Bunny is the suitor who can't decide and his facial expression is very amusing. The reviewer feels safe in calling it a good feature.

"HOGAN'S ALLEY" (Edison), February 14.—"Hogan's Alley" is something of a masterpiece in its way and the audience got more than one good laugh from this picture of it. It shows numbers of well-contrasted characters, dwellers in the flats on the alley, and leads up to a grand scrap with a very humorous end and make-up scene. It is well photographed and the latter part got over very well. It is a desirable filler.

"HIS MISTAKE" (Lubin), February 14.—His first love was the truly right girl; but an actress came to the boarding house and he married her. The scenes, through a rather long first part, that show the flirtation, marriage, etc., drag a little. But after he has discovered his mistake and the first sweetheart is secretly caring for and comforting his neglected child, the action is very dramatic and deeply interesting. It is well acted, well set in most scenes and clearly photographed. It can be used as a feature.

"LEAH'S TRICK" (Cines), February 20.—Leah's aunt wanted her to marry, so Leah dressed her maid up as a lady, and herself as maid. The man also wanted to please aunty, so he prepared to take his medicine. It isn't new (except the characters), but it seemed to amuse the audience, it made laughter anyway.

"THE VALLEY OF THE UMBRIA" (Cines), February 20.—A very interesting travelog in a country not often visited and one full of romantic charm. The photographs are commendable. This, with the farce on the same reel, makes a desirable picture to fill out a program.

"A MIDWINTER NIGHT'S DREAM" (Lubin), February 19.—The Lubin people have a company at Palm Beach. In this picture a tramp in a snowy freight yard falls asleep and dreams that he and a pal are having the time of their lives in tropical parks and groves. The ideas are very fresh and amusing. The effect of the combination of summer and winter in one picture is delightfully ludicrous and it kept the house in roars of laughter. In one scene a snowball is chucked from the freight yard and lands in the next scene at the feet of two girls at Palm Beach, who flirt with the tramps in the snowdrift. The photographs are very good.

"ARMY AVIATION PRACTICE" (Lubin), February 19.—An instructive picture of Army aeroplanes taken at Governor's Island, N. Y.

"THE BITER BITTEN" (Essanay), February 20.—A very amusing anecdote about a stingy business man who took a widow's motorcycle and was finely buncoed by a man who wanted to get to the railroad fifteen miles away. It is pleasantly conducted, clearly photographed and the audience seemed to sympathize with it. There are no good laughs but it is enjoyable. A desirable filler.

"CURIOSITY" (Essanay), February 20.—Early last summer the Biograph people released a picture in general outline not unlike this; but this is much the better and is therefore very commendable. In this picture, the spectator is not shown what is in the grip (clothes) nor what the man is hurrying so for (the train), consequently he too is curious like the crowds that follow. It gets over and caused one or two good laughs. A good filler to lighten a substantial program.

"THE NURSE" (Edison), February 20.—An old story (that of the doctor who saved the life of his sick enemy), but in a new dress; it is a nurse in this case. It is very commendable and is a distinct advance in that it shows that the nurse, through ministering to her enemy, grew to love him. It is not strongly convincing as a picture of life; but many of its scenes are fine. It is very well photographed and set and will be a first class filler.

"THE CHOCOLATE REVOLVER" (Vitagraph), February 16.—A child and burglar story which is very prettily pictured, indeed, it seems conducted more with a view to pictorial excellence than to make the story thrill. It has several dramatic and thrilling climaxes, but in one or two scenes it drags. The chocolate revolver was the child's weapon. The burglars came when her father and mother were out and the maid had slipped away. She showed herself a very courageous child. It will serve as a filler.

"THE LOVE OF JOHN RUSKIN" (Vitagraph), February 1[illegible].—The theme pictured on this film is a well-known but very unpleasant incident in literary history. It is a very artistic, even beautiful, picture, probably as good a picture, leaving out one or two scenes, as could possibly be made with this theme. The acting is first-class; the settings are natural and in harmony with the story. The story we do not like. It has been already commented upon on page 472, February 10, 1912.

"THE DANITES" (Selig), February 19 and 20.—This picture illustrates how unfortunate a two reel subject is when its parts are released on separate days. The picture tells a story of the early West and shows the "Danites" (we don't learn who they are) as following to the death the Williams family (we don't know why). The picture opens too late in the story to show us these things and those who saw only the first half must have carried little away with them, except a sense of the epic grandeur of the stirring days of migration across the prairies. This part is filled with stirring scenes.

The second part is more dramatic, but those who saw only it could hardly have known who Nancy was, nor why the two men (Danites) were following her. Yet this part of the story grips and makes us revolt at the horror of her persecution. Deep emotions come into play in the action near the end of the story and the acting rises into real humor and eloquence at times. Both parts are very well photographed. For more extended comment see page 660, February 27, 1912.

"THE MENDER OF NETS" (Biograph), February 15.—This picture's first scene comes forth out of the mist near a little cove. We see dimly white breakers coming in from the sea. The scene grows clear and bright and we see the little mender of nets seated at her work between her father's cabin and the beach, the white breakers of the cove serving as background. On the other side of the picture as a whole (she doesn't appear in the first scene) stands another girl of the hamlet. The fiance of the mender has ruined this girl. In a dramatic moment No. 2 finds this out and gives him back to her. In the last scene she sits again at her work beside the cabin, her father beside her talking with her. The mist closes in and we see the white breakers dimly. The Biograph Company can hardly object to our mention of Little Mary's name; she is the mender of nets. The other girl in the picture everybody knows as "Betty." It is a dramatic and artistic picture. It doesn't show us very much that's new; but it is well acted, fairly photographed and will serve as a fair feature.

"AT THE POINT OF THE SWORD" (Edison), February 16.—A very romantic picture of about the same period and the same lords and ladies as the Edison photoplay "The Black Arrow" showed. It is a better picture if his memory doesn't fail the reviewer, more romantic and less constrained. Miss Laura Sawyer and Mr. Herbert Prior play the leads and they are very well supported. The photographs are very fair and, while there is not effective pictorial quality in its scenes, it is full of stirring action and the audience liked it. It is a good feature.

"THE WIFE OF A GENIUS" (Essanay), February 16.—A picture probably made to order to utilize motion photographs of a fire in a large hotel. The genius was a violinist, very poor at first, but at length the lion of the hour. Rich in his affection while poor, his wife became poor in his neglect when rich. Though deserted, she had slipped into the hotel where he was to play and he, who already had shown fine courage, stopped to rescue her. This brought him back to his senses and he loved her again. The photographs, even of the fire, are excellent. It will make a desirable filler.

"THE ALCALDES CONSPIRACY" (Kalem), February 19.—Another Spanish regime picture in courtly costume and southern California backgrounds. It is interesting and was closely watched. The alcalde (mayor) has taken a fancy to Militta, but is balked by the girl's cleverness and attempts to get her brother into trouble. This is his conspiracy. It fails. There is a Mephistopheles-like procurer, servant of the alcalde in the picture and the role is very well acted, as are the roles of the alcalde's sister and the monk. The heroine is just as pretty as usual; her acting is very intelligent also. It is well pictured in pretty scenes and will make a desirable filler.

"THE HOBO'S REDEMPTION" (Vitagraph), February 17.—A story of the coal miners with many interesting and well-photographed views of a mining village, a mine and its galleries, etc. The "hobo" was given a chance and proved himself a man, indeed. Mr. Hal Ried plays the "hobo." Mr.

Dunn plays the manager of the mine and Miss Walker has the heroine's role. The story is dignified and instructive as well as interesting. It was watched closely by the audience. It is a very safe feature picture.

"DARLING" (Cines), February 17.—"Darling" was the name of a cat who in this comedy is shown as making a young man and a nice young woman acquainted. It doesn't get across as a romantic comedy very strongly, chiefly because it is a little too artificial in some of its scenes. It is well acted and well photographed.

"KERKA FALLS" (Cines), February 17.—On same reel with the comedy above, we have this scenic of beautiful Dalmatia, an Austrian province on the Adriatic Sea. It is very acceptable, although the coloring is a little crude. The two together will make a good filler.

"CURING THE OFFICE BOY" (Edison), February 17.—Yale Boss, as the office boy in this picture, is its chief interest, although there's a clever little flirting scene (three office girls having fun with the clerk at the window across the street) that is very amusing. There are no office boys that look like Yale Boss who act like this one. He was sleepy. It is an amusing but very light picture. It is well photographed and, with the other on this split reel, will make a fair filler.

"THE LITTLE DELICATESSEN STORE" (Edison), February 17.—A character farce without much action. It shows a German grocer, his wife, daughter and errand boy with customers, among whom Yale Boss figures. It has some good laughs, but isn't so amusing as the first picture on this reel.

"THE FATAL CHOCOLATE" (Biograph), February 19.—A farce with very funny incidents. At its best, it is extremely well acted and the audience laughed and seemed to like it. The fatal chocolate was an ordinary chocolate cream which was said to have poison in it. It was one among three from which two country lovers were invited to choose and eat. It is well photographed.

"GOT A MATCH" (Biograph), February 19.—This farce on the same reel with the above is not so fresh and not so amusing either. It takes a rather bright path. The audience laughed louder at it, but the first one's ending had left them in a laughing mood. It also is well photographed.

"CAUGHT IN THE TOILS" (Kalem), February 16.—A picture of a criminal who had reformed, but who years later was forced back into the old paths. It is a good picture of an ordinary kind, interesting, but with no very marked excellence. It will make a good filler; but there is something unwholesome in a picture of a man who had lived honestly for twenty years being led astray again so easily.

Independent.

"GOD DISPOSES" (Solax), February 23.—This is Mace Greenleaf's first picture with the Solax people. His part is a rich man's son who chooses to marry an actress and is disowned. Years of poverty follow. He attempts to rob his father's office and only by a mere chance is kept from murdering him. The next morning his son's baby softens the old man's heart. From these two incidents, it gets its title. Mace Greenleaf's work in pictures of this kind is well known. There's a kiddie in the picture that gives a good deal of charm to it. Some of its scenes are very pretty, some are commendable for good lighting. Its subject is somewhat sensational; where such is wanted it will be a feature. It is well photographed.

"HUBBY DOES THE WASHING" (Solax), February 21.—Expenses were aeroplaning and the husband (Billy Quirk) decided to economize by doing the family wash—his wife didn't want to. The picture shows what happened to Billy and it makes an amusing farce. Perhaps women will get more fun out of it than men. Billy washed the clothes, he didn't clean them. It's a feature for Monday nights or for Tuesdays. It is very well photographed.

"PUSHMOBILE RACE HELD AT SAVANNAH, GA." (Imp), February 17.—There must have been a score or more youngsters in this race. It is interesting as a picture.

"THE TABLES TURNED" (Imp), February 17.—A brisk comedy in which a lawyer's young wife, who is jealous, plays she is crazy, does the Ophelia act for him. The servant girl gives the joke away and the husband shams a madness that puts his wife in terror. The tables turn again, though; for wife's brother has been taken to an asylum. It will serve as a filler; but it is not very convincing. The photographs are good.

"A WOMAN OF NO IMPORTANCE" (Powers), February 17.—A skillfully conducted story of a flirtation in which a man, his discontented wife, their child and an artist, the interloper, figure. The woman of no importance is introduced as the child's governess. This character serves as the guardian angel at a great sacrifice to herself. The picture gets its name from the opinion regarding her of the man and wife. It is well acted, set and photographed. It will make a good feature where a sensational number is wanted.

"MAKING A KINEMATOGRAPH SCENE" (Itala), February 17.—An interesting picture of the cleaning out of a house by thieves who are posing as motion picture people. It is well photographed and well acted; but not quite convincing.

"THE ITALIAN ARMY IN TRIPOLI" (Itala), February 17.—This picture tells no dramatic story; it is a topical, motion photograph of the army of invasion. It is very interesting indeed. The photographs are not all as distinct in detail as one could wish; but they give a good idea of what is going on and of the country. It makes a desirable feature for the right kind of audience.

"THE COOK'S REVENGE" (Lux), February 23.—A farce played by a very clever actress who, as the cook, got fired and for vengeance advertised that the man, her recent employer, wanted to adopt children, as many as possible. Needless to say, there are plenty of kids in the picture. It is light, but amusing, a filler.

"BILL'S MOTOR" (Lux), February 23.—On the same reel with this farce, is this auomobile travesty. Bill is very proud of his new car which, however, "cuts up" badly, doing some very sensational stunts. Bill sets it on fire. The Lux pictures, light as they are, are apt to be popular with all sorts of people.

"JEALOUS JULIA" (Eclair), February 22.—A farce comedy in which a very jealous fiancée meets on the street her sweetheart and his sister, whom she doesn't know. It causes her much pain. The picture seems extremely artificial, yet it is well set and excellently photographed. The players, too, whenever the plot will let them be natural, are very good. The heroine is herself charming. The picture will serve as a filler.

"THE FATEFUL DIAMOND" (Eclair), February 20.—A dramatic story of difficulties. The diamond was in the husband's overcoat and this was taken by mistake by a man whose overcoat wasn't enough like it. When the overcoats were exchanged the diamond was not found and the man who had taken it was arrested. The gem was in the lining of the coat all the time; but it wasn't found until the coat had become old and was given to the Salvation Army. The Governor pardoned the innocent man. It fails to grip with much strength; but it is acted with quiet naturalness and is very well photographed.

"A TERRIBLE NIGHT" (Eclair), February 25.—Very excellent acting makes this picture with a tragic theme a masterpiece of art and imagination. It deals with emotions hard to produce effectively, vis.: terror and horror It is not coarse or repulsive in any scene. The story is naturally conduced and very well photographed. The setting is just outside of a farmer's house, where preparations for a rural good time and dance are seen. It is a sure feature. The spectators watched it with the closest attention.

"THE CITY OF MOSQUES" (Eclair), February 25.—A picture of the mosques and minarets of Cairo. It includes many beautiful details and also a panorama of the city from some high building. It is well photographed and very commendable. The two together on this film are a sure feature.

"THE DEPUTY'S SWEETHEART" (Bison), February 20.—Bess, the deputy's sweetheart, to help her lover, tracks a good-looking bandit to his cabin. She then leads the deputy to the place and helps him make the capture. The picture is very interesting, has a thrilling climax and will make a very desirable filler. The photographs are very good.

"WAR ON THE PLAINS" (Bison-101), February 23.—Exhibitors in New York City saw this magnificent feature release at the recent Exhibitors' Ball, where a large and very representative audience applauded it most heartily. It surely is a release (in two reels) to conjure with. It was noticed on page 298 of the Moving Picture World, January 27, 1912.

"A WIFE'S DISCOVERY" (Champion), February 27.—A young doctor began a note to his friend, Jesse, as "Dear Jess," and his wife found it. It seemed to be a compromising note, but subsequent events made it even more so. This situation furnishes a good farce comedy. It is briskly conducted, except in one or two places, where it seemed a bit drawn out, and it is well acted. It will make a desirable filler.

"THE MERCHANT MAYOR" (Champion), February 19.—A picture suggested by the Mayor of Indianapolis's recent activities in the line of bringing down the prices of produce by opening shops and selling meat, vegetables, etc., himself. The picture might be called a hypothetical account of this movement; it shows how it was accomplished and how the crowds took advantage of it and the happy results. It is well photographed, has many individual types and, in many quarters, it will serve as a popular feature. It ought to be a big money getter in many localities where Socialism is popular, a big feature in fact. It doesn't ring quite true, though.

"HIS BROTHER WILLIE" (Powers), February 20.—A picture in which a scapegrace brother comes home and scares the good brother's sweetheart. He wanted to return something that he saw her drop on the street, but was drunk. She took refuge in his brother's house, where he followed and she locked him in a closet. We have reviewed this exact same story under the sign of one of the Licensed company's only last summer and do not feel the need of commenting on it for the second time.

"ICE BOATING ON THE SHREWSBURY RIVER" (Imp), February 24.—The Shrewsbury River is a shallow but very wide stream which flows through northeastern New Jersey into New York Harbor. This is a first class picture to show in places where this exciting and dangerous sport is unknown. The photographs are very fair.

"THE BROKEN LEASE" (Imp), February 24.—A farce comedy played by Mr. Cumpson and Miss Grace Lewis, and showing how Mr. and Mrs. Gleason, who wanted to move, managed to break the lease. You see, children and dogs were not allowed and Mr. Gleason found a way of getting fired out of the apartment. It is very amusing and will be liked.

"THE LIE" (Imp), February 22.—A picture opening on a Southern doorstep just before the war. The hero is a Northern man, later he is a soldier; the girl's brother is a Southerner and, later, is wounded and in hiding. The lie is told by the Union officer to save the brother. That is a complete outline of the story. It has no negro players, is simple and pleasing. The photographs are sometimes good and sometimes fair. It will probably serve as a feature

"ROLLICKING RED'S BIG LARK" (Nestor), February 21.—A fresh and very interesting cowboy and sheriff story. It is not a romance; but depends solely on psychology and on humor for its interest. Its humor is peculiarly interesting bordering, as it does on irony, all along. Perhaps, on this account, not all of it will be understood by everybody; in fact there were some present who didn't laugh at the right moments. With the right people, it will be a sure winner, a feature. The last sunset scene is a work of art, and all the photographs are excellent. A very enjoyable and funny picture.

"SETTLED OUT OF COURT" (Nestor), February 24.—A comedy whose leading character is a jealous young wife, played by Miss Victoria Forde very pleasingly. Her husband is a modern Western small farmer. A new schoolteacher figures as the innocent cause of the separation. A fire in a country hotel is the cause of the young people's coming together. It is good natured and the sub-titles are clever. It is a first class filler. The photographs are good.

"TIGHTWAD ALMOST SAVES A DOLLAR" (Nestor), February 24.—Another Tightwad farce in which this amusing character figures as trying to save a dollar by carting his own ashes away. He lands behind the bars and gets off easy with a hundred dollar fine.

"GRAND CANON OF ARIZONA" (Nestor), February 24.—This fairly well photographed but too short scenic is very interesting.

"BLIND MAN'S BUFF" (Nestor), February 19.—A comedy of misunderstanding in which a young girl, as charitable as she is pretty, thinks that a young engineer who is wearing green goggles is blind and helps him on his way. The comedy comes through the man keeping up the deception. It makes a pretty romance and one that is sure to be reasonably popular. It is helped by the Nestor sub-titles; is well photographed and set and pleasingly acted. It comes near being a feature.

"A CHILD'S FIRST LOVE" (Reliance), February 24.—Gratitude rather than love moved a man to propose to a girl. He was accepted, but when the girl's sister came home from college his affections changed. The college girl and he eloped and the jilted sister was left with a broken heart. Later, we see the married sister (Miss Fernly) a widow struggling to support her only child (Baby Rosanna). The child falls in love with a doll in a store near her home and she visits it; is there when it is sold to the older sister and is even sent to deliver the package. She stumbles and the doll is broken. The incident brings about a reconciliation between the two sisters. Baby Rosanna does the most of the work in the story; it is her picture, and is very commendable for its acting, its humanity, its mechanical work, and its stage sets. It will make a good feature picture.

"HIS STEPMOTHER" (Majestic), February 16.—A picture whose object is to show the clarifying, sanity-giving effect of parenthood on a man. He was engaged to a girl of about the same age as the girl his father unexpectedly married and he fell in love with his stepmother. Nevertheless, he got married and when the little stranger came he fell in love with his wife, which pleases all concerned. The stepmother is played by Mabel Trunnelle and the artist by Herbert Prior. It is naturally well acted.

"A WAITER OF WEIGHT" (Powers), February 10.—New York exhibitors may be interested in knowing that the sketch that the Powers players gave at the ball was suggested while producing this picture and gave one of its scenes. It is a character farce in which a waiter takes off his apron to figure as a French count and attempts to win an heiress. The girl's sweetheart shows him up. It is very amusingly acted and will make a desirable filler.

"MOTHER'S OLD ARMCHAIR" (Republic), February 10.—A good, wholesomely suggestive picture with a fine idea behind it, one of the kind that is always fresh, because it is deep. It is true that a better picture of this idea might have been made, perhaps; but it is clearly shown to the thoughtful spectator in this release. The acting is simple and pleasing. The photographs are very good. It will serve as a feature.

"BEDELIA AND MRS. BUSYBODY" (Reliance), February 21.—A character farce that is fresh in many of its incidents and is very likely to make many a hearty laugh. It is well photographed and a filler.

"THE KEY WEST CELEBRATION" (Reliance), February 21.—This is a very good and interesting film showing the City of Key West during the celebration of Henry M. Flagler's achievement in making a railroad over seventy miles of sea from island to island. It shows Mr. Flagler and it shows the U. S. soldiers and sailors on parade.

"WASHINGTON IN DANGER" (Thanhouser), February 20.—A dramatic picture in which Washington is portrayed as a benign and courtly gentleman. His kindness to a little negro boy (the Thanhouser kid) is the means of saving him from being captured by the British. For his would-be host was purposing to betray him, but the boy overheard and brought him word. This picture of General Washington is very commendable; it has dignity and worth and is quite sure to be liked generally. The Thanhouser kid's little darkey is also very amusing and praiseworthy. The photographs are excellent and the backgrounds well chosen. The story is not at all convicing, is probably not at all historical. This alone keeps the picture from being either educational or a safe feature.

"A MESSAGE FROM NIAGARA" (Thanhouser), February 23.—The story was chosen to make the great scenic background humanly interesting. The pictures of the falls were taken in summer and are extremely beautiful. The story is fresh, but melodramatic and not very convincing. It is, hov ever, well handled and the acting is intelligent and, taken as a whol it gets over as good entertainment. The falls make a big background play a picture against. One scene showed them full-faced and they kill the action in that scene. One of the most successful scenes shows a b of the falls and the heroine's message going over; this is in a bott and is attached to her hat. It is not quite a feature.

"A LEAP YEAR COMEDY" (American), February 23.—A comedy i adjoining back yards somewhere in summer land. It pictures the amusin flirtation of a widow and a widower. Their children (each has tv and they are young men and women) figure largely in it. The acting giv it a quality that some people will call "killing." It is a little artifici (not a great drawback in this case) and it borders on satire; also it fal from grace in one or two scenes and becomes too sugary. Yet most it is entertainment and it will serve as a filler. The photographs are goo

"SOCIETY AND CHAPS" (American), February 19.—A picture deali with a young married couple, people of wealth, in the West. It is pleasant, pretty little story that satisfies the art sense. It has some amu ing comedy. It is good enough for a feature for cultivated people. is very fairly photographed.

THREE-SHEETS FOR "NICHOLAS NICKLEBY."

The Thanhouser Company announces that it will have a three sheet poster for the "Nicholas Nickelby" subject which will b released shortly. It is the intention of the Thanhouser Compan to issue three-sheet posters every little while. Exhibitors ar requested to ask their exchanges for them.

WHAT'S DOING AT SELIG'S.

William V. Mong has returned to the Chicago office of th Selig Polyscope Company and is in charge of the scenario department. He formerly occupied the position of producer.

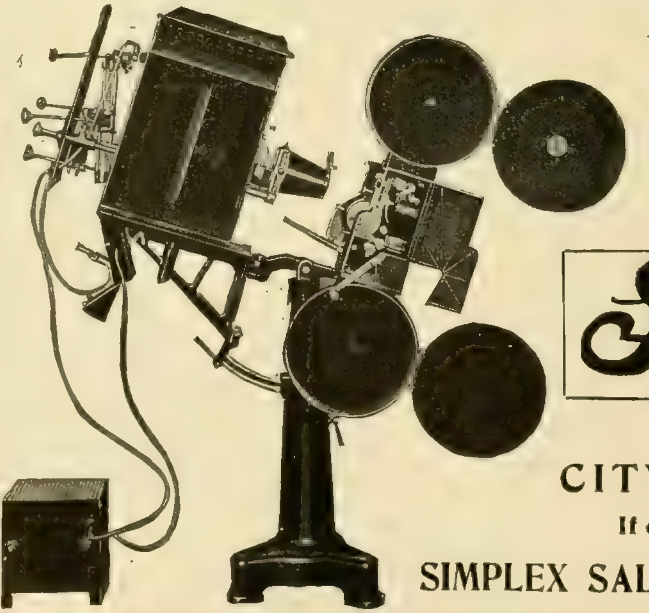
Thomas Pearsons, Selig cameraman, has returned from Panama with a fine lot of negatives, which will be released in a fu reel March 15, under the title "Across the Isthmus of Panam in 1912." This is said to be the best picture of the operation along Uncle Sam's big ditch that has yet been obtained.

The first of a new series of wild animal pictures will be released by the Selig Company on March 12th, under the title o "Bounder." It is the story of a mountain lion and its ferociou devotion to its mistress. Miss Betty Harte plays the part of th mistress and in this her initial animal picture she adds nev laurels to her already long string of successes.

Mr. Chauncey D. Herbert is a new member of the Selig scenario staff. Mr. Herbert will also produce some of the Selig comedies.

The many friends of Mr. W. N. Selig, founder and presiden of the Selig Polyscope Co., will be glad to learn that Mr. Selig' recent operation has proved so successful that he was able t leave the hospital last week.

Many prominent Chicago politicians, aldermen and business me will have a chance to see themselves as others see them in a Selig picture to be released on March 7th, entitled "The Brotherhoo of Man." The story contains a scene in which the leading ma has a three-fall wrestling bout with a professional wrestler, and in order to make the scene realistic, the Selig producers extended a general invitation to the city officials and men-about-tow to act as the ringside audience. As the bouts were not previousl fixed and both contestants were professional wrestlers, the facia expression on the part of the audience was all that could b wished for.



As Exhibitors say "Years Ahead of Other Machines"

EASIEST TO HANDLE, THREAD and OPERATE
ABSOLUTELY FIREPROOF

Simplex THE PEER OF ALL PROJECTORS

No More Trouble With
CITY OFFICIAL INSPECTORS
If dealers misrepresent, send order to
SIMPLEX SALES AGENCY, 23 E. 14th St., New York

Manufacturers Advance Notes

"BLIND" (Champion).

"Blind" is a strong comedy drama, the action of which is iterspersed with romance and business. It is the story of arental objection in which lovers are united after vicissi-ides that threaten to separate them permanently. A young usiness man loves the daughter of his elderly rival. The ither frowns on the proposed alliance for business reasons nd prefers his business manager as a suitor for the hand f his daughter. The daughter is sent to a school for girls nd the father is obliged to mortgage his factory to pay ie expenses. The father becomes totally blind, which fact ; kept from the daughter, and through the peculations of ie confidential clerk referred to, the father is on the verge if bankruptcy when the girl returns to spend her vacation. On her arrival she is horrified to discover her father is ilind and to add to her sorrow the workmen in the factory are on a strike, with the father helpless. She seeks her lover —the business rival—and explains the circumstances. He esponds manfully and the affairs of the father are tided over with the money furnished by the undesirable lover. How the rascally bookkeeper is detected, arrested and punished is an interesting story of business and acumen. Of ourse the right man wins the girl and the father is grateful on being taken into partnership with his intended son-in-law. It is a drama replete with intense interest and one that redounds to the credit of the Champion Film Company. It vill be released March 6.

Scene from "Blind" (Champion).

Newton Swift, father of Harry A. Swift, cashier of the Selig Polyscope Co., died in this city, Friday, Feb. 16, and was laid to rest in Oakwood Cemetery on Sunday, Feb. 18. The deceased was an old-time resident of Chicago, and highly esteemed by a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

"THE RIGHT CLUE" (Imp).

"The Right Clue" in this story is some cigar ash which at the very beginning of the film, the "master detective of his age," W. R. Daly, seizes upon as the means of enabling him to trace the whereabouts of some missing documents. How "Sherlockey" Daly follows up this clue is illustrated in this picture, which teems with humor, every inch of it. Daly's object in life is to find the man smoking the same kind of cigar as that whence the clue ash was derived. As he stops, interrogates, and questions all and sundry persons he happens to meet, you may imagine there is no end of fun in watching his antics.

Finally, Daly discovers an inoffensive policeman smoking a cigar, the like of which he is searching for. From this clue the detective makes his main discovery, viz.: that the missing documents are concealed in the policeman's hat. They got into that hat because the documents were thrown in the waste tub, whence they fell into the hands of the policeman's cook friend, who, finding her lover's hat too large for him, padded it out with the missing papers. Surely a very interesting theme for an Imp comedy. It is a profoundly humorous story from start to finish.

Scene from "The Right Clue" (Imp).

Mr. Daly is "it" in the picture and the authoress should be grateful to him for the manner in which he realizes her ideal. This is the $100 prize story by Miss Louise Carter, and will be released March 2.

"THE CALL OF THE DRUM" (Imp).

In "The Call of the Drum," the Imp drama release of March 7, we have an unfamiliar theme skillfully treated. An old soldier is tempted to give up the society of his former comrades in arms by his newly married daughter, who thinks she can make comfortable his remaining days. But the influence of his dreams of past days are so strong upon him that he cannot resist the temptation to rejoin his old friends.

Scene from "The Call of the Drum" (Imp).

His daughter and her husband make a last effort to lure him away from what they conceive to be an unhappy life, but sentiment triumphs; the call of the drum has proved too strong.

G. A. R. Veterans should appreciate this picture.

"FAR FROM THE BEATEN TRACK" (Imp).

The reception of this Imp drama, "Far from the Beaten Track," by exhibitors and exchanges will answer the question, or at any rate should answer it, as to whether the taste of the public for happy endings is so fixed and immuatble that it would be a wise move for the film makers to depart from conventional ideas.

Scene from "Far from the Beaten Track" (Imp).

The majority of persons in an audience want pictures to close with the to "live ever afterwards happy" termination. But do they always want just this ending? Or in other words, is the problem play as it is understood in this country and Europe, successfully invading the moving picture field?

"Far from the Beaten Track" is a subject with scarcel a happy ending. It is a powerful theme. In the Hudson Ba territory, a skin trader and his wife lead lonely lives, int which there comes by chance a handsome young strange sportsman. Between him and the woman a strong affectio springs up. The husband discovers their relations, but cor ceals his knowledge.

The sportsman meets with an accident; the wife tends hin and the husband seeing that his wife's affections have bee transferred from him to another, leaves them to work ou their own destinies.

This picture is worked out amidst the surroundings c the far north. The accessories of winter hunting are we realized.

But as to the story, it is simple and powerful. It is, a has been said, unconventional. King Baggot and W. R. Dal are the men; Vivian Prescott is the woman. They a splendidly.

Now it is up to the exhibitors and the public to sa whether a non-happy ending in a film is preferable to th happy one.

"FALLING LEAVES" (Solax).

Dr. Earl Headley, a specialist......Mace Greenleaf
Mrs. Griswold Thompson.........Blanche Cornwall
Miss Winifred Thompson..........Marion Swayne
Little Trixie ....The Solax Kid
Mr. Griswold Thompson...............Darwin Karr

Children have intricate methods of reasoning. One mig almost say that their minds are illogically logical. This ma be a seeming paradox—but the person who will closely watc a child will discover that it seldom does anything witho consulting a peculiar philosophy of its own.

Thus in the Solax production of "Falling Leaves" the r lease of Friday, March 15, little Trixie Thompson (Mag Foy) concludes that the only way she could save her beau ful sister from dying of the "white plague" is by preventi the autumn leaves from falling. Little Trixie knows all t s because she had heard her elders say that those troub d with weak lungs usually begin to suffer and probably c when the leaves begin to fall.

Scene from "Falling Leaves" (Solax).

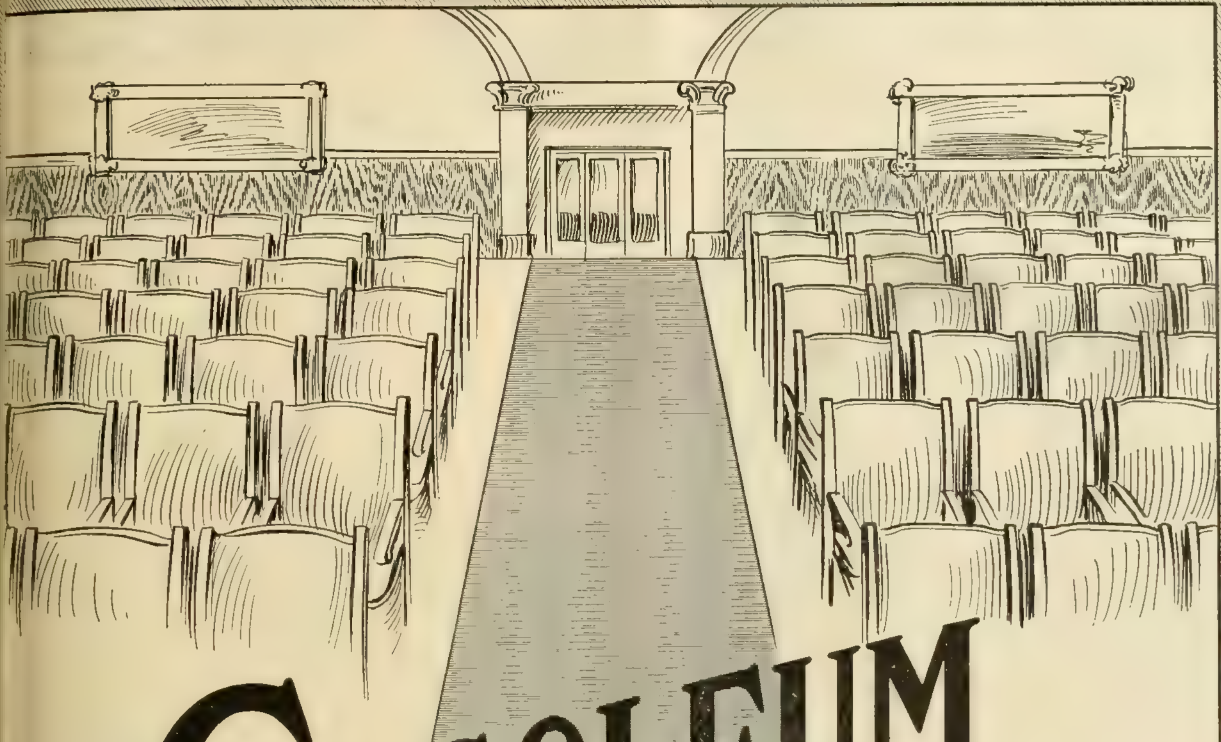
Winifred, Trixie's older sister, is on the verge of c tracting tuberculosis. The little girl loves her sister much to let her die, so one night she steals into the gar n in her "nightie" and fastens the fallen leaves with twine d hangs them up on the trees. Trixie keeps a rigid vigil months and all the leaves that fall in the garden are repla d on the trees.

While Trixie busied herself with this metaphorical oc pation, Dr. Earl Headley, a young lung specialist, discov s a serum which cures consumption. He is called in by e Thompsons and Winifred is soon brought back to hea . The doctor not only restores her lungs, but takes her he t. Little Trixie then permits the leaves to fall.

HORSLEY BACK TO THE COAST.

David Horsley, of Nestor, who has been attending to s e company business in the East, is far on his way to the C st and the Nestor studios at Hollywood, Cal. He will stop at various places along the way to take pictures.



CONGOLEUM

The Aisle Problem

FOR AISLES of Moving Picture Theatres, with their steady, heavy traffic, we manufacture and recommend our Slate Gray Congoleum. It looks like sheet rubber except that it is a little thicker, wears better and is very much cheaper. It gives perfect footing, can be used on steps and slopes and will stand an enormous amount of traffic. In fact, the best field for the sale of this material is just such places as aisles of moving picture theatres where the traffic is concentrated.

Sold in three widths, 36, 45, and 54 inches; buy whatever length you need. You can get it at Department Stores and hardware stores, or we will sell you direct.

SEND FOR FREE BOOKLET

UNITED ROOFING & MANUFACTURING COMPANY

Philadelphia Chicago Kansas City San Francisco

MILTON H. FAHRNEY.

As a successful Western director Milton H. Fahrney, director of the Nestor Western Co., stands in a class by himself, having produced about one hundred and fifty pictures, and each a decided hit. Mr. Fahrney has been associated with the Nestor Film Co. since 1909, and step by step has built a film reputation second to none. He rendered valuable aid in making Nestor "The Worth-While Film." Unlike most directors, Mr. Fahrney writes his own scenarios, and in this he is assisted by Miss Alexandra Phillips, who for more than two years was leading lady with the Nestor Co.

Mr. Fahrney, though still on the sunny side of forty, is old in experience and knows the West like an open book. When but a boy, he soldiered in Western Canada and later was with Broadwater, McColough & Co., the cattle kings of the West. He was a cowboy before becoming an actor. Besides touring the West with his own company, he supported Louis James and James O'Neil and managed big stock companies in Chicago, Cincinnati, Salt Lake City and Denver.

FOUR THANHOUSER FEATURES FOR MARCH, TOO.

A great many Independent exhibitors feel that Thanhouser was the first Independent producer to make a regular practise of issuing features, one every month—there was always something "big" advertised as "coming." In fact, the word "coming" came to be regularly associated with the Thanhouser trade announcements: if it wasnt there it was a cinch that Edwin Thanhouser had been home sick or Bert Adler forgot to see proofs. And some of that "coming" stuff, that is now long "past," was notable stuff, too; there was a lot that is still remembered, though, since there have come many that no doubt surpassed 'em—"Winter's Tale," "Old Curiosity Shop," "Flames and Fortune," "Thelma," "St. Elmo," "Coffin Ship," "The Governor's Daughter."

Then late last year New Rochelle broke away from the one-feature-every-month idea and announced three features for December. At the time, this seemed a big undertaking to those who knew what Edwin Thanhouser called a "feature," but they found that he found the job easy. For in January of this year three features and one more were announced and in February another four, ditto in March. The March four were picked by Mr. Thanhouser just before he left on his Florida "winter vacation" last week, and they are: "The Arab's Bride," Friday the 1st; "Flying to Fortune," Tuesday the 12th; "Nicholas Nickleby," Tuesday the 19th; and "My Baby's Voice," Friday the 29th.

Calendar of Independent Releases.

(M. P. Dis. & Sales Co.)

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 26th, 1912.

AMERICAN—The Land Baron of San Tee (Dr.) 10
CHAMPION—The Robbery at the Railroad Station (Com.-Dr.) ....
CHAMPION—A Higher Power (Dr.) ....
IMP—The Immigrant's Violin (Dr.) 10
NESTOR—The Smugglers (Dr.) ....

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 27th, 1912.

ECLAIR—The Guardian Angel (Am. Dr.) ....
MAJESTIC—Strip Poker (Com.) ....
POWERS—A Tangled Courtship (Dr.) ....
REPUBLIC—In the Government Service (Dr.) ....
THANHOUSER—The Guilty Baby (Dr.) ....

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 28th, 1912.

AMBROSIO—Tweedledum's Evasion (Com.) ....
AMBROSIO—Tweedledum's New Year's Gift (Com.) ..
CHAMPION—Wrongly Accused (Dr.) ....
NESTOR—At Rolling Forks (West. Dr.) ....
RELIANCE—Bedelia and the Suffragette (Com.) .....
SOLAX—Algie, the Miner (Com.) ....

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 29th, 1912.

AMERICAN—An Assisted Elopement (Com.) 10
ECLAIR—Getting Dad Married (Am. Com.) ....
IMP—The Rose of California (Dr.) 10
REX—The Final Pardon (Dr.) ....

FRIDAY, MARCH 1st, 1912.

BISON—The Indian Massacre (Dr.) ....
LUX—Bill and the Lions (Com.) 3
LUX—The Skivvy's Ghost (Com.) 5
SOLAX—Blighted Lives (Dr.) ....
THANHOUSER—The Arab's Bride (Dr.) ....

SATURDAY, MARCH 2nd, 1912.

GREAT NORTHERN—Revenge Is Sweet (Com.) ...
GREAT NORTHERN—Obverse and Reverse (Com.)..
IMP—Beat at His Own Game (Com.) 4
IMP—The Right Clue (Com.) 6
NESTOR—His Good Intentions (Com.) ....
NESTOR—The Battle of Roses (Topical) ....
POWERS—The Path of Genius (Dr.) ....
RELIANCE—The Duel (Dr.) ....
REPUBLIC—His Partner's Wife (Dr.) ....

SUNDAY, MARCH 3rd, 1912.

ECLAIR—The Interrupted Telegram (Dr.) ....
ECLAIR—Prague, the Beautiful (Sc.) ....
MAJESTIC—Does Your Wife Love You? (Com.) ...
REX—Through Flaming Gates (Dr.) ....

Calendar of Gaumont Releases

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 27th, 1912.

GAUMONT—Jimmie's Artful Dodge (Com.) ....
GAUMONT—Panorama of Bruges (Sc.) ....

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1912.

GAUMONT—Gaumont's Weekly No. 2, 1912 (Topical)

SATURDAY, MARCH 2, 1912.

GAUMONT—The Tale of a Dog (Dr.) ....

TUESDAY, MARCH 5th, 1912.

GAUMONT—Jimmie Saves the Situation (Com.) .....
GAUMONT—The Wonderful Adventure of Herr Munchausen (Com.) ....

THURSDAY, MARCH 7th, 1912.

GAUMONT—Gaumont's Weekly No. 3, 1912 (Topical)

SATURDAY, MARCH 9th, 1912.

GAUMONT—The Trust (two reels) (Dr.) ....

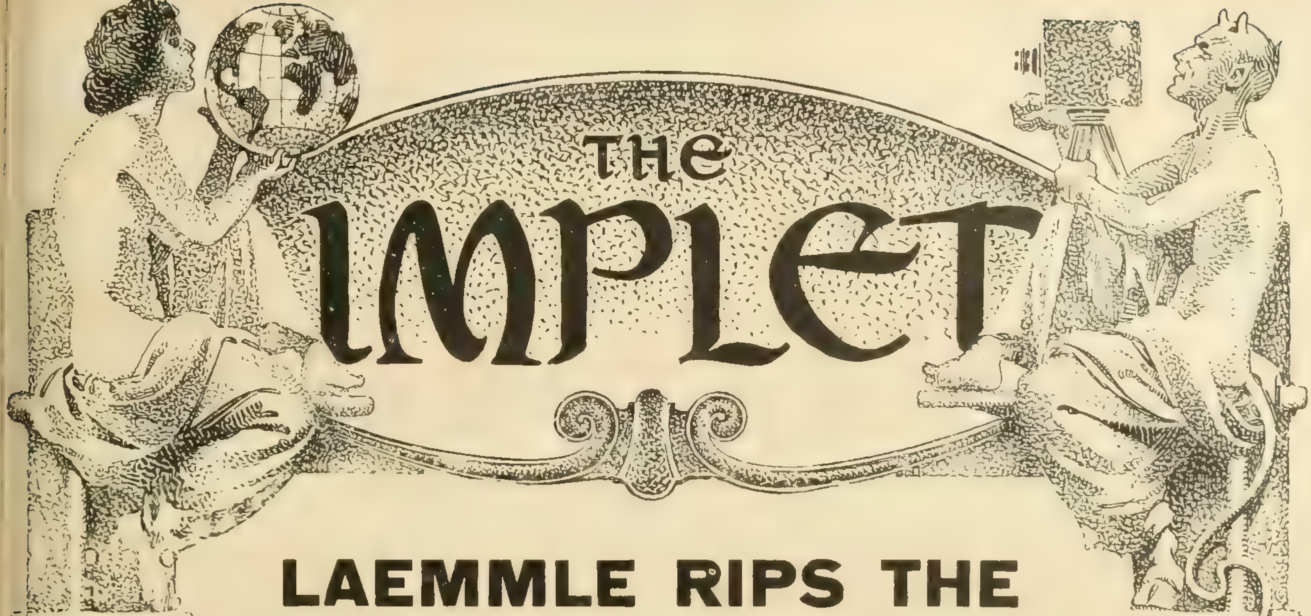
IMP HAS ST. PATRICK PICTURE.

"Shamus O'Brien," the Imp picture for St. Patrick's D will be released on Thursday, March 14th; that is, in ti for the above celebration, and will be a 2,000-foot r Every Irishman all over the world is familiar with Sam Lover's poem on this subject. The character and adv tures of Shamus will appeal to every son of Erin.

The poem is one which has always been a great favo with reciters and dramatic readers. The subject of it ne fails to stir the heart and interest of an Irishman.

The character of Shamus O'Brien should be very dear all American Irishmen. He had many thrilling adventu in fighting against the English in the early part of the 1 century. He was caught, jailed, tried and sentenced. Nev theless, Shamus O'Brien escaped and made his way to United States.

Thus in the character of Shamus millions of Irishmen this country will recognize a character akin to their owr



LAEMMLE RIPS THE PICTURE BUSINESS WIDE OPEN!

Carl Laemmle has written a series of ten powerful articles which will appear exclusively in the Implet. Every moving picture exhibitor and every other man interested in any manner in the moving picture business should read every word of the series. The first article will appear in the Implet dated March, the rest will follow from week to week.

VITAL QUESTIONS ARE HANDLED WITHOUT GLOVES!

Every article of the series contains the "Laemmle Punch." The fact that many questions have been considered too delicate to touch upon in the past has not deterred Mr. Laemmle from slamming into them in this series. No man should miss it. It will be the talk of the moving picture business. The titles give a faint hint of what may be expected:

No. 1—"Exhibitors' Wake Up!"
No. 2—"Picture Politics"
No. 3—"The Open Market"
No. 4—"$45,000 Gone to Hell"
No. 5—"Stockholders"
No. 6—"Your Exchange"
No 7—"A Shame"
No. 8—"Splitting the Splits"
No. 9—"Three for Three"
No. 10—"For Sale"

Remember, these plain talks will appear in the Implet and no other publication. They will be illustrated by one of the foremost newspaper artists in the country. If you are not getting the Implet, it's your own fault. Send for it NOW, or else miss the series that will rip the moving picture business wide open and expose the inner workings to all who care to see!

THE IMPLET

P. S.—We will mail the Implet to your address FREE FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY. Get on our mailing list at once.

102 West 101st St.
NEW YORK CITY

The New York S

In its issue of February 18, 1912, devoted FOURTE

HOMER'S

$200,000 PRODUCTION

This was absolutely gratis, merely bearing testimony to the wondrous wo known. The Hearst papers syndicate to a reading circulation of over twelv spending publicity. State right buyers benefit in this. Never in film histor of any kind—any subject. HOMER'S "ODYSSEY" is the world's classic ra

GEO. H. BRENAN, World Famous Dramatic Manager, Owner of the Clansman and Other Theat

REMEM

1. 4,000 pieces pictorial paper FREE.
2. HOMER'S "ODYSSEY" is a $200,000 production.
3. Publicity carpa tire country is

WIR

MONOPOL FILM CO

nday American

LUMNS to photographs, spread over two pages, of

ODYSSEY"

$200,000 PRODUCTION

geatest, most sensational, most beautiful motion picture the world has ever (1,000,000) weekly. This means nation wide interest, stimulating money eica's most widely circulated paper devoted this amount of space to any film e-the consideration shown it is a majestic tribute to the ODYSSEY'S worth.

actions, has purchased the Rights for Homer's "Odyssey" for NEW ENGLAND--$10,000

ER ALSO

gatic—the en-
"DYSSEY."

4. WM. J. BURNS, World Famous Detective, has been retained to protect STATE RIGHTS from infringers.
5. Complete lecture and 50 art slides free with film—2 hours show.

QUICK

45 W. 45th St., New York, N.Y.

Issue of Sunday Feby 16, 1912

GEO. H. BRENNAN

owner of the "Clansman" Companies

One of New York's
Most Prominent Theatrical Managers

On Feb. 19, 1912, purchased

The
State Rights

For

Homer's Odyssey

For

All New England
For $10,000

Two-A-Month Features Copyrighted

The Talk of the Trade

A Victim of the Mormons

In 3 Reels.

A gripping story with strong human interest, depicting the practice of the Mormons.

Only a few States left.
Don't Write. WIRE!

Big Box Office Winner

The Nihilists' Conspiracy

In 2 Reels.

Awe-inspiring and sensational; every scene a wonder, ending with startling climax.

See the exciting auto chase through city and country at breakneck speed, smashing gates, showing the Nihlists' auto falling over an embankment in a real chasm and real passengers going to their doom.

The Call of a Woman

In 3 Reels.

A story of human interest pronounced by critics as one of the best portrayals of photoplays.

A laugh, a thrill, a sigh, a throb. A picture, once seen, that will cause the public to talk. In over 40 scenes. A story taken from life.

CELL No. 13

In 2 Reels.

By an all-star cast of clever artists. Elegant scenery—beautiful light effects—acting. See the wonderful mad-house scene — acting that will send thrills through you.

All our Features are Copyrighted
1 and 3-sheet posters and handsome lobby display

Great Northern Special Feature Film Co., 1 Union Sq.
New York

Calendar of Licensed Releases.

CURRENT RELEASES.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 26th, 1912.

BIOGRAPH—The Sunbeam (Dramatic) ....
KALEM—The Bell of Penance (Dramatic) 1000
LUBIN—A Matter of Business (Dramatic) 1000
PATHE—Pathe's Weekly No. 9, 1912 (Topical) 1000
SELIG—When Women Rule (Dramatic) 1000
VITAGRAPH—Stenographers Wanted (Comedy) 1000

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 27th, 1912.

EDISON—How Motion Pictures Are Made and Shown (Vocational) 1000
ESSANAY—Positive Proof (Dramatic) 1000
C. G. P. C.—The Tumbler's Kids (Dramatic) ....
C. G. P. C.—Asbestos Quarry (Ind.) ....
CINES—Happy In Spite of Herself (Dramatic).......
CINES—Jenkins, A Perfect Steward (Comedy) ....
SELIG—In Little Italy (Dramatic) 1000
VITAGRAPH—Justice of the Desert (Dramatic) 1000

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 28th, 1912.

EDISON—My Double and How He Undid Me (Comedy)..1000
ECLIPSE—Cousin Bill (Comedy) ....
ECLIPSE—A Glimpse of Tripoli (Scenic) ....
KALEM—A Tenderfoot's Troubles (Comedy) ....
KALEM—A Visit to Madeira (Scenic) ....
PATHE—The Squaw's Debt of Gratitude (Dramatic) .....
C. G. P. C.—Wrestling in Indo-China (Wrestling) ....
LUBIN—Love and Tears (Dramatic) 1000
VITAGRAPH—The Patchwork Quilt (Dramatic) 1000

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 29th, 1912.

BIOGRAPH—A Message From the Moon (Com.) ....
BIOGRAPH—Priscilla's Capture (Com.) ....
ESSANAY—Her Masterful Man (Comedy) 1000
LUBIN—Betty and the Doctor (Dramatic) 1000
MELIES—Oil (Com.-Dr.) 1000
PATHE—The Ordeal (Comedy) ....
C. G. P. C.—The Great Market in Tananarive, Madagascar (Sc.) ....
SELIG—The "Diamond S. Ranch" (Western Drama).....1000

FRIDAY, MARCH 1st, 1912.

EDISON—Tony's Oath of Vengeance (Dramatic) 1000
ESSANAY—Do Dreams Come True (Comedy) 1000
KALEM—Trapped by Wireless (Dramatic) 1000
SELIG—As Told by Princess Bess (Dramatic) 1000
C. G. P. C.—An Adventure of Van Dyck (Dramatic) ......
C. G. P. C.—Hunting Bears in Malaya (Scenic) ....
VITAGRAPH—The Diamond Brooch (Dramatic) 1000

SATURDAY, MARCH 2nd, 1912.

EDISON—A Cowboy's Stratagem (Comedy) 620
EDISON—The Jam Closet (Comedy).................. 380
ESSANAY—The Ranch Girl's Mistake (Dramatic) 1000
CINES—A Sister's Stratagem (Comedy) ....
LUBIN—A Mexican Courtship (Dramatic) 1000
PATHE—His Mexican Sweetheart (Dramatic) ....
VITAGRAPH—The Telephone Girl (Comedy) 1000

ADVANCE RELEASES.

MONDAY, MARCH 4th, 1912.

BIOGRAPH—A Siren of Impulse (Dr.) ....
KALEM—You Remember Ellen (Dr.) ....
LUBIN—Fishing in Florida (Vocational) ....
LUBIN—The Baby Tramp (Comedy) ....
PATHE—Pathe's Weekly No. 10 (Topical) ....
SELIG—The Shrinking Rawhide (Dr.) ....
VITAGRAPH—Lulu's Anarchist (Comedy) ....

TUESDAY, MARCH 5th, 1912.

EDISON—Lost—Three Hours (Com.) ....
ESSANAY—The Turning Point (Dr.) ....
C. G. P. C.—The Six Little Drummers (Com.-Dr.) ..
CINES—The Chauffeur (Com.-Dr.) ....
CINES—Lucca, Italy (Scenic) ....
SELIG—The Ace of Spades (Dr.) ....
VITAGRAPH—Cardinal Woolsey (Hist. Dr.) .

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6th, 1912.

EDISON—The Yarn of the Nancy Bell (Com.) ......
ECLIPSE—The Factory Girl (Dr.) ....
KALEM—The Romance of a Dry Town (Com.) ....
PATHE—Cholera on the Plains (Am.-Dr.) ....
LUBIN—My Princess (Dr.) ....
VITAGRAPH—Irene's Infatuation (Com.) ....

THURSDAY, MARCH 7th, 1912.

BIOGRAPH—A String of Pearls (Dr.) ....
ESSANAY—Getting a Hired Girl (Com.) ....
LUBIN—The Handicap (Dr.) ....
MELIES—Seven Bars of Gold (Dr.) ....
PATHE—Buster's Nightmare (Am. Com.) ....
C. G. P. C.—Starfish, Sea Urchins and Scallops (Edu.)
SELIG—The Brotherhood of Man (Dr.) ....

FRIDAY, MARCH 8th, 1912.

EDISON—The Heir Apparent (Dr.) ....
ESSANAY—The Baby of the Boarding House (Com.)
ESSANAY—Trombone Tommy (Com.) ....
KALEM—Captain Rivera's Reward (Dr.) ....
SELIG—Hypnotized (Com.) ....
C. G. P. C.—An Episode of the Hundred Years' W (Hist. Dr.) ....
PATHE—Small Trades in Havana (Indus.).........
VITAGRAPH—How States Are Made (W. Dr.) .....

SATURDAY, MARCH 9th, 1912.

EDISON—New York Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Sto Association, Madison Square Garden (Indus.) ...
EDISON—The Patent Housekeeper (Com.) ....
ESSANAY—A Romance of the West (Dr.) ....
CINES—The Moorish Bride (Dr.) ....
LUBIN—Mother Love (Dr.) ....
PATHE—How the Play Was Advertised (Am. Com.)
VITAGRAPH—Mrs. Carter's Necklace (Dr.) ....

America's Popular Photoplayers
Full Sheet Posters in Colors of Arthur Johnson, Alice Joyce, Costello, Bunny, Gene Gauntier, Florence Turner, Anderson and other favorites. Complete Set of 10 for $2.00. Postage Prepaid

FEATURE POSTERS FOR FEATURE FILM

(Include 1c. for each sheet for prepaid postage, if ordered sent b
Three-sheets 30c. (A. B. C. 3 Sheets 35c.) Eight-sheets 7
Correct Title. BELL OF PENANCE, JUSTICE OF THE D PATCHWORK QUILT, DIAMOND "S" RANCH, DI BROOCH, A MEXICAN COURTSHIP, THE DANITES, THE THE GIRL DEPUTY, UNDER BURNING SKIES, THE LITTLE BOX, DAUGHTER OF THE REGIMENT, AN AMERICAN INV CAPTURED BY WIRELESS, BROKEN SPUR, WINNING IS L TWO CONVICT BROTHERS, HIS WIFE'S JEALOUSY, C IN THE TOILS, HOBO'S REDEMPTION, BATTLE OF POTT BRIDGE, PASSING OF J. B. RANDALL & CO., TRICKED INTO NESS, MELODY OF LOVE, EQUITABLE FIRE, PLAYMATES, THE TE JEWELS, TIMELY RESCUE, THE STOWAWAY, THE IMPOSTOR, T Miner, The Heart of a Boss, His Mother, Through the Drifts, In Egypt, Delhi Durbar, Brutus, Desert Trail, Jack and th Stalk and other Licensed Features Past, Present and Futur

EXHIBITORS' ADVERTISIN SPECIALTY COM

ARTHUR D. JACOBS, Pres. BEN TITLE, Sec'y and 105 E. 14th St., New York.

"Don't be the last"

Act Quick!

Modern Methods Mean Money To You.

SPIEGLE'S

MOVING SLIDES!

They Move!

They create the Wildest Enthusiasm whenever shown

Nothing like them ever seen before.

The most appropriate addition to Moving Pictures since their inception.

Posed from life by Prominent New York Vaudeville Headliners.

Restricted to First Class Theatres & to one only in the smaller cities.

Send for Particulars and Posters FREE!

Apply for Service Now, LEVI CO., INC. 1560 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY.

First Release March 2nd.

We also make Moving Advertising Slides.

MAJESTIC STRONG IN COMEDY AND DRAMA.

It cannot be laid against the Majestic Company that its pictures are "padded." It seems to be the peculiar feature of its productions that they are crowded with incident and filled with action. Two forthcoming releases, "An Unwilling Bigamist," comedy, and "The Unopened Bible," drama, are good illustrations. Every foot of film advances the story, and there is no lagging in the action from start to finish. The first is based upon the great resemblance of one man to another, and a very clever comedy is built upon that foundation. One man leaves town, while the other, his double, is hit by an automobile and taken to the hospital. The injured man's picture is printed in the paper and two women recognize the features as that of their husband. The wrong wife gets to the hospital first and induces the physician in charge to send the man to her home even against his vigorous protest that the woman is not his wife.

Then the other woman gets on the job and manages to take the injured man, who is really her husband, to his home. After which the first woman calls in the police and has him brought back again. The mixup is not adjusted until the other man returns and finds his wife quarreling over another man with a strange woman.

The part of the two husbands is cleverly portrayed by Herbert Prior, who is made to appear as the injured and the uninjured man by a dexterous photographic trick of double printing. It is really funny and will get plenty of laughs.

In "The Unopened Bible" the Majestic players prove their versatility in no uncertain manner. A poor man in desperate circumstances is about to burglarize a house and comes upon its owner just as he commits suicide, after having written his fate in the family Bible. The poor man is quickly arrested and convicted upon circumstantial evidence, and is sentenced to 20 years in prison. The shock kills his wife, and the District Attorney is so affected by the scene that he takes charge of the condemned man's child, a babe in arms, and brings it up as his own.

Twenty years after, the child has grown to a beautiful woman. She becomes acquainted with the son of the man whom her father is supposed to have killed, and he wants to marry her. To this the foster father of the girl objects and explains to the young man that he is not the girl's father but that she is the daughter of the man who killed his father. This information staggers the young man, but love is stronger and the young folks elope and get married. When the young man takes his bride home they proceed to write their names in the family Bible, and the record of the fate of the young man's father is discovered. They hasten to the home of the district attorney with the Bible, and there meet the girl's true father, who has just been released from prison. The situations are intensely dramatic and the story takes a strong grip on the heart strings. It is one of the best things the Majestic has offered.

NEW FOX THEATER AT NEWARK, N. J.

The Charles Fox Amusement Company, of Newark, N. J., opened the New Palace Theater in that city on Jan. 22 and report a fine business ever since. The new house is of modern type and fully equipped. It seats 370 persons. It is the intention of the company to erect a roof garden atop the building for the summer months.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum; postage stamps accepted.

HELP WANTED.

WE TRAIN DETECTIVES, YOU CAN BE ONE. Splendid opportunities. Travel. Earn $100 to $300 monthly. This fascinating profession taught practically and scientifically by mail at a nominal cost. AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CRIMINOLOGY, Dept. 1, Detroit, Mich.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

AT LIBERTY—Operator and Electrician. 6 years' experience. Can operate and repair any make machine. Will repair anything electrical. Have operated road shows and will go anywhere. Save your stamps if you don't mean business. H. L. BARNHART, 702 West York Ave., York, Pa.

AT LIBERTY—Operator. Four years' experience. Will take job any place. HARRY KELLER, 318 W. South St., Massillon, Ohio.

MOVING PICTURE, STEREOPTICON, OPERATOR wants position in picture and vaudeville house. New York and vicinity. Address OPERATOR, 270 Virginia Ave., Jersey City, N. J.

POSITION WANTED—Young married man, experienced photographer, wants position with motion picture manufacturer. Address PHOTOGRAPHER, 190 East Ave., So. Norwalk, Conn.

MOVING PICTURE OPERATOR—New York license. Will go anywhere. NEW YORK OPERATOR, care Moving Picture World, New York City.

OPERATOR—Desires position anywhere. Experienced on all machines. Can deliver the goods. Address, OPERATOR, 331 Pleasant St., Ionia, Michigan.

MANAGER OPERATOR—Seven years' experience. Wants position with reliable company who appreciate first class man. Have machine. References. Married, sober, A-1 advertiser and poster writer. P. O. BOX 453, Watertown, South Dakota.

THEATER FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Here is a snap. Only motion picture show in town of 2,000. Doing excellent business. Have my own lighting plant for whole house. One Powers No. 6, one Edison Type B, both new. New concrete building, size 25 x 100, 18-foot ceiling. Capacity 350. Long lease. Rent $25. Reason for selling, have photograph gallery and can't handle both. Price $3,000, $2,000 down, balance on time. Address LYNDEN THEATER, P. O. Box 35, Lynden, Wash.

HAVE LARGE NUMBER of inquiries for Moving Picture Theaters from all over the States. Send for Agency Blank and commission rates if you want to sell. MOVING PICTURE THEATER AGENCY, Box 485, Madison Square Station, New York City.

EQUIPMENT WANTED.

WANTED—A light film safe to hold 50 to 100 reels. State make, size and price. FRANK WILSON, 126 Greene St., New York City.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Cheap if sold this month. 250 Opera Chairs; 2 Motiograph Machines No. 1-A, 1912 Model; 7 Fans, 1 Piano; Galvanized Booth, 7 feet square; Fort Wayne Compensarc. Complete line of other goods for Moving Picture Theaters. Above goods used only 7 months. Address LOUIS KUSTAS, 320 Main St., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

FOR SALE—250 seats, used 6 months, good as new. Big bargain. For particulars address CROUSE & KUNZ, Mansfield, Ohio.

FOR SALE—Six brand new, never used, latest models, $225 moving picture machines at second-hand prices. Leading makes. Also one second-hand Powers No. 5, like new. Write BOX 434, Washington C. H., Ohio.

FOR SALE—One Powers Machine No. 5, in good condition, and frame of steel booth, size 5 x 5, and sixty folding chairs. One hundred and twenty-five dollars will take outfit, also electric banjo in good condition. Just been remodeled over. $75 will take it. LOCK DRAWER F, Duncannon, Pa.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE—80 Hardesty "Anti-Panic" Theater chairs, in good condition; wire hat racks, and floor rings. Will sell all for $50, or what have you to offer in exchange? Address H. E. HARTMAN, Lyric Theater, Siegfried, Pa.

FOR SALE—Moving Picture machine head. Used three days. Cheap. No dealer. Sent subject to examination. C. M. CHENEY, 5356 Calumet Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SCENERY AND SCREEN for your picture house free. Write for proposition. JESSE COX SCENIC COMPANY, 1221 Roberts Street, Estherville, Iowa.

FOR SALE, CHEAP—Electric sign "Idle Hour." For particulars write CHAS. NAMUR, 617 Walnut Street, Des Moines, Iowa.

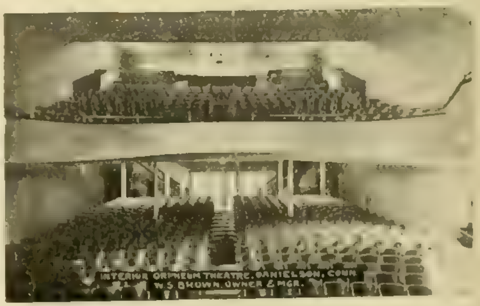
In answering advertisements kindly mention the Moving Picture World.

PICTURE ON POST CARDS THE INSIDE OF YOUR THEATRE

Our semi-photo process for advertising purposes. It is the best medium you can [illegible] in your town. Send us the photograph and we will make them up in ten days. THEY LOOK BETTER THAN A PHOTOGRAPH. Glazed surface, photo brown color. If you wish sample write us TODAY and we will forward them showing exactly what we did for other PICTURE HOUSES. Price $5.00 per thousand. [illegible] with order.

PICTURE POST CARDS OF THE PRINCIPAL ACTORS

Now appearing in all the [illegible] films [illegible] exhibit [illegible] Your exchange can furnish these on very short notice. If you are unable to secure the same at once write us and we [illegible] you get them. Price $4.00 per thousand.



INTERIOR ORPHEUM THEATRE, DANIELSON, CONN
W. S. BROWN, OWNER & MGR.

KRAUS MANUFACTURING CO., 14 East 17th St., New York.

Song Slide Releases

Excelsior Slide Co.

"Two Lips"—Pub. by Gus Edwards Song Review Co., N.Y.

"Jerusalem Rag"—Pub. by Betts & Binner, Chicago, Ill.

"We Swear by Washington"—Published by Rodney Powers, N. Y.

DeWitt C. Wheeler.

"Love Me When the Lilies Bloom Again"—Pub. by Alexander Pub. Co., Chicago.

"Dancing Dan, the Ragtime Battling Man"—Pub. by F. A. Miller.

"As Long as the Band Will Play"—Pub. by M. Witmark & Sons.

A. L. Simpson, Inc.

"A Wee Little Drop o' the Cruiskeen Lawn"—Pub. by J. Fred Helf Pub. Co.

"Moontime Is Spoontime (When You're with the Girl You Love)"—Pub. by J. H. Aufderheide & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

"In Bamboo Land"—Pub. by J. H. Aufderheide & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

"Drifting in Dreams with You"—Pub. by J. H. Aufderheide & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.

Scott & Van Altena.

"Remember Me to My Old Gal"—Pub. by Harold Rossiter Music Pub. Co.

"Italian Eyes"—Pub. by Daly Music Pub. Co., Boston.

"That Daffydill Rag"—Pub. by Joe Morris & Co.

"Ephraham Jones' Brass Band"—Pub. by Leo Feist.

"'Neath the Mississippi Moon"—Pub. by Geo. Meyer Music Co.

Levi & Co.

"The Gaby Glide"—Pub. by Shapiro.

"My Marguerite"—Pub. by Shapiro.

"He Never, Never Said Good-Bye"—Pub. by Shapiro.

"You're Just the Girlie I Adore"—Pub. by Shapiro.

Niagara Slide Co.

"One Kind Word"—Pub. by Burdick.

"If I Knew"—Pub. by Burdick.

"Knight of the Road"—Pub. by Burdick.

SLIDES FROM THE EXCELSIOR SLIDE CO.
ARE NOT HIGH PRICED

Probably ninety per cent. of the people who have purchased medium-priced slides elsewhere would have come to the Excelsior Slide Co. if they had not had a mistaken impression that EXCELSIOR QUALITY cost more than they could afford.

The desire to possess the best in slides is natural.

The best place to purchase the song slide of "artistic perfection" is EXCELSIOR SLIDE CO.

THIS WEEK'S RELEASES: "ITALIAN ROMEO" "BACK TO THE FACTORY MARY"

To keep in touch with all the hits, get on our mailing list.

ADVERTISING SLIDES?? CERTAINLY!!!!

EXCELSIOR SLIDE CO., 61 W. 14th St., New York City
PHONE 4351 CHELSEA

E·Z SLIDE
MAKE THEM YOURSELF
Clear as Glass—Will Outlast Glass
You can write or print on them as easily as on a sheet of writing paper
Ask your Film Exchange for them or write to
BATTERSHALL & OLESON 39 W. ADAMS ST. CHICAGO, ILL.

SCENARIOS WANTED
Indian, Military, Pioneer, Cowboy, Historick, for our two reel feature films. Best prices paid. Send scenarios to:
FRED J. BALSHOFER, BISON PACIFIC COAST STUDIO
1719 Allesandro St., Edendale, Los Angeles, California

The Slides that Please the Eyes
SCOTT & VAN ALTENA
Special Slides for Scientific Advertising Purposes
59 Pearl Street New York City

The Leading Topic of the Moving Picture Industry
"Spiegel's Motion Slides"
WRITE FOR ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE. DEPT. W.
AMERICAN MOTION SLIDE CO.
611 First National Bank Building CHICAGO, ILL.

HEPHERD'S
ONG
LIDE
ERVICE

28 Union Square
New York

Are you getting good slide service? If not write, wire or call.

Do you know the Illustrated songs require as much attention as the rest of the show?

Positively no repeaters and a good selection. Get your copies ahead and know the songs when you use them.

You have your reels booked in advance, why not your songs?

Special Advertising Slides Made to Order

LICENSED Film Stories

KALEM.

YOU REMEMBER ELLEN (March 4).—

You remember Ellen, our hamlet's pride.
How meekly she blessed her humble lot,
When the stranger, William, had made her his bride,
And love was the light of their lowly cot.
Together they toil'd through winds and rains,
'Til William, at length, in sadness said:
"We must seek our fortune on other plains;"
Then, sighing, she left her lowly shed.

They roam'd a long and weary way,
Nor much was the maiden's heart at ease,
When now, at close of one stormy day,
They see a proud castle among the trees.
"Tonight," said the youth, "we'll shelter there;
The wind blows cold, the hour is late;"
So he blew the horn with a chieftain's air,
And the porter bow'd as they pass'd the gate.

"Now, welcome, lady!" exclaimed the youth,
"This castle is thine, and these dark woods all!"
She believed him crazed, but his words were truth,
For Ellen is lady of Rosna Hall!
And dearly the Lord of Rosna Hall loves
What William the stranger woo'd and wed;
And the light of bliss, in lordly groves,
Shines pure as it did in the lowly shed.

THE ROMANCE OF A DRY TOWN (March 6.)—At her home in Oldtown, Conn., Jennie refuses the proposal of marriage from Jimmie, on the grounds that he is not sufficiently established in business. Jimmie, quite downhearted, reads in the paper of the fortunes made in the West, and he departs for Stone Gulch, Cal.

Jimmie reaches the Western town just as the county has been voted "dry," and the inhabitants are disgusted with the new state of affairs. Jimmie has a great idea. He purchases an ice cream freezer and opens a "parlor" in a tent. Business is immense and Jimmie writes to the editor of his home paper, stating he has become one of the leading business men of Stone Gulch. The editor, proud of the former citizen, places quite an article about Jimmie in the paper, which comes to the eyes of Jennie.

She experiences a change of heart and sets forth for the West to retract her former decision. Jimmie is having "ladies' day" at his ice cream parlor and will not notice Jennie. She thinks things over and has an inspiration. She secures a small soda fountain and with the novelty of ice cream soda, secures all of Jimmie's customers. Jimmie argues with her, stating she is putting him out of business and as a result they "combine interests" in more ways than one.

CAPTAIN RIVERA'S REWARD (March 8).—Rivera, the messenger, performs a kind act for Meta's boy, and later on this act proves a good investment. Rivera, the messenger, sends word to Ermina, daughter of the Viceroy, of his return. Desiring more colonists for the little Pueblo at Los Angeles, the Viceroy sends Rivera to Sonora with orders to secure additional settlers. Blanko, a spy for the bandit Palomare, informs his chief of Rivera's expedition, and the amount of gold he carries.

A few miles from Los Angeles the brigands trap Rivera and his followers. They are made prisoners and taken to the bandits' headquarters. As the prisoners are brought in Meta, the bandit's wife, recognizes Rivera, and remembering his kindness to her boy, determines to save him. She cautiously communicates with Rivera, who gives her his ring and tells her to take it to the Viceroy's daughter, Ermina. The latter quickly organizes a posse, and through the aid of Meta, secures the freedom of Rivera, who proceeds on his journey to Sonora.

Two months later Capt. Rivera returns with the settlers and for a reward the Viceroy consents to his marriage with Ermina.

LUBIN.

FISHING IN FLORIDA (March 4).—The picture shows the catch of a Jue fish which weighs upward of 600 pounds. It is hauled aboard the yawl and transferred to the dock for final slaughter after being beaten into insensibility. The head is cut off and within a few minutes the monster is skinned. During all of this process the fish shows signs of life and is pretty hard to handle. Finally the carcass is cut up in big slices for the market.

THE BABY TRAMP (March 4).—Weary Jake and "Shorty" Sam are lounging on a park bench. They observe that many people pause and take notice of a child in a baby buggy. An idea occurs to Jake, why not make a baby of "Shorty." "Shorty" is washed up and his face polished and the go-cart is sided up on the park walk. The scheme works. Many pennies are received from the passing crowd and oranges, apples, etc., are tucked away in the back of the seat. Then a Dutch baker stops to see what interests so many ladies and children. He thinks the face is hardly childlike, so he feels the chin. He remarks that baby needs a shave. The lady who owns the buggy is quickly upon the scene; also the owner of the clothes line which had been robbed. The police are informed. The hoboes take to their heels.

MY PRINCESS (March 6).—Lois Sheridan, an orphan, to make a living, hits on the idea of telling fairy tales to rich people's children. She interviews Hal Meredith, a rich bachelor who is much interested in the girl, and wishes to help her, but he has no children. He borrows four kiddies and sets Lois at work, representing the children to be his own. One of the children, named Davey, is a cripple, who becomes much attached to the story-teller and has named her "my Princess." One day Lois enters Meredith's study and sees him paying and dismissing the kiddies. This unfortunate affair breaks up the story telling. After a while Hal resolves to write Lois and he sends the note by the cripple. The story-teller refuses to accept it. On the way to report Davey is run down by an automobile and injured. He still has the letter and sends for Lois and Meredith. He then tells his story to the story-teller and Davey shows them the closing paragraph of one of the fairy tales which reads: "And so the prince and the princess were married and lived happily ever after."

THE HANDICAP (March 7).—Grace Gordon, with her brother Harry and her mother, are hardly able to make both ends meet and have fallen behind in their rent. Don Ferara, the landlord, is an insistent creditor, however, and finally calls at the house to collect. He finds the girl and her mother alone and taking advantage of this insults Grace. Harry enters at the critical moment and orders him from the house. Grace has a horse named Rio. While reading the paper Harry notes that a handicap for six-year-old horses is to be run at the Juarez race track and he and Grace decide to enter Rio, hoping that he will win the $1,000 prize offered. Ferara learns of this and plans to dope the horse. The day of the race comes along. Ferara's conferedate places dope in the drinking bucket at Rio's stall, but Harry, who is to ride the horse, drinks it instead of the horse and is overcome by its effects. The confederate hastens to Ferara to report his success and to collect the money which the former has promised him for his nefarious deed. Ferara refuses to pay the price agreed upon. The enraged dupe then hunts up Grace and tells her the whole story. Grace hastens to the stables, finds her brother hardly able to stand up. She dons the jockey's uniform, mounts Rio and wins the race.

MOTHER LOVE (March 9).—Jack Halliday, working as City Editor of the "Sun," is granted a few weeks' vacation by his employer. He journeys to Lakewood's winter hotel. At a dance given by the management of the hotel, Jack meets Mrs. Buckley, a widow and the mother of a boy of eight. Jack marries the widow and takes her to his home. A few weeks of happy wedded life and the family is broken up through the jealousy of Mrs. Halliday, Jr., towards Jack's mother. The two ladies have words and Jack's mother decides to leave the house. She gives her services to a mission, spending her time in the settlements. One day, the stepson is enticed away from the playground and follows an organ grinder and his monkey and the boy accepts the Italian's invitation into the house in the slums. There he is kept a prisoner. The boy while alone drops a watch and locket containing his parents' photos out of the window which is found by a waif who takes it to the mission and gives it to Mrs. Walter Halliday. She recognizes the photos and asks to be taken to the Italian's house, where with the assistance of the police, she safely returns the boy to the family and secures a warm place in the heart of her once unjust daughter-in-law.

ESSANAY.

THE TURNING POINT (March 5).—The Widow Baker receives five thousand dollars from the railroad for the right of way over her land. This sum she deposits in the town bank. Through a glaring newspaper ad she is now tempted to invest her money in a fake gold mine company. Dan Walton, their representative, meets her at the train, escorts her to their office for a beautiful certificate of stock. In taking out his watch, Walton reveals his mother's photo in the case, which impresses the widow and she lovingly strokes the sharper's head as she tells him never to forget his mother. Deeply moved, Walton sees the old lady off to the train, then returns to the office, secures her money, tells his pals he is going to return it to her and when they try to stop him, holds them at bay with drawn gun as he slowly backs out of the door. Walton journeys to the widow's country cottage, returns her money and receives her blessing, goes to the railway station, finds himself without fare back to the city, smiles grimly, then sets out along the ties, happy in the thought that he has proved himself a man.

GETTING A HIRED GIRL (March 7).—Poor Mr. Peck is continually kept in hot water by his hired girl, Bridget. She fogs him in a cloud of dust when she sweeps, drives him from room to room when he is vainly trying to read his paper, and caps the climax by angrily dousing a bucket of water over his head when he finally stubbornly refuses to move at her command. Summoning his wife, Peck angrily declares he is going out to look for another girl and leaves. After several vain attempts to secure the right sort, he finally engages the cook of a friend who is about to depart for Europe. The new girl now makes him lug her grip through the streets, creates a scene in a restaurant where he takes her for lunch and at last he reaches home with her, bedraggled and worn out, only to have her claim the departing Bridget as a long lost sister. Bridget immediately warns her sister of what an awful boss Peck is, and the two girls leave with upturned noses while poor Peck collapses in the arms of his spouse.

THE BABY OF THE BOARDING HOUSE (March 8).—A young couple leave their baby with an old fellow across the hall in their boarding house, and depart for the theater. Finding the house sold out, they return, discover the old man asleep after having vainly attempted to "mother" the crying infant, remove it without awakening him and depart to spend the afternoon with mother-in-law. In a horrible dream the old fellow now sees the baby stolen by two thugs, awakens, finds the baby missing, sets the boarding house in an uproar, the police are summoned and a frantic search for the infant begins. The young couple now return, the mystery of the lost baby is explained, and the crowd wreak vengeance on the poor old man for the disturbance he has created for nothing.

TROMBONE TOMMY (March 8).—Trombone Tommy, an eccentric musical "genius" is kicked out of his room for annoying the landlady with his awful toots. Once on the street he proceeds to serenade everyone with whom he comes in contact, which results in a series of roaringly funny episodes until he is at last rounded up and removed to the police station.

A ROMANCE OF THE WEST (March 9).—Two surveyors discover that the Widow Graham's barn is built on the land belonging to old Williams, owner of the 7-Up ranch. They inform the widow, who angrily drives them off her place. A report is made to Wiliams, the sheriff and a posse are summoned and sent to the widow with a letter informing her to tear down her barn. She refuses and the sheriff and his men start to do the work, when the widow appears with a gun and forces them to depart. Old Williams is furious, rides over to the barn and, single-handed, begins the work of destruction, when he is seen by the widow, who once more gets her gun, shoots at him, misses and wounds her little daughter who is sharpening her mama's knife at the grind-stone. Williams now rides desperately into town with the child, has her wound doctored and thereby wins the love of the widow, who now ceases contesting over her barn and yields both it and herself into the keeping of Williams for life.

Essanay
THE FILM WITH THE INDIAN HEAD
Synopses of this Week's productions in this paper
INDISPUTABLE ORIGINATORS OF COWBOY FILMS.
WE CONTINUE TO OFFER EACH WEEK MR. G. M. ANDERSON,
(POPULARLY KNOWN AS "BRONCHO BILLY") IN THRILLING STORIES
OF EARLY DAYS IN WESTERN AMERICA, STAGED UNDER THE PERSONAL
SUPERVISION OF MR. ANDERSON, ASSISTED BY A CAREFULLY TRAINED COMPANY

BIOGRAPH.

A SEN OF IMPULSE (March 4).—Mariana, of the little Spanish village, being a g coquette, has the hearts of all the n agog by her flirtatiousness, until Jose s her heart and hand. Shortly after her Feista Day arrives, and though she desires the dance in the evening, Jose, through refuses to allow her to go. At first she , and dresses to go, but later she de- respect her husband's command and in- going, lends her festival dress to her oria. As the party leaves, a child enters its Mariana's aid for her sick mother. rning to the house after his temper has ds his wife absent, and, of course as- has gone to the dance. This assumption ened by seeing his erstwhile rival in the n the way to the gardens with Gloria, who, fe's attire, he reasonably mistakes for A tragedy is narrowly averted by mere

A ST NG OF PEARLS (March 7).—A multi-mil resents his wife with a string of pearls quarter of a million dollars, so doing he e vanity of his spouse. But of what use ng of material pearls when sorrow comes save her from the grave? No. On the d is shown the spiritual string of pearls rm of charitable, loving souls, following tian injunction: "Love thy neighbor as Among these we find a young man, who employ of this multi-millionaire, stricken rious illness, and doomed to die if not beneficial influence of the country. This oney, which the young man has not, and yer turns a deaf ear on his sister's ap- elp with which to send him away. The s, his poor neighbors, gather together of istmas savings sufficient to defray the of his trip, and are delighted with the their self-denial when he returns later cured.

VITAGRAPH.

THE IAMOND BROOCH (March 1).—Jealous of shown Irene, a chorus girl, Miss Gold, g lady, with whom Jack Bronson is in- doesn't hesitate to show her contempt far beneath her. She induces her maid diamond brooch in Irene's make-up box. cautiously sneaks in but is seen placing h in the box by Mabel. Miss Gold re- loss to the manager; he makes a search the brooch in Irene's possession. Irene is court and charged by Miss Gold with the k feels sure that some mistake has e and returns to the theater, where he bel. She slips a note in his hand, stating saw Miss Gold's maid put the brooch was found. On the day of the trial, Jack on Mabel being in court and testifying of her friend. Miss Gold and her maid at the brooch was stolen by Irene. At the of their evidence, Mabel is introduced as for the accused. Her evidence convinces of Irene's innocence. She is honorably and goes home to her old mother. Jack her and asks her to become his wife, gladly does.

HE TELEPHONE GIRL (March 2).—Marion telephone switch operator in a large fac- s to her post, notifying the different de- during the burning of the building. The tment, of which Jack Watson, to whom engaged, is a member, received the alarm. ll the fire laddies get into their clothes and the scene of conflagration. Everyone has xcept Marion. Jack hears this, and tear- f away from his comrades, at the peril , he dashes into the building and rescues heart. He drops with his precious and s burden, exhausted, to the ground. They d to their homes. When both are con- they are allowed to telephone each other. es their message and their wedding day is UL ANARCHIST (March 4).—Lulu Leach is of dime novels. One day she is reading tale of anarchists. A foreign-looking rs the office and asks to see her em- o is out. He hands her a card and strange t bears the same name as the anarchist sel. She at once imagines him a nihilist. ed by a friend and together they look at ffice and rent it from Pearson, Lulu's employer. When they are gone, Lulu warns her boss, but he only laughs at her.

It happens that Lulu's employer goes away for a day or two and leaves the office in her charge. This is her chance. She locks the door, and mounting on a chair and some books, looks through the transom into the next office. She sees "the anarchists" laying out a number of wigs, disguises, etc. Max makes up in several characters for the benefit of Tyler, who is watching him and taking from his valise what she imagines to be a bomb. She is so excited that she falls off the chair. She 'phones to Tom, her reporter friend. Tom tells his editor he is on the track of a great story, and with three policemen, arrives at the office, prepared to make arrests, to find that Max Mornisky is a rapid-change artist, under Tyler's management, and was giving him an exhibition of his art. Tom upbraids Lulu and she weeps, but Tyler tells Tom he can get a good story out of it, anyway. Tom turns in the copy and the article makes a big hit.

CARDINAL WOLSEY (March 5).—King Henry VIII is giving audience to his courtiers, surrounded by his chief advisers, including Cardinal Wolsey. Among the guests who attend this impressive reception is the Anne Boleyn, one of the young ladies-in-waiting to the queen. King Henry sees her for the first time and immediately he sets his heart upon making her queen, displacing the estimable and admirable Catherine. He confides his desire to one of his sycophants, who makes it possible for him to get a glimpse of Anne at her toilette in the seclusion of her boudoir.

He appeals to Cardinal Wolsey to set aside the tenets of the Church and consent to his divorce from the queen. The cardinal absolutely refuses to do anything so inimical to his office, as representative of the Holy See. This angers King Henry, who induces the Archbishop of Canterbury to call a special council, by order of the king, through which he divorces himself from Queen Catherine.

In punishment for his refusal to accede to the king's wishes, the cardinal is exiled to Leicester Abbey. He is a sick man when he enters the monastery, and he dies three days afterward, conscious that he had sustained the sacredness of his office, a martyr to his faith and of service to his king.

IRENE'S INFATUATION (March 6).—Irene and Helen are worshippers at the shrine of Frangiapani, the tenor of the hour. When he sings at a concert, they meet in Irene's room, take the printed programme of the concert, and one of them plays the accompaniment of the song he is actually singing.

Irene sees an advertisement for a maid and waitress at Madame Frangiapani's home. The wild thought enters her brain that if she applies and gets the position, she will be nearer her adored. She puts the plan into execution, gets the position, and is waiting for the signor to appear. He does appear in a towering rage, at an adverse criticism in a paper which he is holding in his hand. His wife tries to soothe him and treats him like a little, unreasonable, bad-tempered child. Irene grows more and more disgusted with her one-time idol. Finally, when the signor has almost caused his wife to fall by a petulant shove, Irene empties the foot-bath which was about to be administered to the furious singer, over his head, and in the teriffic excitement which follows, she escapes to her home where she tells Helen her experiences.

HOW STATES ARE MADE (March 8).—Twenty or twenty-five years ago, when the unoccupied government lands were released for settlement, everyone who registered their names was given a fair and free chance to secure one of the sections of land, which was apportioned off in sections. The settlers were drawn up in a long line at a certain distance from the lands opened up, some of them on horseback and others in vehicles of all descriptions. At the firing of a cannon, everybody made a rush for the land.

Harvey Mattson and his wife Annie, with their child, emigrate form Missouri in a prairie schooner. On their way they hear of the opening up of the Cherokee strip. They hasten there and Harvey pitches camp, preparatory to entering his name. Their child is taken sick. Harvey goes for the doctor, and during his absence, Bill Slick, a good-looking ruffian, tries to force his attentions upon Annie. She repulses him. Harvey and the doctor arrive, and he "settles" Bill without ceremony. The ruffian, enraged, leaves. Shortly afterwards Harvey starts for the rush. On his way he is shot and severely wounded by Bill Slick. Harvey returns to his wife: she insists upon taking his place in the line and a chance with the rest of the would be settlers.

She makes a bold dash with the others and secures a very desirable section. Bill Slick endeavors to beat her to it, but she gets back to the registery office in time to make her entry first. Slick tries to claim her land. Harvey, who is standing about with their child, interferes, and one of the settlers, who saw Slick shoot Harvey, comes forward to accuse him. The villian is arrested. Annie and Harvey take possession of their newly acquired land. A few years afterward we see them a happy family, prospering in the cultivating of one of the largest and most fertile farms in the West.

MRS. CARTER'S NECKLACE (March 9).—Henry Carter receives a message [illegible] Wall Street that same day to avert an impending business disaster. Speeding on their way the taxi breaks down. David Burton, a friend, loans Carter his car. Carter thanks Burton [illegible] to repay.

Burton now in financial trouble, comes to his friend Carter for assistance, which he refuses, giving as his reason that he has recently purchased for his wife a very costly pearl necklace, which he shows to Burton.

That night, while he is contemplating his position, Burton takes from his [illegible] railroad stock, when he replaces them he considers their apparent worthlessness. He gives way to a sudden impulse to return to Carter's house and steal the pearls. He enters the Carter library through the window and takes the pearls. At this moment, Mrs. Carter, returning from a reception, enters the room and confronts Burton. He confesses and returns the jewels to her, explaining why he took them. She is trying to persuade Burton to take the pearls when Henry Carter is heard approaching. She tells Burton to hide. Her husband enters the room, sees Burton's hat on the table and asks his wife to whom it belongs. Perry, the butler, steps forward and politely says the hat belongs to him. Carter sees the stocks [illegible] Burton has dropped and asks Perry if they are his. Perry says "Yes." These are the shares which Carter needs to get complete control of the J. & O. R. R. He offers Perry $50,000 for them. Perry accepts and Carter hastens from the room to telephone his partners. Burton comes from his hiding place, thanks Mrs. Carter and is about to leave when Perry [illegible] room and gives Burton his hat and the endorsed check for $50,000.

ECLIPSE.

THE FACTORY GIRL (March 6).—Francis, the son of a wealthy factory owner, falls in love with Susie, a charming girl in the designing department.

His father hears of the affair, and, in great anger, tells him that if he will not give her up, he must leave the factory and home. Francis will not yield, so both he and Susie are discharged.

The boy's sister, by a clever scheme, persuades her father to allow her to have a companion, and she slyly gets Susie to accept the position.

Susie proves to be a very superior person, and is well liked by the father. One day he is surprised to see her gazing at his son's portrait, and asks why she is doing so. She discloses her love for Francis and finally wins the father's consent to their marriage.

CINES.

THE CHAUFFEUR (March 5).—[illegible] Vert, a wealthy young nobleman, hears that the charming Miss Mary is going out with her governess for an automobile ride. He jumps into his own car and follows, looking for a chance to make her acquaintance.

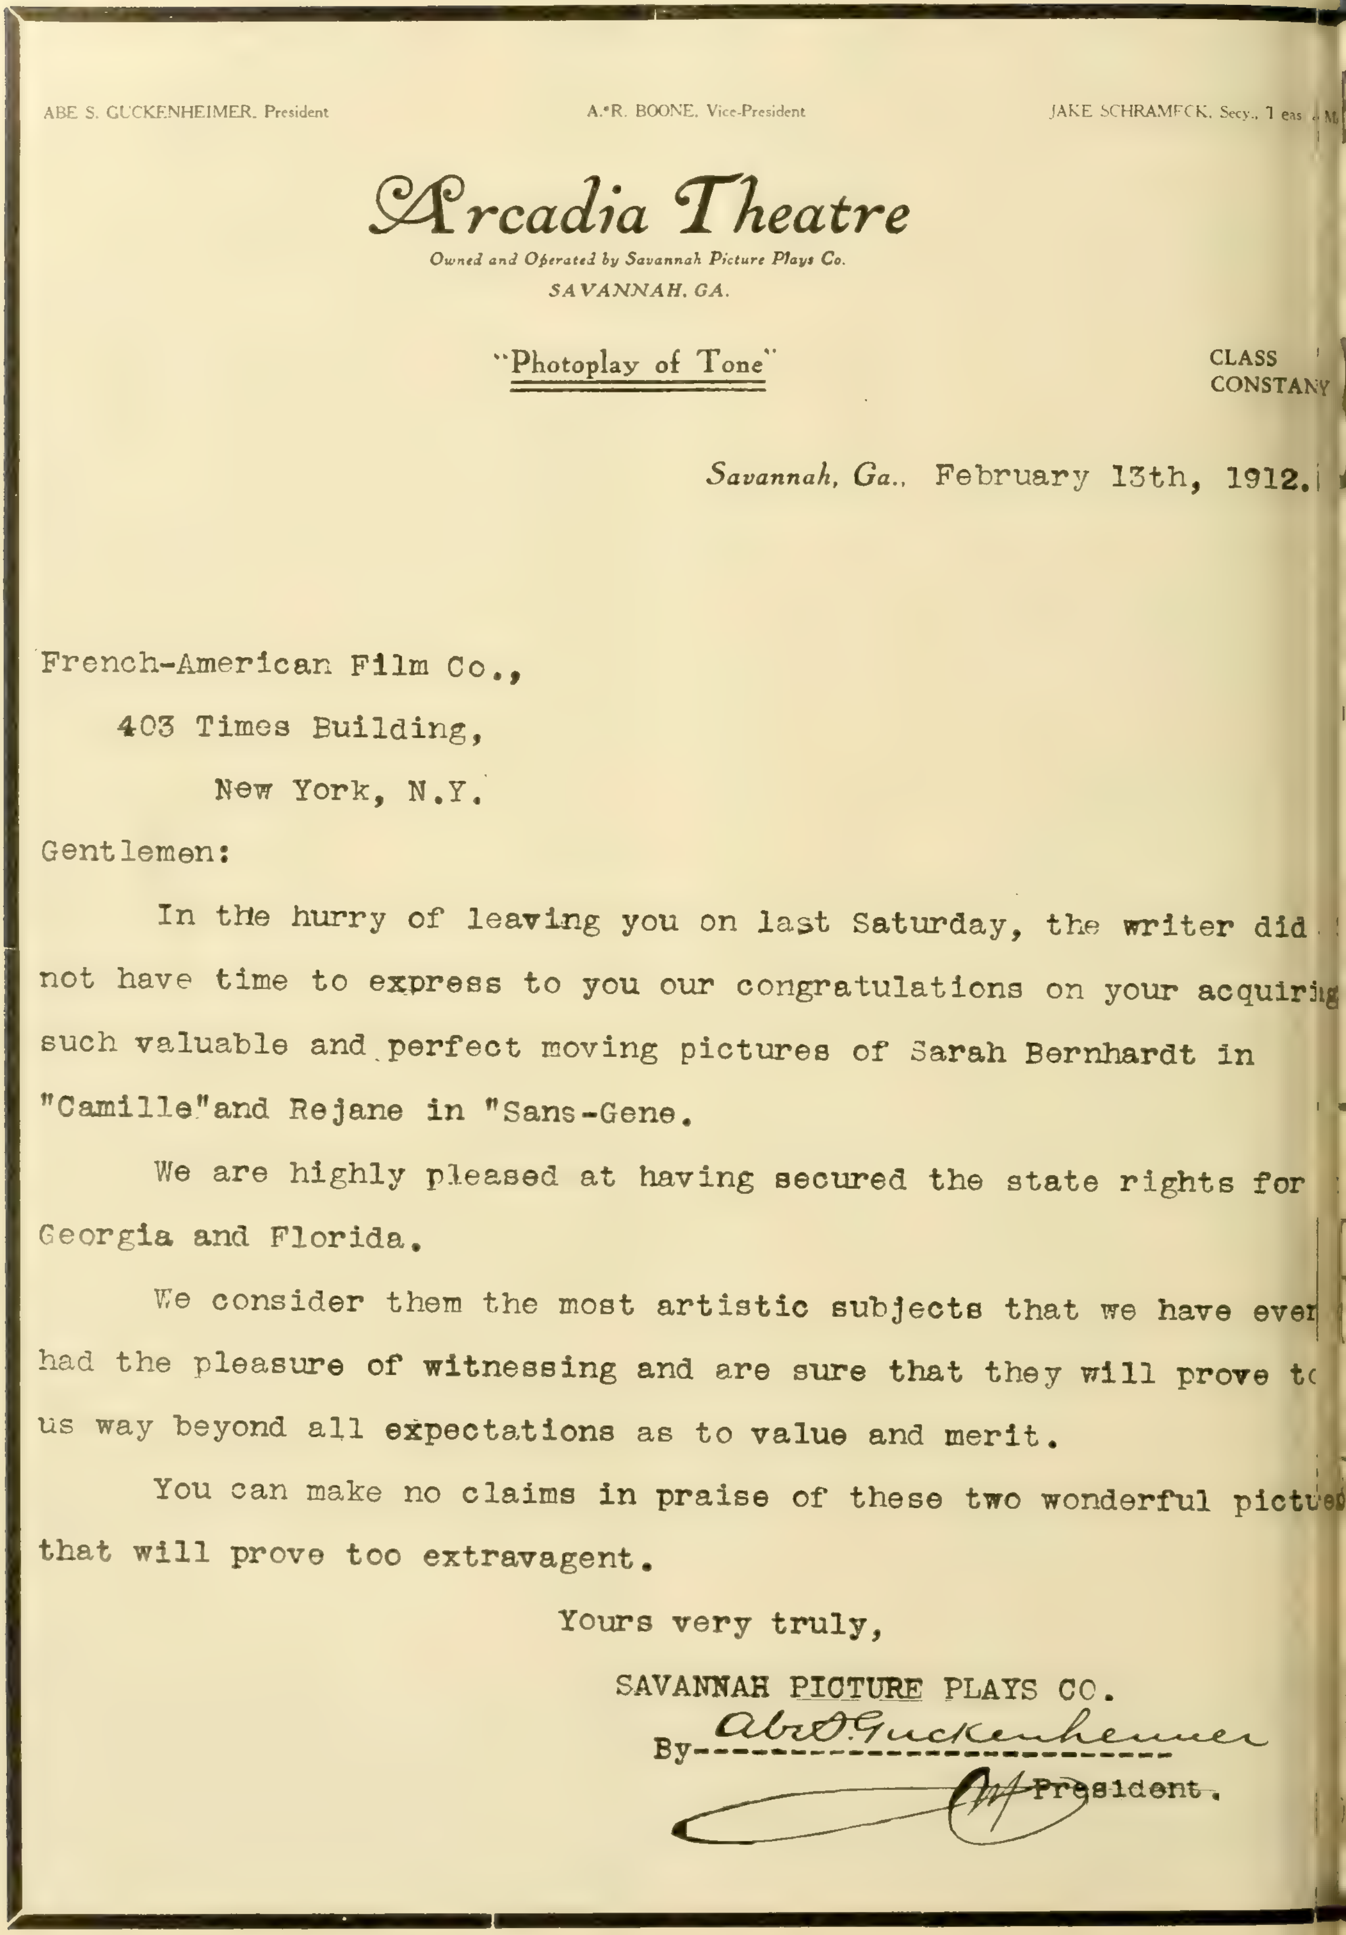
Suddenly, as luck would have it, the foremost car meets with a breakdown, and John, making the best of the opportunity, offers his car, and his services as chauffeur. These are graciously accepted.

After many humorous incidents, the "Chauffeur" is instructed to drive to a certain country house to which the ladies have been invited. There they happen to meet the mother of the young chauffeur, and, of course, everything is disclosed. An intimacy has already developed between the two young people, and a happy marriage in the near future is the result.

LUCCA, ITALY (March 5).—Picturing many interesting views of Lucca, a city in Northern Italy, we are shown the Aqueduct, the Fico Tower, several historic cathedrals, and the public park.

THE MOORISH BRIDE (March 9).—Clare, the daughter of a rich Moorish merchant, has two suitors, Tuzati, a Moor, and [illegible], a Spaniard. She prefers the former, and the Spaniard therefore vows vengeance. Later the Moors [illegible] against the

Essanay
THE FILM WITH THE INDIAN HEAD
Synopses of this Week's productions in this paper
INDISPUTABLE ORIGINATORS OF COWBOY FILMS.
WE CONTINUE TO OFFER EACH WEEK MR. G. M. ANDERSON, (POPULARLY KNOWN AS "BRONCHO BILLY") IN THRILLING STORIES OF EARLY DAYS IN WESTERN AMERICA STAGED UNDER THE PERSONAL SUPERVISION OF MR. ANDERSON, ASSISTED BY A CAREFULLY TRAINED COMPANY



ABE S. GUCKENHEIMER, President A. R. BOONE, Vice-President JAKE SCHRAMECK, Secy., Treas. & M

Arcadia Theatre

Owned and Operated by Savannah Picture Plays Co.

SAVANNAH, GA.

"Photoplay of Tone"

CLASS
CONSTANCY

Savannah, Ga., February 13th, 1912.

French-American Film Co.,
403 Times Building,
New York, N.Y.

Gentlemen:

In the hurry of leaving you on last Saturday, the writer did not have time to express to you our congratulations on your acquiri such valuable and perfect moving pictures of Sarah Bernhardt in "Camille" and Rejane in "Sans-Gene.

We are highly pleased at having secured the state rights for Georgia and Florida.

We consider them the most artistic subjects that we have ever had the pleasure of witnessing and are sure that they will prove t us way beyond all expectations as to value and merit.

You can make no claims in praise of these two wonderful pictu that will prove too extravagent.

Yours very truly,

SAVANNAH PICTURE PLAYS CO.

By Abe S. Guckenheimer
President.

EARKEN, STATE RIGHTS BUYERS

Here and now is the Box Office Bonanza that crowds the Mint for oinage. PEERLESS, PERFECT, PARAGON of PHOTO-PLAYS. t the summit of her glory, seeking a new world to conquer, the IVINELY ROYAL, MAGNIFICENTLY ILLUSTRIOUS

SARAH BERNHARDT

Assembled her all-star company at the Theatre Bernhardt and with her sun-like genius ablaze played for us Dumas' soul shaking Emotional Drama

"CAMILLE"

Bernhardt has ennobled the Film and Raised the Photo-Play to the highest Realm of Art and placed it in competition on equal terms with the Living Stage of Stars.

HERE ARE

2 REELS
2,275 FEET

2,275 FEET. As stirring as gun-fire; the scenes burn into the imagination.

No other Pictures Like These in all the World.

So vivid, so packed with the passion of the soul revealed by that marvelous body in this Play of Plays.

State Rights Mean Fortunes

Another splendid associated Photo-Play—The greatest comedienne of France—

REJANE

rdou's superb and action-crowded Comedy
the Court of Napoleon

3 REELS
3,075 FEET

"SANS-GENE"

RIGHTS SELLING FAST FOR ALL SECTIONS OF NORTH AMERICA.

BSOLUTE COPYRIGHT ROTECTION—NATIONAL DVERTISING

THESE PHOTO PLAYS RUN TOGETHER TWO AND ONE-HALF HOURS

SPECIAL 4-COLOR PRINTING IN GREAT VARIETY—PERFECT PUBLICITY

RENCH-AMERICAN FILM CO.,

430 TIMES BUILDING
NEW YORK

Spanish Rule and after electing their own king, establish themselves in the town of Galera, Clare and her father among them.

The Spanish soldiers sack the town and Clare falls into the hands of the cruel Mendoza. Tuzani secretly manages to get into the Spanish camp, but in trying to rescue Clare, is himself captured. The hapless pair are brought before the Commanding General Juan of Austria, who, touched at hearing their story, graciously liberates them.

EDISON.

TONY'S OATH OF VENGEANCE (March 1).—Tony Carmetto, and his daughter Pasqualina, arrived in this country less than a year ago. He soon succeeded in obtaining work with a contractor named Nolan and established himself in a modest little home over which presided his pretty daughter. Pasqualina used to carry his lunch to him and in this way attracted the attention of Mr. Nolan. He followed her to her home and in order to make a favorable impression advanced Tony to gang boss. Nolan's visits during her father's absence became more and more frequent until he found that he had won the innocent girl's love. He at once proposed that she run away with him and be married. After some hesitation, Pasqualina agreed, and leaving a note to her father she went away with Nolan. Tony, upon returning from work that evening, purchased many pretty things with his first month's salary, intending to surprise his daughter; but his joy was soon turned to sorrow when, instead of Pasqualina, he found a note explaining her absence.

It was a long time before he heard from his loved one and then the message that came was like a blow, for Pasqualina wrote that she hadn't been married yet, but expected to be soon. Tony searched in vain for a trace of her, but one night, while brooding over his lost daughter, she returned. Broken in health and spirit she soon passed away. Tony swore that he would avenge his daughter's death and began his search. Nolan, he learned, had gone to Los Angeles. He tried to follow, but he needed more money so he bought a revolver and lantern and turned burglar, only to be caught in his first attempt.

The Rev. Watson captures him and, however, points to an item in the newspaper "Shocking automobile accident in Los Angeles. P. J. Nolan, of New York, instantly killed," and indicates that a higher power than Tony has brought retribution.

A COWBOY'S STRATAGEM (March 2).—Frank Fuller, a cowboy, is in love with Jessie, the daughter of John W. Scadds, newly from the East. He has declared his love and is accepted, but to ask Mr. and Mrs. Scadds for her hand is a task which he very much dreads. He at last musters up courage enough to ask her mother whom he finds most sympathetic and agreeable, but her father proves to be the stumbling block. He strongly disapproves and sternly rejects Fuller's suit, and later on refuses to recognize him at all.

This, however, does not prevent the young people from meeting frequently and planning how best to bring about their union without resorting to the usual elopement in such cases. At last they hit an idea and decide to put it into execution at once.

The scheme is to let an unknown cowboy sell or trade one of Fuller's horses to old Scadds and then Fuller's cowboys are to scour the country for the supposed stolen horse, and when they find Scadds in possession of it, accuse him of horse stealing and proceed to hang him to the nearest tree. At the psychological moment Fuller is to arrive and pretend to save Scadds from an awful fate. The plan works out and Scadds no longer objects to Fuller as a son-in-law, but welcomes his heroic rescuer into his hitherto impenetrable family circle.

THE JAM CLOSET (March 2).—Willie sees a chance to slip in the pantry and get a taste of the goodies. Kittie, his little sister, catches him, locks him in and goes to tell mama.

The cook comes in the kitchen with the iceman and during a little flirtation on their part, Willie lets a couple of jars drop. Then the maid is called, the iceman gets an axe and they are ready to break in the door when Kitty comes in with mama. She opens the door and out walks a very different looking young man from the one who entered.

Willie is put in the bath, clothes and all and is soon clean again.

LOST—THREE HOURS (March 5).—Bob and Betty would be quite happy if the boys, with Jack at their head, would let him alone. But their evenings at home are interrupted by invitations to smokers and other affairs in which Betty, of course, is not included, the result being that Bob comes home in the wee small hours and not always in the happiest frame of mind for Betty. Of course, he makes good resolutions and, of course, he breaks them, and finally one night, coming in at almost two o'clock, he answers Betty's query from upstairs as to the time by boldly announcing that it is only eleven o'clock. At that instant the cuckoo clock at his shoulder cuckoos twice and to bear out his statement he is obliged to imitate the cuckoo nine more times. Upstairs Betty has not been deceived by the imitation and decides to take him at his word. She accordingly sets the alarm clock back three hours.

In the morning while he is asleep, she gets up, sets his watch back and also the cuckoo clock. Consequently he comes down to breakfast shortly after eleven o'clock. He wonders why Betty is so cheerful, but she has a little plan of her own. He also wonders why the street car is so deserted at what he thinks is the rush hour of the morning. But when he arrives at the office he finds that there is a reason and the boss states the reason in very emphatic terms. Then it dawns upon Bob that Betty is the cause of his lateness and that she had simply taken him at his word as to the time of day. The idea makes him consider the situation rather seriously and results in a very complete and lasting cure, to their mutual satisfaction.

THE YARN OF THE "NANCY BELL" (March 6).—The story begins by the finding of an elderly naval man by a traveler, and the former's recital of the verse,

"Oh, I am a cook and a captain bold,
And the mate of the Nancy brig,
And a bo'sun tight, and a midshipmite,
And the crew of the captain's gig."

Upon the inquiry as to how he can be all three different people, his recital proceeds with the comic wreck of the good ship "Nancy Bell," after which the survivors jump overboard into the painted waves and make for the shore. The next situation indicates that

"For a month we'd neither wittles nor drink,
Still a-hungry we did feel,
So we drawed a lot, and, accordin' shot
The captain for our meal."

A large paper cannon dispatches the captain. And the succeeding scenes show the disappearance into the pot of the mate, the midshipmite, the bo'sun tight and the crew of the captain's gig. The effect of these scenes is ludcirous in the extreme and we are all prepared to laugh at the consternation shown in the face of the lone mariner when, after having made way with all his fellow seamen, a small ship appears on the horizon, fires a gun and supposedly rescues him from having to eat himself. As he finishes his tale of war we fade back to the original scene where the apparitions of his former shipmates appear and we can well believe with him that "I never larf, and I never smile,

And I never lark nor play,
But sit and croak, with a single joke."

THE HEIR APPARENT (March 8).—Clara Langham, an American girl, studying art in Europe, is out sketching one day when a young stranger approaches and warns her that she is trespassing upon the royal domains. The young man who calls himself Rudolph Kohler, is in reality Duke Rudolph, the heir apparent.

Duke Humbert, Rudolph's father, has been ill for some time and when the anniversary of the country freedom arrives, is unable to take his place at the head of the procession. It is therefore decided that Rudolph go in his place.

Clara has a seat in the grand stand and as the procession approaches she sees a man crouching beside her with a revolver in his hand. Fearing mischief, she watches him and as he springs forward to fire she grasps his arm and the shot goes wild. He is soon overpowered and as Clara is lifted to her feet she finds herself face to face with Rudolph and she realizes that it was her lover whom she saved from assassination.

After the parade, Rudolph hurries to her and begs her to become his wife. Owing to his station she refuses, but he assures her that he will overcome all obstacles, and so she consents.

But Rudolph finds that his father will not consent to the union and so he resigns all claim to his inheritance and decides to marry her at once. He instructs his comrade, Van Bulon, to take his sister and Clara to his own place where he will join them with a priest. They have hardly arrived when Von Bulon discovers a party of officers in a hilarious mood dismounting. He succeeds in hiding the girls in the next room just as the officers, led by Rudolph's cousin Michael, burst into the room. They find a glove which Clara has dropped and at once demand to see the woman. Von Bulon is dragged from the door and enters the room and is dragging the terrifi out, when Rudolph enters and, taking in tl tion at a glance, hurls Michael to the flo results in a challenge which Rudolph accep next morning he is seriously wounded Bulon is sent to inform his father. Duke relents when he hears of Rudolph's wound once goes to him. Here for the first time Clara and his impression of her is so that he decides that his son's choice has wise one and takes her into his arms.

NEW YORK POULTRY, PIGEON AN STOCK ASSOCIATION, Madison Square N. Y. (March 9).—In this film you will prize winners only, magnificent birds, every one of them, and in monetary value into thousands of dollars. They are all that they will show off to the best advant Uncle Hank, from away down in Virginia, come to the show, explains the different his three pretty nieces.

THE PATENT HOUSEKEEPER (March and Mrs. Johnson are afflicted with a serv is dense, awkward and slovenly. Mr. stands her as long as he can, but finally of the cook's unlucky days, she loses her the unfortunate Johnson family is launcl the high seas of housekeeping without the hand of the "kitchen pilot."

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, with the help only son, try their hands at cooking. Mr. breaks a few dishes, ruins a suit of cl himself and a dress for his wife, to say of the damage he does to the furniture son's apparel.

In a paper that they are using to keep tom of the dish pan from the table clo washing dishes, Mrs. Johnson's eye catche vertisement which reads, "Spriggs' Paten keeper. Housework made easy." She trie Mr. Johnson interested, but he says it is Mrs. Johnson has to leave the room a mo when she does Mr. Johnson, who does not dishwashing game, takes a sly look at tl tisement, so when his wife returns he tel has decided to let her send for a tria "Housekeeper." She does, and it proves derful success. Happiness is brought to the servant problem is solved.

PATHE.

PATHE'S WEEKLY, Reel No. 9—1912 (

Paris, France.—The River Seine is beg overflow the quays.

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.—The body of David Campista, Brazilian Minister to Co reaches his home city for burial.

Edinburgh, Scotland.—The Marathon Rac by Kolehmamen, of Finland.

Columbus, Ohio.—The Ohio Suffragettes convention which they hope will result i for Women" in their home State.

Pittsburg, Pa.—The United States B Mines conducts a test of explosives in the Experimental Mine, to demonstrate the of methods recommended by the Governm those now in use.

Newark, N. J.—President Taft, accomp his secretary, Charles Hilles, and Maj Butt, his military aide, takes lunch wit ernor Murphy, and later goes to East place a wreath on the Statue of Lincoln.

Bardtown, N. Y.—The old Carroll Hom destroyed by the National Guard, in mi fare, in which real projectiles and bullets

New York, N. Y.—A fire in Chrystie zero weather, leaves as a result a grotesq palace.

CHOLERA ON THE PLAINS (March 6) tler's family is stricken with cholera and stricken, continues to trade with the Indi Indians catch the dread disease and several the result that the Indians leave their pre site and take up their abode elsewhere meantime one of the Indian boys wanders comes upon the settlers in the last extre father and mother both about to die. I over the fate of their little girl, they gi the little Indian boy, who takes her ba tribe. The life story of the little girl forms a most interesting film.

BUSTER'S NIGHTMARE (March 7).—B to bed with his daddy after hearing a lot stories. In the middle of the night Bust the Indians are stealing his little siste pursues on a small mule. He finds tl

Essanay
THE FILM WITH THE INDIAN HEAD
Synopses of this Week's productions in this paper
INDISPUTABLE ORIGINATORS OF COWBOY FILM
WE CONTINUE TO OFFER EACH WEEK MR. G. M. ANDERSO
(POPULARLY KNOWN AS "BRONCHO BILLY") IN THRILLING STO OF EARLY DAYS IN WESTERN AMERICA, STAGED UNDER THE PER SUPERVISION OF MR. ANDERSON, ASSISTED BY A CAREFULLY TRAINED CON

Champion Subjects

always feature films

THE MARCH OF PROGRESS IN THE MONTH OF MARCH IS HEADED BY THE CHAMPION BANNER UNDER WHICH RIDE THE FOLLOWING

CHAMPION

sure-fire winners. Count and list them all.

1. "THE MANICURIST"

(Released, Monday March 4th.)

Only a manicurist—but every inch a lady does this girl prove herself, and the story shows how an aristocratic mother is brought to the realization of this fact.

2. "BLIND"

(Released, Wednesday March 6th.)

A sightless father is saved from ruin by his loving daughter and her true fiance, who "show up" the frauds perpetrated by a dishonest superintendent.

3. "THE FATAL GLASS"

(Released, Monday March 11th.)

A young man is enticed into a saloon and weakly submits to inducements to drink. He loses his position, is convicted of a crime which he did not commit and goes to prison. Years afterward the mystery is cleared.

4. "THE EDITOR"

(Released, Wednesday March 13th.)

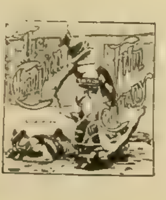
A powerful drama of the whirling vortex of politics from which a rising politician is eventually rescued by his sweetheart, who is an editor.

2 REELS COMING! 2 REELS

Kid Canfield Notorious Gambler

For Release of April 1st

Being an expose of the method resorted to by professional gamblers to win the money from the unwary. In two reels, posed for the Champion by Kid Canfield, a former prince of gamblers.



THE CHAMPION FILM COMPANY

MARK M. DINTENFASS, Mgr.

145 W. 45th Street
NEW YORK : : N. Y.

Ninety-Four Fail While Six Succeed!

ARE THE ANNUAL STATISTICS GIVEN BY BRADSTREET SHOWING THE NUMBER OF INCORPORATED COMPANIES WHICH SURVIVE ONE YEAR IN ILLINOIS.

Consider what tremendous strides THE AMERICAN has made —to the extreme front of the advance guard of Independent companies—in a trifle over one year! Not only was it one of the successful six but probably the most successful one of that six!

Excellent, indisputable testimony, we think, of the appreciation shown our efforts—of the steady growth, from month to month, that spells lasting and enduring success.

Attention to details—study of the markets, a capable and efficient organization in both office and factory are some of the vital elements of the successful business well exemplified in our history.

AMERICAN photography, manufacturing technique, pantomime, backed by the most beautiful of natural "settings"—out-of-door California—have all played a large part in the triumph of AMERICAN photo-plays.

COMING AMERICANS

"AN ASSISTED ELOPEMENT"

(Release Feb. 29. Comedy. Length, 1,000 Ft.)

Real farce of the Western kind. How Will, mechanic, made Bruce, attorney, assist him in marrying Bruce's own girl.

"FROM THE FOUR HUNDRED TO THE HERD"

(Western Society Drama. Release Monday, March 4.)

Concerning the Earl of Derbley and his wife and a young Western ranchman. A tale that will interest. This film combines some of the handsomest backgrounds ever seen in a motion picture film.

"THE BROKEN TIES"

(Release Thurs., Mar. 7. Length, 1,000 Ft. Western Drama.)

The old, old tale of the selfish stepmother handled from a new and novel angle. A story that will enlist the sympathy of your audience and appeal to every heart.

"AFTER SCHOOL"

(Western Drama. Release Mon., Mar. 11. Length, 1,000 Ft.)

Distinctly Western, bristling with action. This picture will touch a responsive cord in everyone. You should not miss it.

The American Film Mfg. Co.

BANK FLOOR, ASHLAND BLOCK, CHICAGO, ILL.

camp, stabs the sentry, rescues little sister and makes off with her. The Indians give chase, but he puts them all to flight with his toy pistol. Finally, sitting on the body of one of his dead victims, he begins to beat the victim's head upon a rock, when he awakens to find himself tightly clasping his dad's ears and beating the old man to a pulp. Dad promptly whales Buster and puts him back to sleep.

SMALL TRADES IN HAVANA (March 8).—A fine picture of an interesting side of Havana life.

HOW THE PLAY WAS ADVERTISED (March 9).—Miss Limelight thinks that her play is not a success—something must be done. Finally the press agent decides that a good thing would be to have Miss Limelight held up by a couple of thugs and robbed. This is arranged; the thugs being two actors out of a job. The actors unfortunately hold up the wrong woman and it leads to many side-splitting situations.

MELIES.

THE SHERIFF'S DAUGHTER (March 14).—Many times had the sheriff's son Jim been warned against gambling, but when in spite of these advices, he continues, and when he is discovered teaching the game to his little sister, Leone, he is disowned by a sad but stern parent.

Twelve years later finds Jim in the association of men and women of the lower class, a gambler by profession. He is enamored of and more or less under the influence of a Mexican coquette. As he sits with her, Leone, now grown to womanhood and beauty, rides up to the tavern and inquires the whereabouts of a doctor, her father having suffered an injury. Jim, not recognizing his sister, determines to possess this new beauty at any price. He outrides her to the doctor's, who is also the deputy sheriff, and assaulting him, dons his clothes, and hwen Leone arrives, poses as the doctor.

Scene from "The Sheriff's Daughter"—(Melies).

He accompanies her en route for the sick man's home, but does not go far before making his advances. Dismounting and forcing her into his arms, he imprints a kiss on her powerless lips, but is soon repelled by Leone's eyes. It is the first time the gambler has seen the eyes of a good woman since youth. His conscience is awakened.

Meanwhile the deputy sheriff and real doctor has regained his senses and with a posse gives chase and captures Jim. They take him to the sheriff's house, where at first the old man is inclined to take the law into his own hands. But when the gambler makes himself known as his own son and begs his sister's forgiveness, the sheriff leads him into the house and explains to the boys that he will decide on proper punishment later. Having gained his father's forgiveness, the wayward son cares not what punishment the boys might exact.

Mr. Almost Butt

SELIG.

THE SHRINKING RAWHIDE (March 4).—In the carefree days of California, "before the Gringoes came," the blood of caballero and senorita ran hot and the little god of love was forever on the rampage in that tempting field. Jealousies flared up with brilliant suddenness, back in the fandango times, and jilted lovers often took awful revenge on their rivals. To the early Spanish-Californians, intrigue was what made life worth living; and in photoplay, "The Shrinking Rawhide," the spirit of the time is most dramatically displayed. A pompous, middle-aged alcalde, or judge, seeks the hand of beautiful Mercedes, daughter of the rich Don Enrique; but Mercedes, of course, loves a younger and poorer gentleman, Juan by name.

But Mercedes, being somewhat of a coquette, does not let Juan know all at once how much she loves him; and her teasing manner at the brilliant fandango at Don Enrique's home, when she flirts outrageously with the stupid alcalde during the "Sombrero" dance, brings down a lot of trouble onto the heads of all concerned.

The alcalde, finally freed from his pleasant belief that Mercedes would marry him, concocts a terrible scheme for doing away with Juan. He bargains with the chief of a wild Indian tribe, with whom he has had some shady dealings in the past, to capture Juan as the latter rides to San Diego with a messags from the Padre at the mission; conduct him to the desert, and there subject him to the awful rawhide torture. When a man is staked down with rawhide thongs, and water is thrown on the rawhide, it gradually contracts in the heat of the sun until the victim is strangled. How Juan is saved from this horrible death by his sweetheart is one of the most thrilling scenes ever thrown on the screen.

THE ACE OF SPADES (March 5).—A couple in straits, lured by visions of undiscovered gold, load a wagon and cross the plains. One misfortune follows another and the story opens with one starving horse, one dead horse and an empty mess box. The woman,—womanlike, is the optimistic member of the family, and throughout the struggle, maintains a cheerful attitude. When they camp, for which seems the last time, their little girl wanders away, is missed and searched for. When "the Man" finds her, she is beside a running creek, playing with some pretty stones. One glimpse at the "pretty stones" is enough to convince the "Man" that at last his dreams are realized, and he has found gold. After the first hysteria, a realization of this condition dawns upon him. They have found gold but have no money and no food. So what's the use. The cheerful wife takes the reins and insists that he go with specimens of his find to the nearest camp and find a grub stake. He struggles across the desert, finds the camp, but is laughed at as a crazy man when he refuses to tell the location of the find, until he is assured of a stake. "The Gambler" is interested, takes him to his home, feeds him and makes a gambler's proposition. "Cut the cards. If I win, I'll give you $500 and the claim is mine; if I lose I'll grub-stake you and take a chance." In desperation the man agrees and loses. The "gambler" pays the $500 and leaves to inspect his bargain. He meets the wife who refuses to acknowledge his rights, but compels him to give her the same chance he gave her desperate husband. Agreeing, he loses, and not only relinquishes his right, but provides her and her baby with food, and stakes her husband.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF MAN (March 7).—Billy Young, an athletic young bank clerk in love with Marion Wendell the president's daughter, and his young friend Jack Skyes, while walking home from work one night, accidentally encounter an old panhandler on the street corner. Billy is about to give the old man a dime when he recognizes in him his old athletic instructor. Billy bids his friend goodnight and proceeds to a nearby restaurant where he proceeds to treat his old trainer. The restaurant is of a low character and in the poor neighborhood. While eating, Marion Wendell and her friend, Kate Sommers,—a mission worker, enter and distribute some tracts among the young girls who are drinking at the tables. The bouncer and waiter try to throw the "reformers" out into the street, but this is too much for Billy and old Reynolds. They make short work of the bouncer and waiter and safely escort the girls to the street, where they part.

The two restaurant ruffians follow Billy and his friend and on a dark side street overtake them and after the fracas Billy comes to in a hospital. The old trainer has been removed to a cheap hotel with a bullet wound in his leg. He writes Billy and explains that unless he can get to a dry climate he will die. Billy has just had a call from Marion and her father and the doctor. They tell him he can leave the hospital and he immediately goes to see old Reynolds. He sees what urgent need the old trainer has for money and is heart-broken when he realizes his own penniless state. He cheers up his friend, however, with promises of assistance. While walking home that night his attention is arrested by a large lithograph in front of a coliseum offering five hundred dollars to anyone who will throw the wrestler Terrible Teddy. Billy goes inside, acepts the challenge and after an exciting contest, wins the prize. Needless to say he wins also the girl and his old trainer's gratitude.

HYPNOTIZED (March 8).—Prof. Hardin, a traveling exponent of hypnotism, visits Duncansville in an effort to separate some of the natives from their hard earned. Realizing the power of the press in a small town, the professor calls on the editor of the "Weekly Bugle," and leaves a pair of choice front row seats for his show. The editor takes his stenographer and the exhibition proves to be extremely interesting and very funny. When the professor calls for two subjects to be hypnotized the editor and his stenographer respond to the call. With much formality the long-haired professor places the girl into a forty-eight-hour trance and then tells the editor that he is the world's champion prize fighter. In the hypnotic realization of his new title the editor starts in at once to live up to it. He breaks up the show in a jiffy and seeks the street where he demonstrates his wonderful physical abilities to many different pedestrians. When, however, he tries to show off at the asylum, the guards believe him to be insane and it is the padded cell for yours truly, the editor. Eventually he is returned to his own character and everything is righted.

C. G. P. C.

SIX LITTLE DRUMMERS (March 5).—Six little drummers in the French Revolutionary army go on a foraging expedition. They are found out, court martialed and sentenced to death. While they face the guns of the firing squad, the woman who has complained against them appears and begs for their lives, which is granted on condition that they swear on the flag to defend it to their death.

STARFISH, SEA URCHINS AND SCALLOPS (March 7).—An interesting scientific picture of deep sea life.

AN EPISODE OF THE HUNDRED YEARS WAR (March 8).—This is the story of the siege of ten months of a famous old town in France. The natives are starving and finally the governor sends a messenger to the king of France urging him to save them from their peril. This the king agrees to do, but he and his army are routed, and the city is ultimately surrendered to the English.

Among the Exhibitors.

Lancaster, Pa.—A new theater devoted to high-class shows in the winter and moving pictures in Summer will be built by William Snyder. Building will be commenced in April, and plans are nearly finished for the erection of it. It will be located on West King Street. Mr. Snyder will try to run the syndicate shows if possible. The theater will seat between 2,700 and 3,000. A new moving picture theater is being built in the Seventh Ward opposite Kuhn's Theater, and will be devoted to moving pictures and illustrated songs.

Vicksburg, Miss.—Architect M. J. Donovan has closed a contract for Joseph Pearce & Son with Curphey & Mundy for remodeling the present Lyric Theater.

Marquette, Mich.—Wonderland, the new motion picture and novelty show in McDonald's Opera House, managed by L. J. Genett, has opened.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Harry Davis, who controls a number of vaudeville and moving picture theaters in Pennsylvania, has had plans prepared for a large vaudeville moving picture theater to be built in close proximity to Fifty-second and Market Streets.

Frazee, Minn.—M. Thynd will have plans prepared for the erection of a moving picture theater here.

Nashville, Tenn.—A pretty photoplay theater has opened which possesses a seating capacity of 1,500. It is known to its newly acquainted patrons as the Princess, and is under the management of W P. Ready, who has had many years' experience in the moving picture exhibiting game.

Essanay
THE FILM WITH THE INDIAN HEAD
Synopses of this Week's productions in this paper
INDISPUTABLE ORIGINATORS OF COWBOY FILMS.
WE CONTINUE TO OFFER EACH WEEK MR. G. M. ANDERSON, (POPULARLY KNOWN AS "BRONCHO BILLY") IN THRILLING STORIES OF EARLY DAYS IN WESTERN AMERICA, STAGED UNDER THE PERSONAL SUPERVISION OF MR. ANDERSON, ASSISTED BY A CAREFULLY TRAINED COMPANY

This Is YOUR OPPORTUNITY

Book an attraction that assures a constant stream of profits—that brings back the same crowd day after day and night after night.

The most important development in Photography since the invention of Motion Pictures. Only Underwood & Underwood, the news photographers, who cover every important event in the world with a camera, could make such a service possible.

Everyone is interested in the sensational events that appear in the daily papers. Flash these events on your screen—your patrons want them—the crowds follow them.

4 slides daily--24 per week at $12.00 per week
2 " " --12 " " " 6.50 " "

Two colored posters furnished free.

Three current event photos, 14x17 in., for lobby display, with printed news titles, at $5.00 per week.

Wire, Write or Phone for monthly contracts. Terms weekly, cash in advance

HUNTON-FELL-ELLIOTT, Inc., 1328 Broadway, NEW YORK

Dissolving Effect with Single Stereopticon

Every Exhibitor and Operator should have a

Reid's Diffuser

Can be used with any machine. Prepaid for $2.00
Reid's Diffuser Co., 26 Waverly Ct., Chicago, Ill.

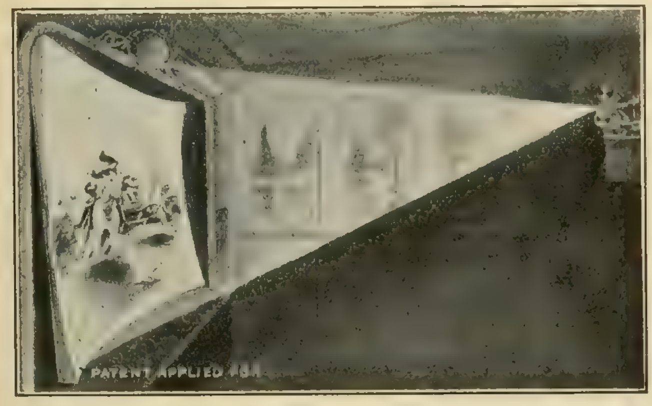
When Your Picture Machine Needs Repairing

Why don't you send it to us?

We have the best equipped machine shop in the country and can repair any make of machine. Write us and get acquainted.

We buy second hand machines.

GEO. M. HOKE SUPPLY CO., 176 N. State St., Bet. Lake & Randolph Chicago, Ill.



WE ARE THROUGH

IT IS YOUR NEXT MOVE

We have told you all we have to say about

WHAT WE CAN DO

to assist you with your screen troubles with our

"PERFECTION CONCAVE SCREEN"

From now on, we will confine our remarks to

WHAT WE HAVE DONE FOR OTHERS and let you judge that what we have done for them, we would be able to do for you.

Detailed information always yours for the asking

INVENTORS SPECIALTY MFG. CO., 401 Ashland Block, CHICAGO

Independent Film Stories

RELIANCE.

BEDELIA AND THE SUFFRAGETTE (Feb. 28).—Bedelia gets a position with the Suffragette family and finds to her astonishment that the men of the family do the housework, while the mistress goes to the office and earns the daily bread. She soon has the man of the house and his sons at her mercy while the daughters endeavor to come to their rescue and are in turn treated to the hard hand of the law which is laid down by the autocratic kitchen queen. Matters finally come to such a state of turmoil that the lady of the house is 'phoned to come home. She finds a riot in progress and jumping into the fray proves herself such a militant suffragette that Bedelia does not even stop to shut the door. The now happy and contented family is left undisturbed.

The DUEL (March 2).—Jackson, a mountain moonshine distiller, and Douglas, a rising young country lawyer, are both in love with June Ross. June loves Jackson, who is very bashful. Douglas meets June and his love making sweeps her off her feet. Douglas wins her consent. In the meantime Jackson has been wrestling with himself and has found the proper courage and returns. He finds Douglas there and that he has been superceded. June interferes with their quarrel, but Jackson at his cabin broods over it and taking down his father's old dueling pistols, goes to Douglas' home. He confronts Douglas and they cut for first shot. Douglas wins but misses and Jackson, instead of taking his shot gets Douglas to agree to let him take his shot anywhere and any time he may see fit. Douglas agrees and they part.

Douglas and June elope and Jackson hears no more of them until years later he sees the announcement that Douglas has been elected governor and means to wipe out the moonshine industry. Jackson, believing that the proper time is at hand, takes his pistols again and seeks Douglas out. June and her little baby girl have just left Douglas at work alone in the study as Jackson enters. Douglas, realizing what Jackson's presence means, takes his stand by the wall and tells Jackson to hasten. Jackson offers him another chance and on the draw Douglas wins again. This time Douglas deliberately shoots above Jackson's head. June enters at the shot and is gently but firmly sent from the room. No one notices that the little girl has slipped in and is back on the chair. Douglas again takes his place as Jackson is about to shoot the little girl comes in the line of fire and Jackson realizes just what a crime he was about to commit. Gathering the child in his arms he passes her to him and then sends her out. Going over to Douglas he places the pistols back in their case and stretches out his hand to his enemy. The feud is over and he exits, leaving the governor to his duty and family.

AMERICAN.

AN ASSISTED ELOPEMENT (Feb. 29).—Bessie Smith loved Jack Collins, a young machinist, but because Bert Bruce, a rising young attorney, showed his attentions, her mother frowned on Jack and urged Bessie to welcome Bruce's attentions. Then Jack secured a license, managed to see Bessie and perfected plans for elopement.

Jack received a call to repair a machine in the outskirts of a neighboring town. It so happens that in this village an epidemic of burglaries has taken place. When Jack peddled into La Mesa on his bicycle the constable saw the kit of tools he carried and placed him in jail. In despair it suddenly occurred to Jack that his rival, Bert Bruce, could identify him and he accordingly induced the constable to ride over to the attorney's office and ask him to come and identify him.

When Bert heard that it was his rival Jack, in such a predicament he swore he did not know him. Meanwhile Bessie was waiting for Jack to come and keep his appointment while the constable returning to the jail, upbraided Jack for sending him on a fool's errand.

Bruce then got out his automobile and called on Bessie and her mother, asking them to go for a ride. Mrs. Smith was delighted, but Bessie, waiting for Jack to elope with her, refused to go along. But her mother was insistent and poor Bessie was forced to go, much against her will. Riding through the streets of La Mesa Bruce speeded up his car beyond the limit and took no notice of the constable, who arrested them and brought them to the same courtroom as Jack was in. Of course Bessie promptly set his honor right as to Jack's innocence. Jack, striking while the iron was hot, called on his honor to immediately marry him and Bessie, holding the unwilling rival for witness.

FROM THE FOUR HUNDRED TO THE HERD (March 4).—Jack Stevens loves Clarice Weybrook and hopes some day to make her his wife. At a week-end party they meet the Count Derbley, who is possessed of fifty million dollars and a title.

Clarice is fond of teasing her lover, and torments him by telling him that perhaps she will become the Countess Derbley. The mother seeks her daughter, and, finding her with Jack, deliberately snubs him and carries her away. Clarice finally marries the count, and Jack goes West and obtains a position as foreman on the count's ranch. Suddenly a message informs the count that he has been ruined through a mistaken investment. He goes West and sells his ranch to the foreman, Jack Stevens. On his way home he expires of heart failure. His wife and mother-in-law are apprised of his death and they journey to the ranch only to find that they are left penniless, the count having sold it to Jack. Difficulties are eventually settled by the reconciliation of Jack and Clarice in matrimony.

LUX.

BILL AND THE LIONS (March 1).—In search of something toothsome, two hungry lions escape and enter the house of Billy Lux. He endeavors to escape them, but they are hungry. Even when he hides in a suit of armour the lions still endeavor to get at him. This constitutes the first occasion upon record upon which lions have shown partiality for "tinned" meat. They are prevented from "Getting the distinguished William in their midst" by the arrival of their keeper.

THE SKIVVY'S GHOST (March 1).—Mr. and Mrs. Pottle lead a very quiet life until they are disturbed by rumors of ghosts. They have horrible dreams at night that send them about in fear and trembling throughout the day. One night they go out to dine with some friends. This proves a good opportunity for Polly, their maid of all work, to receive her lover, who is a trooper in the Horse Marines. The gallant soldier feels a cold shiver run down his back as footsteps are heard upon the stairs, and Polly's master and mistress came home unexpectedly. Polly hastily hides her lover by placing a cover of an armchair over him. Into this armchair Mrs. Pottle serenely pops as soon as she enters the room. The gallant soldier beneath the cover takes the old lady in his arms and rushes off with her. This dreaded confirmation of their grave suspicions leaves no room in the minds of Mr. Pottle and his wife to doubt that they are victims of some supernatural visitor. The soldier finally gets away in safety, but not until he has deposited his burden in a safe place and experienced many amusing adventures.

THANHOUSER.

EXTRAVAGANCE (March 5).—A prosperous merchant in a village thought his child was the most wonderful girl in the world. She tired of the monotony of country life, and wanted to go to a fashionable city finishing school. He sent her. She found that she needed more money for dress and amusement. He gave it to her, and felt repaid when she came back home, a perfect type of a city girl.

The old house would not do for her, so her father built a mansion. In her magnificent new home, the girl gave a party. Some of the guests were her old neighbors, others her new city friends. They decidedly did not mix and the village folk felt put out.

After the guests had departed the foolish father reviewed his financial condition. Hopeless bankruptcy confronted him. His only asset was a life insurance policy for a large amount, payable at his death.

The girl had a suitor, a village youth, and her childish sweetheart, whom she had neglected and snubbed. This young man reached the house in time to prevent a tragedy. The broken-hearted old man, unnerved, told of his troubles, and the other promptly offered to pay the debts, although it would practically leave him penniless.

This act of unselfish generosity is witnessed by the girl. She doffs her fine gowns, arrays herself in the simple garments she had once despised, and decides to be "the real head of the firm." Incidentally she wins the love of a true man, and her life is peaceful, happy and free from extravagance.

HIS GREAT UNCLE'S SPIRIT (March 8).—A young sleight-of-hand performer found that he was also 'sleight" of audience. Business was very bad, although the show was good and his troubles came to a climax in a country town when the village magnate seized his props and scenery for debt.

The performer begged for a chance to make good, telling of the big advance sales of other towns, but the magnate was obdurate. He wanted his pound of flesh and it was a matter of indifference to him whether any blood came with it or not.

With plenty of time on his hands, the young magician's thoughts naturally turned to revenge. He knew the reputation of his enemy, miserly and grasping, a man who could never keep a clerk because he paid very little, so the magician decided to take an office position with him.

He made a hit with the magnate because he only wanted a dollar a week and his board, and was engaged. Thus he was able to prepare for his tricks without fear of detection. He found that his employer was as bad as he had been painted and his heart was steeled against him.

Soon the magnate found that new and novel interests had entered into his life. Mysterious messages came to him through the air that the spirit of his great uncle was displeased with him. Then the spirit began to get really busy. He took away the magnate's gold, his stocks, bonds, and securities, even food and drink was denied to him.

It took some time for the miser to realize that the spirit meant business, and that he insisted upon fair business dealings and generosity. To please his great uncle the magnate completely reformed, and was afraid ever to go wrong again, because he believed it would mean another visitation.

Through the liberality of his unsuspecting employer, the magician was enabled to get back to Broadway, and as he told many friends he met there, "This was one season where I didn't mind being closed up by the sheriff."

ECLAIR.

ALCOHOL (March 10).—Morin, an honest workingman, is addicted to liquor. Truly, his wife is the one who suffers. The latter has brought up their son Marcel, who very soon becomes an able engineer. His employer takes an interest in him, and gradually he advances himself to a responsible position in the manufacturing plant where he is employed.

While testing out a new machine, Marcel Morin is congratulated by all the engineers and Suzanne, the employer's daughter, heartily congratulates him. Suzanne is fond of the young man, but her father does not favor a possible alliance between the two. To end their love affair, he decides to send the young man away.

After a touching farewell between the young lovers, Marcel leaves for Chili, his father and mother accompanying him to the railroad station. On their way home, both very depressed, the elder Morin does not hesitate to drown his sorrows at the bar, while his good wife waits without. In an altercation over a game of cards, he is again seized by one of his fits and is sent to his home in an ambulance, where he slowly recovers after careful nursing. But gradually the old workingman falls back into his bad habits.

In the meantime, the younger Morin has completed his task in Chili, and returns home after a lapse of three years. Marcel finally induces Suzanne's father to consent to their marriage. The very night of the nuptials, the old Morin is struck with an attack of apoplexy and is taken home. Owing to the good care given him, the wretched creature is saved from death, but is left a helpless paralytic. Nothing has yet intervened to mar the happiness of Marcel and his bride. But, alas! The terrible hereditary influence commences its work of destruction in the mind of Marcel. He is frequently seized with sudden attacks of anger without any reason. In his hallucinations he sees his young wife in the arms of another and is seized with jealous foreboding. One day, while a prey to these thoughts, he hurries home and finds his wife conversing quite innocently with his close

Essanay
THE FILM WITH THE INDIAN HEAD
Synopses of this Week's productions in this paper
INDISPUTABLE ORIGINATORS OF COWBOY FILMS.
WE CONTINUE TO OFFER EACH WEEK MR. G. M. ANDERSON,
(POPULARLY KNOWN AS "BRONCHO BILLY") IN THRILLING STORIES
OF EARLY DAYS IN WESTERN AMERICA, STAGED UNDER THE PERSONAL
SUPERVISION OF MR. ANDERSON, ASSISTED BY A CAREFULLY TRAINED COMPANY

WATCH THIS SPACE
FOR FUTURE
FEATURE
FILMS

OUR NEWEST IMPORTATIONS

THE FOUR DAREDEVILS
3000 FEET (8 SHEET POSTERS)

TRISTAN AND ISOLDE
2 REELS (COLORED)

NOTRE DAME DE PARIS
3 REELS (COLORED) (3 AND 12 SHEET POSTERS)

THE SIEGE OF CALAIS
2 REELS (COLORED) (3 AND 12 SHEET POSTERS)

SINS OF LOVE
3 REELS (EXTRAORDINARY POSTERS)

A ROMANCE OF THE MEXICAN REVOLUTION
4 REELS (POSTERS AND PHOTOGRAPHS)

and many others

Feature Film Co.
108 E. 12th St., New York
We handle no Dupes

HEATRE SEATING—Send for Moving cture Chair Cat. "V4," Upholstered Chair t. "V5."
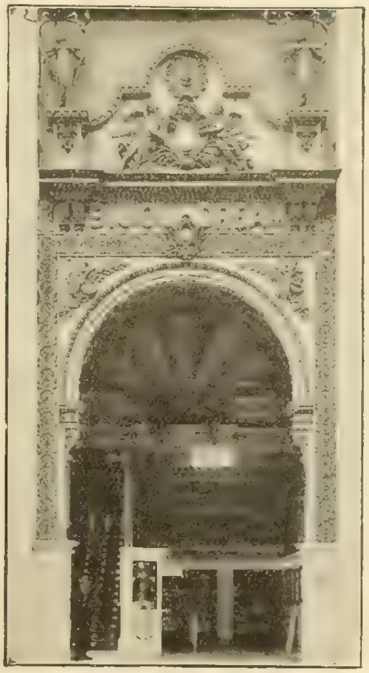
AMERICAN SEATING COMPANY
icago New York Boston Philadelphia

CREAM!!!

Each customer of the Laemmle Film Service is not only the very best in his territory but is doing the best business. We have a large share of the cream, but we can take care of even more of the cream. When you're a customer of any Laemmle office, you never have anything to apologize for, to your patrons or anyone else! Write, wire or call.

Carl Laemmle, President
The Laemmle Film Service
New Number:
204 West Lake St., Chicago, Ill.
Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1517 Farnam St., Omaha, Neb.
421 Walnut St., Des Moines, Iowa
1110 Wyandotte St., Kansas City, Mo.

The BIGGEST and BEST film renter in the World



Ornamental Theatres

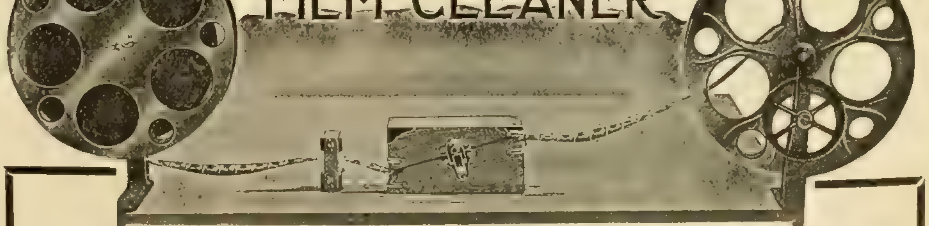
PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
2549 Archer Avenue, :: CHICAGO, ILL.

MORTIMER FILM CLEANER



Makes Dirty Films Clean and Bright

The only dry cleaning process—it cleans while film is being re-wound. Positively prevents "rain" and spots. Simple, effective and guaranteed not to injure the film. Cost of operation but one cent per film. No progressive theater or exchange can afford to be without it.

WHAT SOME OF OUR CUSTOMERS SAY

"Worth their weight in gold." Miles Bros, Los Angeles.
"Improves the films at the least 75%." Richard Dabb, Shenandoah, Pa.
"We like the cleaners very much." Warioto Film Co., Nashville, Tenn.
"Well worth the money to any motion picture house." Hyman & Hirsch, Chicago.
"It does excellent work." W. E. Greene Film Exch., Boston, Mass.

If your exchange cannot supply you, send orders direct to him. An insane desire to kill takes possession of him and without hesitation, he takes out his revolver and shoots Suzanne, who lingers for weeks at the very door of death while Marcel languishes in prison awaiting the day of his trial.
MORTIMER FILM CLEANER CO. 704 Fidelity Bldg., Portland, Maine

Meanwhile Marcel's mother has engaged an attorney to defend her boy. The day of the trial arrives. Suzanne, having recovered, goes to court to implore the pardon of her unfortunate husband whom she still loves.

Seated in the prisoner's box, the accused is grief stricken and sobs aloud while his lawyer points out the sins of the father, and pleads for the liberty of his unfortunate client.

The jury retires for a debate. Acquittal seems certain! but, the strain has been to much for the weakened Marcel who, crushed by his anguish, and between the arms of his despairing wife and heart-broken mother, dies an innocent victim to the fatal passion of his father, who stupidly looks on and grins.

(American make.)

A CHILD'S PLEA (March 5).—Two young Kentucky mountaineers are in love with Virginia Dare. One Sunday morning she meets them and allows Bob to accompany her home, which arouses Jim's jealousy, and he challenges the other to fight. They meet the next day, and Jim is soundly thrashed. A mutual friend compels them to make up. Some days later they go to the mountains on a hunting trip. That night while examining a new gun, Bob accidentally kills Leonard. Jim sees an opportunity to rid himself of Bob and win Virginia. He tells Bob "if he does not leave Kentucky never to return, he will swear that Bob murdered Leonard in cold blood." Bob flies, making his way to New York, where he later marries. Jim marries Virginia and becomes a famous lawyer and moves to New York where he prospers. Bob has a hard struggle for existence. They meet, quite by accident. Jim denounces Bob to the police as a man wanted for murder and he is sent back to Kentucky for trial. He suffers deeply of remorse for his action later. One day at school Bob's boy meets Jim's child. The boy tells her of his father's being taken away. The little girl sympathizes with him and takes him to her home to seek aid from Jim. When Jim sees the boy he instantly sees Bob's face in that of the boy, and confesses to Virginia. She is horror-stricken, and instantly declares she will go to Kentucky and tell all. Bob is on trial for his life when Virginia, accompanied by her daughter and Bob's wife and boy rush in. Virginia tells her story. Just when all hope seems gone, Jim rushes in and confesses that he lied. Bob is acquitted. Virginia forgives Jim, and the two families are reunited.

NO WEDDING BELLS FOR ME (March 7).—A rip-roaring farce having to do with a spinster who must marry before a certain date in order to receive an inheritance from her uncle's fortune. How she contrives to meet all the requirements of the law and the most trying moments innocent persons endured on account of her efforts add greatly to the spirit of innocent fun.

SOLAX.

SEALED LIPS (March 6).—Father Hartley Steele, who is a Catholic preacher, is accused of murder committed by one of his parishioners. The murderer, Jake Smith, a poor laborer, tries to cover up his crime with the priest's cassock. The good Mrs. Smith, who is horrified and appalled at her husband's crime, unable to still her conscience or reconcile herself with her God, goes to the minister to confess. Her confession lightens the weight from her heart and mind. It gives her at last the repose her turbulent mind needs.

The priest is soon accused of the crime. His own cassock is the strongest evidence against him. He is tried and convicted. Although he knows who the real murderer is, his lips are sealed. With angelic sweetness and fortutude he endures the jeers and insults of the mob that is only too ready to assail the sincerity of the church. Without rancor he is willing to go to his execution, but Heaven intervenes at the last!

THE ANIMATED BATHTUB (March 8).—Billy Quirk is an eccentric inventor who muddles up his existence with thoughts of an automatic arrangement which could send a bathtub to any part of a house. Billy writes to his corpulent uncle and skeptical friends to come and view the marvel of his creation.

The uncle comes and is invited by his inventive nephew to take a bath in the marvelous tub. The uncle consents. When the switch is turned on the bathtub becomes fractiously active. The uncle loses his control and before he knows it he is carried to every part of the house, breaking furniture and scaring visitors out of their wits. Billy makes a frantic effort to help his unwary uncle, and in his attempt he lands headlong with clothes on and all into the bathtub full of water.

POWERS.

THE HONOR OF A PUGILIST (March 5).—Tim Carver, a rising young ring aspirant, who has been trying to get a fight with Stug Dunlap, the middle-weight champion, receives a letter from Dunlap's manager informing him that if he will post a forfeit of one thousand dollars by noon of that day Dunlap will meet him.

Tim has not the money and neither his trainer nor himself know where to raise it, until Tim recollects a prominent club man, a Mr. Wall, who once offered to help him. Going to Mr. Wall's hotel, he explains matters to him and the clubman agrees to put up the money. The articles are signed for the fight and Tim resumes his training. One day while in Mr. Wall's hotel, Tim renders a great service to a young society girl and he afterwards escorts her to her home. The acquaintance thus formed soon ripens into love and Tim proposes to her and is accepted.

The day of the fight, the girl and her mother are looking over a newspaper and there see Tim's picture with a notice of the fight. This is the first intimation they have received regarding Tim's occupation and both of them are horrified. Tim calling shortly afterwards, is told that the engagement between them is over and is handed his ring. He pleads with the girl to reconsider her decision, but she tells him, that if he fights again, she will never marry him. Tim is thus placed between two fires; if he goes on with the fight, he loses his fiancee; if he gives up the fight, he causes his backer, Mr. Wall, to lose his thousand dollars. He feels in honor bound to keep faith with his backer, so after a brief mental struggle, he resigns all hope of ever marrying the girl. The fight comes off and Tim is declared the new middle-weight champion. The girl, however she might object to Tim's profession, is, at least, intensely interested in his personal welfare and follows the fight by means of a ticker and duly faints at its conclusion.

A few days later Tim calls on her and convincing her that he has given up the prize ring forever, finally persuades her to forgive him and allow him to again place his ring upon her finger.

HIS DAUGHTER'S LOYALTY (March 9).—After years of ceaseless toil upon his electrical contrivance, the old inventor, Thomas Marvin, is unable to make it run properly and is forced to give up in weariness and despair. It is then that his daughter Jane, who has kept closely in touch with her father's work, discovers the cause of the difficulty and starts the machine running. Joyfully bringing her father to witness the triumph of his work, both are horrified to discover that he has gone blind. In consequence of his affiction Jane is now forced to take up the battle of life for them both.

Jane goes first to the office of J. F. Ray, an electrical engineer and promoter, whom she interests in her father's invention. Besides the interest which he takes in the machine, Ray is filled with the greatest admiration for Jane, personally, and through his assistance medical aid is provided for her father. The specialist after examining Marvin's eyes, states that there is hope of recovering his eyesight but that any sudden shock will be likely to kill him.

Ray also places the invention before a large electrical company, who agree to give their answer, regarding its manufacture, in three weeks. The three weeks elapse and Jane not hearing from Ray, and believing he has forgotten her, consults another promoter named Gray. This man inspects the machine and at once realizes its wonderful merit. He, however, has no intention of paying for it and tells Jane and her father that it is absolutely useless and leaves them heart-broken. He then plans to steal the idea for his own benefit and returns later on and slips into the house unobserved. Jane finally hears him and although realizing the purpose of his visit, and being overcome with fear, bravely represses her desire to call for assistance, knowing that a shock of this nature may cause her father to drop dead. Marvin, however, hears the noise, also, and entering the room, impulsively tears the bandage from his eyes and discovers that he has regained his eyesight. Old as he is, he fearlessly grapples with the villain and a desperate struggle ensues.

At this juncture, Ray, who has closed the deal with the electrical company, arrives with the necessary papers for Marvin's signature. He, of course, joins in the struggle and Gray is overpowered and ejected. Then all ends happily.

REX.

THE FINAL PARDON (Feb. 29).—He loved her. When the child came, she forgot the tender tie that bound her to the man and thought only of the little innocent atom and the forgotten duty she owed it. Timidly she asked him to right the wrong. He listened to the whispered pleading, but his masculinity could not understand—so he refused. Then it was that the woman forgot she was a human mother; her soul wandered back to primeval ages, her heart was conquered and controlled by primeval forces, and her nature became animal. The animal mother kills to protect her young—and so the mother killed the man who denied his child parentage.

The judge appointed a lawyer to defend her, and the battle for a human soul was fought. In ringing terms the prosecutor demanded her life as forfeit for the life she had taken and the jury listened to the logic of the law. The attorney for the defense spoke of the little life that had created the sin and the jury listened to a plea of humanity and maternity and heard the silent voice of right.

In summing up the woman's lawyer consulted his watch. There in the watch was a portrait of the father of her child and the creator of her misery, the man whom she had loved and fo she had suffered and sorrowed, the man w but a man. The woman glanced at it—and

When she regained consciousness and that the jury had decided not to murder t to vindicate one, she went to the advocate sorrowful justice, and confessed she had it was his son she had killed. The attorn now the judge—the thirteenth juror. But second defense she had another and a more attorney, the new-born grain of innocenc babe offered its mute evidence, made its sile and obtained a second acquittal. The fa his son took the mother of his son's child arms, and the final pardon was granted.

THROUGH FLAMING GATES (March 3).—
Peeved and piqued, she sat in fretful moo the fireplace. Perhaps in the fleeting p of the flame she saw the lights and sights ball room. She chided herself for having a man who was wedded to his professiona.
Of course, she admitted to herself, the hos quired her husband's duties.

The brilliance of the ball room becko boisterous invitation to her yielding though put the baby girl to sleep, and went to alone. The lights were bright, the peop merry and she was happy. But home record was writing itself on the walls, w mother's negligence in writhing flames.
in the hearth, left to its own mischievo sponsibility, had set the house ablaze. Th had penetrated the room in which the bab and the tot had waked and walked into the room. It was then that some psychic transmitted a message to the mother, and gayety of the ball room her mind recogn portent. But her fears were fought with and banter, and finally conquered.

The child was rescued by firemen and br
the hospital where its father was surgeo again, in the ball room, the persistent communicated its ominous import to the mind. She desided to return home. She the destructions, called vainly for her ch surmised it had perished in the flames of fishness. And amid the ruins of regret, h found oblivion. The child stretched forth to its unknowing mother, the child-voice cal
the cry pierced the wreck of the slumber and the light came to her mind. The fa tered to see the child in the penitent arms, and he took both little women to hi while the flame of love consumed the memor woman's dereliction.

CHAMPION.

THE MANICURIST (March 4).—Jack is a debonair young fellow, living with his who is a wealthy widow. Jack is a f follow the mother, an aristocrat, has ideas as to Jack's future. Jack calls upon curist. It was a case of love at first sig the fullest reciprocal feeling between them.

The manicurist receives a 'phone call lady, and it happens that the lady is mother. Jack is very much surprised to c his mother's room and there find the gir heart working over her fingers. His surpri manifest that the mother perceives the things and immediately takes him to task has been smoking and in the excitement occasion has flung his lighted cigarette f lips; it proves his salvation, for, just as the reaches a high state of indignation after gone out in a fit of deep dejection, a burst shoots forth from the lace curtains where cigarette had fallen.

At this juncture the mother faints with citement of the occasion, but the manicu had not yet departed, comes upon the sc her timely coming is instrumental in sav old lady's life. There is no need to add gratitude of the mother found expression over her opposition, and thus came happ Jack.

BLIND (March 6).—Henry Marshall
Stanley are business rivals. Stanley and M daughter, Helen, are in love, but Mr. won't tolerate the match, because Stanley h tically ruined him by his business com
However, Mr. Marshall has great faith i his superintendent, who is unsuccessful in for Helen's hand.

Helen is sent away to an expensive girl but her father (unknown to her) is forced gage his factory to meet the expense. A departure, her father becomes totally bl keeps the ill news from his daughter.

Things go from bad to worse with Mr.
until he is practically on the verge of ban

Mr. Almost Butt

MR. EXHIBITOR!

EVERYBODY IS DOING IT! WHAT?

Increasing their order for the PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE. How about you? Are you selling the magazine in your theatre? If not why not send your name and address to

PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE

Devoted to stories of Independent made pictures and profusely illustrated. We prepay it to you. Write to-day and we will send you full particulars.

PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE

Suite 401-402 600-630 So. Dearborn Street CHICAGO, ILLINOIS
FRANK A LEAR, General Manager

YOU WILL DO THE SAME THING OVER

Mlle. Camilla Dalberg

will undertake the most exacting roles in Comedy or Drama.

Past record in Europe and America a series of successes

American Directors will please address

Mlle. Camilla Dalberg,
c/o Moving Picture World

It's the Picture On the Screen that Counts

The thing that attracts the crowds to your show and that brings them back again and again is how the picture looks on the screen. And when you use the

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lens

your films are shown to the very best advantage—bright, clear, sharply defined and with even diffusion of light to the very edge of the picture. The Bausch & Lomb Projection Lens is the last word in lens perfection—the best moving picture lens that has ever been produced. That's the kind of lens you want—get one.

Write for special Projection Lens Booklet 62 D.

Our name, backed by [illegible] half a century of experience is on all our products — lenses, microscopes, field glasses, projection apparatus, engineering and other scientific instruments.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.

NEW YORK WASHINGTON CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO
LONDON ROCHESTER, N.Y. FRANKFORT

FILMS FOR RENT

Lowest prices for A-1 Service.
Are you using ASCO Service?
If not, advise us of your wants today.

Our Machine and Supply Department growing larger every day. Do you need Repair Parts? If so, let this department show you their promptness and reliability. Address, Dept. A.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY,
107 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

ILG ELECTRIC VENTILATING COMPANY

Manufacturers of Ventilating Apparatus and Experts in Theatre Ventilation

160 Whiting Street :: Chicago

LECTURES ON SPECIAL FILMS

Prepared by W. STEPHEN BUSH

EACH $1.00 PER COPY POSTAGE PAID

How to Put On the Passion Play (SECOND EDITION
FOR PATHE FRERES WORLD-RENOWNED PRODUCTION

How to Put On The Crusaders, or Jerusalem Delivered
FOR WORLD'S BEST FILM CO., FEATURE FILM (Copyright 1911)

Key and Complete Lecture for Dante's Inferno
FOR MILANO FILM CO., (Italy) FIVE REEL PRODUCTION

ORDER NOW Only a limited edition of each $1.00 PER COPY

COPYRIGHTED AND FOR SALE ONLY BY

MOVING PICTURE WORLD, Box 226, Madison Square P. O., New York City

[illegible] [illegible] comes to the stage where he can't pay his workmen. Helen meanwhile has written Stanley [illegible] he is coming home on a vacation, but is [illegible] secret from her father to surprise him.

Upon her arrival she finds her father blind and the workmen on strike. To avoid serious trouble she (unknown to her father) hunts up Stanley and tells him conditions. For love of her, Stanley draws enough money to tide over Marshall's embarrassment. Helen suspects that Hardy, the superintendent, is not as honest as her father thinks him, so that night she and Stanley gain access to the office. They go over the books and find that Hardy has falsified accounts to the extent of $30,000. They confront Hardy and Mr. Marshall with the evidence. Hardy is arrested and a partnership is formed between the two business rivals, much to the delight of the lovers.

GAUMONT.

JIMMIE SAVES THE SITUATION (March 5).—Poverty stricken Jimmie and his workwoman mother live in a tenement house. One morning little Jimmie after washing his face and hands in a bowl, pours the water out of the window, only to have it land on a passing policeman. The officer becomes indignant, hunts up the offender and declares he will have him fined. He does so, and thereby makes it unbearable for the indignant mother and her little son, who haven't the money to meet this demand. Little Jimmie, however, gets an idea. He reads an ad in a daily paper placed by a jolly widow of comfortable circumstances looking for a husband with a good sense of humor. The boy-man dresses up and applies for the right to her heart. She regrets that she must turn down his offer but gives him the necessary money to meet the fine, which he pays just as the impatient collector was in the act of seizing the shabby furniture.

THE TRUST (March 9).—D. H. Wilson, the directing head of the Independent Rubber Company, refuses to become a member of the Rubber Trust because one of his chemical engineers has discovered the formula for the manufacture of artificial rubber. This important discovery places him in a most commanding situation of the rubber industry, providing the members of the Trust learn nothing of his valuable secret. The head of the Trust, baffled at his independent attitude, employs a detective to find out why Wilson refuses to join his monopoly, through which unscrupulous means, he learns of the formula worked out by the engineer. He instructs the sleuth to take the engineer captive as soon as the vessel carrying him home touches soil. In the guise of friends sent by Wilson, who in the meantime had grown anxious about the safety of the young genius, the detective and his assistants lure the youth into a taxi, in which they gag and overpower him, bringing him captive to an old deserted castle dungeon. Here the president and directors of the Trust, totally masked so as to prevent recognition, bribingly coerce the secret from its discoverer, who reluctantly pens the chemical symbols of the formula. After receiving the check he is led to a safe spot and granted his liberty.

In the meanwhile, the jubilation of the unscrupulous Trust directors is most abruptly cut short, when they realize that the genius wrote the formula with self-erasing ink, that kind which fades and leaves no trace. The cunning Trust had been outwitted!

REPUBLIC.

THE DREAM (March 5).—Big Jim Darrell, a workman in a factory, is suddenly overcome by an attack of dizziness, falls on a returning belt, is severely injured and taken to the hospital. After his discharge, he is warned by the doctor that any unusual excitement might cause his mind to give way.

When he regains his strength, he goes to the mill and asks for a position but is refused, and does his utmost to break up a love which he thinks cannot be sincere or honest on the part of the són of his employer. This so preys upon his mind that he gets no rest. During one of his melancholy spells he falls asleep and dreams that his fears have been realized: that his employer's son had deceived his daughter and then cast her off. But dreams go by the contrary, for during the time that he was having this horrible dream, the young people were being quietly married by a minister. He awakens in time to hear the news of the marriage from his daughter's lips, who has just come in with her husband and her father-in-law.

A BRAND FROM THE BURNING (March 9).—The story concerns the fortunes of two miners who have cleaned up a big stake and are starting for the States. One of them is infatuated with a dance-hall girl, whom he wishes to take back with him, but she thinking she is not good enough for him, refuses. The girl is compelled by threats to enter into a scheme in which the man she loves and his partner will be robbed of their possessions. The girl reluctantly helps to entrap the men, but before it is too late she relents, and throwing all fear from her, she dashes through a blinding snow storm to the quarters of the Northwestern Mounted Police, and assists them in saving the man she loves.

MAJESTIC.

DOES YOUR WIFE LOVE YOU? (March 3).—George finds his wife interested in doing some needle work and to his discomfiture finds her unwilling to drop her work and spoon a little with her hubby. Across the hall separating the two apartments Paul is deeply concerned over his wife's absorbtion in solitaire to the neglect of his loving advances. George's wife comes merrily in to show Paul's wife her needlework and to Paul's amazement the cards are promptly dropped and the two women chatter happily away, oblivious of his presence.

Paul is at a loss, but George proposes that each hubby shall try to make love to the other's wife. The ladies overhear their plot, and decide to make it very warm for hubbies by pretending to welcome advances of the other's "meal-ticket."

The wives are elated at the discomfiture of their hubbies, but the hubbies visit to the doctor escaped their observation. They suddenly discover their husbands gripping hands in a farewell forever parting and forcing a most nauceous mixture upon their indignant interiors. The girls rush on and examine the bottles which have dropped from the men's hands—Poison! The joke is turned upon the wives and they explain overhearing the plot to test their affections, but matters are finally cleared up.

THE BEST MAN WINS (March 5).—Fred Girton and Robert Hall find themselves in love with the same girl.

Fred has enlisted mother as a partisan supporter, but Robert has checked him in turn by enrolling father as his advocate in the family and honors remain even up to their invitation for papa to Robert and mamma to Fred to inspect the new gymnasium that has been installed in the little lady's home. Neither Fred nor Robert has had any great encouragement from Mary, who indeed has become smitten with the new physical instructor her parents have engaged.

Manning, becoming a victim to Mary's charms and incensed at the attentions of the two boys, he falls in readily with a little joke Mary plans for the boys on the occasion of their next visit.

Manning is to privately convince each of the boys that he is a remarkable boxer and then when the boys propose to Mary she will silence the arguments for each by proposing that the boys don the gloves and do battle for her and let the best man win.

Manning and Mary make a getaway and while the boys are endeavoring to obliterate each other they are quietly married and return to find the young game cocks so exhausted they are sitting on the floor, wearily trying to land a finishing blow.

NESTOR.

THE SMUGGLERS (Feb. 26).—Joe Hardy and Jack Barry are partners in smuggling Chinese coolies into the United States. Joe has captured the heart of Marie, daughter of old Skipper Jameson. Jack is also in love with Marie, and learns from the girl herself that his love his hopeless. Joe then jilts Marie and makes love to a visiting cousin, Annette.

While waiting for Joe to join in a smuggling trip, Jack receives a note from Marie, telling him that she has informed the revenue officers, and bidding him let Joe go alone that night and be captured. Jack and Marie watch from rocks, and see the revenue officers land and lie in wait for the smuggler. Joe returns with the Chinaman, but the officers fail to capture him. Rifle in hand, he scales the rocks, firing back and disabling one of the officers, and conceals himself in a cave, while the foiled revenue men search in vain.

Annette hears the story next day, and knowing that if Joe is to remain long in hiding, he must have food and water, cruises along the beach in her small sailboat. Joe recognizes her, and signals her to land, which she does, and gives him the supplies she has brought. After spending a short time with him at his cave, she leaves in her boat, beating out to sea.

Joe, watching through his glasses, sees the boat disabled by a sudden squall. Joe makes an attempt to swim to her rescue, but is driven back. Desperate, he realizes that to save the girl he must have help, he returns up the beach, straight into the arms of the revenue men, who are searching for him. Joe wounds Jack and turns to run, and the pursuing officers see the helpless boat and the girl clinging to it. But they have already fired at Joe as he mounts the rock; he is struck by the officer's bullet and falls into the sea.

AT ROLLING FORKS (Feb. 28).—Tom Howard and Lee Williams are in love with Hetty. Her father has selected Lee as her future husband, telling Tom that if she accepts him, she is no longer a daughter of his. Tom, Hetty and her mother plead with the father in vain.

Hetty and Tom go away and are married. The father remains bitter, so much so that he will not permit his wife to take Hetty a basket that she has prepared for her. Lee comes to the ranch and offers to take it to her. He goes to the Howard shack and gives the basket to Hetty. Tom finds him there, and believing the basket only an excuse to see his wife, he throws it outside. Lee is ordered out. He goes indignantly. Later, Hetty's father starts off on a prospecting trip with a number of others. Tom and his partner also start on another trip. The father and Tom meet at a general store, but the older man refuses to speak to Tom.

The father is hurt by a blast from a mine, and the men bring him home. Lee, who was one of the party, is begged by the mother to run for Hetty, as she fears her husband may die. He goes for Hetty, but while he is imploring her to come home to see her father, Tom returns. One of his packmules having died on the way, he had returned for another. He watches Lee and Hetty from outside, but unable to overhear what they are saying. Hetty agrees to go. Tom gets his gun ready, but Hetty steps between Tom and Lee quite unconscious that she is preventing a murder. Lee and Hetty hurry out and Tom follows. Reaching her old home and rushing inside, they find the family assembled around the death-bed of the father.

HIS GOOD INTENTIONS (March 2).—Jack i an athlete and is blessed with two fascinatin cousins of the gentler sex. Jack arrives in tow to spend his vacation with "those dear cousins." In the evening Jack regales his cousins with foot ball, etc.

Next morning he refuses to go motoring wit his fair cousins, who, somewhat vexed, take the spin without Jack. He has to run ten miles ever morning, and Jack is the boy to do it. He change his clothes behind a friendly bush and rigged u in his running togs, he begins chasing himself. An escaped lunatic chances upon Jack's clothes an quickly effects an exchange. Things happen i real moving picture style. Jack's abbreviate costume causes his arrest. At the police court h is mistaken for the escaped "looney" with the co lege boy delusion, and placed behind the bars. The girls and the lunatic meet; at first they thin he's Jack, but subsequent events make them rus to police headquarters for aid. The tangle i finally straightened out and Jack regains his civi ized apparel. Turning back on his good intention he takes his seat in the limousine and enjoys him self to the limit.

THE BATTLE OF ROSES (March 2).—The spe tator is transported to Beautiful Pasadena, Cal fornia, and there views the New Year parade wit its various floats, splendidly and lavishly decorate with roses and other flowers. Musical bands, s cieties, scouts, cowboys, etc., are shown in holida attire. The people lining the streets form a mo interesting background.

IMP.

FAR FROM THE BEATEN TRACK (March 4).—Away up in the lonely Northern land lives trapper and his young wife. He follows his occ pation from day to day without noticing that h helpmate finds life somewhat monotonous. In this remote household there comes, by accident, handsome stranger who is hunting in the countr He gets separated from his party and meeting wi an accident is found helpless by the husband, wl brings him to his home to be cared for by h wife.

As the days pass they fall in love with ea other. The husband returns at a moment when love avowal has been exchanged. What does do? Confront them and kill either or both? N He conceals his knowledge.

Shortly afterwards the woman agrees to elo with her admirer. They have barely started aw when the man is seriously injured by falling in a bear trap. The woman ministers to him. T husband appears. His mind is made up. She ca not return to his home. Her lover is wounded. the husband leaves them and returns to his lone hut.

THE CALL OF THE DRUM (March 7).—Corporal Ellison had a daughter who married a shortly after the honeymoon, the young cou invited the old soldier to come and live with the The old father accepted his daughter's invitati and for a time is happy in his new surroundin But he dreams dreams. He lives his military li over again. His comrades are on the march; hears the sound of the drum. The past appeals him and the past is living. It is the real thi For are not his brother veterans still alive to t with him about the deeds they used to do in t days of old? So yielding to an irresistible temp tion to connect himself with the strong and her past, he quits his daughter's home and rejoins old comrades, who, of course, are glad to welco him back.

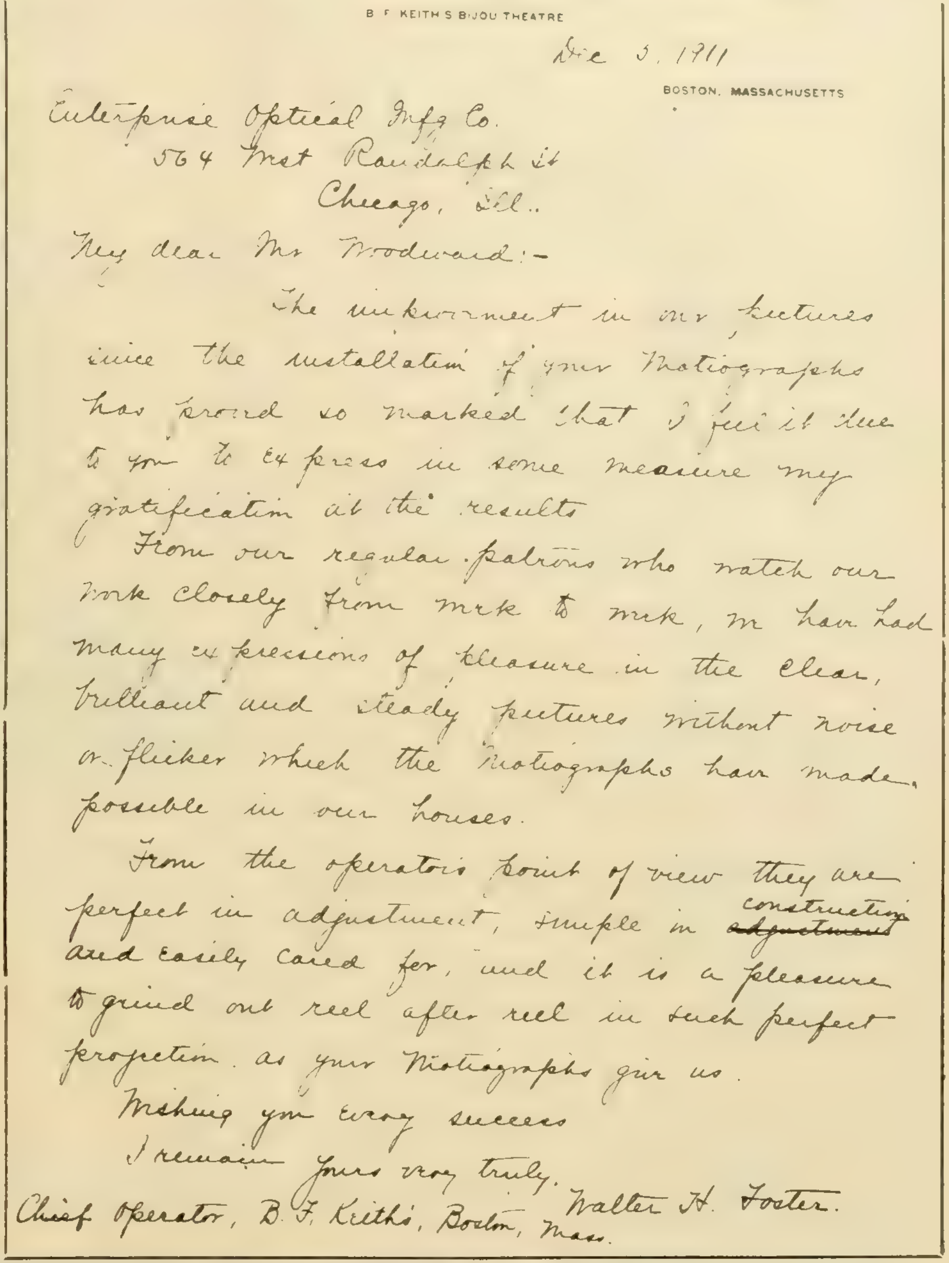
After the old man has disappeared the daugh and her husband go after him and try to ind him to return to their home, but no, the call the drum has conquered, and the story ends w the old father refusing to leave his comrades.

("The Home Strike Breakers" and "Rhoda R al's Horses" held over until next week.)

Mr. Almost Butt

Th LEADING Picture Theatre in Boston. A Good Operator And a MOTIOGRAPH—Booth Result?—Perfect Pictures

Mr. W. H. FOSTER
Chief Operator



B. F. KEITH'S BIJOU THEATRE

Dec 5, 1911

BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

Enterprise Optical Mfg Co.
564 West Randolph St
Chicago, Ill.

My dear Mr Woodward:-

The improvement in our pictures since the installation of your Motiographs has proved so marked that I feel it due to you to express in some measure my gratification at the results

From our regular patrons who watch our work closely from week to week, we have had many expressions of pleasure in the clear, brilliant and steady pictures without noise or flicker which the Motiographs have made possible in our houses.

From the operator's point of view they are perfect in adjustment, simple in ~~adjustment~~ construction and easily cared for, and it is a pleasure to grind out reel after reel in such perfect projection as your Motiographs give us.

Wishing you every success

I remain Yours very truly.
Walter H. Foster.
Chief Operator, B. F. Keith's, Boston, Mass.

INVITATION TO EXHIBITORS—

n in Boston visit Keith's Theatre and view the fa- "Painted on the Wall" graph Pictures. Something tive.

FOR SALE BY
RAL FILM CO., BOSTON
d by Live Dealers Everywhere

rprise Optical Manufacturing Company
Vest Randolph St., Chicago

NOTHER ENTERPRISE TRIUMPH

TOGO CALCIUM GAS OUTFIT

Complete with Rubber Tubing and Keyless Jet

SUPERIOR WORKMANSHIP and HIGH GRADE MATERIAL combined with SAFETY and SIMPLICITY place the TOGO far ahead of any other cheap outfit.

PORTABLE and ready for instant use - $25.00.

Anyone can operate it

—MANUFACTURED BY—

The Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co., 564 W. Randolph St., Chicago

FOR SALE BY ALL DEALERS

HERE AT LAST

A place to buy parts for M. P. machines for less

One of our SPECIALS

Intermittent SPROCKETS $1.50 FOR POWERS EDISON Machines

Write for Price List

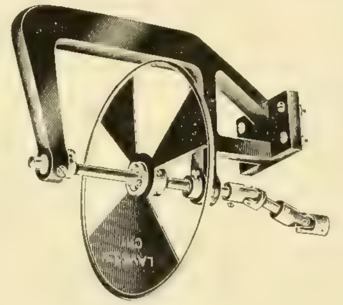
PITTSBURG M.P. SUPPLY CO., Pittsburg, Pa.

Films For Rent

Reliable Service. Independent Films. Banners and Posters supplied. 12-Reel Shipment $12.00

THE FILM EXCHANGE
61 West 14th Street, New York City

Mr. Almost Butt



Improved Cams, Stars, Sprockets
Machine Tables, Oil Baths, etc.
LAVEZZI MACHINE WORKS
2940 Herndon St. Chicago

Make Your Own Slides

Without the aid of photography, from newspaper cuts, post cards, colored illustrations, photos, etc. Make Your Own announcement slides, advertisements, illustrated song slides, colored pictures from comic papers Slides from political office seekers' cards. Just The Thing For Election. Slides can be made in a few minutes. Plain Or In Colors. Complete Outfit and Directions $1.00.

MIDLAND TRANSPARENCY CO.
313 Ramge Bldg., Dept. B. Omaha, Neb.

If you want Advertising and Song Slides
Write to

A. L. SIMPSON, Inc.

The Most Reliable Slide Maker in the Business

113 W. 132nd Street, New York City

"La Cinematografia Italiana ed Estera"

IS ITALY'S LEADING PAPER FOR THE ANIMATED PICTURE
PUBLISHED FORTNIGHTLY.
32, 36 and 40 large pages, 8 shillings per annum ($1.60).
Editor-prop'r: Prof. GUALTIERO I. FABRI,
Via Cumiana, 31 (Barriera S. Paolo) Torino, Italy

Fan Bargains

While they last $12.50 each

New 16-inch General Electric make for 60 cycle, 110 volt alternating current. 18-inch exhaust fan, same current, $50.00. Several hundred other dynamos and motors.

GEO. BENDER, 82 Centre St., New York

THE TOURNAMENT FILM CO.
TOLEDO, OHIO.

Owners of the following feature films:
1911 Cheyenne Cowboy and Indian Frontier Celebration.
Fall Round-Up on the Y-6 Ranch.

State Rights for These Films for Sale.
Bookings Can Be Made by Writing Us.

World's Greatest Moving Picture

ZIGOMAR

HALLBERG "THE ECONOMIZER MA
Saves The Silk City Amusement Co. of Paterson, N. J. $3900.00 Per Year

And Gives "Ever so Much Better Light" on The Screen

Read what Mr. Anderson, Mgr., has to say about the

HALLBERG DIRECT CURRENT ECONOMIZERS

Mr. J. H. Hallberg, Paterson, N. J., Feb. 14, 19

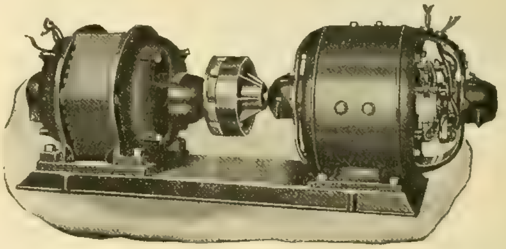
Dear Sir:—I am sending you two of my electric bills for my M P. machine, one, since installing your 220-Volt D. C. ECONOMIZER, for $6.44, and the other for a like period, before installing same, for $3 5; this is proof enough that your D. C. ECONOMIZER is no friend to the Electric Light Company, but the best friend to the exhibitor ever put on the market. We installed one of your D. C. Economizers about six months ago, and it has never given us one minute's trouble since. We now have three DIRECT CURRENT "HALLBERGS" in operation, which mean a saving of about $75.00 per week, besides giving ever so much better light than we could get before with the rheostat. Let me say right here, I could not get any more like these which I have, I would not take $1.00 apiece for them.

Yours very respectfully,
SILK CITY AMUSEMENT CO.,
Wm. Anderson, Gen. Mg

These Hallberg D. C. Economizers are paying Mr. Anderson 400% per year profit on his investment.

DO YOU WONDER THAT HE WOULD NOT SELL THEM?

Built For All Voltages



Hallberg D. C. or A. C. to D. C. Economizer.

25c. IN STAMPS

Brings to you Hallberg's Motion Picture Catalogue, The Reference Book.

Nothing like it ever published before.

Will prove a constant guide and money-maker to every proprietor, manager and operator. Send 25 cts. to-day.

Palestine, Texas, Jan. 18, 191

Mr. J. H. Hallberg, New York.
Dear Sir:
I beg to thank you for the 1912 Catalog which I received some time ago. It is certainly a beauty and full of valuable information to picture show managers and operators.

(Signed) TIM O'CONNELL,
Mgr. Lyric Theater

Special Jobber of EDISON, POWERS, MOTIOGRAPH, SIMPLEX and STANDARD MOVING PICTURE MACHINES

I make allowance on your old Saver in trade for a HALLBERG.

..GUARANTEED TO SAVE..

On 100 to 125 Volts A.C., 60 to 70%.	On 100 to 125 Volts D.C., 50%.
On 200 to 250 Volts A.C., 75 to 85%.	On 200 to 250 Volts D.C., 70%.
	On 500 to 600 Volts D.C., 90%.

And To Improve Your Light 50% Over Use on Rheostat.

Over 2000 in use for A.C. as well as D.C., and my G. E. Mercury Arc Rectifier is the thing for those who want D.C. at the arc on A.C. circuits.

I Equip Theaters Completely

And carry in stock the highest grade goods required for your theatre. Free catalogues, circulars and pamphlets furnished of individual items you require.

J. H. HALLBERG, 36 EAST 23rd ST. NEW YORK

“He Who Never Makes a Mistake ever Accomplishes Anything.”

Ve have made mistakes and they have taught us hv to avoid others. We are NOW producing pic-tes that are equal to any on the market and our .tic productions, as novelties, are superior to all.

n't let your Exchange put you off any longer; insist on getting Reps

TUESDAY

REP

FILMS

SATURDAY

THE REP ALPHABET

” stands for Ability.

BILITY is of little account without opportunity.”

—Napoleon.

Your ability as a manager of a theater will prove d little value unless you have the opportunity of swing perfect productions. You are assured of ts if you run REP films.

esday, March 5th

“The Dream”

An intensely dramatic production of a heart-grip-g story portrayed by an all-star cast.

turday, March 9th

“A Brand From the Burning”

The story of a dance hall girl of the Arctic region, o saved the fortunes of two miners.

b. 24th—“A TANGLED SKEIN”
b. 27th—“IN THE GOVERNMENT SERVICE” arch 2d—“HIS PARTNER'S WIFE” end $1.00 for our combination photo of entire company, com- ely framed in mission.

ill this in and send to us:—
ne of Theater...
lress...
n..............................State.......................... at age service do you use?..............................
ne of Exchange..

EPUBLIC FILM CO., Dept. W, 145 WEST 45th ST.
NEW YORK CITY

Every Exhibitor has a competitor, so has every exchange, consequently the exhibitor showing the best Independent pictures will make the most money and every Exchange renting the best Independent pictures produced will secure the most customers and KEEP THEM!

THE MAJESTIC

RELEASES

Two Good Pictures Each Week

SUNDAY AND TUESDAY

Sunday, March 3rd

“Does Your Wife Love You?”—Comedy rapid-fire farce where two husbands try a dangerous test upon their wives and find themselves facing death.

Tuesday, March 5th

“The Best Man Wins.”—A light comedy, where the girl keeps father's and mother's favorites for her hand, standing each off while she marries the best man.

DO NOT MISS “STRIP POKER”

Released Tuesday, February 27th

One of the funniest pictures ever produced!

COMING RELEASES!

We venture the assertion that the moving picture public will pronounce the four following pictures the equal of any they have ever seen.

Sunday, March 10th, “THE CLOSED BIBLE”
Tuesday, March 12th, “THE UNWILLING BIGAMIST”
Sunday, March 17th, “THE BETTER INFLUENCE”
Tuesday, March 19th, “LEAP YEAR”

Do not be Satisfied with One Majestic

Secure them both!

The Majestic
Motion Picture Company
145 W. 45th Street
New York City
(Sold Through the Sales Co.)

INDEPENDENT Release Dates

M. P. DISTRIBUTING & SALES CO.

AMERICAN.

Feb. 19—Society and Chaps (W. Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 22—A Leap Year Comedy (W. Com.).....1000
Feb. 26—The Land Baron of San Tee (Dr.)....1000
Feb. 29—An Assisted Elopement (Com.).......1000
Mar. 4—From the Four Hundred to the Herd (W. Dr.)..........................1000
Mar. 7—The Broken Ties (W. Dr.)...........1000

CHAMPION.

Feb. 12—Robert G. Fowler, Trans-Continental Aviator (Topical) 500
Feb. 12—Mr. Piddle Rebels (Com.)............ 500
Feb. 14—For Her Father's Sake (Dr.).......... 950
Feb. 19—The Merchant Mayor of Indianapolis (Dr.) 950
Feb. 21—A Wife's Discovery (Com.).......... 950
Feb. 26—The Robbery at the Railroad Station (Com.-Dr.) ....
Feb. 26—A Higher Power (Dr.)..............
Feb. 28—Wrongly Accused (Dr.)..............
Mar. 4—The Manicurist (Dr.)................ 950
Mar. 6—Blind (Dr.)........................... 950

COMET.

Jan. 8—Mr. Whoops, the Detective (Com.)....
Jan. 12—The Widow (Com.-Dr.)..............
Jan. 15—The Braid (Dr.)...................
Jan. 19—Thirty Days (Com.).................

ECLAIR.

Feb. 13—The Patriotic Sons (Am. Dr.).......
Feb. 15—Keeping an Eye on Father (Am. Com.)
Feb. 18—Gontran is Fond of Animals (Com.)..
Feb. 18—A Congenial Son-in-law (Com.)......
Feb. 20—The Fateful Diamond (Dr.)..........
Feb. 22—Jealous Julia (Com.)...............
Feb. 25—A Terrible Night (Com.).............
Feb. 25—The City of Mosques (Scenic).........
Feb. 27—The Guardian Angel (Am. Dr.)......
Feb. 29—Getting Dad Married (Am. Com.).....
Mar. 3—The Interrupted Telegram (Dr.)......
Mar. 3—Prague, the Beautiful (Scenic.)......
Mar. 5—A Child's Plea (Am.-Dr.)..........
Mar. 7—No Wedding Bells for Me (Am.-Com.)
Mar. 10—Alcohol (2 reels) (Dr.)..............

GREAT NORTHERN.

Jan. 20—A Summer Flirtation (Com.)........
Jan. 27—A Friend to Children (Com.)..........
Jan. 27—The Man With the Puppets (Com.)....
Feb. 3—Vengeance vs. Love (Dr.).............
Feb. 10—A Burglar's Love (Dr.)..............
Feb. 17—Unexpected Duty (Com.).............
Feb. 17—Along the Italian Riviera (Scenic)....
Feb. 24—Those Married Men (Com.)..........
Mar. 2—Revenge Is Sweet (Com.)............
Mar. 2—Obverse and Reverse (Com.)........

IMP.

Feb. 12—Reflections from the Firelight (Dr.)..1000
Feb. 15—Through the Flames (Dr.)............1000
Feb. 17—Pushmobile Race in Savannah (Top.). 200
Feb. 17—The Tables Turned (Com.-Dr.)........ 800
Feb. 19—A Modern Highwayman (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 22—The Lie (Dr.).........................1000
Feb. 24—Ice Boating on the Shrewsbury River, N. J. (Sporting)...................... 400
Feb. 24—The Broken Lease (Com.-Dr.)....... 600
Feb. 26—The Immigrant's Violin (Dr.).......1000
Feb. 29—The Rose of California (Dr.)........1000
Mar. 2—Beat at His Own Game (Com.)....... 400
Mar. 2—The Right Clue (Com.)............... 600
Mar. 4—Far From the Beaten Track (Dr.)....1000
Mar. 7—The Call of the Drum (Dr.)..........1000
Mar. 9—The Home Strike Breakers (Com.)... 600
Mar. 9—Rhoda Royal's Trained Horses (Top.). 400

LUX.

Jan. 26—Oh! You Kid (Com.)................. 511
Jan. 26—Making Paper From Wood (Ind.)..... 416
Feb. 2—Fickle Woman (Com.-Dr.).......... 550
Feb. 2—The Skivvy and the Mat (Com.).... 873
Feb. 9—The Tramp's Dog (Dr.).............. 744
Feb. 9—Weaving Carpet (Ind.) 239
Feb. 16—Bill Tunes the Piano (Com.)......... 541
Feb. 16—Baby's Ghost (Com.)................. 400
Feb. 23—The Cook's Revenge (Com.).......... 459
Feb. 23—Bill's Motor (Com.).................. 414
Mar. 1—Bill and the Lions (Com.)............ 377
Mar. 1—The Skivvy's Ghost (Com.).......... 557

BISON.

(N. Y. M. P. CO.)

Jan. 19—The Run on the Bank (Dr.)..........
Jan. 23—War on the Plains (2 reels—W. Dr.)
Jan. 26—The Ranch Girl's Love (W. Dr.)......
Jan. 30—Love and Jealousy (Dr.).............
Feb. 2—The Empty Water Keg (Dr.)........
Feb. 6—The Protection of the Cross (Dr.)......
Feb. 9—A Tenderfoot's Revenge (Dr.)........
Feb. 13—"Broncho" Bill's Love Affair........
Feb. 16—Wild West Circus....................
Feb. 20—The Deputy's Sweetheart (Dr.).......
Feb. 23—War On the Plains (W. Dr.)........
Mar. 1—The Indian Massacre (Dr.)...........
Mar. 8—The Battle of the Redmen (Dr.)......

AMBROSIO.

Jan. 24—The Supreme Meeting...............
Jan. 31—Sammy, the Little Bootblack (Dr.)...
Jan. 31—Tweedledum's Father and his Worthy Son (Com.) ....
Feb. 7—Tweedledum a Riding Schoolmaster..
Feb. 7—Called Back on the Right Path........
Feb. 14—Father's Fault ....
Feb. 21—Accursed Rock ....
Feb. 28—Tweedledum's Evasion (Com.).......
Feb. 28—Tweedledum's New Year's Gift (Com.)

ITALA.

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

Jan. 20—No Release On This Date............
Jan. 27—Toto Enamorato (Com.)..............
Feb. 3—The Ascent of the Matterhorn........
Feb. 3—Anarchical Attempt (Com.)...........
Feb. 10—Toto, Door-Keeper (Com.) ....
Feb. 10—Hunting Ducks (Sporting)...........
Feb. 17—The Italian Army in Tripoli..........
Feb. 17—Making a Cinematograph Scene.......

MAJESTIC.

Jan. 26—That Expensive Ride (Dr.)..........
Jan. 28—A Mother's Sacrifice (Com.-Dr.)......
Feb. 2—An Old Lady of Twenty (Com.)......
Feb. 2—Lucky Man (Com.)...................
Feb. 4—A Game for Two (Com.).............
Feb. 9—Honor Thy Father (Dr.).............
Feb. 11—Arresting Father (Dr.) ....
Feb. 16—His Step-Mother (Com.).............
Feb. 18—Petticoat Perfidy (Com.).............
Feb. 25—Bought (Dr.) ....
Feb. 27—Strip Poker (Com.)..................
Mar. 3—Does Your Wife Love You? (Com.)..
Mar. 5—The Best Man Wins (Com.)..........

NESTOR.

Feb. 12—Inbad, the Count (Com.).............
Feb. 14—His Side Pard (W. Dr.)..............
Feb. 17—Brannigan's Promotion (Com.) ....
Feb. 17—Tightwad Gets a Bargain (Com.).....
Feb. 19—Blind Man's Buff (Com.).............
Feb. 21—Rollicking Red's Big Lark (W. Com.)
Feb. 24—Settled Out of Court (Com.)........
Feb. 24—Tightwad Almost Saves a Dollar (Com.)
Feb. 24—Grand Canyon, Arizona (Scenic)......
Feb. 26—The Smugglers (Dr.)................
Feb. 26—At Rolling Forks (W. Dr.)...........
Mar. 2—His Good Intentions (Com.)..........
Mar. 2—The Battle of Roses (Topical)........
Mar. 4—The Mills of the Gods (Dr.)..........
Mar. 6—The Double Trail (W. Dr.)..........
Mar. 9—The Village Rivals (Com.)..........

POWERS.

Jan. 27—Cardinal Farley (Topical)...........
Jan. 30—Billy's Surrender (Dr.)...............
Feb. 3—The Explorer (Dr.)..................
Feb. 6—The Nurse (Dr.).....................
Feb. 10—A Waiter of Weight (Com.-Dr.)......
Feb. 13—The Turning Point (Dr.).............
Feb. 17—A Woman of No Importance (Dr.)....
Feb. 20—His Brother Willie (Com.)...........
Feb. 24—As Fate Would Have It (Dr.)........
Feb. 27—A Tangled Courtship (Dr.)..........
Mar. 2—The Path of Genius (Dr.).............
Mar. 5—The Honor of a Pugilist (Dr.)........
Mar. 9—His Daughter's Loyalty (Dr.)........

RELIANCE.

Jan. 24—The Deception (Dr.)..................
Jan. 27—The Little Darkies (Com.)..........
Jan. 27—Rosanna's Dream — Natural History Series No. 2 (Educational)........
Jan. 31—Solomon's Son (Dr.).................
Feb. 3—The Man Under the Bed (Dr.)........
Feb. 7—The Stolen Letter (Dr.)..............
Feb. 10—Bedelia's Busy Morning (Com.)......
Feb. 10—Natural History Series, No. 3 (Ec)..
Feb. 14—Wanted a Wife (Dr.)..............
Feb. 17—The Gambler's Daughter (Dr.).....
Feb. 21—Key West Celebration (Topical...
Feb. 21—Bedelia and Mrs. Busybody (Com...
Feb. 24—A Child's First Love (Dr.).......
Feb. 28—Bedelia and the Suffragette (Co...
Mar. 2—The Duel (Dr.)...................

REPUBLIC.

Feb. 3—When Men Love (Dr.)..............
Feb. 4—Northern Hearts (Dr.).............
Feb. 10—Mother's Old Armchair (Dr.).......
Feb. 11—The Reckoning (Dr.)...............
Feb. 17—Human Nature (Com.-Dr.)..........
Feb. 18—The Girl Who Waited (Dr.).......
Feb. 24—A Tangled Skein (Dr.)............
Feb. 27—In the Government Service (Dr.)...
Mar. 2—His Partner's Wife (Dr.)..........
Mar. 5—The Dream (Dr.).................
Mar. 9—A Brand from the Burning (Dr. ..

REX.

Jan. 4—The Parting of the Ways (Dr.). ..
Jan. 11—A Boarding House Mystery (Co..
Jan. 18—Angels Unawares (Dr.) ....
Jan. 25—A Sane Asylum (Com.).........
Jan. 28—The Defendar of the Name (Dr.). ..
Feb. 1—Fine Feathers (Dr.)...............
Feb. 4—Readin', Ritin' an' Rithmetic (Com.-Dr.) ....
Feb. 8—The Bargain (Dr.).............
Feb. 11—Through Twisting Lanes (Dr.)....
Feb. 15—Taming Mrs. Shrew (Com.-Dr.)...
Feb. 18—So Speaks the Heart (Dr.)........
Feb. 22—Under Her Wing (Dr.)...........
Feb. 25—The End of the Circle (Dr.).......
Feb. 29—The Final Pardon (Dr.)..........
Mar. 3—Through Flaming Gates (Dr.).......

SOLAX.

Feb. 4—The Snowman (Com.)...............
Feb. 7—Guilty Conscience (Com.)..........
Feb. 9—Mrs. Cranston's Jewels (Dr.)......
Feb. 11—Lend Me Your Wife (Com.)........
Feb. 14—Bessie's Suitors (Com.)..........
Feb. 16—A Terrible Lesson (Dr.)...........
Feb. 18—The Wise Witch of Fairyland (D..
Feb. 21—Hubby Does the Washing (Com.)..
Feb. 23—God Disposes (Dr.)...............
Feb. 25—His Lordship's White Feather (D..
Feb. 28—Algie, the Miner (Com.)...........
Mar. 1—Blighted Lives (Dr.)..............
Mar. 6—Sealed Lips (Dr.)................
Mar. 8—The Animated Bathtub (Com.).....
Mar. 13—Nearly An Heiress (Dr.)..........
Mar. 15—Falling Leaves (Com.)...........

THANHOUSER.

Jan. 19—A Niagara Honeymoon (Com.).....
Jan. 23—Her Ladyship's Page (Dr.).........
Jan. 26—East Lynne (Parts 1 and 2—Dr.)..
Jan. 30—As It Was in the Beginning (Dr.)..
Feb 2—On Probation (Dr.)................
Feb. 6—The Trouble Maker (Dr.)..........
Feb. 9—The Signal Code (Dr.)...........
Feb. 13—The Silent Witness (Dr.).........
Feb. 16—Surelock Jones, Detective (Com.)..
Feb. 20—Washington In Danger (Hist.-Dr.)..
Feb. 23—A Message from Niagara (Dr.)....
Feb. 27—The Guilty Baby (Dr.)............
Mar. 1—The Arab's Bride (Dr.)............
Mar. 5—Extravagance (Dr.)...............
Mar. 8—His Great Uncle's Spirit (Dr.).....

MISCELLANEOUS.

GAUMONT.

Feb. 13—Calino and His Boarder (Com.)...
Feb. 13—Zigoto, King of Detectives (Com.).
Feb. 17—Fire At the Mines (Edu. & Dr.)..
Feb. 20—Mr. Le Black Learns to Fly (Com
Feb. 20—He Insisted on Being a Cashier (Co)
Feb. 22—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 1, 1912 (T)
Feb. 24—The Smuggler (Dr.)..............
Feb. 27—Jimmie's Artful Dodge (Com.)....
Feb. 27—Panorama of Bruges (Scenic)....
Feb. 29—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 2, 1912 (T)
Mar. 2—The Tale of a Dog (Dr.).........
Mar. 5—Jimmie Saves the Situation (Com.
Mar. 5—The Wonderful Adventures of Dr. Munchausen (Com.) ....
Mar. 7—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 3, 1912 (T)
Mar. 9—The Trust (2 reels) (Dr.).......

GREAT NORTHERN SPECIAL FEATURE FILM CO.

Feb. 5—A Victim of the Mormons (3 reels—Dr.) ....

FEATURE AND EDUCATIONAL FILM

Nov. 20—Love and Aviation (Dr.)...........
Nov. 20—Zigomar (Dr.)....................
Dec. 18—The Love Chase (Com.)...........

SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS The Big Ticket. Any Printing Any Colors

5,000 - - $1.25
10,000 - - $2.50
20,000 - - $4.60
25,000 - - $5.50
50,000 - - $7.50
100,000 - - $10.00

Get the Samples
Stock Tickets, 6 Cents

NATIONAL TICKET COMPANY - - - Shamokin, Pa

Increase Your Income

SEND FOR OUR

32 -- PAGE -- 32

EXCLUSIVE

MOVING PICTURE THEATRE Catalogue

—OF—

100 CLASSIFIED SOUVENIRS 100

AND COMPLETE PLANS NOW USED BY

THOUSANDS

OF THEATRES

PLAYING TO STANDING ROOM ONLY

— WRITE TODAY —

United States Factories Co.

500 Great Lakes Bldg., CHICAGO

A Peerless Attraction

For the Moving Picture Theatre is

Deagan's Musical Electrical Bells

They make money for progressive exhibitors from Maine to California.

Why don't you write us now?

We make the Electric Bells in various sizes from

$40.00 up

The most popular sets of Bells we are now making is the

No. 310 Outfit

25 Bells, 2 Octaves, Chromatic C to C

Complete with resonators, keyboard and all electrical apparatus.

Price of this outfit is $75.00

Will be shipped to you for examination and trial on receipt of $5.00 to guarantee express charges.

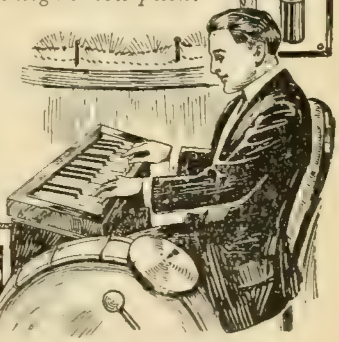
Every set of bells guaranteed one year.

When ordering a set, state if you desire high or low pitch.

J. C. DEAGAN

3800 North Clark Street

CHICAGO, ILL.



FREE

Send postal card with name and address plainly written and receive free of charge sample pages of "Orpheum Collection" of Moving Picture (dramatic and descriptive) music. Until further notice these splendid collections will be offered at the following special prices:

No. 1 (post paid).......... 58 cts.
No. 2 (post paid).......... 58 cts.
Both numbers post paid for $1.15.

Clarence E. Sinn

1501 Sedgwick St. Chicago, Ill.

NOW BOOKING

EASTERN STATES ONLY

LOUISE M. MARION

IN HER OWN NOVELTIES

PATRIOTIC AND ILLUSTRATED POEMS

REFINED, ENTERTAINING

TERMS REASONABLE

Great Novelty and Drawing Card

LOUISE M. MARION

PRESENT ADDRESS

260 Crown Street, New Haven, Conn.

L. M. Marion can be engaged in the Connecticut towns for one month.

ADVERTISING FOR THE LICENSED THEATRES ONLY

FEATURE LITHOGRAPHS

For All Theatres Getting Film Service in N. Y. City

ONE SHEETS	THREE SHEETS	EIGHT SHEETS
5c	25c	50c

Handsomely Mounted on Canvas with Eyelet Holes and Rented Only

ARTHUR BRADY, 124 E. 14th St., N. Y. C.

LICENSED Release Dates

BIOGRAPH.

Feb. 5—Lily's Lovers (Com.)................
Feb. 8—A Sister's Love (Dr.)................
Feb. 12—Billy's Stratagem (Dr.)..............
Feb. 15—The Mender of Nets (Dr.)............
Feb. 19—The Fatal Chocolate (Com.)..........
Feb. 19—Got a Match (Com.)..................
Feb. 22—Under Burning Skies (Dr.)...........
Feb. 26—The Sunbeam (Dr.)...................
Feb. 29—A Message from the Moon (Com.)....
Feb. 29—Priscilla's Capture (Com.)...........
Mar. 4—A Siren of Impulse (Dr.).............
Mar. 7—A String of Pearls (Dr.)...........

CINES.

(G. Kleine.)

Feb. 10—Out of Tune (Com.).................. 500
Feb. 10—Zoological Gardens in Rome (Edu).... 500
Feb. 13—The Puppet Show (Dr.)............... 634
Feb. 13—Jenkins and the Donkey (Com.)...... 862
Feb. 17—Darling (Com.) ....
Feb. 17—Kerka Falls (Scenic).................
Feb. 20—Leah's Trick (Com.)..................
Feb. 20—The Valley of the Umbria (Scenic)...
Feb. 24—Daughter of the Regiment (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 27—Happy in Spite of Herself (Com.-Dr.).
Feb. 27—Jenkins, A Perfect Steward (Com.)...
Mar. 2—A Sister's Stratagem (Com.)..........
Mar. 5—The Chauffeur (Com.-Dr.).............
Mar. 5—Lucca, Italy (Scenic).................
Mar. 9—The Moorish Bride (Dr.)..............

EDISON.

Jan. 30—The Jewels (Dr.)......................1000
Jan. 31—Mother and Daughters (Com.-Dr.).....1000
Feb. 2—His Secretary (Dr.)....................1000
Feb. 3—Niagara Falls (Scenic)................
Feb. 3—Lucky Dog (Com.)......................
Feb. 6—The Passing of J. B. Randall & Co. (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 7—The Commuter's Wife (Com.)........1000
Feb. 9—The Corsican Brothers (Dr.).........1000
Feb. 10—The City of Denver, "The Queen of the Plains" (Scenic)................ 575
Feb. 10—Von Weber's Last Waltz (Dr.)...... 425
Feb. 13—His Daughter (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 14—Hogan's Alley (Com.)................1000
Feb. 16—At the Point of the Sword (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 17—Curing the Office Boy (Com.)........1000
Feb. 17—The Little Delicatessen Store (Com.)..1000
Feb. 20—The Muse (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 21—One Thousand Miles Through the Rockies (Sc.) 350
Feb. 21—Everything Comes to Him Who "Waits" (Com.) 650
Feb. 23—Children Who Labor (Edu. & Dr.)...1000
Feb. 24—New York City Street Cleaning (Vocational) 425
Feb. 24—The Lost Kitten (Com.)............. 575
Feb. 27—How Motion Pictures Are Made and Shown (Vocational) 1000
Feb. 28—My Double and How He Undid Me (Com.) 1000
Mar. 1—Tony's Oath of Vengeance (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 2—A Cowboy's Stratagem (Com.)....... 620
Mar. 2—The Jam Closet (Com.).............. 380
Mar. 5—Lost—Three Hours (Com.)...........1000
Mar. 6—The Yarn of the Nancy Bell (Com.).. 970
Mar. 8—The Heir Apparent (Dr.)..............1050
Mar. 9—New York Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association, Madison Square Garden (Ind.) 540
Mar. 9—The Patent Housekeeper (Com.)...... 460

ESSANAY.

Jan. 27—The Oath of His Office (Dr.)........1000
Jan. 30—A Brother's Error (Dr.)...............1000
Feb. 1—The Grip Snatcher (Com.)............1000
Feb. 2—The Hospital Baby (Dr.)..............1000
Feb. 3—Broncho Billy and the Schoolmistress (Com.) 1000
Feb. 6—Alkali Ike's Love Affair (Com.)......1000
Feb. 8—The Melody of Love (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 9—Her Boys (Dr.)........................1000
Feb. 10—The Deputy and the Girl (West. Dr.).1000
Feb. 13—Tracked Down (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 15—There's Many a Slip (Com.)..........1000
Feb. 16—The Wife of a Genius (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 17—The Prospector's Legacy (W. Dr.)...1000
Feb. 20—The Biter Bitten (Com.)..............
Feb. 20—Curiosity (Com.) ....
Feb. 22—The "Lemon" (Com.) 1000
Feb. 23—The Little Black Box (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 24—A Western Kimono (Com.) 1000
Feb. 27—Positive Proof (Dr.)... 1000
Feb. 29—Her Masterful Man (Com.) 1000
Mar. 1—Do Dreams Come True? (Com.)..... 1000
Mar. 2—The Ranch Girl's Mistake (Dr.) .. 1000
Mar. 5—The Turning Point (Dr.) 1000
Mar. 7—Getting a Hired Girl (Com.) 1000
Mar. 8—The Baby of the Boarding House (Com.)
Mar. 8—Trombone Tommy (Com.)
Mar. 9—A Romance of the West (Dr.) 1000

KALEM.

Jan. 24—Accidents Will Happen (Com.)......
Jan. 24—How Jim Proposed (Com.)............
Jan. 26—His Mother (Dr.).....................1000
Jan. 29—An Interrupted Wedding (Dr.).......1000
Jan. 31—Walk, —— You, Walk! (Com.).......1000
Feb. 2—A Princess of the Hills (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 5—Battle of Pottsburg Bridge (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 7—The Swimming Party (Com.)..........
Feb. 7—Floral Parade at San Diego, Cal. (Topical) ....
Feb. 9—The Vagabonds (Dr.).................1000
Feb. 12—An American Invasion (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 14—Far From Erin's Isle (Com.).........1000
Feb. 16—Caught in the Toils (Dr.)............1000
Feb. 19—The Alcalde's Conspiracy (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 21—The Girl Deputy (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 23—Back to the Kitchen (Com.)..........1000
Feb. 26—The Bell of Pennance (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 28—A Tenderfoot's Troubles (Com.)......
Feb. 28—A Visit to Madeira (Scenic)..........
Mar. 1—Trapped by Wireless (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 4—You Remember Ellen (Dr.)..........1000
Mar. 6—The Romance of a Dry Town (Com.)..1000
Mar. 8—Captain Rivera's Reward (Dr.).......1000

LUBIN.

Jan. 22—The Lady Police (Com.).............1000
Jan. 24—The Heart of a "Boss" (Dr.)........1000
Jan. 25—The Office Favorite (Com.-Dr.).......1000
Jan. 27—Through the Drifts (Dr.).............1000
Jan. 29—The Poor Relation (Dr.)..............1000
Jan. 31—Love vs. Strategy (Dr.)...............1000
Feb. 1—The Physician's Honor (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 3—The Impostor (Dr.)....................1000
Feb. 5—A Cure for Jealousy (Com.)..........1000
Feb. 7—Tricked Into Happiness (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 8—What Fate Ordained (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 10—An Antique Ring (Dr.)...............1000
Feb. 12—'Tis an Ill Wind that Blows No Good (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 14—His Mistake (Dr.)....................1000
Feb. 15—A Note in the Orange (Com.).......... 680
Feb. 15—Oversea Celebration (Educational) 350
Feb. 17—Gingerbread Cupid (Com.)...........1000
Feb. 19—Army Aviation Practice (Novelty).... 200
Feb. 19—A Midwinter Night's Dream (Dr.)... 800
Feb. 21—In Dis-a-Countree (Dr.)..............1000
Feb. 22—Her Heart's Refuge (Dr.)............1000
Feb. 24—Willie, the Hunter (Com.)........... 700
Feb. 24—Pottery Making in America (Edu.).. 300
Feb. 26—A Matter of Business (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 28—Love and Tears (Dr.)................1000
Feb. 29—Betty and the Doctor (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 2—A Mexican Courtship (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 4—Fishing In Florida (Vocational)......
Mar. 4—The Baby Tramp (Com.)..............
Mar. 6—My Princess (Dr.)....................1000
Mar. 7—The Handicap (Dr.)...................1000
Mar. 9—Mother Love (Dr.).....................1000

MELIES.

Dec. 28—The Ranchman's Debt of Honor (Com. Dr.) 1000
Jan. 4—A Woman's Gratitude (Dr.)..........1000
Jan. 11—Roped In (Dr.)........................1000
Jan. 18—The Outlaw and the Baby (Dr.).....1000
Jan. 25—The Mortgage (Dr.)...................1000
Feb. 1—Cowboy vs. Tenderfoot (Dr.).........1000
Feb. 8—Dodging the Sheriff (Dr.).............1000
Feb. 15—Smiling Bob (Dr.).....................1000
Jan. 22—Melita's Ruse (Dr.)...................1000
Feb. 29—Oil (Dr.) 1000
Mar. 7—Seven Bars of Gold (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 14—The Sheriff's Daughter (Dr.).........1000

ECLIPSE.

(G. Kleine.)

Jan. 17—Love Will Find a Way (Dr.)..........1020
Jan. 24—A Woman's Wrath (Dr.)............. 980
Jan. 31—Kitty In Dreamland (Juvenile)........ 575
Jan. 31—Earl's Court, London (Scenic)...... 415
Feb. 7—Captured by Wireless (Dr.)........... 950
Feb. 7—Bird's Eye View of Rotterdam (Sc.)... 50
Feb. 14—The Gambler's Wife (Dr.)............1015
Feb. 21—The King's Command (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 28—Cousin Bill (Com.)...................
Feb. 28—A Glimpse of Tripoli (Scenic)........
Mar. 6—The Factory Girl (Dr.)................

PATHE.

Jan. 17—The Squaw Man's Revenge (Am. Dr.)..1000
Jan. 18—Is It Your Hat? (Am. Com.)......... 800
Jan. 20—Unmerited Shame (Am. Dr.)...........1000
Jan. 22—Pathe's Weekly No. 4—1912 (Top.)..1000
Jan.23—Love's Terrible Sacrifice (Film d'Art Dr.)
Jan. 24—The Sioux's Cave of Death (Am. Dr.)
Jan. 25—A Windy Dream (Trick Com.)......
Jan. 27—Swiftwind's Heroism (Am. Dr.).....
Jan. 29—Pathe's Weekly No. 5, 1912 (Topical)..1000
Jan. 31—On the Edge of the Precipice (W. Dr.).1000
Feb. 1—Uncle's Strategy (Am. Com.).........1000
Feb. 3—Indian Blood (Am. Dr.)...............1000
Feb. 5—Pathe's Weekly No. 6—1912 (Top.)..1000
Feb. 7—A Boomerang Joke (Am. Com.)......
Feb. 8—Niagara Falls In Winter (Am. Sc.)..
Feb. 10—Two Brothers (Am. Dr.)............
Feb. 12—Pathe's Weekly, No. 7, 1912 (Topical)..1000
Feb. 14—Two Convict Brothers (Am. Dr.)......
Feb. 15—His Wife's Jealousy (Am. Dr.)......
Feb. 17—Pawnee Love (Indian Dr.)..........
Feb. 19—Pathe's Weekly No. 8—1912 (Top.)..1000
Feb. 21—Marriage or Death (Am. Dr.)........1000
Feb. 22—Poor Jimmy (Am. Dr.)...............1000
Feb. 24—Phantom Lovers (Am. Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 26—Pathe's Weekly, No. 9—1912 (Topical)
Feb. 28—The Squaw's Debt of Gratitude (Dr.)..
Feb. 29—The Ordeal (Com.)..................
Mar. 2—His Mexican Sweetheart (Dr.)........
Mar. 4—Pathe's Weekly, No. 10, 1912 (Topical)
Mar. 6—Cholera on the Plains (Am.-Dr.)......
Mar. 7—Buster's Nightmare (Am-Com.)......
Mar. 8—Small Trades in Havana (Ind.)......
Mar. 9—How the Play Was Advertised (Am.-Com.) ....

C. G. P. C.

Jan. 26—The Countess de Challant (Dr.)......
Jan. 30—Mr. Bughouse Is Cured (Com.)........
Jan. 30—Farming in Tunis (Scenic)..........
Jan. 30—How Plants Are Born, Live and Die (Educational) ....
Feb. 2—The Masked Ball (Dr.)..............1000
Feb. 6—Roentgen's X-Rays (Scientific)........
Feb. 6—Excursion in the Swiss Alps (Sc.)....
Feb. 7—A Visit to the Dome of the Milan Cathedral (Sc.) ....
Feb. 8—The Three Kittens (Animal).,......
Feb. 9—Philemon and Baucis (Mythological)..
Feb. 9—Hunting Marabout in Abyssinia (Ind. and Sc.) ....
Feb. 13—Quieting the Neighbors (Com.).......
Feb. 13—New Year's Celebration in Japan (Sc.)
Feb. 16—La Favorita (Dr.)....................
Feb. 20—The Gamekeeper (Dr.) ....
Feb. 20—The Motion Picture Man in the Dark Continent (Sc.) ....
Feb. 23—The Presentiment (Dr.) ....
Feb. 23—Ancient Rome (Sc.) ....
Feb. 27—Asbestos Quarry (Ind.).............
Feb. 27—The Tumbler's Kids (Dr.)...........
Feb. 28—Wrestling in Indo China (Wrestling)..
Feb. 29—The Great Market in Tananarive, Madagascar (Scenic) ....
Mar. 1—An Adventure of Van Dyck (Dr.).....
Mar. 1—Hunting Bears in Malaya (Scenic)....
Mar. 5—The Six Little Drummers (Com.-Dr.)
Mar. 7—Starfish, Sea Uuchins and Scallops (Educational) ....
Mar. 8—An Episode of the Hundred Years War (Hist.-Dr.)..................

SELIG.

Jan. 22—A Diplomat Interrupted (Com. Dr.)..1000
Jan. 23—The Bandit's Mask (Dr.)............1000
Jan. 25—Two Old Pals (Com. Dr.)............1000
Jan. 26—A Safe Proposition (Com.)..........
Jan. 26—Seeing Spokane (Sc.)...............
Jan. 29—The Test (Dr.).........................1000
Jan. 30—The Scapegoat (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 1—The Little Stowaway (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 2—Bunkie (Dr.)...........................1000
Feb. 5—The Girl He Left Behind (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 6—The Widow of Rickie O'Neal (Com.)..1000
Feb. 8—The Horseshoe (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 9—A Mysterious Gallant (Com.).........
Feb. 9—First Aid to the Injured (Edu.)........
Feb. 12—A Broken Spur (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 13—Disillusioned (Dr.)....................1000
Feb. 15—The Hypnotic Detective (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 16—The Little Match Seller (Dr.).......
Feb. 16—The Taos Indians at Home, New Mexico (Educational) ....
Feb. 19—The Danites—Part 1 (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 20—The Danites—Part 2 (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 22—When Memory Calls (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 23—A Persistent Suitor (Com.)..........
Feb. 23—Seeing Detroit (Sport. & Sc.)........
Feb. 26—When Women Rule (Dr.)............1000
Feb. 27—In Little Italy (Dr.).................1000
Feb. 29—The "Diamond S" Ranch (Western)..1000
Mar. 1—As Told by Princess Bess (Dr.).......1000
Mar. 4—The Shrinking Rawhide (Dr.) 1000
Mar. 5—The Ace of Spades (Dr.) . ..1000
Mar. 7—The Brotherhood of Man (Dr.) 1000
Mar. 8—Hypnotized (Com.) 1000

VITAGRAPH.

Jan. 27—For the Honor of the Family (Dr.)..1000
Jan. 29—Where the Money Went (Com.-Dr.)..1000
Jan. 30—Indian Romeo and Juliet (Dr.)........1000
Jan. 31—A Timely Rescue (Dr.).................1000
Feb. 2—The First Violin (Dr.).................1000
Feb. 3—A Problem in Reduction (Com.).......1000
Feb. 5—The Law Or the Lady (Dr.).........1000
Feb. 6—Umbrellas To Mend (Com.).........1000
Feb. 7—The Picture Writer (Dr.).............1000
Feb. 9—Her Boy (Dr.).........................1000
Feb. 10—Playmates (Dr.)......................1000
Feb. 12—The Heart of a Man (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 13—Winning is Losing (Com.-Dr.)........1000
Feb. 14—Bunny and the Twins (Com.)........1000
Feb. 16—The Chocolate Revolver (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 17—The Hobo's Redemption (Dr.).......1000
Feb. 19—The Struggle (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 20—The Love of John Ruskin (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 21—Her Last Shot (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 23—Cure for Pokeritis (Com.)............1000
Feb. 24—Cowboy Damon and Pythias (Dr.)....1000
Feb. 26—Stenographer Wanted (Com.).........1000
Feb. 27—Justice of the Desert (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 28—The Patchwork Quilt (Dr.)..........1000
Mar. 1—The Diamond Brooch (Dr.) 1000
Mar. 2—The Telephone Girl (Com.) 1000
Mar. 4—Lulu's Anarchist (Com.) 1000
Mar. 5—Cardinal Wolsey (Hist. Dr.).........1000
Mar. 6—Irene's Infatuation (Com.) 1000
Mar. 8—How States Are Made (W. Dr.) 1000
Mar. 9—Mrs. Carter's Necklace (Dr.) 1000

Capital Wanted

To introduce a new process which will produce Moving Picture Positives of Superior quality, at half the present price. Experimental plant in operation. Greatest invention in the moving picture line since its inception.

For Particulars address
CHEMIST........ care of Moving Picture World

THE NEW BELL
SOLDERLESS TERMINALS

Weight increased twenty-five per cent, and diameter of holes increased to one-quarter inch.

Easily attached by the use of pliers, making a sure contact.

	Per Dozen
No. 1, for No. 6 or 8 wire,	$1.00
No. 2, for No. 10 or smaller wire,	.75

All Exchanges, or
THE BELL & HOWELL CO.
217 W. Illinois St., CHICAGO

MAKE YOUR LOBBY DISPLAY ATTRACTIVE

¶ Put in our Easels and Poster Frames and watch your attendance grow.

Brass Rails
Brass Push and Kick Plates, Door Guard Rails, Etc.
LOW PRICES BEST WORK
DON'T DELAY but write today for complete catalog
AGENTS WANTED
THE NEWMAN MFG. CO., 717-719 Sycamore St. CINCINNATI, O.

As the Operator Looks at it

As the Operator Looks at It

Just notice how easy this operator takes it. He doesn't have to work over a dangerous juice consuming rheostat at furnace heat any-more since the

Fort Wayne Compensarc

was installed.

He can control the machine perfectly now with one hand--gets a clearer, whiter, steadier light and can adjust it to any of the three intensities without even the faintest flicker.

When we sold this machine we guaranteed it would absolutely

Cut 2-3 from the Monthly Lighting Bill

That sounded almost too good to be true, but they put one in on our 30 day free trial plan.

Did the machine "make good?" Well, the first month it reduced the bill from $22.70 to $9.24 and they operated more hours and got better light than ever before.

We can do just as well for you regardless of what voltage you are using and if you will send for our little free booklet, we'll explain how we do it.

Remember you are paying the Lighting Company 66 2-3 per cent more than you need to every day you wait.

Fort Wayne Electric Works
of General Electric Company
1402 Broadway
Fort Wayne, Indiana

RELIANCE FILMS

Two Big Hits!

Wednesday, March 6th, 1912
THE YEGGMAN
How a yeggman, through the kindness and charity of a young girl, reforms and gives his life to save hers. Not bloodthirsty melodrama but sensationally strong.

Saturday, March 9, 1912
THE BETTER MAN
A strong, simple story of rural New England, rivalling "Way Down East" in its atmosphere and heart interest. Tremendous cast! All the old fashioned country sports! Exceptional photography.

RELIANCE.

CARLTON MOTION PICTURE LABORATORIES, 540 West 21st St, New York

The Operator's Bible

A MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK
Price $1.50 Postage Paid

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
125 EAST 23rd STREET :: :: NEW YORK CITY

NO LET UP

THE NATIONAL PROGRAM has hammered its way to the front line on merit. What you know of us is what you hear and what you may have seen of our pictures. The NATIONAL PROGRAM is gathering momentum every hour in its onward rush. The doubter, the skeptic, and the unbeliever have become enthusiastic. Six months back you could hear the "Mud Slinger" crying, "they can't make a program."—Then they modified the criticism to, "they can't show quality," until now, in panic, they cry, "too much European."

$10,000.00

Modern enterprise and brains, with an AMERICAN DIRECTOR in every factory represented in our program, is a combination never paralleled in the picture business.—There you have the whole facts.

Absolutely Nothing

conceivable in blocking tactics can down the unparalleled merit of

NATIONAL PICTURES

21,000 Feet of World Beaters

Real Pictures—the Money-Getting Type—Explain the Demand

Insist on your rights, NATIONAL PICTURES AND PROTECTION

Have You a NATIONAL EXCHANGE in Your Territory?

IF NOT, WE ARE PREPARED TO NEGOTIATE WITH YOU

EUROPEAN

Hepworth
Clarendon
Cricks & Martin
Unitas
Mono
Pasquale, Italy
Film D'Art
Mendel
Helios
Comerio
Latium
Deutsches Bioscope
Savoia
Deutsches Biograph
Messters

AMERICAN

Knickerbocker
Belmar
Carey
Wrytograph
Federal Plantation
Rose
Mohawk
Oklahoma
California
Washington
Shamrock

TWO SHAMROCKS EVERY WEEK

Write or Call for Particulars Correspondence Invited

National Film Distributing Co.

145 West 45th Street, NEW YORK, U. S. A.

nother Great Imp Triumph, on the Thursday preceding Saint Patrick's Day. The Imp will elease a 2,000 foot feature as a regular Thursday Imp. Look for the Grand and Glorious Irish lassic. SHAMUS O'BRIEN.

emember the release date. The Fourteenth of March. Remember it is a special Thursday Imp, 2,000 feet in length. Wire your exchange right now, for early booking.

Be sure you're right
Then go ahead
YOU make no mistake by trusting us with your slide business ansas City Slide Co.
1332 Grand Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

Swaab Film Service Co.

(INDEPENDENT FILM ONLY)

Will supply you with the Sales Co.'s choice program. Ask for terms.

Motiograph and Power Machines

Carbons—Electra, $2.00 per 100; $19.00 per 1000, and other supplies at corresponding prices.

129 N. Eighth Street Philadelphia Pa.

If you are in the Market for

SECOND HAND FILMS

Write to the largest and most reliable Dealers and Importers of these goods in the United States

International Film Traders
Incorporated
5 West 14th St., New York City

Headquarters for

SBESTOS

CRTAINS and PICTURE BOOTHS

D
F
B KLET

C. W. Trainer Mfg. Co.
39 Pearl St., Boston

TITLES

Made in our own complete factory, 8c per ft.

TILLEY BROTHERS
AUSTIN, TEXAS

In answering advertisements kindly mention the Moving Picture World.

NG SLIDES

ORTH AMERICAN SLIDE CO.
3 N. Ninth Street Phila., Pa.

lides of the General Film Co.'s Fire, hila., now ready. A set of 20 slides, 8.00; order quick. The Great Austin lood, 22 plain slides, $4.50; 22 colored lides, $8.00. Italy-Turkish War, 30 plain lides, $6.50; 30 colored slides, $10.00.

L I D E

NG SLIDES

PATHE'S WEEKLY

The Motion Picture Exhibitor's Mascot

ISSUED EVERY MONDAY

Book It Every Week

MAKE YOUR OWN LOCAL MOVING PICTURES

Get the "Junior Professional Outfit"

The only way to make your little theater prominent. Become acquainted with the simple art of making films. Help uplifting the business in general—do something for your town and for yourself—complete darkroom equipment with full information as to taking, developing, printing, chemicals, etc., furnished with the outfit. Get this outfit now. You need it at once. Original headquarters for film making machinery. My own patents. Everything in the Moving Picture line. Special films to order. Special lenses, slides and machinery. All "Imp Films" are made with my machines and you know Imp Films are good. Single arc dissolvers and M. P. combined. Perforating, printing and developing done. Best jobbing laboratory in N. Y. Negatives entrusted in my hands will not be "duped." Write me at once!

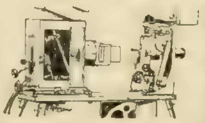
EBERHARD SCHNEIDER
219 2d Ave., near 14th St., New York

NOTICE EXHIBITORS

Fi up your front rows. Get the brightest and clearest cut pi ure by using my discovery. Send me 50 cents and I will te you how to make screen yourself or I will ship screen ready to ang in sizes under 9 x 12 for $20. This screen has them all be t and the cost is nothing compared to others and don't bother the eyes at all. Write me today.

IT A BEAUTY. ONCE USED, ALWAYS USED.
NC LICKER. NO RAIN. MAKES OLD FILM LOOK NEW.

J. W. TEACH 12 EAST MAIN STREET, SPRINGFIELD, OHIO
DREAMLAND THEATRE



20,000 roll tickets, $1.20; 50 5/8 cored carbons, $1.15; stereopticon objectives, 50c to $3.00; stereopticons, $15; rheostats, $3 to $5; arc lamps, $1.75, $2 and $2.25; condensers, 50c; calcium jets, $2.80; acetylene jets, $2.50; gas generators, $3.50; moving picture objectives, $2.75; jackets, $2. List of moving picture repair parts at fair prices. Sprocket wheels, 85c; films, 1c a foot. Catalogue. All makes of moving picture machines repaired at reasonable prices. L. HETZ, 302 East 23rd St., New York City

B AN OPERATOR

Ou ome study course tells how. It is scientific, prac tica nd complete. Illustrated with many original dra gs it goes down to the kernel. Our course mak you a skilled operator. You can secure a lice anywhere after completing our course. Ask for oklet B—it is free.

DIAMOND OPERATING SCHOOL
8 S ith 15th St., St. Louis, Mo.

DANTE'S INFERNO

(Milano, 5 Reels, Licensed—Helios, 2 Reels, Independent)

Open for Bookings in Greater New York City and State

SUPERIOR FEATURE FILM CO. 32 UNION SQUARE, EAST NEW YORK CITY

COMING! COMING!

"THE LOAN SHARK"

A TREMENDOUSLY SENSATIONAL IMP.

Why Spend Money for Experimen
When We Offer You a Perfect Screen, Long Past That Stag

A screen that rolls
Beautiful Daylight pictures
Saves half your juice bill
No eye strain, glare
No veil to mar the perfect surface

A PERFECT reproduction and blending of the natural colors of your picture, with the soft, harmonious effects that are true to life and nature only

Our price less than many inferior curtains now on the market. Write today for particulars

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREENS

Manufactured by AMERICAN THEATRE CURTAIN & SUPPLY CO., Main & Chestnut, St. Louis,

---

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Bound Volume No. 10

October to December, 1911

(THREE MONTHS)

NOW READY

$1.50 EACH NET $1.50

Postage 60c. extra, or Express Charges collect

PUBLICATION OFFICE

Moving Picture World, 125 East 23d St., N.Y. City

W. E. GREEN
FILM EXCHANGE,

THE OLDEST AND LARGEST INDEPE
FILM EXCHANGE IN NEW ENG

Mr. Exhibitor:

Start the Season right by using an Independent Service from a Reliable House. We are buying the Output of the Sales Co. and have some choice services open. Write, wire, or call today at

W. E. Greene Film Exchange, In
228 TREMONT ST., BOSTON, MAS

Telephone: 2187-3790 Oxford

SPECIAL THREE SHEET POSTER

Besides our regular one-sheet posters we have issued three-sheets for the film

THE HEIR APPARENT

Edison's release of March 8th, which will be ready for shipment Feb. 24th. Prices as usu

Wire or order by letter at once from the

A. B. C. COMPANY
CLEVELAND, OHI

Our posters draw capacity houses.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

as Lichtbild-Theater"

ost up-to-date and most comprehensive Journal of the Cinematograph Industry in Germany

Editor-Proprietor: LUDWIG BRAUNER

RLIN SW 68. MARKGRAFENSTRASSE 92/92.

bscription abroad, $3.00. Write for specimen copy.

AKE 'EM YOURSELF SLIDES

Make them yourself. Written with pen and ink typewriter. Three minutes to make a slide. Used r advertising slides, to announce future or feature ogrammes, for chorus slides when chorus slide is issing. We send four colors of gelatin. The slides ok well and any one can make them. They are ndy also for announcing vaudeville acts. In fact ey may be readily used for anything you may wish say to your audience.

For the sum of three dollars ($3) cash with order, e will send by express, charges not prepaid, or .50 by registered mail, prepaid, the following: 24 cover glass, 1 package binder strips, 1 dozen ats, 1 instruction sheet, 1 form sheet and 50 strips sorted colors gelatin—enough for from 300 to 400 des. Order now. Address

UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO.

/est 9th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

---

argest Mfrs. WURLITZER Established 1856

A Wurlitzer Piano Orchestra is used inside this theatre te for 32-page booklet, showing zer Automatic Musical Instruments

the leading picture theatres of the country.

urlitzer Instruments furnish better music than musicians expenses. 50 different styles; time payments; big . If you can't call, write to our nearest branch.

Rudolph Wurlitzer Company

ATI NEW YORK CHICAGO PHILADELPHIA
4th 25-27 W. 32d 329-331 S. Wabash 1835 Chestnut
CLEVELAND BUFFALO LOUISVILLE COLUMBUS O.
St. 800 Huron Road 701 Main 426 W. Green 57 E. Main

EXHIBITORS' HEADQUARTERS

CALEHUFF SUPPLY COMPANY

(Incorporated)

50 North Eighth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Jobbers in Edison Kinetoscopes, Powers Cameragraphs.

Machines repaired by expert mechanics. Genuine parts only used.

SPECIALTIES

Mirror Screens
Chairs
Tickets
Pianos
Bio & Electric Carbons
Special Gundlach Lenses
Condensers
Edison Transformers
Ft. Wayne Compensarcs
Asbestos State Booths
Asbestos Wire
Switches
Plugs
Spotlights
Gas Making Outfits
Limes
Film Cement
Disinfectant
Scenery
Stage Effects
Theatres Bought, Sold, Rented

CHAS. A CALEHUFF, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

WORLD WANTS WORK WONDERS

Read Classified Advertisements, Page 598

FIRST TIME ADVERTISED. WINDSOR'S CUT-OUT SLIDES

You make them with mucilage. Non-breakable and equal in appearance to any slide made. An outfit good for years costs $2.50. Postal brings sample and particulars.

E. S. WINDSOR, 414 N. ARLINGTON AVENUE, BALTIMORE, MD.

INDIRECT LIGHT

ENABLES you to have "Daylight Pictures" with any curtain or machine.

Thousands of houses have installed "THE EYE COMFORT SYSTEM" of "INDIRECT ILLUMINATION" during the past year.

Not a light in range of vision nor any light that will throw a shadow on the screens.

No glaring light to detract from the picture—more perfect detail—saves expense of usher.

At small cost you can secure this equipment.

Free engineering report. Don't let amateur electricians arrange your lighting system. Our expert engineering staff will furnish report free of charge. Fill out coupon below and mail to us today.

National X-Ray Reflector Co.,
235 Jackson Blvd., Chicago.

Distance, screen to machine ....

Width of house ....Ceiling height ....

Name and Address ....

"ELECTRA" CARBONS

TRADE MARK

PINK LABEL

THE CARBON OF SUPERLATIVE QUALITY

LASTS LONGEST. GIVES BEST RESULTS. WHITEST, BRIGHTEST AND STEADIEST LIGHT. ABSOLUTELY UNIFORM IN DIAMETER

Imported solely by

HUGO REISINGER 11 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

American Moving Picture Machine Co.

MANUFACTURERS OF THE

STANDARD

Automatic Moving Picture Machine

101-102 Beekman Street New York

BIOGRAPH BRAN

(" Arco-Biograph ")

Picture Machine

CARBONS

The original Reliable Brand
without abbreviation of marks

L. E. FRORUP & CO.
232 Greenwich St. New Yo

EVERY CLASS OF SERVICE

A New Independent Film Exchange

Offering to the trade an

EXCEPTIONAL UP-TO-DATE FILM SERVICE

A perfect organization of experienced film men who know your troubles and will do away with them.

WE HAVE A SELECTION OF
24 REELS PER WEEK
FROM WHICH TO BOOK

PERFECT EQUIPMENT
RIGHT TREATMENT
PROMPT SERVICE

We Book Your Service One Week in Advance. We Send Posters One Day in Advance. We Renovate Our Film Every 30 Days.

THE MAJESTIC FILM SERVICE COMPANY,

Telephone Franklin 2330. 216 North Fifth Ave., Corner of Lake St., Chicago, Ill

DIRECT Jobber for Powers, Edison and Motiograph Machine

WHOLESALE

EVERYTHING IN MOTION PICTURE EQUIPMENT EXCEPT THE FILM

MACKIE HAS IT

H. A. MACKIE, Inc. 21 East 14th St. New York City

PEARL WHITE CONDENSERS 65c. EACH. SOLD ELSEWHERE FOR $1.

THE CRYSTAL FILM CO.

PRODUCERS OF

"CRYSTAL" and "ARROW" FILMS

SPECIAL MOTION PICTURES FOR ADVERTISING, EDUCATIONAL, AND OTHER PURPOSES.

PERFORATING, PRINTING AND DEVELOPING

A PERFECT PLANT, EQUIPPED WITH THE VERY BEST MACHINERY AND OPERATED BY EXPERTS.

INSPECTION OF OUR STUDIO AND LABORATORIES IS INVITED

THE CRYSTAL FILM CO.

WENDOVER AND PARK AVES., NEW YORK, N. Y.

Moving Picture Camera WANTED

Give Price and Description

ADDRESS:—

Cameraman, care of Moving Picture World

LECTURING the PICTURES

HUGH F. HOFFMAN

Lecturer of Special Releases

NEW YORK CITY
AND VICINITY

Now booking engagements for Homer's "Odyssey," Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, East Lynne, Dante's "Inferno," Delhi Durbar, She, and other Topical or Dramatic feature pictures.

Address care of
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
Telephone Gramercy 1344

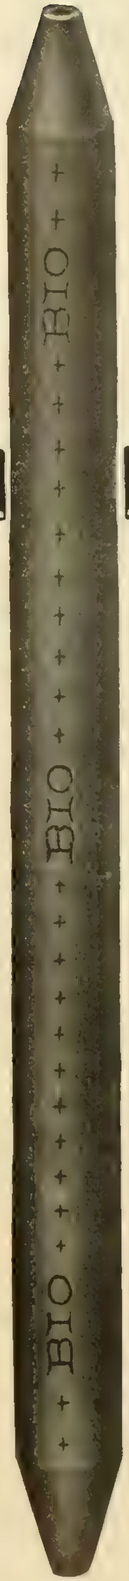
125 E. 23d St.
NEW YORK

SEE ☛ THE POINT

BIO

RECOGNIZED STANDARD

CARBONS



THERE ARE

Two Points

TO

BIO CARBONS

Besides they burn longer, burn brighter, burn whiter than any other.

None genuine without the word "BIO" on every carbon. Take no substitute.

Every "BIO" User
A "BIO" Booster

Charles L. Kiewert Co.

NEW YORK
165 Greenwich St.

MILWAUKEE
114 Huron St.

SAN FRANCISCO
19 Sutter St.

McKENNA

BRASS
RAILINGS
EASELS
GRILLES
CUSPIDORS

BRASS
KICK PLATES
STAIR TREADS, DOOR SILLS

McKenna Bros. Brass Co.
PITTSBURGH, PA.

SCENARIO WRITERS!

If your scenarios do not sell find out why. Perhaps your manuscript can be rewritten and made saleable, and your mistakes may be corrected in future manuscripts. The author of "Technique of the Photoplay," etc., will give your manuscript personal criticism and revision for a fee of only $2.

REVISION—Scenarios having a reasonable chance of a sale will be edited and revised and a typewritten copy supplied for one dollar per finished page. Send the manuscript and a reading fee of one dollar. If the scenario will not warrant further expense, it will be returned to you; if it does, you will be advised as to full cost. Please note that this covers no criticism.

Exhibitors!

Submit your difficulties to the author of "The Photoplay Theater," and other articles on management, for advice and suggestion, the result of twenty years' experience in amusement enterprises. Simple questions $1 each.

Epes Winthrop Sargent
Box 70, Madison Square Station
New York City

Operators!

I guarantee quick and satisfactory repair work on all machines. Only genuine parts supplied. Get my prices on ONE DROP OIL and BULL DOG CEMENT the best articles of their kind on the market

H. A. MACKIE CO., Inc.
21 East 14th Street New York
'Phone: 2478 Stuyvesant

OPERA CHAIRS

FOR EVERY PURPOSE
1,000 STYLES

ESTABLISHED 1865
WRITE FOR CAT. No. 31

115-117 So. Wabash Ave.
Chicago, Ill.

The A. H. Andrews Co.

Branches in all Leading Cities
New York Office, 1165 Broadway.
Seattle Office, 508-10-12 First Ave., So.
San Francisco Office, 673 Mission St.

Get Our Prices
Before You Buy

The Wisconsin Seating
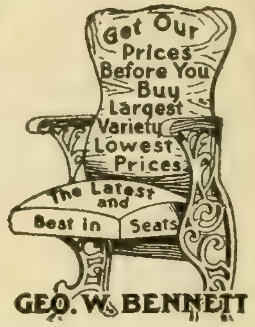
Company
New London,
Wisconsin, U. S. A.

OPERA CHAIRS



GEO. W. BENNETT
34-36 E. 3rd Street
CINCINNATI, OHIO

OH! MR. EXHIBITOR!! THINK OF THE MOTHERLESS, THE FATHERLESS, AND THE

Childless homes as the result of theater panics. Protect the lives of your patrons by installing our "ANTI-PANIC" THEATER CHAIR. 26 Dead at Cannonsburg, 176 at Boyertown, 575 at Iriquois Theater, Chicago. Make these horrors impossible.
Our chair is a friend to the Public.
It advertises your theater and makes your business grow.
It is a space-saver, life-saver, money-saver. Gives 25% more seating.

IT IS THE ONLY SANITARY CHAIR

It will make your theater all aisles.
It is the world's greatest theater chair, perfected to the highest degree.

Write today for Circular A. THE HARDESTY MFG. CO., Canal Dover, Ohio, U. S. A.

Independent Films For Sale

Low Prices—Send for Price List
F. C. LEIBOW, 61 W. 14th St., N. Y. City

We Offer 300 more to the Trap Drummers

Get your order in at once. At our special offer price—$10.00

This high-grade Orchestra Drum, 10 thumb screw rods, transparent drum heads, solid shells, maple, rosewood, walnut.

Size, 3 x 14—3 x 15—4 x 15—4 x 14. This offer for September and October.

E. P. Zeidler Drum Co., Cleveland, O.

CHEAP

STEEL FRAME
THEATRE CHAIRS
ABSOLUTELY NON-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small Theatres and Moving Picture Shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

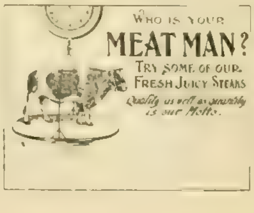
Second Hand Chairs

Also seating for Out-of-door use.

Address Dept. W

STEEL FURNITURE CO., GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
New York: 150 5th Ave. Pittsburg: 318 Bissel Block.
Philadelphia, 610 Flanders Bldg. Chicago: 133 So. 5th Ave.

In answering advertisements kindly mention The Moving Picture World.



Erko Advertising and Announcement Slides

Are superior in quality and artistic design. 25c. up. Send for catalog

STEREOPTICONS and MOVING PICTURE MACHINES and CALCIUM GAS

Complete stock of guaranteed repair parts for all machines

ERKER BROS. OPTICAL CO., 601 Olive Street, St Louis, Mo.

☆ G. MÉLIÈS ☆

SOUTHERN PACIFIC
SECTION 35.
Rosin cheapens soap but injures clothes

JOE AND NELL, LOVERS

SEVEN BARS OF GOLD

Manuel has seven bars of gold to be delivered to Joe, the station agent. With Nell's mother, he plots to steal one, and although Nell loves Joe, she is forced into the plot to put the blame on him. Manuel delivers the seven bars to Joe, when Nell's scream is heard. Joe runs to her rescue and Manuel hides one of the bars. Manuel later demands a receipt. Joe refuses. The sheriff is called. The evidence against Joe is so strong that he is arrested. Then to the amazement of all Nell reveals the hiding place, accuses the real culprit, and Manuel is held for the theft.

G. MELIES, 204 EAST 38th ST., NEW YORK CITY

APPROX. 1000 FT. 3-7-12

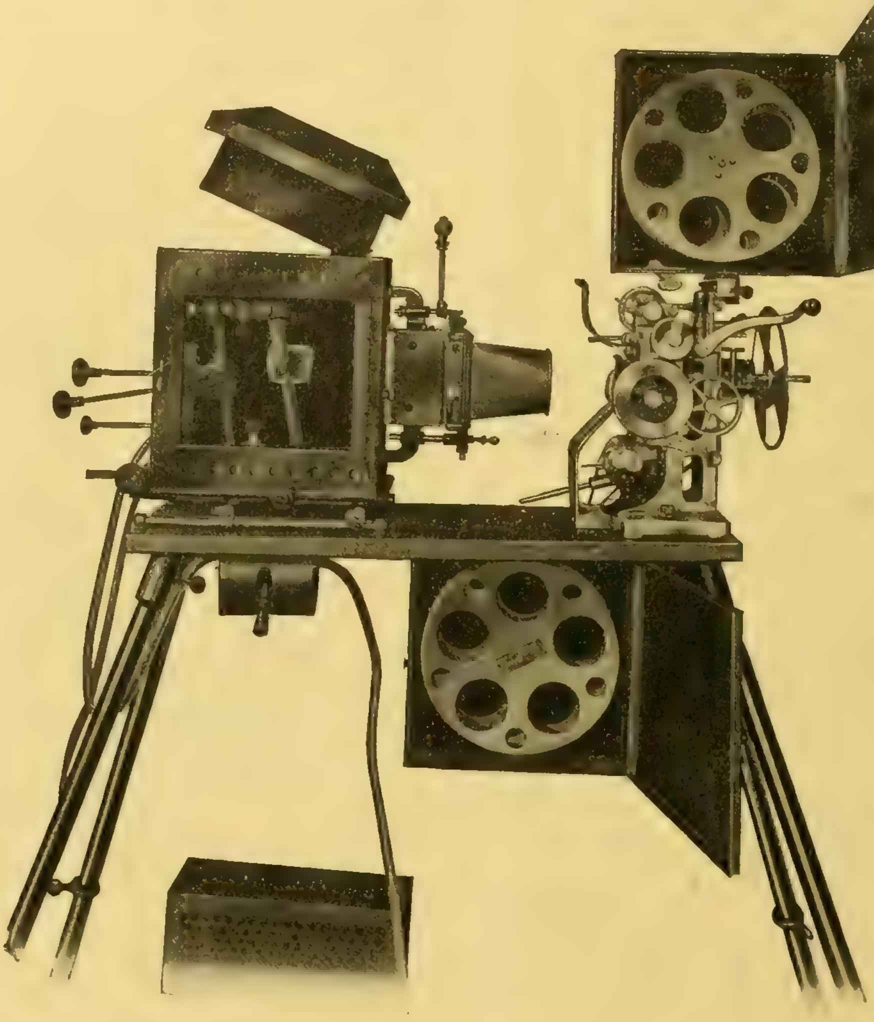
Power's Perfect Projection

The three P's which make for prosperity and are to be found in

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH No. 6



The success of our machine lies right here. PERFECT PROJECTION. It matters not how perfect your film nor how good your subject; if it is not projected properly, the result is a failure, and dissatisfied customers who never return.

Our No. 6 projects a picture which is absolutely without flicker. It always gives results which will please your patrons and bring them back to you.

What you want, Mr. Exhibitor, is satisfied customers, a STEADY TRADE. A No. 6 is the man "out in front" working for your interests and it will give you the only results that count—SATISFIED CUSTOMERS, A FULL CASH DRAWER.

Let us send you catalogue G telling all about it.

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

90 GOLD STREET, NEW YORK

For fourteen years the leading makers of motion picture machines

CAREY PRESS, N. Y.

Vol. 11. No. 10 March 9. 1912 Price. 10c.

H F HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "The Fur Smuggler" (Reliance).

125 East 23rd Street New York—Chicago 169 W. Wasnington St.

THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

Tues. Mar. 19 "NICHOLAS NICKLEBY" by Dickens
IN TWO REELS

Tues. Mar. 19 "NICHOLAS NICKLEBY" by Dickens
IN TWO REELS

"Nicholas Nickleby"

By Charles Dickens, In Two Reels, Will Do For Your Box Office in 1912 What Thanhouser's "David Copperfield" (By Charles Dickens) Did For Your Box Office in 1911

ASK YOUR EXCHANGE FOR
3-Sheet Lithos

RELEASED TUESDAY, MAR. 12

For Flight-Loving Photofans

FLYING TO FORTUNE

features a dandy airship flight and—some good acting. Therefore it is a GOOD AIRSHIP PICTURE, the acting is there WITH the airship. We do not believe that an airship alone makes an airship story. There MUST be a real plot, there must be real PLAYING. You get all in this reel. BUT when will you GET THIS REEL?

RELEASED FRIDAY, MAR. 15

For Photofans Who Like "The Kid"

THE POACHER

gives "The Thanhouser Kid" a chance to display her talents in a very new way—it is quite a new kind of story for her to "show" in. The reel is rich in human interest and pretty exciting at times, since a man-hunt figures in it "big." But the motive is essentially uplifting, and the whole picture will find appreciation from the most refined audiences.

CHECK 'EM AS YOU GET 'EM "IN MARCH" — FOUR MORE FEATURES

☐ FRIDAY, 1st
The Arab's Bride
Florida Masterpiece

☐ TUESDAY, 12th
Flying to Fortune
Florida Sensational

☐ TUESDAY, 19th
Nicholas Nickleby
By DICKENS (2 Reels)

☐ FRIDAY, 29th
"My Baby's Voice"
Heart Interest Special

Thanhouser Co., New Rochelle, N. Y.
Send me FREE Lobby Decorations for your features "In March." I am / am not getting "The Thanhouser News"
Name.........................
Address.........................
Exchange.........................

THANHOUSER COMPANY

New Rochelle, New York

Sales Company Agents for U. S. and Canada

☞ Mail ! ☞ Mail ! ☞ Mail !

GETTING 2 A WEEK? 2
TC

FOUR-A-WEEK
Essanay

LAUGH, LAUGH, LAUGH, LAUGH!
You Simply Can't Help It When You've Seen the Funny Films We Have For You This Week!

RELEASED TUESDAY, MARCH 5th

"THE TURNING POINT"

A vital, absorbing story of a confidence man reformed through the tender mother-love of his intended victim. An impressive sermon that strikes deep and true.

RELEASED THURSDAY, MARCH 7th

"GETTING A HIRED GIRL"

Now begins your laughter. If you have an enemy, send him to see this picture and he'll giggle himself to death. Simply made for mirth.

RELEASED FRIDAY, MARCH 8th

"THE BABY OF THE BOARDING HOUSE"
and
"TROMBONE TOMMY"

And still hilarity reigns! A split-reel of comedy corkers commended cheerfully for the worst case of "blues." Your pet "jinx" will flee for life at your roars of laughter! Don't miss 'em!

RELEASED SATURDAY, MARCH 9th

"A ROMANCE OF THE WEST"

A stirring tale of old Arizona days when might made right, and justice was a side-issue. Abounds in corking situations and is just the film to feature on your classy bill.

REMEMBER NEXT WEEK! Those Two Splendid Photo Plays
"The Ranch Widower's Daughters" and "The Bandit's Child"

MR. SHOWMAN: You can get complete advance information about our releases by just sending us your name. Why hesitate?

DO IT NOW! SEND IN YOUR NAME FOR OUR MAILING LIST!

Essanay Film Manufacturing Co.
521 First National Bank Building, Chicago, Ill.
OFFICES IN
LONDON BERLIN BARCELONA

JUST BEFORE ST. PATRICKS DAY

"SHAMUS O'BRIEN"

MARCH 14 A FEATURE IMP MARCH 14

(Copyright 1912)

2000 feet Three Sheet and One Sheet Posters

The day you show this Irish classic in your theatre every true Irishman will doff his hat to you. "Shamus O'Brien" is a figure in Irish poetry dear to every son of Erin. The story as the Imp has filmed it deals with heroism, treachery, a man-hunt, capture, death sentence and thrilling escape. Every foot of the film is thrilling, gripping and powerful. We ask the Independent exhibitors of the United States and Canada to demand, demand, demand this magnificent THURSDAY IMP. Released March 14th—three days before the "sivinteenth o' Ma-a-arch."

EVERY ACTOR IN IT IS IRISH! SO IS O'TURNER THE PRODUCER!

"A TIMELY REPENTANCE"

(Copyright 1912)

The Monday Imp of March 11th. A story which shows how a moving picture show prevented the breaking up of a family. It's a great story and a great boost for moving pictures. Demand it!

"PERCY LEARNS TO WALTZ"

(Copyright 1912)

A corking good Imp comedy, released Saturday, March 16th. Part of the famous "Saturday Split Imp." The other part of this "split" is called "Daring Feats on U. S. Cavalry Horses." Demand it!

WATCH FOR THIS IMP!

We will soon release "A Millionaire for a Day," showing how it feels to be rich for 24 hours. The big comedy treat of the season. See that you get an early booking as soon as we tell you the date! It will convulse your patrons and fatten your profits sure as fate!

AN IMPLET INNOVATION!

Hereafter "The Implet" will contain in each issue a specially written and illustrated story based on a forthcoming release. Mr. Thomas Bedding himself will be the author, so you know mighty well they will be first-class reading matter. Do you get "The Implet"?

IMP FILMS COMPANY IMP

The other day the Imp paid a man to jump off the Brooklyn Bridge. The film will be ready soon. Watch!

IMP FILMS COMPANY
102 West 101st Street New York
CARL LAEMMLE, Pres.

DEMAND 3 IMPS EVERY WEEK

COMING! COMING!

"THE LOAN SHARK"

A TREMENDOUSLY SENSATIONAL IMP.

FOULKE E. BRANDT IS RELEASED!

BUT—his release has not created more interest than our releases of Thursday, March 7th and Sunday, March 10th, will cause!

We don't make a great ado about the great things we do—we just do them! Two more due! D'you know? —we've got our pictures for next July ready now! Just shows how FAR AHEAD we are!

FIRE!

The single syllable means volumes; danger, death, the relentless force of the red, dread monster; the crimson holocaust, the flaming tongues that speak doom and devastation and then—the defenders, the army of blue-coated, blue-blooded men who adopt heroism as a business!

"Making Heroes"

Released Thursday, March 7th

Shows the Firemen's Training School and the arduous art of our professional heroes.

On the same reel

"Blowing Up the John Day Rapids"

Ever hear of the engineering operation by which water is blasted? The U. S. Government recently blew up the John Day Rapids! Rex was there! Several hundred feet of eloquent celluloid show how the scientific feat was performed! An industrial reel with dramatic interest!

LIFE

is a puzzle, but the answer is somewhere. Most times it's way down deep in our hearts. Hope, the Rex Company thinks, is the music in the comic opera of life; so we've built a story of hope and despair around a girl's violin—and the girl is

MARION LEONARD

"Songs of Childhood Days"

Released Sunday, March 10th

The violin and its story will play on your heart-strings!

Mark Twain

once made these sounds on paper: "There are two times when a man should not speculate—when he can afford it and when he can't!" Running Rex is not speculation; it's an investment!

Our first two releases in March show the March of progress we are making!

The Rex Motion Picture Masterpiece Co.

573 ELEVENTH AVENUE : : : : NEW YORK

"EVERY INCH A FILM"

Sold through Motion Picture Dist. & Sales Co.

Your exchange knows you want Sunday and Thursday REX, but REMIND IT!

EVERYBODY'S DOING IT

DOING WHAT? THE INDEPENDENT TROT

To our AUTHORIZED EXCHANGES Situated

EVERYWHERE

THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES AND CANADA

CANADA.
Applegath, L. J., & Sons., 145 Yonge St., Toronto, Ont.
Canadian Film Exchange, Calgary, Alberta.
Canadian Film Exchange, Toronto, Ont.
Gaumont Co., 4 & 6 Queen St., Toronto.
Gaumont Co., 203 Loo Bldg., Vancouver, B. C.

CALIFORNIA.
California Film Exchange, 54 7th St., San Francisco.
Miles Bros., 1145 Mission St., San Francisco.
Miles Bros., 411 West 8th St., Los Angeles.
California Film Exchange, 514 S. Los Angeles St., Los Angeles.
F. B. Film Exchange, San Fernando Bldg., Los Angeles.

COLORADO.
W. H. Swanson Film Exch., 301 Railroad Bldg., Denver.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.
Washington Film Exchange, 428 9th St., N. W.

GEORGIA.
Consolidated Film & Supply Co., Rhodes Bldg., Atlanta.

ILLINOIS.
Anti-Trust Film Co., 128 W. Lake St., Chicago.
Majestic Film Service Co., 216 N. 5th Ave., Chicago.
H. & H. Film Exchange, 98 Jackson Bldg., Chicago.
Laemmle Film Service, 204 W. Lake St., Chicago.
Standard Film Exch., 168 W. Washington St., Chicago.

INDIANA.
Central Film Service, 119 N. Illinois St., Indianapolis.

IOWA.
Laemmle Film Service, 421 Walnut St., Des Moines.

KANSAS.
Wichita Film & Supply Co., 122 N. Market St., Wichita.

LOUISIANA.
Consolidated Film & Supply Co., 720 Maison Blanche Bldg., New Orleans.

MASSACHUSETTS.
Boston Film Rental Co., 665 Washington St., Boston.
W. E. Green Film Exchange, 228 Tremont St., Boston.

MARYLAND.
Baltimore Film Exch., 610 E. Baltimore St., Baltimore.

MINNESOTA.
Laemmle Film Service, 256 Hennepin St., Minneapolis.

MICHIGAN.
Michigan Film & Supply Co., 1106 Union Trust Bldg., Detroit.
Cadillac Film Exchange, 92 Griswold St., Detroit.

MISSOURI.
J. W. Morgan, 1310 Walnut St., Kansas City.
Swanson-Crawford Film Co., Century Bldg., St. Louis.
Western Film Exch., 15 W. 10th St., Kansas City.

MONTANA.
Pacific Film Exchange, Butte.

NEBRASKA.
Laemmle Film Service, 1312 Farnam St., Omaha.
Progressive Film Exchange, 1417 Farnam St., Omaha.

NEW YORK.
Empire Film Exchange, 150 E. 14th St., New York.
Great Eastern Film Exchange, 21 E. 14th St., New York.
Peerless Film Exchange, 5 E. 14th St., New York.
Metropolitan Film Exchange, 122 University Pl., New York.
Western Film Exchange, 145 W. 45th St., New York.
Rex Film Exchange, 84 N. Pearl St., Albany.
Victor Film Service, 39 Church St., Buffalo.

OKLAHOMA.
United Motion Picture Co., 112 Main St., Oklahoma City.

OREGON.
Independent W. F. Exchange, 84 7th St., Portland.

OHIO.
Buckeye Lake Shore Film Co., 422 N. High St., Columbus.
Cincinnati-Buckeye Film Co., 237 W. 4th Ave., Cincinnati.
Central, 109 W. 5th St., Cincinnati.
Lake Shore Film & Supply Co., 106 Prospect Ave., S. Cleveland.
Toledo Film Service, 120 Erie St., Toledo.
Victor Film Service, Prospect and Huron Sts., Cleveland.

PENNSYLVANIA.
Eagle Film Exchange, 23 N. 9th St., Philadelphia.
Exhibitors' Film Service Co., 49 S. Penn Ave., Wilkes-Barre.
Philadelphia Film Exch., 121 W. 9th St., Philadelphia.
Philadelphia Projection Co., 44 N. 9th St., Philadelphia.
Swaab Film Service Co., 129 N. 8th St., Philadelphia.
Independent Film Exchange, 415 Ferry St., Pittsburgh.
Pittsburgh Photoplay Co., 412 Ferry St., Pittsburgh.

TEXAS.
Texas Film Exchange, 1315½ Elm St., Dallas.

WASHINGTON.
Pacific Film Exchange, Globe Bldg., Seattle.

WISCONSIN.
Western Film Exch., 307 Enterprise Bldg., Milwaukee.

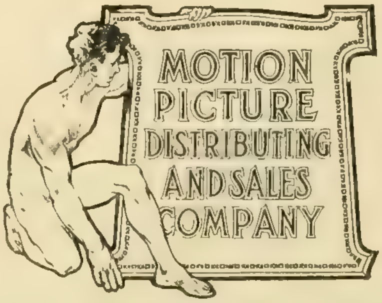
The Demand Is Increasing ALL THE TIME For This Programme

MONDAY — AMERICAN, CHAMPION, IMP, NESTOR.

TUESDAY—ECLAIR, MAJESTIC, POWERS, REPUBLIC, THANHOUSER.

WEDNESDAY — AMBROSIO, CHAMPION, NESTOR, RELIANCE, SOLAX.

THURSDAY—AMERICAN, ECLAIR, IMP, REX.



MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES COMPANY

FRIDAY—BISON (2 Reel Subjects), LUX, SOLAX, THANHOUSER.

SATURDAY — GT. NORTHERN, IMP, NESTOR, POWERS, RELIANCE, REPUBLIC.

SUNDAY — MAJESTIC, REX, ECLAIR.

The Above Facts are the Best Evidence of the EXCELLENCE OF OUR QUALITY

MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING & SALES COMPANY

111 EAST 14th STREET, NEW YORK, N. Y.

BLAZING THE TRAIL

"101" Bison TWO-REEL FEATURE "101" Bison

Released Friday, March 22

Showing the trail of civilization across the Western country; the emigrant train; the adventures of the Cooper family; the treachery of the Indians; the capture of Helen Cooper and the daring rescue; the terrible Indian gauntlet, etc.

THRILLING BATTLE SCENE---WONDERFUL ACTING BY STAR ARTISTS IN THE LEADING PARTS---A MASSIVE PRODUCTION WITH A COLOSSAL CAST, AMAZING IN GRANDEUR AND MAGNIFICENCE --- STAGED IN SCENES OF WILD AND WONDROUS BEAUTY.

"101" BISON FILMS ARE COPYRIGHTED

Take No Chances!

The penalty for infringement is severe and we will take drastic measures with all offenders. By booking your "101" Bison Films from the exchanges listed below you protect yourself from trouble. They have legitimate prints of our films.

A Reward of $250

Is offered for information that will lead to the conviction of any one using, exhibiting or making a dupe of our films. We are spending fortunes in their production and will protect ourselves and our buyers to the fullest extent.

SOLD ONLY THROUGH THE MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES COMPANY

Anti Trust Film Exchange	Chicago, Ill.
Applegath & Son	Toronto, Can.
Baltimore Film Exchange	Baltimore, Md.
Boston Film Rental Co	Boston, Mass.
*Cadillac Film Exchange	Detroit, Mich.
Central Film Service	Cincinnati, O.
Cincinnati-Buckeye Film Exchange	Cincinnati, O.
Consolidated Film Exchange	Atlanta, Ga.
*California Film Exchange	Los Angeles, Cal.
Canadian Film Exchange	Toronto, Can.
Canadian Film Exchange	Calgary, Can.
Empire Film Exchange	New York City.
Eagle Film Exchange	Philadelphia, Pa.
F. B. Exchange	Los Angeles, Cal.
Great Eastern Film Exchange	New York City.
Greene, W. E.	Boston, Mass.
*H. & H. Film Service	Chicago, Ill.
Independent Film Exchange	Pittsburg, Pa.
Independent Western Film Exchange	Portland, Ore.
Laemmle Film Service	Chicago, Ill.
Laemmle Film Service	Minneapolis, Minn.
Laemmle Film Service	Omaha, Neb.
Laemmle Film Service	Des Moines, Ia.
Majestic Film Service	Chicago, Ill.
Michigan Film & Supply Co	Detroit, Mich.
Morgan, J. W.	Kansas City, Mo.
Metropolitan Film Exchange	New York City.
Miles Brothers	San Francisco, Cal.
Peerless Film Exchange	New York City.
Pittsburg Photoplay Co.	Pittsburg, Pa.
Philadelphia Film Exchange	Philadelphia, Pa.
Pacific Film Exchange	Seattle, Wash.
Rex Film Exchange	Albany, N. Y.
Standard Film Exchange	Chicago, Ill.
Swanson-Crawford	St. Louis, Mo.
Swaan Film Service	Philadelphia, Pa.
Swanson, W. H.	Denver, Col.
Toledo Film Exchange	Toledo, O.
Texas Film Exchange	Dallas, Tex.
Victor Film Service	Cleveland, O.
Western Film Exchange	Milwaukee, Wis.
Western Film Exchange	New York City.
Western Film Exchange	Kansas City, Mo.
Wichita Film & Supply Co.	Wichita, Kan.

* The H. & H., Chicago, has purchased the first two releases, "War on the Plains" and "The Indian Massacre." The California Film Exchange, Los Angeles, have purchased the first three, including "The Battle of the Red Men."

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO., 251 W. 19th St., New York City

FORCED RECOGNITION

Every great issue forces a great fight! In the struggle of competition the banner of victory and cry, seen and heard above the din of battle is

THE NATIONAL

In the clearing smoke waves our banner, the banner of victory, conceded the strongest factor in the Moving Picture World.

Millions from every State in the Union are rallying around our banner as we come thundering through the ranks of competition.

Our Forces are Fortified with 21 OPPOSITION KILLERS, HEADLINES, WORLD-BEATERS, each and every week.

21 National Reels against the combined forces of the opposition and the battle cry, NATIONAL, is recognition and success.

21,000 Feet of World Beaters

Real Pictures—the Money-Getting Type—Explain the Demand

Insist on your rights, NATIONAL PICTURES AND PROTECTION

Have You a NATIONAL EXCHANGE in Your Territory?

IF NOT, WE ARE PREPARED TO NEGOTIATE WITH YOU

EUROPEAN

Hepworth
Clarendon
Cricks & Martin
Unitas
Mono
Pasquale, Italy
Film D'Art
Mendel
Helios
Comerio
Latium
Deutsches Bioscope
Savoia
Deutsches Biograph
Messters

AMERICAN

Knickerbocker
Belmar
Carey
Wrytograph
Federal Plantation
Rose
Mohawk
Oklahoma
California
Washington
Shamrock

TWO SHAMROCKS EVERY WEEK

Write or Call for Particulars Correspondence Invited

National Film Distributing Co.

145 West 45th Street, NEW YORK, U. S. A.

A SELLING CYCLONE

Every State Right Buyer in the Business is Eager to Secure

The Marvel and Miracle of Photo Plays

MADAME SARAH

BERNHARDT

Bernhardt is under an ironclad contract not to pose for others in motion pictures. These photo plays are unique and exclusive.

In Dumas' Emotional Masterpiece

"CAMILLE"

2 Reels—2275 feet

A Glorious Record of Genius

These are the only motion pictures of Bernhardt in "Camille" in the world.

ANY AND ALL INFRINGEMENTS OF COPYRIGHT WILL BE MERCILESSLY PROSECUTED

Bernhardt in "Camille" is better than U. S. Government Bonds.

Prospective purchasers must hurry for much is sold and all remaining territory is in negotiation.

What a very Goddess of the Theatre is Bernhardt! Empress-queen of the Stage Play and the Photo Play, her pictured "Camille" is breaking all records for popularity with State Right Investors.

We are flooded with inquiries. Deluged with checks. Telegrams rain in upon us. Buyers throng our offices. Selling surely—Selling fast—Selling enthusiastically—It's a selling riot.

But One Divine Sarah Bernhardt!

And coupled in the selling is the greatest Photo Play Comedienne and Comedy Extant

MADAME REJANE

In Sardou's Napoleonic Comedy

"MADAME SANS-GENE"

3 Reels 3075 Feet

Which shows the "Man of Destiny" not as a warrior, but as a human being and has for heroine a madcap washerwomen who became a duchess. A laugh for every picture in the projection.

Absolute Copyright Protection. National Advertising. Special 4-Color Printing in Great Variety. Perfect Publicity.

THESE PHOTO PLAYS TOGETHER RUN TWO AND ONE-HALF HOURS

Rights for All Sections of North America Selling So Fast That Everything Will Soon Be Gone. To Hurry is Your One Best Bet.

FRENCH-AMERICAN FILM CO.,

403 TIMES BUILDING
NEW YORK

Be it known to all and forgotten by no one that these pictures are copyrighted and that any and all infringements will be relentlessly prosecuted to the full extent of the law. There is but one Bernhardt "Camille" and but one Rejane "Sans-Gene" in the world of photo plays. Our attorneys are House, Grossman & Vorhaus, New York, and Albert Mayer, Paris.

FOUR FAST ROUNDS

AND A KNOCKOUT IN THE FINAL

A REALISTIC BOXING BOUT REFEREED BY

TOM SHARKEY once WORLD'S FAMOUS PUGILIST

This is one of the many star features in the novel

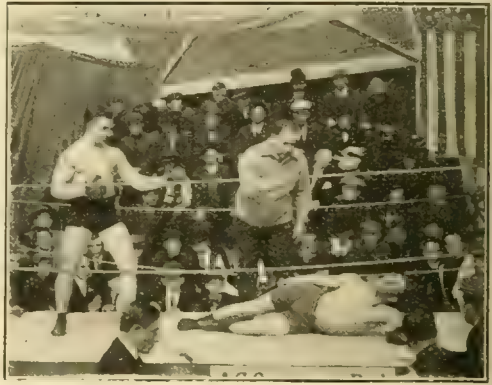
CHAMPION

Release of Wednesday, March 20th, 1912, entitled

"IRELAND AND ISRAEL"

A story with a pointed moral: True friendship knows no creed or race.

Book it Big and Advertise it Right



"The Editor"

March 13th

A powerful drama of the whirling vortex of politics, from which a rising politician is eventually rescued by his sweetheart, who is an editor.

"For Home and Honor"

March 18th

A graphic story of love, intrigue and intended duplicity. A young country girl's romance with a man of the world. Full of suspense interest.

COMING!!

In Two Reels

LIFE AND ADVENTURES OF KID CANFIELD

The notorious gambler

Released April 1st

THE CHAMPION FILM COMPANY

MARK H. DINTENFASS, Mgr.

145 West 45th Street, New York, N. Y.

Make Your Lobby Display Attractive

ROYAL IMPROVE YOUR Lobby
FRAME YOUR POSTERS
BRASS EASELS AND BRASS RAILING BRASS POSTER FRAMES FOR EASELS AND WALLS

There is nothing more fascinating to the public than a bright brass frame to display your photos or posters.

We make Lobby and Theatre Fixtures and Brass Rails of every description.

Write for Catalog.

THE NEWMAN MFG. CO.
717-719 Sycamore St.,
Cincinnati, O.

The Operator's Bible

A MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK

Price $1.50 Postage Paid

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
125 EAST 23rd STREET :: :: NEW YORK CITY

Brilliant Light on Your Motion Picture Screen with Very Light Electric Bills

THAT'S THE ANSWER OF USERS OF

"THE HALLBERG ECONOMIZERS"

Made for either alternating or direct current circuit.

READ MY GUARANTEE BELOW

I make allowance on your old Saver in Trade for a HALLBERG

GUARANTEED TO SAVE

On 100 to 125 Volts A.C., 60 to 70%.
On 200 to 250 Volts A.C., 75 to 85%.
On 100 to 125 Volts D.C., 50%.
On 200 to 250 Volts D.C., 70%.
On 500 to 600 Volts D.C., 90%.

And To Improve Your Light 50% Over Use on Rheostat.

Over 2,000 in use for A.C. as well as D.C., and my G. E. Mercury Arc Rectifier is the thing for those who want D.C. at the arc on A.C. circuits.

IF YOU WANT A MOVING PICTURE MACHINE OF ANY MAKE, I AM SPECIAL JOBBER OF EDISON, POWERS, MOTIOGRAPH, SIMPLEX and STANDARD MACHINES, and Make Allowance In Trade For Your Old Machine.

25c. IN STAMPS

Brings to you Hallberg's Motion Picture Catalogue, The Reference Book.

Nothing like it ever published before.

Will prove a constant guide and money-maker to every proprietor, manager and operator. Send 25 cts. to-day.

Chicago, Feb. 24, 1912.

Mr. J. H. Hallberg,

Dear Sir:—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your catalogue and booklets, for which please accept my sincere thanks. I consider it the best book of information that I have received from any of the manufacturers and it exactly meets my requirements.

Very truly yours,
Chicago Board of Underwriters, F. G. Waldenfels, Chief Electrical Inspector.

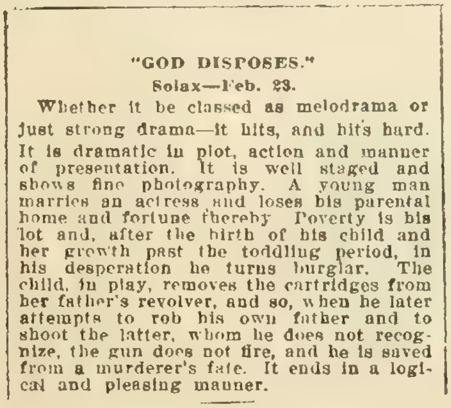
I Equip Theatres Completely

And carry in stock the highest grade goods required for your theater. Free catalogues, circulars and pamphlets furnished of individual items you require.

J. H. HALLBERG
36 East 23d St., New York

COMING

MORNING TELEGRAPH,
FEBRUARY 25, 1912.



"GOD DISPOSES."
Solax—Feb. 23.

Whether it be classed as melodrama or just strong drama—it hits, and hits hard. It is dramatic in plot, action and manner of presentation. It is well staged and shows fine photography. A young man marries an actress and loses his parental home and fortune thereby. Poverty is his lot and, after the birth of his child and her growth past the toddling period, in his desperation he turns burglar. The child, in play, removes the cartridges from her father's revolver, and so, when he later attempts to rob his own father and to shoot the latter, whom he does not recognize, the gun does not fire, and he is saved from a murderer's fate. It ends in a logical and pleasing manner.

Released Wednesday, March 13th

The Boarding House Heiress

This picture is really a fifteen-minute rapid-fire vaudeville act. It is full of sharp, bright comedy situations, and has a plot that affords many opportunities to Billy Quirk, Fannie Simpson and Lee Beggs. The story concerns the matrimonial aspirations of a superannuated miss with a fictitious fortune.

Released Friday, March 15th

FALLING LEAVES

The pathos of this production worms its way to the heart, and gently touches the heart-strings like the little girl in this story who gently strings up the falling autumn leaves, with the innocent belief that it will prevent her sister from dying of the "white plague." All the gentler emotions of gentle and emotional people going through a crisis are visualized on the screen with convincing realism.

Solax Company

CONGRESS AVE., FLUSHING, N. Y.
SALES COMPANY Agents in U. S. A. and Canada

Solax

GREAT NORTHERN

Release for Saturday, March 2nd

REVENGE IS SWEET

A pleasing comedy production - - - - - - - - 519 ft

OBVERSE AND REVERSE

A novel subject showing that things are not always what they seem. 389 ft.

Release for Saturday, March 9th

FOR HER SAKE

An admirably enacted dramatic production. A story full of pathos.

ALL FIRST-CLASS INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES HANDLE OUR PRODUCT!

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO., 7 E. 14th St., N. Y.
(NORDISK FILM CO. OF COPENHAGEN.)

AT LIBERTY

Mr. ULYSSES DAVIS

The Sole and Unassisted Producer of the Following Successes

MILITARY	WESTERN	TOPICAL
The Old Man and Jim	Out of the Dark	The Blood of the Poor
Stonewall Jackson	The Red Devils	Father and Sons
Molly Pitcher	The Saving of Dan	A Divided Family
Fighting Rev. Caldwell	When the Law Came	Wrongly Accused
The Coward's Flute	Love That Never Fails	For Her Father's Sake
The Copperhead	The Brute	The Merchant Mayor
and many others	and many others	and many others

Also the coming "THE KID CANFIELD EXPOSE"—2 Reels

Communicate care of MOVING PICTURE WORLD or

Three Fifteen West Forty-fifth St., New York City

The Noise Is Deafening!

So Many LOUD Demands!

For My Latest Feature Films

MILDRED HOLLAND in

"The Power Behind the Throne"

REGULAR RELEASE! MARCH 12th!

With paper enough to bill it like the original stage production; 1, 3 and 8 sheet lithos, booklets, heralds, cuts, etc., etc. Exhibitors desiring extra copies for lobby display, please notify us by postal card at once.

My ST. PATRICK'S DAY RELEASE --- MARCH 16th

"SOGARTH AROON"

HAVE YOU BOOKED THEM?

IF NOT, SWELL THE CHORUS!

NOTICE!

Change of release date: Instead of "HIS DAUGHTER'S LOYALTY" we will release the weird drama

"THE MYSTERY" ON SATURDAY, MARCH 9th

POWERS MOTION PICTURE CO. 511 W. Forty-second Street, New York City

---

EDWIN THANHOUSER

begs to announce a feature production in two reels of

NICHOLAS NICKLEBY

From the Novel by CHARLES DICKENS

Issued

Tuesday March 19th

Two kinds of 1 - sheet, one 3 - sheet

LUBIN FILMS

RELEASED WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6th, 1912

Length about 1000 feet

"MY PRINCESS"

A poor young girl makes a scanty living by telling fairy tales and other stories to rich folks' children. A wealthy bachelor admires her and, desiring to be a patron, borrows four children from his laundress, representing them to be his own. The story-teller discovers the deception and refuses to continue. One of the kiddies (who is a cripple), however, brings the couple together, and the bachelor, telling his love story, is accepted.

RELEASED SATURDAY, MARCH 9th, 1912

Length about 1000 feet

"MOTHER LOVE"

John Halliday marries Mrs. Buckley, a charming widow who has a little son. The home is presided over by John's mother, and the new wife does not like the dictation. The women have words, the mother leaves the house and offers her services at a mission house. One day Edwin, the boy, is decoyed away by an Italian organ grinder. John's mother finds the child and restores him to the family.

RELEASED THURSDAY, MARCH 7th, 1912

Length about 1000 feet

"THE HANDICAP"

Grace Gordon, her mother and brother Harry live in a cottage near El Paso. They are behind hand with the rent, and the landlord, a Mexican, calls to collect the rent, and insults the girl. The brother orders the Don from the house. The races are on at Juarez and Grace enters her pet horse for the handicap. Harry, who intends to ride, is doped by the Mexican. Grace dons the jockey suit and rides her horse to victory, winning the $1,000 prize.

RELEASED MONDAY, MARCH 11th, 1912. Split Reel

"WIFEY'S MA COMES BACK"

Robt. Todd, an advocate of physical culture, induces his mother-in-law, who has just recovered from an illness, to try it. The old lady puts on the gloves and in the first round Bob thinks he has fallen into a threshing machine. Mamma, feeling that her condition is all right, returns home.

"TOUGH GUY LEVI"

A peddler named Levi, working the camps of the Rocky mountains, is held up by Bad Jerry and relieved of all his money. To get square he pledges his pack as security for a pair of guns and a tough make-up. Then he in turn holds up Bad Jerry and gets not only all of his own money but much more, that the bad man had taken from others.

LUBIN MANUFACTURING COMPANY,

MODEL NEW STUDIOS,
20th and Indiana Avenue
Philadelphia, Pa.

CHICAGO: 154 WEST LAKE ST. B. NICHOLS, 86 WARDOUR ST., LONDON, W., ENGLAND BERLIN: 35 FRIEDRICH STR.

VITAGRAPH

"LULU'S ANARCHIST"

MONDAY, MARCH 4th

A reader of trashy novels, Lulu imagines the tenant in the next office is an anarchist. She tells a newspaper friend and he gets the police. They learn the "anarchist" is only a rapid-change artist rehearsing. Comedy—and it's a "lulu."

"CARDINAL WOLSEY"

TUESDAY, MARCH 5th

Adviser and chaplain of King Henry VIII, of England, he refused to be party to the king's divorce from Queen Catherine and his marriage to Anne Boleyn. He was exiled to a monastery, where he died three days after his entrance.

"IRENE'S INFATUATION"

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6th

She and another girl idolize an Italian singer. Irene gets a position as maid in the singer's household. She learns all about him. He is gross, overbearing and disgusting. She empties a pan of water over his head and goes back home cured of idol worship.

"HOW STATES ARE MADE"

FRIDAY, MARCH 8th

When a territory is opened up to settlers, it is a case of "hustle and get there!" The West of yesterday is the West of to-day. See this unequalled Western portrayal and see what made the United States.

"THE SPHINX," or "Mrs. Carter's Necklace"

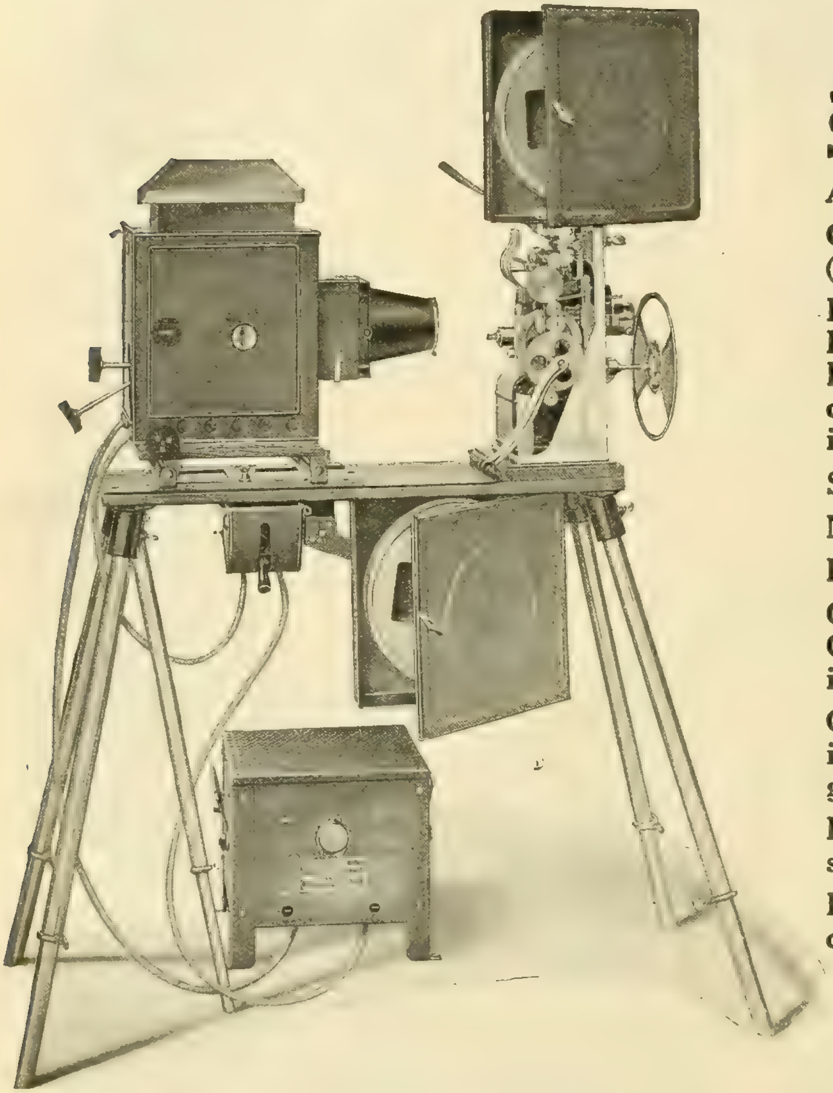
SATURDAY, MARCH 9th

Dramatized study with a powerful and deep plot that is most clearly presented. In need of money a man is prompted to steal a necklace. Perry, "the sphinx," saves all concerned from scandal and ruin.

NEXT WEEK NEXT WEEK

"FIRST WOMAN JURY IN AMERICA"—Great doings.
MONDAY, MARCH 11th.
"FIVE SENSES" } Split reel. Fun and pathos.
"A STORY OF THE CIRCUS" } TUESDAY, MARCH 12th.
"MRS. 'ENRY 'AWKINS"—English coster story.
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13th.
"THE GREAT DIAMOND ROBBERY"—All a funny mistake.
FRIDAY, MARCH 15th.
"RANCH BY THE SEA"—A Western Gem. SATURDAY, MARCH 16th.

THE EDISON KINETOSCOPE



UNDERWRITERS' TYPE "B"

The Acme of Perfection in a Motion Picture Machine

SPECIAL FEATURE

Adjustable Outside Revolving Shutt

Chain Drive (new) or Belt Drive Take (optional).

Extra large and improved Lamp Hou Double doors and square conden holder. With this style no more i- convenience when a condenser chan is necessary.

Steel Bearings and Hardened Shafts.

New Heavy Brass Arc Lamp Termina

Double Magazine Rollers.

Oil Guard over gears operating t Outside Shutter so as to prevent splas-ing of oil on film or lenses.

Oil Cups on shutter shaft bearings a intermediate pinion of the chain gears driving the shutter.

Hardened Bearing in the Brack supporting the outside shutter.

Five extra-heavy legs, 1¼ inches diameter.

Edison "B" means Efficien Durability and Satisfactio Guaranteed to be Mechanica Perfect.

No other business to-day holds out s rich promise of big returns on such s investment and at such low operating cos the moving picture business.

No other business gets under way so quic gets into its stride and starts making mo within so short a time. A show starts mak money from the minute you open the do A good show keeps on making money, keeps its profits clear by starting with the machine made. Send to-day for complete formation regarding the Edison Kinetosc and a copy of the Edison Kinetogram.

THOMAS A. EDISO
INCORPORATED
239 Lakeside Avenue
Orange, - - - - New Jer

COMING EDISON FILMS

Tell Your Exchange You Want Them

Mar. 12—"The Baby." 1,000 feet. Comedy.

Mar. 13—"Her Polished Family." 1,000 feet. Comedy.

Mar. 15—"For the Commonwealth." (Produced in co-operation with the National Committee on Prison Labor.) 1,000 feet. Dramatic.

Mar. 16—"Personally Conducted." (A trip to Bermuda.) 1,000 feet. Descriptive.

Mar. 19—"Her Face." 1,000 feet. Comedy drama.

Mar. 20—"Dress Suits in Pawn." 1,000 feet. Comedy.

Mar. 22—"The House with the Tall Porch." 1,000 feet. Dramatic.

FOLLOW THE FLAG

FOLLOW THE FLAG

The Leading Motion Picture Producer of the World

SELIG

SELIG

March 11th

A Crucial Test

A dramatic and romantic story of the rough Klondyke days. Mona Darkfeather, the full-blooded Indian leading woman, portrays the leading female role, and Messrs. Bosworth, Rawlinson and Santschi play the principal male parts.

About 1000 ft.

March 12th

BOUNDER

Another remarkable and thrilling Selig animal picture depicting a mountain lion's devotion to its mistress. Miss Betty Harte plays the heroine role. This is the first of a new series of Selig animal pictures. A Box Office Magnet.

About 1000 ft.

COMING

COMING

Two great big single Reel Features this week. One right after another. Follow the Selig flag. It is the Prosperity Passport.

TRADE MARK

March 14th

THE SLIP

An intense, absorbing story of the secret service. Original in theme, thrilling in its rapid action. Wm. Stowell, Rex Roselli and Miss Winnifred Greenwood handle the leading roles.

About 1000 feet

Mar. 15

Across the Isthmus of Panama in 1912

Showing Uncle Sam at work on a project of far greater magnitude than ever before attempted. The best topical of recent years. A great single-reel feature of vast educational worth.

About 1000 Feet

SELIG

SELIG

Selig Polyscope Co. TRADE S MARK Chicago U.S.A.

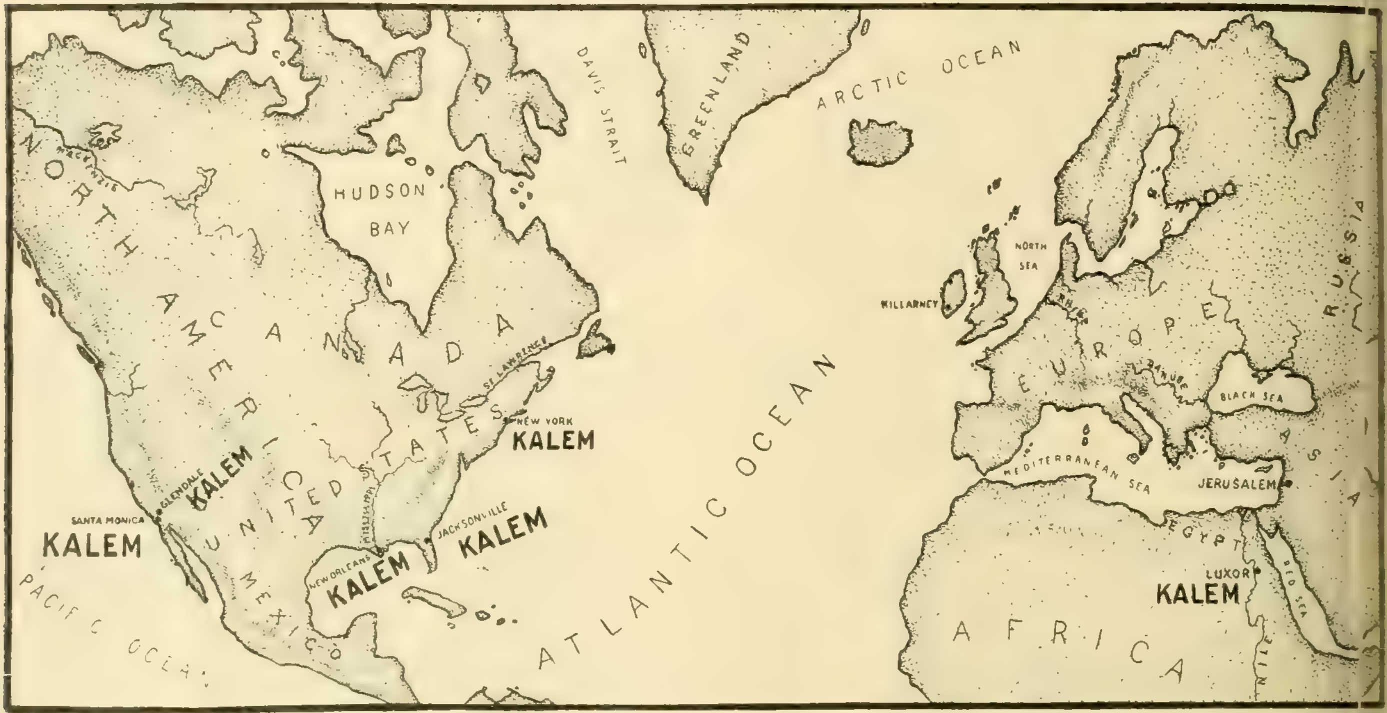
EUROPEAN OFFICES

LONDON — BERLIN — ST PETERSBURG.

FOLLOW THE FLAG

FOLLOW THE FLAG

KALEM



You will note on the above map the widely separated locations of the six Kalem producting companies, now making history in the motion picture industry.

Reconciled by Burglars

A very funny Farce Comedy

On the same reel The Kalemites Visit Gibraltar

Showing the strongest fortification in the world, and the quaint town of Gibraltar.

Released Monday, March 18th

The Defeat of the Brewery Gang

An exciting and dramatic story founded on a political incident.

Released Wednesday, March 20th

A Bucktown Romance

The correct local color permeating this entire story, and the many laughable situations make a comedy above the usual run.

Released Friday, March 22nd

REMEMBER—Special Music and Special four-color Litho paper for A SPARTAN MOTHER

COMING—The Spanish Revolt of 1836—Released April 3rd

SPECIAL MUSIC AND PICTORIAL PAPER

KALEM COMPANY

INCORPORATED

NEW YORK, 235-239 W. 23rd St.
86 Wardour St., LONDON, W.
BERLIN, 35 Friedrich Str.
PARIS, 13 Rue du Faubourg Montmartre

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

HE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING COMPANY
Beach Building)
J. P. CHALMERS, Editor and Manager.
125 E. 23d. Street, NEW YORK
Telephone call, 1343-1344 Gramercy

Entered at the General Post Office in New York City as Second Class Matter.

UBSCRIPTION RATES: $3.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada, $3.50. Foreign Countries, $4.00, Post Paid.

VESTERN OFFICE: 169 W. Washington St. (Post Bldg.), Chicago, Ill. Phone, Main 3145. Automatic Phone 32732.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES ON APPLICATION.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS (No Display), Three Cents per Word; Minimum Charge, 50c.

Address all correspondence "Moving Picture World, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square, New York," and not to individuals.

ol. 11 MARCH 9, 1912 No. 10

INDEX TO CONTENTS.

DVERTISING FOR EXHIBITORS 860
ROCKLISS, J. FRANK, by Hugh Hoffman 846
ALENDAR OF INDEPENDENT RELEASES 879
ALENDAR OF LICENSED RELEASES 880
AMPAIGN FOR A MODERN SUNDAY, III, by W. Stephen Bush 845
HICAGO LETTER 862
OMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Ind.) 867
OMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Licensed) 866
ACTS AND COMMENTS 844
OW WASHINGTON CROSSED THE DELAWARE (Edison) 852
DEPENDENT FILM STORIES 896
INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATS 908
INDIANA CONVENTION 849
INDIAN MASSACRE, THE (Bison), by Louis Reeves Harrison 854
INQUIRIES 865
KITCHELL CALLS CLAUDY 847
LICENSED FILM STORIES 890
LICENSED RELEASE DATES 910
MANUFACTURERS' ADVANCE NOTES 873
MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE 848
NATIONAL FILM DISTRIBUTING CO. 894
NICHOLAS NICKLEBY (Thanhouser) 858
OBSERVATIONS BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN 853
OHIO CONVENTION 848
OUT OF THE DEPTHS (Essanay) 851
PROJECTION DEPARTMENT 869
PERCIVAL CHUBBS (Edison) 853
SCENARIO WRITER, THE 864
SHAMUS O'BRIEN (Imp) 878
SONG SLIDE RELEASES 882
SONG OF THE GYPSY (Kleine Eclipse) 450
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Independent) 896
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Licensed) 890
SUNBEAM, THE (Biograph) 868
SWEEPING CHANGE IN COPYRIGHT LAW 863

INDEX TO ADVERTISERS.

ARBON IMPORTERS.
RORUP, L. E. 912
EWERT, CHAS. L. 917
EISINGER, HUGO 889

ECTRICAL EQUIPMENT.
ETROIT ENGINE WORKS 907
TERPRISE OPTICAL CO. 906
OOS GAS ENGINE CO. 906
ORT WAYNE ELECTRIC CO. 906
ALLBERG, J. H. 835
G ELECTRIC CO. 882
ACKIE, H. A., INC 901-914
ESTO EMERGENCY CO. 882
FETY ELECTRIC CO. 903
HNEIDER, E. 913
ERN MFG. CO. 900
ILLIAMS, BROWN & EARL 906

LM BROKERS.
TERNATIONAL FILM TRADER 913

LM EXCHANGES.
ADENBURG, GEO. 904
LEHUFF, CHAS. 915
LUMBIA FEATURE FILM CO. 904
XHIBITORS FILM SERVICE 915
ATURE FILM CO. 905
EENE, W. E. 916
ETZ, L. 913
EMMLE FILM SERVICE 900
IBOW, F. C. 900
RIC FILM & SUPPLY CO. 881
OTION FILM CO. 882
ORTON FILM CO. 906
AKER CITY FILM CO. 907
ANDARD FILM EXCHANGE 903
PERIOR FILM CO. 903
VAAB FILM SERVICE 898
IE FILM EXCHANGE 898

DEPENDENT FILM MANUFACTURERS.
MERICAN FILM CO. 891
HAMPION FILM CO. 834
YSTAL FILM CO. 903
LAIR FILM CO. 887
UMONT FILM CO. 883
EAT NORTHERN FILM CO. 836
P FILM CO. 828
X FILM CO. 899
AJESTIC FILM CO. 888
OTION PICTURE DIS. & SALES CO. 830
STOR FILM CO. 909
Y. MOTION PICTURE CO. 831
WERS CO. 837
PUBLIC CO. 909
LIANCE CO. 913
X CO. 829
SOLAX CO. 835
THANHOUSER CO. 826-837

LICENSED FILM MANUFACTURERS.
EDISON THOS. A., INC 840
ESSANAY FILM CO. 827
KALEM FILM CO. 842
KLEINE, GEO. 893
LUBIN FILM CO. 838
MELIES FILM CO. 919
PATHE FRERES 900
SELIG POLYSCOPE CO. 841
VITAGRAPH CO. 839

MISCELLANEOUS.
A. B. C. CO. 915
AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO. 910
AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO. 882
BALSHOFER, F. J. 882
BARCKHOFF, C. 893
BATTERSHALL & OLESON 907
BENDER, GEO. 911
BUCKEYE LAKE SHORE FILM CO. 893
BRADY, A. 911
BRUNSWIG BRO. 905
CELLUKOTE CO. 905
CINCINNATI BUCKEYE FILM CO. 912
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS 904
COIN MACHINE MFG. CO. 897
COLUMBIA AMUSEMENT ENTERPRISE 914
CORCORAN, A. J. 911
DAVIS, H. 900
DAVIS, U. 836
DIAMOND OPERATING SCHOOL 903
FULTON, E. E. 913
EXHIBITORS' ADV. CO. 918
EXHIBITORS' ADV. & SPEC. CO. 880
GUNDLACH MANHATTAN CO. 912
HOKE, GEO. M. 903
KRAUS MFG. CO. 899
LAVEZZI CO. 911
McKENNA BRO. 901
MEEKER, J. L. 904
MIDLAND TRANSPARENCY CO. 911
MORTIMER FILM CLEANER 913
MOVING PICTURE WORLD (Bound volume) 916
NATIONAL TICKET CO. 908
NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO. 915
NEWMAN MFG. CO. 834
N. Y. FIREPROOF CONSTRUCTION CO. 914
OPERATORS HANDBOOK 834
PHOTOPLAY ADV. SPEC. CO. 888
PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE 893
PITTSBURG PHOTOPLAY CO. 898
RAW FILM SUPPLY CO. 917
REID DIFFUSER CO. 903
ROYAL THEATER 903
SANITARY SERVICE CO. 882
SARGENT, E. W. 901
STEBBINS, C. M. 903
STERLING NOVELTY CO. 898
THREE IN ONE OIL CO. 914
TRAINER, C. W. 898
WINDSOR, E. S. 915

LECTURERS.
HOFFMAN, H. F. 904
MARION, L. M. 911
MOVING PICTURE WORLD 912

MOVING PICTURE MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN M. P. MACHINE CO. 893
EDISON, THOS. A., INC 840
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL CO. 897
POWER, NICHOLAS 920
SIMPLEX CO. 881

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
DEAGAN, J. C. 911
SINN CLARENCE E. 913
WURLITZER, RUDOLPH 915
ZEIDLER DRUM CO. 898

OPERA CHAIR MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN SEATING CO. 901
ANDREWS, A. H. 901
BENNET, G. W. 901
HARDESTY CHAIR CO. 901
STAFFORD, E. H. 901
STEEL FURNITURE CO. 901
WISCONSIN SEATING CO. 901

PROJECTING SCREENS.
AMERICAN THEATER CURTAIN CO. 916
INVENTORS SPECIALTY CO. 891
MIRROROID CO. 899

SLIDE MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN MOTION SLIDE CO. 882
EXCELSIOR SLIDE CO. 899
LEVI CO. 912
SCOTT & VAN ALTENA 882
SIMPSON, A. L. 911
UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO. 915

FEATURE FILMS (Released by).
AMERICAN FEATURE FILM CO. 906
FRENCH AMERICAN FILM CO. 833
GREAT NORTHERN SPECIAL FEATURE FILM CO. 887
MONOPOL FILM CO. 884-885
NATIONAL FILM DIS. CO. 832
TOURNAMENT FILM CO. 886
WORLD'S BEST-FILM CO. 895

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.
DECORATORS' SUPPLY CO. 905

Facts and Comments

THE Rt. Rev. Rogers Israel, the Bishop of an Episcopal diocese in the state of Pennsylvania, is the latest high dignitary to go on record as a friend and advocate of the motion picture. We learn from the minutes of a meeting of the Archdeaconry of Ridgeway, Pa., that the Rev. F. T. Cady, the pastor of a church in Port Allegany had held services since last December, in which motion pictures played a prominent part. These services were held at the Grand Theater on Sunday afternoons and consisted of hymn, prayer, addresses and motion pictures, the titles of the latter being "Joseph Sold Into Egypt," "Cain and Abel," "David and Saul" and "The Life of Moses." "Each service," says the extract from the minutes, "was better attended than the previous one." It was then resolved by the meeting of the Archdeaconry to request Rev. Cady to give the benefit of his experience to the other clergy of the diocese. THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD, in its issue of December 2, went very fully into the subject of "Pictures for Churches" and is much gratified to discover that churches are now taking the matter up practically. The question recurs: "Whence shall this ever increasing demand for religious and educational pictures be supplied?" The Educational Department of the General Film Company ought to help these clergymen in search of proper materials for the church. In some way and in the near future the demand will be supplied. The field is vast and would keep more than one competent manufacturer busy at the rate of two releases per week. We should like to have the Rev. Mr. Cady address the various manufacturers on the subject. Incidentally the question may well be asked why the motion picture is perfectly proper and lawful on Sunday afternoon under the direction of a clergyman and improper or unlawful under the direction of an exhibitor, who is not a clergyman? Another powerful argument for the modern Sunday is presented by this situation.

* * *

WE hear of trading stamps being given away with tickets of admission in Louisville. Such things are wholly sporadic and merely indicate that these particular exhibitors have not yet learned the A B C of their business. Ice-cream, plated silverware, cut-glass, etc., are good things in their own way, but have nothing to do either directly or indirectly, with the exhibition of moving pictures. It may be quite possible that such a "gift enterprise" causes a slight temporary increase in the receipts, but the ultimate effect will always be bad. Such tactics detract from the dignity and even the respectability of a moving picture theater. People go to the theater to see good pictures and when they see them they are satisfied. They want nothing more. A good story is told on this subject by a friend of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD, who vouches for its absolute truth. A gentleman, who had amassed a fortune in the junk business and had then entered the exhibiting branch of the moving picture industry as a partner of an inexperienced moving picture man, was persuaded almost with the aid of surgical instruments to consent to a raise in the price of admission from five cents to five and ten cents. The nickel seats were to be upstairs and the dime seats downstairs. The experiment proved a tremendous success. The balconies and galleries were not quite full and the orchestra was jammed. The person, who had so successfully presided over the destinies of his junkshop stood near the brass railing of the last row of orchestra chairs, apparently rooted to the ground, as he gazed at the overflow in the lobby. A lively shaking up restored him to consciousness and the old m. p. veteran asked him whether he was feeling ill. "No, no," said he, "but I can't understand why men will pay ten cents to sit down here, when so many five-cent seats upstairs are vacant."

* * *

THE cry for feature films is more insistent than ever. Experience has taught even the most cautious and conservative of exhibitors that a good meritorious feature film reconciles the audience to a slight advance in the price of admission. There are exhibitors who pale at the suggestion of charging more than a nickel for motion pictures and shudder like one who has unexpectedly and with naked feet stepped upon a block of ice. They are becoming exceptions nowadays and find their level in the very small houses that are gradually going out of existence. The enterprising exhibitor is on the hunt for strong features and finds his audiences quite willing to pay from ten to thirty cents for an attraction that breaks the daily grind of regular releases. An enormous business at advanced prices has been done by exhibitors the country over on such features as "Cinderella" and "Vanity Fair" and "David Copperfield." Exhibitors, we believe, would be willing to pay a slight advance for good features. As a weapon in competition the feature film has proved very formidable indeed and the manager that "gets there first," as a rule, is the one who reaps the shekels and adds prestige and patronage to his house.

*

Instinctively this present situation seems to have been realized and not badly summed up by Abraham Erlanger, the well-known theatrical magnate. Less than two years ago, if we mistake not, Mr. Erlanger held the view, that motion pictures were a fad and destined to pass out of popularity in favor of some later "fad" which might strike the fancy of the public. It is a credit both to his power of discernment and his good sense to have him now confess that he was mistaken. "A foolish consistency is the hobgoblin of small minds," said Emerson, and measured by the Emersonian standard Mr. Erlanger is decidedly not a small man. In the published interview he is quoted as saying:

> "My personal opinion," he said, "is that the moving picture business is at present in its infancy. No one can predict the extent of its development within the next few years. Many expert men are at work in the endeavor to perfect improvements and the result of their labors is constantly evident. I believe that the day of the high-price moving picture drama is not far distant.
>
> "The moving picture show is destined to become in the very near future a greater factor than it is at present."

It is only fair to say in connection with this subject.

at the present high quality of the picture, its conse- ent appeal to the best classes in the community and its norable and useful position are very largely, if not tirely, due to the earnest and conscientious efforts of tain manufacturers, whose names have almost become usehold words. They have steadily resisted all the de- sing and vulgarizing influences and have established a ndard, to which to-day every aspirant for moving ture popularity must in some measure at least conform. ey have paved the way for the higher priced features d have prepared the public for the great achievements these later days.

*

It may reasonably be inferred from Mr. Erlanger's re- rks, that big capital is considering an invasion of the oving picture field and that talent of a high order in the itter of producing and exhibiting is to be enlisted. If ch investments are to be made the probability of their ancial success will be due to the splendid pioneer work it has been done within the last few years.

he Campaign for a Modern Sunday. III

By W. Stephen Bush.

A BILL for the legalizing of motion picture exhibitions on Sunday ought to provide for three distinct conditions: (I) The religious or educational aracter or tendency of the picture, (II) The explana- y lecture, which is allowed on Sunday everywhere der the present law and which gives the Sunday exhi- ion a dignity of its own, and (III) The limitation of ne, setting a certain hour on Sunday for the beginning motion picture exhibitions.

As to the character and tendency of the Sunday pic- res the law ought to be liberal, and we recommend our finition of the word "educational" given in full in a evious issue of The Moving Picture World:

> "For the purpose of such an act it would be well to have an accurate definition of the words 'educational' and 'religious' and we tentatively submit this definition: Any subject shall be deemed educational if it illustrates either the customs or institutions or the scenery of this or any foreign country, or if it shows the workings of any domestic or foreign industry, or if it presents scenes or episodes from the history of the nations, of if it is based on a classic masterpiece of ancient or modern literature. A subject shall be deemed religious if it is based on any part of the sacred scriptures, or on any incident taken from sacred history."

This definition would give the exhibitors an ample pply for the making up of Sunday programs.

The explanatory lecture would be the best proof of a nuinely educational character. We quote in this con- ction from a decision of the Supreme Court of the ate of New York:

> t appears from the testimony taken before the magistrate that prisoner operated an apparatus by which moving pictures re thrown upon a screen in the Majestic Theater, in the rough of Brooklyn, on the evening of Sunday, December 22, 7. These pictures were shown for the purpose of illus- ting a lecture then and there delivered upon the biblical ry of Joseph and his brethren. At the close of this lecture a nn, or at least a sentimental song, was sung by a person who eared upon the stage, which purported to represent the as- ations of a dying child to be received into heaven. Then an litional lecture was delivered upon the lumber industry in lifornia, and pictures illustrating the growth of the famous at trees and the various details of the lumber industry were ewise thrown upon the screen by the prisoner. It is con- ded that the acts of the prisoner constituted a violation of tion 265 of the Penal Code and 1,481 of the Greater New rk Charter. Laws 1897, p. 522, c. 378.
>
> ection 265 of the Penal Code reads as follows:
>
> All shooting, hunting, fishing, playing, horse racing, gaming, other public sport, exercise, or shows, upon the first day of week, and all noise disturbing the peace of the day, are hibited."
>
> It is argued that the exhibition of these moving pictures falls within the classification of "public sport, exercise, or shows." In construing this section of the statute, we must avail ourselves of the well-settled rules of statutory construction. It is well settled that wherever, in a written instrument or in a statute, words of particularity are followed by words of general import, then the words of general import must be so construed as to limit them to ejusdem generis with the words of particularity which precede them. It seems to me quite plain that the giving of a public lecture on a Sunday in relation to a biblical story, or in relation to a subject-matter of purely intellectual interest, cannot be held to be within the provisions of the statute just cited. This act was framed before the idea of moving pictures was conceived by the mind of man and must be interpreted with relation to the then intent of the legislators. The showing of moving pictures may, or may not, constitute violation of the statute in question. It all depends upon the method and the purpose of such shows. Where they are given as an incident to and for the purpose of illustrating a lecture which in itself is permissible, their showing does not fall within the intention of the statute. Nor is the situation changed by the fact that section 1,481 of the Greater New York Charter prohibits, among other things, "any other entertainment of the stage."
>
> These words appear in the classification as follows:
>
> "Any interlude, tragedy, comedy, opera, ballet, play, farce, negro minstrelsy, negro or other dancing or any other entertainment of the stage."
>
> The same rule of statutory interpretation applies here. "Entertainment of the stage" forbidden must be of a similar character as the particular acts forbidden. The mere fact that some one stands upon a stage does not make his performance "an entertainment of the stage." In that case we might have a purely religious sermon, or an ethical discourse, held to be an "entertainment of the stage," simply because of the place from which it was delivered. Such a result would be preposterous.

The limitation in point of time is designed to disarm criticism from those who hold strict views in regard to the sacred character of the day. It would be well to have Sunday exhibitions of pictures begin at an early hour in the afternoon, so as not to conflict with church services held before that time. We do not say that this would be an ideal condition of affairs, but we do think it would be a diplomatic concession to the elements whose opposition has to be reckoned with. The hours from 2 p. m. to 10 p. m. would be welcome to every exhibitor. It is a sad and depressing sight to see young men on Sundays gather in knots at the corners and kill the precious hours by coarse and stupid talk and the ogling of all passersby, especially young women. The Sunday afternoon and evening ought to be devoted to something far better and wholesome. Any Christian minister who is really anxious to help along the morals of the community in which he lives, ought to be willing to assist in any effort to provide rational entertainment for the young people on Sunday afternoon and evening.

We have heard scores of exhibitors speak in words of enthusiasm concerning the advantages of a liberal Sunday law. They cannot reap, however, before they sow, and this is the time to sow. We will continue to dwell on this subject and to emphasize the necessity of agitation—vigorous and unremitting agitation, but nothing practical will ever be accomplished until the exhibitors get together, formulate plans of campaign and bring the matter into the halls of legislation. They have it well within their power to do so. Public sentiment is constantly changing in favor of the motion pictures. The personnel of exhibitors is steadily improving; the quality and character of the pictures are better to-day than ever before. Every circumstance and condition favors a campaign for a modern Sunday. If the exhibitors neglect their opportunity to add greatly to their own revenues and to the prestige of the industry they have no one to blame but themselves. We only wish to assure them once more that in every effort to bring about sensible Sunday legislation they may count on the assistance of The Moving Picture World.

J. Frank Brockliss, Film Impressario

Interviewed and Sketched by Hugh Hoffman.

WE had heard the name of J. Frank Brockliss many, many times—thousands of times would not be exaggerating it. It seems that every time one picked up an English film magazine, the name of J. Frank Brockliss was running all through it, either in the advertising or the news columns. Wherever one looked it stared him in the face. His name leaked over to America a good many times; in fact, about once a week. You may have heard of a play about a maiden with a pair of eyes that haunted a certain man to distraction. Awake or asleep, busy or idle, that seductious pair of eyes haunted him at all times, and the poor victim finally ended in a mad house or in a divorce court, or nearly did.

In some similar manner that name has always been staring us in the face—J. Frank Brockliss. If one reads a film paper, domestic or foreign, it is sure to crop up somewhere. If one is sitting for any length of time, chatting with leading lights in the film business, that eternal name is sure to be mentioned.

This has been going on for some few years without a chance for film men to stare him in the face as his name has stared them out of countenance. There has been a desire to "have-a-look-at-him" and see what manner of man is this J. Frank Brockliss, who has heretofore existed only on paper to a great majority.

On a certain day late in February the word passed around that Brockliss was here—right here in New York. Perhaps he would be on exhibition somewhere where one might behold his physical being by the payment of a stipulated admission price. As might be expected, Brockliss did not come to New York to make a show of himself, so other means had to be devised. Luckily Mr. Brockliss proved to be a friend of a friend of ours, and, using our friend as a go-between, a talking match was arranged to take place at the Cadillac Hotel where Mr. Brockliss always stops when in America. (He was here once before.)

That time-wasting device known as a luncheon was selected as being the best vehicle to lead up to the point. Luncheons are fatal to interviews because one cannot sketch and eat at the same time; can one? Answer: No. Neither can one ask pointed or pungent questions with a mouthful of chicken pie, reinforced by a stalk of celery that waves its leafy end under one's nose. The topic uppermost in one's mind at such a time should be Epicurus or Bacchus.

Seated at the table with our friend (Joe Rex), it began to appear that J. Frank Brockliss was only a name after all, because he did not put in appearance until the quarter mile post was reached, when a distinct sensation of personal magnetism from some source made itself felt, not without a certain amount of bustle. It was Brockliss arriving.

"Hello, Joe, sorry to keep you waiting." "Glad to meet you, sir," to yours truly. "Excuse me just a moment, I shall be back again." And off he hustled to see what momentous telegrams had arrived in his absence. There must have been one or two, for there was time to consider the first impression he had left behind. That impression was one of dynamic energy. So far we had had one fleeting glimpse of a fine big six-footer, clean as a pin, athletic in aspect, with snappy, smiling brown eyes, and dark hair, brushed so closely to his head that it must have been pressed that way with a flat-iron. Presently he came back.

"What's the matter with having something to eat," said he, forgetting that we had been lunching for the past fifteen minutes. The idea seemed rather opportune and he said, "I am going to have some oysters. They are a very favorite dish of mine. You know we don't get them in England like you have them here. The very best we get over there would be considered quite ordinary here in America. So you see I am going to make the best of it while in New York and eat oysters every day." Then the talk turned to reminiscences of London and instead of interviewing we found ourselves drawing maps of London on the table cloth and disputing the locations of familiar landmarks, which was all Greek to Joe Rex, except that he said he would like to go over there some day and see for himself.

Certain tempting questions were heroically foreborne, such as: "What do you think of our tall buildings?" etc., etc. After the luncheon we felt better, but an hour and a half was beautifully wasted so far as the interview was concerned, except to get a line on the very charming personality of Mr. Brockliss. There must be a mistake somewhere about his being purely English. If he is all English he is the most American Englishman that ever came to these shores. Roughly speaking, Englishmen may be divided into two great classes: the bovine blonde, and the nervous brunette. Keeping up the rough classification, Mr. Brockliss belongs in the latter category, for he is surely a bunch of nervous energy, as are we Americans. Upon cross-examination it came out that he is connected with America by ties of blood. You see, he has a third cousin living in La Crosse who has been corresponding with the Brockliss family for some years. The claim is rather meagre, but will have to stand for want of a better one.

After luncheon, to the upper floors, via the "lift," where Mr. Brockliss had his lair. There sat his baggage which bespoke the Britisher. There was the row of "boots." Get that, please, "boots." They never call them shoes in Merrie England. If these touches were lacking to prove the nationality of Mr. Brockliss, one symptom remained. It was a cold day and the windows were wide open. There you have your Briton. The first thing he does is to open all the windows, thump his chest and ask you if it is not bully, while you sit and shiver and answer, "Yes, it is great," at the same time moving your chair out of the draught.

"You Americans are peculiar," he said. "You like to live in hot air always." Oh, had he known the truth of what he was saying! It is doubtful if Mr. Brockliss had ever encountered so much "hot air," in all senses of the word, as he has in New York, while listening to picture makers praising their own brands of film.

Mr. Brockliss in His Favorite Attitude.

"How long have you been in the film game?" was fired at him point blank, after the sketching had begun.

"Three and a half years," he replied.

"How did you drift into the business?"

"I had been in the optical and photographic trade, managing the London branch of a French concern that manufactured photographic material. French methods of doing business put me at a disadvantage with my competitors and I became dissatisfied. On one of my trips to Paris I came in contact with the George Melies Company of that city, which resulted in my securing the London agency for their film product. Agency for her goods I soon secured, most of which are American, which the simple why and wherefore of it all. By far the greater rt of my business is selling American goods, film and ma- inery, and these accounts are multiplying. American moving tures have the call in England everywhere. They are recog- zed as the best. These films sell on their merits, because we ve in our country an open market. The fact that we have no vided factions, such as your Licensed and Independent teries, is the principal reason why the Britishers are not forg- g ahead. Each one of our films has to sell on its own merits in mpetition with films of the world. There is no guaranteed le. Here in America each manufacturer is assured of the sale thirty prints, which tides him over the financing of picture ays. Europe for him is an outlet, or by-product, and a very ofitable one."

"Are you going back home with any more strings to your te?"

"Yes; I am here for more agencies and expect to return with few good-sized interests to represent. I find it rather difficult transact business in the way I expected. Your American m manufacturers are so energetically hospitable that I scarcely ve a moment's time for affairs. They insist upon my seeing l the sights, and I am being daily taken 'over the bumps,' as u say. I cannot get them to talk business. For instance: call upon one of my clients with a large package of documents be gone over and he brushes them aside and tells me to 'for- t it,' and come out for an auto ride or a dinner. I am having e time of my life. I come in for a lot of good-natured haffing,' but I was never so royally treated anywhere. I sup- se though, with all this gadding about, I am doing as much usiness as I would in any other way. New York is a wonder- l place and I believe that some day it will be the biggest city the world."

"Have you noticed any points where America is ahead of ngland?"

"I have; you make the best moving pictures in the world over re."

"Granted; but aside from trade matters—are there any su- rior features that we have over England that you have oticed?"

"Really I haven't had time to notice much of anything; I've en on the go so constantly. If you're going to print this I ould like you to put in a word of thanks to the many excellent entlemen I have met in the trade, for the kind hospitality they ave shown me, and for their unflagging endeavors to keep me appy while in America."

KITCHELL CALLS CLAUDY.

Newark, N. J.

ditor Moving Picture World.

Dear Sir:—I would appreciate space for a reply to a para- raph in the article entitled "The Pleasing and the Unpleas- g" in the Moving Picture World, February 3rd issue. The aragraph noted is one criticizing in explosive and careless nguage a recent Licensed release entitled "The First Man." s I wrote the scenario in question, I would like to make a w words of explanation concerning Mr. Claudy's criticism.

From the general tone of Mr. Claudy's articles it is evident at his knowledge of photoplays and the conditions surround- g their production is overwhelming and diffuse. He ould have Hebrew actors in Hebrew plays—and possibly al devils in Dante's "Inferno." He believes in calling a hovel a spade, even though it be a shovel; and he is not t all particular, either, in his choice of quotations or in his lassical and studied metaphor. He is a photoplay "fan," nd as rapid as his baseball prototype.

Regarding "The First Man": I wrote the scenario, and so ell was it appreciated by the producer that the editor sent e two photographs from the play with his compliments, sked for more of the same type, and doubled my previous ate with the company. I see twenty-four reels of film a eek, and consider myself a fair critic on their merits, and specially of my own work. I have written some thirty hotoplays, and have seen most of them on the screen. Of he thirty, "The First Man" was among three of my most riginal and best stories. It was a brand-new story, admirably acted and photographed; and on each of the three occa- ions I saw it portrayed it held the attention of an average udience throughout its length.

"If this be comedy, then let me cry!" says Mr. Claudy.

Just what Mr. Claudy considers "comedy" in photoplays I an imagine from some of the criticisms he gives. Perhaps e would have a laugh in every inch of film and a joke in very "leader." I disagree with him emphatically. If this s to be the type of "comedy" that is to prevail in the future, here will be no future in moving pictures. To my mind, a lean and original story with a plot well developed and an undercurrent of quiet humor has as much right to the term "comedy" as the antique, roaring-farce variety that is ground out weekly by several studios and criticized as the real article in some of Mr. Claudy's articles.

Mr. Claudy is mistaken in imagining that "The First Man" was intended to drive an audience into hysterics. Moreover, he ignores the real "point" of the story entirely. Perhaps he did not stay until the finish. Mr. Claudy's "one really laughable possibility—that of a girl eighteen years old in the presence of the first man she ever saw or spoke to",—is a side issue. I likewise fail to see any particular hilarity in the idea he individualizes. Had I written the story with the above "situation" as the main incident, it would have been a different story. It would have been either plain drama or farce, and it would not have been a particular success in either line.

The plot of the story—one that could not have been photographed in anything like "400 feet of film"—was that of the reporter sent to interview the secluded heiress, falling in love with her and finding the "obstacle" in a will which states that the girl's fortune will revert to charity if she falls in love before she arrives at legal age. She is eighteen, and her guardians and her lover are ignorant of the fact that a woman becomes of legal age to marry at eighteen and not twenty-one. The "point" of the story lies in this situation, and it is the logical motif of the narrative. It was outlined as such in the advance notices of the play, and it was acted from that standpoint.

I agree with Mr. Claudy of the improbability of a young lady brought up in conventional country surroundings who had "never spoken to a man." In the play itself there was no attempt to show that the secluded heiress was a freak. True, the featured story in the Moving Picture World had a headline to that effect, but it was supposed to be taken from a newspaper leader and it headed a news paragraph, and was therefore naturally written in newspaper style. It was not an improbable story as worked out, and it was not intended for a farce. It was a clean and original plot, with the correct proportion of comedy to "get across" with an average audience. And it is fulfilling its mission.

Sincerely yours,
WILLIAM H. KITCHELL.

GAUMONT WEEKLY A SURPRISE.

The release of "The Gaumont Weekly" has been a pleasant surprise to many exchangemen in the variety and choice of subjects covered. The release of February 29th contained the "New Orleans Mardi Gras," "Shuster's Arrival in New York," "The Great Houston Fire," "The Warrior Ridge Pennsylvania Wreck," and a dozen other important American and European subjects, among the latter was the "Big Floods in the Thames Valley in England," which was quite completely portrayed in this film. In the issue of March 7th, is promised the tragic, fatal leap from the Eiffel, from Paris; Quebec Ice Carnival, and the New York Dog Show.

ECLAIR BOASTS OF PRETTY GIRLS.

You may have ability and know all about acting, but you stand a slim chance of an engagement with Eclair directors if you don't wear a pretty face. Out in Fort Lee, where the big Eclair establishment is located, they believe in beautiful girls and handsome men as magnets to attract the public. Girls with dimples are given first choice at all times. Of course, all applicants must possess acting ability along with beauty and form.

Eclair boasts of nine "stunners" and stands ready to wager a good dinner for the entire party if any other firm can produce an equal number of prettier girls. What either nine of the contestants would do to the judges in the event of a decision could be imagined. Just the same, Eclair dotes on pretty girls, from the management down to the office boy.

NOT A STATE RIGHT PROPOSITION.

The Powers Motion Picture Company have gone to considerable pains to make it clear to exhibitors and others that "The Power Behind the Throne," in which Miss Milred Holland appears, is not to be released on the State right plan. Notwithstanding the announcements to that effect, the Powers Company has been receiving many letters inquiring the State right prices of the pictures. They desire to have it thoroughly understood that "The Power Behind the Throne" will come out as a regular Powers release and exhibitors will not be obliged to pay one cent extra for the privilege of exhibiting the picture. A special lobby display has been prepared, which may be had by applying by letter to the Powers Company.

Motion Picture Exhibitors' League

OF AMERICA.

OHIO CONVENTION.

President Neff Writes About the Arrangements Made for the Big Meeting.

Here is a brief outline of what will be done on the 25th, 26th and 27th of March at the convention at Dayton of Ohio exhibitors:

On the evening of March 25, the National Board of Directors of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America will meet in Dayton at 8 o'clock P. M. for the purpose of devising ways and means to organize every State in the Union before the National Convention meets in Chicago next August. Every member is expected to be there.

At ten o'clock, March 26, the exhibitors will meet at the Auditorium Theater, where automobiles will be waiting to take all the lady visitors sight-seeing through Dayton. A short meeting of the State League will be held and committees appointed, which will report the next day. At 1:30 P. M. cars will be waiting to take the visitors to the Cash Register Hall, where speeches will be delivered. Senator J. B. Foraker, national counsel for the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, is invited. Congressman J. M. Cox, of Dayton, Hon. J. J. Lentz, of Columbus, are also invited, and the Mayor of the city will deliver the keys of the city to the visiting exhibitors. M. A. Neff, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, will respond. Ju a few steps from the convention hall one of the finest equip ed picture theaters in America will entertain the exhibitors v h feature pictures, high class vaudeville and a beautifully ranged musical program.

The National Cash Register people are doing all in t ir power to make this convention a grand success; a ip through the National Cash Register works will be taken y all those who desire to go. At night there will be an es cially arranged entertainment for the enjoyment of the hibitors. Those wearing Motion Picture Exhibitors' bad es will be admitted free to all the picture shows in Dayton d free transportation on the street cars. A motion picture of the convention will be taken by Pathe Freres, which wil e one of the feature events.

On the second day the members will assemble at the ig convention hall and get right down to business. The Ch ber of Commerce of Dayton, Ohio, has arranged to enter in all the members of the League with a big banquet on e night of the 27th; this banquet is expected to break all c-ords for Dayton, as we expect not less than 600 members, nt the Chamber of Commerce of Dayton is enthusiastic d always does things by the wholesale and in their estima on there is nothing too good for the exhibitors, and there is o

COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENTS FOR OHIO CONVENTION AT DAYTON.

Clem Kerr B. J. Wheeler George E. Weed O. B. Weave Edwin Finke

August J. Carbin, 1st Vice-Pres. Otto Lendeking, Treasurer. John J. Huss, President. R. C. Dingelstedt, Secretary. M. Fishman, 2d Vice-Pres.

OFFICERS OF CINCINNATI LOCAL EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE.

limit to the number as Dayton realizes that a convention of motion picture exhibitors is by far the biggest advertisement that any city could possibly have.

President Neff personally visited Dayton on Wednesday, February 21, and found everybody enthusiastic, ready and willing to take off their coat and help make the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Convention at Dayton the biggest convention ever held in that city.

INDIANA CONVENTION.

A Great Meeting Has Been Arranged for March 19-20, 1912, at Fort Wayne.

The next meeting of the Indiana Moving Picture Exhibitors' League will be held in Fort Wayne on Tuesday and Wednesday, March 19 and 20, 1912, and it promises to be one of the best, if not the best, yet held. Fort Wayne is noted for its hospitality and the exhibitors of that city are working overtime to make the meeting a big success. They have prepared a great time as the program below will show, and they say they are not through yet. Not a minute will be lost and every exhibitor who attends is assured a royal good time. The League cordially invites every exhibitor of the State, whether they are members or not, to be present at the meeting. They will be amply repaid for the time and money spent and they will meet as fine a bunch of exhibitors as there are in the business. Make every arrangement to attend the meeting. If you can't get away for the two days, try and be present one day at least. The local arrangements are in charge of Messrs. Joe Bommerschein, Sprague Green and H. C. Heisler, the most prominent of Fort Wayne exhibitors. The meeting will be held in the Anthony Hotel, the largest hotel in the city. Now Indiana exhibitors don't forget the slogan: "On to Fort Wayne, March 19 and 20." Following is the program that has been arranged:

Tuesday, March 19.

1:30 p. m.—Address by the Mayor.
2:00 p. m.—Applications for membership.
2:30 p. m.—Business session.
6:00 p. m.—Dinner (banquet tendered the visitors).
7:30 p. m.—Meet at Convention Hall.
8:00 p. m.—Vaudeville, Temple Theater. Courtesy F. E. Stouder, president Fort Wayne Lyric Theater Company.

Wednesday, March 20.

10:00 a. m.—New members.
10:30 a. m.—Theater advertising.
12:00 a. m.—Lunch.
1:30 p. m.—Unfinished business.

H. S. DICKSON, President.

COLUMBUS EXHIBITORS ORGANIZE.

At a meeting of motion picture men held in Columbus, Ohio, Tuesday, February 20, 1912, a branch of the Exhibitors' League for that city was organized. Thirty-five members were enrolled and the following officers were elected: J. A. Maddox, president; W. B. Belknapp, first vice-president; J. W. Swain, second vice-president; J. R. McCoy, secretary; Max Stern, treasurer.

M. A. Neff, president, and C. M. Christenson, secretary of the National League, were present and addressed the members.

ADVERTISERS TAKE NOTICE:

The Committee of the Dayton Convention is preparing an elaborate official souvenir programme containing some 14 views of Dayton and the National Cash Register Works, 15 portraits and many other illustrations, all halftone cuts on good paper, many statistics and notes. Five thousand copies will be printed, to be mailed to the exhibitors of Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, West Virginia, etc.

The Motion Picture Guide has secured a room next to the Convention Hall and is placing same free of charge at the disposal of the advertisers willing to exhibit some of their goods. A number of uniformed ushers will be in charge of the exhibition room.

The coming Dayton Convention will be the best ever held in this country, the committee is sparing no expense to provide all sorts of entertainment for the visitors, and the convention promises to be a great success, if we can judge by the great interest taken by exhibitors from many States.

For advertising space in the official programme and exhibiting space in the exhibition room, apply to The Motion Picture Guide, 167 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Ill. The limit for receiving advertising copy is Thursday, March 7th, 1912.

IMPROVEMENTS IN PROCTOR'S.

F. F. Proctor's 125th Street Theater has just been renovated from the lobby to the back stage at a cost of over $20,000, and presents a most pleasing and cosy appearance. The lobby is especially fine; in fact, we know of no theater in New York City that has a more beautiful entrance. It is a straight, wide hall with a high ceiling and without obstructions of any kind. The window of the box office opens onto it, inside the two double sets of swinging doors that give entrance and egress.

Just beyond the box office window there is a very beautiful screen of cathedral glass, designed by Koechig & Co., of New York City. This screen, which also has a double set of swinging doors, is of fancy glass surrounded with a delicate conventional design in opalescent tints, varying from pale green to a soft peach-blow and amethyst. Between the inner street door and this screen is ample room for the usual crowd that collects at the opening hour.

The ceiling of the lobby is white plaster stained with burnt sienna and wiped. This gives to its conventional Corinthian designs a sunshine effect; it looks very much like time-yellowed marble and is very pleasing. Two chandeliers of cascade glass prisms, mounted on gilded crowns and suspended on gilded chains, add a very rich tone, the prisms, like a cluster of diamonds, indicating the light of the electric bulbs hidden behind them.

Three steps within, the cathedral glass screen, new brass railings focus the stream of patrons to the ticket chopper's box and the auditorium. The auditorium has been refurnished with a new, green carpet. Its walls redecorated, have now a green tint, a shade or two lighter than the carpet, set out by a decorative border, like a running scroll, in old gold. These tints also predominate in the background for the ceiling frescoes, high up above the second balcony.

"The Song of the Gypsy."

Romantic Drama by the Eclipse Players to be Released by George Kleine—Charming Portrayal.

Reviewed by Jas. S. McQuade.

GEORGE KLEINE has received numerous compliments from exhibitors of late on the better selection of subjects and on the improved and more uniform quality, of the Urban-Eclipse product. The appeal of subjects of this make to American picture lovers is decidedly growing stronger, and this could have been brought about only by a closer analysis of American requirements, not only in the selection of scenarios, but in the adoption of more approved methods of characterization from the American standpoint.

"The Song of the Gypsy," to be released on Wednesday, March 20, is a simple little story, away out of the beaten track, with delicate touches, here and there, that reveal vividly the composite nature of individual character, and with pathetic scenes that move the heart and exact the tribute of tears. The pictures tell the story admirably, while the photography shows clear definition and fine technique.

While Eclipse furnishes the names of the leading people in the cast, the assignment of the characters is omitted, an oversight which really deprives the spectator of considerable pleasure; for who would not be pleased to store in memory the name of the lady who appears in the titular role and of the gentleman who impersonates the lovable old artist, Sylvester? The actress who appears as the gypsy maid is an artist, from toes to finger tips. Whether we see her in gypsy garb, or in the finery of the great prima donna; in the streets playing her own accompaniment for a few pennies, or in her sumptuous dressing room at the Grand Opera House; on the stage at the benefit concert for her old benefactor, or singing him to his last long sleep in his humble bed chamber, there is nothing more and nothing less that we would like to see her do than what she does. Her art has become nature itself, and that without apparent effort.

Unstinted praise is also due the gentleman who so delights and saddens us in his appearance as Sylvester. That trivial little act covering his bowl of thin gruel with his napkin, c hearing a knock at the door; how it appeals to our hear with its delicate show of pride, lest his friends might lear his poverty and want! And, in the death scene, how gent is the passing of the soul from the body communicated to u
No contortion here during dissolution. The left hand fal limply on the coverlet and the head sinks back slowly, the spirit takes wing on waves of melody. 'Tis an affectir scene, and one I should like to see presented with music accompaniment such as my friends Mr. Rothapfel of tl
Lyric, Minneapolis, and Mr. De Lisle of the Grand Centr
St. Louis, might select. The pictured story is a tragic poe and affords a fine opportunity for an effective musical pr gram.

I regret that it is imperative that reference should be mac to an interior setting of this film which is unworthy—th showing the scene at the grand concert benefit. We all kno that this was not a public affair, but one limited to membe of the Artists Club, and their friends and acquaintances. Th fact, however, is not sufficient excuse for the cramped, u impressive interior given us in the picture. The room altogether too small, and the number of people present cou be assembled in an ordinary drawing room. This oversigh one cannot help feeling, borders on penuriousness and rol the film of the impressiveness of a great scene.

Here is the story condensed: The celebrated artist, Sy vester, vainly seeks a fitting subject for exhibition in th Salon, Paris. While ransacking the collection of drawing and prints in his studio one day, for an idea, he hears th clear, fresh notes of a song from the street below. Goin to the window he sees a young gypsy maid, in the picturesq costume of her race, accompanying her voice on the guita
An inspiration seizes him: she will be the subject for h masterpiece. He beckons the girl to come up to his studi where he finally gains her consent to pose for him.

One day while she is posing and singing one of her favori songs, a great musician—a friend of the artist—is presen
The musician whispers to Sylvester that Cigal has a voic that will make her a great operatic singer, if she be give the necessary training. Sylvester immediately resolves t assume the expenses of a course at the Conservatory and asks Cigal if she would like to attend. With smiles and affectionate caresses she shows her great joy.

Scene from George Kleine's Eclipse Drama, "The Song of the Gypsy."

Her musical course is a delight to the great master, who has shaped the careers of many famous singers. Cigal feels that she will become great and, feeling ashamed of her past, she determines to destroy all records that will reveal it. Knowing that Sylvester's painting will create a furor in artistic and fashionable circles, and lead to her recognition as the former street singer, she enters his studio secretly and cuts it into shreds. The artist becomes almost insane over his loss. Work is no longer a pleasure; nor can he accomplish anything that will rank with his former efforts. Gradually he becomes impoverished, until he lacks the plain necessaries of life.

At this sad stage in his career, Sylvester's true condition is discovered by his friend, the musician. The latter writes a letter to the members of the Artists Club, acquainting them with the facts. They decide to give the grand concert benefit on behalf of their needy brother member, and two of their number call on the great prima donna, then in the height of favor in Paris. They hand her the musician's letter. Reading it she is seized with faintness and horror, but contrives to conceal her emotions from the visitors. She consents to appear at the benefit. When they depart she is seized with penitence and despair, for she is Cigal, the ungrateful creature who has brought penury and misery to her dear benefactor.

Scene from "The Song of a Gypsy" (Eclipse).

On the night of the benefit, the musical critics of Paris are astonished at the lack of form and voice displayed by their greatest singer, and they are still more perturbed when she is assisted from the stage, while suffering hysterically from some strange hallucination. In mental vision she had seen the picture of the gypsy maid in Sylvester's studio.

We next see her in the small room where her old benefactor lies dying. She falls on her knees at his bedside and kisses his hand. He looks at her, but does not recognize her. Then she exchanges her rich costume for that of Cigal, the street singer, and, with her guitar strapped around her neck, sings and accompanies one of the simple songs that he loved. He turns his eyes upon her and caresses her as in the old days. Cigal sings on; but, when she looks again, the old, careworn face bears the seal of peace and the long rest has begun.

"Out of the Depths" (Essanay):

THE splendid dramatic offerings of the Essanay Company for the month of March, both Western and those from the Chicago studio, are feature productions every one of them. Such subjects as "The Turning Point," "At the End of the Trail," "The Madman," and "Out of the Depths," should awaken the interest of every live exhibitor in the country and cause him to get busy and book them up without delay.

The last named photoplay, "Out of The Depths," is a vital, gripping melodrama replete with poignant thrills and unfolding to a smashing big climax that hits straight from the shoulder; one in which a lightning effect is the dominant tragic factor and should prove a real sensation to the melodrama lover.

James Grey, a clean-cut young fellow, is employed as clerk in the office of Levette & Co., a large wholesale concern.

Grey's mother is afflicted with lung trouble which steadily grows worse until at last she is forced to take to her bed. Grey calls in old Doctor Bell, a staunch friend, who treats Mrs. Grey for some weeks without result, then tells young Grey that it is absolutely necessary he send his mother away to a sanitarium and warmer climate if any hope of her recovery is to be entertained.

Scene from "Out of the Depths" (Essanay).

Grey realizes he hasn't the money to do this, but a ray of hope gleams in his breast as he determines to go to Levette, his employer, and ask for a loan of the money needed. Feeling sure of success, Grey goes to the office and talks with Levette who absolutely refuses to loan him the sum.

Desperate over the situation, and determined to save his mother's life by sending her away, Grey appropriates the necessary money from the office safe and conceals the fact by altering figures in his ledger. Dan Matthews, the office manager, however, suspects Grey and confides the fact to Levette.

Meanwhile, Grey sends his mother away to the sanitarium in charge of Doctor Bell and returns to the office, to find an expert accountant going over his ledger. The false entry is detected and Grey is accused of the theft. Grey makes no defense and confesses his guilt, charging Levette with being the real criminal in heartlessly refusing him the money for his sick mother.

He is sentenced to the penitentiary for a term of years and the fact is commented on in the newspapers.

In the distant sanitarium, Mrs. Grey is enjoying the sun light one morning in charge of her nurse, when she happens to see the newspaper notice of her son's imprisonment for theft. The blow is too much for her, and she sinks back upon the pillows dead from heart failure.

Fifteen years later, Grey has lived down the past and has risen to a position of political influence in a small city up the state. He is nominated and run for Mayor and, after a splendid fight, he wins by a handsome majority.

Elated with his success, Grey now asks pretty Marjory Lawton, a prominent society girl, to be his wife, and the happy wedding day is set for the very new future. In his library one evening, Grey is happily running over some political papers when a step beside him causes him to look up into the face of Dan Matthews, the former office manager of Levette & Co. Matthews is now a common street ruffian, drink and other forms of dissipation having caused his downfall, and he dumfounds Grey with the startling threat that if he doesn't keep him supplied with money he will expose his old prison record and ruin him in the eyes of the world. Realizing his danger, Grey gives him a sum of money and Matthews leaves.

Scene from "Out of the Depths" (Essanay).

By the end of the week this money is gone and he turns up at Grey's office for more just at the moment that Marjory is there. Matthews forces Grey to introduce him to the girl and, later, comes again to Grey's library during a raging storm and again demands money. Desperate over the situation, Grey half strangles Matthews in his rage, then drives him from the house in fury. Burning with revenge, Matthews goes straight to Marjory's home, enters the library at the height of the storm and sends the maid for the girl, intending to expose Grey to her. Stepping to the large French window to look at the storm, Matthews suddeny is instantly killed by a terrific bolt of lightning and his body found a moment later by the Lawtons who enter. Quickly Marjory calls up Grey, who is pacing his library floor, and tells him of Matthew's tragic end. With a prayer of thanksgiving for his deliverance from the power of the blackmailer, Grey lifts his eyes as a vision of his dead mother appears before him and, with the thought that his sin has been atoned and his life is now his own, he sinks happily into his chair.

Francis X. Bushman plays Grey, and gives the character a splendid portrayal, while Lily Branscombe is charming in the role of Marjory Lawton. Bryant Washburn is Matthews, and performs villainish enough to satisfy the most ardent lovers of melodrama. The entire cast has been selected with great care, and the production is a corker in every way.

"Out of The Depths" is booked for release Tuesday, March 19th.

"HOW WASHINGTON CROSSED THE DELAWARE

Clever Portrayal of Notable Event in American History b Edison Company.

The capture of Trenton and the Hessian troops under Ger eral Rahl by General Washington on December 26th, 177 is one of the spectacular events of the Colonial War fo independence and constitutes the seventh subject in th Edison United States history series of pictures. There hav been other versions of this subject, but all seem to cente about the crossing of the Delaware River amid floating cake of ice and blinding snow storm. In each case the movin picture producer has attempted to reproduce the famou painting by E. Leutz, now reposing in the Metropolita Museum of Art, New York City.

Scene from "How Washington Crossed the Delaware" (Edison).

In this reproduction the Edison Company has been reasonably successful. Real cakes of ice surrounded the boats used to transport Washington and his little army and this part of the picture is of considerable interest. As usual in the Edison historical series there is a slight story to give color to the incident. In this story the daughter of a Tory squire, in sympathy with the Continentals, is made to assist the operations of General Washington through her sweetheart, a young officer and scout, serving in Washington's army. The sweetheart receives a note from the girl to the effect that General Rahl will entertain her father at the Hessian headkuarters on Christmas night. The young officer calls to see the girl while on a reconnoitering expedition and finds one of the Hessian officers at her home. The Hessian attempts to capture the American scout, but is wounded in a desperate hand to hand encounter, after which the officer hastens to give the signal to General Washington, which brings the army to Trenton. Washington and his soldiers defeat the Hessians and capture the entire force.

Scene from "How Washington Crossed the Delaware" (Edison).

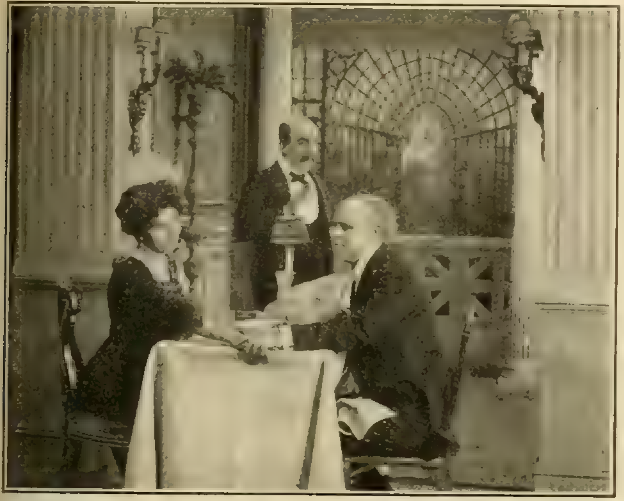
The capture of the officers while at their feast forms a dramatic climax to this interesting picture. The girl's father is among them, but through her sweetheart, the young scout, she successfuly pleads for his freedom which Washington grants. The old Tory is so grateful that he withdraws his opposition to the young scout's suit for his daughter's hand and they receive his paternal blessing.

There are a number of very spirited scenes in this picture which seem too brief for proper illustration of so important an event as the one pictured. This picture will be released March 29th.

"PERCIVAL CHUBBS AND THE WIDOW" (Edison).

A laughable farce-comedy by the Edison Company for release March 27th is entitled, "Percival Chubbs and the Widow," and contains many amusing situations. Chubbs is a middle-aged widower in love with the Widow Oldfield. While at a fashionable restaurant Chubbs pops the question and is accepted, much to the amusement of the attending waiter. He escorts the widow to her home and is duly introduced to her athletic son. Now this son is some athlete and is exceedingly proud of his muscular development and takes occasion to show his prospective father-in-law the trophies of his prowess.

While the old gentleman is inspecting the young man's assortment of trophies, the widow is having trouble with her wig, which she takes off to more properly adjust. While thus engaged Chubbs emerges from the young man's studio just in time to catch a glimpse of the bald pate of his intended. He almost faints from the effects of the sight, but recovers in time to present a smiling countenance as the widow turns to him and manages to make a graceful getaway.



Scene from "Percival Chubbs and the Widow" (Edison).

Upon arriving at his club, Chubbs, filled with disgust, writes the widow a note to the effect that it is all off—that "unforeseen circumstances" compel him to recall his offer of marriage. The widow shows the missive to her athletic son who immediately proceeds to coerce the fickle Chubbs. He finds Chubbs at the club in a quiet little game and communicates the interesting information to the old fellow that unless he carries out his promise he will probably get his "block knocked off." Chubbs decides to take no chances with the young athlete and immediately pens a note of assurance to the widow.

While these events are happening the son of Chubbs arrives from college and is made acquainted with the situation. Together they call upon the widow and young Chubbs is introduced to her son. The young men are about equal in size and the widow's son manages to invite the son of Chubbs to an informal bout with the gloves. Young Chubbs affects to be a novice at the game of fisticuffs and consents to put the gloves on. In the first preliminary passes Chubbs manages to land a stiff punch upon the features of the widow's son which angers the young man and he endeavors to get back. More punches only increase his anger and the fighting becomes in earnest. Finally Chubbs lands a good stiff punch on the jaw and sends the widow's son sprawling. Several knock-downs follow and then young Chubbs lands a punch that lays the boastful young athlete down for keeps.

In the outer room Chubbs and the widow hear the disturbance and hastens in. Finding her offspring hors de combat, the widow hastens to his side and raising his battered head she looks unutterable hate upon the Chubbses. Finally she orders them out from the house which dismissal they accept with great pleasure, thus ending the possible alliance between the houses of Chubbs and Oldfield. This picture will be the occasion of many good laughs and is a real feature comedy.

MISS MARY V. HALL.

Mary V. Hall, at one time well known on the speaking stage, resigned the legitimate to accept a position with Pathe Freres. At the expiration of her contract with Pathe, Miss Hall returned to vaudeville roles, and is now desirous of taking up picture work again. Miss Hall is the possessor of varied theatrical experience and a very pleasing personality.

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR PIANISTS.

By C. K. Acken.

The pianist who uses the classics is the pianist of the future. The classics are a gold mine for working special effects. Take a storm at sea for instance. Nothing fits in quite as well for this as "McDowell's Sea Pieces." The last two in the volume are powerful in their appeal. I have had people tell me they were actually made afraid by hearing them.

A while ago when the Vitagraph Co. were releasing their series of Alaskan pictures, "Mendellsohn's Hunting Song" proved useful. The sound of the chase is heard throughout this piece and many scenes in the films showing dogs pulling six or eight sleds full of people over the snow were made quite vivid by its use.

For extremely sad situations, such as the closing scenes in "Vanity Fair," I find nothing so good as parts of Puccini's "Madame Butterfly." There is a haunting quality about this opera which stays by one. For the ball-room scene in this same picture a good thing to use is Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier Waltz." This may also be used to good effect in Selig's "Cinderella." Strauss has the reputation of writing music which no-one understands, but when he chooses he can be very simple and charming. "Der Rosenkavalier" is only moderately difficult.

For the grand effect, particularly in outdoor scenes, certain passages in "The Girl of the Golden West" are appropriate. A picture like "A Tale of the Wilderness" (Biograph), is not helped any by keeping the music at breakneck speed throughout. The effect of tense conflict can be secured by playing slowly and in a grand manner. "The Girl of the Golden West" is rich in the proper music for this kind of a subject.

For love scenes there is any amount of suitable music. Yet, the number of love scenes continually being shown in pictures is so great that a pianist always finds himself in need of new selections. Three very attractive songs are Bartlett's "Dream," D'Hardelot's "Because," and Rogers' "At Parting."

The Indian Massacre

A Tale of Frontier Life Based on the "Bison—101" Two-Reel Picture, by Louis Reeves Harrison

FROM a line of broken hills of sandy formation, with dry arroyos where the buffalo trailed to the streams, came an emigrant train. First were scattered horsemen, leather-skinned frontiersmen, bearded to the cheek bones, long of hair, longer of rifle and longest of vision; men who held their own lives balancing lightly every hour of the day and who regarded red men as little more than wastrals or beasts of prey. Then rose into view the white arches of prairie schooners with ox-teams plowing stolidly along and swinging from side to side in their yokes to the "gee-haw" of drivers who could flick a fly at twenty feet with their whips.

A solitary rider, a weather-scarred scout, wearing the coonskin of a fur trader, selected the camping ground, but urged his horse farther on in search of game. There were fresh traces of buffalo in a neighboring watercourse and these lured him from the band under inspiration of the chase. More than a mile away from his companions the scout came upon two wandering animals separated from the herd, but the wind was from him and they dashed away blindly, their noses to the ground. He chanced a long-range shot from the saddle and brought one stumbling to the ground.

The shot was heard by a party of mounted bucks from a neighboring Indian encampment and also in search of game. When they rode up to the scene they found a lone hunter bending over his quarry, knife in hand, and predatory instinct proved stronger than discretion. They dashed down upon him, firing as they came, and making the usual display of ferocity intended to frighten their enemies as well as sustain their own courage in battle. The scout fell prone behind his prey and began to pick off the attacking party with such deliberation and accuracy that only half of the braves managed to escape. They had come upon a ma known among them as "Bad Medicine."

Among those escaping was a tall brave, Mountain Rock who had just lost his only child, and he did not participat in the excited account of the battle with Bad Medicine give by his companions. He found his squaw, Ravenwing, dressin the mourning cradle for her child with back quills an feathers while she cooed to the inanimate little creature sh had brought into the world as if it was still throbbing wit warm blood. She was talking to the cold corpse of her littl one in endearing terms as familiarly and affectionately as i the child was still clinging to her breast. It had grow to her heart with tendrils not so easily broken as those o existence and full realization of its soul's departure was onl beginning to dawn on her crushed mentality.

Mountain Rock stood like his namesake, silent and cold for a while, then muttered "Baby's gone."

"Baby's here," Ravenwing illustrated—she was so young that her voice was still that of a child.

"Spirit's gone," he said gloomily.

"For a little while," she told him. "It will come bac again." She took up the tiny, bandaged creature and dangle a good luck totem before its closed eyes. "Baby, come agai soon."

"Spirit never come," quoth Mountain Rock solemnly. The he strode away to don his war bonnet and join the council.

The Indians themselves were responsible for the wanto destruction of buffalo before the white man had come t their hunting grounds. Hostile tribes had waged an endles war of destruction in search of food as well as useless one on each other, much in the fashion of civilized people, an they had practically annihilated all peace-loving element among themselves when emigration began in earnest. The red races had been further deciminated by smallpox and other diseases against which they had no other protection than amulets provided by crazy medicine men not yet operating under pure food laws, and bad whisky was finishing them so effectively that it seemed a shame to waste good powder and lead. The last named agent in the elimination of the unfit was in operation, but Mountain Rock did not arrive at the council in time to partake—most of the supply being inside of big chief, Cow-Chaser, who was in process of addressing the meeting.

Bison's "The Indian Massacre"—Settlers Seeking Safety.

"White man too late," argued Cow-Chaser, "Indian here first. First ones get all. Others get nothing"—Cow-Chaser was in advance of his time—"If Indian let white man in, paleface gets same as redskin."

This argument, ab initio and in referendum, meeting with unanimous and unqualified approval, it was thereupon decided that fighting to the verge of mutual destruction was more desirable than toleration for mutual benefit, and war was declared.

The presence of Bad Medicine in the neighborhood was a sure indication that an emigrant train was not far distant. He had lived among the redskins and had adopted many of their methods of warfare, but his eyes were keener than those of any savage, his powder was better, and he wasted no ammunition. He was a dangerous factor, but an emigrant train, even when formed in corral for encampment and defense, was an easier mark than the nearest settlement—Brownsville—where men of Bad Medicine's type were in force, and in charge of a hard fighter named Morgan. Brown, himself, as well as other adventurous spirits, had advanced beyond the natural protection of the town bearing his name and had struck into soil as an honest tiller of it, working for a living instead of trying to get what he needed for his wife and child at some other fellow's expense. It was decided, therefore, by Cow-Chaser and his band of braves to attack the weaker forces for immediate supplies before attempting the complete elimination of intruders upon their hunting grounds.

Bad Medicine, true to his nature—he had already proven to be a fatal dose—was not relieved by the flight of those who had escaped, but followed them closely to the edge of the Indian encampment and there witnessed the council long enough to gather its full import. He mounted and rode back to the emigrant train in time to assure its formation in corral for defense, then dashed on to warn outlying settlers and arouse the Brownsville terrors. Some of the latter were bad enough to make murder a virtue and robbery a business, but they had the redeeming feature of bravery. As individuals many wore a local halo of romantic glory and as a body they were organized for defense against a cruel enemy, but in attack they rarely left any record of events, or redskins to misconstrue their motives.

The main body of redmen reached the corral soon after its formation and before the cattle had been driven in from grazing, and the entire war party joined in stampeding the food supply of the whites on the hoof while skirmishers undertook the enlivening duties of braining settlers, burning their cabins and carrying off their wives for outrages unspeakable before slavery, or death by torture. A general attack on the corral followed, with circling tactics by the riding warriors, firing in on a stationary mask, but without serious loss on either side. The swiftly-moving redskins were good horsemen and furnished illusive targets, while the solid old prairie schooners presented a defense almost as impenetrable as a stockade, many of them being constructed for that purpose. The firing on both sides was incessant, but the circling party was gradually approached for a final desperate assault.

Mountain Rock was in lead of a skirmishing party when he came upon Brown's log cabin apparently empty. They had already feasted on blood when they met with no serious resistance. Killing with the ferocity of wild beasts and the excitement of madmen, and entrance to the pioneer's home was effected without a shot. There was no one in but a two-year-old baby lying on the bed. A brave seized the child and was about to beat the life out of its frail body when his hand was arrested. Mountain Rock stood for a moment like a man in a trance. Far away at the encampment was his wife bent over the lifeless body of their own child. An idea seized him as a result of his mental vision, and he decided to carry the white child into captivity.

Mrs. Brown had gone with a dinner pail for her husband in the remote fields when she was moved by an uncontrollable impulse to return. On her way back she encountered groups of frightened and fleeing settlers and guessed the worst. From the moment her fears were aroused there was no restraining her. She ran with all the strength at her command to her home, and a feather from a war bonnet before it brought the full horror of what she might expect to her face. She dashed into the room where she had left her child and turned sick, but while there was faint hope left, no mother's heart is daunted where her child is concerned. She found traces of the visiting Indians and followed these in a half delirious condition, every nerve and muscle in her body strained in the effort to learn the fate of her little one. The afternoon was waning, but she hurried on, impelled by a mind tormented, and pursuit led her straight to the Indian encampment. She was seen by the old men and women, and dragged before Mountain Rock, now in command. She knew of her fate in advance. A woman so comely was usually taken by one of the younger bucks as his wife—the penalty of any attempt at escape being torture more hideous than crucifixion—then traded to another when the first brave was tired of her and so on down to abject slavery beneath the Indian squaws and children who would lose no opportunity to inflict humiliation, to an end in horrible death with her mutilated body rolled in mud to express red hatred for the white race.

Mountain Rock had given the white child to his wife in consolation for her own loss. At first Ravenwing refused to touch the offspring of the detested whites, but her maternal instincts were stronger than race hatred and she was holding the child in her arms and standing near her husband when Mrs. Brown was thrust before him for disposal. The white woman's wrists were bound behind her, she was on the verge of collapse and was being handled roughly by braves on either side of her, but she gave a wild cry "Baby!" and sprang forward with mad strength in an attempt to rescue her most precious possession. She seemed not to see the hideous faces daubed with paint all around her, naught but the cherub entrusted to her keeping, as she struggled breathless as a sullen day, her pale brow bursting with perspiration.

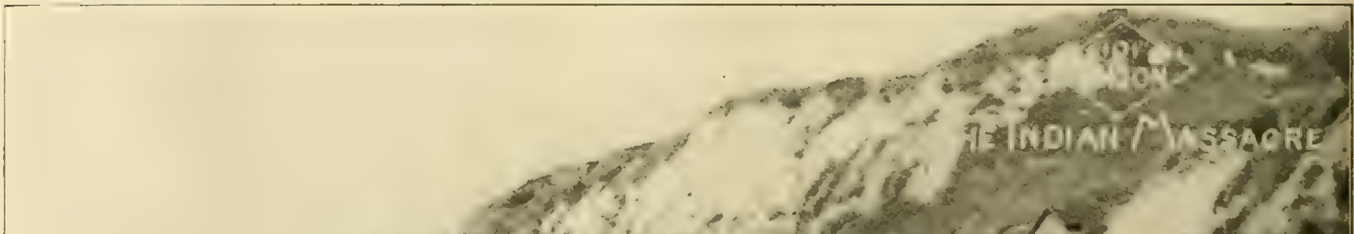
Mountain Rock saw and understood. The worn and wounded woman would have been nothing to him but a representative of the oncoming storm, one of the flakes of snow that was to cover the red autumn leaves of his race, but her spirit seemed to impress him. She was one of the unconquered on their way to mighty achievements, the grasp of her soul was that of liberty-loving people; in the flash of her eyes was the fire of a torch destined to light the way of humanity; she had the indomitable courage of proud intelligence brought into collision with brutal ignorance.

The worst that could occur for an attractive white woman in the hands of redmen arose when the captors holding Mrs. Brown began to dispute for her possession. This meant instant death for the captive, or outrageous torture upon the return of the war party. Mountain Rock indicated death and the unfortunate woman was dragged away, but she burst from her captors and ran to the child. She pressed her lips upon the little one's cheek, gazed long into the eyes of Ravenwing, then bowed in submission to her fate. Mountain Rock frowned, assumed a heroic pose and reserved the helpless woman for slow torture. She was thereupon taken to a prison tent and thrown in upon the bare ground.

The horrible torture inflicted upon white women by Indians of the plains was a matter of common knowledge among frontiersmen, but it was not needed to stir up the Brownsville terrors. They were a wicked lot of whites on their own account and regarded the policy of treating redskins as civilized beings with contempt. Indians soon learned to kill off a few settlers as a preliminary to profitable peace negotiations, but Morgan's band of whites held that the only way to impress the noble redskin was to destroy him and all he possessed. At the very moment a band of braves were driving pegs into the ground for the purpose of tying Mrs. Brown to them with outstretched feet and hands, so that she could be leisurely beaten and mutilated until there was no more life in her, the bold bad men of Brownsville were preparing for a hot fight with the main war party, having been informed by the scout that the emigrant train was corralled and surrounded by hostile redskins. A small band of whites, outnumbered ten to one by the entire Indian force, left Brownsville under the joint command of Morgan and the scout at night. They were fully aware that they were endangering the settlement they were putting behind them and their own lives as well by abandoning its shelter, but many of them were bent on protecting property paid for more than once because of innumerable treaties, and they were not wholly unreasonable in getting the country into such habitable shape that millions of other emigrants might follow and condone whatever was offensive in acts of those who bore the early hardships by living in peace and comfort secured by them.

Throughout the night the emigrants fought with courage superior to that of their assailants. Wounded horses were killed to shelter firing parties, and bundles of bedding, sacks of corn, bags of flour and whatever was available for breast-

Bison's "The Indian Massacre"—Trapper Overhears the Declaration of War.



Bison's "The Indian Massacre"—Marshalling of Settlers to Avenge the Massacre.

works was employed for that purpose. The Indians lighted the dry grass and sage brush, and the wind carried the flames down on the corral, setting fire to the wagons. There was no water to extinguish the flames, but they were smothered by blankets and clothing, and, in the end, the attempt to fire the train reacted against the attacking force, depriving them of cover for close approach. At dawn the Indians were compelled to resume their circling tactics on horse, and they were so occupied when the Brownsville terrors arrived.

Morgan approached by a detour to gain a commanding position, and secured a point of view that laid the entire scene before him, including the Indian village in the distance. The latter offered strategic suggestion for men compelled to deliver a decisive blow without an open engagement. Morgan drew his small force farther around the valley to an advantagous base of operations for offensive or defensive tactics as the case might require, and led a direct attack on the encampment of the enemy after sending Bad Medecine around for a flank movement and second surprise to give the impression of skirmishers from a large body of men.

Many of the tribe were still in the wigwams, though a few braves had been occupied since the break of day in preparing for an orgie of torture almost as refined as that enjoyed by the citizens of Rome during a period of ancient civilization. Twigs and boughs were already smouldering near the contrivance of pegs and thongs used to fasten a naked prisoner to the ground during torture, as one of the few pleasures of the noble red man was to build a small fire on the stomach of his captive and sit around enjoying the agonized writhings and screams of his victim. No brave had, however, donned a war bonnet or worked himself up to fighting condition, the combined attack was a complete surprise, and the carnage that followed would have satisfied a Roman, German or other Emperor compelled to destroy his fellow beings in order to brace a tottering throne. No quarter was given to any living creature and the work of destruction included camp equipment and wigwams. Morgan set fire to everything that would burn, then divided his command to ambush the line of communication between the emigrant corral and the Indian village.

Smoke signals were among the most important used by Indians—they were largely guided in conduct and movement by sign language—and the sight of a column of it in the direction of their encampment drew the entire war party from the attack, the plucky emigrants actually attempting pursuit.

"Here they come," Morgan called to his handful of men. "Wait until they close in and drop all you can before they locate us."

He had chosen a position commanding a defile where the onrushing body of horsemen could not scatter, and he waited until the leaders were in close range before firing a shot. The heavy odds against his small, dismounted band were overcome largely by the selection of advantageous positions and the artifice which drew the Indians into a crowded gorge, but the incessant and deadly fire from the repeating weapons of the Brownsville terrors accomplished wonders—it rained Indians until their advance was checked. Those who wheeled about were met by a terrible cross-fire from Bad Medicine's detachment, then a wild yell of triumph came up from the valley. The hard fighting settlers who had held the savages at bay all night cut off their sole avenue of escape, and the reds got what they intended to give the white—no quarter. The conduct of the terrors was too near that of the savages themselves to be particularly edifying. They shot into prostrate bodies with well-founded suspicion that crafty braves could drop as though dead and rise again, and they left none of that band to slaughter women and children one day and ask government protection the next.

Pale-faced poets of noble-redman proclivities would have had nervous prostration over the conduct of half-crazed Brown during the indiscriminate killing for revenge that followed. He had been at work in the fields when he first caught sight of a few braves in war paint and had gone to his house to prepare for an attack only to discover in traces of the redmen and in the absence of his wife and child that the worst he could imagine had happened. Believing that they had been dragged away to furnish entertainment for a lot of savage decadents, to be staked out and burned or mutilated before relieved by an ignominious and horrible death, he had accompanied the retreating settlers from outlying districts and had joined the Brownsville terrors. He was among the most violent of these engaged in destroying the Indian village, and after the encounter with the main body, when the ground was strewn with painted red fiends, he went about with a club taken from one of them, braining those who moved or gave any sign of shamming death. The social instinct that restrains a man from injuring his community or its members, together with all that is humane in the progressive race had vanished for the time from his nature. His insane fury, that of a mind temporarily unbalanced, was as short lived as the Indian wars would have been if they had been left to those on the firing line, but the silent and deep-seated hatred of the aboriginal decadents was one felt by all white men on the border. He knew as all others did who were on the ground that there was about as much nobility and fine sentiment in a plains Indian as one would expect to find in a hungry wolf. When it came to a question of race survival, he gave as much consideration to the poetic claim of soil occupancy as European nations accorded the Chinese nation.

Bison's "The Indian Massacre"—Ravenwing Communes With Her Dead Child.

After the battle, when scouting parties of white terrors had returned from putting a few finishing touches on the elimination of red ones, Brown sank into a fit of gloom from which he was suddenly aroused by the discovery of his wife and child in hiding. He was so completely overcome that he cried like a child. Not until he had returned home and the emigrants had gone on their way, and the Brownsville terrors returned to celebrate, did Brown recover sufficiently from overwhelming joy to hear his wife's story.

Mrs. Brown had noted the empty mourning cradle carried by Ravenwing and had grasped the fact that the white child had been given to the Indian mother as consolation for her own loss. She knew that squaws were ordinarily crushed to a low point of degradation, but Ravenwing was young, and the soft light of maternal affection still shone in her eyes. Mrs. Brown had, therefore, concentrated the entire force of her mind upon an eloquent look into the eyes of the young mother, trusting to the sign-interpreting habit of the race to make herself understood. During the night Ravenwing had effected her release and had accompanied her to an Indian burying ground known as Silent Hill, where her own babe had been given a last resting place on an Indian bier raised from the ground on four posts. Ravenwing still carried the mourning cradle—that she would do for months, according to the custom of her race—but her heart was where her child's form lay. She had restored Mrs. Brown's baby and had sank down on the ground in tearless lamentation.

Even as the white woman was telling her story in the gathering twilight, Ravenwing, her life spared by her act of humanity, was kneeling on the crest of Silent Hill, stretching her arms heavenward, imploring the Supreme Mother to restore the little creature that had nestled at her breast, begging in profound grief for what had taken deep root in her maternal love, as in vain as her race had lived, unaware that she was a widow, indifferent to the tribal extinction, but knowing well that unsatisfied affection, a short story for a man, is for woman a lifetime tragedy.

ODD CENSORSHIP OF "AMERICAN" PICTURES.

Motion picture companies selling in Chicago, which includes practically every manufacturer in the business, are complaining bitterly over the treatment received at the hands of the city police censorship board.

Of late the police department has tightened the reins almost to the breaking point. Not only are all murders, suicides, burglaries, confidence games, etc., which always have received the official ban, barred, but many little incidents essential to the story, are seized upon by police inspectors and ordered out.

For instance, one day recently, the American Film Mfg. Co., having accumulated a number of subjects on which releases were demanded, showed to the visiting inspector a film scheduled for release Thursday, March 7, entitled "The Broken Ties." The central thought in this picture swings about a heartless stepmother who in one scene gathers her effects together and with her son appropriates the husband's pocketbook and leaves.

The police censor took objection to this scene, claiming that it smacked of robbery, despite legal rulings to the effect that a wife cannot steal from her husband.

"From the 400 to the Herd" is the name of another coming "American" which also came in for some remarkable criticism on the part of the police. This picture, which, it is believed, will make a genuine sensation for its cleverness of plot and astonishing backgrounds, was criticized for an actual sale of property where the deed was shown, a part of the scene action on which the entire story pivoted. There was no suggestion of fraud or attempted fraud, but merely the sale of a big ranch by one man to another.

HANDSOME BOOKLET.

The Coyle Silver Curtain Company, of Canton, Ohio, makers of Coyle's fire-proof silver screens for picture theaters, issue a handsome booklet of eight pages and cover calculated to attract more than passing attention to their product. The booklet calls attention to the many admirable features of the Coyle screen in an interesting manner.

"Nicholas Nickleby"

Thanhouser Co.'s Two-Reel Version of Charles Dickens Charming Story of Young People—A Notable Adaptation.

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush.

I THINK that within this centennial year we will add a complete cinematographic set of Dickens to the Library of Motion Pictures and I venture the prediction that the Thanhouser edition will surpass all others in merit and popularity. This is no hasty judgment. The Thanhouser David Copperfield created a new standard in the filming of Dickens and this standard alone can serve as a basis of comparison for Nicholas Nickleby.

To tell the story of Nicholas Nickleby in two thousand feet of film and tell it entertainingly, with no loss of its humor and pathos and to give that swiftness of action so necessary to the successful photoplay seemed plainly and simply impossible. The Dickens wizards of New Rochelle have, however, achieved the seemingly impossible and in these days of features have placed a wonderful production in the hands of the independent exhibitor. Through the medium of these pictures millions, who have never read a line of Dickens, will shake with laughter and feel the dint of pity, even to the shedding of the "gracious drops."

Is Squeers in the picture and do we see the Squeers pupils? Yes to both questions. The boys get their "brimstone and treacle" treatment in full view of the audience. The opulent meal of Squeers, consumed before the popping eyes of the "scholars" is there, likewise the tankard of ale, likewise the cup of water for the boys. Fanny Squeers? Yes, yes, she is there, even to "the remarkable expression of her right eye." Her flirting with young Nickleby would get a laugh from a set of graven images in a Chinese temple. Mrs. Squeers and Wackford are there, too, the "Thanhouser Kid" (venia sit verbo) as Wackford. What can I say to do justice to the Thanhouser characterization of young Nickleby, of Crummles "en famille" and of the dear chubby Cherrybles. The sister of Nickleby is taken by an exceedingly clever artist. Gride is simply startling in point of appearance, acts superbly, and leaves a profound imprssion. Newman Noggs is just what Dickens meant him to be, while the Thanhouser Ralph Nickleby lives up to the description of the book in every inch of his personality and every bit of his acting. I must not forget "Smike," he too helps to sustain the general standard of excellence.

Little will the spectators of this great feature realize what special art was required to give them such a delightful performance. While they cannot help feeling that these pictures are very different indeed from the ordinary production they can have no idea of the difficulty of the Thanhouser task. Dickens is just full of pitfalls for the film maker. The desire to bring in all that appeals to a lover of Dickens is fatal, for it begets confusion and bewilderment. Take for example the figure of Mrs. Nickleby. In the picture she is changed somewhat and justly relegated to the rear. The ghastly features, such as the end of Gride and Ralph Nickleby, have been omitted entirely—with great wisdom.

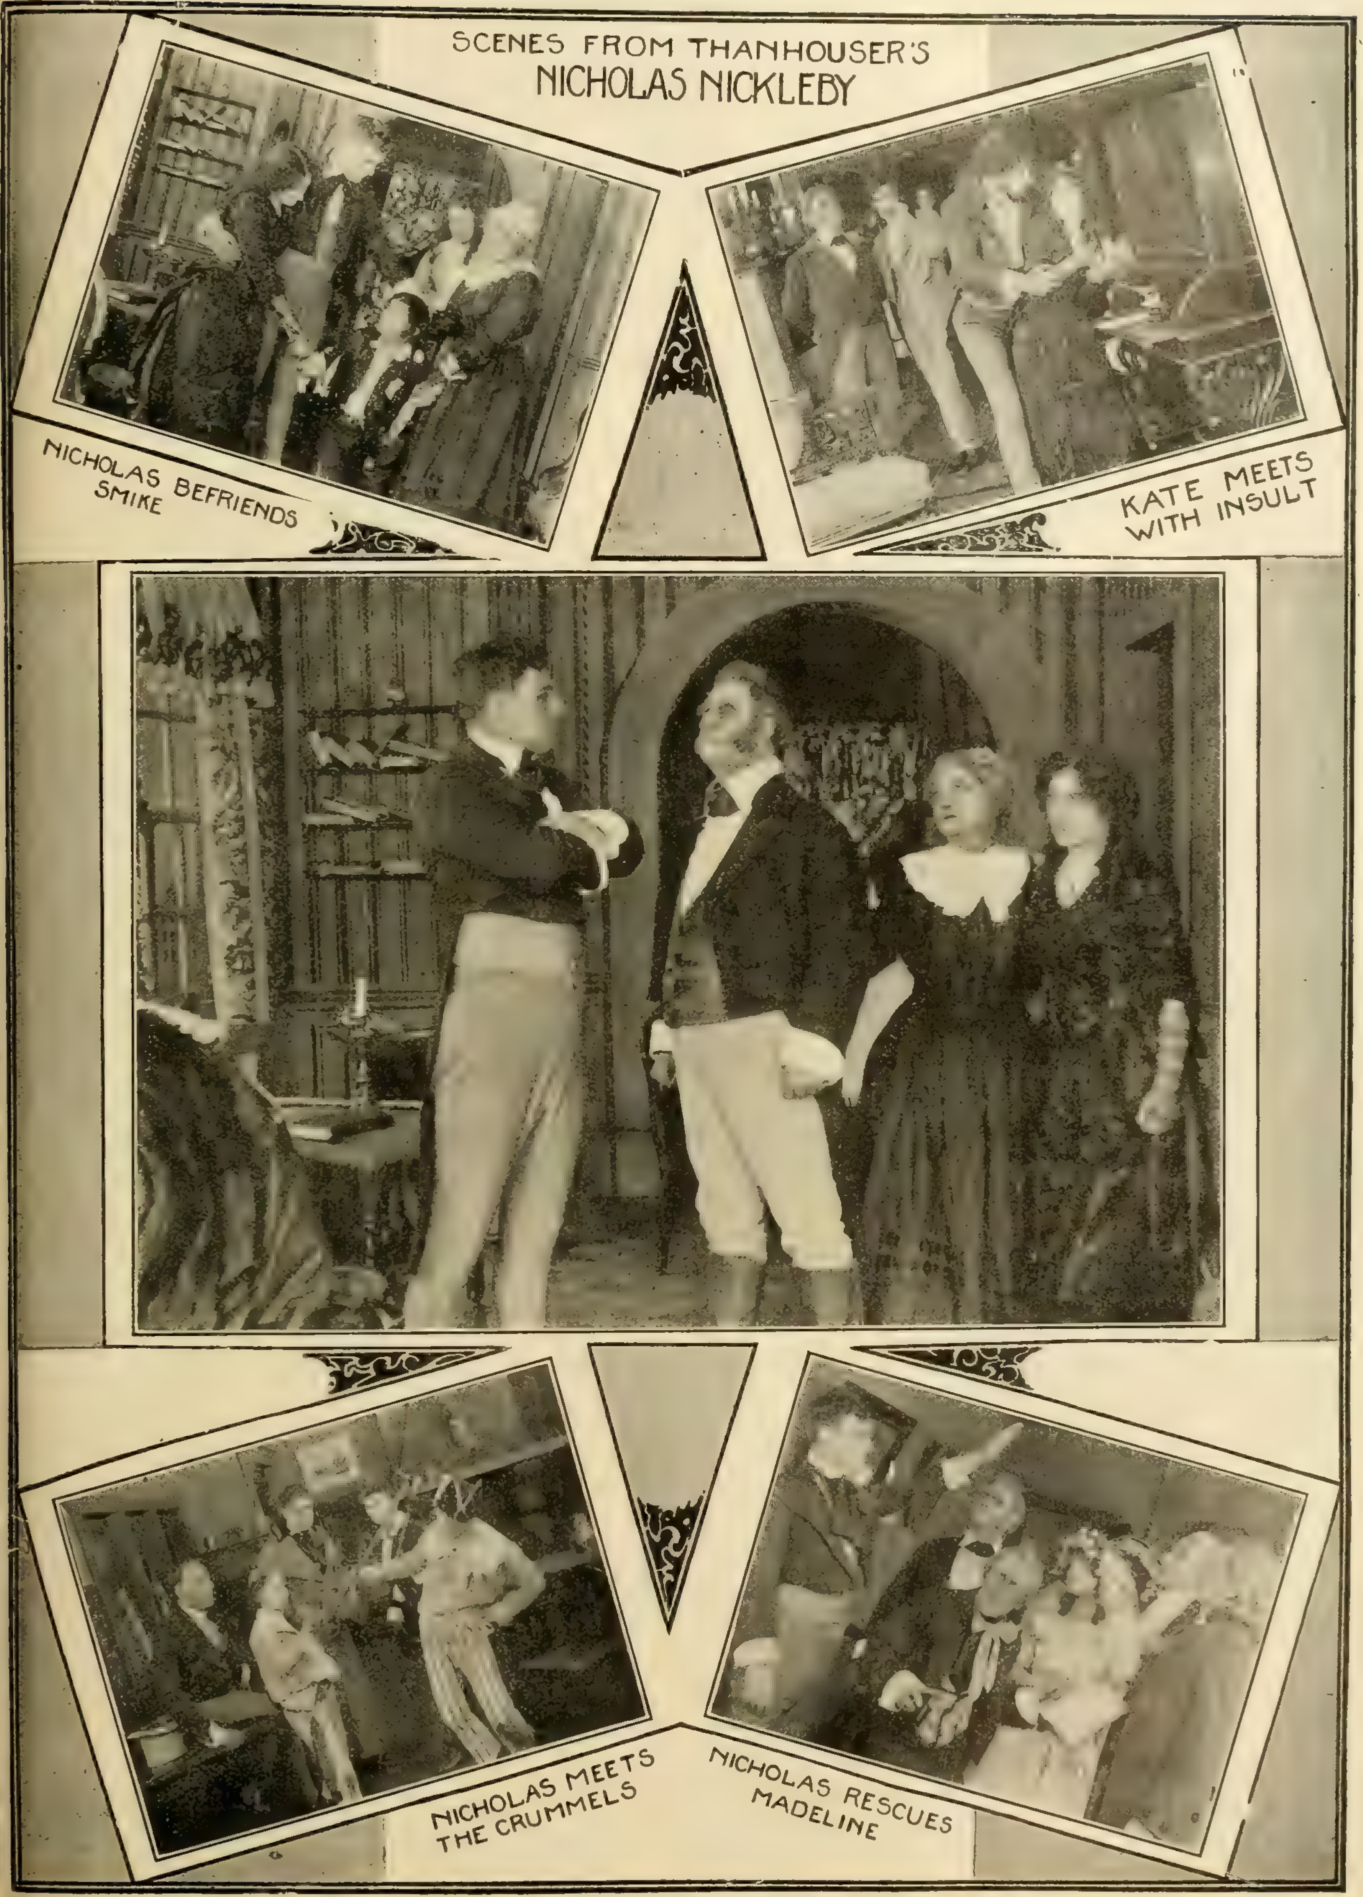
The same Dickens eye, that created the characters, selected the scenic settings and superintended every little detail from coach and whip to the old fashioned knocker on the door. The very first scene carries us into Dickens land, where we pleasantly sojourn for something like three quarters of an hour.

So clear has the producer made the story of Nicholas Nickleby that every child can understand it even if every subtitle were taken out. Emphatic praise, I know, but well deserved in this instance. I hope they will never lose the magic key, with which, in the Thanhouser studio, they unlock with such ease the door to the temple of Dickens fiction.

DANTE'S "INFERNO" IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Reports from many cities and towns in which the Milano production of Dante's "Inferno" has appeared, are of a highly flattering nature, and clearly demonstrate the extraordinary drawing power of this great masterpiece. These films attract all classes of the community but they particularly appeal to the better class of the reading public who readily recognize the great value of the glorious work.

Reading, Pa., possibly holds the record for a week's attendance, no fewer than 21,000 people paying for admission to The Palace Theater whilst these films were being exhibited there and in order to take care of the turn away the show was held over for a second week, when excellent business resulted. The production is now playing Harrisburg, Pa.



SCENES FROM THANHOUSER'S NICHOLAS NICKLEBY

NICHOLAS BEFRIENDS SMIKE

KATE MEETS WITH INSULT

NICHOLAS MEETS THE CRUMMELS

NICHOLAS RESCUES MADELINE

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT.

THE SPECIAL RELEASE.

II.—Paper.

(Copyright 1912 by Epes Winthrop Sargent. All rights reserved.)

PAPER is the general term for printed advertising matter, but more particularly applies to printed matter to be pasted on the billboards. Because of the comparatively small sales of lithographs for the regular releases, they are sold at about double the prices paid for theatrical paper of similar grade which is ordered by the thousand sheets where photoplay paper is ordered by the dozen.

All poster paper is sold by the sheet—the sheet being 28 x 40 inches. Three of these sheets pasted the long way across make a "three sheet," four a "four sheet," and paper two sheets wide by four deep is an "eight sheet." This is about the extent of motion picture paper, though sixteens, twenties, twenty-fours and thirty-twos are used in theatrical work. There are also used half sheets.

This paper is printed in quantities for general use and the name of the theater and the date of playing do not appear. For this information "dates" are printed to be pasted over or above the paper. For pasting on ash cans, rubbish piles and other places of temporary display "snipes" are used, small sheets generally in one or two colors inexpensive enough to make their brief display profitable.

In the cities and most of the towns the most advantageous locations for billposting are controlled by some firm which rents the boards at a fixed sum per sheet and attends to the posting of the paper. The cost varies with the size of the town, the location of the board and the gross amount of paper posted and as a general thing it is too expensive a form of advertising to be employed by the photoplay theater with a special release. Where this advertising is employed, the company should be required to give a list of locations and this list should be checked up by some one in the employ of the manager the day the paper is posted and the last day it is supposed to be up.

Billboards are useful in catching the eye and where it can be done without too great an expense it is well to use a few three-sheets at some distance from the theater to draw into your territory those who do not pass your house and who cannot be attracted by the lobby paper. If there are empty stores near where you want to make your showing, it might be possible to get the use of the windows for a few days at a small cost. Here your paper will be protected from the elements and if the store is near a street lamp or the illumination from other stores it will show night and day. It may be possible to obtain temporary locations on vacant lots where it is practical to use a loose board, and it is almost always worth while to use a few store windows for one sheets, the rental being paid in tickets for performances other than the special feature, unless you have the subject for more than one day, when these passes should be good for the matinee the first day.

If you have to make your choice between paper and newspaper advertising it is best to use the newspapers and keep the paper for your lobby, but where you can afford both, the striking three or eight sheet will do much to bring you business.

The special herald is useful if properly distributed, but it is easy to waste a lot of heralds where they will do no good. A leaflet given out as the patrons enter with the statement "Special literature will be supplied on application to the management," the announcement being repeated on the screen, will be better than the indiscriminate distribution of the heralds to all comers. The screen should be your best medium within the theater and at best the herald is of doubtful value.

The photoplay theater must carefully watch its expenditures. The receipts are comparatively small and where the paper costs from six to fifteen cents a sheet unposted, it should be intelligently used. Your lobby should show some of the paper as soon as you know you are going to have the subject. Post a couple of one-sheets with the "coming soon" paster and keep these sheets fresh. If you can get several varieties change them daily until you have run them through, when you can go back to the one first shown and repeat the list. Two weeks before the reels are due begin the use of three-sheet boards or hangers and get whatever outside paper you will use into the shop windows. If the display is small and widely distributed, change the paper every three days, taking a bill from the first store on to the second and that on to the third. Commence to snipe, pasting the small strips where they are most likely to remain in sight. A week before the opening date your paper and put out a few type half-sheets and quarters where the latter are to be had.

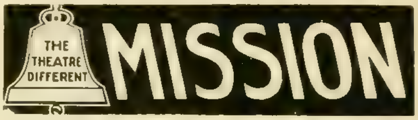
If you use heralds start them about a week before the opening, and do not trust them to some small boy. Get a man to take them around and get a man who may be trusted not to dump them into the waste barrel of the first saloon he comes to. If you have a reel like "Cinderella," that makes special appeal to the children, get a lot of cheap throwaways and station men in the vicinity of the schools about the time the afternoon session lets out. Make your appeal direct to the children—and bless the law that requires the child to be accompanied by an adult. If the subject is a religious one reach the weekday church meetings, but do not distribute on Sunday, and offer the paper after the service; not before. If you get the Odyssey reach after the high school students and you can figure to yourself the advantage to be derived from advertising Sarah Bernhardt at your theater to the audience that comes away from a poor performance of an inane musical comedy at the dramatic theater.

Don't try to get too much on the throwaways. The name of the attraction, the name of the house, the date and a catchy line or two is all you'll need and all you should have.

In all your paper remember that your appeal is being directed mainly to the patrons you have not secured, but whom you want to get. Look on the special release less as a direct money maker and more of a business boomer and be a little liberal in your outlay for advertising. It pays no matter what the size of your house.

(To be continued.)

THE TRADEMARK CUT.



We have mentioned several times the effective use of the bell and title made by the Mission Theater, Salt Lake City, and Dean R. Daynes, the manager, sends the cut here given. In the advertising pages it stands out from the other announcements and the person who looks for the Mission advertising finds it quickly while those who do not look find their attention attracted. This should not be accepted as meaning that to be effective a cut must be black and white. To the contrary it may be a design in light outlines, but it must be distinctive.

Before most men could read, the cipher was the signature of a knight and the cipher is as useful to-day, but to be useful it should be placed everywhere. Do not accept the first suggestion that comes to hand. Keep on experimenting until you get just what you want and then hold to it. Put it on everything, your letter heads and your curtains, your advertising and your ushers' uniforms. If you have a horse have it embroidered on his blanket. Get it everywhere and keep it there. Mr. Daynes appreciates the value of individuality and he gives his house distinction.

A Lengthy Poster.

Mr. Daynes contributes a lengthy poster in the shape of a sheet fourteen inches across and dropping forty two inches. It's an unusual length, but is made to fit special frames in stores, office buildings and hotel lobbies. It gives the program for a week at the Mission and with a snappy line for each release makes an effective form. We like the idea of the frame. The poster by itself is crude and unfinished, but when it is put behind glass it gains a dignity that inspires respect. The combination booms the theater where booming will do the most good and is comparatively inexpensive after the frames are provided, since Mr. Daynes writes that the cost is but $5 a hundred.

No matter what the size of your house or where you are located, the more you do to tell the people who do not pass your lobby what you have to offer, the better your chance of getting trade. If you are on the main street, bill up and down the street and go over into some of the side streets.

The Tenth Street Improves.

We have a special liking for the program of the Tenth Street Theater, Kansas City, not only because it is a good one, but because it was one of the first to lead others along the right lines and it has served as a model to other houses. We are glad to note that they have adopted the suggestion that they use more reading matter not directly devoted to the releases for the week. The last issue gives the Cameraphone Bulletin's enlightening exposition of burning film and the poem of Robert Groves. Now if they will use smaller type and grow chatty in the page they've appropriated we'll be still more pleased.

The improvement seems to be limited to the inside of the program for the covers are constant testimony to the fact that someone has a mighty poor eye for color. So far the best effort has been a dark green in solid tint and benday, but this was spoiled by the use of lemon gold alluded to at the time. The tints are dull or washy looking and lack character. They should call some artist into consultation and then talk severely to the printer. It's the blot on the Tenth Street's 'scutcheon. We are inclined to think that a vivid blue and black with the theater name in white letters would be effective if they use a stipple panel of black in place of the solid black, outlining the letters with black lines about one-sixteenth of an inch wide. The solid panel might be the dark blue.

From the Cameraphone.

The Cameraphone Bulletin, of Pittsburg, has the value of an exchange, for they present an amount of reading matter in their eight-sheet program that almost entitles it to go through the mails as a newspaper. Apparently they have their own troubles in the Smoky City and one of the things that all exhibitors learn to hate is dealt with in this fashion:

> WE FAILED.
>
> After several complaints that men in our theaters were using our floors as cuspidors we instructed McCoy's United Secret Service to watch especially for the spitters. Up to date, we have failed to detect them, but our men are still watching and the first tobacco > spitter is going to be promptly arrested. We are trying to run "clean" pictures in clean and sanitary theaters and we don't purpose allowing any tobacco spitter to interfere with our plans.

That sort of thing means business and is calculated to have a deterrent effect if anything can affect this type of person. At the Windsor, on New York's Bowery, the proprietor, who is very much on the job, has been having trouble with boys who "sneak smokes" under cover of the darkness. A sign now announces that the offenders will be jailed if detected and the air has been kept free of smoke since. The notice means business and they know the manager does. They don't mind being thrown out if they are detected, but being lugged around to the police station is another matter, rather more important than a smoke.

If you have some similar condition to meet, meet it squarely. Do not temporize. You may lose one or two patrons, but it will save you the rest of your audience.

Notice to a Lobster.

An effective and inexpensive novelty is sent in by the Pastime Theater, Ansonia, in the shape of a card 3½ inches square on which appears the cut of a lobster in red. Above the cut is the word "You" and below:

THIS IS NOT YOUR HAT!
But the Property of

Name ....

Address ....

....

Compliments of Management of PASTIME PICTURE THEATRE
Photoplays—Amusing, Entertaining, Instructive
Ansonia, Conn.

INSERT UNDER LINING OF YOUR HAT—

The lettering is so disposed that the card of the theater is below the sweat band of the hat, only the name and address of the wearer showing, but the catchiness of the advertisement will result in an inquiry as to where a copy may be obtained that will be effective.

An Experiment in Sunbury.

J. M. Blanchard, of the People's Theater, Sunbury, Pa., is trying a novel experiment. He has had the Selig "Cinderella" at his house twice, but he announces a special matinee on March 9th. The three reels will comprise the performance, which will run from 1:15 to 2:15, the regular matinee starting at 2:45 with the reels which constitute the regular run for the day. There will be a ten piece orchestra, women ushers and all seats will be reserved, being put on sale one week in advance, a special office being opened in a prominent store. The tickets for this performance are not good for the regular performance, but from advertising matter sent we note that a few days ago the house ran the regular bill and the three reel "Vanity Fair" in addition, the entire six reels being run for the single admission. The announcements read:

Next Monday, February 19th
"VANITY FAIR"
In Three Reels
This picture will be shown once, evening only 8:30 to 9:30

On Monday night we will show our regular three reels and in addition to three reels of "Vanity Fair." Come and see all six or as many as you wish; try and see the Kalem picture which will follow the "Vanity Fair" picture. If you prefer not to see "Vanity Fair" come at 7:15 or at 9:30 and you will see the regular three reels.

Special Matinee
Saturday, March 9
1:15 to 2:15
"CINDERELLA"

Pictures start at 1:15, continue until 2:15. Special Music. Every seat reserved. Seats on sale at P. P. Smith's store one week in advance. Adults, 10c; Children, 5c. All children must have tickets. This is a Special Matinee and has nothing to do with our regular Saturday Matinee, which starts at 2:45. The reserved seat tickets are not good for both matinees.

A Novel Experiment.

A pre-matinee matinee is something new and the experiment will be watched with interest. Mr. Blanchard has promised to advise us to the result. We imagine that the third running of this reel will show a sustained interest, for Carey Wilson, of the Criterion Theater, Rutherford, N. J., tells us his house profitably ran the same reel three times, but the extra matinee and an entire house reserved are new features.

It is always a pleasure to get printing from Mr. Blanchard for we have yet to see a poor piece of paper from his letter heads down to the cheap run throwaways. A card announcing the "Cinderella" feature, done in several sizes of copperplate gothic, might have been done from a plate and effective use of red and black and green is made in various combinations.

Getting In Right.

This letter from Arthur B. Cundy, manager of the Princess Theater, Leadville, is so entirely self-explanatory, that it is given with no other comment than our thanks. He writes:

> I read with much pleasure your very kind comment on the little souvenir booklet which I issued to commemorate the first anniversary of the Princess, and I am writing to give you a little more information on the subject. I do not think the cost is prohibitive, as they only cost me $25.00 per thousand and they have certainly been a paying investment.
>
> Our Saturday and Sunday business has grown to such proportions, that although we have a seating capacity of 400 and the population of the city is only about 6,000, I made arrangements with the owners of a vacant store next door to us to use the building on Saturdays and Sundays as a waiting room. I advertised it extensively and called attention to the fact that the mothers could now come to the Princess on Saturday or Sunday, and if the house was full they would not be compelled to keep their babies out in the cold but could take them into our waiting room, and when they were ready to go into the show, they could check the buggies free, with our attendant, and they would be safe and warm for the babies when they came out. It costs very little, and though I have only used it one Sunday as yet, I have had about fifty ladies compliment me on my thoughtfulness, and the room was used by over 200 people, and many baby buggies.
>
> The idea is a big success with me, and I give it for what it is worth, for the benefit of other exhibitors who are blest with more patrons than they can accommodate at one time.

A New Eight-Pager.

There is room for reflection in this paragraph from a letter from Beach and Krahm, of the Porin Theater, South Berkeley, Cal. They write:

> Besides furnishing an advertising medium for ourselves, it has proven a splendid business getter. Our house is located in the residential section of the city and our patronage is drawn from the better classes. Our selections are all carefully made and, as you can see, are the cream of the Licensed product. Our program is practically self supporting and our policy is to cater to the local merchants in our advertising. We have refused outside advertising that might be in conflict with the local merchants.

This holding the advertising to the local merchants is a good idea. They are your regular supporters and they are, or should be, your friends. The advertising of the big downtown store might be profitable, but if you turn it down in favor of the local men, and let them know it, you'll make a bigger profit in the long run. The mispelled word idea is used to induce a reading of the advertisements, but only a single word is called for. It is better to have an indeterminate of words and give the prize to the person having the most accurate list. This allows for an occasional slip in proof reading and at the same time gives the advertisers a better chance.

The sheet is well printed on rather poor paper, and the house takes plenty of space in advertising its program instead of running just a few lines between the advertisements. This is as it should be, for the program is primarily for the house and the house display should not be inferior to the outside advertiser. The back page is used for a display advertisement of some coming feature and the second cover page for the announcement of a continuous performance on Sunday with the "We don't stop for supper" line.

Smaller Type—and News.

We think that these two pages could be used to better advantage if they were used to carry a running story of coming attractions and gossip set two columns to the page in eight point type. It would insure the taking home of the program and make its appearance looked for.

We would also suggest that stress be laid upon the fact that this is the program for the week and not merely for the day and that it should be saved for reference. Forms have been given in these pages.

The manner of using the space devoted to the program suggests that there is someone about the house with the trick of being interesting on paper and this little chat with the patron should be introduced at once and made a regular feature. We think that if this were done and an offer made to send copies by mail to those who deposit the postage, the program could not only be made self supporting but self distributing. It should be worth the trial.

For an issue just started the advertising display is surprisingly good both in volume and quality. We should like to see copies a few weeks from now.

RELIANCE NATURAL HISTORY SERIES.

The latest of the natural history series of the Reliance Company is one that is of great interest. It has to do principally with the rattlesnake. It shows a beautiful specimen of rattler six feet in length. The reptile is provoked into striking by the prodding of a cane, and one gets such a vivid idea of the lightning stroke of this deadly creature that he will always have a wholesome respect for it. The snake lunges each time a third of its length, while its rattling tail quivers with rage. The picture will impress upon an audience the dangers to which cameramen are exposed in taking such pictures.

PEOPLE'S AMUSEMENT COMPANY, OF PORTLAND, ORE.

The People's Amusement Company is composed of men standing high in financial circles. Mr. Fred H. Rothchild heads the amusement company as president; D. Solis Cohen, a prominent attorney, secretary; A. Berg, capitalist, vice-president; Edward Shainwald, treasurer; Dr. Holt C. Wilson, prominent physician, director; Melvin G. Winstock, general manager; W. A. Armstrong, superintendent of construction; G. A. Metzger, resident manager, and Sol Baum, house manager. The business of the company will be the operation of theaters in Portland and vicinity.

CHICAGO LETTER.

By Jas. S. McQuade.

THE proposed amendment to the city ordinance, referred to in my last letter, which raises the age of minors attending moving picture theaters in Chicago from 14 to 16 years, when unaccompanied by parents or guardians, came up at the Council meeting Monday night, February 19, and was referred to the judiciary committee. The committee was given until Monday night, March 4, to make a report.

The committee named by Joseph Hopp, at the last meeting held in the Hotel Sherman, called for a second meeting in the same place, on Tuesday afternoon, February 27, the proceedings of which will be given in my next letter.

When one bears in mind the vigorous censorship to which films are subjected by the Chicago censor bureau, under Sergeant O'Connor, it is difficult to understand why the proposed amendment was ever brought forward. It has been clearly shown that censorship in Chicago has been conducted from the viewpoint of the minor and not of the adult, a policy that in many cases works a hardship on film manufacturers, as it eliminates from subjects of a classical and historical character scenes that are absolutely requisite for a truthful narration of events, and the omission of which robs such film subjects of much educational value. Such restrictions cannot fail to discourage manufacturers in the production of many great subjects that would not only be viewed with delight by adults, but would also serve to carry the moving picture to higher planes of achievement.

If the proposed amendment should pass, it might really prove a great benefit to moving pictures by enabling the censor to judge them from the viewpoint of the adult, as is the case in New York. It is positively childish to expect that adults and those of mature age will remain satisfied to have fine film subjects butchered, because certain scenes may not be permissible for those of tender years.

In Boston, I understand, the board of censors, for several years past, has recognized the injustice of a general censorship—that is, a censorship for adults and minors en masse. Films appropriate for children are passed as such, and those for adults are placed in the adult class. Thus programs specially designed for children can be selected at any time by an exhibitor, or rather be booked for him by his exchange.

As children must not be denied the entertainment and educational value of moving pictures, there must be discovered some practical means of giving them this boon without marring the entertainment and educational value that pictures have for adults. A simple way out of the difficulty is to have children's programs and adults' programs, children to be denied admittance to the latter unless accompanied by guardians or parents. Some exhibitors, most likely, will exclaim against this; but it may be said in passing that the exhibitor now-a-days who depends on the patronage of children for his profits would better get out of the business.

We have long since passed the kindergarten stage in moving pictures, and there must be intelligent progress all along the line. The man who doesn't keep up with the procession—whether he be exhibitor, exchange man or manufacturer—must fall out of the line and get into some other business, where he can have all the breathing spells he wants.

This question of censorship seems to get nowhere. Though in New York and Chicago the films be censored never so honestly and capably, it very often happens that the cut-outs are included in the censored films, when sent out by exchanges to other cities. This policy wholly nullifies the good work done by the censor boards of both cities, but the trouble does not end here. Other cities are compelled to form their boards of censorship—in many cases the members are narrow and have never attended an entertainment other than a church musicale or soiree—and the films are pruned or rejected by inexperienced and incompetent judges. The whole business—from the manufacturer to the exhibitor—suffers in consequence.

I have before me an excerpt from the Kansas City Star, just received, that illustrates the point. It is a letter from a lady in that city touching on the needs for a censor board there. She refers to a certain film shown at a theater which she and her children attended one afternoon. Having seen the film personally, I recognize it from her description. There was nothing in the film to offend the eye of an adult, from my viewpoint; and it was passed by the New York censor board, but refused by the Chicago board. This lady grossly exaggerated the facts and to readers of the Star made ou a very bad case against pictures.

Now here is a case where a picture was severely censured although passed by a censor board that takes the adult's viewpoint, just because the lady's children were present How much worse might it have been had a film, which included cutouts made by the New York and Chicago censor boards, been run off? Instances could be cited from many parts of the country, where moving pictures have suffered because exchanges have unscrupulously disregarded the work of censors, and included the cutouts before shipping films to outside cities.

There must be co-operation between censor boards and exchanges—hearty, honest co-operation.

Facts in Moving Picture Business

A recent editorial in the Chicago Tribune, under the heading "Acting and the Moving Picture," dwelt on the probable influence of the moving picture in securing for pantomime a stable footing in the United States and England.

"A change may be coming," stated the article. That change is promised by the tremendous growth of the motion picture play. There are 15,000 theaters showing moving pictures in the United States, and three or four regular stock companies of from twenty-five to thirty actors who give al their time to acting for the camera.

"The result for these actors, at least, must be the development of pantomime and for the millions of Americans who go to see moving pictures the encouragement of a taste for graphic gesture, movement, and facial expression. When they go to the regular theater they will require the same vivid appeal to the eye, and will rely much less upon spoken speech than in the days of rhetorical declamation.

"This tendency, of course, has gone to considerable length for a generation, owing to the growth of realism, but it is not unlikely that the moving picture play will push it to unexpected lengths. It is even possible that this will react upon our national manners and that another generation wil be less impassive, more give to gesture than Americans have been before."

The reader's attention is drawn to the paragraph where reference is made to the "three or four regular stock companies, of from twenty-five to thirty actors, who give al their time to acting for the camera." This statement shows how unfamiliar with the real conditions of the moving picture business even well informed men are. Instead of three or four, on a conservative estimate, there are sixty companies in this country whose members devote their entire time to acting before the camera, and over 1200 actors and actresses are employed! At certain times in the year some of these sixty companies have as many as 500 people on the payrolls, everyone of whom is an actress or actor for the time being.

Selig Masterpiece Pleases Pope.

The Rev. Father Joseph Tonello, a former Chicago priest who has been visiting in Rome for sometime, is now returning to this country bearing with him a gift from Pope Pius X. to William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Co.

His holiness was so pleased and delighted with the three films showing "The Coming of Columbus," that he found expression for his feelings in the manner stated. He selected the Rev. Father Tonello as a special emissary to carry the gift to Mr. Selig.

As will be remembered, "The Coming of Columbus" was filmed last Fall and that special permission was given Mr Selig by the park commissioners to use the three caravels moored in the lagoon at Jackson Park, and used during the World's Fair. It will be remembered in connection with the honor about to be conferred on Mr. Selig by his Holiness that Cardinal Gibbins, of Baltimore, also viewed "The Coming of Columbus," and conveyed his fine appreciation of the films to Mr. Selig. Within a short time it is the intention to present King Alfonso of Spain with prints of this great subject.

Father Tonello left Naples on February 10 and is expected to arrive in Chicago in a few days.

Chicago Film Brevities.

Harry Daley, manager of the Daley Theater, Carlinville Ill., writes that he has the finest equipped moving picture house between St. Louis and Chicago. The Daley was opened six months ago and has done a remarkable business, so Mr. Daley says. Mr. Daley uses four reels of independent pictures with a daily change. He also uses a radium screen which he says gives great satisfaction. A three-piece orchestra and a set of Deagan's electric bells accompany the pictures. Mr. Fred Beck, rightfielder for the Philadelphia Nationals is filling a season at the Daley during the winter as spotlight singer. A twelve horse-power special electric engine has been installed by Manager Daley and it feeds 325 incandescent lights, in addition to the arc lights. This engine also runs a thirty-inch Davison exhaust fan, an electric piano and fourteen ceiling and wall fans. The Daley has a seating capacity of 400, and the admission is 10 cents. Manager Daley states that he is going to build a fine airdome this Spring that will seat about 1200 people. It is his intention to run high class pictures, one act of vaudeville, and a circus act once a week. Mr. Daley is about the youngest exhibitor in the business, being not yet 20 years old. He manages all his own affairs and has opened and is running the Daley Theater by his own efforts.

* * *

D. E. Geffen, of Geffen & Fox, one of the owners of the Isis Theater, Sioux City, was in the city recently. The Isis was opened February 15, three reels a day being used with a daily change. The Isis is being furnished service by the Majestic Film Co., one first reel being used and two others daily. Mr. Geffen pays a high price for this service, on account of his long distance from Chicago.

* * *

Sam Werner, manager of the Swanson-Crawford Film Co., St. Louis, informs the World that he is doing very fair business, with fine prospects for the coming season.

* * *

Al. Lichtman, traveling representative of the Powers Movng Picture Co., was a visitor at the World office last week. He was in the city on Monday and Tuesday, February 26 and 27. During his stay Mr. Lichtman was specially engaged n drawing the attention of exchanges and exhibitors to he Powers' feature subject, "The Power behind the Throne," n which Mildred Holland took the leading rôle. This ine film, comprising two reels, will be released March 12. Mr. Lichtman came in from Canada, where all the films specially exhibited by him were highly thought of.

* * *

G. H. Walker, traveling representative of the Nestor Film Co., is in the city looking for a location for a Chicago office for his company. Mr. Walker has got several good locations now in view but had not fixed on one up to the date of writing. He will be Nestor's Western representative and will look after the Chicago field and contiguous territory.

* * *

D. Mundstuk, who owns and runs the LeGrand Theater, 5241 North Clark Street, was visited one evening last week. The LeGrand is a model for comfort. The lighting is not just what it should be, but with the installation of the indirect ighting system, it will be perfect. The LeGrand is doing a fine business. It seats 780 people.

* * *

The Sylvia Theater on Diversey Boulevard and Sheffield Avenue, was opened February 17 to capacity business. It is an attractive, modern, cozy house built by S. Wertheimer, with a capacity of 300. The indirect lighting system is installed and a soft, clear picture is thrown on a concave screen, which Mr. Wertheimer thinks highly of. A high quality service is furnished by I. Van Ronkel, of the G. F. Co.'s branch at 429 S. Wabash Avenue. Spotlight songs are also used. Mr. Wertheimer is well pleased with his business and looks on the future as very promising. The Sylvia was named after Miss Sylvia Wertheimer, daughter of the owner, and the popular spotlight singer of the house.

* * *

L. Frank, of the Halsted Theater, 62nd and Halsted Streets, and C. C. Welan of the Washington Theater, 43rd Street and Cottage Grove Avenue, purchased the Hancock Theater, 3515 West North Avenue, from Miss I. Mertsky, February 15. The service is supplied by Manager Van Ronkel, 429 South Wabash Avenue.

* * *

Mr. Geo. G. Hoeft of the Photoplay Magazine is now permanently located in New York, having charge of the office and management of the affairs of that publication in the Eastern States. His principal business will be to get in closer relationship with all the Independent film companies and keep in touch with all their releases.

* * *

George A. Blair, representing the Eastman Co., of Rochester, N. Y., spent a week in Chicago recently, engaged in the business of his company. He arrived Monday, Feb. 12.

Sweeping Change in Copyright Law.

Motion Pictures Patents Company Seeks to Limit Liability to $100 for Innocent Infringements. Amendment Amended to Include All Classes of Copyright.

Following the "Ben Hur" decision the motion picture manufacturers have awakened to a realization of the fact that the present provisions of the copyright act in prescribing penalties for the infringement of copyrighted dramatic compositions are drastic in the extreme and were framed long before the advent of motion pictures.

Since the act of August 18, 1856, it has been provided that in the event of an infringement of a copyrighted play or other dramatic performance there shall be imposed a penalty of $100 for the first unlawful presentation and $50 for each repetition. With the possibility of a photoplay by a popular company being produced several hundred times a day for several months before it is discovered that it infringes upon some copyrighted dramatic performance, the manufacturers were roused to action and there was introduced into Congress an amendment to Section 25 of the Act of March 4, 1909, limiting the fourth clause of Section B to a penalty of $100 for any infringement of copyright granted a dramatic or dramatico-musical composition on the part of a maker of motion pictures.

Broadening the intent of the act there has been presented an amended bill in which the fourth section now reads:

> "Fourth. In the case of a dramatic or dramatico-musical or a choral or orchestral composition, $100 for the first and $50 for every subsequent infringing performance; in the case of other musical compositions, $10 for every infringing performance. Provided, that in the case of infringment of a dramatic or dramatico-musical composition or of a work adaptable for dramatization or portrayal or exhibition through or by means of motion pictures, talking machines, phonographs or other mechanical devices, or combinations thereof, where the defendant proves that he was not aware that he was infringing a copyrighted work and could not reasonably have foreseen that he was so infringing, the entire recovery by the copyright proprietor shall not exceed the sum of $100; but this shall not deprive the copyright proprietor of any other remedy given him under the copyright laws, nor shall it apply to infringements occurring after actual notice to defendant either by service of process in a suit or other written notice served upon him."

It will be noted that this includes as well as dramatic compositions works "adaptable for dramatization" or, in a word, anything from which a photoplay may be made.

The only "other remedy" provided by the copyright act appears to be a penalty of one dollar for each infringing copy made, sold or found in the possession of the infringer, in the case of classifications other than dramatic compositions and provided for in the second clause of the same section and this may not hold good.

Under the general restriction provided in the act at present the holder of the copyright is entitled to sue for all profits made by the infringer, being compelled to prove only the sales, the infringer being required to prove the costs.

The amendment is apparently based on the precedent established for the benefit of newspapers under clause (b) of the section wherein it is provided that the newspaper reproduction of a copyrighted photograph shall not involve a penalty of more than $200 nor less than $50 nor be less than $250 or more than $500 in other circumstances.

This clause may be more or less directly traced to the pleasant habit of a New York photographer some years ago of copyrighting portraits of his theatrical clients without their knowledge and suing for the maximum of one dollar for each infringing copy when the photographs were used in good faith by the press agents. In the case of the newspaper with a circulation of from a quarter of a million copies upward such a penalty was excessive compromise, was costly and a legal limit was established.

In connection with the case it will be interesting to note just what will be accepted by the courts as proofs of innocence. It is manifestly impossible that any person should be able to keep in touch with all copyrighted material, and while such companies as the Edison, for example, keep on their payroll a reader whose sole duty it is to read as many current novels, magazines and periodicals as possible with a view to preventing infringements, it is impossible to keep in touch with all matter registered for copyright, and a penalty of $50 for each time a reel is run off is clearly beyond the contemplation of the act, which provides for the penalization of dramatic companies making piratical production of copyrighted plays.

At present most companies offer the author a form of release either as a statement or in the shape of an affidavit which must be signed before payment is made and it is believed that this release form is broad enough to cover the matter of proof.

The SCENARIO WRITER

CONDUCTED BY EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Here's That Copyright Again!

JUST as we were getting all swelled up over the fact that Spectator, of the Dramatic Mirror, endorses our pet proposition that editors should be allowed to edit instead of being made to serve as office boy to a collection of more or less intelligent directors, that clever commentator proceeds to take a fall out of us on the copyright matter, and writes these few lines:

> Epes W. Sargent argues very ably that the common law is better protection for an author than a copyright, and he asks the question: "What is a copyright and why—particularly why?" Perhaps if Mr. Sargent will address his inquiry to the attorneys in the recent Ben-Hur case he will receive an answer that will enlighten him. It is, of course, true, that a copyright law has no magic about it, and in itself gives no direct protection. It is also true that to gain any benefit from it ordinarily the plaintiff must have money to hire lawyers and obtain evidence—a thing that is true of almost any civil litigation that one enters into. Nevertheless, in the hands of persons able and willing to fight in the courts, a copyright is of vastly more value than the common law rights. Otherwise publishers, dramatists and theatrical producers would not go to such great trouble to register and to enforce their rights in the courts. For one thing, under United States law a verdict if obtained covers the entire country, while under common law the procedure is in the State courts, and the right is limited to the State in which the action is brought.
>
> All this, however, may not mean much benefit to the scenario author, nor that he needs such benefit under present conditions, although it might mean much to the producing film company if it purchased and produced a copyrighted scenario and somebody make a book or play out of it, or some other film company produced a colorable imitation. It is in this direction, it would seem, that benefit may be gained from copyrighted motion picture stories rather than any protection that might be afforded the authors. Authors, like other poor devils, are better off out of the courts. If one of them should happen to win a case the kind attorneys might be trusted to take care of the proceeds. The law is something of a luxury to be enjoyed by those able to pay for it, unless one can get the yellow newspaper stirred up, which may happen about once in a million times.
>
> Mr. Sargent also quotes a certain Rev. E. Boudinot Stockton, who "offers to legally 'swipe' (in a purely demonstrative spirit) any copyrighted story." To this Mr. Sargent adds: "If he can't, we will." The implication appears to be that a clever writer can take any story and twist it around and rewrite it to the extent that it will not appear to be a colorable imitation. This is undoubtedly true, but proves nothing. The "swiper" has merely in such a case written a new story from suggestions or inspiration gained from the "swiped" manuscript. That is precisely what every author does in nine cases out of ten. He utilizes and adapts the ideas he has gained from various sources. It is when he follows another author's sequence or association of ideas or arrangement of incidents so closely as to make his work appear to be an obvious copy or colorable imitation, that he is guilty. Anybody can do this. It takes an author to "legally swipe."

We are afraid that "Dear Spec" is unfortunate in his reference. The Ben Hur case was founded on an invasion of the dramatic rights of a published play and was several years in coming to the decision. If this is copyright protection then, by all means, let us have common law.

But Spectator does not grasp the true argument in his hurried reading of our article. This entire discussion is based on the desire of the photoplaywright to keep the scenario editor and film manufacturer from stealing his script by telling him that it is copyrighted. For such as these the Copyright Office never was intended and surely no man need sue in more than one State (apart from his state of indignation) to recover the price of stolen goods. Copyright is for those who seek protection past the point where the sale is effected and to these we have not been speaking.

Spectator never was an Editor of Scenarios, which is why he still has hair on the top of his head and we are bald. Had he ever been in this lamentable plight he would know that "stealing," according to the average use of the term by scenario writers, is the use of some one scene or situation, perfectly commonplace, and which may occur in several scripts at the same time. The presentation of such a scene in the production of an accepted script is immediately followed by the hue and cry from those whose stories were not accepted. That's what the average "steal" amounts to in the scenario world and Dr. Stockton and ourselves merely offered to prove that we could parallel incidents without colorable imitation. It takes an author to "legally swipe" as Spectator states, but it is courteously pointed out that most scenario editors qualify as such, whereby Spectator sustains our point instead of traversing it. On the whole we think we are obliged to "Spec."

And just in passing, Dr. Stockton asks us to explain that we and not he employed "swipe" in place of "steal" or "appropriate."

What the Fox Company Wants.

The Fox Motion Picture Company, with studios at 4600 Sunset Avenue, Hollywood, Los Angeles, California, states that it is in the market for scenarios of Indian and Western plays and good comedies available for their style of production. They pay from $10 to $25.

The Fox trade mark is not listed by any distributing agency, but a present the product is disposed of to other companies releasing under franchise, which accounts for the fact that they are making pictures whil they do not appear to be selling any. It is further stated that the company is composed of a number of Los Angeles residents and some practica motion picture men. D. F. Whitcomb is the Scenario Editor.

The Question of Price.

From the same writer who, in a recent issue, urged that his fellow scenario writers combine to demand sixty cents a foot for film, comes another long letter which seems to suggest that his sense of wrongs overbalances his logic. We regret that we cannot present the letter in full, bu here is the real argument:

> The scenario writer is the instrument which enables the manufacturer to acquire his fortune. Without original ideas, without scenarios, what can the manufacturer do? Nothing! In America, a scenario which nets its author $30 is an extraordinary thing. There are numerous available for $10 or $15—and the object of the manufacturer is to get them at the lowest possible price—to realize for themselves the maximum of profit.
>
> Is this just? No. The architect is always better paid than the workmen—because he furnishes the idea. To illustrate, to a slight degree, why the manufacturers have such cheap collaborators: The scenario writer is recruited from divers classes of society. When he does not belong to the journalists, or to the writers of books, magazine contributors or playwrights, you find a man possessed of a little imagination, earning perhaps $12 or $15 a week as the employee of some mercantile firm, and to increase this wage, he turns his hand to scenario writing, at the rate of probably $15 or $20 per manuscript.

Some of these days we hope to see the writing of scenarios raised to the dignity of an art, but just at present both as a writer of scenarois and reformed editor of scenarios, we are compelled to admit that there are a lo of scenarios that are not worth more than the $10 or $15 paid for them.

There are not many writers who can supply a manuscript from which a production can be made without extensive revision and it is but logica that the manufacturer should deduct from the sum paid for the script the money paid for the time of the editor who revises it. In the accepted script there may be no more than the germ of the idea—no matter wha the author may think of his work, and it is unreasonable to demand the higher price for incompetent work or require the editor to turn down the promising theme that he may give full price to the author of some better developed idea. One of the best Western stories the Lubin Company ever turned out consisted of two scenes from the original script and the idea The rest was purely editorial development—and the author wanted $10 for his next script because the first was such a good story. He did no even realize that it wasn't his story at all. In such a circumstance it would have been foolish to pay $50 for the little that was supplied.

And in the unpublished part of his letter the correspondent further weakens his position by declaring it to be a shame that manufacturers bu scripts that cheap journalists and shoe clerks write in fifteen minutes while he passes by the script the careful author takes a week to write.

We fail to see that it's any fault of the manufacturer that it takes the author a week to write a scenario that can and should be put within the compass of three or four pages of typewritten paper. If it takes him week to do that it's his misfortune not the manufacturer's fault.

The architect spends years in learning his profession. He must complete his college and technical course and then acquire practical experience in some office before he can go into business for himself and get fifteen per cent of the cost of a building. Even granting the scenario writer the same rate, a script would only bring from $100 to $300 save in some exceptional cases. But scenario writing requires no such extended training A man of average intelligence and lively imagination can "get the hang of the thing" quickly and turn out an acceptable script in very much less than a day. Of the three men with whom we are personally acquainted and who look to scenario writing for their entire support, only one man had anything to do with the pictures three years ago. One man was a free lance magazine writer, another a carpenter who belonged behind a typewriter, but didn't know it, and the third was a journalist who had dabbled in pictures. They took $15 and $20 two years ago. They get from $35 to $75 for a script now, but it doesn't take them a week. The really expert man, the man with collar galls on his shoulder from wearing the harness, should be able to turn out a full reel in less than an hour and half, and a half reel within the hour, and from $20 to $35 for this amoun of endeavor is pretty good pay.

This is a coldly commercial age. If men can write at a profit for $20 a reel they'll take that if they cannot get $100, and if they'll take $20 you can't blame the manufacturer for offering the $20 instead of the $100, when there isn't $80 worth of difference in the two ideas. It's not the fault o the author that all stories look alike. It's the fault of the producer who fails to grasp the author's idea and substitutes his own interpretation That's what makes for sameness. It's not the length of time it takes to write that determines the value of an idea, nor is it the price paid for the story. It's the value of the idea itself in originality plus production, and without the proper production, the idea becomes commonplace. That' where the trouble lies; not in the matter of price, and price ever will b guided by the laws of supply and demand, and kicking against the prick does not help. Let's be sensible. There are better times coming.

Getting Back at the Editor.

Did you ever get a grouch on an editor? Were you ever filled with wild desire to take train straight to the studio and lick him because he marked up your script, or suggested that he had seen the idea before o something like that? Ever feel burning thoughts that you'd like to write in blood on the back of the offending editor's neck?

The chances are that if you've been in the writing game for any length of time you have. But what's the use? There are about twenty-five film companies buying scripts. After you've written twenty-five letters you're without a market unless you send in under some other name.

Write your letter, by all means, but unless you're positive you are through wanting to do business with that studio, don't mail it. Keep it to look at and chuckle over, but don't send it unless you get money from home or have a regular job and do not need to sell scenarios.

Of course, at the moment, you feel that you wouldn't send another script to that particular editor to save yourself from starvation. You've been aggrieved and you want to pour out your vials of wrath on his devoted head. Go ahead and pour; spill it all out on nice, clean 8½ x 11 paper. Tell him what his progenitors were like and what his descendants are going to be like. Assure him that nature abhors a vacuum and that he ought to put a bullet in his head to let in the atmosphere. Be as mean and nasty and sarcastic as you darned well please, but after you've got it all out of your system wait a week before you send it. Nine times out of ten you won't.

An editor is a calloused cuss. If he had feelings to be hurt he wouldn't have lasted long enough to be an editor. He's used to abuse and sarcasm and the things that sound so cruel and cutting to you just make him laugh a little. Then he makes a mental note that you're a person to be avoided because you take up his time with your long letters and drops your next scripts, if there are any, into the envelope with a chill rejection slip and goes on to the next story cheered by the thought that the scenario supply is unlimited and they can get along without you anyway. He isn't sore; just a little tired, and wise in his generation. He knows the futility of dealing with the person with an inflammatory brain and so he doesn't; not because his feelings have been hurt by what has been said, but because he is experienced and he knows that the man who grows abusive over a damaged script will make trouble in the long run and he cuts off further mmunication.

We do not always practice what we preach, but that does not affect the value of our sermon, and there never will be printed on this page advice more valuable than this: "Write scenarios; not letters, when you want something to send an editor. Write letters, but DO NOT SEND THEM UNLESS YOU ARE READY TO GO OUT OF BUSINESS."

We Give It Up.

A correspondent wants to know what the marks are that some companies put on the back of his scripts. He says: "Sometimes they look like words and others like numbers. One just returned looks like the number 1000 with a perpendicular line through the middle nought. If you can explain the meaning I should like to know."

This is something that we have to give up. The decorated nought might be the Greek "ph," but the numeral 1 suggests that it is a number. The only thing that the mark indicates to us is that some half-witted director, unable to remember his own bald thoughts, has marked the script with some private mark of identification. Possibly 1000 means that it "appeals" to him and the down stroke indicates that he has changed his mind. Sometimes the mark is a numeral that indicates the position of the entry in a cript book, where such a thing is kept, sometimes it is the suggested alue, and sometimes it marks the director to whom the script is to be shown. In any case it is a trespass upon honesty and a thing that should not be permitted.

The writer also wants to know if the locale of a story should be indicated in the script. We do not believe that it is necessary to indicate the genral locale of the story. The placement of the scenes should show that special country is required when such is the case. It is not necessary to xplain that the story is a Western one when ranch scenes are called for r announce "A Tale of the South" when the story starts with "Scene 1—The front porch of an old Southern mansion." Tell where each scene is to be played and a general identification is not necessary.

Why Not Find Out?

G. P. W., of N. Y. C., who withholds his address, chides those who complain that their scripts are mistreated and explains that he has no ick coming though the six scripts he has written refuse to be separated from him for long. He opines that perhaps they are not properly written and wants to know what others think. We think that if he will send to any of those companies advertising to send sample scenarios for a stamped envelope that he'll find out whether it is the form or the substance that is lacking. It's an easy way to find out and it costs only four cents.

What Happens When—

A correspondent writes that in endeavoring to locate a script sent the ubin Company the reply envelope enclosed was returned with a sheet of instructions for writing scenarios and wants to know what we think it means. As the same thing may have happened to others, we explain that the Lubin and some other companies, advertise to send a sheet of scenario suggestions to any applicant supplying a return envelope. These advertisements appear in certain periodicals and immediately following an issue of the magazine there arrives a flood of requests accompanied by self-addressed envelopes. It is but natural that now and then an envelope should become detached from its accompanying letter and a blank envelope eans a form sheet—so the form sheet is sent. That's all.

ALLIOPE BALLYHOO AT THE SAVOY THEATER, NEW YORK.

The first instance, to our knowledge, of a calliope, or steam organ" being used as an attractor for a moving picture and vaudeville theater was heard this week at the Savoy heater, on 34th Street near Broadway, New York. It may be literally called a "howling success." It pulls the crowds from Broadway out of sheer curiosity. The calliope is installed in the third-story window. It might be a trifle more productive if the Savoy would employ the services of a pianoner who is also a plumber.

INQUIRIES

H. L.—Exhibitors pay for their service according to the date of the release rather than the number of films. Miss Lawrence is not posing at present. She is in Europe on a vacation. Biograph questions cannot be answered. The reason that Essanay and Selig had pictures of a boat called the Alden Besse is that both have studios near Los Angeles and the boat went ashore near there.

BROADWAY GIRL.—Harry Eytinge was the giant in Edison's "Jack the Giant Killer," and Miss Gertrude Clarke his wife. We don't know whether or not the gates are "real" iron. In Lubin's "A Noble Enemy," the cast included Romaine Fielding as Lieut. Ware; Harry Alska as the Jap, and Burton T. King as the welcome suitor. The picture was not made in Philadelphia but probably at Fort Myer, Va. That section of the company is now in Arizona.

A. S.—Practically all of the companies making Western pictures have their studios in or near Los Angeles, working from there up and down the coast and into the interior.

L. L. W.—Miss Jane Fernley and Henry Walthall had the leads in the Reliance "The Quarrel."

..H. P.—We do not place the player you ask for. The Photoplay Magazine, published in Chicago, devotes itself to the Independent subjects.

Exhibitor.—We believe that you allude to the Independent reel of this title. Ask your nearest exchange or the Feature Film Co.

S. J. M.—Miss Pickford is with the Biograph. Miss Ormi Hawley is playing opposite to Arthur Johnson in Lubin releases. Edison's "Foul Play" was in three reels as announced. Reel one was the regular release for the day and was taken by all exchanges. Some did not take the two that were special and in their territory only the incomplete single reel was shown.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL.—The heroine in Edison's "For the Cause of the South" was Miss Laura Sawyer.

E. P. H.—Ask us something easy.

H. R. J.—Miss Pearl White was the wife in Lubin's "His Birthday." She is now with the Pathe Freres. Miss Alice Joyce was the waitress in "Reckless Reddy Reforms."

M. R. H.—We do not place T. J. Carrigan with any company at present. He is no longer with the Selig Company. In Essanay's "The Right John Smith," the real Smith was Whitney Raymond, the girl Miss Eleanor Blanchard and the Sweetheart Miss E. Dolores Cassinelli.

A. M.—James Cruze, William Russell and Harry Benham are the leading men of the Thanhouser company. In the Thanhouser production of "On Probation," there were two "old men." Justus D. Barnes was the "old" uncle and James Cruze was the bewhiskered old chap who watches from behind the painting and rights the wrong. It's best to identify by name where you can.

R. R. J.—Miss Georgiana Wilson was the girl in Reliance's "The Gunfighter." Miss Edna Fisher was the leading woman in the Essanay "The Frontier Doctor."

J. T. S.—The Lubin Western company is located in Arizona. Edison has no permanent Western company. The others you mention are all in the vicinity of Los Angeles. Melies is in Santa Paula.

CONSTANT READER (No. 674).—The Solax studio is in Flushing, one of the Long Island suburbs of New York City, but a move to Fort Lee. N. J., just across the Hudson from 130th Street, is contemplated.

R. F. K.—Miss Jane Wolff was the lead in Kalem's "Norma of Norway."

B. M. F.—The Bison Company does not reply to our inquiry.

JAMESON.—Miss Gladys Fields and Ryan Sherwood are now with the Powers Company operating in Mexico.

J. R.—Jack Standing is with Eclair. This interesting information has been given several times. This is the last time it will be given.

W. R.—It is probable that one of those honest souls who "write" a photoplay everytime they see one they like, sold Powers "His Brother Willie." It is not always possible to locate these thefts until after production. It is just plain swindling and can be punished as such.

CURIOUS (G. F.).—We have not heard that the Majestic will locate in San Francisco. Atmospheric conditions are so much better in the vicinity of Los Angeles that there appears to be no good reason why that or any other company should come to your town. At present the Majestics are very comfortably located in New York City.

AN ADMIRER OF MISS S——.—Naughty. You know (or should), we do not mention Biographer's names.

J. M. R.—The only way you can get Biograph information is to write to the English papers. The information is freely given by the Company on the other side of the Atlantic, but witheld nearer home.

A. J. M.—We do not locate lost actors. We did not say that there were 5,000 moving picture players out of work, but that there were some 5,000 dramatic players out of work, most of whom were trying to get into the picture companies. We wish we might give you the wished-for encouragement. but the only way we think you could get a job in a studio would be to marry the daughter of some picture manufacturer.

A. S.—We do not know any school that can teach you how to be a motion picture player and we are not giving the addresses of schools that claim to teach the art. What's the good of knowing how if you cannot get the chance to act? No school can get you a job that will last, no matter what promises are made. If regular jobs could be guaranteed, the schools would be overrun by veteran players only too glad to pay the fee for the sake of the job. See answer to A. J. M.

C. E. K.—Miss Helen Gardner and Alfred Hollingsworth had the leads in Vitagraph's "Regeneration."

R. F. S.—Both companies purchase scripts, though the one first named has several staff writers who supply most of the product. (2) No company cares to consider a script in longhand unless it is very plainly written. Better have your scripts typed if you want them read. Your hand is legibile but not quickly read. (3) Try this again What do you mean by an "affair?" It is capable of several definitions. (4) The Board of Censorship does not object to a murder not done on the screen, but it is rather the way a thing is done than what is done that counts.

B. I. G. and OTHERS.—Miss Joyce is still with Kalem and appears regularly in releases. We do not recall those A. B. releases, so we do not know whom, you mean. The last question is barred. We have no opinions as to the merits of players.

G. & F.—Mr. Solter was a director, not a player, in the Lubin Company. Your second question does not lie within our province.

H. G.—It's a good thing to keep out of—if you ask us. We are getting a pretty good line on it and the more we learn the less we like it.

ALICE.—It not only would make a good photoplay, but it has made a good production. Stick to original themes and leave the standard arrangements to the studio.

Comments on the Films

Licensed.

"HER HEART'S REFUGE" (Lubin), February 22.—Her heart's refuge was the convent. The train of circumstances shown in this picture as the cause of her heart break is not, at all points, very human. Sometimes it is obscure; as a whole it is not powerfully convincing. She was an artist's model. A rich young man fell in love with her. His parents conspired with another young woman (was she the man's old fiance?) to break his infatuation. A second man (was he the old fiance's brother?) is introduced and he, too, falls in love with the model. It is such a plot as the best seller novels exhibit. The picture is artistically made and well acted at the more human moments in it. It is also very well staged and photographed. It will pass as a filler.

"THE GIRL DEPUTY" (Kalem), February 21.—The pretty heroine of this picture pleased the audience very much. She got her fiance, the sheriff, to make her his deputy and polished her star with the best of them. When the time came to chase the bad man, she was not permitted to join the posse; but got even with her sweetheart by making the capture where he failed to find his man. It was luck and pluck that won her the reward. It is a good picture; the people liked it. The backgrounds have been seen before in Kalem pictures; the photographs are good. It will serve as a feature, although this seems to be an unusually strong week and there are several stronger pictures to choose from.

"ONE THOUSAND MILES THROUGH THE ROCKIES" (Edison), February 21.—A very good scenic taken in Colorado and showing the famous beauties of that marvelous mountain pleasure ground. One view of the pool at Glenwood Springs shows the fish swimming under the water. It is a good picture to show.

"EVERYTHING COMES TO HIM WHO WAITS" (Edison), February 21.—On the reel with the above scenic is this crockery breaking farce showing a peculiar waiter and his adventures in a restaurant. It is a rip roaring feature for the Bowery.

"THE KING'S COMMAND" (Eclipse), February 21.—Frederick the Great, of Russia, figures in this very artistic and pleasing picture as a warm hearted, young and inexperienced prince who falls in love, honorably, with a pretty village girl. The picture is acted by noted artists from the great French theaters and is dignified, simple and convincing. The king, William of Prussia, learns of the love affair and ruthlessly banishes the village girl and her father. There is little in it to make the gallery excited; there is much in it that pleases and satisfies the artistic instincts. It is a first-class picture to show to cultivated people, good for private entertainments and for the usual shows, a dignified, substantial feature. The photographs and settings are very pretty.

"THE PROSPECTOR'S LEGACY" (Essanay), February 17.—A bad man and sheriff's posse picture with much in it that is fresh and unusual, viz, a certain mysteriousness that keeps the spectator wondering and also keeps his interest awake. For instance, the posse is chasing the outlaw (if he was an outlaw) whom we think has stolen the prospector's legacy. The man jumps. We don't know whether he has jumped into a hole, gully, ravine or abysm. The next scene shows a low, rocky cliff above the sea. The men clamber down and search the waters, but they don't find the man. We never knew whether he swam out, was drowned or was hiding among the rocks. The whole film is filled with incidences that suggest the perplexing, unexplained things that we meet every now and then. It is a good picture to exhibit; a feature. The photography is good.

"IN DIS-A-COUNTREE" (Lubin), February 21.—A good and interesting picture of Italians in this country. The hero is accused of a murder he didn't commit, had tried to prevent. His young wife (Miss May Buckley), comes from Italy with the little bambino and finds him in pirson. He is exonerated in the end. The acting is intelligent, the photographs very good, the sets and scenes interesting. It is a good filler.

"BACK TO THE KITCHEN" (Essanay), February 23.—A picture that will please those who have had to listen to poor singers and worse players on the fiddle while waiting for moving pictures. It is the story of a girl who wanted to be but wasn't. She thought she was and got a vaudeville manager to give her a chance. What he thought of her when he heard her play is amusing. It is well photographed and is a fair filler.

"WHEN MEMORY CALLS" (Selig), February 22.—A picture showing a misanthrope cured and made human by the little girl of a man who had been his employee, but whom he had just discharged for making a strong plea for a rise in salary. The little player is very winsome and although the picture is well acted, is its best asset. It is a good, wholesome heart interest story fit for every occasion, a desirable filler.

"DAUGHTER OF THE REGIMENT" (Cines), February 24.—A French picture that is almost sure to be misunderstood by uninstructed people here. Vivandiers are an institution in the French army. The heroine of this picture is one. It is an interesting picture with a good deal of substance and pretty well acted. The photographs are good. A filler.

"PERUGIA" (Cines), February 24.—A short scenic of a very interesting Italian city, very old and full of historical monuments. The photographs are good. It is commendable.

"WILLIE,THE HUNTER" (Lubin), February 24.—The man who played the Willie-boy hunter in this picture could hardly have enjoyed his job. He plainly wasn't that kind. It is a very unpleasant character; the farce has nothing fresh whatever and it is somewhat vulgar. The photographs are good.

"UNDER BURNING SKIES" (Biograph), February 22.—A picture of life in a Western town near the desert where humanity is often big-souled if passionate and even fierce. The action, which develops before us a story of love, jealousy as hot as alkali wastes, and renunciation, has been carefully thought out. It is fresh and human and has touches, here and there, even when it verges on murder and sudden death, that convince us into laughter—this was heard all over the house. The acting is often extremely good and in some of the characters it is thoroughly good, especially in the bad men's part. The story compels interest; the backgrounds are good and the scenes are well pictured. It is a very sure feature picture.

"THE LEMON" (Essanay), February 22.—A clever picture of theatrica life with some delightful sketches of things as things are just outside the manager's door and inside his office, both when he is in a pet and when his leading lady is peeved. The story deals with a feminine impersonato who didn't get his job and so revenged himself by palming himself of as a lady and claiming to be the wife of the manager, not unlike the young British subaltern in Kipling's story. This impersonator's work is remarkable. We have seen it before in a recent Western love story. The photography is excellent. The picture is a first-class filler.

"POTTERY MAKING" (Lubin), February 24.—This intensely interesting and well photographed picture shows how every-day cups and saucer are made. It is the best industrial picture released in a long while.

"A PERSISTENT SUITOR" (Selig), February 23.—A farce with a gir thinking a burglar is her persistent suitor in disguise. The lover (made t look just like the burglar) looks in the window and sees the girl on th burglar's lap. It is amusing and was laughed at. The photographs ar very fair. It is a filler.

"SEEING DETROIT" (Selig), February 23.—This interesting sceni occupies about one-third of the reel. It is very commendable. The photographs are only fair.

"NEW YORK CITY STREET CLEANING" (Edison), February 24.—A very complete industrial picture. It is very well photographed and instructive. It occupies nearly half the reel.

"THE LOST KITTEN" (Edison), February 24.—A very amusing, bu slight incident furnishes out this picture. It seems a bit slow; but has very, yes unusually delightful human quality and is likely to please. Ther is little in it for the gallery. The acting and the photographs are fine. B the way, although it doesn't hurt the picture, the architecture of those boo cases is atrocious; that curve above the books with the rectangle pictur frame above the curve almost hurts the eyes.

"CHILDREN WHO LABOR" (Edison), February 23.—There is nothing that so strongly works to make good art as to have one's heart wrappe up in one's subject matter; it is more valuable than experience, training ambition or any other kind of strength. This picture was written by Eth Browning. Many of its scenes, as produced and acted are very artisti but sincerity glows in every one of its scenes. This reviewer has hear audiences receive good pictures before, but he has never heard the applause that this picture got, given to any other. It was partly because its subject; the people feel it deeply, but no poor picture would have been received so. The story, artistically manipulated to be effecting, so convincingly moves us that no one stops to think that it is improbable. The picture's life comes from the fact that in every appeal that it makes to the heart it is absolutely probable. Everything that is really significent in rings true to human life. It is well acted, well photographed. To the exhibitor we will say, it is the popular picture. To the minister we will sa here is the chance to give your congregation and Sunday school a sermo that is worth while. To the principals of schools we will say, here is ed cation in contemporary conditions for your pupils. To the public we w say, if you see this picture, you'll be enthusiastic for child labor refor and also for moving pictures because they can show you these things. Wh an optimistic outlook such a picture gives!

"WHEN WOMEN RULE" (Selig), February 26.—A fantastic situati with women policemen, women firemen, a woman mayor, etc. It doesn get over as satire very strongly. In fact, it is too long for its substance It was done better in a recent Lubin split reel. The photographs a only fair.

"IN LITTLE ITALY" (Selig), February 27.—A dandy picture, bright conceived and very well conducted. It shows the very amusing difficulti encountered by Tony (who spoke very little English) and his girl in getti a marriage certificate. There is nothing in the film that fails to intere It has, in fact, that quiet, convincing humor that is pleasanter than boistero laughter. Mr. Hobart Bosworth plays the bride's father and is ve funny as an excitable son of Italy; but the whole cast is very good. T pictures are fair, some are good. The picture will make a good feature.

“HOW MOTION PICTURES ARE MADE AND SHOWN” (Edison), ebruary 27.—This is an exceptionally good and desirable vocational picure. It goes into details clearly. A machinist or any one interested irectly in the moving picture business will get more from it than one ot so interested. But many times this reviewer has been asked by riends to tell them how it works. This picture shows it all very clearly. he exhibitor himself will know whether he wants such a picture or not; e probably will need it. The photography is perfect.

“POSITIVE PROOF?” (Essanay), February 27.—A picture played by ne of the Essanay's Chicago companies. A man shot himself and they hought him dead. The picture shows how an innocent man came to be uspected of the crime. The man comes to and tells how the accident appened. The acting of the accused, hard drinking man, is very good; saves the picture which is somewhat slow. The photographs are very lear and bright. It is a filler.

“A MATTER OF BUSINESS” (Lubin), February 26.—A very pleasing icture whose center of interest lies in a lad of ten or thereabouts who ets a new idea and helps his father who is sick and must go to the South r die. He held a life insurance policy. The lad went to the president f the insurance company and said, “We want the money now, before papa ies, so that he can get well.” Mr. Arthur Johnson plays the sick father. he lad's acting is also very pleasing as is that of the whole cast. The icture pleased the audience very much. It is well pictured. Some of the utdoor snow scenes are very pretty. It is a fair feature picture.

“THE SUNBEAM” (Biograph), February 26.—See elsewhere in this sue.

“STENOGRAPHERS WANTED” (Vitagraph), February 26.—A very ood comedy with a brilliant cast. Brown and Jones, played by Eldridge nd Bunny, need a new stenographer and many answer the ad.; the ffice is full of girls. Among these are Miss Walker, a blonde, and Miss aird, a brunette. Brown comes in and inspects them. Jones comes in nd inspects them. One wants the blonde; the other wants the brunette. resently Mrs. Brown (Kate Price) and Mrs. Jones (Julia Swayne Gordon) ome in and they make their choice. Each brings her husband out of he inner office by the ear and shows her to him. Both have chosen the ame stenographer; she is Flora Finch. The audience roared. Enough as been said. The photographs are fine.

“THE JUSTICE OF THE DESERT” (Vitagraph), February 27.—A picure that the most part is commonplace like other typical Westerns, ut with a strangely effective ending. The plot is clear and interesting, the cting and photography are both good. It is a desirable filler.

Independent.

“TWEEDLEDUM'S NEW YEAR'S GIFT” (Ambrosio), February 28.—weedledum, a schoolboy, gets a present of a football. The neighbors hase him and his ball. This kind of picture is well known.

“TWEEDLEDUM'S EVASION” (Ambrosio), February 28.—We do not holly commend this picture; it shows just how to get into a safe. Tweedleum breaks a safe with a confederate's help and gets away. It is lively nd held the attention of the audience. At the end the gallery laughed.

“WHEN MEN LOVE” (Republic), February 3.—A story of the North Voods dealing with love and jealousy. Two trappers who have quarreled ver a woman go out together. Fur thieves attack them and one is killed, nd the other brings in the body. He is accused of murder and the Royal ounted Police are put on his trail. The bandits who killed the man's comanion drive him back to camp and attack the cabin where he takes refuge. e is arrested; but the bandits' work becomes known and the hero is exonerted. It is a very good picture but not of a very vital kind, in spite of its aving a good deal of red-blood heart interest. It will do very well as a eature where a thrilling picture is wanted rather than an emotional one. he pictures of woods in winter snows are very good. It is of full length.

“BEDELIA AND THE SUFFRAGETTE (Reliance), February 25.—A rce that is a scream. It has rough and tumble moments; but the sufragette family is very ludicrous and poor Bedelia's experiences during the ay she served as cook there made laugh after laugh. Its satire, which is asy to appreciate, will tickle most audiences.

“PALM BEACH” (Reliance), February 28.—A picture of summer land owing the old fortress at St. Augustine, Fla., and the big hotels with alms growing about them. Some interesting street scenes.

“THOSE MARRIED MEN” (Great Northern), February 24.—A farce omedy showing three amusing characters at “Unter den Linden,” a German leasure park. How they escaped from their wives at home and their subequent adventures. Germans will probably see more in it; but even for mericans, who don't know Germany, there are plenty of laughs in it. is sufficiently well photographed.

“THE SNOWMAN” (Solax), February 4.—An extremely clever trick lm in which a bully, in a dream, sees the children's snowman, which he ad wantonly toppled over and broken, come to life and give him much eeded chastisement. The dream cures the young bully of his freshness. he photographs are perfect and the backgrounds of winter hillsides and a ountry village at their foot, are interesting. The spirit of the bright ttle farce is well maintained and the film a desirable offering.

“AUSABLE FALLS AND CHASM” (Solax), February 4.—On the same eel with the above. This beautiful picture of an Adirondack Mountain orge and stream is very acceptable. They go very, very nicely together nd make what will be a desirable addition to any program. It is a release at will be good for special entertainments as in churches or private homes.

“LEND ME YOUR WIFE” (Solax), February 11.—A good situation for farce comedy, viz: An old uncle requiring his nephew to get married nd nephew's borrowing a wife to fool him and the evening complications. has been used before; but there are plenty who haven't seen it and, esides, this picture is not without freshness. It is well photographed and oesn't drag often. Now and then it isn't credible enough to be really nny; but, on the whole, these players, including Billy Quirk, have andled the situation pleasingly. It is a very acceptable filler.

“AN ASSISTED ELOPEMENT” (American), February 29.—A few eye-fulls of action, they are just enough to keep the thread of a pretty love story clear. An automobile, its chauffeur, his sweetheart, benches on the lawn, a few rose-bush brightened nooks, the unwelcome lover and also a country constable and his more or less farcical doings all have a part in it. It isn't quite convincing, but it is very lively. Some of the photographs are perfect.

“THE LAND BARON OF SAN LEE” (American), February 26.—A story with an unusually strong situation, a situation that is convincing enough to make the blood boil, yet one that hardly is possibly anywhere. The owner of vast estates and a big dam orders the water cut off from the valley and the people are suffering for water to drink. The land baron is captured and tortured to make him relent. Miss Bush and Mr. Kerrigan play the leads. It is exceedingly well photographed and were it not for the extremely sensational torture scene, would serve as a feature.

“BILL AND THE LIONS” (Lux), February 1.—A most sensational farce with two real lions loose in the house. It is better than any nightmare. Bill gets into a suit of old armor. It is a rattling good picture to show. Get a good growler sound effect and it will put the picture over with a big “punch.” The photographs are good.

“THE SKIVVY'S GHOST” (Lux), February 1.—On the same reel with the lions is this picture in which Skivvy, the funny character whom we have been seeing of late, unintentionally scared her master and mistress. It is quite fresh and almost as much of a sensation as the lions. The two together can be relied upon to win their own way, with every kind of audience. It is a very promising release from the exhibitors viewpoint.

“IN THE GOVERNMENT SERVICE” (Republic), February 27.—A dramatic picture of Alaskan forests. The hero, a U. S. mail carrier, who is carrying an invoice of gold dust, is followed by a desperate character who intends to rob him and is also followed by wolves (they are pack dogs, but look wild). The thief by an unexpected but logical process falls into the toils. It is a good feature for localities where literary quality is not so much desired. The picture stands by its action solely.

“ALGIE THE MINER” (Solax), February 28.—Billy Quirk plays, in this picture, a lackadaisical, girlish youth who goes West to prove himself a man to win a sweetheart. In the beginning Algie is something beyond description, but in the end he becomes a brave boy and a true friend. It is very well photographed and the characters are surely “put over.” It is no comedy; it may get through as a tract, but it is very vulgar.

“ARAB'S BRIDE” (Thanhouser), March 1.—The backgrounds of this clever picture very strongly suggests Arabian desert lands near some Bagdad or fabled city in the East. The action shows how the master rug-weaver (Mr. Russel) fell in love with the vizier's daughter (Miss La Badie) who bought the rug, “work of his hands.” In his carrying her away there is true old romance. Many of this picture's scenes are extremely beautiful. It is a sure feature for almost any occasion.

“THE GUARDIAN ANGEL” (Eclair-Am.), February 27.—A picture of society people, telling the story of a violinist who began very poor, but became rich and famous. Both the violinist and his wife are tempted to be untrue to each other. The guardian angel is their little child. We can't call the picture pleasant after seeing so many dealing with this theme; but it is fairly well acted for the most part, also well set and well pictured. Where such a picture is wanted, this will be a good feature. It will serve as a filler on other occasions where such pictures are not so much desired.

“THE INTERRUPTED TELEGRAM” (Eclair), March 3.—A picture that is beautiful in its photographs, its settings and its acting—there are famous artists in the cast. A telegraph operator was suddenly interrupted and a telegram that was meant to carry hope to a worried father, made him think his only child was dying. The situation gets over. It is a good feature. There is no reason why this picture shouldn't be acceptable in a private entertainment.

“PRAGUE, CAPITAL OF BOHEMIA” (Eclair), March 3.—Prague is perhaps the most romantic city in the world. It is a city of famous men, of great buildings and of quaint architecture. This is a very beautiful picture of it; one that is a sure feature. These two on the same reel will make almost any bill distinguished.

“REVENGE IS SWEET” (Great Northern), March 9.—A brisk comedy of a summer's afternoon which is quite convincing and amusing. The photographs might have been better, but are clear. The picture is full of pleasant, good time spirit and will be enjoyed, especially by cultivated people. There is not much in it to please the gallery.

“HIS GOOD INTENTIONS” (Nestor), March 2.—A college athlete who has to keep in training isn't the most congenial company for his girl friends who want to have a good time. If he has to run ten miles every day, and there happens to be an escaped lunatic in the country, he may be taken up by the constable. It happened to the hero of the comedy and he broke training in spite of his good intentions. There are some very good laughs in it and the spectators seemed to enjoy it. The photographs have noteworthy quality. It is a desirable release for any program, but not quite a sure feature.

“THE BATTLE OF THE ROSES” (Nestor), March 2.—This festival and parade topical on the same reel is very acceptable. It is a better picture of the parade than we have yet seen; but even in these pictures we can't see the faces of those in the floats.

“AT ROLLING FORKS” (Nestor), February 28.—These unreasonable men, fathers and husbands, who act on pride and other petty motives and think they are standing for justice and recititude are good characters to show in pictures. They make men selfconscious and show them up to themselves. The father and son-in-law in this picture were both of this kind. And in it, jealousy fostered by pride and suspicion, came within a hair trigger chance of making a terrible tragedy. It is well acted by Mr. Gibbart (recently with the Bison Co.) as the son-in-law, and by Miss Victoria Forde (the new leading lady of the Nestor Western Co.) as his wife. The photographs are good and the release will serve as a good feature.

"THE SMUGGLERS" (Nestor), February 26.—Nestor photography and pictures of the sea would nearly make a feature by themselves. But in this picture, with the sea as its background, we have many well-contrasted, fishing village characters, and a speedy story of love, jealousy and revenge. There is in it a chase of a smuggler (betrayed to the revenue men) along a rocky beach and this has a thrilling, romantic climax. It is a tragedy. It has faults, but they do not mar it greatly. It can safely be depended upon as a sure feature, one that will take with audiences.

"HIS LORDSHIP'S WHITE FEATHER" (Solax), February 25.—A very pretty picture of Colorado ranch life, full of atmosphere and little realistic sketches, the pigs, the calves, etc. Lord Fitzhugh, an English artist, is visiting the ranch. He makes the ranch girl's cowboy lover jealous. We have the usual Indians, the usual cowardice in his lordship and the resuce by the cowboy. The rescue scene is very cleverly placed on a broad, rolling prairie with a sunset effect behind. The photographs are not perfect, but are clear and acceptable. The little heroine with her wind-blown curls is very pretty and the acting throughout is smooth and natural. It will serve as a feature on ordinary occasions.

"THE GUILTY BABY" (Thanhouser), February 26.—The baby, a child of about three, hid a string of pearls in a candy box shaped like a bunny and the plumber, who was repairing the water faucets in the suite, was accused of its theft. The plumber's wife was sick at home and heart-rending circumstances made the arrest tragic in the extreme. The Thanhouser Kid plays the plumber's child and it is she who discovers the gems in the other girl's box and this brings in a touch of humor that is very amusing. The picture isn't wholly convincing, but it gets over very well and will make a good feature. It will do for any occasion.

"A HIGHER POWER" (Champion), February 26.—For the most part a well conducted picture with some very pretty scenes. It has a rough character, a Mexican, who tries to break into a house to attack two women. One escapes through a back window and rides for help. Just as the Mexican breaks in a thunder storm opens. At the dramatic moment a flash of lightning kills the intruder. It is well acted, the photographs are very satisfactory and the picture will make a good filler.

"SHERLOCKO AND WATSO" (Champion), February 26.—An extravaganza in which grotesquely made-up characters (a big man and a little man) track a thief. They fail to find him. The picture is very slight indeed. It is a picture of "make up" almost wholly.

"WRONGLY ACCUSED" (Champion), February 28.—In this picture, a very little girl, without realizing the harm, steals a locket and it so happens that her brother is falsely accused of the theft. The story is romantic and it is very well acted by the leading lady and by the housekeeper. Some of the photographs are very pretty. It is a picture that people will like. Its plot is not very fresh nor does it convince us as being at all a picture of real life, but we highly commend it, not as a feature, but as a good film to show with other pictures.

"GETTING DAD MARRIED" (Eclair), February 29.—A queer character farce in which a daughter and her beau "put up" a trick on Dad, who is a widower. They send a matrimonial ad. to the Herald. It is a picture for the rougher and the simpler kind of audiences. It is well photographed.

"THE IMMIGRANT'S VIOLIN" (Imp), February 26.—Miss Loraine, whose work for the Biograph pictures has shown her as an unusually strong actress, leads in this picture as the lost immigrant girl, a violinist. An American lady and her nephew, who falls in love with her, have taken her under their protection. These roles are well played by Miss Prescott and King Baggot. The girl performs on the violin to an East Side audience and there meets her people, only to be separated from them, but she finds them again later. The emotions that rise from the situation are strongly portrayed. The plot has weaknesses, but the humanity of the picture convinces. The photographs are fine. It is a very good feature picture, one that will please all kinds of audiences. It can be shown even before churches, and private entertainments.

"THE ROSE OF CALIFORNIA" (Imp), February 29.—A tale of southern California in the early forties. An old hidalgo objects to the love affair between his daughter and an American. The young people elope, the Don follows, finds them married and tries to kill his son-in-law. The scenes and backgrounds are of great interest. The story is clear and speedy and has an attractive quality that is very likely to please. The photographs are, in part, very good indeed. It will serve as a feature.

"A TANGLED SKEIN" (Republic), March 3.—Perhaps "A Forced Reconciliation" would have been a more descriptive title for this picture which shows how a young couple separated and were brought together through a misunderstanding which came from the girl's employer's wife finding a dropped letter. The picture has good thrills of a conventional kind; it is sensibly conducted and well acted and the photographs are very fair. It will make a first class filler.

"THE FINAL PARDON" (Rex), February 29th.—An emotional, heart-interest melodrama of New York City and of life as it is known along the great white way. It is not a very realistic picture of life, however, not a human document, but an artistic moving picture whose purpose is to entertain and not instruct. Mr. Phillips Smalley plays in it a great lawyer's son who fell in love with a pretty singer and married her under an assumed name. The singer, the picture's center of interest, is played by Lois Weber with a good measure of power. The young man spent too freely, stole and went the downward path to his death. The young mother of his child was accused of murdering him. She is saved in the court (the picture's great scene) by the man's father as her counsel. It is a strong, good picture with very interesting sets, well photographed and makes a good feature.

"THROUGH FLAMING GATES" (Rex), March 3rd.—Miss Marion Leonard has done some very strong work in emotional climaxes in many other pictures, but this reviewer has never seen her in a role that taxed her capabilities so heavily or gave her so fine a chance to show her powers, and, as far as he can remember, he has never seen her to so good advantage as in this picture. It is an intensely thrilling story, has a heart-breaking human interest and, as it has been produced, is at once a thoroughly artistic and thoroughly popular picture, one that is worthy of being kept on at any theater for several weeks as the feature; it would surely pay. The mother had set her heart on going to a dance. The father was a doctor and had been called away. They had a little girl. The father probably would return any moment. The mother left the girl alone in the house. The wind blew the curtain and the child was shut in the burning house alone. The mother, in the midst of the party, heard the fire engines go past the house, but let herself be reassured. This is the situation, and it seems as though every ounce of good in it has been utilized by Miss Leonard and the picture's producer, and the whole cast, except the child. The ending is deeply emotional and is also very pleasant. It is a very good, very strong picture for all places, private entertainments, churches, any where, everywhere.

"THE BARGAIN" (Rex), February 8th.—An artistic, well-produced picture that might have been called "Bought and Paid For;" for the bargain was made by a young woman who got a wedding ring, a fine house (this house is one of the picture's noteworthy points) and a rope of pearls and for these she gave herself, body and soul, to a drunkard. It is a problem picture, one whose appeal is to the mind almost exclusively. Of heart interest, such as the Rex pictures, "Little Major" and "The Rainbow," gave us, there is very little. It is a good, wholesome picture, well worth while, for its influence will surely be a moral education to many. It is well acted, of course, by Lois Weber as the leading lady. Some of its scenes are full of beauty. A good feature picture.

A Sincere Appreciation of a Sincere Picture

"THE SUNBEAM" (Biograph).

The Biograph, "The Sunbeam," released on Monday, February 26, is a rarely beautiful picture and we take pleasure in commending it as a contribution to the still young, but vigorously advancing art (for it can be and often is art) of the photoplay. It is fresh, not merely in that it tells a story that hasn't been told before and deals in a fresh way with life, but it also gives one the impression of utilizing the materials it chooses to express itself in a fresh way. It does not suggest a picture drama to us, or a picture short story. It is nearer to the illustrator's art than to literature. It accomplishes what the draughtsmen have tried to do but couldn't. It is true that it has a strong situation and tells a good story; but the picture's highest quality doesn't depend upon these. The fact that the story isn't convincing doesn't appreciably weaken the impression that it leaves.

Its strength comes largely from this, that, appealing only to one sense in the same way that music does, it reaches corners in human experience where no other form of art can follow; it compels a closer concentration and gains what seems, since we are not used to it, a strange power of suggestion. By sheer courage in focusing all its efforts on some simple but deep situation and ignoring the seemingly popular demand for substantial plot stories, it begins to show us the possibilities of motion picture craft that were hardly expected. "The Sunbeam," doing this, follows a recent but not quite so successful Biograph, "The Eternal Mother."

In "The Sunbeam," the center of interest is a child—a girl of about five years. Good acting in children reflects great credit on the producer; they are very dependent upon him, and to handle them effectively he probably must somewhat more than know what he wants. The little player in this picture in the rôle as she plays it is very winsome. In the first scene her mother dies alone with her in the little room upstairs in the poor tenement. The child thinks her mother asleep. She makes a visit downstairs in search of friends, first on a spinster, then on a bachelor. The picture is a picture of vivid life, centered in the child with all her special needs and budding ideas. And how true a picture of life it is. In the foreground there are plenty of children, just "kids" of the tenement, and brim full of life and up to all kinds of pranks. In the middle distance are the two middle-aged lovers, losing their opportunities, and in the background there is death—the child thinks it is sleep, and doesn't yet understand when she brings the two middle-aged people up to the room. Yet it is also a picture of death, a wonderfully, but calmly, quietly suggestive picture of death. It isn't at all tragic and in this lies its remarkable freshness. As for that, this picture of death is something new. We don't know just what to call it. The producer doesn't comment on this death nor criticise it in any way; he merely shows it to us, simply. It is our own conception that is given back to us; but seen in the picture it affects us very deeply.

The acting of the whole cast is simple and natural. This is most certainly true of the work of the young lady who plays the rôle of the spinster. We should like to place her art in a niche by itself, high-up where few who play in the pictures can reach; but all wo look at "The Sunbeam" will see and recognize for themselves.

H. C. J.

Projection Department

Edited by F. H. RICHARDSON.

Projection Machine Mechanisms, Part 3.

THIS week the entire department is given over to the third of a series of instructions on mechanisms, designed to cover the latest model of all the leading machines. Herewith we give instructions on the Simplex machine. The Powers Six instructions appeared in Jan. 6 issue and the Standard machine was dealt with in Feb. 3 issue. The Edison and Motiograph instructions are in course of preparation. They will appear soon.

The numbers refer to parts and plates, thus: 62, P 5, means that part No. 62, which, by reference to the list of parts, we find to be the Cam of the intermittent movement, will be found on plate 5.

Note. This Mechanism Is Covered, or Boxed In, by a Metal Casing. This Casing Has Been Removed in Order to Show the Parts.

Plate 5 shows two extra intermittent movements. There are two lying beside the machine, and one placed in the machine.

Instructions for the Simplex Mechanism.

(Copyright 1912, By F. H. Richardson. All rights reserved.)

No. 1, To Remove the Film Gate 159, P 2.—Lift it straight upward, unhooking the gate 159, P 2, from pins YY, P 5. The gate will disengage when raised. Should it stick tap upward lightly on bottom of gate.

No. 2, To Remove Intermittent.—To take out whole intermittent movement remove screw 8, P 3, pull off gear 6, P 3. Push in on film trap screw 166, P 2, which opens gate 159; P 2. Next remove the lower right hand front section of machine cover—the section with curved top immediately below the aperture, same being represented by dotted lines on P 2. This section of the cover is held by four screws. Next loosen screws 53, P 2 and 4, and push back locks 52, P 2 and 4, so that they no longer engage ring of framing cam 92, P 1. Loosen screw 21, P 5, grasp fly wheel 57, P 3, with right hand and pull straight outward, at the same time pulling out gear 19, P 3, with the left hand. You thus remove the entire intermittent casing, fly wheel and intermittent sprocket. In replacing same, reverse the process of removal step by step, first reading instruction No. 8 carefully. In replacing front curved section of machine cover or casing, Be Sure to Place the Shortest Screw of The Four in The Top Hole. If one of the longer ones is used in the top hole it will extend through and tear the film.

No. 3, Adjusting the Star and Cam.—Intermittent sprocket 68, P 1, should have just a little lost motion. If set up too tight there is some danger that binding or undue friction will occur. If the adjustment is made while the machine is cold there will naturally be some slight expansion when the parts become warm through friction and by reason of some heat transmitted through the metal from the spot. After a time, however, by reason of wear of star and cam, the play in sprocket 68, P 1, may become too great. This has a tendency to render the picture unsteady, and it must then be taken up by setting star 67, P 5, closer to cam 62, P 5. It is done as follows: loosen two screws 55, P 4 and 5. Grasp hexagon nut XX, P 5, with a plyer or ⅜ flat wrench and turn same slightly either way until the lost motion in the sprocket is almost taken up, leaving just a little bit of play. Tighten screws (2) 55, P 4 and 5, again.

No. 4, Removing and Replacing Intermittent Sprocket.—The teeth of intermittent sprocket 68, P 1, do all the work of pulling down the film, working against the pressure of the tension shoes 160 and 161, P 5. They must therefore be expected to wear. When the sprocket teeth become undercut, that is to say, having a groove worn in the surface presented to the film, the sprocket should be removed and a new one installed. It is a good plan to have an eccentric bushing 54, P 5, star and spindle 67, P 5, and intermittent sprocket 68, P 1, already assembled as shown in P 5, ready to place in the machine when required. The old sprocket may be placed at leisure, this being done as follows: Loosen the two screws 55, P 5, grasping intermittent sprocket, pull straight out, thus removing bushing, star, spindle and sprocket from the casing. Next carefully remove sprocket from spindle. To do this first remove taper pins 69 P 1, which hold the sprocket to the shaft and with a cloth in the left and, grasp star and busing firmly, while with the right hand you pull the sprocket from its spindle with a twisting motion. Should the sprocket stick you may lay the edges on a vise and with a brass or copper punch gently drive the spindle out. Be very careful, if the sprocket is good, that you do not ruin it in the process, as its rim is thin and easily battered or bent. In installing the new sprocket be very sure that the large diameter of the pin holes in shaft and sprocket are together. To replace parts in the machine first wipe the bushing and its bearings perfectly clean and lubricate with good clean oil. Push the bushing into its bearing until the star is against the cam; turn the fly wheel slowly, at the same time pushing in on the sprocket, until pin on cam 62, P 5, engages with star slot, when bushing may be pushed home; after which adjust star to cam as per instruction number 3 and tighten up the two screws 55, P 5.

No. 5, To Remove Intermittent Casing Cover 50, P 5.—First follow instructions No. 2 and 4, next insert steel punch in hole X, P 5, and using it as a wrench unscrew the cover from casing. The screw of cover O, P 5, is an ordinary right hand thread.

No. 6, To Remove Cam 62, P 5.—First follow instructions No. 2, 4 and 5; then remove taper pin holding collar 63, P 5, and pull collar off. The cam and its spindle may then be pulled out.

No. 7, To Remove Flywheel Shaft, 59, P 3.—First follow instructions No. 2, 4, 5 and 6; then drive out taper pin 58, P 3, pull off fly wheel and shaft will slip out.

No. 8, Replacing Bushing 54, P 5, and Intermittent Casing 49, P 5.—This is a very simple operation, it is, however, of great importance that it be rightly done. Both the casing and bushing fit in their bearings very closely. It is therefore necessary that they, as well as their bearings, be cleaned perfectly and lubricated with a good clean oil. Having done this, push the casing or bushing carefully into place, turning or shaking it slightly if it sticks. Never under any circumstances attempt to drive the parts into place. You will simply ruin both bearings and casings, or bushings, if you do.

No. 9, To Replace Intermittent Casing 49, P 5, in the machine.—First follow instructions No. 8; then insert shaft of gear 19, P 3, into its bearing about ¼ inch. Next insert casing 49, P 5, into its bearing, and push both casing and gear into place together, having the rim of casing in such position that locating-pin 93, P 4, enters hole in casing rim. The rest of the operation is simply a reversal of instruction No. 2. See that the clutch 7, P 4, locks with its mate properly when gear 6, P 3, is pushed into place.

No. 10, To Remove Gear 24, P 4, or The Complete Governor or Vertical Shaft 23, P 4.—Drive out taper pin in hub of double gear 24, P 4, using a light hammer and punch to prevent bending the vertical shaft. This pin is in the hub between upper and lower rows of teeth of the gear. Next remove taper pin 91, P 1, and, grasping gear 25, P 4, pull upwards. Vertical shaft 23, P 4, will come out, thus releasing the other parts.

No. 11, To Remove Spiral Gear 117, P 4.—First follow instruction No. 10; then remove taper pin holding collar 118, P 4, and pull shaft out to the right.

No. 12, To Remove Spiral Gear 120, P 4.—Drive taper pin out of left hand end of gear. Spindle will then slip out to the left, thus releasing gear.

No. 13, To Remove Shutter Gear Bracket 131, P 3.—First follow instruction No. 12, then remove the two screws 133, P 3, and bracket will come off.

No. 14, To Remove Shaft of Outside Revolving Shutter, head of which is shown at 127½, P 5, loosen set screw 130; P 2 and 3, and the shutter and all may be pulled off.

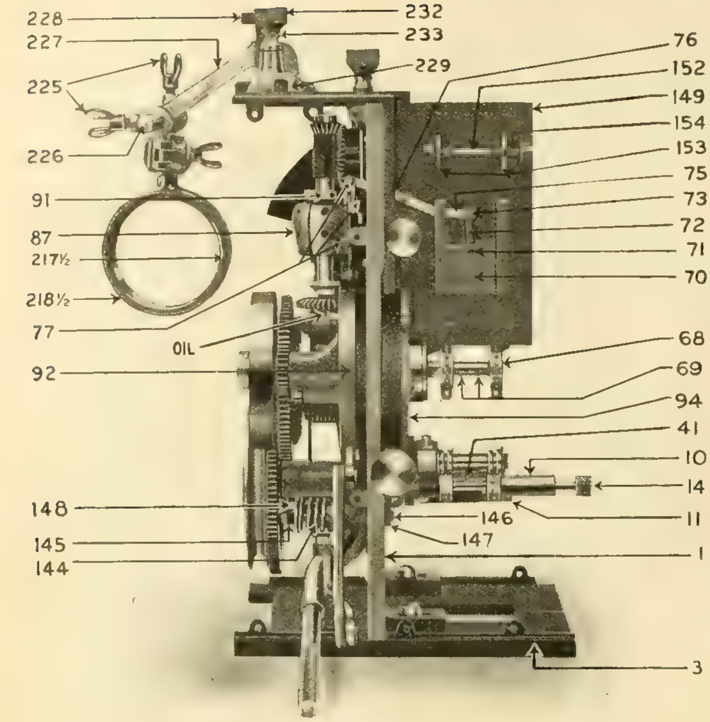

Plate 1.

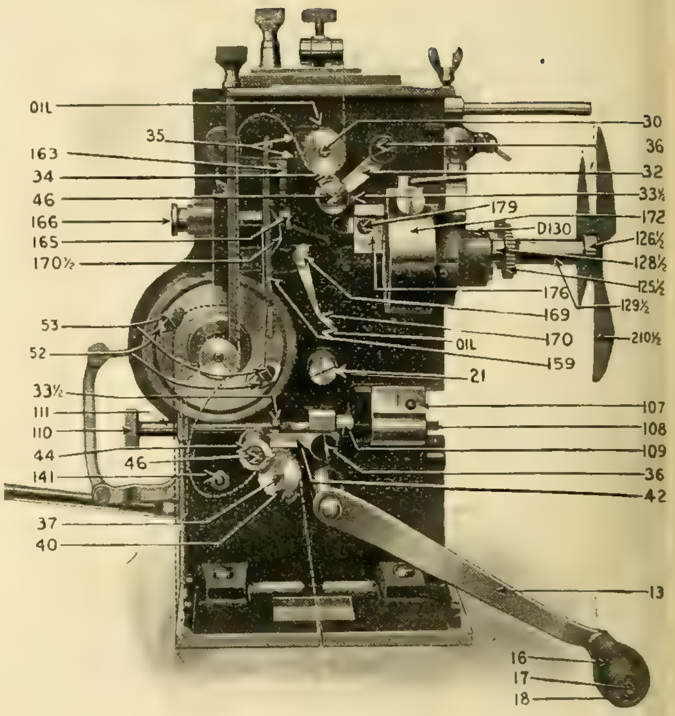

Plate 2.

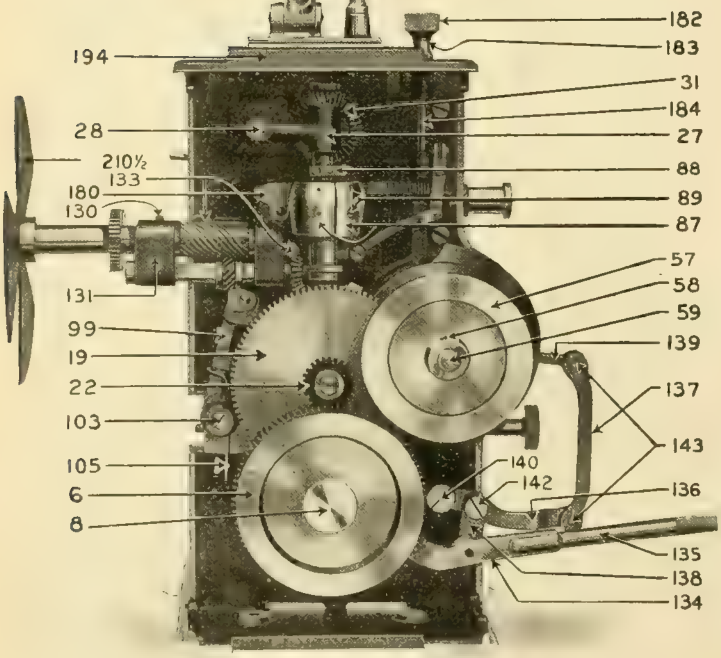

Plate 3.

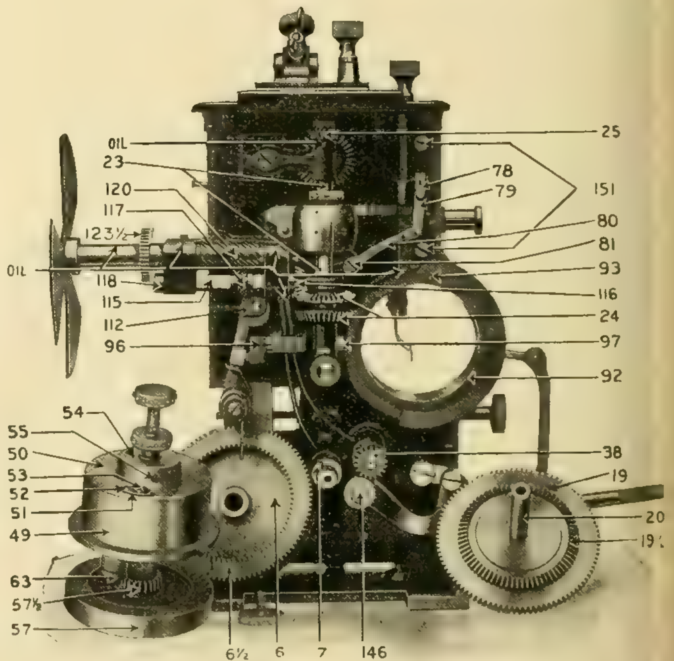

Plate 4.

No. 15, To Remove Shutter Blade 210½, P 5.—Take out the three screws 210, P 5.

No. 16, Gear 125½, P 2 and 5.—Do Not Attempt to Remove This Gear. It Is Forced on the Shaft Under Pressure and Cannot be Removed Except at the Factory.

No. 17, To Remove Shutter Adjusting Slide Block 107, P 2.—Remove taper pin near outer edge of the lower track or slide and turn the knob 110, P 2, to the left until sliding block 107, P 2, is released.

No. 18, To Remove Shaft 108, P 2.—Insert steel punch in hole in the outer one of the two locking collars, 109, P 2, and, holding punch stationary, turn knob 110, P 2, to the left, which will unlock the collars. Remove the collars and the shaft may be pulled out.

No. 19, To Remove Focusing Slide 176, P 2, which carries lens holder 172, P 2.—First remove bracket 131, P 3, (see instruction No. 13), then remove screw 179, P 2, and the slide will come out. On bottom there will be found a small gib which provides tension. Be sure to replace this gib when putting the parts together again.

No. 20, To Remove Framing Cam 92, P 1 and 4.—Take out upper screw 143, P 3. Remove gate, as per instruction No. 1. Remove upper screw 77, P 1, and screws 151, P 4, which release the film trap 149, P 1. Loosen screw 95, P 5, unscrew ring 94, P 1, and the cam may then be pulled out to the left. The framing cam is the large ring-bearing in which the intermittent casing 49, P 5, rests. To replace same, just reverse the process; screwing up ring 94, P 1, until cam has end play, after which set up screw 95, P 5, tight, as this is the screw which locks ring 94, P 1, in place.

No. 21, To Remove Automatic Fire Shutter Lift Lever 75, P 1.—First remove screw 73, P 1, and upper screw 77, P 1. Next remove film trap 149, P 1, as per instruction No. 20. Drive out straight pin 76, P 1, from behind. This releases the lever.

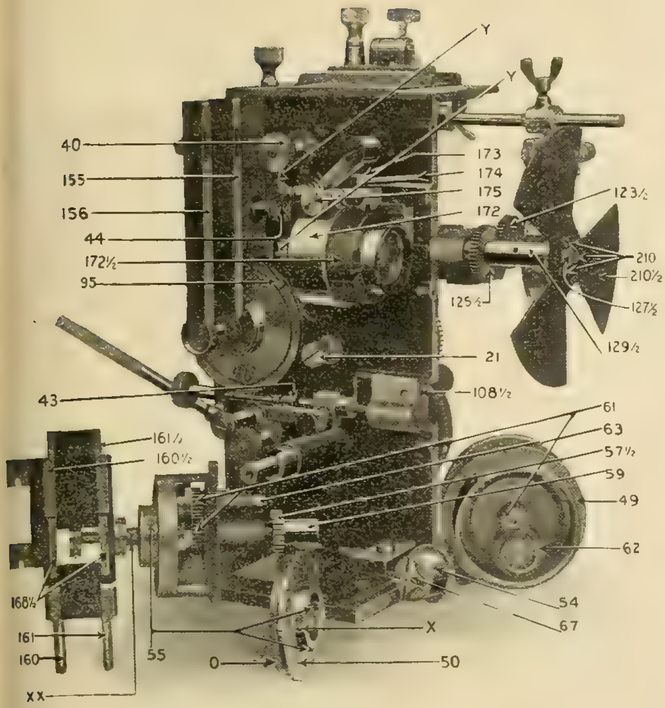

Plate 5.

No. 22, To Remove Governor Lift Lever 80, P 4.—Remove lower screw 77, P 1, and screw 81, P 4.

No. 23, To Remove Framing Slide Lever 99, P 3.—First remove gears 6 and 19, P 3, and intermittent casing, as per instruction No. 2. Loosen screw 108½, P 5, which allows you to pull out lever 99, P 3, carrying spring 105, P 3, with it. This also releases framing slide arm 96, P 4, carrying roller 97, P 4, which may be pulled out after lever 99, P 3, has been removed.

No. 24, Spring 105, P 3.—This spring is for the purpose of holding roller 97, P 4, against the framing cam 92, P 4. It also holds lost motion out of parts between lever and framing cam. To remove the spring take out screw 103, P 3, which releases the spring. To replace, put it on its stud in same position as it was, then bend the free end around to the right until it enters slot in end of stud. Place washer on and replace screw 103, P 3, setting it up tight.

No. 25, Framing Handle Tension Spring 144, P 1.—This spring causes framing handle, or lever, 135, P 3, to work hard or easy, according to how it is adjusted. If lever 135, P 3, works too hard, this spring has too much tension; if too easy there is not enough. Tension of the spring is governed by nuts 145, P 1. To change the tension, first remove screw 8, P 3, and pull off gear 6, P 3. Loosen outer one of nuts 145, P 1, and tighten or loosen inside nut until the lever works to suit you, after which lock the nuts tightly together again.

No. 26, Film Trap Gate Holder 163, P 2, is held in place by film trap gate holding stud 165, P 2, which runs through and is held by a screw 166, P 2, inside of which screw is a coil spring 168 (not shown on plate), which holds the gate against film trap 149, P 1. All these parts may be readily removed as follows: Place a piece of cloth, or paper, between the jaws of a pair of plyers, to prevent marring the metal and unscrew 166, P 2, thus releasing the spring and stud 165, P 2. The metal thimble on screw 166, P 2, is merely to protect and hold the coil spring in proper position. If it is desired to remove the gate holder and stud also, you must take off the film trap (see instruction No. 20).

No. 27, Film Trap Shoes 155 and 156, P 5., may in time wear. They may be removed by taking out four screws in front of the film trap which holds them in place. These shoes are right and left, and you cannot insert them incorrectly. When ordering, however, take this into consideration. Should the screws project through when new shoes are installed, they must be carefully dressed down flush with surface of the shoe, using a fine file, same also applying to film trap gate shoes 160½ and 161½, P 5.

No. 28, Intermittent Sprocket Tension Shoes 160 and 161, P 5, are made of spring steel. They hold the film in contact with intermittent sprocket 68, P 1, their adjustment is therefore important. They must be set so that their curved portion just barely touches the sprocket rim. It must, however, be observed that the inside half of each shoe is offset so that it is away from the sprocket slightly when the outer edge touches. Set by the outer half only. Look at the shoes occasionally and see that they are in proper adjustment.

No. 29, Lens Holder 172, P 5, may be shifted forward or backward on sliding block 176, P 2, by loosening clamp screw 173, P 5, by means of handle 174, P 5. In installing new lens, place sliding block 176, P 2, in centre of its travel by means of focusing knob 182, P 3. Place lens in adapter ring 172½, P 5. These rings are made to fit various sizes of lenses. Loosen screw 173, P 5, by means of handle 174, P 5, and slide holder back and forth until edges of aperture appear in sharp focus on the screen. Tighten screw 173, P 5, and complete focusing by means of knob 182, P 3. Tube projection lenses only can be used on the Simplex machine. It is therefore necessary to purchase a lens jacket.

No. 30, Upper and Lower Sprocket Idlers 44, P 5 and 2, must be carefully adjusted in relation to the sprockets. The upper idler is adjusted by means of screw 33½, P 2. That of the lower idler is adjusted by a similar screw 33½, P 2. These rollers must be kept set away from the sprockets by about twice the thickness of a film. If set too close it has a tendency to cause the film to run off the sprockets. If too far away it may cause the sprocket holes to climb, that is, the film may slip over. In either event the effect is to lose the loops. It will be seen that these adjustments are of the utmost importance. After making adjustment be sure to set up the adjusting-screw lock nuts tightly.

No. 31, Roller Arm Tension Springs.—Upper sprocket roller arm 32, P 2, is held against sprocket by means of a spring clamped under screws 35, P 2. To remove this spring, take off film trap 149, P 1, as per instruction No. 20. The lower roller arm spring 43, P 5, is held by two screws which may be removed through the bottom roller holder opening in base of the machine, when same is removed from table.

No. 32, Aperture Size.—The Simplex aperture is exactly 11/16 by 15/16 of an inch. These dimensions may be used in figuring lenses for this machine.

No. 33, Oil.—It is well to avoid the use of widely advertised patent oils. As a rule they are totally unfit for use on a motion picture mechanism. Some of them possess little or no lubricating qualities. Best results are obtained by use of a good grade of light dynamo oil. A heavier lubricant is best for gears. For gears a heavy automobile cylinder oil is recommended. Purchase oil in quantities from a reliable dealer. Vaseline may be used for gears, but cylinder oil is better.

No. 34, Washing Gears and Bearings.—Simplex gears and bearings are well protected from dust and dirt, still it is not a bad plan to wash them thoroughly with kerosene, benzine or gasoline once each week. Use an ordinary oil can filled with kerosene, benzine or gasoline, and flooding the gears and bearings thoroughly while turning the crank. Use rags under the gears to catch the dirty oil as it runs off.

No. 35, Setting the Shutter.—The revolving shutter is set while the machine is in operation by turning knob 110, P 2. If streaks show at top or bottom of letters in titles or flashes up or down from any white object in film, it is evident that the shutter is out of adjustment. Turn knob 110, P 2, one way or the other until the ghost dissappears.

No. 36, Focusing Lens.—The picture on the screen is readily focused by turning knob 182, P 3, which moves the projection lens closer to or farther from the film according to the way it is turned.

No. 37, Clean Sprockets.—If you expect the picture to be steady it is absolutely essential that you keep intermittent sprocket 68, P 1, clean. Dirt or gum on its face will cause the picture to become unsteady and vibrate. Also the upper and lower sprockets, 40, P 5 and 2, should be kept perfectly clean since gum or dirt on their surface has a tendency to cause the film to run off the sprocket and thus lose the loops. A tooth brush is best for cleaning sprockets. All sprockets should be cleaned thoroughly at least once every day.

No. 38, Tension Shoes 168½, P 5, provide tension to stop the film and hold it flat and stationary over the aperture during exposure. When first run films are used there is a decided tendency for the soft emulsion to deposit on these shoes and this deposit must be carefully removed after every run. Never use a knife blade or steel instrument to clean the shoes else you may scratch them and make matters worse. Use a wet rag or scrape with a silver coin or some soft metal article. A little tallow rubbed on before each run will help to prevent emulsion depositing but nothing will

NAMES AND NUMBERS OF PARTS FOR THE SIMPLEX MECHANISM.

Order parts by number only. These numbers are the manufacturers' regular stock numbers. The first column of figures indicates the plate on which the part is shown.

1 & 2	1	Centre Frame.
	2	Centre Frame Screws (2).
1	3	Base.
	4	Base Wing Screws (2).
	5	Base Dowel Pins (2).
3 & 4	6	Main Driving Gear (spur).
4	6½	Main Driving Gear (Internal).
4	7	Main Driving Gear Clutch.
3	8	Main Driving Gear Retain Screw.
	9	Main Driving Gear Clutch Pin.
1 & 2	10	Crank Shaft.
1	11	Crank Driving Collar.
	12	Crank Driving Collar Pin.
2	13	Crank.
1	14	Crank Retain Screw.
	15	Crank Retain Plug.
2	16	Crank, Wood Handles.
2	17	Crank Stud.
2	18	Crank Washer.
3 & 4	19	Intermediate Gear No. 2 (spur).
4	19½	Intermediate Gear (bevel).
4	20	Intermediate Shaft.
2 & 5	21	Intermediate Shaft Retain Screw.
2	22	Intermediate Gear No. 1.
	22½	Washers on Intermediate Gear.
4	23	Vertical Shaft.
4	24	Double Bevel Gear No. 2.
4	25	Bevel Gear No. 3.
	25½	Bevel Gear Taper Pin.
	26	Vertical Shaft Washer.
	26½	Vertical Shaft Washer No. 2.
3	27	Vertical Shaft Bracket.
3	28	Vertical Shaft Bracket Screw.
	29	Vertical Shaft Bracket Pin.
2	30	Top Sprocket Shaft.
3	31	Bevel Gear No. 4.
	31½	Bevel Gear Taper Pin.
2	32	Upper Sprocket Roll Arm.
	33	Upper and Lower Sprocket Roll Arm Pins (2).
2	33½	Upper and Lower Sprocket Roll Arm Screws (2).
2	34	Upper Sprocket Roll Arm Spring.
	35	Upper and Lower Roll Arm Spring Screws (4).
	35½	Upper and Lower Roll Arm Nuts (2).
2	36	Upper and Lower Roll Arm Pivot Screws (2).
2	37	Lower Sprocket Shaft.
4	38	Lower Sprocket Gear.
	39	Lower Sprocket Shaft Washer.
2 & 5	40	Upper and Lower Sprockets.
2	41	Upper and Lower Sprocket Pins (2).
	42	Lower Sprocket Roll Arm.
5	43	Lower Sprocket Roll Arm Spring.
2 & 5	44	Pad Rollers (2).
	45	Pad Roller Studs (2).
	45½	Oil Tube for Crank Shaft.
2	46	Pad Roller Screws (2).
	46½	Oil Tube.
4 & 5	49	Intermittent Case.
4 & 5	50	Intermittent Case Cover.
4	51	Intermittent Case Cover Locks (2)
4	52	Intermittent Case Cover Lock Pins (2).
4	53	Intermittent Case Cover Lock Screws (2).
4 & 5	54	Intermittent Case Eccentric Bushing.
4 & 5	55	Intermittent Case Eccentric Bushing Set Screws (2).
4	56	Intermittent Case Oil Cup.
3 & 4	57	Fly Wheel.
4 & 5	57½	Fly Wheel Gear.
3	58	Fly Wheel Taper Pin.
3 & 5	59	Fly Wheel Shaft.
	60	Fly Wheel Shaft Washer.
5	61	Star Wheel Cam Spur Gears (2).
5	62	Star Wheel Cam & Shaft.
4 & 5	63	Star Wheel Cam Collar.
	64	Star Wheel Cam Collar Taper Pin.
	65	Star Wheel Cam Pin.
	66	Star Wheel Cam Washer.
5	67	Star Wheel & Shaft.
1	68	Intermittent Sprocket Wheel.
1	69	Intermittent Sprocket Wheel Taper Pins (2).
1	70	Auto. Fire Shutter.
1	71	Auto. Fire Shutter Stud.
1	72	Auto. Fire Shutter Lift Link.
1	73	Auto. Fire Shutter Lift Link Retain Screw.
	74	Auto. Fire Shutter Lever Stud.
1	75	Auto. Fire Shutter Lever.
	76	Auto. Fire Shutter Lever Pivot Pin.
1	77	Auto. Fire Shutter Link Hinge Screws (3).
4	78	Governor Lift Lever Conn. Link.
4	79	Governor Lift Lever Link.
4	80	Governor Lift Lever.
4	81	Governor Lift Lever Pivot Screw.
	82	Governor Lift Lever Stud.
	83	Governor Lift Lever Roller.
	84	Governor Lift Lower Link Holder.
	85	Governor Weight Stop.
	86	Governor Weight Links (4).
1 & 3	87	Governor Weights (2).
3	88	Governor Top Link Holder.
3	89	Governor Weight Screws (4).
	90	Governor Link Holder Screws (4).
1	91	Governor Link Holder Pin.
4 & 1	92	Framing Cam.
4	93	Framing Cam Locating Pin.
1	94	Framing Cam Adjusting Ring.
5	95	Framing Cam Adjusting Ring Screw.
4	96	Framing Slide Arm.
4	97	Framing Slide Arm Roller.
	96	Framing Slide Arm Roller Pin.
3	99	Framing Slide Lever.
	100	Framing Slide Lever Block.
	101	Framing Slide Lever Pin.
	102	Framing Slide Lever Stud.
3	103	Framing Slide Lever Stud Screw.
	104	Framing Slide Lever Stud Set Screw.
3	105	Framing Slide Lever Spring.
	106	Framing Slide Lever Stud Washer.
2	107	Shutter Adjusting Slide.
2	108	Shutter Adjusting Screw.
5	108½	Shutter Adjusting Slide Screw.
2	109	Shutter Adjusting Screw Collars (2).
2	110	Shutter Adjusting Screw Knob.
2	111	Shutter Adjusting Screw Knob Pin.
4	112	Framing Slide.
	113	Framing Slide Guide Rod.
	114	Framing Slide Set Screw.
4	115	Spiral Gear Driving Shaft.
4	116	Shutter Driving Bevel Gear.
4	117	Spiral Driving Gear with broached hole.
4	118	Spiral Gear Driving Shaft Collar.
	119	Spiral Gear Driving Shaft Collar Pin.
4	120	Spiral Gear.
	121	Spiral Gear Shaft.
	122	Spiral Gear Pin.
4 & 5	123½	Intermediate Shutter Gear.
	124	Intermediate Shutter Gear Pin.
	125	Intermediate Shutter Gear Bushing.
2 & 5	125½	Shutter Blade Spur Gear.
2	126½	Shutter Blade Gear Collar.
5	127½	Shutter Blade Gear Stud.
2	128½	Shutter Blade Gear Bushing.
2 & 5	129½	Shutter Blade Gear Distance Piece.
2 & 3	130	Shutter Blade Gear Set Screw.
3	131	Shutter Gear Bracket.
	132	Shutter Gear Bracket Pin.
	133	Shutter Gear Bracket Screws (2).
3	134	Picture Framing Handle Arm.
3	135	Picture Framing Handle.
3	136	Picture Framing Lever.
3	137	Picture Framing Conn. Link.
3	138	Picture Framing Link.
3	139	Picture Framing Arm.
3	140	Picture Framing Lever Pivot Screw.
2	141	Picture Framing Lever Pivot Screw Nuts (2).
3	142	Picture Framing Link Screws (2).
3	143	Picture Framing Conn. Link Screws (2).
1	144	Picture Framing Handle Friction Spring.
1	145	Picture Framing Handle Friction Spring Bet. Nuts (2).
1 & 4	146	Picture Framing Handle Pivot.
1	147	Picture Framing Handle Pivot Nut.
1	148	Picture Framing Friction Washer.
1	149	Film Trap.
	150	Film Trap Locating Pins (2).
4	151	Film Trap Screws (2).
1	152	Lateral Guide Roller Shaft.
1	153	Lateral Guide Rollers (2).
1	154	Lateral Guide Roller Spring.
5	155	Film Trap Shoe, Right (Inside).
5	156	Film Trap Shoe, Left (Outside).
	157	Film Trap Shoe Screws (8).
	158	Film Trap Bushing.
2	159	Film Trap Gate.
5	160	Int. Sprocket Shoe. Right (Inside).
5	160½	Film Trap Gate Shoe, Right (Inside
5	161	Int. Sprocket Shoe, Left (Outside).
	162	Film Trap Gate Tension Screws (8
2	163	Film Trap Gate Holder.
	164	Film Trap Gate Holder Pins (2).
2	165	Film Trap Gate Holder Stud.
2	166	Film Trap Gate Holder Stud Scre
	167	Film Trap Gate Thimble.
	168	Film Trap Gate Holder Spring.
5	168½	Film Trap Door Pad.
2	169	Film Trap Door Trip Lever Screw.
2	170	Film Trap Door Trip Lever.
2	170½	Film Trap Door Pad Spring.
2	171	Film Trap Door Trip Lever Spring.
2 & 5	172	Projecting Lens Holder.
5	172½	Projecting Lens Holder Adaptor.
5	173	Projecting Lens Holder Clamp Scre
5	174	Projecting Lens Holder Clamp Scre Handle.
5	175	P. & S. Lens Holder Clamp Screw.
2	176	Focusing Slide.
	177	Focusing Slide Gib.
	178	Focusing Slide Gib Pin.
2	179	Focusing Rack Retain Screw.
3	180	Focusing Rack Arm.
	181	Focusing Rack Arm & Stereo. Sli Friction Spring.
3	182	Focusing Pinion Knob (same stereo.).
3	183	Focusing Pinion Knob Taper Pin.
3	184	Focusing Pinion.
	185	Right Front Cover.
	186	Left Front Cover.
	187	Left Front Cover Thumb Screws (2
	188	Right Back Cover.
	189	Left Back Cover.
	190	Right Cover.
	191	Right Cover Rivets (2).
	192	Right Cover Screw.
	193	Cover Screws (17).
3	194	Top Plate.
	195	Right Door.
	196	Right Door Hinge.
	197	Right Door Lock Button.
	198	Right Door Lock Spring.
	199	Right Door Lock Stop.
	199½	Right Door Lock Screws (2).
	200	Left Door.
	201	Left Door Hinge.
	202	Left Door Lock Pin.
	203	Left Door Lock Pin Spring.
	204	Left Door Lock Taper Pin.
	205	Right & Left Door Hinge Rivets (11
	206	Right & Left Door Hinge Screws (11
	207	Right & Left Door Knobs (2).
	208	Right & Left Door Knob Screws (4
	209	Shutter Blade one Wing.
	209½	Shutter Blade Stay.
5	210	Shutter Blade Screws (3).
3 & 5	210½	Three Wing Shutter.
	211	Shutter Case.
	212	Shutter Case Cover.
	213	Shutter Case Cover Lock Pins (3).
	214	Shutter Case Support.
	215	Shutter Case Bracket.
	216	Shutter Case Screws (12).
	216½	Shutter Case Bracket Screws (6).
1	217½	Stereo. Lens Holder.
	218	Stereo. Lens Holder Clamp Screw.
1	218½	Stereo. Lens Holder Clamp Ring.
1	219	Stereo. Clamp Ball.
	220	Stereo. Clamp Ball Stud.
	221½	Stereo. Universal Clamp Body.
	222½	Stereo. Universal Clamp.
	223	Stereo. Universal Clamp Pin.
	224	Stereo. Universal Clamp Wing Scre
1	225	Stereo. Lens Focus Adjust Wi Screws (2).
1	226	Stereo. Lens Adjusting Rod.
1	227	Stereo. Arm.
1	228	Stereo. Lens Adjusting Screw.
1	229	Stereo. Slide.
	230	Stereo. Slide Pin.
	231	Stereo. Focusing Pinion.
1	232	S. P. Focusing Pinion Knob.
1	233	S. & P. Focusing Pinion Knob Tap Pin.
	234	Stereo. Slide & Focusing Rack A Friction Spring.

---

entirely prevent it. This trouble usually occurs only with first run films. Tension for shoes 168½, P 5, is provided by spring 170½, P 2. The tension is constant and can only be varied by bending the springs. It should be more than just enough to prevent the picture from climbing up on the screen when crank speed is increased to about 90 revolutions per minute. More than this only wears the sprocket holes of the film and the machanism of the machine uselessly.

No. 39, Stereopticon Lens.—The stereo lens will be placed in its mount and clamped in place by ring 218½, P 1. To adjust lens loosen wingnuts 225, P 1, and slide the lens ar mount either forward or backward on rod 226, P 1, unt picture is in approximate focus on screen. Tighten wingnu 225, P 1, again and complete focusing with knob 232, P The stereo lens can be raised or lowered by means of knc 228, P 1, thereby centering the picture on the screen.

No. 40, Oil Holes Will Be Found, as indicated on th various plates.

No. 41, Threading.—The course of the film through th machine is shown by the dotted white line on P 2.

Manufacturers Advance Notes

"THE FULL VALUE" (American).

Real estate deals and love furnish the subject for an interesting picture to be released by the American Film Manufacturing Company, under the title of "The Full Value," on March 18. Jack Raymond, a clerk with a real estate firm, falls in love with the firm's stenographer. Here he runs into the manager, who also has an eye on the pretty stenographer. The girl is flattered by the manager's attentions and allows im to escort her home. Jack becomes very jealous and demands of the manager that his attentions to the girl cease, t the same time telling the girl that she make a choice beween him and the manager. The girl, resenting the inter-erence, turns Jack down and, the next day he is fired for eing impudent to the manager. As for the girl, the manger makes further advances which compels her to leave is employ.

Scene from "The Full Value" (American).

Scene from "The Full Value" (American).

Jack is down and out and finds it impossible to get work. The manager determines to get even with the girl by de-rauding her mother of some valuable property. He lays is plans, which he communicates to another grafting employee. Jack hears of the plan and seeks the girl's mother nd induces her to let him manage the deal. Thus, when he agent goes to the mother to buy the property, he is re-erred to Jack. This gives Jack the chance he is looking for. He compels his former employer to pay full value for the roperty he hoped to get for a song and by so doing wins he girl.

POTTER CHANGE MAKER SCORES A HIT.

The first complete model of the Potter change maker has been tried and found equal to the emergency. The machine was given an unusually severe test at the Orpheum Moving Picture House in Portland, Ore., for three days last week. The Coin Machine Manufacturing Company is indebted to the People's Amusement Company for the opportunity of disarranging its usual system of doing business and allowing a practical demonstration of this machine.

Thursday morning at 11 o'clock the machine was installed at the entrance to the theater, just off Washington Street on Sixth. One of the draftsmen from the factory stood at the machine all day instructing Doorkeeper Murphy in the use and operation of the change maker and assisting the public to familiarize itself with the automatic change of money.

This illustration shows one patron, after receiving his change, about to enter the show; another just taking his change, and a third about to drop his coin with others in line.

There were hundreds of comments made on the workings of the machine and there was not a minute of the day that a crowd was not congregated at the entrance of the house. Many of them were there for no other purpose than to see the simple little device make change instantaneously, all day, without a single error. The trial was a decided success from every point of view. In two respects it was a surprise. In the first place, the machine developed an attractive feature that added immensely to the receipts of the house. Anything that calls a crowd of people around a place of public amusement is of great advertising value. In the second place, it was discovered at night, when checking up the admissions for the day, that the cash on hand showed considerably more money than the cashier could account for. This is also a healthy condition, as the reverse is more often the rule.

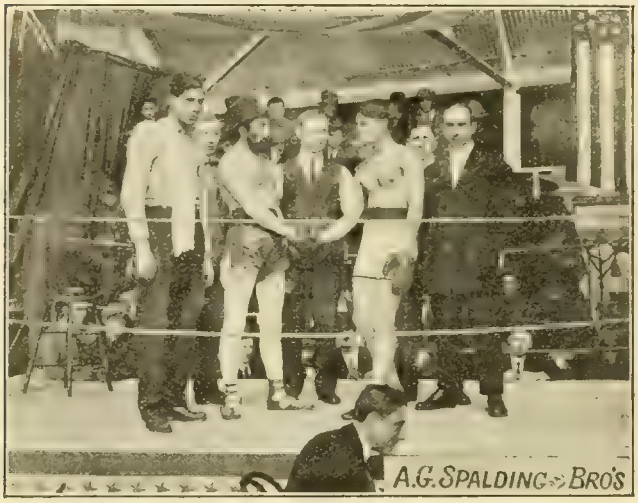
GEO. H. BRENNAN GETS "ODYSSEY" FOR NEW ENGLAND.

Mr. George H. Brennan, the well-known theatrical manager, and owner of the "Clansman," a large traveling production, has purchased from the Monopol Film Co., of New York, the state rights for the great three-reel feature production of Homer's "Odyssey," made by the Milano Films Co., of Milan, Italy, who are also makers of Dante's "Inferno." The states included in the purchase are Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

"IRELAND AND ISRAEL" (Champion).

The warm friendship existing between a Hebrew and an Irishman furnishes the theme for a refreshing story that has been produced by the Champion Film Company. The story is an innovation in that it has several comedy situations that are droll in the extreme. One of the features is a boxing match, which is refereed by the celebrated pugilist, Tom Sharkey, once a contender for championship fame. It is the first time Mr. Sharkey has appeared in pictures and the film will have a value to those who are familiar with matters pertaining to fistiania.

Abie, the Israelite, arrives in America to seek his fortune. He is an object of much curiosity as he leaves the battery to mingle with the unknown world to him. He is set upon by a gang of thugs only to be rescued by Pat, a young prize fighter. A bond of sympathy is established which lasts for years. Abie is invited to the home of Pat and is made welcome. The things that interest Pat are of more than passing moment to him and he visits a gymnasium, learns the art of boxing and seeks out the leader of the gang that made his entre into this country so unpleasant and whips him in a sanguinary battle.



Scene from "Ireland and Israel" (Champion).

Scene from "Ireland and Israel" (Champion).

Pat is champion in his class and a decisive battle is to be fought. Abie is there to look after matters for his friend and consents to go on in a preliminary and is no match for his adversary. Abie quits cold, jumping over the ropes which affords amusement for the patrons. Pat is whipped decisively in a few rounds and is heartbroken. His friends shun him—all but Abie, who tries to cheer him up by whispering words of encouragement.

For a time the friends lose all trace of one another. Pat is no longer able to earn a living for his family, but Abie, with the keen wit of his race, succeeds in the real estate business and becomes prosperous.

The story reverts to the home of Pat. He is ill and his wife is suffering for the necessaries of life. To make matter worse she is served with a writ of ejectment. Taking th paper she goes to the real estate office to ask for leniency There she meets Abie, who recognizes her. Pat is living i his house. Abie is pained to learn his old friend is in troubl and he accompanies the woman home. Enjoining secrecy h goes forth to return with a basket filled with food. The there is a happy reunion. Abie finds an opportunity to repa his benefactor and he does so in the way of a ministerin angel, giving Pat money and free rent until he can secur him a position.—A happy and satisfactory finale.

"THE HOME STRIKE BREAKERS" (Imp).

This is the Imp $60 Prize Scenario. Mr. Chas. Ade's cleve theme has been very adroitly turned to account by the Im Films Company's director and acting forces.

Briefly the story is of a determined woman who cure her husband of his strike breaking proclivities by making hi do the housework. Other wives serve their husbands in th same fashion. It seems that the laborers on a new buildin in the course of construction strike work and form a local Scene from "The Home Strike Breakers" (Imp).

Then the wives get busy in the manner specified and i order to show their strike breaking lords, they went an helped out "Mr. Builder-man."

He had offered a $500 reward to anybody who would brea the strike. Mrs. Michael McCarthy claimed it and it wa paid.

This picture is part of the Imp Saturday split release March 9th. It is full of lightning humor. It makes you laug all the time you are looking at it, and when it is over yo will wish there were more, for it is acted with briskness, lik all the Imp comedies.

BERNHARDT CONQUERS NEW WORLD.

Says Her Immortality Will Depend Upon the Record of th Films.

"I have conquered a new world—that of the photo play," writes Sarah Bernhardt to W. F. Connor, her America manager, apropos of her playing "Camille" before the camer of the French-American Film Company. "I never though my dear William, that I would ever be a film, but now tha I am two whole reels of pictures I rely for my immortalit upon these records."

Under the management of Mr. Connor, Bernhardt playe to over $3,000,000 in this country in two tours and prove herself the greatest box office attraction that the stage ha ever known. She was repeatedly asked while here to pos for moving pictures, but always refused, hence it was a grea surprise to Connor to hear that Sarah had capitulated to th camera. It took a great deal of persuasion and $30,000 i money to induce Bernhardt to play "Camille" before the can era, but when she finally made up her mind she entered int the arrangements with the enthusiasm of a schoolgirl. Sh visited motion picture shows in all parts of Paris, spe hours in studios and talked with operators and actors. In short while she was an encyclopedia of information abo the new art.

"Camille" was rehearsed a few times with the watch to g it timed right and then, on a set date, Bernhardt and h powerful company went right through the performance b fore the motion picture camera. She played with wonderf ire and expressiveness. Great genius that she is she suited ierself to her medium and the result is a long series of photographs that are staccato in their expressiveness. The story s revealed as plain as print. "Camille" was never more pitiully eloquent than in this dumb record. Bernhardt could iardly wait to see an exhibition of the pictures in the studio. When the operator started and the photoplay began to ranspire upon the screen she was almost hysterical with exitement. After seeing the two reels she insisted that they be run all over again and this was done. At the finish she urned to Edmond Rostand, who accompanied her, and isked:

"What next for me?"

"Camille" is a perfect photoplay. The story lends itself to he purpose of the camera and Bernhardt is eloquent in very movement. Someone has said that the pictures fairly rackle with life and project wireless messages to the spectators. All over Europe the photoplay "Camille" is a sensaion and Americans are eagerly awaiting the release of these eels which are now in the control of the French-American ilm Company, which is rapidly disposing of State rights. This company also controls the great photoplay, "Sans ene," posed by Rejane.

S. S. HUTCHINSON BUYS WINTER HOME.

S. S. Hutchinson, president of The American Film Mfg. o., has just received the deed to one of the handsomest pieces of property in the El Cajon Valley, Southern California. The purchase was made while Mr. Hutchinson was n his visit to the Western studio, located at La Mesa, reently. The property is situated on Pasadena Avenue in the ieart of La Mesa's exclusive residence section and realizes n old wish of Mr. Hutchinson's that he might secure one f the really fine properties for which La Mesa is noted. eneral Nelson A. Miles, Madam Nordica, Owen Wister, Lillian Russell and many other notables are property holders and about La Mesa.

"THE MARGRAVE'S DAUGHTER" (Gaumont).

April 6th, will witness the release of another Gaumont hand colored picture, even better than the two former Independent releases of "The Christian Martrys" and "Heaven's Messenger." The forthcoming hand colored masterpiece is entitled, "The Margrave's Daughter," consisting of about 1,220 feet and depicting one of the stateliest court pageants and stories that has ever been projected on any screen. Particular interest has already been shown by those few theater proprietors who got a glimpse of this picture when the Gaumont representative demonstrated it recently in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and the South Atlantic Coast region.

"The Margrave's Daughter" reveals the story of a young girl whose love for a nobleman is strenuously opposed by her father, the margrave, a title of nobility corresponding to the French marquis. The two lovers, despite the father's disapproval, attempt to elope from the castle, only to be frustrated at the postern portal. The lover, after a combat with the margrave's knights on the bridge crossing the moat, is finally captured and condemned to decapitation after being adjudged guilty of treason. On the day of the execution, midst the elaborate ceremonies for which the days of chivalry and knighthood are renowned, the young nobleman and his father confessor are slowly led to the platform where the executioners, with their axes and the death-block are awaiting. The margrave, his courtiers and their retinues are in the box overhead prepared to witness the young nobleman's death. A surprise is in store when the priest and the proscribed one reveal their identity, the priest as the young lover, the doomed martyr as the margrave's daughter, she having changed clothes with her lover quite unknown to all. The margrave is baffled as they embracingly kneel side by side and lay their heads on the block together. The stay of execution is ordered and instead the ardent couple is proclaimed man and wife.

The revelation of the identity of the dark garbed priest and his doomed charge, comes as a complete surprise to all, forming one of the greatest dramatic climaxes ever accomplished. The whole picture throughout is of equal strength and quality, a fact which accounts for the eagerness displayed by the exhibitors in booking it. The unusual quality of its hand coloring will make an extra charge of $30 which barely meets the expenses incurred in the color process.

Scene from Gaumont's Hand-Colored Subject, "The Margrave's Daughter."

"THE BOARDING HOUSE HEIRESS" (Solax).

Betsy Older	Fannie Simpson
"Billy" Doolittle	Billy Quirk
Tom Dear	Darwin Karr
Flirting Marian	Marian Swayne

Fannie Simpson is featured in this "vaudeville act" in moving pictures. The conventional boarding house has been the scene of many peculiar, not to say ludicrous, occurrences. Plum puddings and the proverbial hash are not the only things that have made boarding houses famous.

Old Betsy Older, in this production, lives in a boarding house in which money-loving "Billy" Doolittle and wise Tom Dear are also unfortunate boarders. Poor Betsy loses her heart to both of these gentlemen.

Scene from "The Boarding House Heiress" (Solax).

Well, "Billy" and Tom try to stake her to each other, for they are both victims of Flirting Marian. Tom finally gets "Billy" to propose to Betsy, misleading him with a phantom legacy. "Billy" learns the truth of the heiress' real financial position and then leaves her before he starts on the honeymoon.

Poor old maids! They are so many of them who would like to be married, and yet cruel men proposeth not. Some there are who propose themselves when good old Leap Year comes around and some there are who save up enough money with which to buy a man. Fannie Simpson, as Betsy Older, tried to sandbag one into becoming her husband. This subject will be released March 13.

"THE MILLS OF GODS" (Nestor).

A well-acted and very interesting story, shown as told b an uncle to his niece in order to save her from a most un desirable woman companion, an adventuress. In the stor he himself is shown as in his youth and the adventuress als appears; she is shown up by it. The character of the ad venturess is unusual and, from this and from the fact that i is very well put over, the picture has a fresh and grippin interest.

The story takes the form of dream pictures, shown as be tween the curtains of a window. These are drawn apart t give a curtain for the scenes. It causes, for a moment, little confusion; one is apt to suppose that the window is door leading into another room and shows not memorie but pictures of contemporary doings. He will realize tha they are the uncle's story; but may not at once do so.

The adventuress is a sort of vampire of love. She neve can see two young people happy together, but she mus break in and in doing this she shows uncanny powers. Th man in every case, at her beck and call, leaves the girl o his real choice and follows her. If we had seen it only onc it hardly would have got across; but she accomplishes th same thing whenever she pleases.

The uncle was the first who was attracted by her awa from his sweetheart who killed herself. In the second cas he saves the young couple and now tells his niece the stor to save her. The story being finished the curtains clos
The uncle rises, lifts up the shade and opens a window. W see the adventuress turning at the gate as she walks gloomil away.

The picture will make a good feature, because of the u usual situation and also because it is well acted. It i clearly conducted for the most part. The photographs ar fine.

"THE DOUBLE TRAIL" (Nestor).

This picture, a melodrama, has an added interest whic comes from good acting and from fresh backgrounds. Ther are two brothers in it who both love the same girl, the war of their mother. The girl plainly likes both, but prefers th younger. He is adventurous, for instead of staying on th farm he takes a chance and starts out for Colorado. He also charitable, for when a tramp solicits his help he giv to him from his slender funds. This tramp becomes his con panion and we see them stealing a ride together on a sid door Pullman. While the younger brother sleeps, the tram steals his coat for the purse with its small change and jump
The unconscious sleeper goes on and soon drops out of th story for the time being.

The tramp and thief, however, in jumping from the movin freight falls and is found unconscious and on the point death by passing cowboys, who carry him to an inn an finding letters in the coat, telegraph to the elder brothe
When this man arrives he discovers that the man, now dea is not his brother. He keeps up the story of his brother death and brings home the evidence, the watch, purse an letters found in the coat. Some time passes and we find t elder brother pressing his suit on the girl. He finds it i cumbent because he learns that his brother has made go and is on the way home. The girl is still reluctant; yet seen on the point of giving in. In the midst of the conversati the younger brother walks in. This scene is handled ve conventionally. The girl hears his voice and falls into h arms.

The heroine's part does not demand much acting, but Mi
Victoria Forde fills the rôle very pleasingly. The brothe support her in it well. The photographs have a good de of quality. The story doesn't lack for interest and holds a tention. The picture will make a very fair feature.

AMERICAN TO RELEASE NEW SCENIC.

On Thursday, March 18, The American Film Mfg C emboldened by the success which greeted its scenic on Sout ern California released last December, will put out anoth scenic which promises to exceed its predecessor. "Wint Sports and Pastimes at Coronado Beach," is the title of t new picture which will contemplate some of those joyo winter sports such as hockey, swimming, boat racing, e
The film should prove popular if the success which greet the other is any criterion for judgment. The Americ public, tired of the long winter, longs for a touch of summ and turns instinctively toward those things which sugge summer. The picture covers some charming views of sun California that will interest those who have enjoyed t real experience quite as much as those less fortunate.

"A NEW LEASE ON LIFE" (Republic).

A film with a purpose this one may be called; it aims to teach and to entertain while teaching. Such a film deserves the commendation and encouragement that should be given to all moving pictures aiming to elevate the business or mankind. "A New Lease on Life" is a close range study of tuberculosis; in fact, through this medium we come closer to the dreaded "white plague" than we have yet been brought by moving pictures. Whether or not there be any immediate gain to the Republic people in making a picture of this kind, it is certain that the picture will have a long life and will still be going the rounds many months after vapid and ephemeral love story pictures released at the same time have trodden their brief and unlamented way into the oblivion of the top shelf of the junk exchange.

"A New Lease on Life" is a worthy running mate to a picture of like nature recently done by the Edison Company, namely, "The Awakening of John Bond." The latter picture was taken up by the medical fraternity with avidity. It received much favorable comment in the public press, much praise from health workers of all kinds, and is still doing duty. That "A New Lease on Life" will be another such picture there is no doubt. It really goes closer into the study of tuberculosis than the Edison picture and will give to the world a very clear idea of just what routine must be gone through by those who suffer from tuberculosis.

Scene from "A New Lease on Life" (Republic).

There is no doubt that there are many sufferers from the "white plague" who are inclined to cling to the ills they bear rather than flee to those they know not of. Having tuberculosis, they conceal their condition by self-delusion or otherwise, rather than go to a sanitarium, which they dread without knowing why. In their imagination they have conceived a tuberculosis sanitarium as a prison under another name, where all sorts of hardships are to be endured.

On this point "A New Lease on Life" will be of great service in showing a tuberculosis sanitarium exactly as it is, and may disabuse many kinds of chimerical ideas, because it shows quite plainly that such a sanitarium is not at all an unpleasant place to be, and is perhaps a much better place to live than most tuberculosis sufferers are accustomed to.

"A New Lease on Life" is interwoven with a story. At its opening we observe a youth in New York City "going the pace." Late hours, heavy drinking, over-eating and lack of sleep sap the vitality of a lively young man and leave him a prey to the ravages of the deadly microbe which finds a fertile soil in his semi-paralyzed nerve and muscular tissues. Incidentally in this picture, at the beginning, there is a new wrinkle in moving pictures—that of the "Gay White Way" by electric light. Most persons are aware of the practical impossibility of taking snapshot pictures at night. It is true that excellent night pictures by electric light have been made, but only by long exposure. In this case we see a moving picture by night of Broadway which is a thing we are quite certain has never been done before.

Reverses overtake the young man and he learns the lesson that a full purse brings many friends. Likewise its sequel, that New York is a hard place to live in with neither. He is obliged to join the army of the unemployed. Through exposure and his run-down condition he contracts tuberculosis. The sweetheart of his more prosperous days remains loyal and induces him to visit a physician. He is informed by the doctor of his condition and advised to go to Saranac Lake. The young man takes this advice and we next see him applying at the sanitarium for admission. From this point on we get an excellent idea of the workings of the New York State Sanitarium at Saranac Lake. We observe the various tests, which are extremely interesting, especially the microscopic tests that show tubercule bacilli in sputum in profuse numbers. The routine of the hospital is well done and we learn, on the whole, it is not such an unpleasant place to be. In one particular the film is especially authentic, as the hospital attendants and physicians play their own parts in the picture, doing as well, if not better, than experienced actors could do the work. The love story of the picture works itself out to a stisfactory conclusion along with a sub-motive, until the cure of the young man is complete. The picture deserves hearty commendation and we do not hesitate to extend it.

"THE SPANISH REVOLT OF 1836" (Kalem).

Kalem players, under the direction of Mr. George Melford, have produced an interesting picture based upon an incident of the early history of California in the days when it was under Spanish dominion. The interweaving of the stirring scenes of armed revolt with the delightful settings of nature that exist in Southern California has produced pleasing effects, which are further enhanced by good acting and photography.

According to the story the daughter of the Alcalde of Monterey, famed for her beauty, has many suitors, but is unable to find one to her liking. Finally a dashing young caballero comes along and determines to win her. About this time the fat old despot, who holds the position of Governor of the State, declares himself in the game and is turned down with scorn by the beautiful senorita. So incensed is he that he at once removes the Alcalde, her father, from office. This act stirs the young lover to start a revolt against the governor and, as he is thoroughly hated by the populace, the revolutionary movement soon gains strength.

Scene from "The Spanish Revolt of 1836" (Kalem).

Fearing for his own safety the governor causes the arrest of the Alcalde and holds him as hostage. This does not deter the insurgents from making an attack upon the residence of the governor and his forces are defeated after a pitched battle. The governor is captured, the Alcalde released and the young hero gets the girl.

A FILM PRESERVER.

One of the best ideas that has appeared in film preservation is a new treatment process known as "Cellukote." As the name implies, it is a thin deposit or coat of celluloid that is applied to positive films which preserves the emulsion side and keeps all dust and particles away from it. The transparent coating covers the emulsion, giving it a polish exactly like the smooth side. The great value of a treatment like this will be at once apparent to film exchanges, State right owners and exhibitors. The effect of this process will be to eliminate "rain-storms" and scratched film wherever it is used. The "Cellukote" Company is already in receipt of some very encouraging testimonial letters from some of the large feature film companies, among whom are the Monopol Film Company, Buffalo Bill & Pawnee Bill Film Company, Carnival Feature Film Company, Raising The Maine Film Company and others. The "Cellukote" advertisement appears on page 905 of this issue.

"Shamus O'Brien."

Famous Irish Hero Subject of an "Imp" St. Patrick's Day Picture.

The poem of "Shamus O'Brien" by the gifted author, J. S. La Fanu, is a favorite with Irishmen all over the world, because it crystallizes a desire that is deep down in the hearts of countless millions of Irishmen for the freeing of Ireland from official association with England; in other words, "Home Rule" for Ireland.

In the year 1798, Ireland was in a state of rebellion against England. The events of this period in Ireland are known as the great Irish Rebellion. Ireland was more or less united to Great Britain. She had long ago lost her king, but she cherished an ambition for her separate Parliament, separate government, separate nobility and everything. Members of the Irish aristocracy were concerned in the rebellion. The entire south of Ireland was in revolt against English rule. Irishmen died rather than submit to the dictates of English soldiers. Even to-day there is something of the old antipathy to English rule in the south of Ireland.

This sentiment has been successfully preserved and conserved in the south part of Ireland, so that for the last thirty years there has grown up in that part of Ireland the demand for what is called "Home Rule"; that is, government of themselves by themselves as distinct from English rule.

Dublin, the capital of Ireland, has its Parliament House; its judicature. The country has its own nobility and at the present time, the British government in London is seriously considering granting Ireland "Home Rule."

But unfortunately, however, the problem is not such a simple one as it appears. The north of Ireland wants to remain an integral part of Great Britain. There is something of a parallel here between the case of the United States of America over fifty years ago, and the case of Ireland to-day and in the year 1798.

The south of Ireland in 1798 wanted to secede from the United Kingdom. It wants to do so to-day. The north of Ireland then and now wants to hold to the Union. At the time of the American Civil War, the attempt of the South to secede gave opportunity for many displays of personal heroism. The South were fighting their brothers and they fought with all the bitterness of brothers.

Now then, we got some sort of an idea of the condition of things in Ireland in the year 1798 which the poem of "Shamus O'Brien" describes, and upon which the Imp drama of that name is built. The English soldiery were in possession of the country, and Shamus, otherwise James O'Brien, was a rebel against the government typified by the English soldiers, and the hearts of the people were with Shamus. No doubt the hearts of the English soldiers were also with him, but it was their duty to enforce law and order.

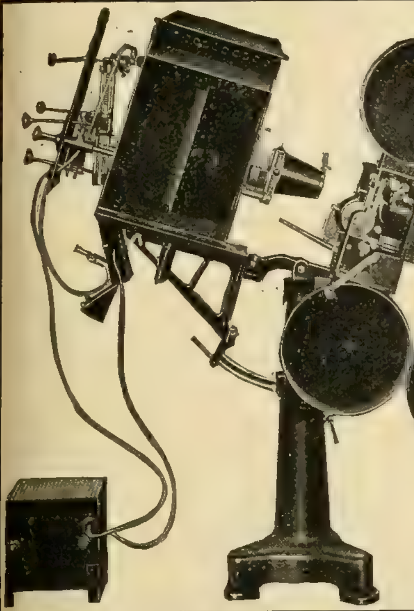
Shamus was a rebel—he was "agin" the government; he was a broth of a boy, with a lovable sweetheart. His friends liked him, the priest liked him; but, of course, he had an enemy in the shape of an informer, who gave Shamus away and caused him to be put in jail for the terrible crime of taking up arms against the British.

So Shamus was brought before the judge, tried and sentenced. The intercession of his old mother was unavailable. The judge, stern man, had to administer justice. The jury found Shamus guilty of high treason and for such an offense there was only one punishment: death by hanging, and the judge pronounced the sentence.

In fighting for his country, Shamus was fighting against his country's masters, the English, and the English judge condemned him to death. The final scene of all takes place on the scaffold. Shamus' arms are bound, the executor is present and so is good Father Malone below, to administer the last consolation of religion to Shamus.

Now Father Malone, the "soggarth aroon," was a human and humane man, and it's shrewdly to be suspected that while he was whispering ghostly counsel into the ear of Shamus, he unbound his fetters. Anyhow, Shamus makes one daring spring for liberty, leaps to the ground and, notwithstanding the hulla-

Scene from "Imp's" St. Patrick's Day Picture, "Shamus O'Brien."



As Exhibitors say "Years Ahead of Other Machines"

EASIEST TO HANDLE, THREAD and OPERATE
ABSOLUTELY FIREPROOF

Simplex THE PEER OF ALL PROJECTORS

No More Trouble With
CITY OFFICIAL INSPECTORS
If dealers misrepresent, send order to

SIMPLEX SALES AGENCY, 23 E. 14th St., New York

ESSANAY COMEDIES COMING.

Io relieve the evident dearth of comedy photoplays now the market, the Essanay Company has come to the rescue th nine great comedies which are all booked for the month March. Seven of them are from the Chicago studio, "the me of comedy hits," and two are screaming "Alkali" Ike bjects from the plenteous horn of G. M. Anderson. Who, iong film-fans, has not laughed himself sick at the droll ventures of Augustus Carney who portrays "Alkali?" And rk ye!—"Alkali" will further amuse you in two more icking Snakeville comedies in April! The fun-makers at e Chicago studio are busily engaged in making more splen- l laugh-producers which will appear at early dates. Stag- tion in comedies? Not so long as Essanay is in the field.

"FOR HER SAKE" (Great Northern).

The forthcoming release of the Great Northern Film mpany is a dramatic subject entitled, "For Her Sake." is beautifully photographed and delicately portrayed which ts help along a subject that is not so pleasing. The woman the case seems to have had a part. She is now happily rried and a beautiful little girl has blessed the union. is upon this happy situation that a former lover of the man injects himself. This fellow, a yachtsman, lacks the ace to take himself away, but persists in forcing his love on her. Though the woman struggles bravely against the mer lover's importunities, it is with difficulty that she thstands his pleading. The little girl happens along at e critical point, however, and a calamity is averted.

The climax comes when the husband departs on a business p and the old lover happens along during his absence. nding the woman alone he becomes more than ever intent. But the thought of her child, whose prayers she s just heard, saves the woman and, taking the man into e chamber, she shows him the sleeping child and tells him at it is over forever between them. By this time the lover alizes that it is useless for him to urge further and is out to depart when the voice of the woman's husband heard. He has missed his train and has returned home. ie following scenes are quite dramatic. The interloper eks to escape while the husband is suspicious of the state things and questions his wife closely. Finally, the old ver grabs a jewel case and hides behind a screen where e husband presently discovers him and, concluding that is but a common thief, permits him to escape in safety ich to the relief of the woman.

VITAGRAPH IN HIGH PLACES.

Cameramen and producers of the Vitagraph Company have en playing in high places. The other day, when President ift signed the official document which granted statehood Arizona, the Vitagraph folks were on the ground and it several beautiful scenes of the President and Mrs. Taft, gether with a host of White House and government notles. These pictures will make a Vitagraph feature soon to released.

KINEMACOLOR BREAKS RECORDS.

The first week of the Kinemacolor Durbar pictures at the New York Theater registered a gross business of $12,000. This is said to be the world's highest figure of receipts for a picture show. It is expected that the Durbar pictures will remain at the New York Theater for six weeks at least. If they have to move some other good theater will be secured.

PEOPLE'S AMUSEMENT COMPANY ACTIVE.

The People's Amusement Company of Portland, Oregon, has increased the seating capacity of its Arcade Theater, Portland, to 600 persons. The same company has taken a 20-year lease for a new house to seat 500 persons in the most fashionable resident section of Portland. It will be built at a cost of $20,000.

DIRECTOR ROBARDS HAPPY.

W. L. Robards, formerly director for the Nestor Company, but now with the Melies Company in California as general director, writes to the Moving Picture World to say that affairs are progressing finely with the Melies company at Santa Paula. He wishes to be remembered to his friends in the East.

POWERS WILL HAVE ST. PATRICK FEATURE.

St. Patrick's Day is to be celebrated by the Power's Motion Picture Company by the release of a well-known Irish drama, which is now in course of production. This feature film is to be released four days after the two-reel picture play presenting Mildred Holland in "The Power Behind the Throne." All lovers of the true Irish drama will, no doubt, look forward with the most pleasurable anticipations to the presentation of this film, which is being produced with that careful attention to detail which always marks the works of the Powers Company. This company has also other good things in store, the announcement of which will be made later on.

ALLEGED FILM THIEF CAUGHT.

Police detectives attached to the West 20th Street Station arrested one Victor Weiss, a clerk in the Weiss branch of the General Film Company, 219 Sixth Avenue, New York, Monday evening, February 26, on suspicion of stealing films from the office of the exchange. Upon searching Weiss at the Police Station about 2,000 feet of film was found wound about his body. According to the police Weiss is said to have admitted to taking the film and said to have sold it to Abraham Levi and Isaac Picker of 12 Union Square, New York. Weiss was locked up on the charge of grand larceny. Levi and Picker were jailed for receiving stolen goods. V. Weiss is not related to Alfred Weiss.

Song Slide Releases

Excelsior Slide Co.

"Two Lips"—Pub. by Gus Edwards Song Review Co., N.Y.
"Jerusalem Rag"—Pub. by Betts & Binner, Chicago, Ill.
"We Swear by Washington"—Pub. by Rodney Powers, N.Y.
"Come Down to Your Italian Romeo"—Pub. by Gus Edwards Song Review Co., N. Y.
"Nothing to Do Till To-morrow"—Pub. by Joe Morris Music Co.

DeWitt C. Wheeler

"Love Me When the Lilies Bloom Again"—Pub. by Alexander Pub. Co., Chicago.
"Dancing Dan, the Ragtime Battling Man"—Pub. by F. A. Miller.
"As Long as the Band Will Play"—Pub. by M. Witmark & Sons.
"Honey Dear"—Pub. by Jos. M. Daly, Boston.
"Daddy"—Pub. by J. H. Remick & Co.
"I Like Your Apron and Your Bonnet and Your Little Quaker Gown"—Pub. by J. H. Remick & Co.

A. L. Simpson, Inc.

"A Wee Little Drop o' the Cruiskeen Lawn"—Pub. by J. Fred Helf Pub. Co.
"Moontime Is Spoontime (When You're with the Girl You Love)"—Pub. by J. H. Aufderheide & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.
"In Bamboo Land"—Pub. by J. H. Aufderheide & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.
"Drifting in Dreams With You"—Pub. by J. H. Aufderheide & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.
"Heart of Gold"—Pub. by Simpson, N. Y.
"Go Find a Sweetheart from the Emerald Isle"—Pub. Shapiro, New York City.
"Arrah! Come In Out of the Rain, Barney McShane'. Pub. by J. Fred Helf Co., New York.
"I Fondly Dream, Dear One, of You"—Pub. by Simps New York.
"A Dream of a Garden and You"—Pub. by Ideal Mu Pub. Co., New York.
"I Am Lonesome Without You, My Dear"—Pub. by J. Reinhorn, New York.

Scott & Van Altena.

"Remember Me to My Old Gal"—Pub. by Harold Rossi Music Pub. Co.
"Italian Eyes"—Pub. by Daly Music Pub. Co., Boston.
"That Daffydill Rag"—Pub. by Joe Morris & Co.
"Ephraham Jones' Brass Band"—Pub. by Leo Feist.
"'Neath the Mississippi Moon"—Pub. by Geo Mey Music Co.
"Swaying Harmony"—Pub. by Chas. K. Harris.
"I'm Looking for a Girl to Take My Old Girl's Place" Longbrake & Edwards.
"It Must Be Love"—Pub. by Geo. Meyer Music Co.

Levi & Co.

"The Gaby Glide"—Pub. by Shapiro.
"My Marguerite"—Pub. by Shapiro.
"He Never, Never Said Good-Bye"—Pub. by Shapiro.
"You're Just the Girlie I Adore"—Pub. by Shapiro.

Niagara Slide Co.

"One Kind Word"—Pub. by Burdick.
"If I Knew"—Pub. by Burdick.
"Knight of the Road"—Pub. by Burdick.

The Slides that Please the Eyes
SCOTT & VAN ALTENA
Special Slides for Scientific Advertising Purposes
59 Pearl Street New York City

FILMS FOR RENT
6 Reels per week........ $8.00 12 Reels per week........ $14.00
18 Reels per week........ 17.00 21 Reels per week....... 20.00
Lithographs and Songs Free—Express one way. We buy and sell Second-hand Outfits.
Allowances on Old Outfits toward payment of new.
Address Department A.
AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO.
107 N. Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois.

SCENARIOS WANTED
Indian, Military, Pioneer, Cowboy, Historick, for our two reel feature films. Best prices paid. Send scenarios to:
FRED J. BALSHOFER, BISON PACIFIC COAST STUDIO
1719 Allesandro St., Edendale, Los Angeles, California

Pat. Appl'd for
OPERATORS' EMERGENCY TERMINAL
FOR MOVING PICTURE LAMPS
Quick relief in case of accident to regular terminal. Connects direct to carbon. Receives No. 6 wire including insulation and pointed thumb screw makes contact. Simple, substantial and durable. Prepaid to any address 75c each
PRESTO EMERGENCY CLAMP CO., Box 264, Syracuse, N. Y.

FILMS FOR SALE OR RENT
One Thousand Reels, Independent Films, for Sale. Write for prices and lists. We can furnish you with the best films service at the lowest rates. Write today for rates.
THE MOTION FILM CO., 17 OPERA PLACE CINCINNATI, OHIO

The Leading Topic of the Moving Picture Industry
"Spiegel's Motion Slides
WRITE FOR ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE. DEPT W
AMERICAN MOTION SLIDE CO.
611 First National Bank Building CHICAGO, ILL

PURE AIR
is as necessary in your theatre as Fire Exits. The public demand sanitary conditions. On receipt of your remittance for $1.80 we will ship four quarts of our Aroma Foam Perfumed Disinfectant,
Two quarts each of Geranium and Luxuran, and will include larg compressed air sprayer of sufficient capacity for any theater.
SANITARY SERVICE CORPORATION,
82 Wall Street, New York City.
Address all communications to Laboratory,
1293 FULTON STREET, BROOKLYN, N. Y

ILG ELECTRIC VENTILATING COMPAN
Manufacturers of Ventilating Apparatu and Experts in Theatre Ventilation
160 Whiting Street :: Chicag

For Sale
Will sacrifice rapid addressing machin motor driven, with capacity for addressing about 5,000 per hour, together with 6,500 addresses of live Independent Moving Picture Exhibitors throughout the United States.
Manufacturer, c/o Moving Picture World
NEW YORK CITY

SATURDAY, MARCH 16---977 FEET
DRAMA DAY

MATERNITY

A stirring film that portrays the nobility of motherhood and the depths of love that the female parent extends its young and helpless offspring.

STRONG — MASTERFUL — TOUCHING

TUESDAY, MARCH 12---928 FEET
COMEDY DAY

CALINO AND HIS BOARDERS and WHAT'S IN A NAME

Be sure to get this split in order to see another Lion Picture.

Thirteen full grown lions furnish the comedy for this remarkable Gaumont hit. Decidedly out of the ordinary.

GAUMONT INDEPENDENT

Scene from Maternity

The GAUMONT WEEKLY

The biggest factor in the independent cause, because we are handling it in the only right way. GET IT NOW!

Scene from Calino and His Boarders

Saturday
March 23
961 Feet

An Old Romance

Tuesday
March 19
923 Feet

Jimmie, Temperance Reformer and Game Shooting From Aeroplane

FINAL MOMENT TO ORDER

TUESDAY, MARCH 5th—
Jimmie Saves the Situation and The Wonderful Adventures of Herr Munchhausen
Saturday, Mar. 9th—THE TRUST 1960 ft. Feature

Gaumont

GAUMONT CO., AGENTS
FLUSHING, N. Y.

Gaumont

COMING!!!

THE MOST STUPENDOUS HAND-COLORED SPECTACLE EVER FILMED

Saturday, April 6——About 1200 Feet——Hand Colored

$30.00 Extra for Hand Coloring

A picturesque and interesting story dealing with the days of chivalry and the golden hours when knighthood flourished supreme.

$30.00 Extra for Hand Coloring

THE MARGRAVE'S DAUGHTER

EUROPE and ASIA bowed in homage to this hand colored masterpiece. The London Times credited it with being a series of oil paintings replete with interest, because of the noble story that grips the whole theme.

A Classic in all its Splendor ! A Big Box-Office Booster !

SCENE

HOMER'S

$200,000

STATIS

A full set of Slides and complete Lecture free, making a two hour entertainment

Maine
New Hampshire
Vermont
Massachusetts
Connecticut
Rhode Island

Virginia
North Carolina
South Carolina
Georgia
Florida
Alabama
Mississippi
Louisiana
Arkansas
Tennessee

Colorado and Wyoming

Washington
Idaho
Montana

Oregon

MAKE YOUR BID—QUICK—BY WIRE!

ROM

ODYSSEY"

IRODUCTION

OW SOLD

ED. H. BRENNAN
1402 Broadway
New York, N. Y.

TATES
XHIBITION
ORPORATION
JAKE WELLS,
Gen'l Manager
1482 Broadway
New York City, N. Y.

nor Option

E. EMMS
Box 1128
Seattle, Wash.

ESSER COHEN
Portland, Ore.

ONOPOL FILM CO., 145 West Forty-fifth Street
NEW YORK, N. Y.

SEE THE POINT?

Our Reputation, Established Years Ago, Is Your Guarantee of

TOP-NOTCH EXCELLENCE

The Reputation of The Tournament Film Co.
Is Back of Every Feature Film We Produce

WHEN YOU CONSIDER

purchasing State Rights for any Special Feature Film, it will pay you big to deal with a film Company which has

An Established Reputation

"The Great American Round Up and The 1911 Cheyenne Celebration" are both TOP-NOTCH productions

We Have a Few State Rights to Sell to the Wise Men Who Can
"SEE THE POINT"

Communicate at once with THE TOURNAMENT FILM CO. TOLEDO OHIO

The Nihilist's Conspiracy

IN TWO REELS

OUR SECOND FEATURE

GOING FAST

WITHOUT DOUBT THE MOST SENSATIONAL FILM RELEASED THIS SEASON

A Special Feature of Features

FINE LINE OF ELABORATE ADVERTISING

"VICTIM OF THE MORMONS"

WAS A RECORD BREAKER

Only a Few More States Left

OUR THIRD FEATURE

THE CALL OF A WOMAN

SOON READY FOR DISTRIBUTION

"CALL OF A WOMAN"

EXHIBITORS EVENTUALLY YOU

WILL RUN OUR FEATURES WHY NOT START IN TO FILL YOUR THEATRE AS WELL AS YOUR POCKET, WRITE TO US WE WILL BE PLEASED TO GIVE YOU NAME OF EXCHANGE HANDLING OUR FEATURES IN YOUR TERRITORY

All Our Productions Are Copyrighted

Great Northern Special Feature Film Company
No. One Union Square, New York

BRIDGE

That "Sinful Society" game, forms the theme for a Film Drama with a telling moral and many original and startling situations, massive settings, a large cast of able players and many striking effects in lighting, photography and coloring, make this offering a noteworthy one.

"BRIDGE" is Released Tuesday, March 12th

Posters and Photos Now Ready

Scene from "BRIDGE"

COMING THURSDAY, MARCH 14th

A Split-Reel Special

THE KODAK CONTEST

A comedy which involves a mad race for prizes in a picture contest. SHORT AND SNAPPY.

SHRINER'S PARADE AT ROCHESTER, N. Y.

A glittering, imposing spectacle beautifully photographed. Your local Shriners were there. BOOK THIS FILM.

COMING SUNDAY, MARCH 17th

Two Paris Comedies on one reel

The World's Champion and* Willie's First Cigar

GET ON OUR BIG LIST

ECLAIR FILM CO., FORT LEE N. J.
Sales Company Sole Agents

EXHIBITOR'S "BUSINESS BOOSTERS"

Feature Posters, Banners, Heralds For All Feature Films

Licensed and Independent. Something new every week

EIGHT SHEETS 75c. THREE SHEETS 30 and 35c.
ONE SHEET POSTERS 15c.

(Add 1c. per sheet for postage if ordered sent by mail.)

Have in stock the following: The Danites, The Diamond "S" Ranch, Bell of Penance, Under Burning Skies, You Remember Ellen, Spartan Mother, War on the Plains, Indian Massacre, Justice of the Desert, Trapped by Wireless, Corsican Brothers, The Little Black Box, Princess of the Hills, Battle of Pottsburg Bridge, Cinderella, Jack and the Bean Stalk, Arrah-Na-Pogue, Colleen Bawn, Two Orphans, Vanity Fair, Uncle Tom's Cabin, Pathe Weekly, Dr. Jykell & Mr, Hyde, East Lynn, and all feature subjects for past or future releases.

CLASSY DISPLAY BANNERS—3 x 12 ft., lithographed in 4 colors, on heavy muslin (with eyelets in corners for hanging), for any release, Licensed and Independent. $1.00 EACH.

These banners are works of art, and as "BUSINESS BOOSTERS" they cannot be equalled, as they cater to both sides of the street.

HERALDS—The most successful money-getters ever devised for Moving Picture Theatres.

Every Manager who has used them is loud in his praise of these heralds as business-bringers.

We have standing orders from many managers for every feature release.

These heralds are printed on good book paper, 8 x 11 inches, with illustration and description of film.

We sell them blank, $2.00 for first 1,000 and $1.75 for all subsequent 1,000 lots, or we furnish them printed with name of Theatre, Date, etc., on first 1,000, $2.75; subsequent 1,000, $2.25.

Send a trial order.

PHOTO PLAYER POSTERS—1-Sheet posters (in colors) of Maurice Costello, Florence Turner, John Bunny, Alice Joyce, Andy, and other popular favorites, 20c. each.

SOUVENIR POST CARDS of all popular photo players, $4.00 per 1,000. They are great money-getters for Photo Play shows.

HANDSOME COLORED PICTORIAL ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES of every description, such as "Good Night," "Welcome," "New Pictures To-morrow," etc., 35c. each.

REMITTANCE must accompany order. Remit by postal or Express Money Order or New York Draft. No personal checks or C.O.D.

PHOTO PLAY ADVERTISING & SPECIALTY CO.
Main Office—121-123 4th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

BRANCH OFFICES:

Century Bldg., Cleveland, Ohio
26 W. Naghten St., Columbus, Ohio
Equity Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

A word from the Orpheum Theatre, Elm Grove, W. Va.: "The Majestic pictures are just what the people want. The comedies are delightful—all are clean and wholesome, something that makes you feel perfectly satisfied and better after seeing them."

THE MAJESTIC

Is famous for its high-class comedies—they are the most difficult to produce, but it is our specialty, because they are just what the people want.

Two Releases Each Week

SUNDAY AND TUESDAY

Sunday, March 10th

"THE CLOSED BIBLE"—An intensely interesting drama in which circumstantial evidence plays an important part—the old-fashioned family Bible plays a still more important part. Strong story, perfectly acted, beautiful photography.

Tuesday, March 12th

"THE UNWILLING BIGAMIST"—Another high-class comedy full of sensation, a wonderful double exposure effect showing the unwilling "bigamist" shaking hands with himself when free from his difficulty.

Plead with your exchange for the above pictures as well as for "STRIP POKER," released Feb 27th, and "BEST MAN WINS," released March 5th—two high-class comedies.

Sunday, March 17th, "THE BETTER INFLUENCE"
COMEDY DRAMA

Tuesday, March 19th, "LEAP YEAR"
HIGH CLASS COMEDY

Get Two Majestics Each Week

The Majestic Motion Picture Company
145 W. 45th Street
New York City
(Sold Through the Sales Co.)

ELECTRA
·TRADE MARK·

ELECTRA
·TRADE MARK·

STANDARD OF CARBON QUALITY

ELECTRA

TRADE MARK

PINK LABEL

THE BEST PROJECTOR CARBON

IMPORTED SOLELY BY

HUGO REISINGER

11 Broadway New York City

ELECTRA
·TRADE MARK·

ELECTRA
·TRADE MARK·

LICENSED Film Stories

EDISON.

THE BABY (Mar. 12).—It is Bank Holiday in London and the concert halls are filled to their utmost capacity. The particular hall herein illustrated is filled with costermongers, and Jack and Lily Tweedles and their baby are seated at a table. Jack, searching for a waiter, enters the adjoining room, forgets his wife and baby and joins a party of dancers. While Lily patiently awaits his return, a sightseer, Mr. Moreton, seats himself at her table and enters into a conversation. At this point Jack returns, flies into a jealous rage and drags his wife from the place.

We next see Jack and Lily with the baby at the railroad station, where they become separated in the crowd rushing through the gates. While vainly searching for her costermonger husband, she again meets Mr. Moreton, who happens to be bound in the same direction and who kindly escorts her to the railroad carriage. Upon reaching her destination he again assists her by holding the baby while she steps out of the carriage. The other occupants in their mad rush to exit, block his way; the door slams in his face and he is left with the baby in his arms while the train lurches on.

He gets out at the next station and wends his way to a public house where he leaves the baby while he goes in search of the costermonger's abode. Meanwhile Lily finds her husband and amid tears and sobs acknowledges the loss of their baby. Jack angrily commands her to find it, and then he goes to the public house to drown his sorrow. There, to his surprise, he finds the baby in the arms of the landlady. He attempts to seize the baby and is about to be forcibly ejected when Mr. Moreton enters with Lily. Harsh words almost develop into a row and when Jack is once more in possession of his wife and baby he leaves.

HER POLISHED FAMILY (Mar. 13).—After spending two years in a boarding school, Emily Sprouts returns to her country home and discovers that her family lacks polished manners. The impending visit of her city beau, Edward Easton, is perhaps the primary cause of her fault finding. In due time Emily meets Easton and fetches him to the house. In the meantime the Sprouts family have donned their best Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes and are assembled in the parlor when the honored guest arrives. He is introduced to the family, but the exaggerated politeness with which he is met by the family amazes him to a degree of speechlessness. In the dining-room the fun continues until the limit is reached, compelling Easton to depart. Easton is apprised of the real situation, returns to the house and is welcomed in the good old-fashioned way.

FOR THE COMMONWEALTH (Mar. 15).—A young man, unskilled and out of work, deserts his family and upon being arrested for his desertion, assaults an officer and for this last offense, is sent to state prison, while his wife tries to support herself and her child by shirt making.

The enforced idleness of confinement is so terrible to the convicts that the warden, out of common humanity, asks the governor to sanction some employment for them. They are accordingly taught shirt making and thus the husband in prison becomes the competitor of his wife outside its walls. Prison labor is cheap and of course it puts her out of business and she is forced to take refuge in the state poor house. Meanwhile the governor receives a protest from the girl shirt makers who have been thrown out of employment by his new plan for the convicts and he is in a quandry as to what to do. Upon visiting the poor house, however, he is informed by a little child, who happens to be the child of our particular friend, the convict, that she needs new shoes and he finds that the state appropriation is not sufficient to afford these things for its own institutions. A solution of his great problem thus suggests itself to him and the change is accordingly made at the state prison, the men being taught the trade of shoe making and the product of their labor being used entirely by the state and not in the open market in competition with free labor.

Of course, by this change our hero becomes a skilled laborer instead of merely "a man of muscle," and when he makes his exit from the penitentiary he is able to apply at the same shoe factory from which we first saw him turned away, and get employment. The picture closes with a reunion of the little family.

ECLIPSE.

THE SENTRY ON GUARD (Mar. 13).—Napoleon's life was miraculously saved many times during his career, but never in a more remarkable manner than this: The fascinating Countess Katiuska, acting under instructions from the Austrian authorities, cleverly obtains the Emperor's promise to meet her one evening at a certain house, where she has planned to assassinate him.

Napoleon orders that a sentry be stationed before the house, with instructions not to let anyone enter, under penalty of death.

When the Emperor himself appears, however, at the appointed hour, he is not recognized by the raw young sentry, and is forbidden to enter; somewhat nettled, he is compelled to forego the visit.

Soon afterward, the Emperor is told the true purpose of the countess, and orders her immediate arrest.

Later, when the young sentry learns of his mistake, he is nearly paralyzed with fear, and is equally astonished to have saved the Emperor's life. Napoleon praises his conduct greatly, and orders that he receive a sergeant's stripes.

KALEM.

A SPARTAN MOTHER (Mar. 11).—At the first call for volunteers Col. Mayre recruits a regiment, to fight under the Confederate flag. Two of the youngest recruits were his two sons, Joe and Frank.

In the second battle of Bull Run, Col. Mayre and his two sons are killed. The news of their death brings Bobby, the youngest son, home from college. Promptly on his return Bobby enlists. Thus Mrs. Mayre gives her last son to the cause.

A few days after Bobby's enlistment a big battle is fought near the Mayre home. The bursting shells set fire to the grand old house, forcing Mrs. Mayre and her servants to take refuge in one of the negro cabins. Confederate recruits are brought up, of which Bobby is one of the number. The roar of cannon and the bursting of shells cause the raw recruits to waver, and Bobby with fear in his heart, attempts to leave the rear ranks, but is driven into line by his commanding officer. As the regiment starts on the double quick to the firing line, Bobby, seeing an opportunity, drops out of the ranks and runs for shelter. Bursting into the little cabin he finds his mother with a few old relics she has been able to save from the burning home. Cringing with fear, the half crazed boy begs his mother to hide him, but the Spartan mother, handing him a Confederate flag, drives him out of the cabin at the point of a revolver, and orders him to take his place with the defenders. A delirium of fear takes possession of Bobby, and he rushes forward, heedless of where he is going.

The retreating soldiers seeing the boy running toward the battle field with the flag, rally and return to the fight. This action causes the tide of battle to turn, the Union army eventually retiring from the field leaving the Confederates victorious.

The hospital patrol, marching over the field looking for wounded soldiers, finds Bobby lying dead with the flag over his shoulder.

The Spartan mother who watches Bobby's flight from the cabin, and sees the result, kneels and gives thanks to heaven that her last boy has been of service to the cause.

A VICTIM OF CIRCUMSTANCE (Mar. 13).—Richard Worthington on the way to work sees a thug knock a man down and apparently rob him. Rushing to the aid of the victim he is arrested for the crime. He is tried before a jury, found guilty, and sentenced to the convict camp.

While working in the turpentine woods, under charge of a keeper, he is seen by Meg of the Everglades, who shows sympathy for the poor convict. The following Sunday morning word is passed around between the convicts that an attempt will be made to escape. At the opportune time one of the keepers at the gate is assaulted and fifteen of the convicts, Worthington among the lot, escape to the Everglades.

Worthington is successful in eluding the bloodhounds and reaches a lonely hut in the Everglades, which proves to be the home of Meg and her father, where he successfully hides for two weeks, resulting in a strong friendship springing up between the convict and Meg. Becoming careless, Worthington goes outside of the hut to enjoy a smoke. He is seen by some of the guards from the convict camp and is arrested.

A few weeks later Red Lopers, for whose crime Worthington is arrested, confesses. Worthington is immediately discharged and exonerated from all blame.

Although his good name is restored and he is back with his mother, Worthington finds something is missing. His happiness is not complete, and he soon realizes that unconsciously he has fallen in love with the girl of the Everglades, who showed such practical sympathy for the poor unfortunate. Leaving his home, he goes to the little cabin in the woods, where he tells Meg of his love, and they agree to start a new life together.

THE BELLE OF NEW ORLEANS (Mar. 15).—Comte de Breard, an impoverished nobleman, is in love with Delaphine, daughter of the rich George Huguet, but the young woman is not impressed by the comte's wooing, although his suit is favored by her father.

In order to replenish his purse, Comte de Breard tries his hand at cards, but loses to a mysterious stranger, who had previously won from quite a number of the club members.

The next day, Delaphine, while out riding, drops a pearl necklace. It is found by the stranger, who returns it to the lady and promptly falls in love with her. He is introduced to Delaphine's f ier and receives an invitation to attend the G len Fete, to be held the following day.

Comte de Breard discovers the attachment le has sprung up between Delaphine and the stra er. In a spirit of mean revenge, he denounces the w- comer before the guests, stating that he a common gamester, which results in the str ier being ordered from the place.

Delaphine does not believe the charges de against her lover. An elopement is planned nd they are happily married. The father and he comte hear of the elopement and follow in pu it. but arrive too late to prevent the ceremony. ey are greeted by the daughter and the stranger, bo now discloses his identity by announcing th he "is no common gamester, but the comte de Charmon."

ESSANAY.

THE RANCH WIDOWER'S DAUGHTERS ur. 12).—Old Perkins, a ranchman, has a bev of pretty daughters, ranging in age from five rs up to twenty. Perkins will not permit any e- making between the girls and the cowboys, the ardent of whom is "Alkali" Ike. "Alkali" es Jennie, and the other boys each have their n- dividual sweetheart. Perkins drives into town ne day with his daughters and while he is bu in the general store, the boys capture the girls, nd soon a series of tete-a-tetes are under hea y. Perkins discovers the situation, and leads al his daughters back home by the ears. The boys w arrange to elope with the girls. Under cove of darkness, the various elopements begin, an all the girls get safely away with their beaus e pt "Alkali" and Jennie. Jennie has just sent in back up on the roof of the ranch-house porcl or her luggage when old Perkins appears on the in his night-clothes and carrying a shot n. "Alkali" is quickly chased to the tall timber. es Perkins loads Jennie into a rig and dashes w ly up the road toward the parson's house. He ar es just in time to be too late, for his daughters re all married and he is forced to wryly give m his blessing, while miserable Jennie sits alor in the rig and blubbers for her lost "Alkali."

A FLURRY IN FURNITURE (Mar. 14).—Ji le Throp, son of wealthy parents, loves pretty Ma ry Barclay. Pa Throp disapproves, refuses to co nt to the marriage and finally goes abroad with is wife, leaving Jimmie in the beautiful home ut with no money. Jimmie, not to be outdone, w has a brilliant idea. He secures a loan of 50 on his father's furniture, fires the butler, ma es Marjory, and gets a job. Soon his good fo e changes, and the family furniture is remove y the dealer for Jimmie's lapse of payments on he loan, leaving the Throp mansion barren of r- nishings. Jimmie now rents a cosy flat, and, he morning, tells Marjory to go downtown and y some new furniture. Marjory's mother now p- pears and tells Marjory to buy the new furn re and charge it up to her as a wedding pre t. Marjory goes to the furniture store, orders e furniture and it is sent up in the van. About is time old Throp and his wife return from Eu e and are horrified to find their house minus e furniture. Perplexed, they set out for a h l- see a rooms for rent sign on the door of a t- building, enter and are confronted by Mar y. They are about to leave when Jimmie blows n, old Throp suddenly recognizes the new furnitur s his own, Marjory having bought it unawares. d matters are getting hot when Jimmie introd s his wife, they finally prevail on the old folk to join them at dinner, forgiveness is granted d happiness reigns once more.

THE MADMAN (Mar. 15).—A young man, fined in an insane asylum, believes he is a gr actor, and that his aged father is his worst en y. The asylum authorities humor him in his delu and provide him with wigs and theatrical mak p with which to indulge in his whim. One da e overpowers a guard, strips the man of his clo s, dons them and makes his escape. He goes dir y to his home, finds his father absent, makes u to resemble him and thus masquerades until the suit from the asylum causes him to escape A thrilling chase follows. The madman bolts in military balloon camp where an ascension is a to be made and, as the baloon is cut loose, he g hold of the basket and soars up with the aero who, thinking him a friend, tries to assist him to t'e basket. Waiting his opportunity the mad n suddenly grapples with the balloonist and a thri g fight in the clouds ensues, ending with the aero casting the madman off to his death hundreds feet below.

THE BANDIT'S CHILD (Mar. 16).—Tom F ing, a Western bandit, and his pal, Morgan, to hold up the stage. Fleming dispatches Mo to town to inform him when the stage lea . Fleming now receives a letter from his wife East, in which she tells him their little girl and she pray every night that he will al remain an honest, faithful husband and father. letter causes Fleming to determine to reform when Morgan returns, he tells of his decision d they part. Fleming now vainly tries to ob work, but is always recognized and ordered Disgusted and desperate, he resolves to go to outlawry and hold up the coming stage. cealing himself beside the trail with his rifle waits grimly. Meanwhile the stage breaks d at Diversey Parkway and Sheffield Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

THE SYLVIA THEATRE

s opened February 17th, 1912. This little theatre
s a proscenium of 12'6" x 16'2", shows a picture 6" x 14'3" with a plastic relief border of 12". Lens s an elevation of 11' above stage floor with a throw 53', and is equipped with a

Perfection Concave Screen" hich was installed complete with plastic relief border $150.

The following letter from the owner and manager
ls the rest of the story:

Chicago, Feb. 24th, 1912.

ventors Specialty Mfg. Co.,
401 Ashland Block, Chicago.
ntlemen:—

You know that my idea was to spend as little as pos-le for a curtain. I changed my mind, however, in gard to this upon investigation.

After a full examination into the merits of all screens, was convinced that the Perfection Concave Screen s the best screen on the market and placed my order
th you.

Gentlemen, permit me to say that I am delighted with result. Until I had this screen installed in my house, did not know what your screen really could do for r business. I have played to packed houses ever since opening. My front side seats now sell as readily those in the center of the house, although at first my trons fought shy of them. I claim that I am present-the best pictures in Chicago, thanks to the Perfecn Concave Screen. There is absolutely no distortion size or perspective.

If I buy the other theatre, rest assured I will install e of your screens. I would not use any other even same were given to me.

Yours truly,

F. Wertheimer

We can satisfy you as well as the above purchaser. Write for information nventors Specialty Mfg. Co.

I ASHLAND BLOCK CHICAGO

Consider American Film As An Investment

FILM THAT CAN BE RENTED TO A LARGER NUMBER OF THEATRES MUST CONSTITUTE A BETTER BUY THAN ANY OTHER.

EASTMAN raw stock, chemically treated, has from 25% to 50% added to its life—a material saving to any exchange seeking to obtain the best results from its purchases.

AMERICAN FILM costs no more than any other. The good, bad and indifferent are shuffled together and the price is uniform. Hence, it's up to you, to your business judgment to SELECT and DEMAND the BEST.

Not only does AMERICAN film wear better and last longer but also possesses those intrinsic merits essential to the really successful film—

The Story Photography
California Backgrounds Pantomime

are Features given especial care in all AMERICAN productions

COMING AMERICANS

"THE BROKEN TIES"

(Release Thursday, March 7. W. Drama. Length, 1,000 Ft.)

A story old in theme but handled from a new and novel angle. Distinctly Western in atmosphere, and touching deeply the chord of pity, this picture will prove a welcome addition to any program.

"AFTER SCHOOL"

(Release Monday, March 11. W. Drama. Length, 1,000 Ft.)

A winner. The tale of a glib traveling salesman and a confiding Western miss. A strong, thoroughly entertaining, well acted bit of drama you are certain to enjoy.

"A BAD INVESTMENT"

(Release Thursday, March 14. W. Farce-Drama. 1,000 Ft.)

How a wayward son cut several eye teeth in a mining stock deal and helped his wise but not infallible dad to do likewise. An enjoyable, thoroughly pleasing picture with a laugh in every foot.

"FULL VALUE"

(Release Monday, March 18. W. Drama. Length, 1,000 Ft.)

A pretty stenographer, beset by fellow clerks and employer, chooses by means of an odd real estate deal between them. Interesting, with an odd twist to the plot, this film will amuse and delight. Don't miss it.

The American Film Mfg. Co.
BANK FLOOR, ASHLAND BLOCK. CHICAGO, ILL.

[illegible] in the confusion, wanders away [illegible] The snap of a twig causes [illegible] suddenly whirl with leveled gun to [illegible]!' Through a locket about her neck he recognizes her as his own child and has her [illegible] arms when his wife, who is looking for the little one, comes upon them, recognizes her [illegible] and there is a joyful reunion just as the stage rattles by and Fleming silently offers up a [illegible] of thanksgiving for his deliverance from further outlawry.

VITAGRAPH.

FIRST WOMAN JURY IN AMERICA (Mar. 11).
A young California newspaper editor is arrested. At his trial he has the privilege of a male or female jury. He chooses a female panel. Among those drawn and selected are Priscilla Simpkins, a spinster, and Matilda Jones, a suffragette. The young scribe knows his attractiveness will appeal to the jury. Both Priscilla and Matilda try to win his attention. After the case is given to the twelve women, they retire to the jury room for deliberation. They are all decided that the accused is not guilty but Priscilla and Matilda insist upon being the forewoman of the jury, bringing about a squabble.

The deputy sheriff enters the jury room and brings about a reconciliation between the two "scrappers." He leads them into the court room. Priscilla makes known their verdict of "not guilty." As the editor advances toward Matilda, she clasps him in her arms while he winces under the ordeal. The judge raps for order and the sheriff politely bows the jury out of the court room, after the judge has dismissed the prisoner.

THE FIVE SENSES (Mar. 12).—Hearing is expressed by showing the performances of different musicians and the effect caused upon the hearer. In the exercise of the sense of smell, the delightful odor of a sweet-scented bouquet causes a most beaming and expansive smile on the face of the smeller as he inhales its perfume. Quite different is the effect on the sense of smell when he brings his olfactory organ into close proximity with a limburger cheese.

Seeing is decidedly portrayed by the sudden opening of the eyes as he sees the symmetrical outlines and beautiful curves of the neck and shoulders of their fair owner. But what a change when she turns around and he sees her face!

The sense of touch is depicted with a strong sense of the humorous. When the susceptible subject is approached by an impecunious imposter who "touches" him for a five-spot, the cheerful giver is pleased with himself. He soon changes his pleased expression to one of anger and disgust when he looks from the window and gets a glimpse of the object of his charity coming out of a saloon with a jag.

Taste is pleasingly and unmistakably shown. A cute little girl gives a taste of her ice-cream to Mr. Marshall P. Wilder. Another little girl asks for some and is refused. While the two participants in the delicacy are not looking, she empties some mustard into it, and the next spoonful has a different taste, with very different consequences.

A STORY OF THE CIRCUS (Mar. 12).—Kenneth, a little acrobat and trapeze performer in a circus, forms a very strong attachment for one of the performing elephants. While doing a double trapeze act with his father, the little fellow falls from the trapeze, sustaining severe injuries. He is taken to the hospital tent. The elephant, longing for the boy's company, breaks his chains, goes to the bedside of the little fellow and affectionately caresses him with his trunk. The young performer is at once aroused and there is a pronounced improvement in his condition. The faithful beast is allowed to visit the boy every day until he is well again.

Kenneth is left a cripple for life but is enabled to perform in the ring with the elephant. One day, while they are performing together, a fire breaks out in the tent, and Kenneth being unable, because of his lameness, to escape, his good friend, the elephant, rescues him and carries him to safety.

MRS. 'ENRY HAWKINS (Mar. 13).—Noah Clayton, an old coster, who has made a bit of money, lives with his daughter Liza. He is very cranky and very gouty. Henry Hawkins, a young coster, and Bill Brown, a teacher of boxing, and an ex-pugilist, are both in love with Liza. Old Clayton favors Bill, because he is well off. Liza likes Henry, and they meet down near the old church and do their love-making. Bill lays siege to Liza, offering her presents, which she refuses. At last he offers to take her to a music hall and she yields and goes with him. There they are seen by Hawkins, who becomes furiously jealous and upbraids Liza. She loses her temper and claims the right to do as she likes. Henry on this swears he will fight Bill, and Liza tells him not to be a fool, that Bill could lick him with one hand, and they part in anger.

Hawkins meets Bill and challenges him. The result is a foregone conclusion. Poor Hawkins is knocked out and laid up in bed for repairs, tended by his landlady, Mrs. Moggs. Bill goes to the Claytons' and boasts of his triumph, wherewith Liza, blaming herself for what has happened, slaps his face, gives him her opinion of his conduct, and tells him and her father that she is going at once to the injured Hawkins. She does so and begs his pardon, professing her love. Mrs. Moggs looks after her for a couple of days, and then she and Hawkins are married. Old Clayton tries to get on without his daughter with the help of Bill, but they quarrel and he turns the pugilist out. He sends for Liza and her husband to come back to him and make his declining years happy.

THE GREAT DIAMOND ROBBERY (Mar. 15).—Herr Kraut, an enterprising butcher, learns that a bonus of fifty cents a head will be paid for the capture for every stray dog and its delivery to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Herr Kraut takes his trombone and blows it vigorously in front of his store, attracting every untethered "mute." Two French detectives, D'Abseen and Dr. Cyclop, become suspicious and conclude that Kraut is turning the dogs into sausages. Clemintine, a theatrical lady, frequently sends her maid, Belinda, to Kraut's for sausages, and at the same time sends her little dog "Pinkie" with her. The two detectives watch her coming and going. Belinda secures a week's vacation and borrows her mistress's solitaire diamond ring and her little "Pinkie."

After Belinda has gone, Clementine discovers the loss of her diamond and dog, advertising a reward of ten dollars for their return. The two detectives see the advertisement, call upon the actress and tell her they can recover her property. Immediately they repair to Kraut's factory, buy up all his sausages, feeling sure that her little dog must have swallowed the ring before Kraut converted him into frankfurters.

In the meantime, Belinda meets her old sailor friend, Bill Buntline. He sees the ring and the dog; she tells him to whom they belong, and he immediately pulls a newspaper from his pocket and shows her the advertisement. He advises her to return to her mistress at once. They hasten back just as the two detectives are visiting the house with the sausage in which they think they have located the diamond. The colored butler enters the room and eats the sausage. They are horrified and tell the man he has not only eaten a diamond, but a "minced dog." The appearance of Belinda and her sweetheart with the ring and the dog soon explain matters.

LUBIN.

TOUGH GUY LEVI (Mar. 11).—A peddler named Levi ventures into the far West for business. He is fairly successful. Levi is quoted as a rich man, and as there are no banks in the mountains, he carries his capital in different crevices of his pack and clothes. One evening he is recognized by Bad Jerry. Levi is duly instructed to empty the crevices and hand over the money. Broken-hearted he strolls back to the camp and entering the department store, borrows a pair of cannons, a belt of cartridges and a sombrero. He meets Jerry in the woods and holds him up. Levi not only gets his own money back, but considerable interest that the bad man had collected from others.

WIFEY'S MA COMES BACK (Mar. 11).—Robt. Todd, an ardent advocate of physical culture, is surprised by his wife, with a letter announcing the fact that her mother is going to pay them a visit. He decides immediately that he will put mother through a course of physical culture that will be so warm that she will soon go back home. He proposes the physical culture idea. It only takes one week to bring mother back. For one day while they are boxing, she upper cuts and swings so fast that hubby thinks he has fallen into a threshing machine. After this mother takes wifey on a shopping tour, spends a big wad of hubby's money. She then returns home, much to the satisfaction of Hubby.

HIS WIFE'S MOTHER (Mar. 13).—Jack Hancock gets word that his mother-in-law is coming to his home. The old lady happens to be an especially dignified and pompous mother-in-law and Jack becomes especially surly towards her, until finally he orders her to leave his home. A few days after she has gone, Jack's wife and baby go to grandma's. That day while Jack is at work in the office, the boss gives him ten thousand dollars in cash to deposit in the bank. There is great excitement on the floor of the Stock Exchange owing to the sudden upward movement of "May wheat." Jack dashes into a broker's office and buys ten thousand dollars' worth of May wheat. The market drops and Jack is "cleaned out." He wires his wife not to come home until he sends for her. Jack is about to end things, when his mother-in-law, who has come to town to find out the meaning of his telegram, confronts him. She prevails upon him to confess to her. Going to the bank she draws her little fortune which is just sufficient to cover the amount. Jack succeeds in replacing the money without its loss having been discovered. For ever after Jack is perfectly content to let the old lady run the house.

THE PRICE OF A SILVER FOX (Mar. 14).—Harry Mathews and Ed Salter are going on a hunting expedition in Northern Canada, and receive a jolly send-off by the boys and girls of their set. Frank Wardour and his sweetheart, Grace Thornton, are among the bunch and there is considerable kissing all around. Grace gets jealous and in a little lovers spat, tells Frank she wants no more of him, and he in return, tells her "All right," he will go with the other boys on the hunting trip. As he is boarding the boat he receives a note from Grace which tells him if he will bring back to her the skin of a silver fox she will renew the engagement and promise to be his wife. The [illegible]ing is taken up in earnest and one day the party separated, Ed and Harry going one way and Frank another. Fortune favors the latter and he [illegible] a fine silver fox. He carries it to the hut [illegible] dresses the skin which is to win his sweetheart back. A few days later an Indian prowling around sneaks into the hut and steals the skin. Frank [illegible]ing the foot-prints of the Indian in the snow starts off to track the thief. He becomes exhausted with fatigue and the intense cold and shouting [illegible] help, sinks unconscious in the snow. A party of Canadians rescue him and carry him to their [illegible] where with the aid of an Indian girl they re[illegible] him. But he has been frozen and when convalescent he is fearfully disfigured and one of his eyes [illegible]. One day at meal time the Indian girl spills [illegible] hot soup on a man. He attempts to strike her [illegible] Frank interposes and drives the ruffian out [illegible] then notices that the Indian girl has some [illegible] fox trimming on her dress. He asks her where [illegible] obtained it, explaining that it was stolen from [illegible] cabin. The girl tells Frank that she knows [illegible] thief and they both set out to find him. The [illegible]skin puts up a fight, but Frank has the best [illegible] and secures the coveted fox skin. Five m[illegible] passed and Ed and Harry have returned home [illegible] reported that Frank has been lost and is prob[illegible] dead. Grace is to be married to another man [illegible] Frank appears upon the scene. He hands her [illegible] skin of the silver fox and her note, and te[illegible] her he will not interfere with her happiness, [illegible] goes back to the Canadian camp.

THE PREACHER AND THE GOSSIPS [illegible] 16).—The Rev. Frank Speakman has been [illegible] to a rural congregation, and is entertained by [illegible] members. He is considered a fine catch [illegible]monially and the ladies set their caps for him. A pretty little milliner is among the contestants [illegible] the new minister cannot be blamed for fav[illegible] her. The widow with whom the new mi[illegible] boards, finds an unfinished letter which rea[illegible] being written to Speakman's sister. The sis[illegible] name is Ellen and the milliner's the same. [illegible] letter is an excellent weapon in the hands of [illegible] gossip. The deacons and good sisters of the c[illegible] are amazed at the familiar language and act[illegible] quickly taken. The new minister is put on [illegible] and condemned unheard and is about to be [illegible]missed from the pulpit when the widow lan[illegible] discovers her mistake and reports it. Another [illegible]ing is granted, the wise men frown a little [illegible] it is seen that the gossips have a very poor [illegible] With a warning to be good, the handsome pre[illegible] is allowed to remain. He leaves the session [illegible] the pretty milliner and notifies the deacons and [illegible]ters of the congregation that his discourse on [illegible] following Sunday will be a dissertation on mali[illegible] gossiping.

SELIG.

A CRUCIAL TEST (Mar. 11).—Bill Wildern [illegible] Jim Forster, partners in Klondike, failing t[illegible] pay dirt worth while, decide that Bill shall ca[illegible] a prospecting party on a long trip. Lost o[illegible] trail, Bill is taken ill. Men worn out, prov[illegible] scanty, they are forced to leave Bill and push [illegible]ward.

Meanwhile, a rich strike has been made on [illegible] of the claims, a company negotiating for its [illegible]chase, when the exhausted prospectors arrive [illegible] tell Jim of his pal's sad fate. A few days l[illegible] the big deal is closed, Jim taking possession o[illegible] whole fortune, leaves for the outside.

Bill returns, visits the law office and is s[illegible] the proof of his friend's perfidy. He starts [illegible] the home town of Jim. Calling at the Forster [illegible]dence, is told that Jim is in Europe. He [illegible] uptown, reaching a busy thoroughfare just a[illegible] Forster horses dash away. He hears some o[illegible] it is Nell Forster in the carriage, and for a mo[illegible] hesitates, then at the risk of his own life, saves [illegible].

He is badly hurt, and Nell orders him tak[illegible] her home. By the time he is able to leave, [illegible] are deeply in love with each other, both striv[illegible] hide it. Bill determines to let Jim go scott [illegible] accordingly, when recovered sufficiently, he [illegible] Nell ferewell. Jim returns home and hears the [illegible] of her rescue and is staggered to learn that B[illegible] not dead.

He notices her altered looks and depression [illegible] suspects the cause, which is ratified when he [illegible] in the window and sees her kiss a note-book [illegible] he knows belongs to Bill. This calls to th[illegible] all the latent manhood in Jim Forster. He [illegible]termines to follow him and make every repar[illegible] possible.

He reaches the Wildern home just as Bill [illegible]ding his mother and sisters goodbye ere mak[illegible] fresh start for the gold fields. A reconciliati[illegible] effected and a happy lovers' reunion.

BOUNDER (Mar. 12).—Ruby Blackwell a [illegible] young girl of Arizona, lives wit[illegible] brother Tom, and their widowed mother, in a [illegible] in the mountains. One day Tom takes Ruby [illegible] lion hunt. They track a puma, or mountai[illegible] Tom shoots the beast, which, wounded, bounds [illegible] into the canyon.

Tom instructs Ruby to proceed to the ridg[illegible] await him there, while he follows the pum[illegible] the mountainside Ruby discovers the cubs bel[illegible] to the puma which Tom has shot, and she merican Moving Picture Machine Co.

MANUFACTURERS OF THE

STANDARD

Automatic Moving Picture Machine

01-102 Beekman Street New York

The Buckeye-Lake Shore Film Co.

Independent Film Service

Special attention given to each customer's needs and to all the little details.

We buy all the good Independent film released.

Good service and right treatment at the right price. Is there any good reason why you should not give us a trial?

422 N. High St, Columbus, Ohio

A CIN-ES
EVERY TUESDAY
and SATURDAY

KOSMIK FILM

AN ECLIPSE
EVERY WEDNESDAY

NEXT WEEK'S RELEASES

Cin-es, Tuesday, March 12, 1912

FROM TENT TO MANSION

A pleasing story of two children of the circus, who are finally adopted by a wealthy lady. It is unique and exceedingly well produced.

Eclipse, Wednesday, March 13, 1912

THE SENTRY ON GUARD

Telling how a raw young sentry saved the life of Napoleon.

A drama filled with action which sustains the interest to the last.

Cin-es, Saturday, March 16, 1912

OUT OF TUNE

This is a roaring comedy showing the inimitable Mr. Stout at his best.

Zoological Gardens in Rome

An interesting travelogue subject.

Advance Announcements Free. Write to

GEORGE KLEINE

166 No. State St., Chicago, Ill.

LICENSED BY MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO.

MR. EXHIBITOR!

VERYBODY IS DOING IT! WHAT?

Increasing their order for the PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE. How about you? Are you selling the magazine in your theatre? If not why not send your name and address to

HOTOPLAY MAGAZINE

Devoted to stories of Independent made pictures and profusely illustrated. We prepay it to you. Write to-day and we will send you full particulars.

PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE

Suite 401-402 600-630 So. Dearborn Street CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

FRANK A LEAR, General Manager

OU WILL DO THE SAME THING OVER

THE CARL BARCKHOFF COMPANY

Builders of PIPE ORGANS

with or without self playing attachment

POMEROY, OHIO, U. S. A.

ESTABLISHED 1819

Over 3,000 Barckhoff Organs in use in the United States which testify to their superiority and durability in construction, workmanship and character of tone.

We make a specialty of Organ Chimes manufactured from the choicest Bell Metal. Not made by any other builder.

diately becomes so engrossed in playing with the huge kittens that she forgets the rendezvous her brother had appointed. Tom finally locates her.

The cubs are taken home. They grow up around Ruby like friendly dogs. Pete Lopez, a bad Mexican, who admires Ruby very much, tries to steal one of them at night, after Ruby has refused to sell the animal to him, and the baby puma defends itself vigorously until Tom and Ruby rush to its rescue.

Two years later, when Ruby has become principal of the little mountain school, this puma, now full grown, finds opportunity to repay the loyalty of his mistress and "get even" with Pete by saving the life of Tom from ravishing wolves and the honor of Ruby from the miserable Mexican.

THE SLIP (Mar. 14).—Harold Sinclair, a "get-rich-quick" promoter, and his silent partners, George and Mina Hopkins, are doing a flourishing business in bogus stocks. However, such flourishing conditions cannot last long in the bunco business, and Sinclair finds this out when Zet Maiston, a victim, exposes the oily tongued promoter to the postoffice authorities. Sinclair's offices are surrounded by secret service men and plans are made to capture Sinclair and his aids.

Sinclair, an old hand at dodging detectives, almost makes good his "get-away," but through the agency of inevitable fate, the bloodhounds of the law finally overtake and capture the trio.

ACROSS THE ISTHMUS OF PANAMA IN 1912 (Mar. 15).—In this film, which was taken under the auspices of the United States government, the auditor is taken on an intimate inside trip across the entire canal zone. The first scenes show the Pedro Miguel Locks and the whole process of building these gigantic walls and gates of concrete and steel. We are shown huge cranes carrying sand, rock and cement to the mixers. Then the carrying to and dumping of the cement upon the locks. Miraflares Locks, the top of the gates at Gatun, the huge conveyors and cranes at Gatun, the building of the gates, lake walls, and locks at Gatun, and an interesting panorama of Gatun lake and locks gives us a thorough understanding of this phase of the great project. Then we are taken to the Culebra cut region, where we follow the work as it progresses rapidly under the perfect system directed by the most skilled U. S. A. engineers. The drills, steam shovels, spreaders, trains, dumpers, etc., are all shown and we leave Culebra after viewing an interesting panorama of the entire cut. We are now taken to Panama City, on the Pacific Coast, and after viewing the track shifter and its almost human functions, we can indeed say that we have seen the canal zone and it's vast work under better conditions than most of those who travel to the zone in person.

BIOGRAPH.

A SPANISH DILEMMA (March 11).—Jose and Carlos, brothers, are smitten with the same Senorita, and as she cares for the one as much as she does for the other, there comes the great difficulty of choosing, for brotherly love is so strongly imbued that each is loath to do anything to vanquish the other. In fact, they are what might be called the "Non-militant rivals." Their endeavors to induce the girl to decide between them are most unique, and each time they find themselves even. At last they draw cards, only to find, when this plan has been successful, the young lady lost to them both by being betrothed to another.

THE ENGAGEMENT RING (March 11).—Harry is successful in winning Alice, despite the efforts of Redmond to dethrone him in her esteem. Redmond swears vengeance, and declares his determination to win the proud beauty. Harry, being rather impecunious, is forced to buy the engagement ring on the "$5 down, $1 per week" plan. Redmond sees his chance here to get the better of Harry and would have succeeded had not an auto accident proven a "mudfall" for Harry to clear his debts with the money he receives for damages.

IOLA'S PROMISE (March 14).—Iola, the little Indian girl, is held captive by a gang of cutthroats, from whose clutches and abuse she is rescued by Jack Harper, a prospector. She is truly grateful to Jack, for she regards him as something different from the white people she has seen. Jack's sweetheart and her father are parties of a wagon-train headed for this place, and as luck has been against him, he is somewhat gloomy. Iola learns the reason, and promises to help him find gold. He is amused at this and says "Will you?" "Yes." "Cross your heart?" This cross-your-heart action mystifies the little Indian. She thinks it is a sort of tribe insignia and tells her people that "Cross-heart" people are all right. Iola surely pays her debt of gratitude, not only in finding gold, but in giving her life to protect Jack's sweetheart from her own people, who are embittered against all whites.

MELIES.

TROUBLES OF THE XL OUTFIT (March 21).—Dora Watson, a pretty nurse, is taken by her father, the doctor, to attend Tidewater Pete, a cowboy, who has broken his leg. By the time Pete is well, the other boys have become so fond of Dora that they are loath to let her go back home, and conspire to keep her.

Shorty has an idea. He feigns intense pains in the stomach and the boys carry him to Dora, who was just leaving. The latter suspects their little plot and administers a dose of bitter medicine that sends Shorty to the nearest pump to cleanse his mouth.

Finally, in desperation, Long Jim resolves to wound himself in the foot. Closing his eyes he pulls the trigger, but accidentally misses his foot and shoots Ralph, the ranch owner's son, who is really in love with Dora.

She has to stay and attend him, and the period of nursing, under the watchful eyes of the cowboys, completes the romance, much to the surprise of the doctor and the boy's father, but to the pride and joy of all the boys.

Scene from "Troubles of XL Outfit"—(Melies).

PATHE.

PATHE'S WEEKLY, NO. 8, 1912 (Feb. 19).—

Wallsend-on-Tyne, England. The launching of a dry dock proves a success for the first time. This dock weighs 12,000 tons and has a lifting power of 32,000 tons. It is built for repairing ships of the Dreadnaught type.

Tarrytown, N. Y. The frozen Hudson offers a splendid course for the automobile races which are occupying the attention of racing fans.

Melbourne, Australia. Thirty-eight competitors start in the Melbourne Cup Race which is won by "Parisien," winning a $50,000.00 purse.

Pauillac, France. Two hundred Senegal steers are imported by the government in an effort to overcome the high cost of beef.

Flagtown, N. J. A freight engine explodes, wrecks the train, kills the fireman and brakeman and seriously injures the engineer.

Tripoli, Tripoli. The Italo-Turkish War. After a victorious fight the Italians intrench themselves under the protection of their new 12-inch guns. Fourteen traitorous Arabs are court-martialed and hung by the Italians.

New York, N. Y. F. Rodman Law, "the dare-devil steeple-jack" with aerial aspirations, makes his first parachute jump from the hand of the Statue of Liberty, 311 feet from the ground.

PATHE'S WEEKLY, NO. 10, 1912 (Mar. 4).—

New York, N. Y. A tablet to the memory of the late Lieutenant-General Henry C. Corbin is placed in Corbin Hall, on Governor's Island.

New York, N. Y. The corner-stone of the Maine Memorial Monument is laid with army and navy officers presiding.

Washington, D. C. The Arizona delegation at the White House awaiting the signing of the proclamation making their territory a state, and President Taft at his desk in the Executive Offices, signing the proclamation admitting Arizona to statehodd.

Buenos Aires, Argentine Republic. After a protracted series of heavy rains, the residential section of the city is flooded.

Bucharest, Roumania. The Archbishop Timus d'Arges is buried in accordance with the Greek rites. The funeral cortege passes through the streets with the deceased sitting upright in a chair and supported by two priests.

London, England. A farmer in the suburbs uses camels and elephants to plow his land.

Special for the Ladies.

Paris, France. Advance spring styles in walking suits and afternoon house gowns.

WHO IS
MR. ALMOST BUTT
?

National Film Distributing Co.

RELEASE DATES.

Monday, February 19, 1912.
Belmar—The Runner ....West. Dra
Clarendon—The Flying Demon..............Come
Hepwix—In Fear............................Dra:

Tuesday, February 20, 1912.
Wrytograph—A Summer's Day..............Drai
Cricks & Martin—The Theorist............Come
Helios—Hours Away........................Drai

Wednesday, February 21, 1912.
Mohawk—Blue Bird's Plight........Indian Drai
Latium—The Friar's Repose.................Drar
Hepwix—The Stork.........................Come

Thursday, February 22, 1912.
Washington—The Trigger..........Western Drai
Cricks & Martin—Fence and Coat..........Come
Film d'Art—Marriage ....Drai

Friday, February 23, 1912.
Wrytograph—Budding Genius............ ...Drai
Clarendon—The Mystery of It..............Come
Acquila—The Mighty Steam................Drai

Saturday, February 24, 1912.
Oklahoma—In the Storm..........Western Dran
Bioscope—At the Meeting...................Dran
Savoia—The Beginning.......................Dran

Sunday, February 25, 1912.
California—Worry and Care............W. Dran
Messter—Stolen Sweets......................Comec
Comerio—In Search of It....................Dran

Monday, March 4, 1912.
Mohawk—The Indian Prayer........Western Dran
Clarendon—A Driver's Peril.................Dran
Acquila—The Ferryman's Luck.............Dran

Tuesday, March 5, 1912.
Wrytograph—A Child's Voice................Dram
Biograph—Stolen Sweets ....Comed
Helios—Beauty and Love....................Dram

Wednesday, March 6, 1912.
Oklahoma—Ranch Life......................W. Dram
Hepwix—Victory ....Comed
Latium—Pride ....Dram

Thursday, March 7, 1912.
Washington—Hidden Paths..............W. Dram
Clarendon—Delightful Thoughts..............Dram
Cricks & Martin—Fools Fancy..............Comed

Friday, March 8, 1912.
Wrytograph—Getting Mother's Consent.....Comed
Bioscope—A Dreaded Incident..............Dram
Mondia—The Watchman's Hope..............Dram

Saturday, March 9, 1912.
Mohawk—White Fawn's Hopes..........W. Dram
Hepwix—Aunt Diana's Secret..............Comed
Savoia—Running the Gauntlet.............Comed

Sunday, March 10, 1912.
Arrowhead—Amid the Ice Floes..............Dram
Cricks & Martin—Pinhead's Surprise........Comed
Comerio—An Italian Lake...................Sceni

Among the Exhibitors

Horicon, Wis.—A moving picture theater, a nev enterprise for this city, has been added to the at tractions which Horicon offers the public in th recreation line. A site was purchased from F. G Westfall, on Lake Street, and a new building erecte thereon, the size being 20 x 100 feet. The buildin was designed expressly for moving picture purpose and has a sloping floor, a fine stage, is lighted b electricity and will seat 250 people. The theater i run under the management of J. W. Heft.

Great Bend, Kan.—A local company is being or ganized to build an opera house.

Macksville, Kan.—Work has been started on th erection of an opera house here.

New London, Ia.—Ed. Magers will build a new playhouse here.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The Allegheny Amusement Co will remodel the building at 3139-49 Frankfor Avenue into a theater at a cost of $5,000.

Lake City, Fla.—This town will have a handsom 3 story theater building which will exhibit movin pictures.

PUBLIC WARNING!

The World's Best Film Co. has bought the U. S. rights to

"THE WRECK OF THE AURORA"

OR

"THE COFFIN SHIP"

(About Three Reels)

The most wonderful and most sensational and thrilling moving picture produced since the "Crusaders or Jerusalem Delivered." The title, film and story have been

COPYRIGHTED
1912

THE WORLD'S BEST FILM COMPANY

30 NORTH DEARBORN STREET, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

And every infringement or attempted infringement will be prosecuted with all the vigor at our command. Not only will infringers suffer the fullest penalty of the law but their infringing films will be confiscated.

WORLD'S BEST
"Trade Mark"
FILM CO.
"Feature Films & Nothing Else"

State Rights For Sale at the Lowest Prices Ever Known To the Film Business!

There will be one and three sheet posters and plenty of advertising matter.

Watch for further announcements

Independent Film Stories

IMP.

RHODA ROYAL'S TRAINED HORSES (March 9).—This picture depicts various scenes which form part of the well-known Rhoda Royal Circus, in which the animals are put through a series of remarkably clever evolutions and performances. The picture shows the clever manner in which the horses, ponies, dogs and other animals can be trained to do amusing acts.

THE HOME STRIKE-BREAKERS (March 9).—Mr. Michael McCarthy and his associates struck work. They were brick layers and building men by trade. They struck and gathered themselves together; formed a local; elected "Mickey" McCarthy president, and asserted their freedom.

Mr. "Builder," whose work was stopped, offered a reward of $500 to anybody who would break the strike. Mrs. McCarthy got wind of the offer. She gathered the wives of the strike-breakers together. They went in a body to the builder and offered to do the work, leaving their husbands at home to do the domestic work; a job of which they soon tired. The result was, of course, inevitable; the men went back to work.

Mr. "Builder" kept his promise and paid the reward to the chief strike-breaker. This was Mrs. McCarthy, who triumphantly pocketed the $500 check.

A TIMELY REPENTANCE (Mar. 11).—John Crawford, an honest mechanic, and Wilbur Robinson, a young man of leisure, both love the same girl. She marries Crawford and a baby comes to cheer their home. Crawford is engaged in perfecting an invention and, pending the expected money, does not provide liberally for his family. The wife is dissatisfied.

Robinson notes this fact and lures away the wife of the mechanic. She goes with him deserting the baby, leaving a note for her husband. They plan to leave the city, but while walking about awaiting the departure of a train, they happen to pass the doors of a moving picture theater and Mrs. Crawford expresses a desire to go in. They enter and the story thrown on the screen is identical with the experience in which they are passing through.

Unable to witness the closing scenes and filled with remorse, Mrs. Crawford begs Robinson to take her out in the open. Then and there she repudiates him and, refusing to ride in an automobile, she hurries towards her humble home, hoping she may return before the husband.

She reaches the house, searches feverishly for the note, finds it and destroys every vestige of her attempted perfidy. She finds the child sleeping peacefully and takes it in her arms. The husband returns triumphant. He has disposed of his invention for a sum sufficient to make them rich. The wife takes him in her arms delirious with joy and satisfaction.

SHAMUS O'BRIEN (Mar. 14).—Shamus O'Brien was a patriot and in fighting for his country places himself in the position of a rebel with a price on his head. He is hiding in the hills, but anxious to attend a dance, at which his friends and sweetheart will be present, sends word that he will be there. Arrangements are made for the dance, and Shamus surprises the guests by appearing in a surprising manner. Michael O'Farrel, who has not met with sucess in his suit for the hand of Aileen Brennan, the sweetheart of Shamus, learns of his whereabouts and notifies the Redcoats. They reach the barn, where the dance is taking place, too late to capture the patriot, who escapes to the loft, only to return as the girl of his heart is being insulted by Captain McDonald. O'Brien floors the officer and makes a thrilling escape, only to be again given up by O'Farrell, when he is visiting his mother. He is then taken to prison and stands trial. He is convicted and the day of the execution set. As this draws near, his mother makes a plea to the parish priest for help which is readily given and through a ruse Shamus is saved, and the picture closes as the mother, son and sweetheart sail for America.

DARING FEATS ON A CAVALRY HORSE (Mar. 16).—This film will be of interest to the general public as it depicts daring feats of horsemanship. The riders are seen scaling obstacles and performing other tactical cavalry movements.

PERCY LEARNS TO WALTZ (Mar. 16).—Percy and Edith are sweethearts and he escorts her to a ball under the pretense of being a finished dancer. They arrive at the function and to inspiring music they commence to waltz. But to Edith's dismay, she finds that she has been deceived, as Percy only succeeds in falling all over himself as well as the furniture, and lastly, to her mortification, he causes her to fall also. Edith then becomes indignant and leaves the room accompanied by another admirer. Percy is seized by the green-eyed monster and rushes home alone.

Percy then decides he will learn to waltz, and makes life miserable for the boarders in the house, by making them dance with him. Finally the cook in the kitchen comes in for her share of the attention, and much against her will Percy tries a turn with her, in the end falling over the stove in his evolutions.

After great perseverance Percy acquires the art to perfection and attends another dance. Edith is there also and he refuses to dance with her, devoting his time to the other girls present. Edith becomes very jealous, but after an amusing scene, Percy forgives her, and they spend the remainder of the evening enjoying the dances together, and this time she does not refuse to allow him to accompany her home.

REX.

MAKING HEROES (Mar. 7).—The city of Denver has the best equipped and the most efficient fire department in the world. We do not venture to state that this is because the men of Denver are more valorous or courageous than other humans, but we do imply that it might be due to the effective training school connected with the department in which the firemen are once a month rehearsed in a sham battle with the flames, from the first stage to the last of the fire-fighter's arduous art.

The Rex Company locomoted a camera down to Denver and photographed the stirring scenes depicted during one of these dress rehearsals. The engines rush to the scene of bogus peril, and the firemen set to work very earnestly to conquer the imaginary flames. Thrilling rescues are effected, daring risks assumed, danger and death completely disregarded. So is heroism manufactured.

BLOWING UP THE JOHN DAY RAPIDS (Mar. 7).—The U. S. government recently blew up the John Day Rapids. Several hundred feet of interesting celluloid show how the scientific feat was performed. A general view of the rapids and rocks to be blasted, loading the rolls with powder, drilling in water for blast, loading the sacks with dynamite, lowering the powder sacks into the water—and then—the rapids by moonlight.

SONGS OF CHILDHOOD DAYS (Mar. 10).—There was poverty in that little country home, but there was also its one redeeming corollary: Hope, which was represented in the girl's violin. The mother gave the girl their meagre surplus, and she came with her hope and her genius to the far-away city. Her music sang its way into the hearts of the metropolis, and she became famed and favored.

Then she met him, and he loved her. He was the son of aristocratic and arrogant wealth. And in her love and its happiness and the ecstacy of her triumph she forgot the humble home and the tender, trusting mother. The short and seldom letters soon ceased entirely, and the anxious mother-heart hungered and yearned for news of the girl. So she came to the city.

The girl made it evident that her presence displeased and embarrassed her, so she returned to the farm.

A few weeks later the girl received the news that scattered and shattered her joys. Her mother had made her last earthly pilgrimage to her last earthly hope—had gone over the hills with her ills to the poor-house. With a sob she read the accusing words and heard her heart and its true message. Everything became desperately dark; her mind forgot, and for a moment the world was not. And in the darkness she saw the light.

Love knows no caste—so she told him, told him all; and together they went to her. Outside the old mother's room she stood and played the songs of her childhood; and ghosts of the dreams of the past visited the desolate woman's mind, and phantom smiles lighted up her face with the old happiness and the old hope. Still the girl played, and the haunting, happy notes floated into the room and into the soul of the woman, and her heart responded. She moved toward whence the message of another day had come; she opened the door that was the barrier between herself and the resurrection of a dead desire—and she was clasped to the redeemed heart of the girl.

REPUBLIC.

TWO MEN (Mar. 12).—An officer of the Northwestern Mounted Police is sent out to capture a lawbreaker. After a dangerous journey through ice and snow, he succeeds in getting his man and bringing him to headquarters. The man escapes and the officer again sets forth to capture him. In climbing a steep mountain his horse throws him, and he sustains a fractured skull. For hours he lies in the freezing temperature, until his legs become frozen, and when he regains consciousness, he is unable to walk. By a heroic effort, suffering untold agonies, he crawls to a deserted cabin and falls unconscious on the threshold.

The escaped convict, tired from his battle against the frightful storms and the cold, comes to the deserted cabin and is startled to find his former captor lying there unconscious. He gloats over the fact that the man is helpless and plans a vengeance that can only come to a deranged mind. But when he goes to start his tortures, a long forgotten manliness asserts itself, and instead of seeking vengeance, he tries his utmost to save his enemy. He treats the frozen feet with snow, then wraps the in blankets and clothes which he tears from h own person. He finally discovers that the m must have medical attention. He throws the u conscious body across his shoulders and begi the painful journey to a settlement. The man life is saved and the lawbreaker is rewarded by full pardon.

THE SCAR (Mar. 16).—A young doctor seeki to build up a practice, finds little time for h family and the wife, being a pleasure-loving woma decides to seek amusement in the company of oth men. The doctor hears of her acquaintance wi Mr. Tolane, a sporting man, and calls his wife account for it. This brings about a severe quarr in which the doctor, in a heat of passion, unintentionally strikes his wife across the face with h riding crop.

Although the husband is sorry, the wife is d termined to leave him. She takes the child a goes to a small country town, taking a positi as school mistress. Mr. Tolane, who is a la broker, gets a call to come to the same town whe the wife is teaching school. He meets her u expectedly and continues his attentions. Th arouses the tongue of gossip, which becomes severe that the wife is forced to give up her pos tion. This gives Tolane the opportunity he h sought, and he persuades the wife to go with hi They board a train for a distant city, but prov dence wills otherwise. The train is wrecked whi going through a tunnel—the tempter is killed, a the erring wife becomes a cripple.

A call for medical aid is answered by the hu band, who, arriving on the scene of the acciden finds Tolane dead and his wife injured. He tak her back to his home and although she is compelle to go around the rest of her life on crutches, h husband's love and devotion repays her for all t suffering, and she realizes that a husband's devotio is worth far more than a life of pleasure.

GAUMONT.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? (March 12).—Jones, pr vision dealer, is in search of a fittingly appetizi name for a new delicacy he is about to put on th market. The Italian word for butterfly "Farfalett appeals to him much more than any other and i boundless enthusisasm over such a happy nan selection Jones invites the members of his club t attend a banquet on "Farfaletta." The wife happens to come upon one of these invitations and immediately begins to suspect the worst, namely tha "Farfaletta" be the name of some immoral actres with whom her husband has become enamore After agitating herself and her mother up t the point of frenzy, she learns that Farfaletta i after all, only a kind of macaroni.

MATERNITY (March 16).—Joan, a peasantess, i left in miserable poverty with a six-months'-ol child, the very heart of her life, upon an attac of a lingering malady to her husband. Circumstances compel her separation from the child sh so cherishes and idolizes. She becomes a nurs to the young baby of a fashionable couple. Th comparison of her own child to the ward, pall her more and more as time goes on, and cause her deepest melancholy. So indifferent is her mistress, that she even uses an intercepted letter o Joan's as curling papers. Quite by accident, Joa discovers the crimpled letter, advising her of he own child's sinking health. With a heart overflowing with anguish, she upbraids her cruel mistress for her heartlessness and hastens home t tend to her own dear little babe. At the end o the film a contrast of the two mothers is presente in unique form, at opposite sides of the picture.

THANHOUSER.

FLYING TO FORTUNE (March 12).—A wealthy old man, who has been a semi-invalid for years, i informed by his physician that his case is hopeless. The invalid decides to put "his home in order." Therefore it is a matter of gratification to him when he sees that his only daughter and the young partner in whom he implicitly relies seems to be mutually attracted. The partner is called to Europe just before the doctor gives his verdict, but the invalid makes "everything all right" in his will. He provides that the bulk of his estate shall go to the girl, if she marries the partner within one year from the hour of her father's death. Should she fail to comply, the property reverts to her father's sister. This unique document pleases the girl, and the partner is willing to carry the provisions into effect, for he loves her. In fact, had it not been for the aunt, the entire affair would have been commonplace.

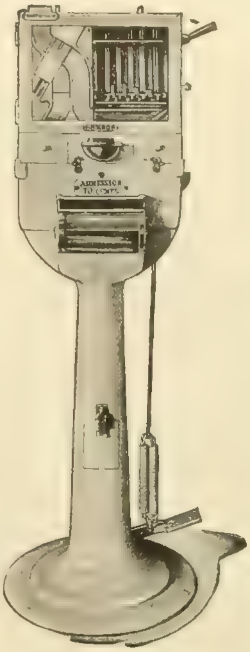
The elder woman was jealous, however, and aided

WHO IS
MR. ALMOST BUTT
?

EXPENSES TOO HIGH?

THIS MACHINE WILL CUT THEM FIFTY DOLLARS A MONTH!

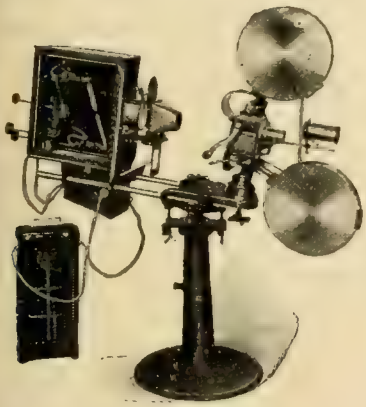
Under a Written Guarantee



Coin Machine Manufacturing Company

Sales Office : Coin Machine Bldg., Dept. M

PORTLAND : : : : : : OREGON



MOTIOGRAPH MACHINES

EVERY MOTIOGRAPH IS A MOTIOGRAPH THROUGH AND THROUGH

BUILT FOR THOSE WHO WANT THE BEST

MUCH HAS BEEN SAID BY OTHER MAKERS ABOUT THE GREATNESS OF THEIR FACTORIES—FEW PEOPLE REALIZE THAT THE GREATEST OF THEM ALL IS THE MOTIOGRAPH PLANT.

The reason it has not been necessary to exploit it has been the HIGH STANDARD QUALITY of the MOTIOGRAPH—For four years the MOTIOGRAPH has been less advertised than any other make and still it has forged steadily forward in popular favor—Our competitors are forced to spend thousands of dollars yearly more than we do, and still we go onward.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES

and buy because of the size of advertising space—but read the small, direct MOTIOGRAPH Talks.

THE MOTIOGRAPH organization is a unit which represents a HIGH DEGREE OF EFFICIENCY in Motion Picture Machine construction and THAT IS WHY THE MOTIOGRAPH maintains its REPUTATION OF THE BEST BUILT MACHINE ON EARTH.

Manufactured by The Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company

For Sale by Live Dealers Everywhere. 564-572 W. Randolph St., CHICAGO, ILL.

and advised by a dishonest lawyer, who was in love with her, she plotted to win the fortune for herself. The girl's marriage was set for the last day of the year of grace. The afternoon before, she is spirited away by a ruse, and held prisoner on an island owned by the aunt, the lawyer acting as jailer.

The bridegroom-to-be searches for her in vain, but does not get a clue to her whereabouts until the time is nearly up. In fact he knows it will be impossible to bring her back in time to save the fortune. But what a boat cannot do, an airship can, and a gallant aeronaut sails to the island, and flies back with the bride and has time to spare. The lawyer follows in an auto, but is easily outdistanced.

THE POACHER (March 15).—A rich old man owner an estate in the Adirondacks, where he spent most of his time. Having nothing of real importance to occupy his time, he devoted all his energies to hunting down poachers.

Therefore it was with feelings of great joy that he greeted two keepers who had captured a man shooting game on the magnate's estate. The rich man was a magistrate, partially because he enjoyed sending persons to jail, and in this particular case he signed the commitment papers with great personal satisfaction.

It was a flimsy old country jail, and the prisoner managed to break out. Then he started through the woods, hoping to keep out of the way of his enemy.

There was only one person the magnate really loved, his little grandson. The boy had been present when the poacher had been arraigned, and had expressed sympathy for him. This child was accustomed to having his own way, and impressed by what he had heard, decided to be a poacher himself.

With his sturdy toy gun, he started out for an expedition in the woods all alone. He was lost, but finally found refuge in a cabin, where he sank exhausted, unable to go further.

There was no one in the shack to help him, as it was deserted and falling into decay, and the child would undoubtedly have perished of the cold had it not been for the arrival of the fugitive poacher. He carried him through the woods, intending to leave him at the door of his home, and then escape if possible, but was pounced upon and captured just as he wearily toiled up the steps with his burden.

The keepers triumphantly produced him before the magnate and waited for words of praise, but the boy revived in time to make it clear that he owed his life to the man who was fleeing from the law. The magnate marked "Complaint dismissed" across the warrant, in the case where he was both accuser and judge, and told the prisoner that he would see that he had a fair chance to succeed in life.

NESTOR.

THE MILLS OF THE GODS (March 4).—"You will like her!" so writes Grace to her uncle, George Gaylord, refering to the traveling companion she's bringing home with her. Mr. Gaylord almost brutally puts her out of his home. His strange behavior calls for an explanation, and telling the girl to listen, the uncle unfolds the story dealing with the woman's past life—a story in which he played so prominent a part.

Many years before we see him as a happy young married man. But for Myrtle Merrill he might be happy yet. She appears at a reception given by the Gaylords, and piles her wiles upon her host. George is dazzled by the woman's fascinations, and follows her out into the garden, where they are discovered by the young wife. She goes to her room and fails to conquer the impulse of self-immolation. Mrs. Gaylord's sudden and tragic end brings the bereaved husband to his senses. He spurns the adventuress' advances and shuts her out of his life forever.

Years later Myrtle Merrill worms her way into the home of the Russells. Her old mischievous nature plays havoc with the affairs of Henry Locke and Norma Russell. The young people's engagement is soon broken, for Henry is unable to withstand Myrtle's subtle power. Fortunately for the lovers, Mr. Gaylord pays a visit to his old friends, the Russells, and drives away the designing woman.

As Uncle George finishes his recital, Grace clings to him. Through the parted curtains they watch the receding form of a woman. It is Myrtle Merrill going out into the world, friendless, but thoroughly repentant.

THE DOUBLE TRAIL (March 6).—Two brothers, Frank and Jack Morley, both love their mother's ward, Bess Roher. Both propose and Jack is accepted. Declaring that she will not hear from him until he has earned the right to claim her, he goes away.

At the railroad station he meets a tramp who asks aid. Jack gives him a nickel. The tramp takes him to a freight car and proposes that Jack come along, as he is going the same way. Jack agrees. The next morning the tramp awakens first and calls Jack, who turns over, taking his head from off his coat, in which his money has been placed. The temptation is too much for the tramp. He folds up his own coat, places it by Jack's head, then taking Jack's hat and coat, jumps from the moving train. His head hits a railroad tie. Some cowboys pick him up and take him to a nea hotel, where he soon dies. The papers in pocket proclaim him to be Jack Morley, of Pla Nev. Accordingly, the proprietor of the hotel wi his brother Frank. Frank comes on, sees the tra declares he is not his brother, but takes his co etc.

Before he reaches home, however, Frank deci to carry out the deception to his own advanta allowing his folks to believe that Jack is rea dead and thereby win Bess for himself.

A year later, he receives a letter from Ja saying that he has struck it rich. Fearing brother's return, Frank hurries to Bess and ur her to hasten their marriage. She agrees. J has reached the house in the meantime and ov heard their conversation. He waits until his brot comes outside, then demands an explanation. Fr the sitting-room Bess hears Jack's voice and h ries out to rush into Jack's arms. Miseral Frank beats a retreat, while the mother ent and greets Jack.

THE VILLAGE RIVALS (March 9).—Dave We owns a grocery store and loves Miss Doublecat Jim Cole also owns a grocery store and loves t same girl. The beauty likes both suitors and v tory in this instance is sure to go to the swifte Dave and Jim do swift things. Each endeavors forestall the other. Jim is getting the upper ha and incidentally the girl, when Poeticus, the villa scribe, comes to Dave's aid. The poetic mi evolves a prosaic plan. Dave is to court Wid Plunks, who is fat, fifty and rich, and Jim will made to realize what a prize he's missing. T plan works most beautifully. So well does Poetic shuffle his cards that Jim purchases a love son for the widow, proposes to her and is accepte Meanwhile, Dave has had plain sailing and wi the village belle. Jim goes out driving with t widow and inwardly rejoices for having "cut ou Dave. His rejoicings, however, receive a terrib jolt when he meets his hated rival driving a happy with the girl he has loved and lost.

ARIZONA (March 9).—This subject takes us Sessers Point, whence a complete panoramic circ of the famed canyons is spread before our asto ished gaze. We feast in wonder over a vista grand as it is awe-inspiring, and actually tremb at its terrifying immensity. A trail party, som 3,500 feet down a canyon, is also shown.

CHAMPION.

THE FATAL GLASS (March 11).—George Marsto leaves his home to go to his work. He is a cler in the office of Wm. Hall, a broker. On his wa to the office, Marston meets two friends, who insis on treating him. He accompanies them into saloon, and calls for a temperance drink. The ridicule him for this and insist on his taking glass of liquor. He succumbs to their ridicul and tastes of the liquor, and that one glass prove fatal to him.

When he arrives at his desk in the broker's office he is very late and slightly intoxicated, for whic two reasons the broker very promptly discharge him. In his befuddled condition he threatens th broker, and he is ejected from the office. Shortl after this a blackmailer turns up at the broker' office. Confronted by a "ghost of the past," th broker is driven to desperation.

The "blackmailer" gives the broker 15 minute to decide on making an impossible payment—t make the payment he must rob the firm, and it i disgrace or death, and he chooses the latter. In the meantime, the clerk, Marston, has returned home, bringing sorrow to his wife and babe. The tears of the wife arouse in him his latent goodness and manhood, and he solemnly vows he will never again taste the fatal glass. With this resolution made, he starts back to the office to make a plea for reinstatement. He arrives just as the broker has committed self-destruction, and Marston is accused of the crime. He is convicted and receives a life sentence, and we see him working out the weary years on a stone pile.

In the meantime, his wife goes back to the home of her childhood, taking her little boy along. Years pass, and the boy grows to manhood. He marries, and brings his wife to live with his mother, and a beautiful little girl blesses the union. In after years the blackmailer gets into the toils, being caught red-handed in a burglary. He is convicted, and makes an attempt to escape from prison and is shot and mortally wounded. Having recognized in prison the man who was wrongly accused of the crime of murder, he tells all that he knows concerning the matter, and Marston is liberated and starts for the place where he won his sweetheart. He arrives in the village and is begging for food, when a child takes pity on him. The child proves to be his granddaughter, and the meeting leads to a visit to his wife, and the reunion is graphic and intense—a reward for years of suffering.

THE EDITOR (March 13).—An election has just been held for district commissioner, and George Mason is the successful candidate.

His sweetheart, Alice Fisher, congratulates him next day on his victory, and tells him he can do great and lasting good for the community in the way of bringing about reforms. He tells her that no matter what his inclinations may be he can do nothing to offend his supporters. His attitude in this respect brings about an estrangement between himself and his sweetheart. Later, we see

Headquarters for
ASBESTOS
CURTAINS and PICTURE BOOTHS
SEND FOR BOOKLET
C. W. Trainer Mfg. Co.
39 Pearl St., Boston

World's Greatest Moving Picture
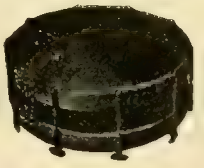
ZIGOMAR

We Offer 300 more to the Trap Drummers



Get your order in at once. At our special offer price—$10.00

This high-grade Orchestra Drum, 10 thumb screw rods, transparent drum heads, solid shells, maple, rosewood, walnut.

Size, 3 x 14—3 x 15—4 x 15—4 x 14. This offer for September and October.

E. P. Zeidler Drum Co., Cleveland, O.

Sterling Terminals

POSITIVELY the best terminal ever devised for motion picture arc lamps. GUARANTEED to prevent burned off wires.

Price $1.00 per pair postpaid

YOUR MONEY BACK IF YOU WANT IT

STERLING NOVELTY CO., 500 Main St., Warren, Ohio

THE BEST

BY TEST

Swaab Film Service Co.
(INDEPENDENT FILM ONLY)

Will supply you with the Sales Co.'s choice program. Ask for terms.

Motiograph and Power Machines

Carbons—Electra, $2.00 per 100; $19.00 per 1000, and other supplies at corresponding prices.

129 N. Eighth Street Philadelphia Pa.

HERE AT LAST
A place to buy parts for M. P. machines for less
One of our SPECIALS
Intermittent SPROCKETS $1.50 FOR POWERS EDISON Machines
Write for Price List
PITTSBURG M. P. SUPPLY CO., Pittsburg, Pa.

Films For Rent

Reliable Service. Independent Films. Banners and Posters supplied. 12-Reel Shipment $12.00

THE FILM EXCHANGE
61 West 14th Street, New York City

THE SPOKEN WORD

is the best advertisement, for it is by pleased customers that our business thrives; therefore, if you order a slide for 25c or one for $3.00, there's every incentive for us to please you, as we have thousands of other customers in the past.

We have slides for every purpose and purse, and release them weekly. This week's release contains TULIPS, by Gus. Edwards Publishing Co.

Nothing To Do Until Tomorrow, Jos. Morris Pub. Co.

EXCELSIOR SLIDE COMPANY

61 West 14th St. Phone 4351 Chelsea, New York City.

N. B.—Are you in touch with all the hits?—If not—get on our mailing list. Advertising slides? Why, certainly.

"It Costs You Nothing"

To Compare MIRROROIDE With Any Other Curtains and Screens Now on the Market.

THE DIFFERENCE IS PLAINLY SHOWN

MIRROROIDE Is the Result of Over Two Years' Experimenting. Two Years on the Market. Results Endorsed the World Over as the World's Best.

MAKE US SHOW YOU

Get Our Booklet of Testimonials, Circulars, and Our Large Demonstration Samples, A and B Grades, ¼ Yard, Free. Simply Write MIRROROIDE. Can be Applied to Any Plaster Wall by Your Local Paper Hanger. In Screen Form Ready to Tack. No Tightening Devices Needed. Rollable Curtains Mounted on a 4-Inch Cypress Roller, Ready to Hang.

MIRROROIDE

Is a Pure Silver Finish. A Mercury Foil 4-Ply Coating United With Texture of Woven Canvas. Cannot Crack, Peel or Tarnish. Stands Any Climate. Will You Let Us Prove to You That You Can Reduce Your Juice Bill ⅓. Carbon Bill ½. Still Obtain Daylight Pictures 90 Per Cent Brighter, Clearer, and Without Haze, Glare or Eye-Strain. Write Now.

Get Our Artificial Leather Samples for Wall Decorating, Seats, Etc. Strictly Guaranteed.

Variable Speed Motors for Any Make Projection Machines.

J. H. GENTER CO.

NEWBURGH, N. Y.

LUX FILMS

SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES

Released Friday, March 8th, 1912

The Romance of the Stock Exchange

Drama—Length 761 feet

A ROUGH SEA

Scenic—Length 223 feet

Splendid views of a storm upon the sea coast, concluding with a pretty little picture of the Fishing Fleet returning to port after the storm.

R. PRIEUR

10 East 15th St. New York City
Telephone 3427 Stuyvesant
Sold Only Through
MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING and SALES COMPANY
ONLY EASTMAN RAW STOCK USED.

Picture on Post Cards the Inside of Your Theatre

ENJOYING THE BEST SHOW IN RICHMOND HILL, N.Y.
THE LIBRARY SQUARE THEATRE

Have a photograph taken of your crowded house by flashlight; any photographer in your town will take it for $1.00. Send it to us and we will reproduce it on POST CARDS in our own semi-photo process, glazed surface photographic brown at $5.00 per thousand. Write for samples showing how other houses use them for advertising purposes. Delivery in TWO WEEKS. Check with order.

Kraus Manufacturing Co., 14 East 17th Street
New York

him granting a favor to one of the most notorious gamblers in the city, and he does so under stress of circumstances and is thoroughly disgusted with himself in consequence. A month later the father of Alice Fisher purchases the leading newspaper of the city, and the dive-keeper, the friend of Mason, has become a stench in the nostrils of all law-abiding citizens.

A woman whose husband has been fleeced in his dive, calls at the office of the sheriff and asks him to close the place, but the sheriff is bribed, and nothing comes of the appeal. Then a minister takes a hand to bring about reform, and he is bluffed.

The paper owned by the father of Alice takes up the cudgel, and the methods of the gambler are shown up in scathing terms. He decides to call down the editor, and when he arrives at the office he is met by the charming young woman, Alice Fisher, who tells him she is the editor and responsible for the utterances of the paper, and he retires, crestfallen, but vindictive. The fair editress is in the fight to a finish, and the bluffer's place is stormed by indignant women, who oust him, bag and baggage.

Then the political cohorts appeal to the district commissioner to down the editor, and the commissioner takes his orders and sends for the editor, only to be surprised and filled with consternation when he discovers that the editor is his quandom sweetheart, Alice Fisher. He is importuned by the crooked politicians to use every means in his power in their behalf and he is confronted with a dilemma.

There stands his sweetheart and all that is uplifting and ennobling on one hand, and the dive-keeper and brothel-house proprietor on the other, and in the balance hangs his own fate—for good or evil. The pure love of a sweet woman redeems him, and he severs his connection with the undesirable element. Of course, he marries the girl, and is thus rewarded.

LUX.

A ROMANCE OF THE STOCK EXCHANGE (March 8).—William, the son of the banker Monroe, is in love with his father's typist, and resolves to marry her, contrary to all the desires of his family. He resolves to leave home, to marry the girl of his choice, and to change his name. Years roll on, a panic is caused upon the Stock Exchange by the circulation of rumors hinting of the unsound financial conditions of the great Bank of Bellefontaine. Mr. Monroe, the manager, is terror stricken as he realizes that these malicious statements will lead to his ruin. In the course of a day the price of his stock drops so low that it is quite evident that he is absolutely ruined. At the last moment he receives a letter from a strange banker, offering to assist him in his dilemma. In due course the strange banker arrives. It proves to be William, come back to his father a wealthy and influential man, quite capable of preventing the impending failure. Proud of his son, and only too thankful to have him back again, the old banker relents and welcomes him and his wife home again.

A ROUGH SEA (March 8).—Splendid views of a storm upon the seacoast, concluding with a pretty little picture of the fishing fleet returning to port after the storm.

AMERICAN.

THE BROKEN TIES (March 7).—Jack Nelson and his father are good chums until he meets a widow, who inveigles him to marry her. She is no sooner installed in the new home than she starts to make things unpleasant for Jack.

The stepmother takes Jack's clothes from his room and turns them over to her son, telling Jack to make himself a bed in the barn. Jack endured it all until the son begins to make advances to his sweetheart. He quarrels with her and returns to have it out with the stepbrother. The mother interferes, and when the father hears them quarreling he defends the wife, and orders his son from his home. Jack goes back to say goodbye to his sweetheart and then leaves. In the meantime Nelson's new wife makes him uncomfortable and unhappy. And her son continues his attentions to Jack's former sweetheart until a city girl comes to the country, when he forsakes the country girl for the more vivacious girl. When she plans to return to the city, the son prevails on his mother to rob her husband of his savings and return with him to the city. Left alone the poor old father repents his harsh treatment to his son and the little girl Jack loves finds herself longing to throw herself in his arms and plead for his forgiveness. She goes to the desolated home and comforts Jack's father. A freight train pulls into town and out from a box car drops Jack. He has come to wreak vengeance on his destroyers. He approaches the old home and pulling out his gun examines it carefully to see that it is working properly. And then looking up he sees his sweetheart framed in the doorway. She comes to him and tells him the miserable story of robbery and faithlessness and begs his forgiveness. She calls the father and the three are reunited to start all over again.

AFTER SCHOOL (March 11).—After the death of their mother, Jane Terrell agrees to stay home and do the housework, while her little sister Bessie attends school. When the new schoolmaster arrives he comes to their home to board and admiring Jane's kindness, determines to give her lessons home. Both girls learn to admire and then to l the handsome teacher and when Bessie sees tl his evenings are all given to Jane she resents and confesses to her sister that she loves hi Jane sacrifices herself, discontinues her lessons a avoids the teacher. He is at a loss to understa her actions, for he has become deeply interested her, while he looks upon Bessie as an interesti child.

This was the condition when Jim Reeves, a sal man, stopped at the farm. Soon Bessie is more i terested in him than she is in Jack Redmo And then one night Bessie runs away to the c with him, leaving behind a note.

One morning Jane finds her little sister near t door. She sobs out the miserable story to Jane betrayal and desertion. Jack Redmond finds the and when he learns the truth swears to track do the salesman and force him to make retributio Fearing the father's wrath, they conceal Bessie the barn and the schoolmaster hurries to the cit Jack finds the girl's betrayer and asks him come with him. Reeves is defiant until Jack sho him that the suspicious-looking bulge in his pock is a revolver trained on him and he is forced to g with Jack to a justice of the peace. The thr of them return to the farm and under the tr Jim had met little Bessie the justice performed th ceremony. Jack tells him to be gone and nev come back. But with a newly awakened manhoo he decides to live with the little girl, of who innocence he had taken advantage, and togethe they go to the father. When Bessie shows hi she is married the father forgives them and take Bessie back into his heart. And out under th tree another romance reaches its culmination, fo Jack and Jane reach a perfect understanding a last.

For Sale—1,000 ft. reels film, $2.50 to $5; used machines, $35 to $75; new $225 Motiograph, $150; new $225 Edison, $150; used Motiograph, $75; round top tent, 60 ft., 50 ft. middle, $60; 20 x 50, $50. For Rent—12,000 feet film, association or independent, $12 weekly, one shipment, we pay express one way; 8,000 reels to pick from. Will buy, machines, 3 and 4 reel features.
H. DAVIS, Watertown, Wis.

PATHE'S WEEKLY
The Motion Picture Exhibitor's Mascot
ISSUED EVERY MONDAY
Book It Every Week

FEATURES!!!
When you're hooked up with the biggest and best film renter in the world (meaning nobody but me) you're bound to get all the best the market affords—and there's some rattling good feature stuff on tap right now and in the near future according to announcements received from manufacturers. Why pike along on junk when you can have the best? Things are doing. Roll over! Blink your eyes. Write, wire or call!
Carl Laemmle, President
The Laemmle Film Service
New Number:
204 West Lake St., Chicago, Ill.
Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1312 Farnam St., Omaha, Neb.
421 Walnut St., Des Moines, Iowa
The BIGGEST and BEST film renter in the World

MOVING PICTURE EXHIBITORS
We are handling Parts for all makes of Machines. We are NOT JUNK dealers. You can get a square deal and prompt attention, and we can save you money. Let us send you some circulars just for the asking.
On hand No. 5 Powers Head, used: in good condition, $50. Powers No. 5, complete with lenses ready for operation, slightly used; guaranteed perfect, $100. Powers No. 6, Edison Type B., on hand ready for shipment. Electra & Bio Carbons. Get acquainted with the STERN MFG. CO.
109 N. 10th St., Phila., Pa.
14 years in the business

SOLAX.

THE BOARDING HOUSE HEIRESS (March 13).—Old Betsey Older lives in a boarding house i which money-loving Bud Doolittle and wise Tom Dear are also unfortunate boarders. Poor Betsey loses her heart to both of these gentlemen. Betsey tries hard to win the love of these gentlemen, but the harder she tries the less progress she makes; in fact, she gets so tangled up that before long she thinks she "sees things."

Bud and Tom try to stake her to each other, for they are both victims of flirting Marian. Tom finally gets Bud to propose to Betsey, misleading him with a phantom legacy. Bud learns the truth of the heiress' real financial position and then leaves her at the altar.

FALLING LEAVES (March 15).—Trixie Thompson concludes that the only way she could save her sister from dying of the "white plague" is by preventing the autumn leaves from falling. Little Trixie knows all this because she had heard her elders say that those troubled with weak lungs usually begin to suffer and probably die when the leaves begin to fall.

Winifred, Trixie's older sister, is on the verge of contracting tuberculosis. The little girl loves her sister too much to let her die, so one night she steals into the garden in her "nightie" and fastens the fallen leaves with twine and hangs them up on the trees. Trixie keeps a rigid vigil for months and all the leaves that fall in the garden are replaced on the trees.

While Trixie busied herself with this metaphorical occupation, Dr. Earl Headley, a young lung specialist, discovers a serum which cures consumption. He is called in by the Thompsons and Winifred is soon brought back to health. The doctor not only restores her lungs but takes her heart. Little Trixie then permits the leaves to fall.

RELIANCE.

THE YEGGMAN (March 6).—Davenport, a youthful member of a yegg gang, is a fugitive from justice with a price on his head. Exhausted and fainting from hunger he enters a lonely railway station only to discover another poster facing him detailing his being wanted by the sheriff. He starts to leave, but drops from weakness. Belle Heddon, the girl telegraph operator, goes to his assistance, revives him with a glass of water and then shares her lunch with him. When he is in good enough condition to leave he takes her outside and shows her the poster, asking her if she realizes that she has befriended a criminal with a price on his head. She is startled for a moment then holds out her hand. He takes it and leaves. At the meeting-place of the gang he is told that a large amount of money for the mines will arrive at that same lonely station that afternoon and that they have planned to steal it when it arrives. Realizing that the girl that assisted him would be in danger of being killed he refuses to be a party to the crime. The leader of the gang fells him with

Independent Films For Sale
Low Prices—Send for Price List
F. C. LEIBOW, 61 W. 14th St., N. Y. City

McKENNA

BRASS
RAILINGS
EASELS
GRILLES
CUSPIDORS

BRASS
KICK PLATES
STAIR TREADS, DOOR SILLS

McKenna Bros. Brass Co.
PITTSBURGH, PA.

SCENARIO WRITERS!

If your scenarios do not sell find out why. Perhaps your manuscript can be rewritten and made saleable, and your mistakes may be corrected in future manuscripts. The author of "Technique of the Photoplay," etc., will give your manuscript personal criticism and revision for a fee of only $2.

REVISION—Scenarios having a reasonable chance of a sale will be edited and revised and a typewritten copy supplied for one dollar per finished page. Send the manuscript and a reading fee of one dollar. If the scenario will not warrant further expense, it will be returned to you; if it does, you will be advised as to full cost. Please note that this covers no criticism.

Exhibitors!

Submit your difficulties to the author of "The Photoplay Theater," and other articles on management, for advice and suggestion, the result of twenty years' experience in amusement enterprises. Simple questions $1 each.

Epes Winthrop Sargent
Box 70, Madison Square Station
New York City

Operators!

I guarantee quick and satisfactory repair work on all machines. Only genuine parts supplied. Get my prices on ONE DROP OIL and BULL DOG CEMENT the best articles of their kind on the market

H. A. MACKIE CO., Inc.
21 East 14th Street New York
'Phone: 2478 Stuyvesant

OPERA CHAIRS

FOR EVERY PURPOSE
1,000 STYLES

ESTABLISHED 1865
WRITE FOR CAT. No. 31

115-117 So. Wabash Ave.
Chicago, Ill.
The A. H. Andrews Co.
Branches in all Leading Cities
New York Office, 1165 Broadway. Seattle Office, 508-10-12 First Ave., So.
San Francisco Office, 673 Mission St.

Get Our Prices
Before You Buy

The Wisconsin Seating
Company
New London,
Wisconsin, U. S. A.

OPERA CHAIRS

Get Our Prices Before You Buy
Largest Variety
Lowest Prices
The Latest and Best in Seats

GEO. W. BENNETT
34-36 E. 3rd Street
CINCINNATI, OHIO

OH! MR. EXHIBITOR!!

THINK OF THE MOTHERLESS, THE FATHERLESS, AND THE Childless homes as the result of theater panics. Protect the lives of your patrons by installing our "ANTI-PANIC" THEATER CHAIR. 26 Dead at Cannonsburg, 176 at Boyertown, 575 at Iriquois Theater, Chicago. Make these horrors impossible.

Our chair is a friend to the Public.
It advertises your theater and makes your business grow.
It is a space-saver, life-saver, money-saver. Gives 25% more seating.

IT IS THE ONLY SANITARY CHAIR

It will make your theater all aisles.
It is the world's greatest theater chair, perfected to the highest degree.

Write today for Circular A. THE HARDESTY MFG. CO., Canal Dover, Ohio, U. S. A.

WE CAN HURRY

YOUR ORDER OUT.
STAFFORD Chairs excell all others.
HEAVY FIVE PLY seats and backs.
The last-forever kind, that you are using long after you have forgotten the price.

STEEL CHAIRS TOO

We carry several kinds of good chairs in stock, all guaranteed.

ASK FOR CATALOG 305

E. H. STAFFORD MFG. CO.
CHICAGO, ILL.

CHEAP

STEEL FRAME
THEATRE CHAIRS
ABSOLUTELY NON-BREAKABLE

Suitable for small Theatres and Moving Picture Shows. We carry these chairs in stock and can ship immediately.

Second Hand Chairs

Also seating for Out-of-door use.

Address Dept. W

STEEL FURNITURE CO., GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
New York: 150 5th Ave. Pittsburg: 318 Bissel Block.
Philadelphia: 610 Flanders Bldg. Chicago: 133 So. 5th Ave.

It pays to discriminate when you buy

THEATRE SEATING

WRITE TODAY for Cat. V2 (Mov. Picture Chairs) and Cat. V3 (Upholstered Chairs)
Send Floor Sketch for Free Seating Plan

Widest range of styles and prices. Large Stocks

American Seating Company
218 S. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO 15 E. 32nd St., NEW YORK

a blow and they leave him there stunned. When he becomes conscious again his only thought is of the girl. He staggers away and to the railway track where a limited is taking on water. At the point of a gun he forces the engineer and fireman to bring the train at full speed to the station. In the meantime the yeggmen have arrived at the station and are trying to break their way in. The girl is without gun protection and has barricaded all the means of entrance. As the yeggmen finally burst in the door she sees the train backing in, and smashing the window of her little office with a chair she grabs the money box and jumps through to the platform. Davenport rushes to her as one of the yeggmen fires through the window, and the bullet intended for Belle lodges in his heart. In that way he pays with his life the service done him by the girl only a few hours before.

THE BETTER MAN (March 9).—Walter Earl and Elmer Hay are two young farmers who are suitors for Dot Maynard's hand. Her father favors Walter while she herself favors Elmer. Walter is a clean cut young chap, but is inclined to be rather wayward and it is just those shortcomings that cause Dot to think that her sympathy and pity for him amount to real love. The rivalry comes to a climax shortly before the party at Dot's house. Elmer finds Walter trying to kiss Dot as she is returning from school after having a show fight with him. Taking Elmer's proffered arm she leaves Walter laughing at her and goes home with Elmer. The night of the country dance and candy-pull when all the country side is on hand the two young men almost come to blows. In fact after Elmer has been cautioned by Dot's father not to show her too much attention he finds the hard cider much to his liking and when the two are about to come to an ugly fight it is only averted by the father's anger and the breaking up of the party. Maynard has Walter wait and tells Dot that it is his wish that she marry him and his command that she have nothing further to do with Elmer. Elmer has waited outside for Walter to leave and then throws a snowball to Dot's bedroom window. She sees him and comes down to meet him by stealth. They arrange to elope the next day. On the way to meet her the next day, Elmer somewhat under the influence of drink, curses and beats his horse unmercifully when the sleigh overturns. Dot, coming along with her bundle of clothing, oversees his brutality and her seeming love at once turns to hate. Walter happens by when Elmer tries to force her into the sleigh and takes her home with him. She tells her father everything and he leaves her with Walter. She asks Walter's forgiveness and discovers that she has really loved him all along.

POWERS.

THE MYSTERY (March 9).—In this story, a young man is convicted of the murder of his sweetheart's father and is only saved at the eleventh hour by an important discovery made by his rival in love, who also was the judge who sentenced him. The real cause of the old man's death was a microscope, which acted as a sun glass and discharged an antique pistol.

THE POWER BEHIND THE THRONE (March 12).—Aria is the daughter of a gifted but poor musician. A baron, while riding past Aria's home, is thrown from his horse and injured. The nobleman is cared for by Aria and her mother. The first person to meet the baron's gaze when he returns to consciousness is Aria, and it is love at first sight between them.

In the governor's suite is his secretary, who is in love with Aria. He is rejected by Aria and he leaves the house.

The baron, longing to again see the musician's daughter, becomes her father's pupil. The king writes the governor, informing him that his son, the baron, must marry at once a duchess. The secretary tells the governor that the baron will not consent to forming such an alliance. The governor hastens to Aria's home and there finds the baron and hands him the king's letter. The baron tears it up. The governor then gives the secretary carte blanche to plot against Aria.

The first step of the secretary is to obtain the aid of a gay young count who also admires Aria's beauty and would give anything to have her in his power. Then the father and mother of Aria are arrested and placed in the public pillory and Aria is told that the only way she can have them set free will be for her to write and sign a certain letter. She is summoned to appear at a court ball. It is intended by the plotters that Aria shall show great fondness for the count and ignore the baron. She is then to be given drugged wine and carried away by the count. However, the duchess's maid and the baron's orderly are sweethearts and through the maid the orderly discovers the nature of the plot and warns Aria not to drink the wine. During the ball, the letter which Aria wrote is dropped, picked up and shown to the baron, who is thus led to believe Aria false and he upbraids her before the whole court. Aria is unable to defend herself.

Later, the baron, driven to desperation, visits Aria for one last interview before taking his life by means of poison. While he is talking with her, the orderly enters and substitutes for the poison the narcotic formerly intended for Aria.

The baron drinks the supposed poison. Aria drinks it also. Then believing herself to be dying, she tells the baron the truth respecting the letter and he begs to be forgiven for his unjust suspicions. the two then become unconscious and are discovered shortly afterwards by the governor and his suite who come in search of the baron. Aria's father and mother who have been set free, arrive at the same time. Everyone believes the young couple to be dead. The orderly explains to the governor and Aria's parents how he substituted a narcotic for the poison and the lovers are finally resuscitated.

WHO IS

MR. ALMOST BUTT

?

AMBROSIO.

TWEEDLEDUM'S EVASION (Feb. 28).—Tweedledum is a society burglar, and is assisted in his knavery by his sweetheart. She is apprehended by the police and cast into a cell. Tweedledum cleverly effects an entrance and the two make their escape in an amusing manner.

TWEEDLEDUM'S GIFT (Feb. 28).—Tweedledum is presented with a football and develops such extraordinary strength while playing with it that it becomes a missile of destruction, to the grief of pedestrians and the damage of crockery and glass. Tweedledum is finally punished by a crowd of furious people.

BISON.

THE BATTLE OF THE RED MEN (March 8).—The Sioux Indians are seen in their village, and the marriage custom is shown as Black Eagle weds Silver Moon. The Cheyennes invade the Sioux hunting ground and a Cheyenne attacks and slays a bear with a knife to prove his bravery. The party is attacked by the Sioux and war is declared. The Sioux ambush the Cheyennes and a desperate hand-to-hand struggle takes place, in which Black Eagle is killed, Silver Moon is broken with grief, and while seeking the body of her husband is captured by Cheyenne women and made a slave to the chief. The Sioux send Little Wolf to look for her, and he manages to crawl into her tepee during the night. Fascinated with her beauty the Cheyenne chief has become infatuated with his slave and, burning with hatred for the death of her husband, the Indian woman conceives a plan of revenge. She sends word to the Sioux by Little Wolf that she will lead the Cheyenne chief away and urges them to attack the leaderless tribe. The Sioux array themselves for the battle, and with coquettish wiles the pretty Indian woman lures the Cheyenne chief far from the camp. Like a bolt from a clear sky the Sioux hurl themselves upon the Cheyenne village. Without the guidance of their chief the Cheyennes fall easy victims to the Sioux, and but few escape. In a few moments the Cheyenne Village is a mass of flames. As the smoke rises to the sky the Cheyenne chief, startled, endeavors to run back, but he is held by Silver Moon, and in a sensational and dramatic scene she pushes him over the cliff.

GREAT NORTHERN.

FOR HER SAKE (March 9).—Marjorie is happily married to Jack, and the two of them dote upon their offspring. Presently, however, Marjorie's first love, a yachtsman, whom she had given up as lost, returns. Calling upon her, he is welcomed by Jack as a friend, and the serpent is installed in paradise. The light of the love that lasts still flickers in Marjorie's bosom, and she falls a ready prey to the first love's advances. He endeavors to induce her to elope with him, but the sight of her little one recalls her to her sense of duty. Six months later her husband is called away and leaves home for a long journey. No sooner has he departed than the yachtsman turns up again, and resumes his overtures. Leading him to her room, Marjorie shows him her sleeping child and says: "She will always stand between you and me." Meanwhile the husband has missed his train and returns home, thus discovering his wife under suspicious circumstances. The yachtsman escapes by the window, but is observed by a trusted servant, who informs her master. Finding he is discovered, the man again returns to the bedroom, where he is captured by Jack, who, finding him with a jewel box under his arm, imagines him to be a thief, and orders him out of the house.

MAJESTIC.

THE CLOSED BIBLE (March 10).—Driven to desperate expedients by the necessity of providing adequate food and shelter for his wife and babe, John Manners is tempted to avail himself of the opportunity an open window affords. Inside the room another man equally desperate has just take down his old family Bible and reads the old recor of his birth—the date of his marriage, the birt of his now five-year-old son, the death of his wif a year before and then writes his intention to joi his wife in the great beyond.

Manners is startled by a pistol shot and he catche the falling body of the owner of the house, Ran dolph Werner. A policeman has followed Manner through the window and he is placed under arres and sentenced to twenty years of imprisonment.

His wife drops dead in the courtroom. The year old babe of the dead woman claims the in terest and sympathy of the court and the District Attorney takes the child to his home. Twenty years have nearly passed and fate throws Randolph Werner, Jr., across the path of the girl. During her adopted father's absence from home a love affair soon matures and the girl presents young Randolph to her father as a suitor for her hand.

The District Attorney of twenty years back, now Judge Karthy, at once remembers the boy's father and refuses his consent to the marriage. He refuses to explain to the girl, but tells the boy that he may not marry Mabel because twenty years before he convicted her father of murdering the boy's father. Young Werner realizes the horror of the situation and also the wisdom of keeping Mabel in ignorance that she is an adopted daughter and resolves to give her up, but love is too strong, and a week later the Judge reads with sinking heart a note from Mabel that as he had given her no good reason for not marrying Werner she had eloped.

That very day the prison doors opened and released her father. At the moment Judge Karthy is facing death at the hand of the father the daughter is inscribing her name on the old dusty Bible of the Werner family, which has not been opened for twenty years. As her husband turns the pages he comes across the entry made by his father at the moment of death. Taking the "Book of Books" with them they fly to the Judge's home and arrive in the nick of time to save two lives and themselves a lifetime of regret.

THE UNWILLING BIGAMIST (March 12).—Nature, like history, sometimes repeats itself. It did so in the instance of Walter Smith and William Jones by making one the exact duplicate of the other. Neither knew not one whit of the other's existence until an automobile injures one of them so severely that he is landed in a hospital. Smith is the victim of the machine. The hospital officials fail to find anything on the man's person to establish his identity and the morning newspapers run his picture the following day, at the head of an account of the accident, as the unidentified victim of a careless chauffeur.

William Jones had left his home the morning of the accident, and his wife seeing the picture of the unknown in a newspaper identifies it as that of her husband. Smith disclaims any acquaintance whatever with the woman. She attributes his failure to recognize her to a lapse of memory due to the bump on his head.

Mrs. Jones carts him off to her home. In one of his efforts to communicate with his wife, a letter he bribes the housemaid to deliver is intercepted by Mrs. Jones. On reading this letter she is convinced of the fact that her spouse is a bigamist. She immediately communicates by phone with Mrs. Smith, whom she firmly believes is wife No. 2.

The real Jones comes on the scene at the critical moment. Explanations follow. Mrs. Jones is tearfully penitent and the Smiths are happily reunited.

Among the Exhibitors.

Oconomowoc, Wis.—The Palace Moving Picture Theater has been leased by Frank Erdman.

Lewistown, Mont.—Messrs. Rowland & Olds will open a moving picture theater here.

Knoxville, Pa.—A. B. Hitchcock is erecting a moving picture house here.

Rochester, N. Y.—Isaac Fisher will erect a $4,000 moving picture theater at 954 Portland Avenue.

Scranton, Pa.—The new Star Theater, remodeled and renovated, opened its doors Saturday night to capacity audiences.

Hickman, Ky.—Jake E. Dillon, manager of the Lyric Theater, has leased a building and will use it for another motion picture house.

Elmira, N. Y.—Manager Lee Norton of the Lyceum Theater, has received offers for the lease of the Family Theater on East Market Street, which has been closed since last spring.

Marion, Ind.—Harry J. Bernstein has made a contract whereby his new building an Adams street, between Fourth and Fifth Streets, will be leased to Thomas Wols, who will operate a moving picture theater there.

Missouri Valley, Iowa.—The Palm, a playhouse controlled by C. C. Pratt, has been sold to Ross McLaughlin, R. C. Lohman and Guy Mahoney, who plan to remodel and convert it into a high-class picture house.

Nebraska City, Neb.—Fred Hamilton and Gus Nanos are planning to open a motion picture theater in York. Mr. Hamilton has had previous experience in the picture business, having been the proprietor of an elaborate picture house known as the Empire.

We make no promises we can't keep. We keep every promise we make.

STANDARD FILM EXCHANGE

CHICAGO

The Service That Serves You Best

> FALL IN LINE <

at once and be one of the happy customers of the STANDARD FILM EXCHANGE. It is the Leading Film Renting Concern in the World. "Standard" SERVICE insures GOOD SERVICE, Better Programs, BEST TREATMENT. Our Motto: The Most for Your Money—get right—Start using Standard Service NOW!

EXECUTIVE OFFICES, 168 W. Washington St., Chicago. Local and Long Distance 'Phone Franklin 1918.

BUSINESS OFFICES AND WAREROOMS, 168-172 W. Washington St., Chicago. 319 W. Jefferson St., Louisville. 102 Y. M. C. A. Building, Sioux Falls, S. Dak.

WE HANDLE

ALL MAKES OF MOTION PICTURE MACHINES AND FULL LINE OF SUPPLIES

GET NEXT TO THE "STANDARD"

FOR EVERYTHING PERTAINING TO THE BUSINESS

If you have something you don't

WANT

and

WANT

something you don't have,
and

WANT

verybody to get acquainted with your

WANT

ADVERTISE THE FACTS in the

IOVING PICTURE WORLD

Classified advertising rates, 3c per word. Minimum charge, 50c. Display rates given on request.

THE CRYSTAL FILM CO.

PRODUCERS OF

"CRYSTAL" and "ARROW" FILMS

SPECIAL MOTION PICTURES FOR ADVERTISING, EDUCATIONAL, AND OTHER PURPOSES.

PERFORATING, PRINTING AND DEVELOPING

A PERFECT PLANT, EQUIPPED WITH THE VERY BEST MACHINERY AND OPERATED BY EXPERTS.

INSPECTION OF OUR STUDIO AND LABORATORIES IS INVITED

THE CRYSTAL FILM CO.

WENDOVER AND PARK AVES., NEW YORK, N. Y.

B AN OPERATOR

Our me study course tells how. It is scientific, practical d complete. Illustrated with many original draw s it goes down to the kernel. Our course make you a skilled operator. You can secure a licem anywhere after completing our course. Ask for I klet B—it is free.

DIAMOND OPERATING SCHOOL

8 Sc h 15th St., St. Louis, Mo.

DANTE'S INFERNO

(Milano, 5 Reels, Licensed—Helios, 2 Reels, Independent)

Open for Bookings in Greater New York City and State

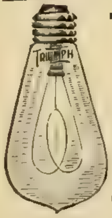
SUPERIOR FEATURE FILM CO. 32 UNION SQUARE, EAST NEW YORK CITY

FO SALE NEW JERSEY STATE RIGHT FOR

ANTE'S INFERNO

HELIO'S MAKE

Incl ing one print with 1-3-8 sh. paper, $200.
Inq e Royal Theatre, 269 Main St., Paterson, N. J.



INCANDESCENT LAMPS
FOR PARKS, Theaters, SHOWS
CARBON LAMPS

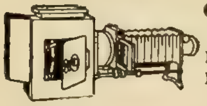
CLASS A.		CLASS B.
Clear -	10c	Clear -	6c
Colored -	11c	Colored -	7c

Tungsten Lamps, 60 W., 60c; 40 W., 40c.

SAFETY ELECTRIC CO.
342 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago.

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES

Stereopticons, Slides, Accessories



CHAS. M. STEBBINS
1028 Main St.
KANSAS CITY, MO
Large Line of Edison Goods
Established 1899

Di solving Effect with ingle Stereopticon

Ev Exhibitor and Operator should have a

Reid's Diffusor

an ised with any machine. Prepaid for $2.00 eid' Diffuser Co., 26 Waverly Ct., Chicago, Ill.

When Your Picture Machine Needs Repairing

Why don't you send it to us?

We have the best equipped machine shop in the country and can repair any make of machine. Write us and get acquainted.

We buy second hand machines.

GEO. M. HOKE SUPPLY CO., 176 N. State St., Bet. Lake & Randolph Chicago, Ill.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum; postage stamps accepte

HELP WANTED.

FOREMAN-MANAGER wanted for a film printing business for a permanent position. Must have a thorough experience in perforating, printing and developing film. State experience, whether married or single, and salary required by the year. All communications treated in the strictest confidence. Address X. Y. Z., care Moving Picture World, New York City.

WANTED—Quick. Singer for illustrated songs. Must be A-1. Double violin preferred. Wire. ART THEATER, East Radford, Va.

MANAGER OPERATOR—Seven years' experience. Wants position with reliable company who appreciate first-class man. Have machine. References. Married, sober, A-1 advertiser and poster writer. P. O. BOX 453, Watertown, South Dakota.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

AT LIBERTY—Operator and Electrician. 6 years' experience. Can operate and repair any make machine. Will repair anything electrical. Have operated road shows and will go anywhere. Save your stamps if you don't mean business. H. L. BARNHART, 702 West York Ave., York, Pa.

AT LIBERTY—Moving Picture Operator. With New York and New Jersey license. As operator or assistant manager. What have you? WEBSTER, 24 4th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

OPERATOR—Experienced, Powers or Edison. Good mechanic. Illinois or Michigan. JOHN HENRY PEYROT, 1420 West Ohio St., Chicago, Ill.

EXPERT cinematographer, thoroughly acquainted in all manufacturing lines. Practical experience in camera work, both outside and studio; tinting, toning, developing and finishing. Best of references. CINEMATOGRAPHER, care of Moving Picture World, Chicago, Ill., 167 W. Washington St.

MOTION PICTURE MANAGER wants managing position. Can do any branch of the business, sing, play and lecture pictures. Best reference from present company and other big well known companies. Reliable, honest and trustworthy. Wife a professional picture theater singer. Address MOTION PICTURE MANAGER, Parkinson Hotel, Oklahoma City, Okla.

FIRST CLASS OPERATOR with Philadelphia license, desires position in, or vicinity of Philadelphia. $12. OPERATOR, 105 Chambers St., New York City.

THEATERS WANTED.

Paying Propositions; confidential service. B. C. ARMSTRONG, Dept. B, Station A, Columbus, Ohio.

THEATER FOR SALE.

MOVING PICTURE HOUSE for sale at a sacrifice. Good location, five miles from Boston. Capacity 225 seats. F. L., care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

EQUIPMENT WANTED.

WANTED—50 second-hand Motion Picture Equipments or mechanisms, or will allow towards the payment of new mechanisms or equipments. Give full particulars and lowest price on outright sale basis. Address Department A, AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY, 107 N. Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Cheap. Two reels of film or exchange for second hand picture machine. J. NOONAN, 736 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

FOR SALE—Have quit the Motion Picture Business. My equipment cheap for cash. Either separate or all together. It will pay you to write me. A. A. HERRING, Walla Walla, Wash.

FOR SALE—Late model Powers No. 5 machine. Complete with stereopticon lense. Price $100. Sent C. O. D. F. W. METTLER, 705 Hippodrome, Prospect Building, Cleveland, Ohio.

SPECIAL FOR MARCH—Ten per cent. discount on moving picture supplies, tickets, carbons, cement, condensers, etc. Send for big list. N. & T. SUPPLY CO., 317 Granby Street, Norfolk Va.

FOR SALE—Moving Picture machine head. Used three days. Cheap. No dealer. Sent subject to examination. C. M. CHENEY, 5356 Calumet Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

EQUIPMENT WANTED.

WANTED—To buy Powers No. 6 Head wi out lens or magazines. LOCK BOX 504, Archbald Pa.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WANTED—Moving Picture Theater man ers everywhere to send us their name and ad ss. We have something for you. EXHIBITORS' R-VICE COMPANY, 713 Traction Terminal Bui ng, Indianapolis, Ind.

FILM WANTED—"The Little Train Robb ." New or second-hand, state price. O. H. BALS Y, West Side, Connellsville, Pa.

J. A. MORRISON, Meaford, Ont., box 125, lds the exclusive rights of all "101 Ranch" m ing pictures; also the great "101 Real Wild est Show." For information write him at abov address.

FOR RENT, IN HEART OF ATLANTIC Y, N. J.—Vacant lot. Most desirable and conve nt. Lease to suit and reasonable size. 60 x 90. J. ES A. HUMPHRYS, Humphrys Buildings, At tic City, N. J. Permanent population 50,000. Sumer population 300,000.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SCENERY AND SCREEN for your picture use free. Write for proposition. JESSE COX SC IC COMPANY, 1221 Roberts Street, Estherville, Ia.

FOR SALE, CHEAP—Electric sign "Idle r." For particulars write CHAS. NAMUR, 617 Wa Street, Des Moines, Iowa.

WHO IS

MR. ALMOST BUT

?

One of our numerous customers writes: We beg to ackNOwledge receipt of your letter, and are very pleased to be able to inform you that we still continue to draw people into our Hall than our opposition who run nothing else but first run programmes; this, we feel sure, is entirely owing to your supplying us with

MORE

FEATURE

Subjects: Our receipts have increased 30 per cent. on the last month with the aid of your which we run on Thursdays, making this day equal to Saturday in receipts.

FILMS

PLEASE

arrange to supply us in future with a two reel feature for Tuesday and a three reel for Thursday.

INDEPENDENT FILM SERVICE
233 N. 8th Street, Philadelphia
Bell Phone: Market 334. Cable: "Bradfilms," Phila.

☞! COMING: OUR LADY OF LOURDES AND BERNADETTE, 2 Reel Lenten Film

Columbia Feature Film Company

Attell-Moran Championship Fight - - -	2 Reel
Ten Nights in a Barroom (Tinted) - - -	4 "
Siege of Calais (Tinted) - - - - -	2 "
Gaumont's Delhi Durbar - - - - -	1 "
" Christian Martyrs (Hand Colored)	1 "
" Heaven's Messenger " "	1 "

WE RELEASE EVERY WEEK

The Gaumont Weekly—animated news of the world Greatest of them all.

COMING

Angel of the Trail - - - - 2 Reels—March 1s
Gaumont's—The Trust - - - 2 " —March 9t

BEING IMPORTED

The Passion Play. Life of Moses.

We buy nothing but new copies and prices are righ Better get in line and boost your receipts.

422 N. High St., Columbus, Ohio.

LECTURING the PICTURES

HUGH F. HOFFMAN
Lecturer of Special Releases
NEW YORK CITY
AND VICINITY

Now booking engagements for Homer's "Odyssey," Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, East Lynne, Dante's "Inferno," Delhi Durbar, She, and other Topical or Dramatic feature pictures.

Address care of
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
Telephone Gramercy 1344

125 E. 23d St.
NEW YORK

Notice to Manufacturers o Moving Pictures

AT the annual convention of the "National Alliance of Theat cal Stage Employees" held in Niagara Falls, N. Y., durir July, 1911, a resolution was adopted instructing their exec tive board to communicate with the manufacturers of movi pictures and respectfully request that members of the I. A. T. S. be employed to construct all scenery, scenic effects, properties, et and the setting thereof, used in the production of moving pictur

By the employment of members of the I. A. T. S. E. you are a sured of the very highest class of skilled workmanship in all lin of construction. This, in conjunction with the fact that your fil is being projected by operators, members of the I. A. T. S. should doubly assure its perfection, on completion and exhibition the screen.

Capable men in all branches will be furnished upon application our offices or our representative will call at your request.

Respectfully,
Jos. L. Meeker, Cor. Sec.,
1547 Broadway, N. Y.

Phone 1479 Bryant.

WATCH THIS SPACE
FOR FUTURE
FEATURE
FILMS

OUR NEWEST IMPORTATIONS

THE FOUR DAREDEVILS
3000 FEET (8 SHEET POSTERS)
TRISTAN AND ISOLDE
2 REELS (COLORED)
NOTRE DAME DE PARIS
3 REELS (COLORED) (3 AND 12 SHEET POSTERS)
THE SIEGE OF CALAIS
2 REELS (COLORED) (3 AND 12 SHEET POSTERS)
SINS OF LOVE
3 REELS (EXTRAORDINARY POSTERS)
A ROMANCE OF THE MEXICAN REVOLUTION
4 REELS (POSTERS AND PHOTOGRAPHS)
and many others

AGENTS FOR EVERY STATE WANTED. Exhibitors Preferred

Feature Film Co.
108 E. 12th St., New York
We handle no Dupes

FILM INSURANCE

eature Film Buyers, protect your investment

"CELLUKOTE"

scientific process of applying a oat of celluloid to the emulsion side f the film.

No Rain Storms Possible

lean films and Brighter Pictures.
akes film stronger and lasts nger. Prevents damage to Emul-on and Picture side.

ilms that have been in service can Cleaned, Buffed and "Celluoted" and made almost equal to ew.

ecommended and endorsed by onopol Film Co., Carnival Feare Co., Buffalo Bill and Pawnee ill Film Co., Raising-the-Maine
lm Co., and many others.

Send for sample and literature.

he "Cellukote" Company
SUITE 705
45 West 45th Street, New York City

Ornamental Theatres

PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
2549 Archer Avenue, :: CHICAGO, ILL.

In answering advertisements kindly mention The Moving Picture World.

BRUNSWIG BROS.

New York Harmony Boys.

Formerly with Mansfield's Heidelberg Quartette.

"Singing to Please the People"

Classic, Popular, Ragtime and Comic Songs.

50 CONSECUTIVE WEEKS IN THE SOUTHEAST.

Miami, Fla., engagement extended from 3 weeks to 6.

March 11 play return date Montgomery, Ala.

Empress Theatre—4 Weeks

Will be pleased to hear from

MANAGERS

in any part of the country (prefer the Middle West or Pacific Coast)
Address: Montgomery, Ala., commencing March 11 (4 weeks) or MOVING PICTURE WORLD, New York City.

6 States Sold Last Week

20 YEARS IN SING SING

GREATEST MOVING PICTURE EVER MADE

States Unsold

Connecticut	$650
Delaware	400
Idaho	450
District of Columbia and Maryland	600
Massachusetts	700
Montana	450
Minnesota	700
New York	1,300
New Jersey	500
Nebraska	550
New Hampshire	500
North and South Dakota	500
Rhode Island	350
Vermont	500
Wyoming	400
North and South Carolina	600
Virginia	600

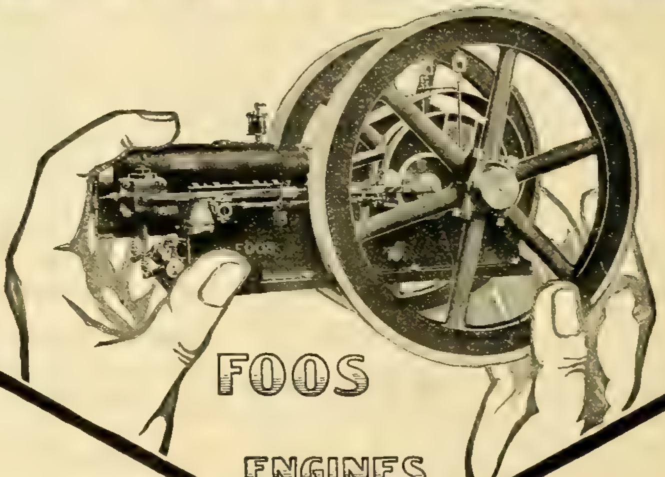
These prices include one print of film and three reels, complete lobby display and carrying crate outfit for street drive and one week's advance billing. Terms 20% deposit on acceptance, balance C. O. D., subject to examination. Write in for our prices on two and three states with one outfit.

Cinch Your State by Wire Today

America's Feature Film Co.

403 Schiller Building,
CHICAGO, ILL.

HELD UP FOR YOUR APPROVAL



FOOS ENGINES

ON THE MARKET 25 YEARS

3 TO 90 HORSE-POWER HORIZONTAL

TO OPERATE ON GAS, GASOLINE, KEROSENE AND OTHER LIQUID FUELS
SPECIAL ELECTRIC 3 TO 75 H. P. BELTED OR DIRECT CONNECTED TO GENERATOR
PORTABLE ENGINES AND MANY SPECIAL RIGS 3 TO 35 H. P.
CATALOG F-98 ON REQUEST

THE FOOS GAS ENGINE CO., 809 Linden Ave., Springfield, Ohio

RADIANT VELLUM

Patent applied for

A NEW cloth for screens. This Vellum, owing to its extraordinary brilliancy, permits you to show Films or Slides by daylight. A high grade screen at a reasonable price.

Radiant Vellum is made in continuous rolls 41 inches wide and may be joined into screens of any size.

Send for price list.

Samples, one-half yard, mailed on receipt of 25c.

WILLIAMS, BROWN & EARLE, Inc.

Manufacturers of Special Projection Apparatus of all kinds, and Manufacturers' Sole Agents for white Condensers and Oxodium.

Dept. 64. 916-918 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

THE ENTERPRISE (Portable) CALCIUM GAS OUTFIT

Price with carrying case, $35.00

Is the only Substitute for Electricity for projecting Motion Picture or Stereopticon Views and is the

ONLY SATISFACTORY PORTABLE OUTFIT

because it operates by WATER PRESSURE, IS CONSTANT, REGULAR AND RELIABLE and has no complicated spring valves to corrode, choke up and otherwise get out of order. Is patented.

"OXONE" in SQUARE CAKES is most satisfactory for the production of oxygen gas.

For Sale by Dealers Everywhere.

Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co. MANUFACTURERS 564-572 W. Randolph Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

FILMS FOR RENT

6 Reels 6.00 12 Reels 12.00

CINDERELLA
CHEYENNE DAYS
JESSE JAMES
FALL OF TROY
UNCLE TOM'S CABIN
TEN NIGHTS BAR ROOM

Morton Film Exchange

536 So. Dearborn St.,
CHICAGO.

British Film Agency

Personally acquainted and have done business with nearly every buyer of Moving Picture Films throughout the world, and connected with front rank London Film House; will undertake exclusive London Agency for British Dominions, for first-class American Films.

Practical and expert film maker, if manufacturing is required.

H. H. Care of Moving Picture World

COMPENSARC

That's the device that saves Moving Pictur men two-thirds on their electric light bills and yet gives better light. Did you see ou ad. last week? Well, don't look it up. Jus write for our

Booklet 15018

Fort Wayne Electric Works

1402 Broadway
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA 733

A GREAT SCOOP.

THE QUAKER CITY FILM & FEATURE EXCHANGE, G. B. GRAFF, MANAGER, has secured the STATE RIGHTS, on EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA, and SOUTHERN NEW JERSEY, for all releases of the GREAT NORTHERN SPECIAL FEATURE FILM CO. of New York.

Write, wire, or phone to 804 Cherry St., Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

PENNSYLVANIA!!!

Attention of managers is directed to the extraordinary success of

DANTE'S INFERNO (MILANO, 5 Reels) Thro' Pennsylvania Licensed Houses only

It has demonstrated itself to be Absolutely the Greatest Success of any Travelling, Legitimate or Picture Show touring America today.

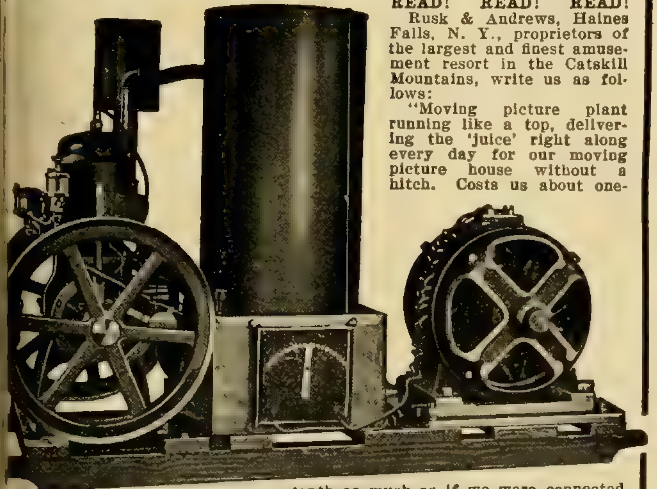
Last month it opened on a circuit for The Moving Picture Company of America, and during the FIRST of its TWO WEEKS' engagement at Reading no fewer than 21,000 paid for admission to witness this extraordinary film.

We are ready to put out additional companies, and we solicit inquiries; we are open to play straight rental or percentage. Tell us what you want to do, give us your best proposition and all particulars by wire or by mail. We have 50 kinds of paper, we have an ELOQUENT LECTURER, an ALL-ALIVE PUBLICITY MAN and a CORKING GOOD-EFFECTS TEAM. We can get your town ablaze with talk of HELL.

Now playing Harrisburg. Connect at once

Manager "DANTE'S INFERNO" :: :: Harrisburg, Pa.

The Biggest Sensation Yet is the $250.00 Detroit Moving Picture Electric Light Plant



READ! READ! READ!

Rusk & Andrews, Haines Falls, N. Y., proprietors of the largest and finest amusement resort in the Catskill Mountains, write us as follows:

"Moving picture plant running like a top, delivering the 'juice' right along every day for our moving picture house without a hitch. Costs us about one-tenth as much as if we were connected with the Public Service, also pumps ater to all our buildings, 2,000 gallons per day, and have it for fire engine case of fire."

Used and highly endorsed by the U. S. Army.

Many write us that the total cost of light for running their show for a eek is less than one dollar. Think of it.

Gives you better light than you can buy. Gives you the same light in e afternoon as at night. Can be operated by a boy ten years old.

Larger sized plants at proportionately low prices. THE SALVATION OF HE MOVING PICTURE BUSINESS. Write for Bulletin No. 101. You ill find it the most intensely interesting little book you ever read if you e interested in moving pictures.

IMMEDIATE SHIPMENT. Wire your order and let your remittance llow by mail.

ETROIT ENGINE WORKS, Dept. No. 102, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A. manufacturers of the best and only real moving picture electric light ant in the world.

WE WILL PAY YOUR FARE TO DETROIT to see this wonderful plant operation if there does not happen to be one of them at work in your mediate vicinity, the fare to be deducted from the purchase price. rite for full information regarding this liberal offer.

The E-Z Slide-Making Outfit

A SIMPLIFIED METHOD OF MAKING YOUR OWN ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES

The E-Z slides are composed of a specially prepared transparent fibreless parchment sheet bound between two heavy mat board frames—a complete slide all ready for use.

CLEAR AS GLASS

You can write or print on these slides as easily as on a sheet of writing paper and the ink will not run or blur.

The outfit consists of blank slides and a series of printed copy sheets of various sizes and styles of type, ornaments, etc., for tracing letters on slides.

	Price
No. 1 Outfit consists of 12 blank slides, copy sheets, etc.	$ .50
No. 2 Outfit consists of 36 blank slides, copy sheets, etc.	1.25
No. 3 Outfit consists of 100 blank slides, copy sheets, etc.	3.35

THE E-Z STANDARD ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES

For sale at film exchanges.

The most desirable on the market. Will outlast glass. Indestructible by heat, being made of mica. Artistically Designed and Beautifully Colored.

Price 25 cents each.

Send for new 1912 catalogue.

BATTERSHALL & OLESON 39 W. ADAMS ST CHICAGO, ILL

INDEPENDENT Release Dates

M. P. DISTRIBUTING & SALES CO.

AMERICAN.

Feb. 29—An Assisted Elopement (Com.).......1000
Mar. 4—From the Four Hundred to the Herd (W. Dr.)..........................1000
Mar. 7—The Broken Ties (W. Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 11—After School (Dr.)..................1000
Mar. 14—A Bad Investment (Dr.).............1000
Mar. 18—The Full Value (Dr.)...............1000

CHAMPION.

Feb. 14—For Her Father's Sake (Dr.)......... 950
Feb. 19—The Merchant Mayor of Indianapolis (Dr.) 950
Feb. 21—A Wife's Discovery (Com.)........... 950
Feb. 26—The Robbery at the Railroad Station (Com.-Dr.) ....
Feb. 26—A Higher Power (Dr.)................
Feb. 28—Wrongly Accused (Dr.)...............
Mar. 4—The Manicurist (Dr.)................ 950
Mar. 6—Blind (Dr.).......................... 950
Mar. 11—The Fatal Glass (Dr.)............... 950
Mar. 13—The Editor (Dr.).................... 950

COMET.

Jan. 8—Mr. Whoops, the Detective (Com.)....
Jan. 12—The Widow (Com.-Dr.)...............
Jan. 15—The Braid (Dr.).....................
Jan. 19—Thirty Days (Com.)..................

ECLAIR.

Feb. 22—Jealous Julia (Com.).................
Feb. 25—A Terrible Night (Com.)..............
Feb. 25—The City of Mosques (Scenic)..........
Feb. 27—The Guardian Angel (Am. Dr.)......
Feb. 29—Getting Dad Married (Am. Com.).....
Mar. 3—The Interrupted Telegram (Dr.)......
Mar. 3—Prague, the Beautiful (Scenic.)......
Mar. 5—A Child's Plea (Am.-Dr.)..........
Mar. 7—No Wedding Bells for Me (Am.-Com.)
Mar. 10—Alcohol (2 reels) (Dr.)...............
Mar. 12—Bridge (Dr.) ....
Mar. 14—The Kodak Contest (Com.)...........
Mar. 14—Shriners' Parade at Rochester, N. Y. (Topical) ....
Mar. 17—The World's Champion (Com.).......
Mar. 17—Willie's First Cigar (Com.)..........

GREAT NORTHERN.

Jan. 20—A Summer Flirtation (Com.)........
Jan. 27—A Friend to Children (Com.)..........
Jan. 27—The Man With the Puppets (Com.)....
Feb. 3—Vengeance vs. Love (Dr.)...........
Feb. 10—A Burglar's Love (Dr.)..............
Feb. 17—Unexpected Duty (Com.).............
Feb. 17—Along the Italian Riviera (Scenic)....
Feb. 24—Those Married Men (Com.)..........
Mar. 2—Revenge Is Sweet (Com.)............
Mar. 2—Obverse and Reverse (Com.)........
Mar. 9—For Her Sake (Dr.)..................

IMP.

Feb. 22—The Lie (Dr.).......................1000
Feb. 24—Ice Boating on the Shrewsbury River, N. J. (Sporting)..................... 400
Feb. 24—The Broken Lease (Com.-Dr.)....... 600
Feb. 26—The Immigrant's Violin (Dr.).......1000
Feb. 29—The Rose of California (Dr.)........1000
Mar. 2—Beat at His Own Game (Com.)....... 400
Mar. 2—The Right Clue (Com.)............... 600
Mar. 4—Far From the Beaten Track (Dr.)....1000
Mar. 7—The Call of the Drum (Dr.)..........1000
Mar. 9—The Home Strike Breakers (Com.).. 600
Mar. 9—Rhoda Royal's Trained Horses (Top.). 400
Mar. 11—A Timely Repentance (Dr.)..........1000
Mar. 14—Shamus O'Brien (Dr.)...............1000
Mar. 16—Daring Feats on a Cavalry Horse (Topical) 400
Mar. 16—Percy Learns to Waltz (Com.)....... 600

LUX.

Feb. 2—Fickle Woman (Com.-Dr.).......... 550
Feb. 2—The Skivvy and the Mat (Com.).... 878
Feb. 9—The Tramp's Dog (Dr.).............. 744
Feb. 9—Weaving Carpet (Ind.) 239
Feb. 16—Bill Tunes the Piano (Com.)......... 541
Feb. 16—Baby's Ghost (Com.)................ 400
Feb. 23—The Cook's Revenge (Com.)......... 459
Feb. 23—Bill's Motor (Com.).................. 414
Mar. 1—Bill and the Lions (Com.)............ 377
Mar. 1—The Skivvy's Ghost (Com.).......... 557
Mar. 8—A Romance of the Stock Exchange (Dr.) 761
Mar. 8—A Rough Sea (Scenic)................ 223

BISON.
(N. Y. M. P. CO.)

Jan. 30—Love and Jealousy (Dr.).............
Feb. 2—The Empty Water Keg (Dr.)........
Feb. 6—The Protection of the Cross (Dr.)......
Feb. 9—A Tenderfoot's Revenge (Dr.)........
Feb. 13—"Broncho" Bill's Love Affair........
Feb. 16—Wild West Circus....................
Feb. 20—The Deputy's Sweetheart (Dr.).......
Feb. 23—War On the Plains (W. Dr.)........
Mar. 1—The Indian Massacre (Dr.)...........
Mar. 8—The Battle of the Redmen (Dr.)......
Mar. 15—The Deserter (Dr.) ....
Mar. 22—Blazing the Trail (Dr.).............
Mar. 29—The Crisis (Dr.)....................

AMBROSIO.

Jan. 31—Sammy, the Little Bootblack (Dr.)...
Jan. 31—Tweedledum's Father and his Worthy Son (Com.) ....
Feb. 7—Tweedledum a Riding Schoolmaster..
Feb. 7—Called Back on the Right Path........
Feb. 14—Father's Fault ....
Feb. 21—Accursed Rock ....
Feb. 28—Tweedledum's Evasion (Com.)........
Feb. 28—Tweedledum's New Year's Gift (Com.)
Mar. 6—Duchess' Lady Companion............

ITALA.
(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

Jan. 20—No Release On This Date............
Jan. 27—Toto Enamorato (Com.)..............
Feb. 3—The Ascent of the Matterhorn........
Feb. 3—Anarchical Attempt (Com.)............
Feb. 10—Toto, Door-Keeper (Com.) ....
Feb. 10—Hunting Ducks (Sporting)............
Feb. 17—The Italian Army in Tripoli..........
Feb. 17—Making a Cinematograph Scene.......

MAJESTIC.

Feb. 2—An Old Lady of Twenty (Com.)......
Feb. 2—Lucky Man (Com.)....................
Feb. 4—A Game for Two (Com.)..............
Feb. 9—Honor Thy Father (Dr.).............
Feb. 11—Arresting Father (Dr.) ....
Feb. 16—His Step-Mother (Com.)..............
Feb. 18—Petticoat Perfidy (Com.).............
Feb. 25—Bought (Dr.) ....
Feb. 27—Strip Poker (Com.)...................
Mar. 3—Does Your Wife Love You? (Com.)..
Mar. 5—The Best Man Wins (Com.)..........
Mar. 10—The Closed Bible (Dr.)..............
Mar. 12—The Unwilling Bigamist (Com.) .....

NESTOR.

Feb. 19—Blind Man's Buff (Com.).............
Feb. 21—Rollicking Red's Big Lark (W. Com.)
Feb. 24—Settled Out of Court (Com.)........
Feb. 24—Tightwad Almost Saves a Dollar (Com.)
Feb. 24—Grand Canyon, Arizona (Scenic)......
Feb. 26—The Smugglers (Dr.)................
Feb. 26—At Rolling Forks (W. Dr.)...........
Mar. 2—His Good Intentions (Com.).........
Mar. 2—The Battle of Roses (Topical)........
Mar. 4—The Mills of the Gods (Dr.)..........
Mar. 6—The Double Trail (W. Dr.)..........
Mar. 9—The Village Rivals (Com.)..........
Mar. 9—Arizona—the New State (Scenic).....
Mar. 11—The Revelation (Dr.).................
Mar. 13—The Fighting Chance (W. Dr.) .....
Mar. 16—The Unknown Model (Com.).... .....

POWERS.

Jan. 30—Billy's Surrender (Dr.)...............
Feb. 3—The Explorer (Dr.)...................
Feb. 6—The Nurse (Dr.).....................
Feb. 10—A Walter of Weight (Com.-Dr.)......
Feb. 13—The Turning Point (Dr.)..............
Feb. 17—A Woman of No Importance (Dr.)....
Feb. 20—His Brother Willie (Com.)...........
Feb. 24—As Fate Would Have It (Dr.).......
Feb. 27—A Tangled Courtship (Dr.)...........
Mar. 2—The Path of Genius (Dr.).............
Mar. 5—The Honor of a Pugilist (Dr.)........
Mar. 9—The Mystery (Dr.)...................
Mar. 12—The Power Behind the Throne (Dr.)..

RELIANCE.

Jan. 31—Solomon's Son (Dr.)................
Feb. 3—The Man Under the Bed (Dr.)........
Feb. 7—The Stolen Letter (Dr.)..............
Feb. 10—Bedelia's Busy Morning (Com.)......
Feb. 10—Natural History Series, No. 3 (Edu.)..
Feb. 14—Wanted a Wife (Dr.).................
Feb. 17—The Gambler's Daughter (Dr.)........
Feb. 21—Key West Celebration (Topical.)....
Feb. 21—Bedelia and Mrs. Busybody (Com.)...
Feb. 24—A Child's First Love (Dr.)..........
Feb. 28—Bedelia and the Suffragette (Com.)..
Mar. 2—The Duel (Dr.).......................
Mar. 6—The Yeggman (Dr.)...................
Mar. 9—The Better Man (Dr.)................

REPUBLIC.

Feb. 4—Northern Hearts (Dr.)...............
Feb. 10—Mother's Old Armchair (Dr.)........
Feb. 11—The Reckoning (Dr.).................
Feb. 17—Human Nature (Com.-Dr.)...........
Feb. 18—The Girl Who Waited (Dr.)..........
Feb. 24—A Tangled Skein (Dr.)...............
Feb. 27—In the Government Service (Dr.)......
Mar. 2—His Partner's Wife (Dr.)............
Mar. 5—The Dream (Dr.)....................
Mar. 9—A Brand from the Burning (Dr.)....
Mar. 12—Two Men (Dr.)......................
Mar. 16—The Scar (Dr.)......................

REX.

Jan. 25—A Sane Asylum (Com.)..............
Jan. 28—The Defendar of the Name (Dr.)......
Feb. 1—Fine Feathers (Dr.).................
Feb. 4—Readin', Ritin' an' Rithmetic (Com.-Dr.) ....
Feb. 8—The Bargain (Dr.)...................
Feb. 11—Through Twisting Lanes (Dr.).......
Feb. 15—Taming Mrs. Shrew (Com.-Dr.)......
Feb. 18—So Speaks the Heart (Dr.)...........
Feb. 22—Under Her Wing (Dr.)...............
Feb. 25—The End of the Circle (Dr.)..........
Feb. 29—The Final Pardon (Dr.).............
Mar. 3—Through Flaming Gates (Dr.).........
Mar. 7—Making Heroes (Vocational) ....
Mar. 7—Blowing Up the John Day Rapids (Vocational) ....
Mar. 10—Songs of Childhood Days (Dr.)........

SOLAX.

Feb. 9—Mrs. Cranston's Jewels (Dr.)........
Feb. 11—Lend Me Your Wife (Com.)..........
Feb. 14—Bessie's Suitors (Com.)..............
Feb. 16—A Terrible Lesson (Dr.)..............
Feb. 18—The Wise Witch of Fairyland (Dr.)..
Feb. 21—Hubby Does the Washing (Com.)....
Feb. 23—God Disposes (Dr.).................
Feb. 25—His Lordship's White Feather (Dr.)..
Feb. 28—Algie, the Miner (Com.).............
Mar. 1—Blighted Lives (Dr.)...............
Mar. 6—Sealed Lips (Dr.)..................
Mar. 8—The Animated Bathtub (Com.).......
Mar. 13—Nearly An Heiress (Dr.).............
Mar. 15—Falling Leaves (Com.)...............
Mar. 13—The Boarding House Heiress (Com.)..
Mar. 15—Falling Leaves (Dr.)................

THANHOUSER.

Jan. 26—East Lynne (Parts 1 and 2—Dr.)....
Jan. 30—As It Was in the Beginning (Dr.)....
Feb 2—On Probation (Dr.)....................
Feb. 6—The Trouble Maker (Dr.).............
Feb. 9—The Signal Code (Dr.)..............
Feb. 13—The Silent Witness (Dr.).............
Feb. 16—Surelock Jones, Detective (Com.)....
Feb. 20—Washington In Danger (Hist.-Dr.)....
Feb. 23—A Message from Niagara (Dr.)........
Feb. 27—The Guilty Baby (Dr.)...............
Mar. 1—The Arab's Bride (Dr.)..............
Mar. 5—Extravagance (Dr.)..................
Mar. 8—His Great Uncle's Spirit (Dr.).......
Mar. 12—Flying to Fortune (Dr.).............
Mar. 15—The Poacher (Dr.)..................

MISCELLANEOUS.

GAUMONT.

Feb. 22—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 1, 1912 (Top.)
Feb. 24—The Smuggler (Dr.)..................
Feb. 27—Jimmie's Artful Dodge (Com.).........
Feb. 27—Panorama of Bruges (Scenic).........
Feb. 29—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 2, 1912 (Top.)
Mar. 2—The Tale of a Dog (Dr.)............
Mar. 5—Jimmie Saves the Situation (Com.)..
Mar. 5—The Wonderful Adventures of Herr Munchausen (Com.) ....
Mar. 7—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 3, 1912 (Top.)
Mar. 9—The Trust (2 reels) (Dr.)...........
Mar. 12—Calino and His Boarder (Com.)......
Mar. 12—What's In a Name (Com.)...........
Mar. 14—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 4, 1912 (Top.)
Mar. 16—Maternity (Dr.) ....

GREAT NORTHERN SPECIAL FEATURE FILM CO.

Feb. 5—A Victim of the Mormons (3 reels—Dr.) ....

FEATURE AND EDUCATIONAL FILM CO

Nov. 20—Love and Aviation (Dr.).............
Nov. 20—Zigomar (Dr.).......................
Dec. 18—The Love Chase (Com.)..............

SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS The Big Ticket. Any Printing Any Colors
5,000 - - $1.25 20,000 - - $4.60 50,000 - - $7.50
10,000 - - $2.50 25,000 - - $5.50 100,000 - - $10.00
Get the Samples Stock Tickets, 6 Cents
NATIONAL TICKET COMPANY - - - Shamokin, Pa.

Oldest and Best

Always a Feature

NESTOR

3 A WEEK

3 A WEEK

"The Worth-While Film"

Scene from

THE MILLS OF THE GODS

Release of Monday, March 4th, 1912

A Powerful Moral Foto-Drama

1000 Feet of Uplifting Film. GET IT!

Wednesday, March 6th

THE DOUBLE TRAIL

An Admirable Western Drama in 985 Feet

A PIPPIN every foot of it. GET IT!

Saturday, March 9th

A Split Reel of Popularity. GET IT!

THE VILLAGE RIVALS

A Refreshing, Rural Comedy in 628 Feet

ARIZONA "THE NEW STATE"

Just 310 Feet of Scenic Grandeur

COMING NESTORS

March 11th, THE REVELATION (Drama)
March 13th, THE FIGHTING CHANCE (W. Drama)
March 16th, THE UNKNOWN MODEL (Comedy)

For mammoth PHOTO of entire NESTOR FILM COMPANY, send 50c in stamps to

DAVID HORSLEY : : BAYONNE, N. J.

If you could only see our RECENT PRODUCTIONS you would KNOW that our mistakes are a thing of the Past. Our PRESENT PRODUCTIONS are the EQUAL of ANY on the market to-day, in STORY, EXECUTION and PHOTOGRAPHY.

TUESDAY

REP FILMS

SATURDAY

THE REP ALPHABET

"B" stands for blind

"There are none so blind as those who will not see."—Matthew Henry.

The exhibitor who will not see that "REPS" are business boomers is certainly blind to his own welfare.

Why be blind?

Tuesday, March 12

TWO MEN

Another of our popular picturesque Arctic productions that illustrates the bold adage, "There is good in the worst of us."

Saturday, March 16

THE SCAR

A dramatic gem of flawless quality that will appeal to every man and woman.

Feb. 27—IN THE GOVERNMENT SERVICE
March 2—HIS PARTNER'S WIFE
March 5—THE DREAM
March 9—A BRAND FROM THE BURNING

Send $1.00 for our combination photo of entire company, completely framed in mission.

Fill this in and send to us:—

Name of Theater..
Address..
Town .... State ....
What age service do you use?..
Name of Exchange..

REPUBLIC FILM CO., Dept. W, 145 WEST 45th ST.
NEW YORK CITY

LICENSED Release Dates

BIOGRAPH.

Feb. 15—The Mender of Nets (Dr.)............
Feb. 19—The Fatal Chocolate (Com.).........
Feb. 19—Got a Match (Com.)................
Feb. 22—Under Burning Skies (Dr.)..........
Feb. 26—The Sunbeam (Dr.).................
Feb. 29—A Message from the Moon (Com.)....
Feb. 29—Priscilla's Capture (Com.)...........
Mar. 4—A Siren of Impulse (Dr.)............
Mar. 7—A String of Pearls (Dr.).............
Mar. 11—A Spanish Dilemma (Com.)..........
Mar. 11—The Engagement Ring (Com.).......
Mar. 14—Iola's Promise (Dr.)................

CINES.

(G. Kleine.)

Feb. 17—Darling (Com.) ....
Feb. 17—Kerka Falls (Scenic)..................
Feb. 20—Leah's Trick (Com.)..................
Feb. 20—The Valley of the Umbria (Scenic)...
Feb. 24—Daughter of the Regiment (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 27—Happy in Spite of Herself (Com.-Dr.).
Feb. 27—Jenkins, A Perfect Steward (Com.)...
Mar. 2—A Sister's Stratagem (Com.)..........
Mar. 5—The Chauffeur (Com.-Dr.)............
Mar. 5—Lucca, Italy (Scenic).................
Mar. 9—The Moorish Bride (Dr.)............
Mar. 12—From Tent to Mansion (Dr.).........
Mar. 16—Out of Tune (Com.).................
Mar. 16—Zoological Gardens in Rome (Sc.)....

EDISON.

Feb. 13—His Daughter (Dr.)...................1000
Feb. 14—Hogan's Alley (Com.)..................1000
Feb. 16—At the Point of the Sword (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 17—Curing the Office Boy (Com.)........1000
Feb. 17—The Little Delicatessen Store (Com.)..1000
Feb. 20—The Muse (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 21—One Thousand Miles Through the Rockies (Sc.) 350
Feb. 21—Everything Comes to Him Who "Waits" (Com.) 650
Feb. 23—Children Who Labor (Edu. & Dr.)...1000
Feb. 24—New York City Street Cleaning (Vocational) 425
Feb. 24—The Lost Kitten (Com.)............. 575
Feb. 27—How Motion Pictures Are Made and Shown (Vocational) 1000
Feb. 28—My Double and How He Undid Me (Com.) 1000
Mar. 1—Tony's Oath of Vengeance (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 2—A Cowboy's Stratagem (Com.)....... 620
Mar. 2—The Jam Closet (Com.).............. 380
Mar. 5—Lost—Three Hours (Com.)...........1000
Mar. 6—The Yarn of the Nancy Bell (Com.).. 970
Mar. 8—The Heir Apparent (Dr.).............1050
Mar. 9—New York Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association, Madison Square Garden (Ind.) 540
Mar. 9—The Patent Housekeeper (Com.)...... 460
Mar. 12—The Baby (Com.).......................1000
Mar. 13—Her Polished Family (Com.).........1000
Mar. 15—For the Commonwealth (Dr.).........1000
Mar. 16—Personally Conducted (Scenic)........1000

ESSANAY.

Feb. 13—Tracked Down (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 15—There's Many a Slip (Com.)..........1000
Feb. 16—The Wife of a Genius (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 17—The Prospector's Legacy (W. Dr.)...1000
Feb. 20—The Biter Bitten (Com.).............
Feb. 20—Curiosity (Com.) ....
Feb. 22—The "Lemon" (Com.) 1000
Feb. 23—The Little Black Box (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 24—A Western Kimono (Com.) 1000
Feb. 27—Positive Proof (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 29—Her Masterful Man (Com.)..........1000
Mar. 1—Do Dreams Come True? (Com.)......1000
Mar. 2—The Ranch Girl's Mistake (Dr.)......1000
Mar. 5—The Turning Point (Dr.)..............1000
Mar. 7—Getting a Hired Girl (Com.).........1000
Mar. 8—The Baby of the Boarding House (Com.)
Mar. 8—Trombone Tommy (Com.)............
Mar. 9—A Romance of the West (Dr.).......1000
Mar. 12 The Ranch Widower's Daughters (Com.) 1000
Mar. 14—A Flurry in Furniture (Com.)........1000
Mar. 15—The Madman (Dr.)....................1000
Mar 16—The Bandit's Child (Dr.)..............1000

KALEM.

Feb. 2—A Princess of the Hills (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 5—Battle of Pottsburg Bridge (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 7—The Swimming Party (Com.)..........
Feb. 7—Floral Parade at San Diego, Cal. (Topical) ....
Feb. 9—The Vagabonds (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 12—An American Invasion (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 14—Far From Erin's Isle (Com.).........1000
Feb. 16—Caught in the Toils (Dr.)............1000
Feb. 19—The Alcalde's Conspiracy (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 21—The Girl Deputy (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 23—Back to the Kitchen (Com.).........1000
Feb. 26—The Bell of Penance (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 28—A Tenderfoot's Troubles (Com.)......
Feb. 28—A Visit to Madeira (Scenic)..........
Mar. 1—Trapped by Wireless (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 4—You Remember Ellen (Dr.)..........1000
Mar. 6—The Romance of a Dry Town (Com.)..1000
Mar. 8—Captain Rivera's Reward (Dr.).......1000
Mar. 11—A Spartan Mother (Dr.)...............1000
Mar. 13—A Victim of Circumstance (Dr.)......1000
Mar. 15—The Belle of New Orleans (Dr.)......1000

LUBIN.

Feb. 1—The Physician's Honor (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 3—The Impostor (Dr.)....................1000
Feb. 5—A Cure for Jealousy (Com.)..........1000
Feb. 7—Tricked Into Happiness (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 8—What Fate Ordained (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 10—An Antique Ring (Dr.)..............1000
Feb. 12—'Tis an Ill Wind that Blows No Good (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 14—His Mistake (Dr.)....................1000
Feb. 15—A Note in the Orange (Com.)......... 680
Feb. 15—Oversea Celebration (Educational) 350
Feb. 17—Gingerbread Cupid (Com.)...........1000
Feb. 19—Army Aviation Practice (Novelty).... 200
Feb. 19—A Midwinter Night's Dream (Dr.)... 800
Feb. 21—In Dis-a-Countree (Dr.)..............1000
Feb. 22—Her Heart's Refuge (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 24—Willie, the Hunter (Com.)........... 700
Feb. 24—Pottery Making in America (Edu.).. 300
Feb. 26—A Matter of Business (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 28—Love and Tears (Dr.)................1000
Feb. 29—Betty and the Doctor (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 2—A Mexican Courtship (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 4—Fishing In Florida (Vocational)......
Mar. 4—The Baby Tramp (Com.).............
Mar. 6—My Princess (Dr.)....................1000
Mar. 7—The Handicap (Dr.)...................1000
Mar. 9—Mother Love (Dr.)....................1000
Mar. 11—Tough Guy Levi (Com.)............
Mar. 11—Wifey's Ma Comes Back (Com.)......
Mar. 13—His Wife's Mother (Dr.).............1000
Mar. 14—The Price of a Silver Fox (Dr.)......1000
Mar. 16—The Preacher and the Gossip (Com.)..1000

MELIES.

Jan. 4—A Woman's Gratitude (Dr.)..........1000
Jan. 11—Roped In (Dr.).......................1000
Jan. 18—The Outlaw and the Baby (Dr.).....1000
Jan. 25—The Mortgage (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 1—Cowboy vs. Tenderfoot (Dr.).........1000
Feb. 8—Dodging the Sheriff (Dr.).............1000
Feb. 15—Smiling Bob (Dr.).....................1000
Jan. 22—Melita's Ruse (Dr.)...................1000
Feb. 29—Oil (Dr.) 1000
Mar. 7—Seven Bars of Gold (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 14—The Sheriff's Daughter (Dr.).. 1000
Mar. 21—Troubles of the XL Outfit (Dr.)......1000

ECLIPSE.

(G. Kleine.)

Jan. 24—A Woman's Wrath (Dr.)............. 980
Jan. 31—Kitty In Dreamland (Juvenile)......... 575
Jan. 31—Earl's Court, London (Scenic)...... 415
Feb. 7—Captured by Wireless (Dr.)............ 950
Feb. 7—Bird's Eye View of Rotterdam (Sc.)... 50
Feb. 14—The Gambler's Wife (Dr.).............1015
Feb. 21—The King's Command (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 28—Cousin Bill (Com.)...................
Feb. 28—A Glimpse of Tripoli (Scenic)........
Mar. 6—The Factory Girl (Dr.)...............
Mar. 13—The Sentry on Guard (Dr.)...........1015

PATHE.

Feb. 7—A Boomerang Joke (Am. Com.)......
Feb. 8—Niagara Falls In Winter (Am. Sc.)..
Feb. 10—Two Brothers (Am. Dr.)............
Feb. 12—Pathe's Weekly, No. 7, 1912 (Topical)..1000
Feb. 14—Two Convict Brothers (Am. Dr.)......
Feb. 15—His Wife's Jealousy (Am. Dr.)......
Feb. 17—Pawnee Love (Indian Dr.)...........
Feb. 19—Pathe's Weekly No. 8—1912 (Top.)..1000
Feb. 21—Marriage or Death (Am. Dr.).........1000
Feb. 22—Poor Jimmy (Am. Dr.)...............1000
Feb. 24—Phantom Lovers (Am. Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 26—Pathe's Weekly, No. 9—1912 (Topical)
Feb. 28—The Squaw's Debt of Gratitude (Dr.)..
Feb. 29—The Ordeal (Com.)....................
Mar. 2—His Mexican Sweetheart (Dr.)........
Mar. 4—Pathe's Weekly, No. 10, 1912 (Topical)
Mar. 6—Cholera on the Plains (Am.-Dr.)......
Mar. 7—Buster's Nightmare (Am.-Com.).....
Mar. 8—Small Trades in Havana (Ind.).....
Mar. 9—How the Play Was Advertised (Am. Com.) ....
Mar. 11—Pathe's Weekly No. 11, 1912 (Top.
Mar. 13—A Midget Sherlock Holmes (Am.-Com.)
Mar. 14—When Duty Calls (Am.-Dr.).........
Mar. 16—The Arrow of Defiance (Am.-Dr.)...

C. G. P. C.

Feb. 2—The Masked Ball (Dr.) ....
Feb. 6—Roentgen's X-Rays (Scientific) ....
Feb. 6—Excursion in the Swiss Alps (Sc.) .
Feb. 7—A Visit to the Dome of the Mil Cathedral (Sc.) ....
Feb. 8—The Three Kittens (Animal).......
Feb. 9—Philemon and Baucis (Mythological)
Feb. 9—Hunting Marabout in Abyssinia (In and Sc.) ....
Feb. 13—Quieting the Neighbors (Com.)......
Feb. 13—New Year's Celebration in Japan (Sc.
Feb. 16—La Favorita (Dr.)......................
Feb. 20—The Gamekeeper (Dr.) ....
Feb. 20—The Motion Picture Man in the Dar Continent (Sc.) ....
Feb. 23—The Presentiment (Dr.) ....
Feb. 23—Ancient Rome (Sc.) ....
Feb. 27—Asbestos Quarry (Ind.)...............
Feb. 27—The Tumbler's Kids (Dr.)...........
Feb. 28—Wrestling in Indo China (Wrestling).
Feb. 29—The Great Market in Tananarive, Ma agascar (Scenic) ....
Mar. 1—An Adventure of Van Dyck (Dr.)....
Mar. 1—Hunting Bears in Malaya (Scenic)...
Mar. 5—The Six Little Drummers (Com.-Dr
Mar. 7—Starfish, Sea Uuchins and Scallo (Educational) ....
Mar. 8—An Episode of the Hundred Yea War (Hist.-Dr.)........................
Mar. 12—The Poison Cup (Dr.)...............
Mar. 12—The Rell Brothers (Acrobatic).......
Mar. 13—Daix and His Dog (Acrobatic).......
Mar. 15—The Coin of Fate (Dr.).............

SELIG.

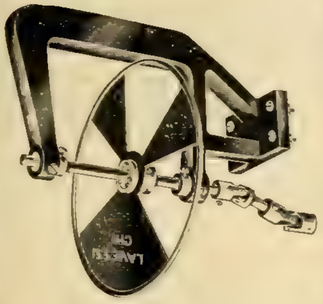
Feb. 1—The Little Stowaway (Dr.).........
Feb. 2—Bunkie (Dr.)........................
Feb. 5—The Girl He Left Behind (Dr.)....
Feb. 6—The Widow of Rickie O'Neal (Com.)
Feb. 8—The Horseshoe (Dr.) ....
Feb. 9—A Mysterious Gallant (Com.).........
Feb. 9—First Aid to the Injured (Edu.)......
Feb. 12—A Broken Spur (Dr.)...............
Feb. 13—Disillusioned (Dr.)..................
Feb. 15—The Hypnotic Detective (Dr.)......
Feb. 16—The Little Match Seller (Dr.).....
Feb. 16—The Taos Indians at Home, Ne Mexico (Educational) ....
Feb. 19—The Danites—Part 1 (Dr.).........
Feb. 20—The Danites—Part 2 (Dr.).........
Feb. 22—When Memory Calls (Dr.).........
Feb. 23—A Persistent Suitor (Com.).........
Feb. 23—Seeing Detroit (Sport. & Sc.).......
Feb. 26—When Women Rule (Dr.)...........
Feb. 27—In Little Italy (Dr.)...............
Feb. 29—The "Diamond S" Ranch (Western)
Mar. 1—As Told by Princess Bess (Dr.).....
Mar. 4—The Shrinking Rawhide (Dr.)......
Mar. 5—The Ace of Spades (Dr.)...........
Mar. 7—The Brotherhood of Man (Dr.).....
Mar. 8—Hypnotized (Com.) ....
Mar. 11—A Crucial Test (Dr.)...............
Mar. 12—Bounder (Dr.).....................
Mar. 14—The Slip (Dr.).....................
Mar. 15—Across the Isthmus of Panama 1912 (Top.) ....

VITAGRAPH.

Feb. 10—Playmates (Dr.)...................
Feb. 12—The Heart of a Man (Dr.).........
Feb. 13—Winning is Losing (Com.-Dr.)......
Feb. 14—Bunny and the Twins (Com.)......
Feb. 16—The Chocolate Revolver (Dr.)......
Feb. 17—The Hobo's Redemption (Dr.).....
Feb. 19—The Struggle (Dr.) ....
Feb. 20—The Love of John Ruskin (Dr.)....
Feb. 21—Her Last Shot (Dr.)...............
Feb. 23—Cure for Pokeritis (Com.)...........
Feb. 24—Cowboy Damon and Pythias (Dr.)..
Feb. 26—Stenographer Wanted (Com.).......
Feb. 27—Justice of the Desert (Dr.).........
Feb. 28—The Patchwork Quilt (Dr.)........
Mar. 1—The Diamond Brooch (Dr.).........
Mar. 2—The Telephone Girl (Com.).......
Mar. 4—Lulu's Anarchist (Com.)..........
Mar 5—Cardinal Wolsey (Hist. Dr.).......
Mar. 6—Irene's Infatuation (Com.).......
Mar. 8—How States Are Made (W. Dr.)....
Mar. 9 Mrs. Carter's Necklace (Dr.).....
Mar. 11—First Woman Jury in America (Com
Mar. 12—The Five Senses (Com.)..........
Mar. 12—A Story of the Circus (Dr.)......
Mar. 13—Mrs. 'Enry 'Awkins (Dr.).........
Mar. 15—The Great Diamond Robbery (Com.)
Mar. 16—Ranch by the Sea (Dr.)..........

AMERICAN SONG SLIDE & POSTER CO., 5th Floor, 1st National Bank Bldg, CHICAG

ABSOLUTELY The best Song Slide Service in America, prices no higher. Special lithos fo all Feature Films. Let us ship you an entire weekly output of Licensed Posters.



Machine Tables, Oil Baths, etc.
LAVEZZI MACHINE WORKS
2940 Herndon St. Chicago

lake Your Own Slides

ithout the aid of photography, from newspaper cuts, st cards, colored illustrations, photos, etc. Make our Own announcement slides, advertisements, ustrated song slides, colored pictures from comic pera. Slides from political office seekers' cards. Just e Thing For Election. Slides can be made in a few inutes. Plain Or In Colors. Complete Outfit and rections $1.00.

MIDLAND TRANSPARENCY CO.
3 Ramge Bldg., Dept. B. Omaha, Neb.

---

you want Advertising and Song Slides
Write to

. L. SIMPSON, Inc.
ie Most Reliable Slide Maker in the Business
3 W. 132nd Street, New York City

La Cinematografia Italiana ed Estera"
ITALY'S LEADING PAPER FOR THE ANIMATED PICTURE
PUBLISHED FORTNIGHTLY.
36 and 40 large pages, 8 shillings per annum ($1.60).
litor-prop'r: Prof. GUALTIERO I. FABRI,
Cumiana, 81 (Barriera S. Paolo) Torino, Italy

'an Bargains

While they last $12.50 each

w 16-inch General Electric make for 60 cycle,) volt alternating current. Five hundred 1-4 P. motors, same current, $20.00 each. Several ndred other dynamos and motors.

O. BENDER, 82 Centre St., New York

Use our Developing System

A. J. CORCORAN, Inc.
11 John Street New York

A Peerless Attraction

For the Moving Picture
Theatre is

Deagan's Musical Electrical Bells

They make money for progressive exhibitors from Maine to California.

Why don't you write us now?

We make the Electric Bells in various sizes from

$40.00 up

The most popular sets of Bells we are now making is the

No. 310 Outfit

25 Bells, 2 Octaves, Chromatic C to C

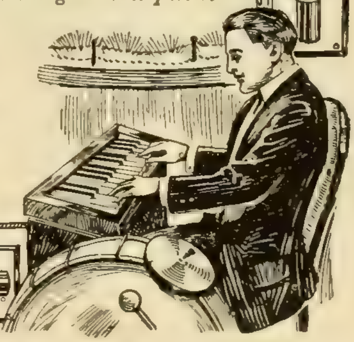
Complete with resonators, keyboard and all electrical apparatus.

Price of this outfit is $75.00

Will be shipped to you for examination and trial on receipt of $5.00 to guarantee express charges.

Every set of bells guaranteed one year.

When ordering a set, state if you desire high or low pitch.



J. C. DEAGAN
3800 North Clark Street
CHICAGO, ILL.

NOW BOOKING
EASTERN STATES ONLY
LOUISE M. MARION
IN HER OWN NOVELTIES
PATRIOTIC AND
ILLUSTRATED POEMS
REFINED, ENTERTAINING
TERMS REASONABLE

Great Novelty and Drawing Card

.OUISE M. MARION
PRESENT ADDRESS
60 Crown Street, New Haven, Conn.
L. M. Marion can be engaged in the Connecticut towns for one month.

ADVERTISING FOR THE LICENSED THEATRES ONLY

FEATURE LITHOGRAPHS
For All Theatres Getting
Film Service in N. Y. City

ONE SHEETS	THREE SHEETS	EIGHT SHEETS
5c	25c	50c

Handsomely Mounted on Canvas with Eyelet Holes and Rented Only

ARTHUR BRADY, 124 E. 14th St., N. Y. C.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We wish to announce that the first song illustrated with SPIEGEL MOTION SONG SLIDES will not be released March 2nd as intended.

It has been found necessary to rebuild the slide carriers in order to insure PERFECT MOTION BY EVERY OPERATOR.

Release date will be announced later.

LEVI CO., Inc.,

Exclusive makers. 1560 Broadway, New York City.

A GUNDLACH PROJECTION LENS

Will Certainly Improve Your Picture

will make it sharp, clear and brilliant, and if you give the height and width of the screen and the distance from the Lens to the center of the screen we can furnish a Lens to make the picture just the right size.

Gundlach Projection Lenses are furnished to order with Powers and Motiograph Machines. They are sold by all Film Exchanges subject to approval.

Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Company
808 Clinton Ave., So. Rochester, N. Y.

"ARCO BIOGRAPH"

stamped on a carbon, means

STANDARD OF MERIT

The only RELIABLE BRAND without abbreviation of marks.

L. E. FRORUP & CO.

232 Greenwich St. New York City

THE CINCINNATI-BUCKEYE FILM CO.

America's Largest Film Renting Concern. Entire Building 236 W. 4th Street, Cincinnati, O. Private Exchange connecting all Departments. Phones Main 1910-1911. Buying the entire Independent Output. Have every big feature production for rent. Write for prices. Dealers in Moving Picture Machines and all accessories pertaining to the business

---

LECTURES ON SPECIAL FILMS

Prepared by W. STEPHEN BUSH

EACH $1.00 PER COPY POSTAGE PAID

How to Put On the Passion Play (SECOND EDITION
FOR PATHE FRERES WORLD-RENOWNED PRODUCTION

How to Put On The Crusaders, or Jerusalem Delivered
FOR WORLD'S BEST FILM CO., FEATURE FILM (Copyright 1911)

Key and Complete Lecture for Dante's Inferno
FOR MILANO FILM CO., (Italy) FIVE REEL PRODUCTION

ORDER NOW Only a limited edition of each $1.00 PER COPY

COPYRIGHTED AND FOR SALE ONLY BY

MOVING PICTURE WORLD, Box 226, Madison Square P. O., New York City

RELIANCE FILMS

The Ruling Passion

Released Wednesday, Mar. 13, 1912

A sympathetic story with plenty of heart interest. Showing how a passion for music is carried through three generations of tragedy and pathos to a happy ending.

RELIANCE.

Bedelia's "At Home"

Released Saturday, March 16, 1912

You're simply injuring your business by not securing these "Bedelia" stories. This one will be a sure fire hit!

On same reel is a Natural History subject:

HOW ALLIGATORS ARE RAISED

Educational—interesting—funny!

CARLTON MOTION PICTURE LABORATORIES, 540 West 21st St., New York

---

E. E. FULTON

154 W. LAKE ST. (Entire 2nd Floor) CHICAGO

Jobber of Everything in the Moving Picture Line

SPECIALTIES "2-in-1" Film Cement; "Curtainyline"; "P. M. Special Oil"; Ticket Holders; Carbon Sharpeners; Current Savers; Lenses; Condensers; Sweeping Compound; Calcium Gas Making Outfits and Supplies; Asbestos Covered Wire; Motor Fans, etc., etc.

MIDDLE WEST DISTRIBUTOR OF POWERS MACHINES AND PARTS Immediate Shipments.

Prompt and Careful Attention to Details
Expert Machine Repairing

My "A-to-Z" Price List for the asking. Handiest Reference Book Issued.

Makes Dirty Films Clean and Bright

The only dry cleaning process—it cleans while film is being re-wound. Positively prevents "rain" and spots. Simple, effective and guaranteed not to injure the film. Cost of operation but one cent per film. No progressive theater or exchange can afford to be without it.

WHAT SOME OF OUR CUSTOMERS SAY

"Worth their weight in gold." Miles Bros., Los Angeles.
"Improves the films at the least 75%." Richard Dabb, Shenandoah, Pa.
"We like the cleaners very much." Warioto Film Co., Nashville, Tenn.
"Well worth the money to any motion picture house." Hyman & Hirsch, Chicago.
"It does excellent work." W. E. Greene Film Exch., Boston, Mass.

If your exchange cannot supply you, send orders direct to
MORTIMER FILM CLEANER CO. 704 Fidelity Bldg., Portland, Maine

If you are in the Market for

SECOND HAND FILMS

Write to the largest and most reliable Dealers and Importers of these goods in the United States

International Film Traders
Incorporated
5 West 14th St., New York City

In answering advertisements kindly mention the Moving Picture World.

"Make your own films" of local interest—it will make your theater prominent by showing a local feature film from time to time. Buy the "Junior Professional Outfit," with which you can make films better than some of the manufacturers are turning out. The complete outfit can be bought outright, with full instructions how to take, develop and print, my own patents, scores of highly satisfied customers.

N. Y. greatest Jobbing laboratory and mechanical workshop, special Films, Titles, cameras rented, special lenses, projecting machines and single arc dissolvers. All motion picture supplies, film stock, condensers, wire lugs, expert picture machine repairing. Write me at once on what you are interested for catalogues.

EBERHARD SCHNEIDER,
219 Second Avenue, near 14th St., New York.

20,000 roll tickets, $1.20; 50 ⅝ cored carbons, $1.15; stereopticon objectives, 50c to $3.00; stereopticons, $15; rheostats, $3 to $5; arc lamps, $1.75, $2 and $2.25; condensers, 50c; calcium jets, $2.80; acetylene jets, $2.50; gas generators, $3.50; moving picture objectives, $2.75; jackets, $2. List of moving picture repair parts at fair prices. Sprocket wheels, 85c; films, 1c a foot. Catalogue. All makes of moving picture machines repaired at reasonable prices. L. HETZ, 302 East 23rd St., New York City

Orchestra Music FOR MOVING PICTURES

Violin, Cornet and Drum parts have been added to the popular "Orpheum Collection" of piano music (dramatic and descriptive) for Moving Pictures. Practical for piano alone or any number of above instruments. Issued in two parts: No. 1 and No. 2.

Piano, 58 cents each; both No.'s	$1.15
Violin, 40 cents each; both "	75c
Cornet, 35 cents each; both "	65c
Drums, 30 cents each; both "	55c

Send for free sample pages.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1501 Sedgwick St., Chicago, Ill.

MOTION PICTURE SUPPLIES

WHOLESALE RETAIL

MACHINES EDISON MOTIOGRAPH POWERS SIMPLEX STANDARD CARBONS ARCO BIO ELECTRA EXCELO SEAMAN

Reels, Carrying Cases, Rewinders, Machine Parts, Disinfectants
Everything for the Motion Picture Theatre, except the film

H. A. MACKIE, Inc., 21 East Fourteenth St., Phone Stuyvesant 2478 New York City

MAKE 50c DO THE WORK OF 80c

Always buy the regular M. P. Machine size 3 in One—½ pint for 50c. You'll save 30c, for you get 8 times as much oil as if you bought the small bottles.

And remember, 3 in One never deteriorates nor turns rancid. The last drop is just as good as the first.

3 in One is so clear and pure that the finest watchmakers use it. It lubricates perfectly every working part of every moving picture machine, star wheel, flywheel, shutter gear, rewinder and everything else that requires oiling. Makes every part run smoothly and much easier.

Repair bills and bills for new parts are chiefly caused by thick, greasy oils which collect dirt, gum and clog the delicate mechanisms, thus causing them to wear. 3 in One is absolutely free from grease—never collects dirt. Instead, it cuts away all dirt and gum and saves wear, tear and expense.

3 in One cleans and polishes all wood and metal surfaces around a theater. Positively prevents rust, indoors and out.

FREE OIL FOR YOU

A postal will bring you a generous free sample. Get yours today!
10c, 25c, 50c (the economical ½ pint size) for sale everywhere.

3 IN ONE OIL CO.

42 NF Broadway New York City

MAGAZINES & BOOKS FOR LIBRARY SLIPS ONE IN EVERY PACKAGE

THE SAFETY

Of the public

DEPENDS ON THE EQUIPMENT

Of your theatre. One of the most important things is your Operating Booth. We manufacture the BEST, SIMPLEST and MOST COMPLETE operating booth on the market.

These booths are portable, and can be moved from place to place, and have been approved by the FIRE UNDERWRITERS of the following states.

MASSACHUSETTS	MAINE
CONNECTICUT	NEW HAMPSHIRE
VERMONT	RHODE ISLAND
PENNSYLVANIA	NEW YORK

Drop us a line and get our prices before ordering elsewhere. The best approved booth is made by the

NEW YORK FIREPROOF CONSTRUCTION COMPANY

43 East 21st Street New York City

A GREAT SCOOP

ATTENTION — MANAGERS — ATTENTION

State Rights for Sale - - - The Kilbane—Attell Fight Pictures

Pronounced by Press and Public as the most spectacular and scientific boxing exhibition in the world. The Films are the best of its kind ever developed and clearest and most interesting of those depicting Queensbury affairs in progress—The GREATEST FIGHT IN YEARS.

"Live Managers Strike While the Iron Is Hot" and Get the Real Money.
Don't wait to write, wire quick.

COLUMBIA AMUSEMENT ENTERPRISES

GARFIELD BROS., Sole Agents. 222-224 Columbia Bldg., Cleveland, Ohio.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

"Das Lichtbild-Theater"

The most up-to-date and most comprehensive Journal of the Cinematograph Industry in Germany.

Editor-Proprietor: LUDWIG BRAUNER

BERLIN SW 68. MARKGRAFENSTRASSE 92/92.

Annual subscription abroad, $3.00. Write for specimen copy.

MAKE 'EM YOURSELF SLIDES

Make them yourself. Written with pen and ink or typewriter. Three minutes to make a slide. Used for advertising slides, to announce future or feature programmes, for chorus slides when chorus slide is missing. We send four colors of gelatin. The slides look well and any one can make them. They are handy also for announcing vaudeville acts. In fact they may be readily used for anything you may wish to say to your audience.

For the sum of three dollars ($3) cash with order, we will send by express, charges not prepaid, or $3.50 by registered mail, prepaid, the following:

24 cover glass, 1 package binder strips, 1 dozen mats, 1 instruction sheet, 1 form sheet and 50 strips assorted colors gelatin—enough for from 300 to 400 slides. Order now. Address

UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO.

1733 West 9th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

FEATURE FILMS, VAUDEVILLE ACTS and ILLUSTRATED SONGS

All the latest hits of the season. Write today for bookings.

THE EXHIBITORS SERVICE COMPANY

713 TRACTION TERMINAL BLDG. INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

World's Largest Mfrs. WURLITZER Established 1856

Wurlitzer PianOrchestra in Healy Theater, Fort Worth, Tex.

Write for 32-page booklet, showing

urlitzer Automatic Musical Instruments

in the leading picture theatres of the country.

The Wurlitzer Instruments furnish better music than musicians d reduce expenses. 50 different styles; time payments; big alog free. If you can't call, write to our nearest branch.

The Rudolph Wurlitzer Company

CINCINNATI 117-121 E. 4th
NEW YORK 25-27 W. 32d
CHICAGO 329-331 S. Wabash
PHILADELPHIA 1835 Chestnut
ST LOUIS 1109 Olive St.
CLEVELAND 800 Huron Road
BUFFALO 701 Main
LOUISVILLE 426 W. Green
COLUMBUS, O. 57 E. Main

EXHIBITORS' HEADQUARTERS

CALEHUFF SUPPLY COMPANY

(Incorporated)

50 North Eighth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Jobbers in Edison Kinetoscopes, Powers Cameragraphs.

Machines repaired by expert mechanics. Genuine parts only used.

SPECIALTIES

Mirror Screens
Chairs
Tickets
Pianos
Bio & Electric Carbons
Special Gundlach Lenses
Condensers
Edison Transformers
Ft.WayneCompensarcs
Asbestos State Booths
Asbestos Wire
Switches
Plugs
Spotlights
Gas Making Outfits
Limes
Film Cement
Disinfectant
Scenery
Stage Effects
Theatres Bought, Sold, Rented

CHAS. A CALEHUFF, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

WORLD WANTS WORK WONDERS

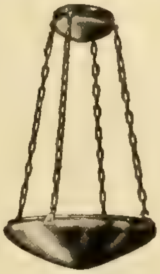
Read Classified Advertisements, Page 598

FIRST TIME ADVERTISED. WINDSOR'S CUT-OUT SLIDES

You make them with mucilage. Non-breakable and equal in appearance to any slide made. An outfit good for years costs $2.50. Postal brings sample and particulars.

E. S. WINDSOR, 414 N. ARLINGTON AVENUE, BALTIMORE, MD.

INDIRECT LIGHT



ENABLES you to have "Daylight Pictures" with any curtain or machine.

Thousands of houses have installed "THE EYE COMFORT SYSTEM" of "INDIRECT ILLUMINATION" during the past year.

Not a light in range of vision nor any light that will throw a shadow on the screens.

No glaring light to detract from the picture—more perfect detail—saves expense of usher.

At small cost you can secure this equipment.

Free engineering report. Don't let amateur electricians arrange your lighting system. Our expert engineering staff will furnish report free of charge. Fill out coupon below and mail to us today.

National X-Ray Reflector Co.,
235 Jackson Blvd., Chicago.

Distance, screen to machine ....

Width of house ....Ceiling height ....

Name and Address ....

Why Spend Money for Experiments
When We Offer You a Perfect Screen, Long Past That Stage?

A screen that rolls
Beautiful Daylight pictures
Saves half your juice bill
No eye strain, glare
No veil to mar the perfect surface

A PERFECT reproduction and blending of the natural colors of your picture, with the soft, harmonious effects that are true to life and nature only

Our price less than many inferior curtains now on the market. Write today for particulars

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREENS

Manufactured by AMERICAN THEATRE CURTAIN & SUPPLY CO., Main & Chestnut, St. Louis, Mo.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Bound Volume No. 10

October to December 1911

(THREE MONTHS)

NOW READY

$1.50 EACH NET $1.50

Postage 60c. extra, or Express Charges collect

PUBLICATION OFFICE

Moving Picture World, 125 East 23d St., N.Y. City

W. E. GREENE
FILM EXCHANGE, Inc

THE OLDEST AND LARGEST INDEPENDEN
FILM EXCHANGE IN NEW ENGLAN

Mr. Exhibitor:

Start the Season right by using an Independent Service from a Reliable House. We are buying the Output of the Sales Co. and have some choice services open. Write, wire, or call today at

W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.
228 TREMONT ST., BOSTON, MASS.

Telephone: 2187-3790 Oxford

POST CARDS

DO YOU WANT TO INCREASE ATTENDANCE?
DO YOU WISH REGULAR PATRONS?

Then order A. B. C. COLORED POSTAL CARDS, with free Coupons attached, for Kalem, Lubin and Pathe releases

Delivered at $3.00 per 1,000, assorted; 100 of a kind if desired. Cards have space for your theatre name, and with orders we will furnish free Rubber Stamp with your name, or will print your name on cards for 50c. per thousand extra

NOTICE.—You will find them profitable advertising even though they are not for the release shown

Samples, Coupon Book, and Circular Mailed Free Upon Request
Write Today

A. B. C. COMPANY, Cleveland, Ohio

SEE ☞ THE POINT

BIO
RECOGNIZED STANDARD
CARBONS

THERE ARE
Two Points
TO
BIO CARBONS

Besides they burn longer, burn brighter, burn whiter than any other.

None genuine without the word "BIO" on every carbon.
Take no substitute.

Every "BIO" User
A "BIO" Booster

Charles L. Kiewert Co.

NEW YORK
165 Greenwich St.

MILWAUKEE
111 Huron St.

SAN FRANCISCO
19 Sutter St.

? IS THERE

A Perfect Quality Film stock absolutely fire proof giving
Good results, embodying strength and Fwear possessing
Fine photographic detail.

The answer is There is one and that is

A G F A

NON-INFLAMMABLE

Film Stock

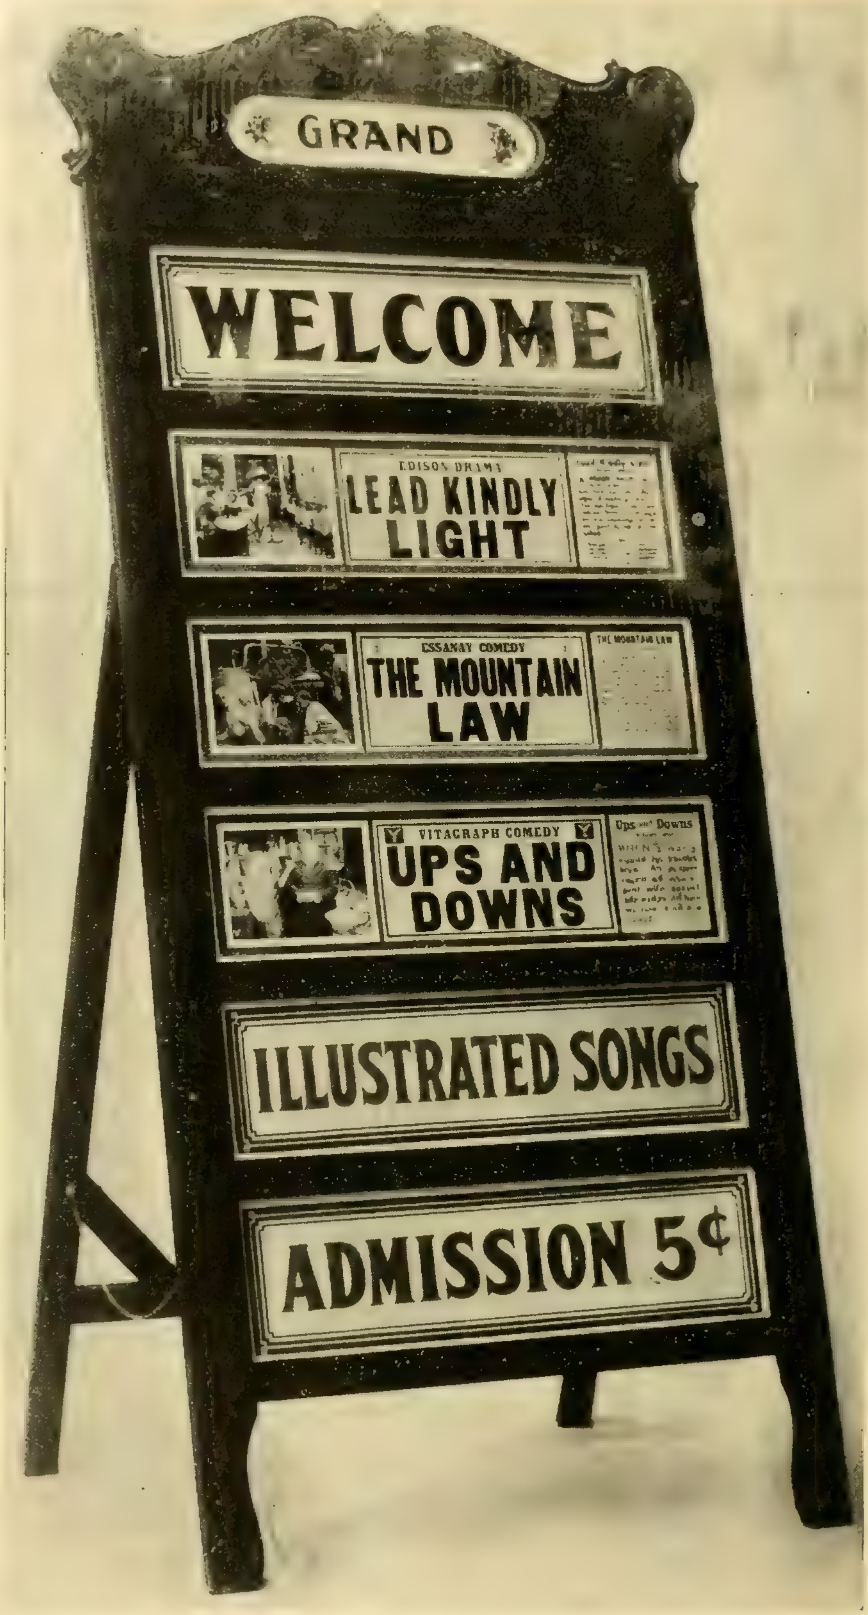
The film of the near future will be on A G F A stock. Take time by the forelock. Use it

NOW

Sold only by

Raw Film Supply Co.

15 E. 26th STREET NEW YORK
Tel. Mad. Sq. 7876 Cable Rawfilm New York



Mr. Exhibitor!

Are you a live wire, or has the current of progressiveness and up-to-date methods stopped flowing in your veins ?

Why not display your programmes in such a way that the public will be attracted by same ?

This means that your business will increase, and we presume you are not opposed to increasing your revenue.

This beautiful oak frame, hand-painted name-piece and 15 stock posters,

For $10.00

36 beautiful posters, lithographed in colors, and mailed to you each week, for the next week's releases,

For $2.00 Per Week

All back posters prior to date of placing order

For $1.00 Per Week

We are supplying the greater part of the best houses and the large circuits throughout the country with our system, and they all speak in glowing terms of same. Send in your check and order by return mail and get in line with the onward march of progressiveness.

EXHIBITORS ADVERTISING CO., Suite 604-605-606, 117 North Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

☆ G. MÉLIÈS ☆

BEFORE THE SHERIFF

THE SHERIFF'S DAUGHTER

Jim, discovered teaching his little sister to play cards, having already been reprimanded by his father for gambling, is turned out of the house and becomes a professional gambler and bandit. Twelve years later his father is taken sick, and the sister, now grown, goes to town for a doctor. The gambler, not recognizing her and taking a fancy to her beauty, disables and impersonated the doctor. On the road home the girl, finding herself at his mercy, looks into his eyes and he sees in hers the depths to which he has sunk. Ashamed, he confesses. Meanwhile, the real doctor raises an alarm and a possee chases and captures Jim and takes him before the sheriff, who is about to order severe punishment when he recognizes in him his own son. Jim begs forgiveness, and the posse leaves him to his father to deal with as he sees fit.

G. MELIES, 204 EAST 38th ST., NEW YORK CITY

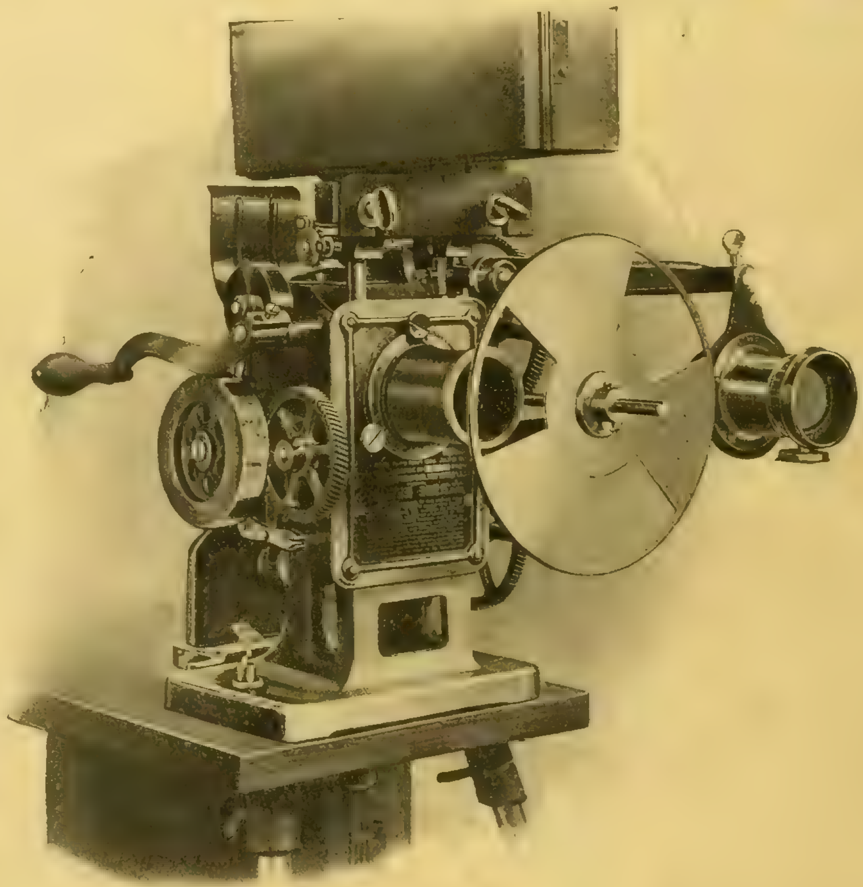
APPROX. 1000 FT.

3-14-12

MOVED

To meet the growing demand for

Power's Cameragraphs



Ours has been a growing business; each year has shown an increase in sales; each model has been an improvement over the previous one, and our No. 6 has "put it over" all previous efforts, and swamped us with orders.

"Big sales" is the barometer of merit, and "big sales" has compelled us to seek larger quarters.

In our new plant we are better equipped than ever before. Every known mechanical device which we can use efficiently is at hand, and only the best of material and skilled labor are utilized.

For fourteen years "POWER'S" has been telling its story, and to-day it is recognized in every country in the world as the best moving picture machine.

Flickerless, steady pictures, ease of operation, solid construction—these are but a few of its virtues.

We are going to give you better service NOW: we have got the best machine, NOW. You can't afford anything less, Mr. Exhibitor. How about you, NOW?

Let us send you Catalogue G, telling all about it.

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

90 GOLD STREET, NEW YORK

For fourteen years the leading makers of motion picture machines

CAREY PRESS, N. Y.

Vo. 11. No. 11 March 16. 1912 Price. 10c.

H F HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS GUIDE

Scene from George Kleine's Cines Drama, "A Christian Slave."

125 East 23rd Street New York—Chicago 169 W. Washington St.

THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

Tues., March 19 "NICHOLAS NICKLEBY" by Dickens
IN TWO REELS

Tues., March 19 "NICHOLAS NICKLEBY" by Dickens
IN TWO REELS

ASK YOUR EXCHANGE FOR 3-SHEETS FOR

"NICHOLAS NICKLEBY"

Scene from "Nicholas Nickleby"

3 Sheets and Two 1 Sheets Ready

RELEASED TUESDAY, MARCH 19

Complete in Two Reels

Nicholas Nickleby

By CHARLES DICKENS

As our first two-reel feature since January, and our first Dickens' story since "Copperfield," this will be much sought by showmen WHO REALLY GET THE MONEY. How about asking for YOUR date? And ask your exchange for three-sheets, too. You can no more "lose out" on "Nickleby" than you did on "Copperfield." But, remember, you DID bill "Copperfield" BIG! Ditto on "Nickleby!"

RELEASED FRIDAY, MARCH, 22

Great Thanhouser Funnyfilm

The Taming of Mary

Poor Mary! It was TOO BAD! She got into the direst predicament of her existence through her red-hot jealousy AND OUR DESIRE TO MAKE YOU LAUGH. Let us tell you now, we succeed. The reel gets smiles, cheers, laughs, YELLS, from you. Its value as a laugh-maker will help your show through its scenic effects alone. Take your patrons to beautiful Florida! And on the same reel, another comedy:

THE GOLF CADDIE'S DOG

Thanhouser Co., New Rochelle, N. Y.

Send me FREE Lobby Decorations for your features "In March." I am getting "The Thanhouser News" [illegible]

Name........................

Address........................

Exchange........................

THANHOUSER COMPANY

New Rochelle, New York

Sales Company Agents for U. S. and Canada

MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES COMPANY

GETTING 2 TC 2 A WEEK?

Next Feature, "CRY OF THE CHILDREN"

FOUR-A-WEEK

Essanay

THEY ARE HERE!

THOSE TWO GREAT WESTERN PICTURES

Features—Both of 'em

RELEASED TUESDAY, MARCH 12th

"The Ranch Widower's Daughters"

Joy, joy and more joy from Snakeville! "Alkali" Ike in one of his funniest roles, and you know what that means—shrieks of hearty laughter. Don't overlook this for your comedy bill!

RELEASED THURSDAY, MARCH 14th

"A FLURRY IN FURNITURE"

The real flurry will come in your patrons' hilarious chuckles on seeing this clean-cut funny one. Photographically perfect!

RELEASED FRIDAY, MARCH 15th

"THE LOAN SHARK"

A sensational dramatic subject for the masses. A powerful, thrilling and absorbing sermon against the present-day usury evil. Superbly enacted, and a big feature for any bill. Get it! Get it!

RELEASED SATURDAY, MARCH 16th

"THE BANDIT'S CHILD"

A splendid Western drama, interpreted by G. M. Anderson and a picked cast. The story is a cracker-jack, and the photography above par—combinations irresistible! Get your order in early for this!

COMING! "AT THE END OF THE TRAIL"

A grim tragedy of the far North!

Hurry in your name for our mailing list! Some real "Business Getting" Advertising Matter awaits you!

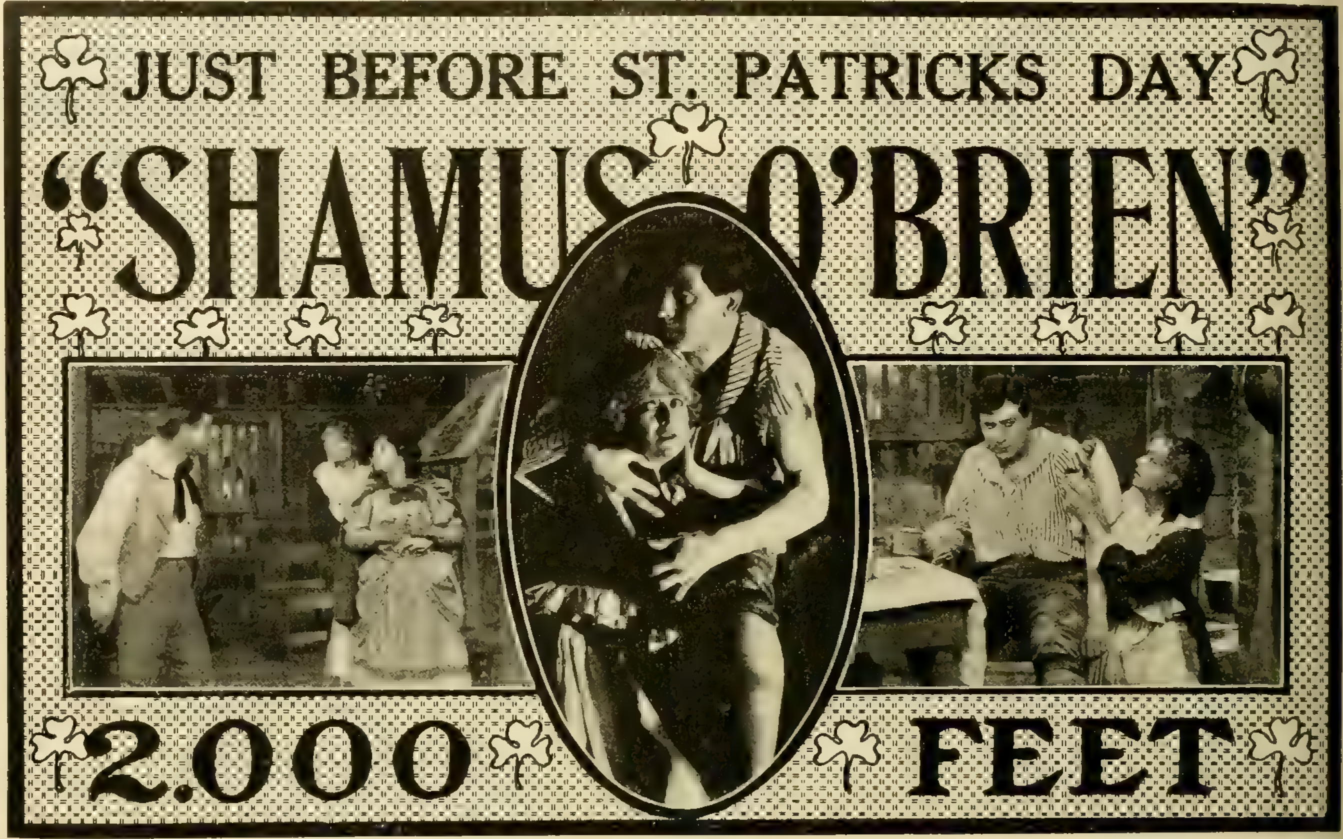
Essanay Film Manufacturing Co.
521 First National Bank Building, Chicago, Ill.

OFFICES IN

LONDON BERLIN BARCELONA

LOOK! LOOK! LOOK!

Grandest Picture Ever Produced by the "Imp"



JUST BEFORE ST. PATRICKS DAY
"SHAMUS O'BRIEN"
2,000
FEET

It's Irish through and through!
Adapted from a Classic Irish Poem by an Irishman!
Leading Performers are Irish. Producer Also an Irishman!

THIS 2,000-FOOT IMP

is released THURSDAY, MARCH 14th, just before the Big Day that is Celebrated by Irishmen the world over, the glorious "sivinteenth." Remember the Imp's previous 2,000-foot picture, "From the Bottom of the Sea," and what a sensational money-maker it was for every exhibitor who used it. See that you get an early booking on "SHAMUS O'BRIEN." Go after it with all your heart and soul and might and main—AT ONCE!

"Better than Gold"

(Copyright 1912, Imp Films Co.)

Another splendid drama of the mining country. Released on THURSDAY, March 21st. Are you getting these great Thursday Imps?

Countess De Swirsky Dances for the Imp!

One of the many specialties which the Imp has secured at heavy expense is released on the Saturday Split Reel Imp of March 23rd. The Russian Countess whose dances have created a furore all over the world has posed in special dances for the Imp. It's a great big relief from the commonplace. See that you get it. On the same reel we will release "The Tankville Constable," a rattling good comedy.

"The Man from the West"

(Copyright 1912, Imp Films Co.)

Released Monday, March 18th. Another film in which King Baggot takes the leading role. Enough said. See that you get it!

IMP FILMS COMPANY IMP

IMP FILMS COMPANY

102 West 101st Street New York
CARL LAEMMLE, Pres.

DEMAND 3 IMPS EVERY WEEK

Coming---"THE LOAN SHARK"

SOMETHING NEW!

We've made a picture that gives the "Nothing-New-Under-the-Sun" idea a slap on the wrist! Prepare your listeners!

There seems to be a general belief among the trade that SUB-TITLES are essential in a picture in order to understand the plot. FOR THE FIRST TIME in the annals of picturedom, a picture has been made WITHOUT SUB-TITLES! MARION LEONARD'S art makes the story so clear, lucid and intelligible that a single sub-title isn't necessary! Therefore—AN INNOVATION!

The means whereby we refute the necessary sub-title-theory is entitled "IN PAYMENT FULL": we respectfully ask your eye to drop to the cut to your right:

"Eyes That See Not"

Released Thursday, March 14th

A tale of the twilight and the dawn; of souls groping in the shadows; of mouths that hunger and hands that work. The moral proves that love alone is wealth, and mere yellow gold only a spurious substitute.
If you have

"Eyes That See Not"

you will see double in receipts! SEE that you get it!

"In Payment Full"

Released Sunday, March 17th

If the dictionary were copyrighted, it wouldn't be a violation to spread adjectives all over this page describing

"IN PAYMENT FULL"

"In Payment Full" tells a powerful story exposing the false god Clothes WITHOUT A SINGLE SUB-TITLE! Instead, so many more feet of MARION LEONARD and another feat!

All our efforts are concentrated and consecrated in YOUR behalf! We expect next week's pictures to be even better than this week's—but they probably won't!

The Rex Motion Picture Masterpiece Co.

573 ELEVENTH AVENUE : : : : NEW YORK

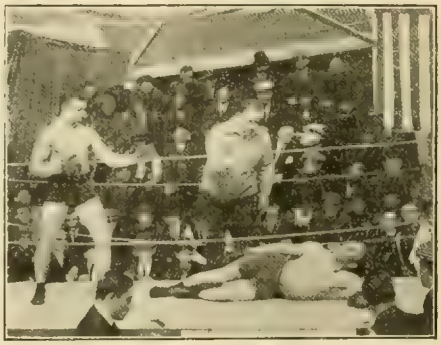
"EVERY INCH A FILM"

Sold through Motion Picture Dist. & Sales Co.

Your exchange knows you want Sunday and Thursday REX, but REMIND IT!

"IRELAND AND ISRAEL"

TRUE HOSPITALITY



DEFEATED

FRIENDS

Champion Release of Monday, March 20th, 1912

A lesson of human hearts that beat together, although of different creeds. A Hebrew immigrant and an Irish pugilist become fast friends. Young Riley protects Abie and receives him into his home. Later Riley is defeated in the ring and counted out by the Referee, TOM SHARKEY, the famous ex-pugilist. Riley meets with reverses, but in later years, Abie, who has become wealthy and Americanized, gives him a truly helping hand and puts him again on his feet. "IRELAND AND ISRAEL" is already famous o'er the country.

ACTUAL NEW YORK SCENES — A BIG BOUT — TOM SHARKEY

Get from us the synopsis, lobby sheets and magnificent posters. BOOK IT BIG AND ADVERTISE IT RIGHT

"A NIGHT'S ADVENTURE"

Released Monday, March 25th

is a siren comedy of three frightened girlies in a burglarized house, who 'phone for help, and when it comes they create another scare.

"THOU SHALT NOT"

Released Wednesday, March 27th

is a swell comedy of side-whiskers on a seeming Rev. Smith, who gets into a load of trouble with them.

Two reel Feature

KID CANFIELD

Released April 1st

startling career and gambling expose.

THE CHAMPION FILM COMPANY

MARK M. DINTENFASS, Mgr.

145 West 45th Street, New York, N. Y.

"ELECTRA" CARBONS

PINK LABEL

THE CARBON OF SUPERLATIVE QUALITY

LASTS LONGEST. GIVES BEST RESULTS. WHITEST, BRIGHTEST AND STEADIEST LIGHT. ABSOLUTELY UNIFORM IN DIAMETER

Imported solely by

HUGO REISINGER 11 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

THIS TRADE MARK IS YOUR PROTECTION

AGAINST FAULTY FILMS
IT GUARANTEES YOUR PATRONS

INTELLIGENTLY selected plays staged by Directors of note: enacted by players of prominence: photographed under ideal conditions by French experts in America and technically treated in the world's most perfectly appointed laboratories. INSIST ON SEEING AN ECLAIR. A fitting demonstration available in the following:

Out Tuesday, March 19th

A Sermon Drama for Young Girls

IT PAYS TO BE KIND

Written by G. T. EVANS with Dorothy Gibson, Julia Stewart, Dorinda Bainbridge, Gussie Hunt, Isabel Lamon, Guy Oliver, John Adolfi, Edw. L. Johnstone and a large cast.

Rich ECLAIR settings add to the story's attractiveness.

Photos in Sets FREE. Length 950 ft. Elegant Art Posters

The Regular Thursday Comedy
March 21st

A Symphony in Black and White

An unusual Negro story effectively filmed. Here ECLAIR introduces photographic "tricks" entirely new and novel, which add to the natural humor of the offering. Length 950 feet.

PHOTOS IN SETS and ART POSTERS AT EXCHANGES

SYMPHONY IN BLACK AND WHITE
ECLAIR FILM

Paris Sunday ECLAIR, March 24th

THE HEIGHT OF HER TRIUMPH
(Drama)

ANCIENT PHILAE
(Educational)

GET ON OUR BIG LIST

ECLAIR FILM CO.

Fort Lee, New Jersey
SALES COMPANY - - SOLE AGENTS

IMP THANHOUSER

LUX

ORDER IT NOW

OUR FIRST

ANIMATED WEEKLY

CONSISTING OF LATEST
AMERICAN AND EUROPEAN HAPPENINGS WILL BE ISSUED WEDNESDAY

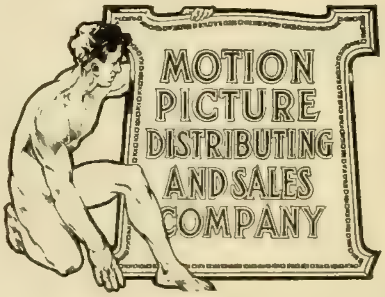
MARCH 13th

REP RELIANCE. BISON MAJESTIC

GREAT NORTHERN POWERS ITALA AMBROSIO TORINO



Motion Picture Distributing and Sales Company

111 East 14th Street New York, N. Y.

REX AMERICAN THE COMET NESTOR

"THE CRISIS"

The Story of
The Regeneration of a Man at the Crisis of His Life.

"101" BISON

In Two Reels

Released
Friday, March
29th

A MAMMOTH FRONTIER PRODUCTION

Troops of Cavalry — Hordes of Indians — Settlers, Etc.

Taking refuge in the rude church, the settlers make a last desperate stand against the attacking Indians. Midst a hail of arrows and bullets, the parson encourages his flock to heroic deeds until the United States cavalry, in a whirlwind ride, arrives.

Disowned by his father for his waywardness, the parson's son redeems himself by breaking through the lines of the Indians and guiding the soldiers to the scene of conflict, saving the lives of the besieged settlers. The film abounds with inspiring situations.

"101" BISON FILMS ARE COPYRIGHTED

Take No Chances!

The penalty for infringement is severe and we will take drastic measures with all offenders. By booking your "101" Bison Films from the exchanges listed below you protect yourself from trouble. They have legitimate prints of our films.

A Reward of $250

Is offered for information that will lead to the conviction of any one using, exhibiting or making a dupe of our films. We are spending fortunes in their production and will protect ourselves and our buyers to the fullest extent.

SOLD ONLY THROUGH THE MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING AND SALES COMPANY

Anti Trust Film Exchange	Chicago, Ill.
Applegath & Son	Toronto, Can.
Baltimore Film Exchange	Baltimore, Md.
Boston Film Rental Co	Boston, Mass.
Cadillac Film Exchange	Detroit, Mich.
Central Film Service	Cincinnati, O.
Cincinnati-Buckeye Film Exchange	Cincinnati, O.
Consolidated Film Exchange	Atlanta, Ga.
Canadian Film Exchange	Toronto, Can.
Canadian Film Exchange	Calgary, Can.
Empire Film Exchange	New York City.
Eagle Film Exchange	Philadelphia, Pa.
F. B. Exchange	Los Angeles, Cal.
Great Eastern Film Exchange	New York City.
Greene, W. E.	Boston, Mass.
H. & H. Film Service	Chicago, Ill.
Independent Film Exchange	Pittsburg, Pa.
Independent Western Film Exchange	Portland, Ore.
Laemmle Film Service	Chicago, Ill.
Laemmle Film Service	Minneapolis, Minn.
Laemmle Film Service	Omaha, Neb.
Laemmle Film Service	Des Moines, Ia.
Majestic Film Service	Chicago, Ill.
Michigan Film & Supply Co	Detroit, Mich.
Morgan, J. W.	Kansas City, Mo.
Metropolitan Film Exchange	New York City.
Miles Brothers	San Francisco, Cal.
Peerless Film Exchange	New York City.
Pittsburg Photoplay Co.	Pittsburg, Pa.
Philadelphia Film Exchange	Philadelphia, Pa.
Pacific Film Exchange	Seattle, Wash.
Rex Film Exchange	Albany, N. Y.
Standard Film Exchange	Chicago, Ill.
Swanson-Crawford	St. Louis, Mo.
Swaan Film Service	Philadelphia, Pa.
Swanson, W. H.	Denver, Col.
Toledo Film Exchange	Toledo, O.
Texas Film Exchange	Dallas, Tex.
Victor Film Service	Cleveland, O.
Western Film Exchange	Milwaukee, Wis.
Western Film Exchange	New York City.
Western Film Exchange	Kansas City, Mo.
Wichita Film & Supply Co.	Wichita, Kan.

NEW YORK MOTION PICTURE CO., 251 W. 19th St., New York City

POWERS PICTURE PLAYS

Two Comedies this week. One of them a Split Reel.

Release for Tuesday, March 19th

"Tender Hearted Mike"

— and —

Scenes of Richmond, Virginia

Release for Saturday
March 23rd

"Her First Assignment"

SEE SYNOPSIS

"Action Speaks Louder than Words"

POWERS MOTION PICTURE COMPANY,
511 West 42nd Street New York City

GREAT NORTHERN

Release for Saturday, March 9th

FOR HER SAKE

An admirably enacted dramatic production. A story with a moral.

Release for Saturday, March 16th

CAPRICIOUSNESS OF LOVE

A delightfully amusing feature comedy. Portrayed by star performers.

Arrange with your exchange for a booking NOW.

ALL FIRST-CLASS INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES HANDLE OUR PRODUCT!

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO., 7 E. 14th St., N. Y.
(NORDISK FILM CO. OF COPENHAGEN.)

Listen!

have seen advance exhibitions of rious pictures to be released by dependent manufacturers during arch and April and, believe me, ey are simply great. The thea-e that uses these attractions will ean up a fine and fancy profit.
) be sure that YOU get them, nnect immediately with the big-st and best film renter in the orld. Climb onto the FRONT
EAT of the Independent bandagon!

Carl Laemmle, President

he Laemmle Film Service

New Number:
04 West Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1312 Farnam St., Omaha, Neb.
421 Walnut St., Des Moines, Iowa

T. BIGGEST and BEST film renter in the World

8States Sold Last Week

20 YEARS IN SING SING
GREATEST MOVING PICTURE EVER MADE

Sites Unsold

Coecticut	$650
Deware	400
tdo	450
Diict of Columbia and Maryland	600
Machusetts	700
Mtana	450
Naska	550
Ne Hampshire	500
Rle Island	350
Vemont	500
Wmming	400
Me	500

ese prices include one print of film and th reels, complete lobby display and carry-in crate outfit for street drive and one week's ad nce billing. Terms 20% deposit on ac-ce ance, balance C. O. D., subject to exam-n on. Write in for our prices on two and th states with one outfit.

inch Your State by Wire Today

Aerica's Feature Film Co.

403 Schiller Building,
CHICAGO, ILL.

COMING

Our dramas and our comedies are attracting attention. All agree that we have "Some" pictures — Read!!

THE MORNING TELEGRAPH
SUNDAY, MARCH 3, 1912.

Send in your name for a Solax Calendar

"BLIGHTED LIVES."

Solax—March 1.

It begins tritely and has all the appearance for a few scenes of an old story, then it takes a turn for the better and develops interestingly and ends with dramatic conviction if not happily. Two men are in love with one girl and one is accepted. The successful suitor is pressed financially and his rival loans him a check accusing him of forgery when it is presented for cashing. The fiance is sent to prison. Conscience takes its turn and the rival gives monetary aid to the imprisoned man's mother. The girl learns of his kindness and marries him in the belief that the other was guilty On the convict's release he returns home seeking vengeance on the guilty usurper, but on realizing all that his enemy had done for his mother he relents and leaves a photograph of the girl on which he writes his forgiveness of the couple. The photo is found by the wife and for the first time she learns of the guilt of her husband and she leaves him forever. This finale deserves especial praise, for it is unusual in films and true to dramatic instincts if not to all lives of such tragic experience.

Send in your name for a Solax Calendar

Released Wednesday, March 20th

COUNT HENRI, THE HUNTER

A "game" fortune hunter in the guise of a foreign nobleman comes to America with nothing to recommend him but a "musty" castle and a colossal nerve. He parades himself in American society as a fearless hunter of wild animals—although in reality he had never held a gun. Some American young men get wise to him and the "fearless" count is "shown up." This is a feature Billy Quirk comedy.

ON THE SAME REEL

THE BATCHELOR'S CLUB

A Rollicking, Musical Comedy, in Motion Pictures.

Released Friday, March 22nd

THE CHILD OF THE TENEMENTS

The illness of her child and the strike at the mills reduces an impulsive mother to absolute penury. She has dreams of California, the land of roses and health, but to take her sick child there is out of the question. She has barely enough money with which to carry on housekeeping. In a moment of impulsive desperation the mother steals from one of her benefactors. She only steals enough money to take her to California. She is accused of the theft, but her benefactor allows that he loaned her the money. The scenes are tensely dramatic and emotional.

Solax Company

CONGRESS AVE., FLUSHING, N. Y.

SALES COMPANY Agents in U. S. A. and Canada

Solax

Now Comes the Harvest

The best Season of the Year for the Moving Picture Manager is at hand and he is looking hard for the

BIG MONEY-GETTING FEATURES

THE

Great American Round-Up
The 1911 Cheyenne Celebration

Both are :: TOP-NOTCH Productions

EXHIBITORS PLEASE NOTICE

EXCLUSIVE RIGHTS FOR OHIO FOR
"The Great American Round-up"
AND OHIO AND INDIANA FOR
"Round-up and 1911 Cheyenne"
CONTROLLED BY
CENTRAL FEATURE FILM CO.
LIMA, OHIO

EXCLUSIVE RIGHTS FOR VIRGINIA, MARYLAND, WEST VIRGINIA, DELAWARE AND DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA FOR BOTH
"Round-up and 1911 Cheyenne"
CONTROLLED BY
J. H. HIENZ, Baltimore, Md.

WE STILL HAVE A FEW STATE RIGHTS FOR SALE AT BARGAIN PRICES

To Get Your Share of the Big Money, Write Us At Once

THE TOURNAMENT FILM COMPANY, TOLEDO
OHIO

Oldest and Best

NESTOR

Always a Feature

3 A WEEK

3 A WEEK

"The Worth-While Film"

Scene from

THE REVELATION

Release of Monday, March 11th, 1912

A Feature Drama of Highest Excellence

GET IT! You'll wish it were more than 1000 feet

Wednesday, March 13th

THE FIGHTING CHANCE

A Wholly Worth-While Western Drama

GET IT! 965 feet of virility and thrills

Saturday, March 16th

THE UNKNOWN MODEL

A Comedy Among Comedies

GET IT! 976 feet of classy fun. GET IT!

COMING NESTORS

March 18th, THE FEUDAL DEBT (Drama)
March 20th, A PAIR OF JACKS (W. Comedy-Drama)
March 23rd, OVER A CRACKER BOWL (Comedy)
March 23rd, SANTA FE (Scenic)

For mammoth PHOTO of entire NESTOR FILM COMPANY, send 50c in stamps to

DAVID HORSLEY : : BAYONNE, N. J.

TUESDAY

REP FILMS

SATURDAY

THE "REP" ALPHABET

"C" stands for chance

"Chance happens to all, but to turn chance to account is the gift of few."—Bulwer Lytton.

We give you the chance by making "REPS." Are you turning this chance to account by showing them?

Remember this! REP productions are NOW acknowledged by all critics to be the equal of the best, and the superior of many.

Tuesday, March 19

A New Lease on Life

The Romantic Educational reel wherein the largest State Institution is used as a studio.

Saturday, March 23

The Face at the Window

An Arctic production of love, hate, jealousy and madness.

March 5—THE DREAM
March 9—A BRAND FROM THE BURNING
March 12—TWO MEN
March 16—THE SCAR

Fill this in and send to us:—
Name of Theater..
Address..
Town..........................State..........................
What age service do you use?..
Name of Exchange..

REPUBLIC FILM CO., Dept. W, 145 WEST 45th ST. NEW YORK CITY

LUBIN FILMS

RELEASED WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13th, 1912

Length about 1000 feet

"His Wife's Mother"

Jack Hancock, confidential clerk in a broker's office, has, as is usual, treated his wife's mother pretty badly. His wife and child are on a visit to Grandma when one day the firm gives Hancock $10,000 to deposit in the bank. Jack gets the stock-market fever, and in a plunge loses every dollar. He is on the point of committing suicide when the grand old dame comes to his relief and hands him the money.

RELEASED THURSDAY, MARCH 14th, 1912

Length about 1000 feet

"The Price of a Silver Fox"

Frank Wardour has a lovers' quarrel with his sweetheart, Grace Thornton, and in a fit of temper joins a hunting party for Northern Canada. Before leaving, Grace tells him if he will bring back the skin of a silver fox she will make up. Frank bags the silver fox, but it is stolen by an Indian. In tracking the thief, he is overcome by the cold, and frost-bitten and disfigured he returns and finds Grace being married to another. With a broken heart he goes back to Canada.

RELEASED MONDAY, MARCH 16th, 1912

Length about 1000 feet

"The Preacher and the Gossips"

When the young and good-looking Rev. Frank Speakman reported at the village church as the new minster, the ladies all primped up and set their caps for him. He, however, got into hot water by favoring a pretty milliner of the flock. The gossips get busy, and with the aid of an unfinished letter to his sister found on his table, put him on trial. He, however, is acquitted, and his first sermon is on malicious gossiping.

RELEASED MONDAY, MARCH 18th, 1912

Length about 1000 feet

"The New Constable"

The ladies of Woodlawn Heights cannot keep any help, and on discussing the matter it is resolved that the reason is that the constable of the town is fearfully homely and wonderfully sour. The mayor is petitioned to get a new officer, and he imports a perfect Apollo, and the housemaids are made happy.

LUBIN MANUFACTURING COMPANY, MODEL NEW STUDIOS
20th and Indiana Avenue
Philadelphia, Pa.

CHICAGO: 154 WEST LAKE ST. B. NICHOLS, 86 WARDOUR ST., LONDON, W., ENGLAND. BERLIN: 35 FRIEDRICH STR.

VITAGRAPH

“FIRST WOMAN JURY IN AMERICA”

MONDAY, MARCH 11th

California has given woman the right to vote and to try the men. Have a look at them in the jury box and you will see that they are still women. This will make you laugh, but they can't help it.

“FIVE SENSES” “A STORY OF THE CIRCUS” } Split Reel

TUESDAY, MARCH 12th

“FIVE SENSES”—Is the effect produced on our sense of Hearing, Seeing, Smelling, Feeling and Tasting. A laugh in every one of them.

“A STORY OF THE CIRCUS”—A little trapeze performer has the friendship of the performing elephant. The boy meets with an accident. The elephant will not be parted from him. A combination of humor and pathos.

“MRS. 'ENRY 'AWKINS”

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13th

It is a “bloomin' good 'un.” A story of the coster folk of England. It is of the right sort, too. You mustn't pass it by.

“THE GREAT DIAMOND ROBBERY”

FRIDAY, MARCH 15th

A soubrette loses her dog and diamond ring. Two “Sherlock Holmes” deduct that the dog swallowed the ring, and that Kraut used the dog for sausages. They buy all Kraut's sausages. The dog and the ring are found. The detectives lose their money and their reputations as sleuths.

“SUNSET,” or “HER ONLY ROMANCE”

SATURDAY, MARCH 16th

Resplendent in the scenic grandeur of the Golden West. A romance on the Pacific Coast that grasps, because it rings true to life.

NEXT WEEK NEXT WEEK

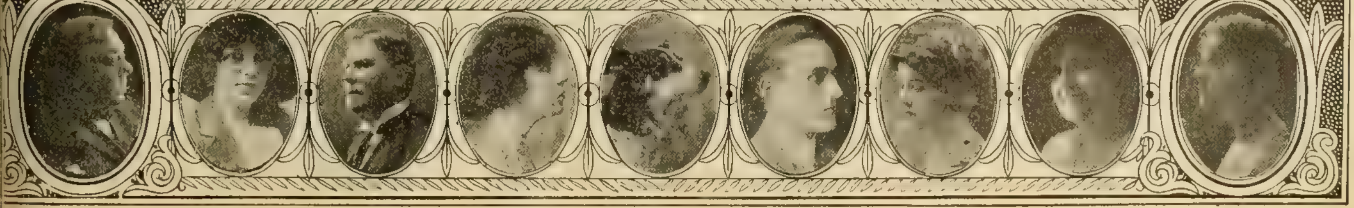
“THE BLACK WALL”—Strikes 'way down deep.
MONDAY, MARCH 18th.

“THE OLD SILVER WATCH”—Up to the minute.
TUESDAY, MARCH 19th.

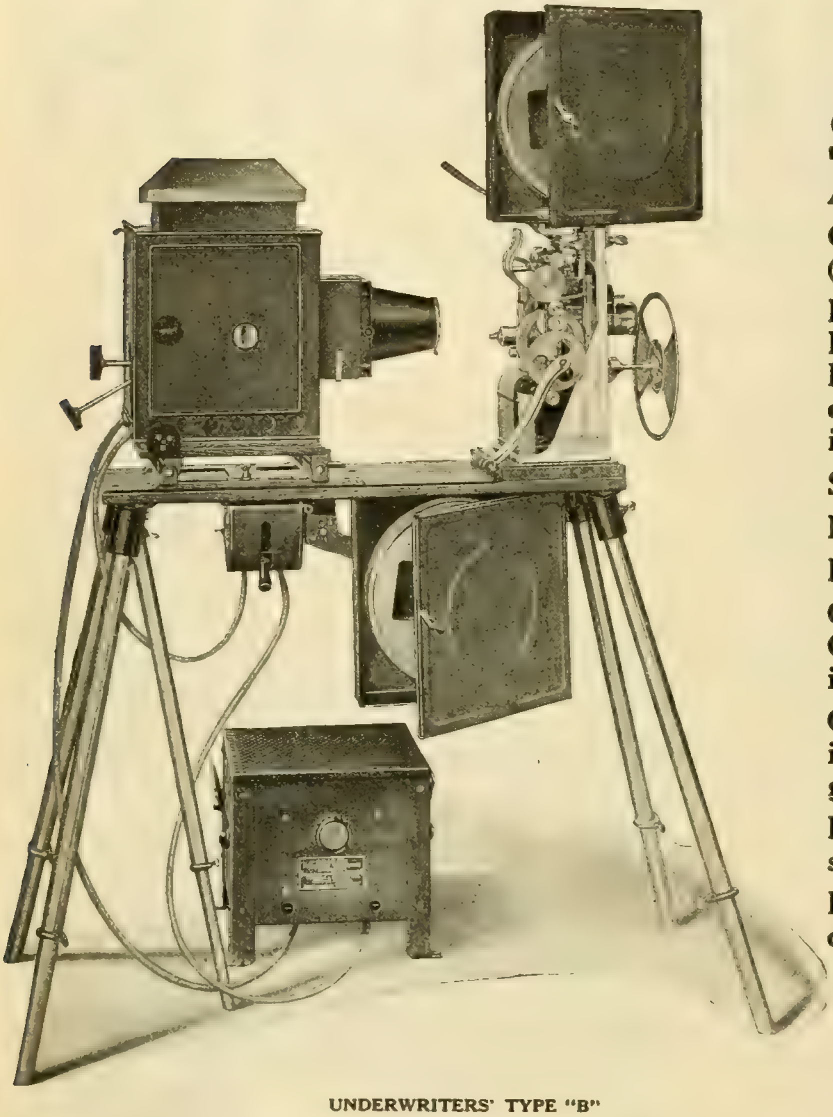
“THE TWO PENITENTS”—Western drama.
WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20th.

“MR. BOLTER'S INFATUATION”—Funny love scrape.
FRIDAY, MARCH 22nd.

“TAFT'S CABINET” }—Split reel.
“HER FORGOTTEN DANCING SHOES” } SATURDAY, MARCH 23rd.



THE EDISON KINETOSCOPE



UNDERWRITERS' TYPE "B"

The Acme of Perfection in a Motion Picture Machine

SPECIAL FEATURE

Adjustable Outside Revolving Shutte

Chain Drive (new) or Belt Drive Takeu (optional).

Extra large and improved Lamp Hous Double doors and square condens holder. With this style no more i convenience when a condenser chan is necessary.

Steel Bearings and Hardened Shafts.

New Heavy Brass Arc Lamp Terminal

Double Magazine Rollers.

Oil Guard over gears operating t Outside Shutter so as to prevent splashing of oil on film or lenses.

Oil Cups on shutter shaft bearings a intermediate pinion of the chain gears driving the shutter.

Hardened Bearing in the Brack supporting the outside shutter.

Five extra-heavy legs, 1¼ inches i diameter.

Edison "B" means Efficienc Durability and Satisfactio Guaranteed to be Mechanical Perfect.

No other business to-day holds out su rich promise of big returns on such sm investment and at such low operating cost the moving picture business.

No other business gets under way so quick gets into its stride and starts making mon within so short a time. A show starts maki money from the minute you open the doo A good show keeps on making money, a keeps its profits clear by starting with the b machine made. Send to-day for complete formation regarding the Edison Kinetosco and a copy of the Edison Kinetogram.

COMING EDISON FILMS

Tell Your Exchange You Want Them

Mar. 19—"Her Face." 1,000 feet. Comedy drama.

Mar. 20—"Dress Suits in Pawn." 1,000 feet. Comedy.

Mar. 22—"The House with the Tall Porch." 1,000 feet. Dramatic.

Mar. 23—"Incidents of the Durbar at Delhi, Dec., 1911." 600 feet. Scenic. "Tommy's Geography Lesson." 400 feet. Comedy.

Mar. 26—"The Lighthouse Keeper's Daughter." 1,000 feet. Drama.

Mar. 27—"Percival Chubbs and the Widow." 1,000 feet. Comedy.

Mar. 29—"How Washington Crossed the Delaware." 1,000 feet. Historical.

Mar. 30—"A Funeral That Flashed in the Pan." 1,000 feet. Comedy.

THOMAS A. EDISO
INCORPORATED
239 Lakeside Avenue
Orange, - - - - New Jers

The Leading Motion Picture Producer of the World

FOLLOW THE FLAG

SELIG

March 18th

The Girl of the Lighthouse

A true-to-life story of the picturesque Italian fisherfolk dealing with their love, jealousy, duty, loyalty and hatred. The principal players are Miss Betty Harte and Messrs. Bosworth, Watson and Richardson.—About 1,000 feet.

March 19th

The "Epidemic" in Paradise Gulch

A rip-roaring comedy of the East and West. The plot concerns the arrival of a beautiful new teacher from the East and her experiences with the Little Hades school. Miss Harte, Mr. Garcia and Mr. Cogley play laughable roles.—About 1,000 feet.

COMING

WATCH
WAIT
LOOK
LISTEN

THE COMING OF COLUMBUS

The World's Most Expensive and Most Elaborate Masterpiece

IS ON THE WAY

COMING

TRADE MARK

March 21st

The Ones Who Suffer

An exceptionally appealing and gripping story of a man's battle to live down his past life. The principal players are Bessie Eyton, Thomas Santschi, Herbert Rawlinson and Fred Huntly. —About 1,000 feet.

March 22nd

The Junior Officer

A romance of love, intrigue and sacrifice—strong in plot and dramatic in action. In its perusal we are carried around the world. Hobart Bosworth, Roy Watson, Eugenie Besserer, Lillian Hayward and Betty Harte are the principal players.
—About 1,000 feet.

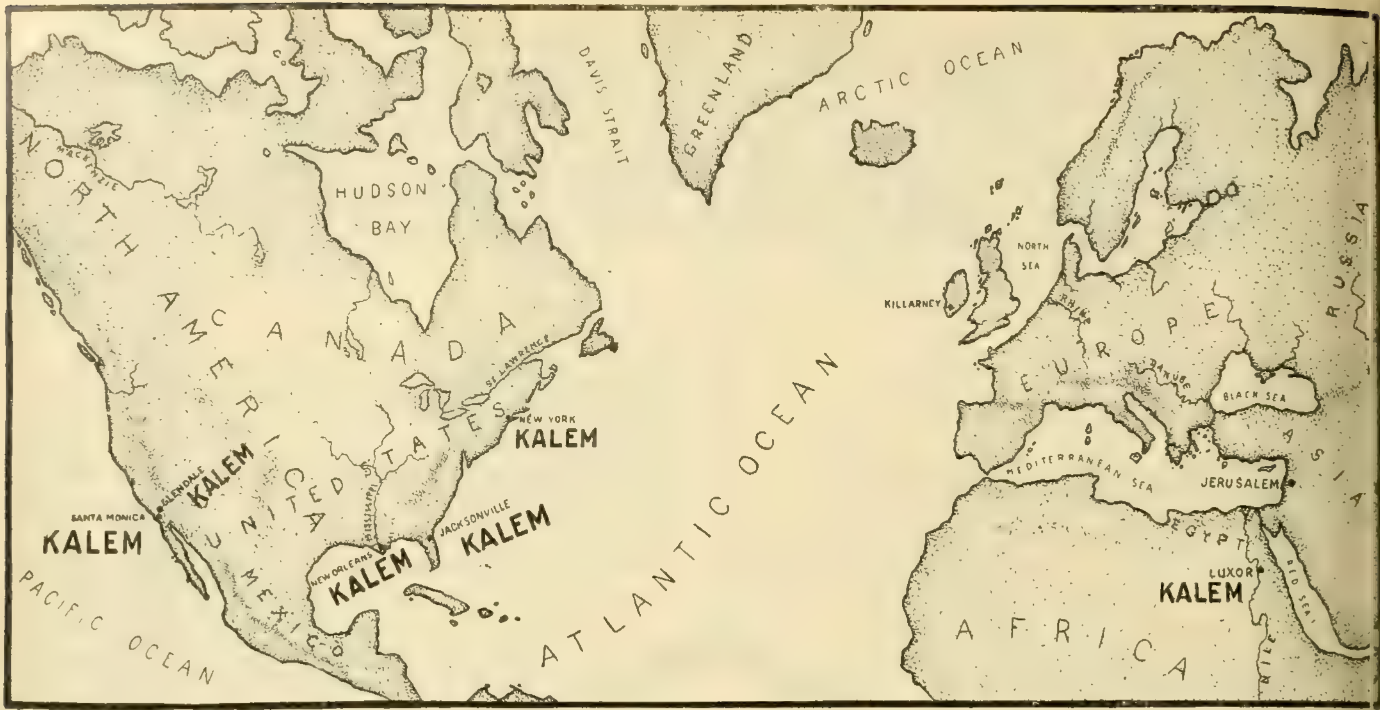
SELIG

Selig Polyscope Co.

TRADE S MARK

Chicago U.S.A.

EUROPEAN OFFICES
LONDON — BERLIN — ST PETERSBURG.



The above map indicates the locations of the six Kalem producing companies.
Watch our weekly releases for big features.

THE TRAIL THROUGH THE HILLS

A Western Drama Full of Thrills

Released Monday, March 25th

Outwitting Father

On the Same Reel

THE KIDNAPPED CONDUCTOR

Two excellent comedies. The kind your patrons like.

Released Wednesday, March 27th

The Banker's Daughter

A modern and thoroughly original drama

Released Friday, March 29th

COMING WEDNESDAY, APRIL 3RD

The Spanish Revolt of 1836

Special piano score, containing selections of beautiful Spanish music for this headliner. The price is only 25c. You cannot afford to miss this added attraction.

The A. B. C. Co. have prepared one, three and six sheet, four color litho posters for "THE SPANISH REVOLT OF 1836" that will help you "get the money."

KALEM COMPANY

INCORPORATED

NEW YORK, 235-239 W. 23rd St.
86 Wardour St., LONDON, W.
BERLIN, 35 Friedrich Str.
PARIS, 13 Rue du Faubourg Montmartre

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING COMPANY
(Beach Building)
125 E. 23d. Street, NEW YORK
Telephone call, 1343-1344 Gramercy
J. P. CHALMERS, Editor and Manager.
Entered at the General Post Office in New York City as Second Class Matter.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $3.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada, $3.50. Foreign Countries, $4.00, Post Paid.

WESTERN OFFICE: 169 W. Washington St. (Post Bldg.), Chicago, Ill. Phone, Main 3145. Automatic Phone 32732.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES ON APPLICATION.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS (No Display). Three Cents per Word; Minimum Charge, 50c.

Address all correspondence "Moving Picture World, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square, New York," and not to individuals.

Vol. 11 MARCH 16, 1912 No. 11

INDEX TO CONTENTS.

ADVERTISING FOR EXHIBITORS ... 956
ACROSS THE ISTHMUS IN 1912 ... 952
AMONG THE EXHIBITORS ... 1003-6

BOOSTING THE SOCIAL CENTER IDEA ... 960

CALENDAR OF INDEPENDENT RELEASES ... 975
CALENDAR OF LICENSED RELEASES ... 986
CHICAGO LETTER ... 954
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Independeit) ... 963
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Licensed) ... 961
CORRESPONDENCE ... 976
CRYSTAL FILM CO., THE ... 946

EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE ... 955

FACTS AND COMMENTS ... 940

HOMER'S ODYSSEY, by W. Stephen Bush ... 941

INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES ... 1000
INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES ... 1008
INQUIRIES ... 989
INVADING EGYPT, by Louis Reeves Harrison ... 949
IN THE MISSISSIPPI VALLEY ... 976

LICENSED FILM STORIES ... 994
LICENSED RELEASE DATES ... 1010
LOUISVILLE ... 978

"MADAM ROLAND" (Cines) ... 941
MANUFACTURERS' ADVANCE NOTES ... 968
MANUFACTURER AND THE COPYRIGHT ... 953
MONTGOMERY OPENS IN DAYTON ... 955

NEW ENGLAND ... 977

PHILADELPHIA ... 978
PIDGEON, EDWARD E. ... 943
PROJECTION DEPARTMENT ... 964

SCENARIO WRITER, THE ... 958
SONG SLIDE RELEASES ... 992
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Independent) ... 1000
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Licensed) ... 994
STUDIO SAUNTERINGS, by Louis Reeves Harrison ... 944

TALBOT ON MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY UNRELIABLE, by Epes W. Sargent ... 942
WAGNER "BOOTH" BILL, THE ... 948

INDEX TO ADVERTISERS.

CARBON IMPORTERS.

FRORUP, L. E. ... 1015
KIEWERT, CHAS. L. ... 997
REISINGER, H. ... 926

ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT.

ENTERPRISE OPTICAL ... 1014
FOOS GAS ENGINE CO ... 990
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC ... 1014
HALLBERG, J. H ... 1014
ILG ELEC ... 992
KEYSTONE SALES CO ... 990
MACKIE, H. A., INC ... 1018 1012
MOORE, HUBBLE & CO. ... 1015
SAFETY ELECTRIC ... 1002
SCHNEIDER, E ... 1016
WILLIAMS, BROWN & EARLE ... 1016

FILM IMPORTERS & IMPORTERS.

ATLANTIC FILM CO. ... 1018
INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS ... 1013
MASKO FILM CO. ... 1016

FILM EXCHANGES.

BRADENBURG, GEO. ... 1012
CALEHUFF, C. ... 1015
COLUMBIA FEATURE FILM CO ... 1012
FEATURE FILM CO ... 1007
GREENE, W. E ... 1003
HETZ, L. ... 1017
LAEMMLE FILM SERVICE ... 931
LIEBOW, F. C. ... 1006
LYRIC FILM & SUPPLY ... 1011
SUPERIOR FILM CO ... 1007
SWAAB FILM SERVICE ... 1017
THE FILM EXCHANGE ... 1017

INDEPENDENT FILM MANUFACTURERS.

AMERICAN ... 980 981
CHAMPION ... 926
ECLAIR ... 927
GREAT NORTHERN ... 930
IMP ... 924
LUX ... 1003
MAJESTIC ... 1009
MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING & SALES CO. ... 928
NESTOR ... 933
N. Y. MOTION PICTURE CO. ... 929
POWERS ... 930
REPUBLIC ... 933
RELIANCE ... 1013
REX ... 925
SOLAX ... 931
THANHOUSER ... 922

INDEPENDENT FILM MANUFACTURERS (Not in Sale Co.).

CRYSTAL FILM CO ... 995
GAUMONT FILM CO. ... 991

LICENSED FILM MANUFACTURERS.

EDISON ... 936
ESSANAY ... 923
KALEM ... 938
KLEINE ... 995 998
LUBIN ... 934
MELIES ... 1019
PATHE FRERES ... 1017
SELIG ... 937
VITAGRAPH ... 935

MISCELLANEOUS.

A. B. C. CO. ... 993
AMUS SUPPLY CO. ... 992
BATTERSHALL & OLESON ... 992
BAUSCH & LOMB. ... 997
BRADY, A. ... 1011
CELLUKOTE CO. ... 1007
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS ... 979
CHICAGO PROJECTION CO ... 1013
CORCORAN, A. J ... 1001
DIAMOND OPERATING SCHOOL ... 1016
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL CO ... 1017
ERKER BROS. ... 1013
EXHIBITORS' ADV. CO ... 1013
EXHIBITORS' ADV. & SPEC CO ... 986
HOKE, GEO. H. ... 1013
LAVEZZI CO. ... 1018
McKENNA BROS. ... 1018
MIDLAND TRANSPARENCY CO ... 998
MILLER, E. L. ... 1011
MORTIMER FILM CLEANER ... 1013
NATIONAL TICKET CO. ... 1008
NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO ... 1015
NEWMAN MFG. CO. ... 1006
N. Y. FIREPROOF CONSTRUCTION ... 997
OPERATORS' HANDBOOK ... 1006
NEW YORK POSTER CO ... 992
ORIENTAL FILM CO ... 1012
PHOTOPLAY ADV. & SPEC. CO. ... 987
PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE ... 1011
PITTSBURGH PHOTOPLAY CO. ... 1017
RAW FILM SUPPLY ... 1003
REID DIFFUSER CO. ... 1016
SARGENT, E. W. ... 1018
STERLING NOVELTY CO ... 1017
TAYLOR, F. C. ... 1013
TRAINER C. W. ... 1017
U. S. FACTORIES CO. ... 1017
MORRIS, W. ... 992

LECTURES.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD. ... 999

MOVING PICTURE MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.

AMERICAN ... 1015
EDISON ... 936
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL CO ... 1016
POWERS ... 1020
SIMPLEX ... 975

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

DEAGAN, J. C ... 1011
SINN, C. E. ... 1017
WURLITZER, RUDOLPH ... 1015
ZEIDLER DRUM CO. ... 1017

OPERA CHAIR MANUFACTURERS.

AMERICAN SEATING ... 1018
ANDREWS, A. H. ... 1018
BENNETT, G. W ... 1018
HARDESTY CHAIR CO ... 1018
STEEL FURNITURE CO ... 1018
WISCONSIN SEATING CO. ... 1018

PROJECTION SCREENS.

AMERICAN THEATER CURTAIN CO. ... 1001
DeBERRI CURTAIN CO. ... 1014
INVENTORS' SPECIALTY ... 987
MIRROROID CO. ... 999

SLIDE MANUFACTURERS.

AMERICAN MOTION SLIDE ... 992
EXCELSIOR ... 1017
HUNTON FELL-ELLIOTT ... 999
KANSAS CITY SLIDE CO. ... 1016
LEVI CO. ... 984-985
NORTH AMERICAN SLIDE CO. ... 1018
PREMIER SLIDE CO. ... 1000
SCOTT & VAN ALTENA ... 992
SIMPSON, A. L. ... 1016

FEATURE FILMS (Released by)

AMERICAS FEATURE FILM CO. ... 931
FEATURE PHOTOPLAY CO. ... 1001
FEATURE & ED. FILM CO ... 1017
FRENCH AMERICAN FILM CO ... 982 983
GREAT NORTHERN SPECIAL FILM CO ... 993
JOHNSON FLYNN PICTURE CO ... 1005
LOS ANGELES PROJECTING CO ... 990
TOURNAMENT FILM CO ... 932

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.

DECORATORS' SUPPLY CO ... 1007

Facts and Comments

EXHIBITORS should be advised to use unusual care in making selections of feature films. The extraordinary, but natural and logical success of the genuine features has given rise to a perfect mass of so-called features, which have no real merit and fall far below the average of the regular weekly output in both the Licensed and the Independent camps. While it would be difficult to give an exact and permanent definition of the term, feature film, the thing itself is well understood and easily recognized by any discerning eye. The element of freakishness or of vulgarity or of yellow sensationalism should never in any shape or manner appear in a genuine feature film. Though the classic subjects lend themselves especially well to cinematographic adaptation, there may be features in the true sense of the word dealing with problems in modern life or with educational, industrial, historical and religious topics. The manner of treatment counts for much in determining whether any given feature comes up to the severest test. The artistic finish and the evidences of long and careful preparation are other infallible touchstones. From the exhibitor's point of view the feature, to be available to him, should consist of more than one reel. The shortest and yet broadest definition of a feature film would be "a combination of greater quantity with superior quality."

*

There can be no question that the exhibitor who is able to present, say, two feature films a week has a decided advantage over his competitor whose features are few and far between. Features surely help to increase the average quality, and four very ordinary programs on four days of the week may be made acceptable to the regular patrons if on the other two days of the week genuine features are offered. The MOVING PICTURE WORLD time and again has insisted that the method of presentation is the all-important thing and that a feature film should in every way possible be made different from the ordinary release. Lecture, music and effects are indispensable, and to give these three powerful adjuncts to the picture their proper effect there should be enough rehearsals to have everything move smoothly and harmoniously. Profits and popularity await the exhibitor who knows how to handle features.

*

In the Kinemacolor presentation of Oedipus Rex, exhibitors will find a concrete and tangible example of what we mean by a lecture. In the reproduction of this immortal tragedy the lecturer plays a most vital part. He takes the place of the ancient chorus, which in the Greek drama helped to advance as well as to explain the action on the stage. They call the lecturer by another name, "the narrator," which is really a much better term than lecturer. "Narrator" is the Latin variation of the more familiar Saxon word "The Story Teller." The story is told in pictures and in words, the words and pictures moving together in harmonious unison.

*

There should be a competent "narrator" in every first-class moving picture theater and there will be, when Erlanger's prophesy of the two dollar seat has been fulfilled. "The narrator" will be part of the permanent equipment. He must be a man of parts, quick to unde stand, ready and able to explain; he must possess trained mind and some education. With the class of fe ture films which are now winning popular favor an gaining friends for the motion picture every day, th narrator is an essential portion of the show.

* * *

THE responses to our campaign for a modern Sunday are very numerous and we are asked for mor advice. We shall be glad indeed to give suc advice, but the questions should be specific, as we hav treated the general aspects of the Sunday problem in series of articles. As an example of a wise and cautiou policy we are glad to cite the action of a corresponden from Clinton, Ill. This exhibitor had arranged to have Sunday performance for the same day on which a number of religious bodies had intended to meet and hold great "union revival." He was requested to defer hi Sunday performance and prudently complied with th request, thereby, as he says, "gaining the sympathy an respect of the public." The "sympathy and respect o the public" are the essential things in the Sunday agitation and there are many ways in which the exhibitors using a little diplomacy, can secure them.

* * *

COMPLAINTS are heard from exhibitors regarding the posters sent out with the regular release of the licensed and unlicensed manufacturers The objection is made that the posters too often show scenes that give a very poor or a totally incorrect idea o the subject which they are supposed to illustrate. According to the experience of many exhibitors the sensational is made too prominent, and there is too much gun-play, too many realistic struggles between men and women, and too much horror generally. The thing is proving a source of annoyance to exhibitors and to the public. It must be borne in mind that many people form their idea of moving pictures entirely from the nature and character of the poster display. A prosecuting attorney in a neighboring State showed himself overzealous in his attention to moving picture theatres. An exhibitor asked him what he knew about pictures and how many he had seen. He then reluctantly admitted he had never seen a picture in his life, but formed his ideas of moving pictures from the lithographs he saw in the lobbies. No wonder he was prejudiced. It sickens us every time to look at the huge banners displayed on the streets of New York, wherever the traffic is heaviest, announcing motion pictures of "famous bandits" and "terrible crimes." Millions of people pass these places, see these awful "banners" and not unreasonably conclude that the motion picture is little better than a pictorial Police Gazette in motion. Thus for the sake of a few wretched nickels incalculable harm is done to this great industry.

* * *

EXHIBITORS in New Jersey are much worried about the strict enforcement of the law forbidding minors under sixteen years to enter their theatres unaccompanied. We advise them to look at the law once more and examine it carefully. The law says that minors under sixteen shall not be allowed to enter motion picture theatres unless “accompanied by parents, guardians or an adult friend.” Consider the last two words, “adult friend.” This means that any grown-up person has the right to take children into the theatre, for the law does not of course acquire a special proof of friendship. If the adult friend takes a boy or girl into the theatre there can be no legal objection whatever. Why do the exhibitors there scatter their energies, and why do they not organize?

HOMER'S ODYSSEY. THREE REELS.

(Milano Films.)

Reviewed by W. Stephen Bush

THE filming in three reels of a number of episodes taken from the Odyssey of Homer marks a new epoch in the history of the motion picture as a factor in education. To make my meaning clear, I wish o emphasize once more that I do not use the expression “educational” in its narrowest sense; in other words, I do not speak of A-B-C books, primers, slates, lead pencils, chalk and blackboard. Every film that broadens the mind, stimulates the faculties and awakens an admiraion for what is beautiful may in the best and widest sense of the word be termed educational. If the work of the Milano Films Company should only please readers and students of Homer, if its superb art were entirely ost upon the masses, I could say but little for the genuine educational value of these reels. Unless these reels shall please, delight, entertain and instruct the average moving picture audience, they fail in the highest mission and destiny of the cinematograph, i. e., to bring he great treasures of art and literature within the reach of the general public. Here is the crucial test: Have the makers of the film transferred the spirit of the poem, its indescribably charming and fascinating atmosphere, its sweetness, its power, its heroic size, its winning simplicity from the cold black type to the moving strips of celluloid? The answer is “Yes.” They have indeed done all of this, and have performed their task in a manner which leaves the critic silent in admiration.

It is but just to say in connection with the subject that he Milano Films Company and their American sponsors owe no little debt of gratitude to the small group of ambitious and resourceful American manufacturers who have within the past five or six years labored without ceasing for the uplift of the motion picture. They have paved the way for the success of such a picture as this. n improving the quality of the American-made film they have improved the taste of the moving picture patrons nd have slowly but surely attracted the best classes of he population to attendance at the moving picture enterainment. Utterly discarding the cheap melodrama and the vulgar farce, which at one time threatened to overwhelm the picture, they went for the sources of their inspiration to history, to sacred and classic literature, to clean and popular fiction, steadily growing with the greatness of their tasks. The names they used to conjure with were immortal names, from Shakespeare and Molière to the great dramatists, novelists and poets of more modern days. Were it not for their labors such a roduction as this release of the Milano Films Company might have small reason to expect a welcome at the hands of the average exhibitor.

With a full appreciation of the labors of these few American film-makers I have no hesitation in saying that their best efforts have been eclipsed by this Milano production. To find a standard of comparison I will have to take the Inferno of Dante, made by the same manufacturers. In both productions I find the same painstaking care in the elaboration of details, the same ability to understand and make visible in pictures the spirit of the poems. The Milano Films Company bring to the aid of their director or directors the suggestions of scholars, of painters, of sculptors, of historians. No scene is presented that does not show these pleasing proofs of artistic skill and thoroughness. Every inch of film proclaims the fact that different masters of their crafts are doing their best. I am convinced that every human being looking at these reels is bound to feel from the very first scene the subtle influence of the genius of Homer. Let it be remembered that Homer sang his heroic ballads to a primitive people who knew nothing of libraries and of all the aids of modern education and who had to be moved chiefly by the beauty of form. In this respect the masses of the people have undergone little change; they are still enchanted by the beauty of form. With the possible exception of vaudeville performers on the cheap circuits no man or woman can stand in the aisles of a Gothic cathedral without feeling a deep, yet pleasing thrill; no man or woman can hear the strains of Mozart's music without perceiving, however vaguely, some of its spell over the heart; nobody can look at a great painting without at least a slight stirring of the nobler nature. It is much the same with a first reading of Homer. The spectator at an exhibition of these reels will have an even keener experience than the reader of the poem. Am I paying too high a tribute to this production? Consider that the Odyssey, after more than twenty-five centuries, is still revered and cherished as the greatest of poems; remember how generation after generation has held fast to this precious heritage; bear in mind that it is even at this day the basis of every academic course, and no tribute here can be more than as a drop of water in a mighty ocean.

The story of the Odyssey is simplicity itself. Ulysses, the King of Ithaca, a small island in the Ionian Sea, having helped to conquer Troy, sets out on his homeward journey. He meets with many misfortunes and adventures, at last reaches his native land and wreaks his vengeance on the men who in his absence had cruelly harassed his wife and eaten up his substance. He is recognized by his wife, and the two are reunited. Less than a hundred words tell the tale. “The “plot” of the story was old before Homer was born. The unsurpassed merit of the great epic lies in the characterization of its hero, Ulysses, and in the description of the incidents of the long and troubled journey. To understand and to feel fully what is meant by the genius of Homer you must see the pictures.

It has seemed strange to me that the makers of the films contented themselves with the production of three reels. They have chosen the parts of the poem which presented the most difficulties, and seemed to enjoy the work just because it made unheard-of demands on the filmer's art. The adventure of Ulysses and his companions in the cave of Polyphemus, the giant, seemed next to the picturing of the Sirens, the hardest to render in moving pictures. The skill the producers have shown in these two scenes is beyond the power of praise. The scenery and settings of the feasts of the Phæacians are a delight to the eye and marvelously true in respect to Greek customs, manners, religious rites, the appointment of the household, as they existed in the Homeric age. The adventure on the Island of Helios and the fearful passage through the narrows between Scylla and Charybdis are based on famous classic paintings and have now the element of motion added to their art. The Milano Company has created a true Ulysses even to the fine physical proportions, a hero in the ancient sense of the word. He commands both admiration and sympathy from the first. The acting of Ulysses makes the character perfect from the standpoint of the reader of Homer. There is not a false move throughout the three thousand feet of film, every look, every gesture measures up to the Homeric conception. Telemachus, the son of Ulysses, is another perfect creation of Milano art. Even the semblance of son to father, so often mentioned in the poem, is there. Penelope is well rendered, and so are the minor characters—Laertes, the old swineherd Eumaeus, Antinous, the chief of the suitors, Alcinous and Arete, the king and queen of the Phæacians and their lovely daughter, the "white-armed Nausicaa." Even in this minute detail the film makers have adhered to the letter of the poem. The element of the supernatural has been cleverly treated by the makers. A modern audience is all too easily surfeited with an overdisplay of supernatura forces and yet it would be impossible to portray the adventures of Ulysses without showing in some way the intervention of the gods. The Milano Company wisely confined themselves to the introduction of Pallas Athene (Minerva), always an impressive figure and not without the attributes of loveliness. Music and effects will suggest themselves to every intelligent exhibitor and a lecture would of course greatly heighten the effect of the reels on any audience, whether cultured or otherwise.

Few people will content themselves with one view o these pictures. As with a favorite book we want to renew the acquaintance as often as we can. The eterna message of Homer, the message of youth and happiness is much like the "eternal feminine"—"it draws us on."

There is much proof in these pictures that the motion picture is both a fine and an useful art.

Talbot on Motion Photography Unreliable

By Epes Winthrop Sargent.

CATERING to the demand for information regarding the making of motion pictures, the J. B. Lippincott Company brings out an American edition of Moving Pictures, "How They Are Made and Worked," by Frederick A. Talbot, printed in England and made up largely of a rehash of articles originally appearing in The Scientific American and the European periodicals of a kindred nature, but containing also a weird mass of misinformation and half truths whereby the author, seeking to appeal to his British public, endeavors to make it appear that the English manufacturers from whom he obtained his data, lead the world in the production and development of the picture business. Some of the misstatements may have been innocently used, but there are times when it is apparent that the author deliberately slights the performances of the French and American makers to the greater glory of the Briton. The result is a work that reads plausibly enough to the uninformed layman, but which is utterly useless as a reference work because of the intent of the author. It is unreliable and misleading, even at times archaic, and irritating to a degree.

As an example of the manner in which the truth is glossed to glorify British endeavor we may cite the opening chapter on trick films. The pioneer work of George Melies is too well established, even in Great Britain to be slighted, and the chapter opens with the admission that "The trick film owes its inception to the well-known French prestidigateur, Monsieur Meiles" * * * "His first attempts were of the simplest description," but having found these acceptable he later "introduced all the devices known to the 'Black Art'" and "the Melies trick films enjoyed a remarkable vogue."

The entire work of M. Melies is dismissed in less than a page. There is no citation by title of any of the wonderful subjects that constitute the second stage in the progress of the projected motion picture, and there is no reference to "A Trip to the Moon," here or elsewhere, nor of any of the other of the Melies products. Surely no authoritative work on motion pictures can dismiss the work of Melies in a page where sixty-seven pages in all are given to trick effects. Instead, we are informed that "Meanwhile Robert Paul, of England, had been considering the feasibility of the same feat, but had feared that the personality of the magician would be missed. Seeing the success of the Frenchman, he decided to embark upon a similar line of activity." Whereupon the work of this follower of Melies, who had come into the business through his experiments in connection with the pirating of the Edison Kinetoscope, is treated in detail where the originator is ignored.

One grows tired of Robert Paul before the end of the volume is reached for his name appears with a frequency that suggests that he must have supplied the facts to Mr. Talbot.

The opening chapters deal with the development of the idea of photographic reproduction of motion and due credit is given Muybridge for his early experiments, to Thomas A. Edison for the Kinetoscope and to Eastman and Walker for the celluloid film which made the Edison kinetoscope possible. Reciting that a kinetoscope was taken to London by two Greeks, who saw the machine at the World's Fair in Chicago, the author tells how they approached Paul to duplicate the apparatus. He found that the machine was not patented in London and produced many machines not only for the Greeks but for his own business.

Driven by the efforts of the American company to keep films from him, he builds a taking camera and gets the idea of a projection machine, which he is enabled to develop through the presentation to his attention of the invention of Birt Acres for the printing of bromide positives by mechanical means. This gives him the idea of the intermittent movement and he develops his projection machine. That Edison and Lumiere were working along the same lines is only indirectly made apparent when the late Sir Augustus Harris is made to say to the inventor that he had seen a similar device in Paris. This was in 1896 and that the claim to originality may not be made too apparent the author states that "so far as Great Britain is concerned, he certainly fathered the enterprise of animated photography," though many might gain the idea that he was the first to work upon the device, even while it is stated that his impetus was received from the inventions of Edison and Acres. Mr. Paul is entitled to all credit for his research work, but this should not be accorded at the expense of others who even more prominently contributed to the development of cinematography in France and America.

Later on Mr. Talbot makes the direct statement that the Lumieres developed the cinematograph simultaneously, also deriving their inspiration from the kinetoscope, but the impression is conveyed that Mr. Paul had most to do with the advancement of motion photography. Wherever possible he is cited as the inventor or improver of devices. He is given credit for the production of the first photoplay (forty feet in length), made in Great Britain, but there is slighting reference to the efforts of the Edison company; "a crude attempt" in a building "unpretentious in the fullest sense of the word," the Black Maria at the Orange works, while "at about the same time" the Mutoscope company (now the American Biograph) commenced work in the same field, on the roof of their building at Broadway and Thirteenth Street.

There are two references to the Passion Play made in this country by interests headed by Richard G. Hollaman, of the Eden Musee, but no reference to the Edison "The Great Train Robbery," which assuredly attracted equal attention, and which is entitled to being called the first photoplay as the term is now understood.

Quite remarkable is the statement that "Moving pictures without darkness have been exploited in the United States upon a small scale, and on one or two occasions in this country." He expresses his preference for the dark house and believes the public to be in agreement with him as "daylight projection is no more popular today than it was in 1897." This in a book just off the press and with the 1912 imprint!

Fully as illuminating is the remarkable statement that "The Edison company has fourteen principals at Orange, in New Jersey; and in addition a company of seven stationed in Western America for plays having a western setting. The Selig Company has thirty players in its Chicago and Los Angeles establishments." No mention is made of the Vitagraph, Kalem, Lubin or others having fifty or more players on the permanent payroll. There is no reference to the small army of players on the various Pathe payrolls, and, although there is an illustration of the Edison studios at edford Park, New York City, evidently an old one without he fence, the company is located in Orange; no serious mis- ake, perhaps, but characteristic of similar mistakes through- ut the book.

The author does not approve of the American system of elease through the General Film or the Sales Companies, s the manufacturer is "certain of the sale of 80 copies of very film he makes; and as the sale of ten copies is suffi- ient to pay the average expense of production, he is sure f a handsome profit on 70 copies or so," and consequently without ambition. We fear that someone has been "spoof- ng" Mr. Talbot, "spoofing" being a synonym for "kidding." ertainly the average "average production" would not show profit on the sale of only ten copies.

Mr. Talbot is good enough to say, however, that "not ll the American films are inferior to European produc- ions," which is very kind of him, indeed. He mentions Edi- on, Selig, Vitagraph, Biograph, Kalem and Lubin, "with one r two others," as having kept pace with the European roduct.

In spite of the fact that Trewey, a French illusionist (Mr. albot gives it Treuwe, evidently spelling it from sound), rought a Lumiere machine to London, T. J. West is very roperly credited with the spread of the picture show in reat Britain, but he ignores the fact that at the time that rewey was working in London there were numerous store hows in America, as W. T. Rock, of the Vitagraph; A. D. otaling, now comedy director for the Lubin company, and undreds of others can testify, and through the wording of he account would make it appear that the United States ollowed the French and British lead.

Considerable space is devoted to trick work, as might be xpected in a volume that is to appeal to the lay reader, ut in the chapter devoted to the principles of the work but single page is given the double exposure and several pages o the almost extinct double printing. At that, the trick hotograph section and that given over to micro-cinematog- aphy and similar topics is the more informative and reliable ince here the author has been helped by published articles nd does not have to rely upon biased informants for his nowledge. Even at that the impression is created that Rob- rt Paul pervaded this end of the business, too.

One looks in vain for mention of the name of Charles rban in the description of Kinemacolor and this section, fter a rather hostile discussion, winds up with the statement hat the Biocolor is much to be preferred, being based on e Friese-Greene process.

In the concluding chapter Mr. Talbot makes some start- ng statements. Admitting that the English product is not hat it should be, and expressing the hope that the English anufacturers may be able to get the necessary financial aid o enlarge their scope, he points to the Hepwix films as the eans of establishing the British film abroad. "The Colo- ies have become satiated with the American products," he almly announces, "and turns with relief to the English films, ut the supply is not equal to the demand. Even the Ameri- an public is nauseated with its home productions, and, as it ppreciates the work of British dramatists, so it approved of e British film play."

The book will interest those who purchase it for the pur- ose of finding out how trick effects are obtained, for some f the best articles of three and four years ago are repro- uced here, but the remainder is valueless since not only oes the writer hold back some truths and advance many rrors, but even in those sections devoted to machines the ork lacks comprehensiveness, since selection is apparently ade according to preference rather than importance, the ork of some men being given undue importance and that f others slighted or flatly ignored. When a book on motion otography is written it will have to be done by some one ualified to speak and not by a collator, dependent upon thers for his information. This book fails of its purpose.

WURRA-WURRA!

The Kinemacolor Company have surprised all of the wise- cres in metropolitan circles during the past fortnight by the nheardof innovation of leasing a Broadway playhouse—the ew York Theater—for a period of six weeks at a rental of 2500 weekly and showing there the gorgeous Kinemacolor ictures of the dazzling Indian Durbar to the fabulous profit f more than $5,000 for the first seven days of their tenancy, nd by the announcement that they have secured no less a amous duo of stellar personages than Madame Sarah Bern- ardt and Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree to pose in their most otable characterizations for a series of films shortly to be hown by this company in the principal cities of the United tates and Canada.

MR. EDWARD E. PIDGEON, PUBLICIST.

Press agentry in all its glory has not yet gained wide favor among the makers and exploiters of the motion picture. Now and then, and especially in the West, a notable example of that delightful craft appears; but the splendor and consequence which attends him in other forms of amusement has yet to become a feature of the picture business. Recently New York picture enterprises have enlisted the regular press agent for special occasions. Frank Winch, who vied with Buffalo Bill in grabbing space from the rural press, is filling a limited engagement with the Monopol Film Company at $???.?? per minute. Walter Kingsley, who has prepared the "dope" campaigns for many notable legitimate attractions, is in charge of the celebrated "Sarah Bernhardt" pictures of the French-American Film Company. "I have been ahead of Bernhardt and am now content to die" is said to have been the last words of one of the famous Knights of the Cut Trunk. But few American advance men can claim this high distinction; the last chance was the picture and Walter got that, and you will believe us when we tell you that he is putting over some classy "dope."

All this is merely "by the way" of a proper introduction to the militant ranks of Picturemen of that Chesterfield of Agents, Smiling Edward E. Pidgeon, the flower of the flock, who has just dropped into the publicity department of the Kinemacolor Company of America. Just to let the brothers of the craft know that he was still in proper fettle he sat down to his Underwood Multiple Typewriter (we get a piece of change for that) and tore off 58 varieties of "dope" for the papers. Listen here:

> The fact that the Kinemacolor Company has annexed the expert services of "Eddie" Pidgeon to promote their interests indicates plainly that they "have thrown their hat into the ring" of the moving picture field, wherein soon we may expect to hear of big things doing. Mr. Pidgeon is a newspaper man of sterling worth, knows the full value of news thoroughly, turns out high grade copy, has an imaginative mind and a facile pen and, with his advent in the arena, a new era in publicity securing is assured. He was for years the Dramatic Editor of the New York Press, resigning from that position to promote the affairs of William Morris, Inc. It was he who was responsible for the name "William Morris" becoming a household word among the patrons of vaudeville. While with Mr. Morris he directed the tours of Harry Lauder, secured page upon page of newspaper space for that wonderful, educated chimpanzee, "Consul the Great"; developed Maude Odell, "The Sandow Girl," a $250 vaudeville act, into a headline attraction worth ten times the contract price as a box office attraction, and achieved many other noteworthy feats of publicity for his employers.

That select audience of newspapermen who were invited in by Eddie to witness the "development" of Maud Odell admitted at the time that he was one of "our best little developers." We do not rake that up now because we entertained any hard feelings in the matter. On the contrary we fully agree with the writer when he says: "Mr. Pidgeon steps into his berth with the Kinemacolor Company bearing the best wishes of hosts of friends in both the newspaper field and the theatrical world throughout the country."

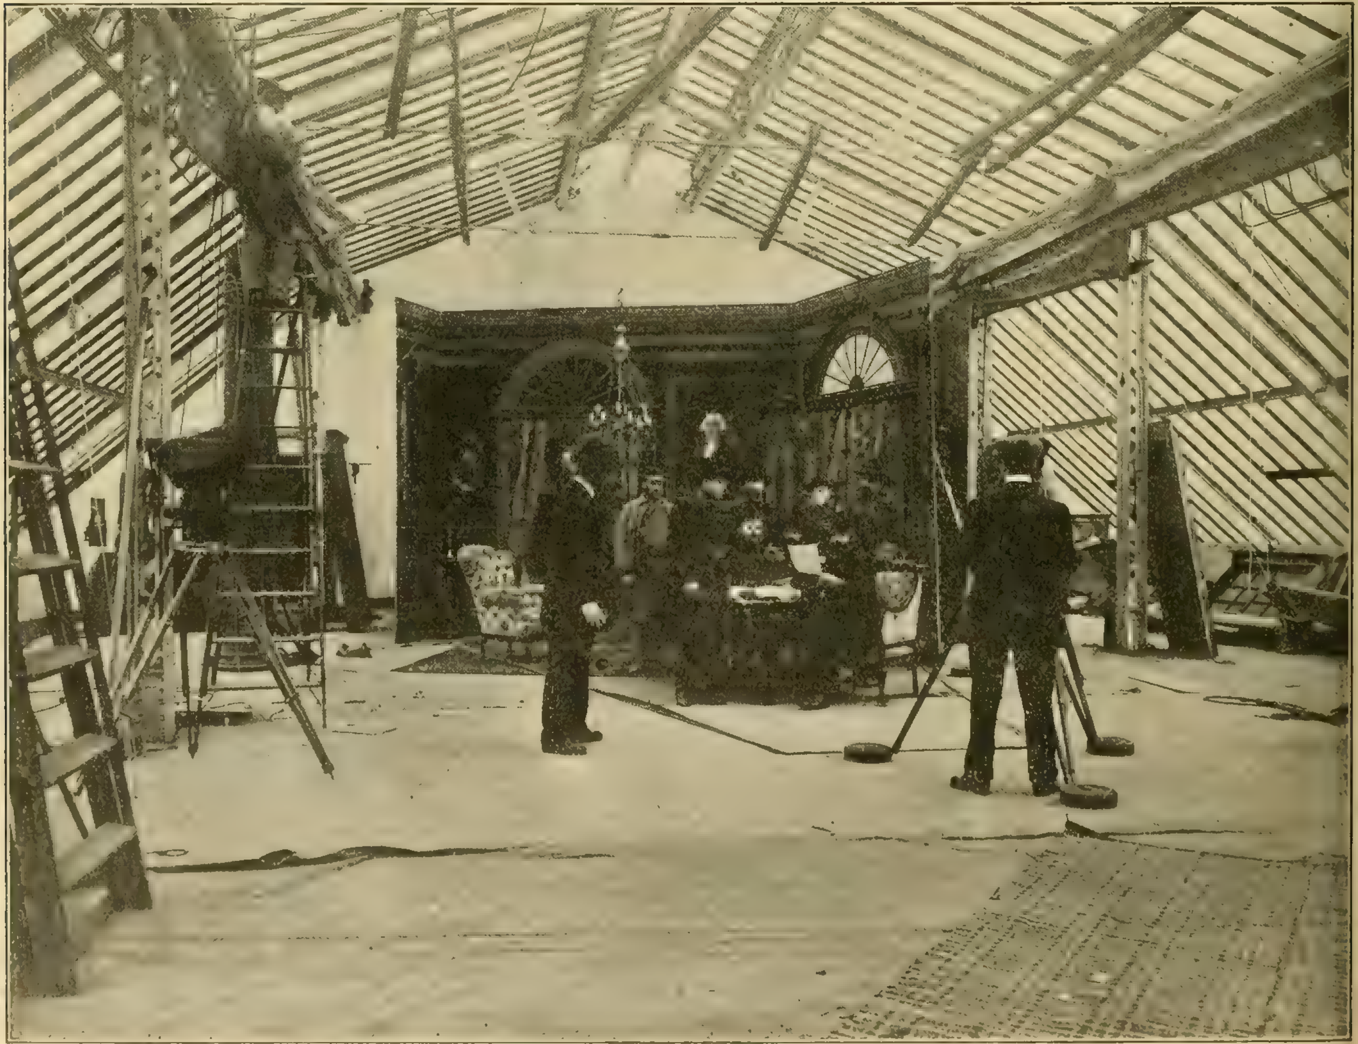
Studio Saunterings.

By Louis Reeves Harrison

WHERE the Palisades have retreated from the Hudson and the old road to Paterson winds down into the lowlands of Hoboken stands the Pathe American studio, commanding a sweeping view, when Jersey City smoke permits, from one end of New York City to the other. On the day of my visit, the towering structures of Manhattan were to be seen through a veil of coal fumes that gave them a Turner-like half reality without the great impressionist's color charm and atmospheric lambiency. The picture of our largest city as I saw it from a high window of the Pathe studio was as cold and gray as an overcast day in Winter, and I could not help thinking that it resembled many motion pictures thrown on the screen. I could not help recalling a day last summer when I dined at a little French restaurant on the edge of the Palisades opposite Washington Heights and looked out upon an afternoon scene of unsurpassed beauty—when river and shore and sky displayed all the prismatic hues to be found in the palate of a setting sun. Then I suddenly remembered that Pathe Freres were first in tinting moving pictures as in many other developments of the new art.

Why should I prefer the colored picture? Yankee-like I answer "Why should you?" Why do the poor of a great city spend their small savings in occasional efforts to get away from the dull gray monotony of their lives to where they can obtain a glimpse of radiant se or variegated woodland? The beauty of nature lays hol of our senses as does the charm of good music withou our being aware of an effort of attention; we lose consciousness of ourselves and our bitter thoughts when w are possessed by the external will; the love of color audition seems to be universal. If I am mistaken set m down as an impressionist.

There lies deep in artistic appreciation of any kind selective quality which exhibits preference for one thin at the cost of something else. In these saunterings I tr to picture what impresses me in the way of larger fact and thoughts without any attempt at completeness of detail and without intentional slight upon personalities unmentioned. There is no personality without characteristics which could enrich the world, but I can only giv passing shades of feeling without attempt at profoun insight. My visual perceptions are simple schemes without analysis of elements. I may, therefore, be excuse for thinking that one of the greatest things the Path brothers have done is that of presenting colored scene and plays so that millions may delight in the gratificatio of what seems to be a universal love of beauty, that the have touched many picture plays with the sympatheti warmth we find in Nature when she is in moods of self-revealing loveliness.



Pathe Studio Scene—Director Handworth Posing a Military Drama.

Winging closer to earth, I was started on this saun- ring at the Pathe New York office where "Bertie" oagland makes Americans feel as welcome as a piece New England pie after a trip abroad. He is some- ing like a good pie himself (not at a poker game), ith plenty of fine stuffing and mighty little crust out- de. It was "Bertie" who encouraged me to go over the studio, call for Mr. Berst and "find that every- ing will be all right." There was no band playing when arrived at the dignified structure and the oppressively illy boy at the telephone switch displayed no broad d inclusive sympathies. That snub-nosed kid shattered my ideals of the democratization of the human heart.

When I was finally allowed to see Mr. Berst in his ivate office, my repertorial courage had vanished. I lt as though I had come to borrow $10,000 on my own te with a doubtful endorser. I was held by a pair of es as blue as the steel barrels of two pistols, and I rew up both hands, figuratively speaking. Here was a an who could speak, but held his mental efforts in re- rve for more important occasions. I felt as though I ght to apologize for going around and recording im- essionist views of studios when I might be better and ore profitably occupied. I had, however, caught a mpse of Louis Gasnier, the most adventurous director the business, and the fact that I had become well ac- ainted with Gasnier upon his arrival in this country arly two years ago opened up conversation.

Only recently Gasnier was portraying a scene where actor was required to plunge twenty or thirty feet to a raging flood and declined—he was a man of fam- . Gasnier changed clothes with the actor and took plunge with characteristic love of the novel and ar- ous, trusting to escape through his mental alertness d physical strength. His most daring feat, however, s that of guiding a runaway horse through a lot of ngerous properties, including a circus tent and a heavy affolding. Gasnier was concealed in the body of the gon, guiding the runaway horse by wires and when scaffolding fell, had three ribs broken and his skull ctured.

Almost as rash is an American director named Hand- rth, who was recently assigned to the pleasant duty blowing up a torpedo boat with 200 pounds of jobbite. found himself in custody of the high explosive on aten Island when the day was too dark for accurate otography, and compelled to sleep with it or store it ere some careless individual would not solve futurity a fragmentary way, so he buried it in the sand be- een South Beach and Midland Beach, and retired for night. In a somnambulistic state, while dreaming t the Katzenjammer Kids were unearthing his buried asure, he rose and went forth to guard it. There he s found in the morning, pacing the beach in his pa- nas, drenched to the skin, but happy. I know of a od place for Handworth when it is time to send him ay. I have been there myself and I am completely ed.

While Mr. Berst warmed and gave me some idea of force I found it no easy matter to get at his distin- shing peculiarities, hidden as they were behind nat- l reserve and long training as the executive head of arge business interest. Events show that organization st be his specialty and system his habit, but along with se go some bold aboriginal views that are making a p impression on the observing portion of moving pic- e audiences. He has caught the "news idea" and de- oped it with such startling force that we are beginning see men in the public eye, like President Taft, at all ortant functions. Pictures may soon be playing a part in the political game, though some think the mission of the photodrama is up to the missionaries.

The Pathe Weekly has become such a feature that it draws well at all exhibitions, because it is original and up-to-date in its features, but I have a suggestive criticism to offer. Where the first warship of Republican Portugal is shown in New York harbor, the background might have been made of worldwide interest if it had taken in the interesting group of towering buildings at the lower end of Manhattan Island. The backgrounds are very important in giving glimpses of unvisited scenes to those who cannot afford to travel.

Chief Director Louis Gasnier.

As to Pathe photodramas, I have transcribed four or five of them into magazine stories and have studied others with a realization that they present a full harvest of art and idealism. Mere promise of profit on its realization may suffice for producers whose limitations are those of eating, breathing, sleeping and wearing clothes, but the clay of material existence is only good to grow from. When real men emerge from their imaginary importance to themselves they set about in the fullness of the ability given them to make our dreams come true. Pathe Freres have given the world glimpses of poetic history and dramatic story with ineffable graces in their finest efforts and with the broad idea of contributing to world-comprehension of what makes life better worth the living.

TO PICTURE THE "LOAN SHARKS."

The movement started by the Chicago Tribune toward correcting the "loan shark" evil will undoubtedly be greatly aided in its effectiveness by the Essanay Company, who have constructed a story based on several personal experiences published in the Tribune's columns. The film depicts the inhuman methods employed by these much-dreaded usurers, and will appear under the title of "The Loan Shark," March 15th. Over one million people will see this picture throughout the country, and its good results should be widespread in helping to stamp out the common evil.

PICTURE MAN FOR CONGRESS.

Francis A. Hauber, president of the Family Theater Company, of St. Marys, Pa., also a banker and lawyer, is being urged to enter the race for Congress in the Twenty-eighth District of Pennsylvania. Mr. Hauber seeks the nomination on the Republican ticket. The district consists of Elk, Mercer, Warren, Forest and Venango counties in which are several of the largest cities of Northwestern Pennsylvania. Wouldn't be a bad idea to have a picture man in Congress.

The Crystal Film Company, New York

The Superb Equipment of this New Studio and Factory, Onecf the Surprises of the Week.

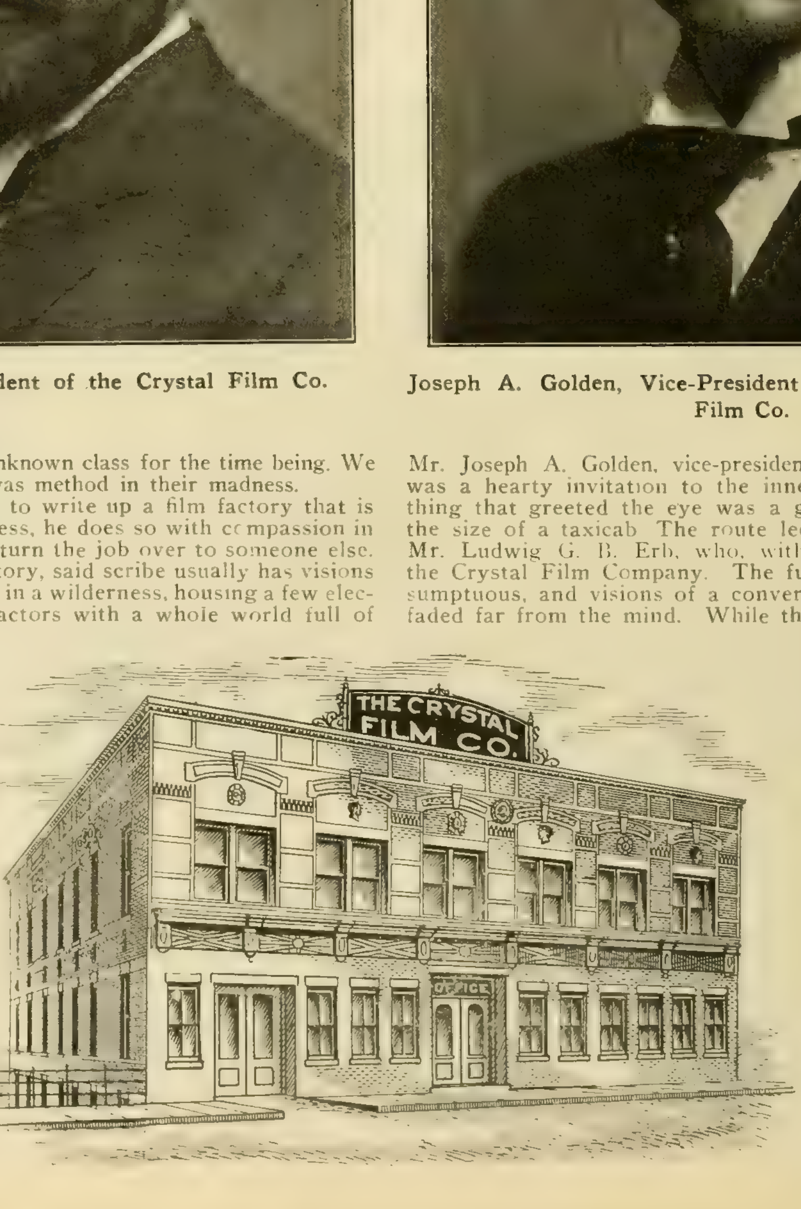
WITHOUT making any big noise, the Crystal Film Company, of New York, has been in existence for several months past. They not having any brass band to attract the attention of the world at large, our knowledge concerning their movements was limited and their modesty rather served to keep them in the unknown class for the time being. We found out later that there was method in their madness.

Ludwig G. Erb, President of the Crystal Film Co.

Joseph A. Golden, Vice-President and Treasurer, Crystal Film Co.

When a scribe starts out to write up a film factory that is just entering into the business, he does so with compassion in his heart and would rather turn the job over to someone else. On the way to said new factory, said scribe usually has visions of converted sheds, situated in a wilderness, housing a few electric lights, some stranded actors with a whole world full of high hopes that are destined to dwindle away to nothing in many cases, after much hard and discouraging work. With such visions in mind the journey to the Crystal Film Company was begun. But at the other end of the trip there was a jolt in store for the pessimistic reviewer. Instead of running into a converted shed in a wilderness the World man found himself standing before a fine new pressed brick, fireproof, concrete building situated at Wendover and Park Aves. He looked at the address on the slip of paper to make sure he was right and then went ahead in. It was the right place surely enough and a distinct surprise was waiting.

An air of newness pervaded; also handsome oak partitions prevented the intruder from getting to the inner regions. The reviewer's card went in and in a moment he was greeted by Mr. Joseph A. Golden, vice-president of the concern. There was a hearty invitation to the inner sanctum, and the first thing that greeted the eye was a great big new safe about the size of a taxicab. The route led into Mr. Erb's office—Mr. Ludwig G. B. Erb, who, with Mr. Golden, comprises the Crystal Film Company. The furniture in the office was sumptuous, and visions of a converted shed in a wilderness faded far from the mind. While the Crystal Film Company is new, its guiding spirits are old friends who have been in the moving picture business for a long time. In Mr. Golden we recognized an old acquaintance who had been associated with othe moving picture companies in the capacity of producer. Mr. Erb came in at once and he too, we knew of old. That put all hands on a friendly basis and a tour of inspection was begun.



Before going very fa the World man's eyes began to open very wide. The first depart ment visited was the studio, not fully com plete but one that wi a model of its kind. Banks of lights were already in ace and the electrical equipment of the very finest procur- le. It was all put together in such a professional way at it looked the part from the very beginning. The dressing oms were found to be clean and new, with accommodaons which actors do not always find. Mr. Golden's private ffice is screened off in one corner of the large studio where e will devote his time editing scenarios when not actually roducing. On the same floor is a reservation to be used as garage.

The entire ground floor is devoted exclusively to the office isiness and artistic work. The real surprises in store were aiting on the floor above. It was there that admiration beme unbounded upon viewing one of the most perfect manucturing plants in New York or anywhere. First came the rge sized vault for the storing of negative film; then into the rying rooms where large brand new drying drums were in sition ready for operations to begin. The assembling deartment adjoined this with clean, new benches for the girls to ork upon and a complete kit of tools for each assembler. earby stood a film polishing machine of Mr. Erb's own inention. With this machine it is possible to do the polishing ork in the same time that formerly required ten girls to do ie same amount of work.

The dark-rooms are by far the best equipped of any that have een seen hereabouts. They are arranged so scientifically that brought expressions of admiration every few minutes. This actory is indeed equipped to turn out a large amount of work. Nothing has been left undone; nothing unthought of remains to ake it perfect. The perforating room is equipped with Bell & Iowell perforators of the best grade, with compressed air sucon at both sides for removing dust and particles. The printg room is also equipped with the latest Bell & Howell printing achinery, each printer delivering an average of 18,000 feet of rinted film per day. One principal merit of this factory lies the admirable way in which it has been arranged and laid out. This is due to the genius of Mr. Erb, who is the mechanical man of the combination. It is quite sure that their employees will enjoy working under the conditions that Messrs. Golden & Erb have supplied. The plant is one that any film maker on earth could feel justly proud of and its owners are of course very proud of it.

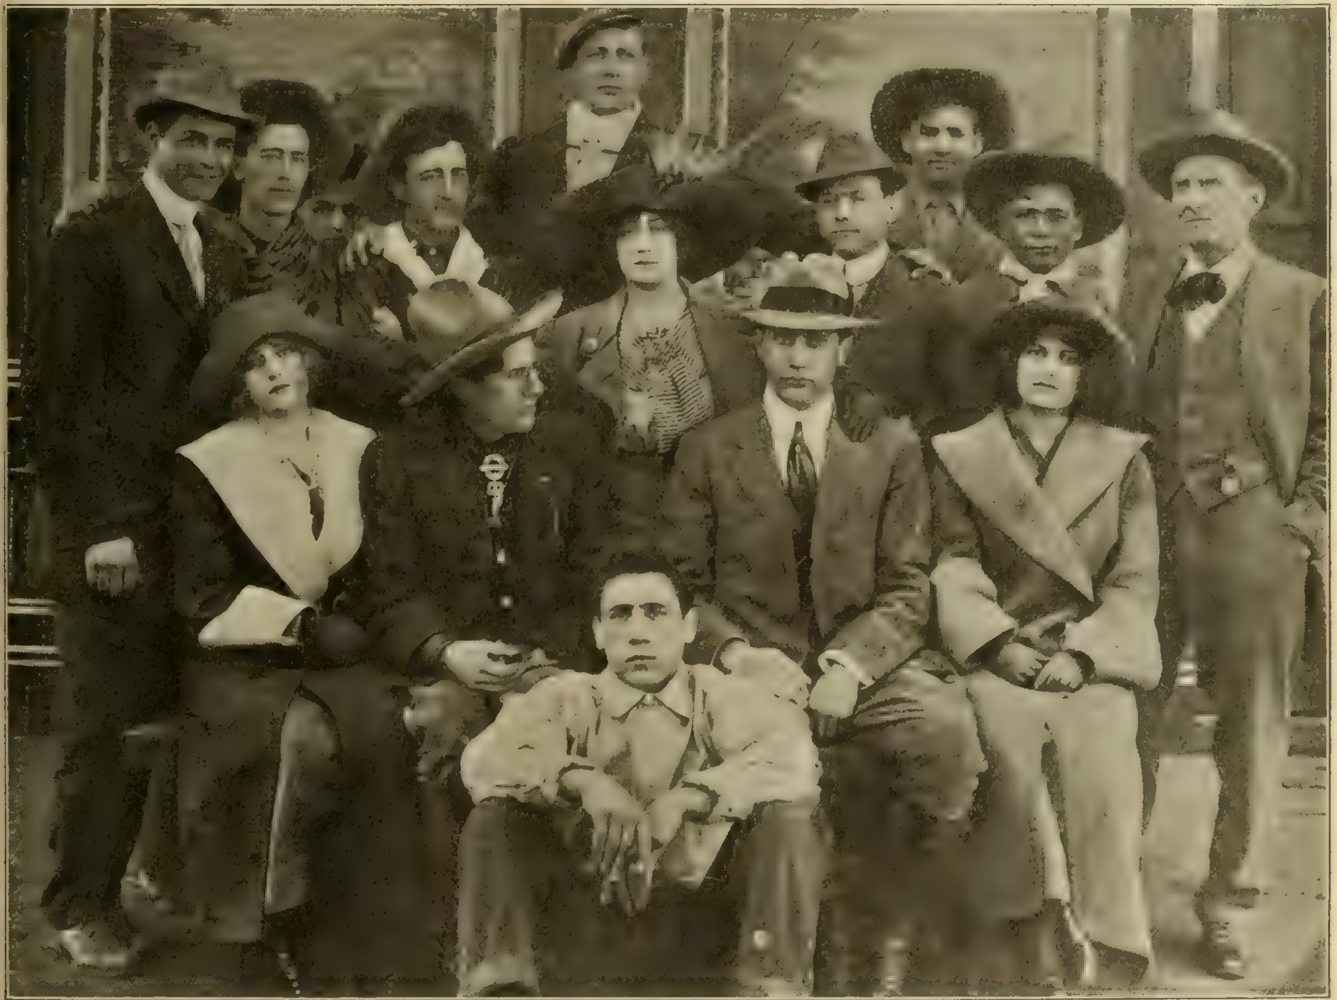
It is the intention of the Crystal Film Company to turn out as their principal product high class comedy and drama. There will be also forthcoming feature productions; sometimes adapted from classic literature; other times purely dramatic. In these productions none but experienced actors of reputation will take part. The Crystal Film Company is a concern that will bear watching. It represents an investment of $40,000, coupled with long experience. After what we have seen, great things may be expected of them. It was indeed a pleasure to visit such a model plant as this, and the scribe who had visions of converted sheds and other things came back with the satisfaction of an afternoon well spent.

THE "CITY OF KNOWLEDGE" JOINS THE PROCESSION.

On Wednesday evening, February 21st, one of the most exclusive churches in the city of Cambridge, Mass., the Epworth Methodist Episcopal, on Massachusetts Avenue, gave a motion picture entertainment in the church auditorium.

Several reels were run, all of them being of an educational nature. During the intermission Cy Warman, assistant manager of the Grand Trunk Railway System, and who is sometimes called "the poet of the Rockies," recited some of his original poems and told a number of funny stories.

The admission charged was twenty-five cents and the large auditorium was well filled, the audience being composed largely of people who seldom or never visit a regular picture theater. Everyone present seemed well pleased with the program and applause were liberal.



LUX AMERICAN STOCK COMPANY AT LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Reading from left to right: Top row—Frank LeClain, Joseph Bowering, Arthur Ortega, P. [illegible] Chrisman, Warren Ellsworth, Bob Boyce, A. D. McLeod, Felix Arrendando, Frank Apperman. Middle row, sitting—Dolly Larkin, George [illegible], Director, Agnes V. Egan, Secretary, [illegible] Hernoud, Manager; Vivian Rich. In center, on ground—Albert [illegible], cameraman.

The Wagner "Booth" Bill.

New Provisions for the Construction of Fireproof Picture Booths Before New York State Legislature.

AT the instance of the New York Exhibitors and Commissioner Johnson, of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity of the City of New York, Senator Wagner has introduced a bill in the New York State Senate amending the present law bearing on that subject. The introductory number of the bill is 784 and it is now before the Judiciary Committee of the senate.

Regarding the measure, Mr. John Collier, of the Board of Censorship, one of the conferees in the framing of the bill, says:

"This bill, if enacted, will accomplish the following points: (1) It would allow the use of any approved fireproof material in constructing permanent booths, would require a vent-flue in booths, and would reduce the required height of both from 7 to 6 feet. (2) The bill would provide for a portable booth to be used in temporary exhibitions. (3) The bill would provide for the enclosure of miniature motion picture machines in a fireproof box. (4) Other details, such as the storage of films, are covered in the bill, and it is specified that the law shall not be retroactive under certain conditions."

The text of the bill is given here in full:

AN ACT

TO AMEND CHAPTER SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY-SIX OF THE LAWS OF 1910 IN RELATION TO THE OPERATION OF THE CINEMATOGRAPH OR ANY OTHER APPARATUS FOR PROJECTING MOVING PICTURES.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Article 12A. PUBLIC ENTERTAINMENTS OR EXHIBITIONS BY THE CINEMATOGRAPH OR ANY OTHER APPARATUS FOR PROJECTING MOVING PICTURES.

Section 209.—FIREPROOF BOOTH FOR CINEMATOGRAPH OR ANY OTHER APPARATUS FOR PROJECTING MOVING PICTURES.—No cinematograph or other apparatus for projecting moving pictures, save as excepted in Sections 211 and 213 of this article, which apparatus uses combustible films of more than ten inches in length, shall be set up for use or used in any building, place of public assemblage or entertainment, unless such apparatus for the projection of moving pictures shall be enclosed therein in a booth or enclosure constructed of (iron framework covered or lined with asbestos board or with some equally strong and fire-resisting material) concrete, brick, hollow tile, or other approved fireproof material, or any approved fireproof framework covered or lined with asbestos board or some other approved fire-resisting material, and unless such booth shall have been constructed as provided in Section 210 of this article, and the inspection provided in (Section 211) Section 212 shall have been issued to the owner or lessee of the premises where such booth is situated.

Section 210.—CONSTRUCTION OF BOOTHS, APPROVAL OF PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS. The booths provided for in Section 209 of this article shall be constructed according to plans and specifications which shall have been first approved, in a city, by the mayor or chief executive officer of the city department having supervision of the erection of buildings in such city; in a village, by the president of such village; in a town outside the boundaries of a city or village, by the supervisor of such town. Provided, however, that no plans and specifications for the construction of such booth shall be approved by any public official, unless the following requirements are substantially provided for in such plans and specifications:

1.—Dimensions. Such booth shall be at least (seven) six feet in height. If one machine is to be operated in such booth the floor space shall be not less than forty-eight square feet. If more than one machine is to be operated therein, an additional twenty-four feet shall be provided for each additional machine.

2.—General Specifications.—In case such booth is not constructed of concrete, brick, hollow tile, or other approved fireproof material than asbestos, such booth shall be constructed with (a framework of angle irons) an angle framework of approved fireproof material, the angles to be not less than one and one-quarter inches by one and one-quarter inches by three-sixteenths of an inch thick. the adjacent (iron) members being joined firmly with angle plates of metal. The angle members of the framework shall be spaced not more than four feet apart on the sides and not more than three feet apart on the front and back and top of such booth. (The fire-resisting material provided for in Section 209 of this article shall completely cover the sides, tops and joints of such booth.) The sheets of (such) asbestos board or other approved fire-resisting material attached to said framework shall be at least one-quarter of an inch thick and shall be securely attached to the (iron) framework by means of (iron) metal bolts or rivets. The fire-resisting material shall completely cover the sides, tops and all joints of such booth. The floor space occupied by the booth shall be covered with (said) fire-resisting material not less than three-eighths of an inch in thickness. The booth shall be insulated so that it will not conduct electricity to any other portion of the building. There shall be provided for the booth a door not less than two feet wide and (six feet) five feet ten inches in height consisting of (an angle iron frame) an angle frame of approved fireproof material covered with sheets of (said fire-resisting) approved fireproof material one-quarter of an inch thick, and attached to the framework of the booth by hinges in such manner that the door shall be kept closed at all times when not used for ingress or egress.

The operating windows, one for each machine to be operated therein and one for the operator therein, shall be no larger than reasonably necessary to secure the desired service, and shutters of (said fire-resisting) approved fireproof material shall be provided for each window. When the windows are open, the shutters shall be so suspended and arranged that they will automatically close the window openings upon the operating of some suitable fusible or mechanical releasing device

Where a booth is so built that it may be constructed to open directly on the outside of the building through a window such window shall be permitted for the comfort of the operator, but such booth shall not be exempted from the requirements of the installation of a vent-flue as hereinafter prescribed. Said booth shall contain an approved fireproof box for the storage of films not on the projecting machine. Films shall not be stored in any other place on the premises; they shall be rewound repaired either in the booth or in some other fire-proofed enclosure.

The booth in which the picture machine is operated shall be prov with an opening in its roof or upper part of its side-wall leading to outdoor air. The vent-flue shall have a minimum cross-sectional area fifty square inches and shall be fireproof. When the booth is in there must be a constant current of air passing outward through said ope or vent-flue, at the rate of not less than thirty cubic feet per minute.

(Inspection, certificate) This Article Not Retractive under Certain ditions. Section 211. Sections 209 and 210 of this article shall not retroactive for any booth approved by appropriate public authority or ficial prior to this act taking effect provided such booth have or be reconstructed of the same material as to have dimensions as specified Section 210 of this article; provided such booth conform to the specificat of Section 210 as regards vent-flue, box for storage of films, specificati for rewinding and repairing films, specifications for windows and doors, provided such booth be of rigid fireproof material, and be insulated so not to conduct electricity to any other part of the building and be separated from any adjacent combustible material as not to communic fire through intense heat in case of combustion within the booth.

Section 212.—(Section 212. Penalty for violating this Article)—Ins tion, certificate for permanent booths. After the construction of such bo shall have been completed, the public officer charged herein with the d of passing upon the plans and specifications therefor shall within th days after receipt of notice in writing that such booth has been c pleted cause such booth to be inspected. If the provisions of Sections and 210 of this article have been complied with, (and if, in the judgm of such public officer such booth is otherwise constructed in a manner as to render safe the operation of apparatus for projecting moving tures) such public officer shall issue to the owner or lessee of the pre ises wherein such booth is situated a certificate stating that the pro sions of Sections 209 and 210 of this article (shall) have been compl with.

Section 213.—Portable booth for temporary exhibitions.—Where mot pictures are exhibited daily for not more than one month, or not ofte than three times a week, in educational or religious institutions or b fide social, scientific, political, or athletic clubs a portable booth may substituted for the booth required in Section 209 and 210 of this artic Such booth shall have a height of not less than six feet and an area of less than twenty square feet and shall be constructed of asbestos boa sheet steel of no less gauge than twenty-four, or some other approved f proof material. Said portable booth shall conform to the specifications Section 210 of this article with reference to windows and door. S portable booth shall be equipped with a fireproof vent-flue of not less th fifty square inches cross-sectional area, which flue should communicate w the outer air and shall be kept continuously open. The floor of said boo shall be elevated above the permanent support on which it is placed by space of at least one-half inch, sufficient to allow the passage of air tween the floor of booth and the platform on which the booth rests, a the booth shall be insulated so that it will not conduct electricity to a other portion of the building.

Section 214.—Exemption And Requirements For Miniature Cinematogra Machines.—The above sections, 209, 210, 211, 212 and 213 referring to perma ent and portable booths, shall not apply to any miniature motion pictu machine in which the maximum electric current used for the light shall 350 watts. Said miniature machine shall be operated in an approved b of approved fireproof material constructed with a fusible link or other a proved releasing device to close instantaneously and completely in case combustion within the box. The light in said miniature machine shall completely enclosed in a metal lantern box covered with an unremovab roof.

Section 215.—Inspection, Certificate For Portable Booths and Miniatu Cinematograph Machines.—Before moving pictures shall be exhibited with portable booth, under Section 212 of the above article and before a miniatu machine without a booth shall be used as prescribed in Section 213 of th article, there shall be obtained from the appropriate authority as defined Section 210 of this chapter, a certificate of approval.

Section 216.—(Section 212). 1. Penalty for violating this article.—T violation of any of the provisions of this article shall constitute a m demeanor. This act shall not apply to cities which have local laws ordinances now in force which provide for fireproof booths of any kind f moving picture machines or apparatus.

(Section 2). 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

As before stated, this bill was introduced by Senato Robert F. Wagner and is now in the hands of the Judiciar Committee of the senate, which is composed as follows Chairman, Hon. Howard R. Bayne; Members of Judiciar Committee, Stephen J. Stillwell, James D. McClelland, Loring M. Black, Jr., Anthony J. Griffin, T. Harvey Ferris, William P. Fiero, George B. Burd, Harvey D. Hinman, Joshu T. Newcomb J. Mayhew Wainwright, Herbert P. Coats Robert F. Wagner.

Those interested in the passage of the measure shoul give it their immediate and hearty support. Efforts shoul be put forth at once to get it out of the committee. It i understood that Andrew F. Murray will introduce the bil in the assembly at once.

FUNNY FILM BY FLORIDA THANHOUSERITES.

O, Wicked Woman! You're always up to something Always makin' mischief—makin' boys leave home and hubbie leave their wives. And this latter trick is the very wickedes of all—this home-breaking. Take the Siren in "Mary's Case." Mary was a good and lovin' wife, even though an all-fire jealous one, and the Siren hadn't ought'n tried to steal he hubby away.

Mary knew it was wrong. She vowed that she'd hand a couple to Miss Siren. She got a horsewhip. She caught her hubby and the Siren comin'—and she stepped up and interrupted 'em. Then she saw it wasn't an elopement at all—that hubby had merely set out to cure her of her jealousy When you see "The Taming of Mary," released by the Thanhouser Florida Company, Friday, March 22, you'll realize that they DID.

Invading Egypt.

Looking Forward to the Pictured Glory of Egypt the Ancient, With Modern Views by a Kalem Cameraman.

By Louis Reeves Harrison.

A STRANGE discovery was made in Egypt this century which set thoughtful men to thinking very hard, especially in this country where a belief very generally and very naturally prevails that the march of time means uninterrupted progress. There is not the smallest doubt that we have gone ahead in a wonderful manner, but we are not particularly modest about it, and it comes in the way of a shock for us to occasionally learn in the dearest spot on earth, where nearly all the modern improvements calculated to make life better worth the living are concentrated, where architecture and decorative styles have come to be regarded as expressions of national feeling, that in some respects we have not advanced a step beyond ideas perfected thousands of years ago by people of the earliest known civilization.

A remarkable chair was found by Cairo authorities engaged in excavating near the tombs of Rameses III and Rameses XII in a solitary tomb of some branch of royalty which had not been entered by those who long ago despoiled the last resting places of the Egyptian monarchs, as it had remained undisturbed for over three thousand years. It was a veritable treasure house. There were three curiously modern chairs; all were beautiful works of art and one of them, in strict Empire style, was almost an exact duplicate of the chair used by Napoleon I at his coronation.

The Empire chair, of thirty centuries ago, with its elegance of design and solidity of construction, with its ball-and-claw feet so much imitated on the legs of our best tables and chairs of to-day, furnishes food for a great deal of thought. There is not only inspiration in its beauty and comfort but reproach as well for those who make our costly chairs on lines that do not delight the eye, of doubtful utility and so poorly constructed that they fall apart as soon as their articulations grow brittle with age.

In the same tomb were other articles startlingly modern in design and use. There was a bed with an exquisitely carved head, and its springs of braided flax were still good, though steel might have rusted in those three thousand years. There were bon-bon and toilet boxes of delicate tracery inlaid with carnelian and jasper; there was an embroidery box with bas reliefs in gilded plaster; there was a wicker trunk such as we now use as a hamper; there were pencils of hollow earthenware filled with colored leads; there were swansdown pillows like those contemporaneous editors use when they think they are thinking, and many other furnishings of later-day beauty and comfort whose identity of form made thirty centuries shrink and shrivel to as many years.

Modernity pats our present-day egotism on the back—it seems at times as though all the comforts of living have been showered on the past few generations,—but one has only to look at the Michigan furniture sold on the installment plan or in the department stores to realize that some of the most pleasing lines are relegated to romance and history. The wonderful beauty of detail in Egyptian furniture and architecture lies in simple imitation of Nature. The dreaming sculptor of that far-off period loved the vegetation that lined the banks of the Nile and incorporated what it suggested into the work of his hands.

The discoveries of which I speak were made the subject of a leading article in the Century Magazine a few years ago, and the main items of interest are still fresh in my mind, but I cannot speak with equal surety, to say nothing of equal authority, about the scientific tendency of the Egyptians, but it does not require profound reasoning to reach a conclusion that they must have had some knowledge of geometry, surveying and engineering. The great Pyramid is so perfectly constructed that there is only a variation of the fraction of an inch in the four sides, and all their temples are marvelous constructions. If I remember correctly, the four sides of the Great Pyramid face exactly north, south, east and west—how did the exact points of the compass become known without one? Though no trace of telescopes has been found, I would not be surprised if it is yet discovered that Egyptians understood astronomy, because it has been so frequently discovered that Egypt was the fountain head of what has been ascribed to the Greeks and Romans in matters of science and invention.

Scenes at Cairo and Luxor and Along the Nile Where the Kalem Company Is Making Pictures.

Egyptians of our earliest known civilization form an interesting study, and I know of no better method of setting representations of their culture before people of these times than that adopted by the Kalem Company, if it is thoroughly followed up by their representatives in Northeast Africa. Moving pictures can show in an interesting fashion the country as it is in contrast with what we can readily imagine it was by the architectural record of the remote civilization, with a twofold result. We are just emerging from a period when practical utility guided the construction and decoration of our houses, when all the attractive pieces of furniture in our homes were bunched in one best room, too precious for ordinary use. The front parlors of our boyhood days were reverentially closed most of the time, and many of their treasures were sold to dealers in antiques by reckless descendants of our thrifty ancestors, so that we have been slow to learn that beauty is the handmaid of utility.

Children of the East and West.

One result will be to show us Egypt as it is without going there. Nine-tenths of all the moving pictures exhibited are what might be justly called "Screen Stories," and such will probably be the character of most of those shown in future years, but the educational film is bound to come, and that of travel will always be entertaining to those who are confined by home ties or the nature of their occupations. The Kalem Company may glean a full harvest of modern Egypt in fascinating Cairo, the locality of those delightful tales gathered under the heading of "Arabian Nights" and filled with picturesque scenes of vivid coloring. So far as I have been informed, the Kalem Invasion has been principally directed at Cairo and Luxor, and these two points are representative so far as pictures of modern life and antiquarian interest are concerned—Cairo is the kaleidoscopic panorama of Egypt as it is, and Luxor is without peer in archæological attractions—but I hope the noble ruins of the latter are given prominence in the future Kalem releases.

Cairo is a heterogeneous jumble of humanity, where the European element is blended with the Oriental in a way quite as bewildering as the paradoxical government of Egypt itself. Nominally a province of the Ottoman Empire, Egypt really pays a yearly tribute to the Sultan which is a mere drag on the country, being extorted from the half-starved tillers of the soil. Its affairs are largely administered by Great Britain, though we have a finger in the mud pie dating from a treaty made early last century. The principal trustee has some live partners in the Debt Commission, embracing France, Gerany, Russia, Austria and Italy. As far as jurisdiction is concerned, there is a round dozen of partners, including the United States. The property rights of Europeans and Americans are thus involved in the comprehensive form of government. There is a confusion of tongues at Cairo more complicated than that found in the East side of New York, and a street mixture of turbaned Bedouins, camel trains, donkeys, bicycles, dog-carts, soldiers and tourists, which is amusing when it is not profoundly impressive.

I understand that the Shubra Palace, at one time well worth a visit, is now in a state of decay resulting from long desertion, but its situation close to the Nile, with the Pyramids in plain view, is not rivalled by that of any princely house in Egypt. The gem of the palace is a wonderful kiosk where the frisky Mehemet Ali used to collect the ladies of his harem, have them paddled out into the lakelet and overturned, screaming and scrambling into the water. This amusement of the viceroy was despotic but mild compared with that of a New York City despot who had his valet committed to thirty years of torture for stealing two stick pins. It may be seen that a citizen of this enlightened country enjoys many advantages not afforded by the older one.

The Great Pyramid and the Sphinx form the objective point of most travelers, and they are certainly interesting monuments, but their power over the human imagination has never been fully defined. It may lie in their wondrous age and utter uselessness, reminding us as they do of what man might have become had he been condemned to perpetual life on the face of this planet. His allotted time is just about enough for him to enjoy all he can appreciate and leave with a thirst for some new experience of wider variety. The countenance of the Sphinx, like that of the moon, presents an expression of superhuman indifference as if long wearied of changeless existence.

There is a legend that Mary, Joseph and the Infant Jesus passed a night at the feet of the Sphinx, the Holy Child nestling at its breast. This may have given rise to the impression that the great stone image has been made the repository of a tremendous secret, possibly that of infinite time and space. It seems to call attention to our limitations, but it need not serve notice on some of us. I do not pretend to grasp the significance of a thousand years—it is all I can do to remember a few occurrences in those that I have lived,—hence the centuries of Egyptian civilization would be far less impressive than they are if they had not preceded the birth of Jesus Christ.

The sense of solemnity that overtakes one while visiting monuments of ancient races is nowhere more impressive than in Egypt. It will be difficult if not impossible for Director Olcott, of the Kalem Company, to transfer this feeling from the actual scene of his labors to the audiences of this country and others by means of moving pictures. It might be possible for him to utilize the sad temple of Hathon as the background of some great tragedy—it is a majestic house of grief. The place was dedicated to Hathon, Goddess of the Underworld, and might be made to assist in telling the story of one of her wistful sisters, those unfortunate women who have not lived the lives for which they were created and obviously intended.

I can give no advance notice of the Kalem Company's plans—none has been given to me, and they are probably not fully formed—but from what I have seen of Director Olcott's work I am led to believe that he will make some valuable contributions to the new art from the resources of the ancient country. We hope to enjoy views of these magnificent temples in more attractive form than they are usually given by those who take still photographs. I would like to see ancient tragedies or modern comedies interwoven with these views so that they appear as settings to action and can thus be held on the screen longer than if they were presented as mere curiosities. In this way they become more deeply impressed on the audience. Each temple has its story to tell or Director Olcott could direct others to suit the educational background with the same intelligence and sympathetic understanding he has shown in the Irish photoplays.

I should like to see the Nile as it is, or as it is becoming, a lever to progress by the irrigation of definite science, turning the barren stretches of desert—we have our own—into vast sections of arable land, adding thousands of productive acres to the narrow ribbon of soil that now gives up crops to sustain human life. A view of these wonderful engineering feats might be valuable in the way of an object lesson to irrigation experts in some of our Western States. The delta of the Nile is already a vast cotton field, averaging in value over a hundred dollars an acre, and averaging in a year's crop over a million bales weighing more than five hundred pounds each. It is both interesting and important for people of our Southwest territory to see what is being done with barren stretches of Egypt.

I would like better to see the poetic Nile with its sentinel palms, with its picturesque lateen sails, and with its grand monuments. I would enjoy a view of Karnak's sacred lake beside whose deathless peace stands the temple of Rameses III, and I have no doubt that fine pictures will be taken of the wondrous remains at Luxor that stand on the banks of the Nile and present an appearance so splendid from the river. I suppose that Director Olcott will center at Luxor, and if he should present its temples, those of Edfu and one or two others of prominence, it would be better than to raise the confusion that too often exists in the minds of the travellers from seeing so many temples, monuments and tombs. A survey of them all is like a glance at the sea of faces in a great crowd; it is lacking in the differentiating charm of individual personality.

Where there are so many scenes of loveliness and majesty, where the atmosphere is a miracle of clearness and purity, it should not be difficult to obtain pictures of rare views, but the effect on mixed audiences in this country and others is quite another matter. There was poetry in the souls of men who conceived these artistic structures and there was deep thought in the minds of those men who directed their shaping, but will the perfection of form and purity of design in these extraordinary examples of architecture reach those who attend the picture shows in other methods than that of conveying a vague charm. I imagine that the effect will be that of fine music upon a mixed audience in one of the city's parks, that while it will not be understood in technical detail it will be very generally appreciated because people seem to love beauty of any kind in the picture plays. Egypt calls across the barren waste of sand and across the trackless one of water to many of us who know how to appreciate the majesty of its monuments. There are many, many enchantments in the Valley of the Nile.

"Madame Roland"

A Remarkable Cines Feature Production Laid in the Days of the French Revolution.

A FEATURE film is always eagerly welcomed by exhibitors, and it can be assured that this release will prove a splendid addition to the program of the week. Madame Roland, the heroine of the story, was born in Paris in the year 1754, and was guillotined in the year 1793. She was an extraordinary woman, a talented writer, and a brilliant conversationalist; her house becam a political center frequented by the leaders of the Revolutionist, especially of the conservative faction known as the Girondists.

The film opens with a few descriptive sentences, and then cleverly introduces the leading characters, one at a time. This gives the story a more realistic and historic significance. Madame Roland is first seen in the parlor of her house, haughtily rejecting the attentions of her admirer, Viard, a secret agent of Robespierre. The scene then shifts to the hall of the Legislature. Her husband holds the office of State Secretary, and is presiding at the meeting. And an exciting session it is; Robespierre, Viard, and Marat, the most violent of the Terrorists, oppose in no uncertain manner every act or resolution of the speaker. It was one of the incidents that marked the decline in power of the Girondist faction, and the ascendency of the star of Robespierre.

The Arrest of Madame Roland.

Seeking vengeance against Madame Roland, Viard brings charges of reactionary tendencies against Roland and his wife. The former manages to make his escape to Rouen, but the latter is arrested by the soldiers of Robespierre, and taken before the Revolutionary Tribunal. In a remarkable trial scene, Madame Roland defends herself in such a manner that an acquittal is granted. But Viard succeeds in having her arrested again on a new charge. This time the fates are against her, and she is thrown into prison. There she writes her famous "Appeal to an Impartial Posterity." Many clever touches of realism are introduced here. Among them is where she goes to the barred windows and waves a last farewell to her friends going to the guillotine, knowing that a similar fate awaits her.

Before the Revolutionary Tribunal.

We next see Madame Roland riding on the "fatal cart," a scene which is tremendously effective. A large crowd of the Revolutionists, in their garments of every description, are wildly gesticulating and brandishing their crude weapons.

The film closes with Madame Roland standing upon the guillotine, keeping her nerve to the very end. Majestically bowing to the statue of Liberty, her heart bursting with passion, she cries out those famous words, "Oh, Liberty! What crimes are committed in thy name!" The release date is April 13th.

A WORD IN SEASON.

Experienced and intelligent exhibitors know that between New Year's and Easter week is the best time for future films of the sort of the Pathe "Passion Play," Dante's "Inferno" (Milano production), and "The Crusaders or Jerusalem Delivered." By a singular coincidence every one of the features mentioned is especially suitable for exhibition in and near the Lenten season. To put these features on fittingly and profitably get our booklets "How To Put On the Passion Play," "How To Put On the Crusaders," "How To Put On Dante's Inferno" (Milano production). They contain lectures covering every scene and running evenly with the pictures, musical suggestions and hints as to effects based on experience, together with other valuable matter too great to be enumerated in detail. "How To Put On the Passion Play" is in its second edition and the author has had numerous letters from pleased exhibitors, who have used the booklet to advantage. All these booklets are copyrighted and their author is W. Stephen Bush, whose lectures on motion pictures have attained much popularity, wholly based on their merits. The price of the booklets is nominal, a dollar will bring any of them to your address prepaid.

SONG SLIDES WITH THE WORDS.

The Century Song Slide Company, Murphy Building, East St. Louis, Mo., are entering the field with a novelty in song slides that is expected to popularize the song feature of the program. The words of the song are shown in connection with the picture so that the audience can appreciate the sentiment of the song, no matter how poor the enunciation of the singer. It is said that the scheme has been well received where the slides have been shown.

"Across the Isthmus in 1912."

The Panama Canal Brought Up to Date by the Selig Company—A Picture of Note.

Reviewed by Jas. S. McQuade.

NEARLY everyone interested in moving pictures can remember the film, entitled "With Taft in Panama," that was released by the Selig Polyscope Company, on March 2, 1909. Work was begun on the Panama Canal in May, 1904, and great interest was taken in the film referred to, as it enabled everyone who saw it to form a practical estimate of the greatness of the undertaking and to note the progress made in the first five years.

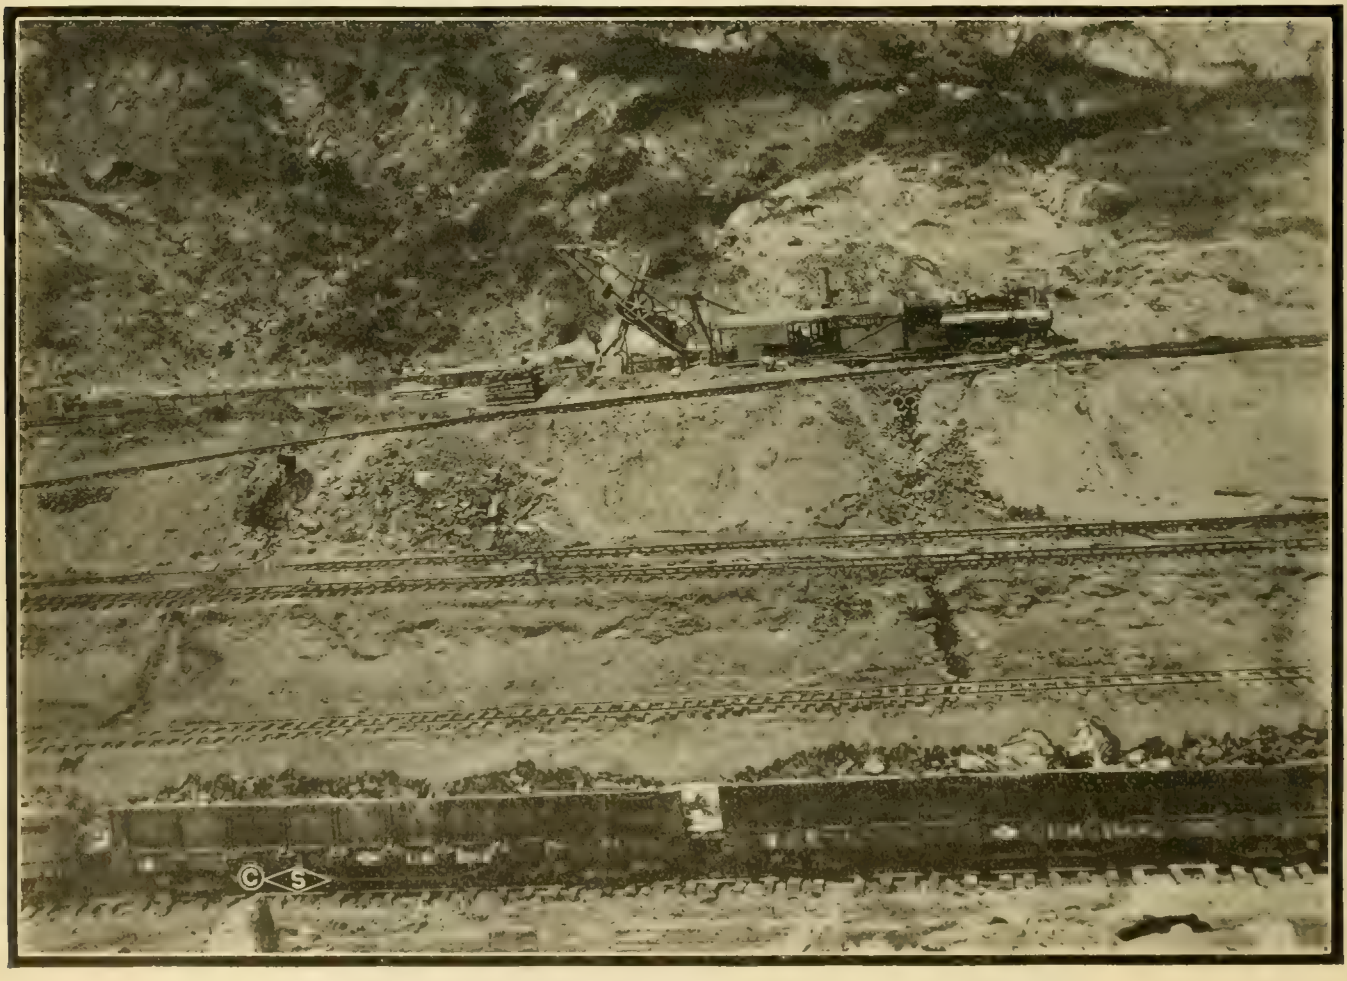
On March 15, the Selig Company will release another film, entitled "Panama Canal—Across the Isthmus in 1912," which is destined, I believe, to meet with still more pronounced popular approval. I viewed this film twice at a private exhibition and was impressed first with the magnitude of the work and next by the Herculean efforts under control to meet the requirements. One is also struck by the splendid system, in thorough working order, that prevails over the entire stretch. Ponderous machines and tiny men work in harmony and with an indomitable energy that enables one to look forward confidently to the time when the mighty task will be finished.

As the Selig film shows the canal, one makes the journey from the Pacific Coast to the Atlantic. The Miraflores locks are first viewed. They are situated about 8 miles from deep water in the Pacific and are 54⅔ feet above the level of that ocean. Through these locks vessels will be lowered to the level of the Pacific.

About 1½ miles east of the Miraflores locks are the Pedro Miguel locks, which have a lift of 30⅓ feet. A good view of the operations is given in the film. Here we see gigantic cranes used in carrying sand and rock to the cement mixers, and cement from the mixer to the dumping spot on the foundation of the locks. The Pedro Miguel locks will be the first point of descent to the Pacific Ocean made by vessels after passing through the Culebra cut. The drop will be 30⅓ feet.

The famous Culebra cut is the next important work shown in the film on the journey east. Here we see numerous drills at work boring holes for blasting purposes. Then huge steam shovels are seen scooping up the debris after the blasts have been set off, and depositing it on flat cars, which convey it to the dumping ground. Here we are shown a new device for taking the dirt off the cars—a great plough, the same width as the car, which in turn is followed by a spreader, both being operated by steam.

Scene in the Big Ditch.



Scenes Along the Big Ditch from Selig's "Across the Isthmus in 1912."

A fine panorama of the Culebra cut is next given. The tal length is 9 miles. The distance across the cut at its idest point, from above, is about 2,000 feet, and the greatest pth of the excavation is 480 feet. The average depth is om 200 to 300 feet, and the width at the bottom is 300 feet. ote the time saving device employed in the Culebra cut, in e shape of a track shifter. The rails and ties are con- ructed so that they are lifted in sections by this powerful ane, and placed to the right or left, according to the site the new track.

Now we arrive at the great Gatun locks and dam. Here e are first given a view of the top of the gate, followed by ews of the machinery used to carry and drop cement. Next e see the Gatun lock, and after that a panoramic view of e Gatun lake, locks and dam. These locks will raise a ssel coming in from the Atlantic 85 feet, to the level of e Gatun lake, which will be artificially constructed by eans of the Gatun dam. This lake when completed will ave an area of 164 square miles. This level is necessary to arry vessels through the Culebra cut. The Gatun locks are uilt in three flights, and, in order to prevent delays, each ck is duplicated, there being six locks at Gatun.

Along the Big Ditch.

The entrance to the canal on the Atlantic side is through imon bay, where a channel 500 feet wide and 41 feet deep being constructed to the Gatun locks. The total length the canal from deep water in the Atlantic to deep water the Pacific is 50½ miles; and from shore line to shore line bout 41½ miles. The estimated cost of the canal, when ompleted—which is expected to take place January 1, 1915— $375,000,000.

The photography of this fine Selig film is good throughout. special de luxe one-sheet poster has been gotten out for e film.

THE MANUFACTURER AND THE COPYRIGHT.

By Epes Winthrop Sargent.

OF late the Moving Picture World has given much thought to the Copyright Act on behalf of the scenario writers, and a study of that law develops many oints that should interest the maker of films as much, if ot more than the maker of film stories.

It has been the practice of most manufacturers to rely pon the use of the trademark as a part of the decoration the setting for protection against "duping" and ignore e copyright entirely. With most manufacturers the re- ase of to-day is the dead issue of to-morrow and possible copyright infringement—which may not be a trademark infringement—is ignored.

This is a grave error. If a story is worth producing it should be worth protecting. Some day there will arrive an era of revivals and it will be found that a laxity of registration has left the maker without redress. If he does not protect his product in the manner the law provides, it is accepted as a tacit admission that he does not desire such protection and, since his work is produced and published, it is expressly stated that if protection is desired there shall be registered in the office of the Register of Copyrights in the Library of Congress two copies of such photographic print, accompanied by a fee of one dollar.

A few years ago this was construed as meaning two prints on bromide paper, and several of the manufacturers produced these bromide prints at considerable expense and obtained their registration. It was in part the cost of these bromide prints, which were useless for any other purpose, that led to the abandonment of the practice.

But the regulations established by the Register under authority of the act provides for the registration of any photographic reproduction from the negative and states that films are to be regarded as one photograph and not as a collection of several thousand. We are further advised by Mr. Thorvald Solberg, the Register of Copyrights, that the Librarian of Congress, in whose discretion copyrighted deposits may be returned to the holder of copyright when not required for the use of the Library of Congress, has authorized the return of motion picture prints to the copyright proprietor, properly certified, as soon as entry shall have been made. Mr. Solberg has brought the Copyright Office to the highest state of efficient promptness and those best acquainted with the conditions will know that this delay of film in the copyright office will be brief indeed; so brief as not to seriously delay the handing of the copies should they be desired for export or for office use.

Already several firms are making registration of a single copy under Section 11, which provides for the entry of unpublished photographs, but it is the opinion of the writer that two copies of the film should be entered as published photographs, and he believes that this contention will be sustained by the courts should it come to issue.

In order to obtain the fullest protection it would be well to also obtain entry for the story of the film as published in the manufacturer's bulletin or in the "Stories of the Films" in this publication. The addition of the copyright line and the entry of two copies of the bulletin or one copy of this paper containing the material for which the copyright is desired is sufficient. Registration as a contribution to a periodical is to be preferred to the entry of the bulletin sheet as a "book," since the former obviates the necessity for the affidavit of production in the United States. Entry cards may be obtained of the copyright office, and the simple filling in of this card is all that is required, the card, copy and fee being sent under the same cover. Those making regular entry may deposit a sum of money with the Register and obviate the necessity for obtaining money orders for each registration.

The double entry of the story and the published film, at a cost of two dollars in fees, will give to the holder of the story the fullest protection possible under the law. This merely consists in putting the holder of the copyright in shape to go into court with the fullest preparation, but the neglect to obtain this protection places the owner at a decided disadvantage, and we do not believe that a suit may be contested under Section 2 (which provides common law protection for unpublished works) when the law so clearly provides for registration.

The increase in feature releases and the gradual improvement in the single-reel subjects call for some protection, and with Mr. Solberg not only willing but eager to give the manufacturer every facility for quick registration, there exists no excuse for not complying with the law to the letter.

Protection by copyrighting the synopsis or the scenario alone will not be sufficient. Every provision of the law should be met, and those who query the Copyright Office in the matter will be afforded full information by a Register, whose ambition appears to be to give the best service to those for whom the office is intended.

PATENT ON FILM TIN.

The patent on the Perfection Film Tin, invented by the National Waterproof Film Company, has been allowed by the Patent Office in Washington. A brittle film enclosed in this tin for a few hours will become soft and pliable.

CHICAGO LETTER.

By Jas. S. McQuade.

THE meeting at the Sherman Hotel, Tuesday afternoon, February 27, developed nothing of importance except that the committee of ten was instructed to attend the meeting of the judiciary committee of the City Council, held in the City Hall, on Monday afternoon, March 4, the date set for report on the amendment of the ordinance regulating the attendance of minors at moving picture theaters.

The great interest taken in this meeting by those for and against the amendment was evidenced by the crowding, almost to suffocation, of the room assigned the committee. A number of ladies, representing West Side Women's clubs, who are responsible for the proposed amendment, were present, while the film business was represented by well-known exhibitors, exchange men and several manufacturers.

The object of the meeting of the judiciary committee, it soon became evident, was not to make a report on the amendment but to ascertain the views of both parties in the controversy. It was sought by several aldermen to have a sub-committee appointed to hear the interested parties at some future date, but the motion was rejected and it was decided that the whole committee should listen to the ladies present, there and then.

The ladies who spoke received a respectful hearing from the exhibitors, although at various times their statements were palpably exaggerated and incapable of proof. Indeed, the associations of the nickel show were held to be so debased that no boy or girl could come under their influence without moral infection. These well-meaning ladies did not mince words. They spoke with the ring of authority, and yet anyone aware of the real conditions prevailing in Chicago moving picture theaters knew that their statements were those of the zealot rather than that of the reformer, of the theorist rather than of the practical mind.

The exhibitors present informed the members of the committee that they were unprepared to state their side of the case in a proper manner and asked for time. This was granted and Monday, March 18, at two o'clock p. m., was named as the date of the meeting. The Council chamber was chosen as the place of meeting, so as to give ample room for the partisans of both sides.

A Veiled Editorial.

Sergeant O'Connor, the conscientious, zealous and hard-working official in charge of the Chicago censor bureau, is between the devil and the deep sea these days. The trade papers have items charging the bureau for its rigid censorship of certain films, and a leading Chicago daily makes a deadly thrust at the Sergeant, personally, because he is not particular enough.

The Chicago Examiner is not noted for a nice adherence to facts in its editorial columns. In other words, it has an axe to grind, that instrument will be ground, whether it be on reputation or on a complete demolition of facts. Just read the following editorial that appeared in a recent issue of the paper mentioned:

"In no way discouraged by the fate of the Guelzow murderers or the predicament of the Kaufman slayers, the unrestrained youth of Chicago are lending their patronage with great cheerfulness to moving picture shows which appeal to the criminal instinct. And this notwithstanding the fact that moving picture shows are supposed to be strictly censored, and that exhibitions of a crime-provoking nature are rendered negligible by the interference of the authorities.

"Various means have been suggested to keep the young boy or girl away from dangerous picture shows. An age limit has been suggested, the attendance of parents has been urged, and other precautions have been advised. Yet it would seem, after all, that the only effective remedy is to have such rigid censorship of the exhibitions as to remove all possible suggestion of law defiance and vice advertisement. And to this end such censorship should be intrusted, not to a careless, indifferent, unthinking official, but to a person or persons upon whose judgment reliance can be placed.

"The way to attack an evil successfully is to begin with the evil itself."

The heading of the editorial was "Moving Pictures a Crime Instigators." The Guelzow and Kaufman murder especially the first mentioned, were of a brutal and horribl nature. Why does the Examiner associate moving pictur with such vile crimes? There is not a moving picture theate in Chicago where a murder scene in a picture is allowe and the Examiner knows it. But the Examiner is so playfu when it strikes a blow in the dark, in order to even up ol scores! "What about that advertising that should be mine? whispers the Examiner out of the darkness. And it is s delightful to get even, especially when serving as cavalier t the ladies! Note that "age limit" reference to the propose amendment to the ordinance, for example.

Sergeant O'Connor seems to be persona non grata to th Examiner, for political reasons, evidently. Andy Lawrenc may have someone else in view for the position—"a perso or persons upon whose judgment reliance can be placed," perhaps.

A Chat with Wm. Morris.

William Morris, the well-known vaudeville manager an star discoverer, spent a few days in the city recently, leavin for New York Sunday, March 3. While here Mr. Morri found time to visit the Selig plant, being familiar for som time with the production of film subjects and interested i the future of the film business.

Mr. Morris has proved himself an expert in the handlin of special films and refers modestly to his experience wit one which showed Bleriot's first flight across the Englis Channel, in connection with high-class vaudeville, of course Live newspaper advertising, in the form of special news articles written by men on the staffs of newspapers, was hi strong forte.

Mr. Morris has his own views on the use of pictures wit high-class vaudeville. As now furnished, pictures are merel "fillins" or "chasers," in his opinion. He believes in bein given the privilege of selection of films for high-class vaudeville, and in knowing four weeks in advance just what film one can select from. Then again he advocates getting an subject he might select, at least one week before its releas to picture theaters. This policy, he believes, would advertis a film so prominently as to increase its value very materiall to picture theaters the week after its use in his house.

But, of course, such a policy as outlined by Mr. Morris i impractical, even though a fancy rental were paid by him fo a film. The picture theater is entitled to all the favors an privileges that are coming; and they must be considere first and the high-class vaudeville house afterwards.

Mr. Morris is now engaged in organizing several companie in which the members are notable stars, of world-wide reputation. Salary is no object in his eyes, so long as an artis has the reputation and drawing qualities. These companie will appear in all the principal cities according to carefu bookings. A magnificent new theater in New York will b built by Mr. Morris, and in it he will give all the premie performances of his various companies.

Chicago Film Brevities.

The members of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association attended in a body a private exhibition of the "Panama Canal-Across the Isthmus in 1912," Selig's great educational film. This was on Friday, March 1st, and all expressed themselves as delighted with the views.

* * *

J. E. Pearce, manager of the General Film Co.'s branch in New Orleans, and wife were visitors in Chicago, Thursday, February 29th.

* * *

I. L. Leserman, of the Laemmle Film Service, left for Europe, Monday, March 4th. Mr. Leserman will be engaged in the interests of the company during his visit.

* * *

S. L. Rothapfel, of the Lyric Theater, Minneapolis, writes that "Children Who Labor" (Edison), and the "Diamond S Ranch" (Selig) made a great hit when presented there. Each was greeted with hearty applause at the close.

* * *

W. H. J. Kruse, this city, purchased the Kimball Theater, on Kimball and Fullerton Avenues, from F. O. Nielsen on Tuesday, February 27th. The consideration was $15,000. Mr. Kruse will take possession on Monday, March 11th. The Kimball is situated in a fine neighborhood and showed to fine business under the old management. It was opened to Mr. Nielsen on Jan. 25, 1910. Mr. Kruse, the new owner, has been a lover of moving pictures for some time, but is inexperienced in the exhibiting business. However, he is an experienced business man with a successful career and besides has youth and push as aids in the new field. Mr. Nielsen is interested in a new house of larger capacity, which will be built in the near future.

The Mabel Theater, on Elston Avenue and Irving Park Boulevard, was purchased by Mr. Frankie, on Saturday, March 2nd. The Mabel seats 700 people.

* * *

H. W. Fowzer, manager of the Charles L. Kiewert Co., nanufacturers of "Bio" carbons, etc., was a visitor at the World office last week. He reports that business is very air.

* * *

John Melvin, formerly Minneapolis representative of the Anti-Trust Film Co., is now on the road exhibiting prints of he Passion Play. Mr. Melvin states that he is booked solid hroughout the Lenten season.

* * *

Rabbi Stoltz, of the Sinai Temple, 45th Street and Vin-ennes Avenue, ran the "Life of Moses" on Sunday, March 3rd, to over 500 children of his congregation. The entire ive reels were run consecutively.

* * *

The Schaefer Bros., Fred and Frank, have purchased the Century Theater, on W. Madison and Sheldon Streets, for straight moving pictures. The Century was built for vaudeville and seats 1100 people. It was formerly controlled by he Louise Amusement Co. Service is being furnished by he General Film Co.'s branch at 17 S. Wabash.

* * *

E. G. Crandall, of Humboldt, Ia., writes: "On Saturday, Feb. 10th, I exhibited the 'Gotch-Hackenschmidt' pictures at the Unique Theater, Anita, Ia., and the success met with has been so marked that I think it worthy of mention and of interest to your readers. Anita is a town of 1200 population and one of the best that I booked during my tour with these pictures. George Schwenneker, the manager of the Unique, is a thoroughly up-to-date and wide-awake exhibitor, and conducts the finest little theater I have ever seen n a town of this size. The pictures were shown on the date mentioned to over 1,000 people, at 10 cents each. The fine results obtained were largely due to the splendid advertising methods of Mr. Schwenneker."

Exhibitors League.

THE SLOGAN IS "ON TO DAYTON."

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Ohio is growing very rapidly. An organizer is constantly in the field and all of the exhibitors of Ohio have awakened to the fact that the benefits derived from the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Ohio has done them a great deal of good and protected their interests and many are sending in their application without being solicited. Many new states are coming into the League and before the convention meets in Chicago in August we expect to enroll nearly every state in the Union.

The Dayton Convention is an assured success and will be the biggest convention ever held by our League. Every motion picture exhibitor is invited to attend, whether they are members of the League or not, also all of the friends of the motion picture exhibitors are invited to attend, and we assure everybody that they will be as welcome as the flowers in May, and what they will see and hear will convince them that the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America is a real organization and knows how to do things.

The most powerful telescope in the world is now being focused on the moon and it is to be hoped that we will be able at Dayton to show the moon on the motion picture curtain, at least the effort is now being made and promises success. So, again, it is demonstrated that cinematography is the greatest educator and assistant science has ever known. Remember the date, Mch. 26-27.

MEETING CALLED FOR KENTUCKY EXHIBITORS.

A State convention to organize the motion picture exhibitors of the State of Kentucky will be held about April 8th, 1912. M. A. Neff called a local meeting in Covington, Ky., on the 4th, which was well attended. A State convention was decided on. Mr. Neff has the co-operation of such influential exhibitors as Mr. Parker, Colonial Theater, Covington; S. C. Stephens, Casino Theater, Covington; Victor Theater Co., Victor Theater, Covington; B. D. & Wm. Griffith, Park Theater, Covington, and Harry Brice, Air-Dome Theater, Covington.

A call will be sent out to all the exhibitors in Kentucky. The place of meeting will be stated in the call. There are many matters to be adjusted in Kentucky which can only be done through organization, and every motion picture exhibitor in the State of Kentucky is not only invited but urged to attend, as conditions are such that without an organization there is no possible relief in sight for the exhibitor.

Kentucky, realizing the good work being accomplished in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and West Virginia, and other adjoining states, is anxious to belong and co-operate with the National organization. A National vice-president representing the State of Kentucky and a full set of officers will be elected at the coming convention.

M. A. NEFF,
President, M. P. E. L. of America.

WEST VIRGINIA EXHIBITORS ORGANIZE.

On February 28, 1912, the Motion Pitcure Exhibitors of West Virginia, on a call for a State meeting by the National President, M. A. Neff, met in Parkersburg, West Va., at the Blennerhassett Hotel and organized the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of West Virginia. The meeting was well attended and enthusiastic. The following officers were elected:

President, M. M. Weir, Colonial Theater, Charlestown, W. Va.

First Vice-President, F. L. Harris, Bijou Theater, Parkersburg, W. Va.

Second Vice-President, L. C. Washburn, Lyric Theater, Salem, W. Va.

Secretary, L. R. Thomas, Orpheum Theater, Moundsville, W. Va.

Treasurer, P. S. Barett, Star Theater, Parkersburg, W. Va.

National Vice-President, E. W. Waugh, Dreamland Theater, Huntington, W. Va.

Several committees were appointed and a vigorous campaign planned to bring every motion picture exhibitor in the State of West Virginia into the League. An organizer is to be started just as soon as printed matter can be gotten out.

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of West Virginia is affiliated with the National organization. Their next meeting will be held at Huntington, W. Va., on the first Monday in May. Big preparations are now being made to make the Huntington meeting a big success. Many of the members who live in the southern part of Ohio will attend the Huntington meeting to encourage the West Virginia exhibitors.

The West Virginia exhibitors voted to attend the Dayton Convention to be held at Dayton, Ohio, on March 26 and 27.

M. A. NEFF,
President, M. P. E. L. of America.

MONTGOMERY OPENS IN DAYTON.

The Monarch of the "Movies" Startles Ohio Town—His Theater Best in U. S., Say Papers.

A live wire from F. T. Montgomery, dated Dayton, O., March 5, reads: "Opened my theater yesterday, thousands turned away. Papers say it is the finest moving picture theater in the United States. Future looks very bright."

By this we learn that Montgomery, who has won out along class lines in Jacksonville, Fla., Atlanta, Ga., and other Southern cities, has invaded the North. For some time Dayton has been watching the progress of the work on the building chosen for the new theater, the Majestic. On Sunday, March 3rd, there appeared a half-page announcement in the Dayton papers with the startling headlines, "I want the brainiest persons in Dayton to come and see me once." There was a lot more in the ad:, for Montgomery knows how to make use of newspaper space. He promised first-run pictures, change of program three times a week, continuous performance from 1 o'clock till 11 p. m., and music by an orchestra of six musicians.

Well, it got the crowds, for, according to Montgomery, "thousands were turned away."

The opening of Montgomery's Majestic in Dayton at this time is most opportune. It will give the exhibitors who attend the Ohio Convention on March 27 a fine chance to see how the "Monarch of the Movies" does things.

A report of the opening and a description of the Majestic is on the way and we hope to have it in time for publication next week.

HALLBERG SUPPLYING WIDE TERRITORY.

J. H. Hallberg, "The Economizer Man," reports the following recent equipments: One Standard No. 4 moving picture machine, to Arcade Theater, Miami, Fla.; one Edison Model B, with special Hallberg Economizer, Gate City Rink, Glendive, Mont.; one Powers No. 6 moving picture machine each to Chas. Graf, Loudonville, Ohio; and Williamsport Hardware & Stove Co., Williamsport, Pa.; a 220 D. C. Economizer for the Comedy Theater, Baltimore, Md., and one through the King Plumbing Co. for a theater in Keokuk, Iowa.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT.

THE SPECIAL RELEASE.

III.—Special Work.

(Copyright, 1912, by Epes Winthrop Sargent. All rights reserved.)

ALMOST any exhibitor able to afford a special release can afford to do some special work and most reels lend themselves admirably to street work. Even in the larger cities a file of convicts under the guard of a keeper will attract attention to some prison story, or perhaps a man in what the stage knows as an Irish costume, carrying a placard announcing the fact that he is on his way to the Unique Theater to see "Far from Erin's Isle," or one of the other Kalem Hibernian notables. It is an accepted fact in advertising that anything in motion is worth several times the still advertisement and the perambulating poster is able to cover much ground and reach many persons who would not be interested in.

The plain carried sign is not effective because it does not catch and hold attention, but a man in the dress of ancient Greece carrying a sign for the Odyssey will bring people from across the street to get a close view of his costume and they will have to read the sign. Any costumer can fake up a costume sufficiently close to do for street work.

In some cases where the special is done from a book it is possible to arrange with some department store to lay in a supply of a cheap edition and sell the book with a ticket to the performance as a premium. You can put the tickets to the store at a rate slightly below the regular price and command the benefit of the newspaper advertising and window display. The advertising man of almost any large store will be glad to work with you on the idea, and if you give him plenty of slide work before the sale starts he'll see that you get your share of the advertising in the papers and in the window. If you can help him get up a special window display, so much the better.

Try the Library.

With visualized books it is very often possible to get the public library to work with you. You announce on the screen that they have the book and they will permit a card announcing the coming of, say, "Vanity Fair," on a certain date. Be prepared to give something for what you get and you'll get it, but don't ask for a card in the library and forget to give them some tickets.

Where there are afternoon papers it is a good idea to give a special view to the press and invited guests before the regular opening of the doors. Run off the reels for your own people before the special show and then get a full house for the private view. You'll get people that you could not get at a regular performance, and they'll come back some other time after you once get them interested. Have printed programs with a synopsis of the reels for this performance whether you use them for the regular run or not. Don't confine your audience to the newspaper men and a few personal friends. Ask as many as the house will hold (but no more), and you'll have enough present to give a comfortable atmosphere to the place. Nothing is quite so dismal to those not used to it as sitting in an empty auditorium. Fill it up and make it seem cosy.

Get out an attractive invitation for this special view. A good card and the various sizes of "copperplate gothic" make a good impression and is very much better than the "engraver's old English" that some printers seem to think essential when engraving is to be simulated. Do not use script unless you can get an exceptionally good letter and a nearly new font. Script does not lie well in the case and is apt to become chipped and nicked after short usage, but the gothic always looks neat and if the job is well done will deceive many.

If you can get a set of slides of the coming subject and have a spare machine or a lantern, get hold of a vacant store and set up a sheet somewhat back of the show window. Throw the slides on the screen and run the views with an advertising slide after every four pictures. Perhaps you can arrange with the owner, or the real estate agents, to run one of their slides in lieu of the slight rental that might be asked. If you have no slides for the subject dig up a post-card projector and use half-tones, provided that you can get a machine, one powerful enough, to throw a good, clear picture. If you cannot even get half-tones—which will be but seldom—you can even use general views to catch attention.

Take a Brick to the Curious.

One scheme that has not been used much is done with bricks. A man with a small whiskbroom and an armful of bricks carefully sweeps a place on the sidewalk, deposits a card and covers it with a brick. He does the same at a dozen or more stations a block or so apart, coming back to the first brick and repeatedly covering the route. The card reads to the effect that the special feature will be at the theater on certain days and adds a request that the card be replaced under the brick. If the man's dress and manner are eccentric someone is almost certain to pick up the brick and read the card, and a dozen or more may be caught before the trap has to be rebaited. It is well to have plenty of cards as some will be thrown or carried away. It is also necessary to see the police authorities before the trick is tried. It sounds like a senseless sort of thing, but it will not only get attention, but bring newspaper comment as well.

Anything that is not too undignified and that will make talk will help catch the attention of those whose attention needs to be attracted, but whenever you plan to do something you will need to call up the newspaper offices and tell them what it is, asking if they cannot send a reporter. Any about-town stuff is welcome and this is more valuable than the straight press-work that merely puffs the picture.

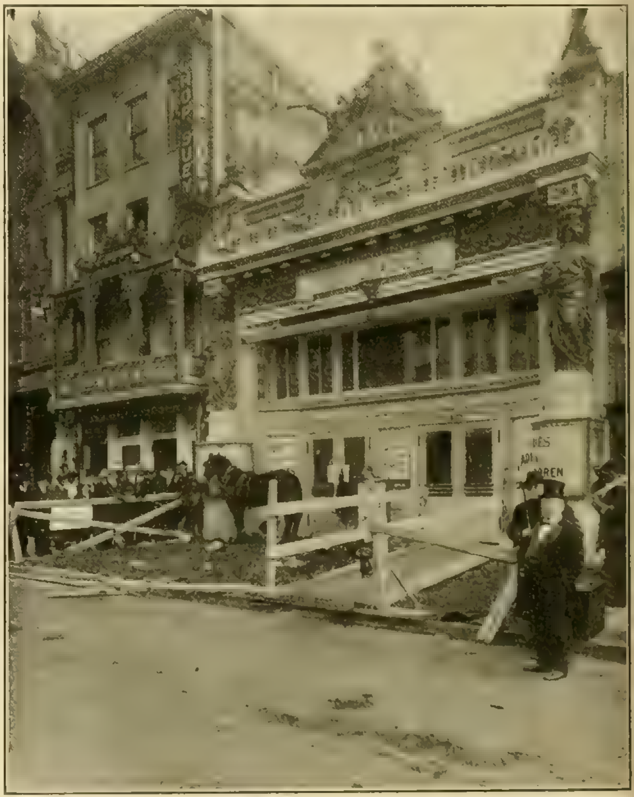
If the subject can be regarded as educational, through any stretch of th imagination, announce a school matinee half an hour after the sessio closes. Distribute the tickets through the teachers—with a couple of fre admissions to each of the teachers—and make a special price. It might b possible to obtain a dispensation from the mayor abrogating the law agains the admission of children not accompanied by adults, and in doing this yo get the inferential endorsement of the city authorities. If you can find school principal who likes to talk, get him to deliver a lecture on the film As a rule he will not expect payment and would regard with hostility th moderate fee you can afford, but a monthly season ticket, a box of reall good cigars or something like that sent to his home later on will be brea on the waters that comes back buttered and spread with jam. If it is religious subject make your appeal through the Sunday schools and ge some prominent minister to do the talking.

There is such a wide field for special work that it is not possible to mor than hint at some of the booming methods, but if you will study the particular release you are to have, no doubt many things will suggest themselves to you whereby you can build up on these ideas and twist them t suit your own particular case. The possibilities are vast and the more yo do to spread the fame of the release the more you will receive in retur later on.

A City Farm.

When a man makes a bad situation even better than his usual circumstance, he deserves full credit, and we are indebted to William P. Herbst president of the Circle Amusement Company, Washington, D. C., for th accompanying reproduction of the front of the Miller Brothers' Leade Theater, which, if we are not mistaken, is on Ninth Street. It is unusual fo one exhibitor to do press work for another, but Mr. Herbst writes:

> When a fellow exhibitor happens to be confronted with a bad situation and is able to turn it into one of profit and fame I certainly admire and congratulate him for it. The occasion I allude to was a week or so ago. The popular owners of the Leader of this city had occasion to put in a new cement sidewalk in front of their theater. They were forced to cover a part of it with boards so as to make a gangway to their entrance. This, under ordinary conditions would have been ruinous to their business, but here is where they showed that they were equal to emergencies. The rest of the newly-made pavement was covered with straw so as to protect it from freezing and they struck on the scheme of turning this straw-covered sidewalk into a regular Charles County farmyard



he. Chickens, turkeys, pigs, a cow with calf and a horse were roduced and it caught the city folks. It required a policeman to p the people from blocking the busy Ninth Street thoroughfare , instead of the improvement being a drawback, as under ordiy conditions, it proved to be a big winner for the house. This se is deserving of the patronage it enjoys for I consider it the t managed of the downtown houses. Special attention shown to ies and children and no courtesy is considered too much for ir patrons; in fact, if they paid two dollars for a seat they could treated no better. The Leader shows four reels of up-to-thenute films in a masterly style, only the best of the Licensed reses being used.

Some Circle Advertising.

Mr. Herbst knows good advertising is shown in some of the printed from his own house, the Circle. One line—"What's good in photo the Circle has it," is a trifle awkward, but it carries a good argu It might better be expressed as "If it's a good photoplay the Circle e it." Sometimes a change in phrasing will gain a fluency that will he line linger in the memory. One recent advertisement was the ation of a series of nature studies for the benefit of a charity. No on fee was announced other than that a silver collection to be taken door, and the only allusion to the theater was the last line, to the hat "The lecture will not interfere with our usual exhibition of pictures at 6 p.m. at the usual price." The house gives no matinees donating the use of the auditorium, the management undoubtedly d its clientele as the charity was one that particularly appealed to n the residential section where the house is located. It is more e than a splurgy advertisement that betrays the reason for the house so cleverly gets around the fact that they do not use firsthat we reproduce this paragraph from another circular:

> We wish to take this opportunity to thank you for your valued ronage and to assure you that we are always on the lookout for latest and best features. You may be able to see the same pices elsewhere, but our superior projection and the advantages of Mirror Screen (the only one in the city) makes our pictures surpassed. Our seating arrangement is most comfortable, having owed more space per seat than any other theater in the city. All ts are desirable, the front ones being far enough from the screen enable the pictures to be viewed without discomfort.

Something Nice.

Princess and Ellen Theaters, Provo, Utah, which are run under the ment of John B. Ashton, have done what we have frequently advised column. Instead of wrestling over the question of covers with the rinter they employ lithographed covers that probably cost no more two-color home-printed cover, but which are really handsome. These being purchased in large quantities are to be had very reasonably e house imprint is run in with the back page advertisement. Here ide covers are also used for advertisements, but we believe that it have been cheaper to have used another four page form to take care e, though this is more or less a matter dependent upon the local . The point is that Provo uses a big city cover while the Tenth Theater is still struggling with the cover problem. The leading story program is given in synopsis form with the rest merely announced, like better the program that has a little chat with the patron even cost of a few advertisements. If the butcher and the baker can to take space in a program, surely the manager should be able to imself a rate that will permit him to do more than tell what he has ain days. In this point Mr. Ashton lags behind, though he has made s in the matter of covers.

Snappers from Miss Spurr.

Dolly Spurr, of the Royal Theater, Marion, Ind., has been aluded to as some hustler, but she's making a record just now. Some of the ood in Marion have been making a few faces at the Western picnd by way of "beating them to it," Miss Spurr has been sprucing up ll and using half-page advertisements—which last is more readily n Marion than in some larger cities, where line rates are higher. purr talks so convincingly that we would like to give a column story n on the Western release, but there's a man with a blue pencil who between us and the printer, so we'll have to make ourselves content ome selections. Here's a bit from "Ruffles," the illustrated supple o the house's monthly, Royal Reports. It reads so that even the man Missouri is convinced because he can see the release dates in the Here it is:

> GOING SOME! Out of 18 reels which we will run this week, 11 them will be FIRST RUN, 3 SECOND RUN and 1 FOURTH UN. This leaves 3 pictures which are all under 30 days of age. you have any DOUBTS, look at the list of RELEASE DATES the LOBBY.

here's something that meets the booking conditions with a frankness disarming while it explains just why now and then some lurid recreeps into the best regulated of programs. If you do not need it ake a note of it, since you may need it some time:

> In fairness to the exhibitor, the patrons must remember, that we n never tell what a picture is going to be like until it has been n the first show, as no amount of advance information tells the ry in its entirety. For ourselves we want to say, that we have ut" more than one picture after the first show, not because we re afraid the picture would enow the boys who patronize our eater with criminal tendencies, but because the picture was turally morbid and depressing, and would have displeased our trons in general.

The rest of the material sent is aimed at the possible opposition, but there is one line that should be lifted up. The sentence runs: "In case of opposition to the Royal, remember how square we have always treated you." If you can say that and mean it as fully as Miss Spurr does, you do not have to be much afraid of reformers, be assured the public is with you. Run your house so the line will be true should you ever want to use it yourself. The law requires that a plaintiff shall come into court "with clean hands." It looks in this case as though the defendant's hands were the cleaner. Here's our compliments to Miss Spurr and the hope that she wins a deserved victory.

Newsome Continues.

L. Graham Crozier, who seems to be the press representative for H. M. Newsome, of Birmingham, writes:

> We are still hearing from the preceding four Talks; only a few days ago Mr. H. M. Newsome had a letter from a manager in Cairo, Illinois, who is building a $40,000 house, regretting that the Moving Picture World had not given space to all the "Talks."
>
> The general public needs a great deal of this sort of instruction, if the moving picture business takes the rank that it deserves.
>
> Personally, I suggest that the article of February 10, page 466, "The Average Patron," be put in attractive form and a copy mailed to Manufacturers and Managers—those who are in the business to remain, and so, are giving details their earnest attention.
>
> Mr. Kitchell, in this article has covered many points and he has been tersely happy in the way he has handled more than one complex situation.
>
> The need of the hour is direct talks to patrons: let us initiate those who are patronizing us into the secrets of the trade.
>
> Let us make the patrons our aids and helpers; this can be accomplished only by interesting them in the details of the business and so helping them to discriminate intelligently—helping them to recognize why they prefer certain houses to others.
>
> The moving picture business is a matter of grave concern here in Birmingham. Rents are enormous and all expenses heavy. The average daily expense is a formidable certainty; the box-office receipts largely at the mercy of the manufacturers plus the exchange.
>
> No manager can force a public to pay even the nickel for something that the public does not want.
>
> With best wishes for the Moving Picture World which is certainly doing its share nobly and wisely.

Get and Keep in Touch.

This is in reference to the article in the issue of The Moving Picture World dated February 10th. It is very evident that the story quoted attracted attention. We were sorry at the time that we could not give them in full, but gave one as a sample of what the rest were like. It seems to us, though, that the direct talk to those who are not patrons is more important than the talks to those who are. Frame it so that all who are or who may be made interested in pictures are reached and you've doubled your appeal. You can talk to the people whom you already have in your program and on your screen. The newspaper appeal should be directed more particularly to those who are not your patrons. We are glad to see this series resumed. Talk number five is reproduced here. We are of the opinion that bits of Mr. Richardson's talk to managers might have been reproduced in smaller type with better effect than the mere reference. If managers will train their patrons to an appreciation and understanding of good projection they will have a stronger talking point than most realize. To too many the operator is merely the man in the projection room. The right sort of operator is a great deal more than that. Here is the story:

> The AMUSE-U and the PRINCESS exhibit only Licensed Films and both are advised by the National Censorship Board.
>
> The policy of the "amusement features" of the two houses differs somewhat, but no expense is spared at either theater. The properly conducted Moving Picture Show is one of the most effective antidotes of the "nervousness" that affects so many American children.
>
> The racing, jumping horses; the hair breadth escapes; the humor of comic situations—all enable the child to forget SELF, and the train of thought stimulated by the action and story of the film carries for days.
>
> The stories, mastered with such ease and so much pleasure, prove often a lesson of and for life.
>
> If teachers and parents will read in The Moving Picture World, February 17, page 577, an article by Mr. Richardson on the subject of projection they will realize something of the expense and initiative required to conduct Moving Picture Theaters as the PRINCESS and the AMUSE-U are conducted.
>
> The Princess with its attractive balcony for ballad singers, has the only "Mirror Screen" in Birmingham, costing approximately $500.
>
> The Amuse-U has a seating capacity of 100 more than the 20th street house.

Want to Run Some Talks?

If a sufficient number of managers will signify their interest in the matter and express a willingness to run such talks in their programs or other advertising, we will run a series of eight or ten talks that can be used singly or in series, each running about 200 to 250 words. Let us have your opinions, please. Please address this writer direct.

An educational picture is now becoming an absolute necessity in the program of a good evening exhibition. Satiated with the monotony of Indian, cowboy, and love stories, the mind-elevating picture is really a restful relief. Pathe's "Weekly" is now a standard in every house, and its weekly appearance is awaited with as much interest as ever was accorded any printed publication.

The SCENARIO WRITER

CONDUCTED BY EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

We Do Not Like Its Looks.

WE HAVE received from several sources copies of a letter sent out from the office of The Author's Magazine, Philadelphia, signed by H. R. Wright, editor of the magazine, on behalf of the trustees. We have also seen other literature which is less to our liking. These have not been submitted for publication, but this form letter, given below, is common property. Mr. Wright says:

> There was a meeting in my office Tuesday, February 6, 1912, and steps were taken to secure a charter for the Associated Scenario Writers of America. Those present were Mr. Larry Latour, 307 W. 24th St., New York City; Mr. Walter Bunting, Elwyn, Pa., and myself. A representative of the Corporation Guarantee and Trust Company was called in and after explaining the cost of charter, etc., he was instructed to secure same.
>
> This has been done; the application is now before the Court of Common Pleas, and the advertising has appeared in the Evening Bulletin, a copy of which I am mailing you. The charter is being engrossed, and the Court will grant same after the necessary legal formalities have been gone through. Here are the names of the signers of the application: Walter Bunting (scenario writer), Elwyn, Pa.; H. L. Knapp (dramatic editor), Norwood, Pa.; L. E. Broyles (President, Literary Bureau), Elwyn, Pa.; Grace Fones Copeland (Editor Woman's Page, Phila. Inquirer); H. R. Wright (Editor Author's Magazine), 920 Stephen Girard Building.
>
> The trustees are: Larry Latour, Walter Bunting and H. R. Wright. Now then, this charter will cost $200—part of it has been paid—and the aims of this charter as set forth in the application to the Court are: To Protect The Scenario Writers of America; To Take Such Legal Steps As May Be Necessary For Their Mutual Betterment, and To Establish Relations Between The Scenario Writers of America Which Will Be For Their Mutual Good, etc.
>
> We have decided that charter members shall be admitted for the sum of $10 each, which includes the first year's dues—which are $15. And we want you to be a charter member with this understanding: that you are sure this organization will be of benefit to you. Make check or money order payable to Associated Scenario Writers of America.
>
> Very truly,
>
> For the Trustees. (Signed) H. R. WRIGHT.

It will be noted that of the five persons named in this letter but one is declared to be a scenario writer. This is S. Walter Bunting, who states that the first copy of the letter he saw was obtained from us and not from Mr. Wright. He was asked if he would lend his name to the formation of the Society as it was essential that application for the charter had to be signed by a certain number of residents of Pennsylvania. He gave his assent on being informed that there was no legal responsibility attached and, on the assurance of friends that Mr. Wright was reliable, but apparently he has not been taken into consultation on matters subsequent to the signing of the application although a trustee.

It is not our purpose to question the honesty of the motives of Mr. Wright; but we are frank in saying that we do not like his attitude. His honesty is vouched for by responsible persons, but we should like to have some assurance of the practicability of his ideas and from the tone of some of the letters we have seen we do not feel that such an organization as Mr. Wright purposes starting will be for the good of the membership.

The reference to "Such legal steps as may be necessary for their mutual betterment" does not appeal to us at all. It may be merely a polite phrase, but it sounds like a threat that cannot be carried out and at best is no more than an appeal to the anarchial element.

We have yet to hear complaint from those who are selling their stories. The kicks all come from the soreheads and those who cannot dispose of their scripts largely because they do not write the sort of scenarios that editors want. These are they who feel that by banding together they can force the studios to accept their incompetent work, but we do not believe that this can be accomplished by any such means.

No matter how sincere may be the motives of the founders, such a society of scenario writers cannot bring about sweeping reforms and they, by their own preliminary announcement, seem to commit themselves to a course of action that will lead not only them but their innocent followers to destruction.

From information it appears that the majority of the membership will be drawn from the ranks of malcontents. It would seem then, that this is an organization of "soreheads" banded to win through force what they cannot obtain by the exercise of their [illegible] intelligence. Since they cannot win their fight, it would not seem worth while to notice their existence, but coming at the present time, the formation of any such society will tend to drive the manufacturers more and more to the adoption of the contract system whereby tried writers will be engaged to write a certain number of scripts each month.

This, of course, is an admirable thing for those on the inside, but this page stands for the best interests of all who write scenarios; not for the interests of any clique, and we regard with regret the formation of a society that shall close the market not only to its own membership, but to all those who have just commenced and who, while they are intelligent enough to hold on to their ten dollar bills, are not yet in a position to make contracts with the studios and who will find the market closed against them through no act of their own. Very naturally the manufacturers will not tolerate any attempted interference with their business and in drawing the line against the A. S. W. A. they are likely to draw the lines so ght that the unaffiliated beginner will suffer as well. Mr. Wright, in e tirely well meaning way, will only make a bad matter worse. He wil dra about him a rabble of malcontents, who, to borrow the phrase of o ce respondent, "will raise hell without accomplishing anything."

Doesn't Need a Club.

Here's a letter from Will Lisenbee, of Cherokee, Kans., who thi s is starting a record with a Kalem sale. Incidentally he discusses th ma ter of clubbing the editors with a sanity that makes good reading. H ay

> As a writer of scenarios I must confess that I see no neces for a scenario writers' association, and least of all such an as ciation as proposed by your Chicago correspondent in The Mov Picture World of February 24th. Any attempt to compel produc of photoplays to pay a uniform price for scripts would be ridiculo Each scenario must be judged on its own merit, and to attempt get over this fact would be as absurd as to expect the editors magazines to pay the same rate for each story accepted. Wl the average pay for a 5,000 word story might be $35 to $50, it well known that O. Henry received as much as $500, and ev more for a story of equal length.
>
> The product of the skilled workman is worth more than that the amateur. If my works are poor, I should not care to go in any combination for the purpose of compelling the buyer to more than they were worth. No combination is necessary if works are good, and this fact makes it worth while for the wri to put all his energy, patience and skill into his scripts, and breathe into them the spirit, the warmth, the color, that can o result where the heart is in the work. When we strive to excel another we lift our art to a higher plane, retain our self-resp and the respect and good will of those who purchase our war
>
> I should like to add a word in reference to the treatment t film companies accorded me. I have found them exceedingly co teous and obliging in every instance. I have never had a scr held over five weeks, and that was a single instance. I usually a report in ten days, which would leave but three of four days the script to be in the hands of the editors. To illustrate h prompt some are: I sent a script to the Kalem Company on Feb ary 9th (from Kansas) and the check for it was mailed in N York on February 12th. Can anybody beat that?

And here's another letter from a man who is willing to believe th e tors are human. It would seem that those who want a club ar he whose sales are few. The men who dispose of their manuscripts fi th they can do so without the aid of any association. This corresp de writes:

> I have thought a good deal about these "Associations" and "o ganizations." In my humble opinion we ought to get away fr all that. Like you, I think some sort of a combination of Scena Writers would be beneficial—something in the nature of a "Clul perhaps, local in scope, but affiliated with other local "clubs" w no object other than the interchange of ideas, the bettering of t scenario quality and other things tending to elevate the standi of the writer on the basis of merit. With higher grade scenar will come better prices and more ready recognition.
>
> But there are plenty of arguments against even this. For ample, the writer, be he "big" or "little," famous or obscure, w shun any place where he thinks some one else might get hold his "ideas"; he would perhaps hesitate to discuss them in a gathering of men wide-awake to secure "new stuff." The beginn would hail the "club" as a place where they could, as you s graft tips, and the older hands would shun it to avoid the "gra ers." So I don't see how "organization" will come—yet.

The Essanay Editor.

Someone asks who the new Essanay editor is. He is H. Tipton S k, Chicago man who has been in the scenario game for several years a w has a lot of capital stories to his credit. He is a fully experience m from every angle and should make himself as popular as did Arch M Mackin in the same chair.

Lubin Wasn't Burned.

Bennie from Lubinville writes that there have been numerous in of the scenario department as to the safety of the scripts followi telegraphic report of the burning of one of the Lubin theaters in delphia. The building destroyed was the old studio at 926 Market S has not been occupied as such for more than a year. The present studios are some seven miles from the fire so the scripts are saf

"Plot Too Slight."

Here is a letter from a correspondent who evidently is new at th ing of stories and scenarios but who very evidently wants to keep on

> I read with great interest the article in The Moving Pict World of February 24th, in regards to the formation of an sociation of scenario writers. The author of that letter certai had big things in his mind as to what the producers should a should not do. It was of special interest to me as I had just ceived an invitation to become a charter member of an associat of scenario writers now forming in Philadelphia. They have secur a charter, the same costing $200 and are going to charge $15 year dues, for what purposes they do not state. It seems like a to pay out for no apparent benefit except to those in close tou with the headquarters, and then only in a social way.

your answer and advice to Mr. Ervin Hall you should have ed that a prospective scenario writer should have an unlimited unt of courage. Courage to bear up under the disappointments come with returned scenarios without a word of explanation o why they are returned.

was with some wonder and relief that I read in one of your les a few weeks ago, that you yourself had a scenario returned were commenting upon its dirty condition) and I used it as a t to my own courage, with the thought that if one with your riences has rejections it is no wonder that I, a beginner, have y. I have had an average of one acceptance a month which, ng everything into consideration, don't seem so bad, especially n I know that all that have been produced have been done so as I had them written, with two exceptions when scenes were d to make them the required thousand feet.

have had several scenarios returned marked "Plot too slight." ld you, through your paper, give me a comparison between a l deep plot and one that is to light for film production?

a story is returned marked "Theme has been used before" is npossible to sell it to any other company in its present form?

sending stories to magazines for inspection how can I find to whom to mail them when only the publisher's address is n and not the editor's, as several magazines are published by same house.

it undoubtedly takes courage to keep on going when three or ries get back in such order that it's hard to tell which gets home fail to see that the fact that veteran writers get their stories back ve the needed encouragement. The man who says he never gets es back is either a liar or a miracle worker—and there are few atter. Pictures are a little harder than short stories for the last spoken by a man who is not fitted by his training to give the de- ote, but in any event it is humanly impossible to get every story he equations of three or four individuals and even where this is ccessfully, it may happen that there are too many scripts on hand ame nature and the offering goes back anyhow. Even the practised loing work on contract, allows a certain percentage for returned and the free lance knows that all there is to be done is to smile and e rejection to the next name on the list.

too slight" is sadly overworked in the studios. It may mean that too little plot, or it may mean that it is not clearly told or not sufficient detail. A plot that really is too slight might be the a girl who comes to the city, fails to get ahead and goes back marry the man who has been waiting for her. She comes to ils, and returns. That's all. That's too slight a plot.

suppose that she has left home because she had advanced ideas as phere of woman's influence. She makes a fight and wins her suc- he is steadily advancing toward her goal when she gets word that whom she loves and whose joking comment led her to go to the prove her point has been taken ill. He is all alone and his fine operty is being ruined for want of a directing head. She loves the was love for him that drove her to the city and success. Shall she her career to return and marry him or remain and clinch her argu- The heart wins. She goes back home, marries and settles down ls at the end that she has proven her point, not through her suc- the city, but by her triumph in the sphere of the home that once to be so narrow.

rst is a bald recital. The other can be told so that the audience interested in the girl and her fight, disappointed when she has to the field and rejoiced in her ultimate triumph. The first plot is he other full.

her it is wise to continue on its travels a story with a "theme used depends very largely upon who makes the statement. Practically es have been used before. All photoplays are old themes rehandled. litors make the note because they do not know what else to say. mploy the phrase only when the special development too closely ap- the work of some earlier writer. If you are familiar with photo- d think your theme has novelty, keep the story on its rounds. If k the editor knows, retire it in favor of some newer idea.

ast question does not properly belong here, but it may interest Most of the companies having more than one publication "read for n the Munsey string, for example, a story may not suit the All out suggest itself as likely to suit the Argosy, in which case the sent to the other editor. In the same way the editor of the Popu- ry nice about diverting scripts that might stand a chance with some treet & Smith publication. And it is not necessary to address an y name, whether you send out a story or a photoplay. If it gets nagazine it gets to the Editor or one of his assistants. That is all d.

Be Nice to "M. O'K."

rs who have not sent stories to the Edison company, but who o, are advised that if they send a synopsis that runs too full they asked by "M. O'K," who is the official executioner, to get the story words of synopsis.

the practise in the Edison studios to copy the synopses of the that meet approval. Copies are given each director and they call scripts that most strongly strike their fancy. Where such copies be made it is no fun for "M. O'K" to have to copy a couple of l words, so make it easy by keeping your synopsis within due and maybe she can find time to add a word of encouragement to ly formal swat that comes from the Bedford Park section with the script.

Want To Join a Club?

authors all over the country trying to start societies to make the writer rich and the film manufacturer poor, we are inspired to mething ourselves and as others have beaten us to the idea of six times as much for the story as the film sells for, we propose a anization to be known as the "Use No Hooks Club."

There are no initiation fees, no annual, no cards of membership that will admit to the motion picture shows and the film studios. There is no badge or button, but there is an underlying foundation of common sense that should merit a large and enthusiastic membership.

Without troubling to draw up a constitution in full we propose this section:

PURPOSE.

> It shall be the purpose of this club to unite for the common object of reducing to a minimum the habit of destroying the property of others by using submitted scripts as memorandum pads.

Under the title of the club we have devoted considerable space to the matter of mutilation of the property of others, and expect to use more space in future. No company can be required to pay more for scripts than it has to, no manufacturer can be compelled to use the name of an author unless he considers it desirable, no maker of photoplays can be forced to patronize any association or body of writers, but no person should be permitted to wilfully or negligently destroy the property ot another temporarily entrusted to his care. It is to this end and to bring about this reform that we propose the "Use No Hooks Club" which shall have for its sole aim the abolishment of this practice.

Any person who has written a scenario is eligible for membership provided he will bring to the attention of the responsible heads any defacement of his property, whether it be the number of initials of script clerk, the comment of editor or producer, the use of the blank sides for sketches, diagrams, etc., or even the handling of the script with soiled hands.

Immediately upon the receipt of a script it must be examined and in the event of marks being found, courteous complaint must be made to the General Manager of the company. It is most essential that the letter should be temperate and courteous. Nothing can be gained through abuse or sarcasm. Simply state the facts briefly and pointedly. Don't suggest that the scenario editor does not know a good story when he sees one and that the staff of directors constitute a private insane asylum all by themselves. Merely point out that certain defacements have been made that render the script unavailable for further submissions, and if the condition of the script is such that work with an ink eraser will not suffice, write and ask that the script be recopied by the staff of the company or at their expense. Point out that the script is your property until it has been sold and that the action of his agents has rendered that property unsalable.

If a sufficient member of writers will interest themselves in this matter and respectively press all complaints, it will not be long before someone in authority comes to a realization of the fact that things are not as they should be in the editorial department and reform will follow.

We do not believe that any firm of film manufacturers would countenance the violation of laws of courtesy knowingly, but the executives have to do with the selling, not the making of film, and have come to rely too much upon the staff of directors, few of whom are competent to be entrusted with a script either to read or handle.

Why not join?

PRELIMINARY PICTURES OF THE JOHNSON-FLYNN BOUT.

Moving pictures showing the posting of forfeits and the signing of articles by Jack Johnson and Jim Flynn, for the heavyweight championship in July next, were exhibited at the offices of the Anti-Trust Film Company, Thursday, February 29. Representatives of the Chicago press were present

In the pictures, in addition to the principals are seen Al Tearney, the stakeholder, accepting Johnson's check for $5,000 and Jim Flynn's certified check for the same amount, also a certified check for $5,000 from Jack Curley, on behalf of the managing club.

It is claimed that these pictures are the very first ever taken which show the signing of articles and posting of forfeits for a world's championship battle.

The pictures show Jack Johnson coming out of his Chicago residence and taking a dare devil ride in his 120 horsepower machine. Johnson is also seen going through a course in his gymnasium showing his tremendous muscular development, skipping the rope, boxing four speedy rounds with his training partner, Marty Cutler, punching the bag, shadow boxing, throwing the medicine ball and in road work.

Jim Flynn is shown in an interesting wrestling bout with his physical director, Robert Fellchenfeld, and in four speedy boxing rounds. He is also seen in skillful shadow boxing, skipping the rope and punching the bag.

The films will be about 2,000 feet and the pictures, in addition to the features referred to, will show such known celebrities as Lincoln J. Carter, Germany Schaeffer, the ball player, Sam Pooler, John Crone, Jack Curley, Humid Kla Pasha, etc., etc. The following newspaper men are also shown in the pictures: Walter H. Eckersall, of the Chicago Tribune; Ed. W. Smith, sporting editor of the Chicago American, and the well known referee, Ed. J. Geiger and Jack Lait, of the Chicago American; Sam Hall, of the Chicago Examiner; Gordon Clodg, of the Chicago Inter-Ocean; Harry Hochstader, of the Chicago Journal; and J. L. Walthey, of the Chicago Record-Herald.

The Johnson-Flynn preliminary fight pictures are being handled by the Johnson-Flynn Feature Film Company, 710 First National Bank Building, Chicago. This company is open for bids from state-right buyers and exhibitors.

Boosting the Social Center Idea.

Edison Players in Co-operation With the Russell Sage Foundation Produce an Excellent Sociological Subject.

PROMOTERS of the social center idea, which has been attracting the attention of students of sociology to worthy philanthropic enterprises, will find a potent power in the Edison picture, entitled "Charlie's Reformation," which has been produced in co-operation with the Division of Recreation of the Russell Sage Foundation, and will be released for general exhibition on April 5th. The principal of the story upon which this picture is based is a young man named "Charlie." Like thousands of young men of his class, he has become deeply attached to a girl, but finds it difficult to pursue his love-making with any degree of satisfaction. We find him an uncomfortable caller at the girl's home with the various members of the girl's family in the same room. The younger sister persists in butting in upon the tete-a-tete of Charlie and his girl, and the kid brother annoys Charlie with his pranks. Exasperated with the situation Charlie suggests that they go somewhere. The girl asks mamma, who refers her to papa, and papa vetoes the proposition. Charlie is thoroughly disgusted and leaves the house. Being an impetuous youth he goes to the extreme, and finds companionship among evil associates. Here the picture gives a very faithful illustration of how many young men and girls are compelled to find recreation in most dangerous surroundings, such as the concert halls and dance halls with bars attached. Charlie goes from bad to worse, and, through drinking and carousing, loses his position.

Scene from "Charlie's Reformation" (Edison).

Scene from "Charlie's Reformation" (Edison).

In the meantime a former teacher of the girl induces her to go to a Social Center, which has been established in the neighborhood. There is to be found various forms of amusement; classes for instruction, gymnasium for the boys who are inclined to be athletic, and dancing classes for those who prefer that form of amusement. The girl becomes a regular attendant. One evening, as she is passing along the street with one of the young men of the Social Center, she is seen by Charlie, now sunken quite low in the social scale. The sight arouses Charlie's jealousy and he gives chase. He arrives at the Social Center and proceeds to mix things up. He rushes from one room to another in search of the girl until he finally discovers her in the dance hall. What he might have done is left to the imagination had he not been met by the stalwart person of the director of the Center. There is also a policeman handy who has been summoned by one of the attendants and his presence has a quieting influence on Charlie. The girl recognizes him and quickly explains the situation to the director who, instead of turning him over to the officer, greets him kindly and invites him to remain; at the same time dismissing the uniformed protector of the peace.

Subsequently we find Charlie deeply interested in the affairs of the Social Center and once more the bright and alert young man to whom we were first introduced. So well has he conducted himself that his old employer, who has been watching his reformation, welcomes him back to his old position.

It is a long story to be told in one reel, but the Edison players have succeeded in clinching the main idea and much good should come from its exhibition.

A DARING CAMERAMAN.

Herman Obrock, globe-trotting moving picture operator, went up one Sunday afternoon with Geo. W. Beatty at Nassau Boulevard, L. I., in an aeroplane. It was proposed in the flight to take motion pictures for The Gaumont Weekly covering a large part of Long Island and possibly part of upper New York City.

Obrock is one of the best known camera men in the business and although weighing two hundred pounds has no fear of the outcome of his aerial journey. He has filmed more public men and interesting events, has traveled more miles and had more narrow escapes, possibly, than any other operator in the country.

SCHULTZ NOT WITH ENTERPRISE.

The Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company, makers of the Motiograph projecting machine, write The World to the effect that E. A. Schultz, formerly a demonstrator in its employ, is no longer connected with the firm in any capacity, and that debts or other obligations incurred by him will not be honored by the Enterprise Company. A reward of $10 is offered by the company for information that will lead to the recovery of the 1912 Motiograph and demonstrating outfit used by Mr. Schultz. When last heard of Schultz was on his way to Nelson, B. C.

Comments on the Films

Licensed.

"A SISTER'S STRATAGEM" (Cines), March 2.—A romantic comedy in ciety life played in Italy. A sister helps along her brother's love affair. e sweetheart, who was holding brother off, didn't know her, so she played e was a young widow just returned from a long voyage and brother made ve to her. There are only a few laughs in it, but it is interesting. Some the scenes are pretty. The photographs are only fair. It will be a od filler.

"A COWBOY'S STRATAGEM" (Edison), March 2.—This picture surely es not come up to the Edison average which is very high. It is a conven- nal Western and not very fresh in its incidents. But there is scintillating rce on the same reel that very much makes up. This first part is 620 t long, has some pretty snow pictures and is fairly well photographed.

"THE JAM CLOSET" (Edison), March 2.—This human little farce was ghtly conceived and wisely conducted. Add to a well-stored jam closet a all boy. Lock the door. In about an hour, open and you will have the uation. The small boy in this picture (we don't know his name, but we e him) was locked in the jam closet. When they let him out, neither his ther nor the nurse would touch him. The ice man took him up to the throom and even the ice man handled him at arm's length, as it were. e house screamed. The photographs are good. Enough has been said.

"LOVE AND TEARS" (Lubin), February 28.—This picture gets quality m the fact that its situation offers a sharp contrast and it succeeds in get- g itself over, makes the contrast emotionally effective. A young married n likes society. His wife, recently a mother, is still sick and asks him stay home with her. He says, "I'll be back at twelve," and goes away th a friend. While he is enjoying himself at a ball in fancy dress the fe at home dies. They can't get him, for no one knows just where he is. has an emotional ending. It is fairly well acted. The photographs are y clear. It may be acceptable as the feature; but it surely is a good filler.

"BETTY AND THE DOCTOR" (Lubin), February 29.—A little pleasing e story played by Miss May Buckley and in the heroine's part of which has put delightful freshness. The acting of those who support her (there only five in the entire cast) is excellent. The story doesn't travel at a y brisk pace. The photographs are fine. The picture will be acceptable a filler.

"HER MASTERFUL MAN" (Essanay), February 29.—A farce comedy asingly acted and very amusing. The girl didn't like her rich lover. She uld even prefer the coal man; for she wanted someone to win her by ce. The photographs are fine. It is a good filler.

"OIL" (Melies), February 29.—Pa saw oil men looking over his farm "salted" the valley pasture out of the molasses jug—he had had it filled h some of John D's best. The speculators gave Pa $10,000 for the farm then struck a well on it worth half a million. Pa went back to work. e acting and conduct are commendable and get out of the situation about there was in it. The photographs are very fair. The release will make interesting filler.

"TONY'S OATH OF VENGEANCE" (Edison), March 1.—A dramatic ture, a story told by an Italian to a priest explaining why he had broken o the house to steal. The priest, owner of the house, came upon him. The ry tells of his daughter and her faithless lover. He had made an oath of geance and to get to the man he found it necessary to steal. The acting good, but especially interesting is the acting of the daughter and of the est. The story is interesting and clear. The pictures are very good. e release will make a desirable filler, perhaps a feature.

"HAPPY IN SPITE OF HERSELF" (Cines), February 27.—A little lian romantic comedy in good society. It concerns itself with two lovers o had quarreled. The girl was proud and wouldn't make up with her trite sweetheart. Little sister came home from boarding school and she verly brought about a reconciliation. It can't be called a very strong pic- e; but it is pleasing. It shows some pretty gowns. It is also well acted l well pictured. A filler.

"JENKINS, A PERFECT STEWARD" (Cines), February 27.—One the most amusing trick pictures we have seen. Jenkins kept the ladies in audience in one continuous laugh at his wonderful house work, espe- ly his ironing. He did up two dress shirts at once and made them look a starch advertisement. It is a first class picture to show.

"A MATTER OF BUSINESS" (Lubin), February 26.—A picture in ch a pleasing small boy plays the most interesting role. The lad's ural feelings prompted him to ask the president of the life insurance pany, in which his sick father had a large policy, to save his father's by sending him to the South so that he could get well. Mr. Arthur nson plays the sick man. The situation is not very dramatically de- ped; but is interesting because of its humor and character drawing. pictures are very pleasing, especially the snow scenes, and the re- e will also pass muster as a feature.

"THE DIAMOND S RANCH" (Selig), February 29.—This is an in- trial and topical picture of riding, rope-throwing and branding of cattle. re are some thrilling exhibitions of "bulldogging" in it. The champion bulldoger shows that she, too, can throw the bull—by twisting its horns, course. When the world was young, men and women have won places omance and even in myth by such deeds as these. The reel holds things th seeing. The photographs are better than the usual Selig's have been ate. It is a feature picture.

"A MESSAGE FROM THE MOON" (Biograph), February 29.—A farce full of star sparkles—that is in several senses. A pair of lovers, the girl's old father, an astronomer, who objects, some tapers and a half paving block are mixed with good acting by a producer who knows what a good farce is and how to make one (we judge by this production) and we have the result. It certainly was enjoyed by a large audience. It is not too long as most (perhaps all full reel farces) are. It is a rattling good release in spite of the first number on it.

"COWBOY DAMON AND PYTHIAS" (Vitagraph), February 24.—Those who have watched moving pictures have seen this story. It is freshly told of course every time; but it has been told by three producers at least. In it, one cowboy (in a recent Pathe picture it was an Indian) takes the place of another who is to be hanged and waits while his friend goes home to kiss his wife good by. The condemned man has to race back against time and no player has touched the work that Hobart Bosworth did in this part. This picture has much more than this climax; the man's wife plays a prominent part in it. Miss Schaefer fills fairly well this role which is probably as hard a situation to portray without words as can be found. She is far and away above the others who have tried it recently. But she does also some truly fine acting at the moment when she sends insulting "Rattlesnake" Pete about his business. The backgrounds are in Colorado and are very good; but we are afraid to call the picture a sure feature; it is nearly one.

"TORPEDO PRACTICE IN U. S. NAVY" (Vitagraph), February 28.—A first-class topical showing how torpedoes are launched, rather than fired, from ships and how they make away over the waves toward their objective. It is short.

"THE FIRING OF THE PATCHWORK QUILT" (Vitagraph), February 28.—The quilt was burned by the gray-haired mother of a locomotive engineer as a signal. By doing it she saved her son and his train from a broken trestle. She had made her way through a terrible thunder storm to do it. Mrs. Maurice plays the mother most effectively; her work is the best thing in the picture although its lightning effects, shown while the mother is on her way through the storm are fine. Mr. Gailord plays the engineer. The photographs are very good; but in little things the picture might easily have been improved. The split reel will be welcomed as a fair feature.

"A GLIMPSE OF TRIPOLI" (Eclipse), February 28.—Let travelogs be as many of any country as you please, they all will be more or less different and, if all are as good as this one, for instance, they will all be welcome. It gives us pictures of village life, showing us something new in the way of front doors. The Koran prohibits the use of alcohol as a beverage. After seeing some of these front steps we can say, "It is well."

"COUSIN BILL" (Eclipse), February 28.—A farce with Cousin Bill, a countryman doing awkward and incongruous things while on a visit to his city relatives. It is played fairly well and is pictured fairly well. The people seemed to like it and there were many good laughs, especially from the gallery.

"THE LITTLE BLACK BOX" (Essanay), February 23.—A cleverly conducted and fresh picture of the "third degree." A theft is committed in a jeweler's office. The producer keeps us from knowing which one of three clerks did it. The chief of police makes an investigation and, choosing one, gives him the third degree. He confesses. The action holds attention, it gets over very effectively. The photographs are very good and it will serve as a feature or make a very desirable filler.

"A WESTERN KIMONO" (Essanay).—This picture has been reviewed on page 587 of issue of February 11, 1912.

"A TENDERFOOT'S TROUBLES" (Kalem), February 28.—A cowboy comedy without much freshness, but in extremely pretty and well photographed backgrounds. The tenderfoot is a fiance of the ranch girl, who wanted to get rid of him. He thought himself too good to shake hands with the boys, so, when the girl wanted them to "put up" a game on him, they were more than willing. It is well acted. It will get by in good company.

"THE SHRINKING RAWHIDE" (Selig), March 4.—A costume romance of Spanish days in California. The story is more or less conventional, but is well handled and kept from dragging. It has a new climax, an Indian torture scene. The hero is dying by slow degrees at the stake when the heroine and her friends rescue him. It is more pleasingly acted than most pictures of its kind, but the photographs are poor. This is a pity, for the backgrounds are fine. It will make a first class, desirable filler.

"FISHING IN FLORIDA" (Lubin), March 4.—Shows a 350 pound fish being caught. The man who cleaned and cut up the catch knew his fish like a surgeon; he made a very good job of the business. The audience watched it with much interest. It is very clearly photographed.

"THE BABY TRAMP" (Lubin), March 4.—This picture of two tramps who saw a baby get a penny and tried to get "a plant" on the public in order to make money in that easy way, has the real farce spirit. The tramp baby "gets over" and the audience seemed to be enjoying it thoroughly. It is set in Florida and the scenes are well photographed. It is a very commendable release from the exhibitors' standpoint.

"TRAPPED BY WIRELESS" (Kalem), March 1.—A newspaper story in which the city editor and the daughter of the reform candidate for mayor play the principal parts. The girl's young brother is an amateur wireless operator and has a set of apparatus in the attic. The "boss" of the city political machine manages to get the reform candidate into trouble and the city editor gets fired trying to suppress the "story." The [illegible] in the attic overhears and shows up the "boss." It is poorly acted and is a rather commonplace story; but is well photographed.

"THE DIAMOND BROOCH" (Vitagraph), March 1.—A cleverly acted melodrama which tells a clear story and in which suspense is very well maintained. Its center of interest lies between two women; one a prima donna (played by Julia Swayne Gordon), the other a girl of the ballet played by Miss Neason). The first is jealous of the second because she had been noticed by a young nobleman (Mr. Costello), and she uses the brooch, his gift to her, as a means of getting the ballet girl arrested as a thief. She makes her maid (played very well by Evelyn Dominicus) put the trinket in the younger girl's box. The ballet girl's mother (played by Mr. Maurice) is utilized to increase our sympathy for the girl by lifting her above her class. Her kindness to a sick girl, also of the ballet, increases our sympathy and furnishes the means of freeing her and of bringing the crime home to the prima donna; for this girl (Miss Walker) sees the maid place the brooch in the make-up box. Kate Price plays the property woman. Van Dyke Brooke plays the manager. The cast is large and none but accomplished players have roles in it. The acting throughout is fine.

The picture aims to tell an emotional story; yet it is also interesting as showing us glimpses of back-stage and green room life. Such pictures logically work up to a great courtroom scene, the setting for the climax; but, in this, only a profile of the court scene is given. The theater sets are far more carefully made and handled. The picture is a very sure feature. The photographs are fine.

"DO DREAMS COME TRUE?" (Essanay), March 1.—Do dreams (that is, our dreams) come true? The question is a pertinent one and this comedy picture has the same pertinancy as the query. It "gets over" and strongly awakens our sympathies. It is so well handled and so very well acted and so clearly photographed that, in the audience that watched it, burst followed burst of hearty, sympathetic laughter. The dreams were dreamed by a love-sick clerk. The picture's only fault is that in its ending, which, in real life, would have been heartless and would have reflected great discredit on the girl and on the man's fellow clerks, it falls from grace in falling from good nature and from humanity. Good nature is the absolutely necessary quality of good comedy. In this case the really comic ending was close at hand, almost begging to be used. Do dreams come true? Yes, dreams of this kind, very often. The fun comes from the roundabout way such dreams often take. If the producer, making a picture of dreams, had kept it in the realm of dreams; if he had kept the born dreamer dreaming up to and beyond a curt refusal by the first girl, and then substituted that older lady who loved him, in the dream for the first lady, he would, at least, have pictured life. But as it is, it is very, very funny, is a sure comedy feature.

"THE TELEPHONE GIRL" (Vitagraph), March 2.—A picture giving a heroic melodrama which is played by Miss Edith Story. She takes the part of the telephone girl who stays at her post in the burning factory to warn the employees on every floor. She, then, cannot make her escape; but is rescued just before the burning timbers fall by her sweetheart, the fireman (played by Wallace Reid). The story is of the simplest both in plot and handling; but Miss Story's acting succeeds in making it very emotional. Her power in this field is widely known and recognized; she has made more than a few weep by her art. In pictures like "The Telephone Girl," the means she uses are of the simplest; she seems to lose herself in the story. Such a story as this, however, doesn't give her the scope she has shown herself capable of making use of. It is an A-1 picture of its kind, exciting and deeply emotional. It is also very well photographed and a first class feature. The people will like it. It should be advertised as Miss Story's picture.

"LULU'S ANARCHIST" (Vitagraph), March 4.—A comedy that the people appreciated and liked. It is good natured, quite fresh and, for the most part, every amusing. Lulu, the stenographer (Miss Neason), is a great reader of dime novels and finds "Max Rosinsky, the Avenger," in real life. He hires the next office and is a "lightning-change" impersonater. This role is taken by Mr. Phillips, who has several good wigs. Lulu looks over the transome and then gets her sweetheart, the cub reporter (Mr. Morrison), very much excited. He brings the police. Miss Neason plays parts like this very well indeed and puts, with Mr. Phillips' help, a good deal of first rate fun into the picture. It is a feature comedy; it can be shown at churches or other private entertainments and will be popular. The photographs are fine.

"THE ACE OF SPADES" (Selig), March 5.—A new Western story, absorbingly interesting and very dramatic. It held the attention of the audience and seemed to satisfy generally. It convinces almost wholly and we feel sure that it will be popular, even where audiences have grown tired of the usual miner and gambler stories. The prospector, who has his wife and child with him, has come to the end of his resources. The child playing near the stream finds a rich claim. The man leaves wife and child on guard and goes back for help. He reaches the settlements exhausted with hunger, but can get no credit. The gambler puts food before him and makes him gamble for a grub stake with the "claim." He loses. The gambler loads up with provinder and rides up to where the wife and child are. The wife, when she hears of the transaction, is incensed, and taunts the gambler into giving her the same chance of winning back the claim that he had had. This he does and he loses. Both times it was by the ace of spades. The photographs in one or two scenes are very good; but this is not wholly true of the other scenes.

"A MEXICAN COURTSHIP" (Lubin), March 2.—This is one of the very best melodramatic pictures that the Lubin Company has put out in many a week, one of the best that has been released by any company. It is a bull fight, love story, with an excellent and very exciting picture of the fight and the death of a vicious bull. The story, although in outline it is what might be called a classic convention in Spanish literature, is absolutely fresh, so far as we know, in pictures and is eminently worth while. It is, in fact, a picture among good pictures for the exhibitor, one to excite enthusiasm.

During the bull fight in which the lowly hero killed the bull and won the girl, the camera seems to have stood in the very arena. At one instant the thoroughly mad bull was coming right toward us, and that particular view was cut very short. Perhaps the camera man got away quick. Perhaps i was the bull who got the camera. He certainly looked as though he wer just on the point of his horn of getting something. It is a rattling goo picture. We are glad that we saw it and we believe others will be glad t see it. The audience that saw it with us seemed to be. The photograph are good.

"LOST THREE HOURS" (Edison), March 5. The old story of the hu band, home late from the club, and the cookoo clock, yet with a new an fresh twist which was intended to give it substance. It is a pretty pictur and it was very well acted. Much of it gets over as fun and the peopl laughed at the proper times. The photographs are excellent. It will mak a good filler.

"THE TURNING POINT" (Essanay), March 5.—The turning point in swindler's career is shown in this picture as coming when an old lad whom he was about to "fleece," took an interest in his mother's phot graph. The story is very well conducted. It is convincing and althou not very original, is acted with a good measure of freshness. The pho graphs are very good. The picture held the audience's attention and seeme to interest. It is a very good filler.

"THE RANCH GIRL'S MISTAKE" (Essanay), March 2.—An interes ing and well acted picture. The girl was Broncho Billy's sweetheart. Sh was attracted away from him by a city man who "sported" a good team an was even eloping when Billy found out that the man was married. H saved her in time and in an emotional climax, she showed that she saw h mistake. It is fresh in a conventional way and plainly pleased the audienc It is a desirable filler. The photographs are very fair.

"THE CHAUFFEUR" (Cines), March 5.—A rich and romantic youn man plays chauffeur to be near a girl whom, still unknown, he had falle in love with. He has his troubles, but wins the girl. It has a good de of comedy spirit and pleased the audience. The photographs are fair an the release, with a fair travelog on the same reel, makes a good filler.

"YOU REMEMBER ELLEN" (Kalem), March 4. The Irish hills an dales, with more intimate views of roadside, croft and meadow, give pe fect setting to this poetic Irish story of Ellen, "pride of the village," whom Tom Moore wrote. Miss Gene Gauntier and Mr. Hollister play t leads, impersonating the simple, true-hearted maiden on the one hand, a the Lord of Rosna Hall, who married her in a lowly disguise, on the othe It is very well handled. We, ourselves, think Lord Rosna the peasant seems until the end, when he and his young wife take refuge from a r storm in the hall and she finds herself a lady in the land. We commend heartily. It is a thoroughly delightful feature picture that can be show anywhere. It would be very acceptable at any kind of private exhibitio These Irish pictures are all pretty well photographed; this as well as t others.

"THE SIREN OF IMPULSE" (Biograph), March 4.—Early last su mer, the Biograph Company released a very excellent picture, "The N Dress." This release has much of the same quality. It is true that t former had, in some ways, a more significant incident to relate and w more universal in its humanity. It also was more distinctly national in i ancillary happenings, in its atmosphere. This picture, however, has ma good points to commend it, points that are found in both. It is not qui so successful a picture; but it invites comparison. They belong together.

The heroine of this one is an impulsive Mexican girl and later a marri woman. Her peculiarities have made her husband intensely jealous; y she is perfectly true and submissive to him, is even more good-hearted th the usual man or woman and it is really through this good nature that t situation came. She had loaned her finery to another girl, because her hu band refused to let her go to a dance. A sick neighbor needed her ca Her husband came back and found her gone. From a distance, he saw h dress. In the moonlight, there came near being a tragedy; but this w averted and everything explained. The picture's fine quality comes fr the acting which, in many of its scenes, is quite up to Biograph standa The photographs, some of them more especially, are unusually commenda It is a desirable feature.

"CARDINAL WOLSEY" (Vitagraph), March 5.—This historical, d matic series of scenes suggested by Shakespeare's "Henry VIII," is t week's big release. It is in one reel (1,000 feet); but it is so magnificent acted, costumed, set and pictured that it leaves a very deep impressi The great cardinal is played with most remarkable success by Mr. Hal Re This portrayal, we believe, reaches a very high plane of art and is v worth while seeing. Even if he were not Cardinal Wolsey, he was eve inch a cardinal. Catherine of Arragon is played by Julia Swayne Gord who shows the outraged queen in a dignified, royal way that stirs our sy pathy. Anne Boleyn is played by Clara Kimball Young, who makes t pretty young lady-in-waiting a bit frightened at first, yet not very luctant. She seemed somewhat awed by her honors as she passed in t coronation pagent. This out-of-doors parade is the picture's only w point. It wasn't very suggestive, hardly could be; because the cast could fill the space and there were no spectators, no citizens crowding for a lo at their new queen. It would have "got over" better, if it had pass through the hall-setting used in other scenes. Teft Johnson played Ki Henry and, at moments, looked very much indeed like this king's portr The picture is a big, educational feature. By the way, the reviewer four people who were sitting near him into a discussion about it. T seemed to lose it altogether. One young boy of about eighteen seemed think the cardinal was making love to the queen whom he was comforti

CHINESE REVOLUTION PICTURES.

The Oriental Film Company of San Francisco, Cal., a nounces that it has secured the exclusive rights from t Japanese firm of picture makers, the Anataka Company, views of the Chinese revolution. The subject is described a vivid portrayal of all the sensational occurrences wh have been happening in China. It is in two reels and will offered to state right men in the United States, Canada a Mexico, for which territory the Oriental Film Company ha the concession. Special advertising has been prepared for Independent.

E MANICURIST" (Champion), March 4.—A love story full of pretty because it is well set and photographed, but chiefly because it is cted, the leading lady's part being especially well suggested. There point in it that seems overdrawn. Aside from this, the picture has andled skilfully. The story is carried smoothly and kept interesting te of one or two faults, we call it a feature.

ALL OF THE DRUM" (Imp), March 7.—A heart interest picture, sentiment that is not at all sentimental. The call of the life with his des in the old soldiers' home carried the old soldier away from the of his daughter who had married a rich man, made him run away from They tried to coax him back; but he wouldn't come. Mr. Pollard the old soldier very simply. Margaret Fisher takes the daughter's role. pleasing release; the photographs are fine and it will surely be gen liked. We can call it a good feature.

IE DREAM" (Republic), March 5.—A very dramatic love story with ill worker's daughter and the owner's son as principals. The girl's has been injured in the works; he has made application for compen and has been refused by the owner. He has been warned by octor that any great excitement might affect his mind. He roves of the love match and in the dream, which is madness, he nes that the young man has betrayed his daughter, and that he has ered him. He awakes and finds the reality much better than he feared. picture falls short of good composition, and lacks logical arrangement ke it powerful. As it is, it grips the attention, nevertheless. The is good; the photographs are fair. From the exhibitor's viewpoint it e called a good feature.

LCOHOL" (Eclair), March 10.—This big production and first-class feapicture has been reviewed in The Moving Picture World on page 377 bruary 3, 1912. It was shown to the guests at the recent exhibitor's held in the Palm Garden, New York City, and pleased them very much. a big, strong feature.

HE YEGGMAN" (Reliance), March 6.—A tragic melodrama very well cted and with a decided thrill. The climax takes place in a railroad n when the yeggman, reformed by the humanity of the pretty station ess (Miss Fernley), saves her and a large invoice of money from a of his former associates. Leading up to this climax there is a sen al series of scenes in which the former yeggman (Mr. Wm. Walthall) s an engineer, at the point of a revolver, to back his passenger train or three miles back to the lovely station, thus saving the girl. Miss ley, as she pictures the girl going out on the station platform to receive ackage of money, gives to the picture its most delightful moment. It ll photographed and, as a melodrama, a strong, popular feature.

HE BETTER MAN" (Reliance), March 9.—A country life picture with r scenes and it is full of pleasant, homely atmosphere. It opens with aw ride, and rural jollification, with its cider barrel, practical jokes, The story is pleasant and shows a school girl heroine, disillusioned as er more brilliant lover, finding a truer haven in the love of another g man. Miss Gertrude Robinson plays the school girl; Mr. Wm. hall plays the dashing but not very lovable lover and Mr. Johnson the worthy and finally acceptable hero, "the better man." The pic is very pretty, indeed. It is a first class feature for almost any oc n. Some Sunday schools might object to the cider barrel in one of cenes; but it is a clean and wholesome picture.

HE DUTCHESS' LADY COMPANION" (Ambrosio), March 6.—A antic love story set in the household of a woman of rank. The backnds are interesting and, when they are well photographed, beautiful. story is not very effective; but the acting is very fair. It will serve as a er.

ROKEN TIES" (American), March 7.—This picture's situation quickly lops into a hot family row. The hero's father had married again and step-mother had brought home with her, her son. The hero runs away; when he came back to wreak vengeance, he finds that there is no need. gs have worked themselves out very satisfactorily to the haters of evil. an interesting picture; but gives little chance for significant acting and ot very speedy till near the end. It is not very well photographed. It serve very well as a filler.

A CHILD'S PLEA" (Eclair), March 5.—A beautifully photographed pic of bitter remorse in a man who had done his one time friend, though l in love, a grave injustice. Things conspired to make it keener till the urer exonerated him before a jury. The acting is very fair; but the y lacks convincing power.

FROM THE FOUR HUNDRED TO THE HERD" (American), March People like pictures in distinguished society settings at least for a change. s Bush, with her remarkable command of facial expression shows in this ure the bright variations in mood of a happy girl and also the experi d woman's sorrow and perplexity. She quarreled with the man she d in the city and married an earl who shortly died. She meets the right again in the West. The picture hasn't the swing and dash of many he "Flying A's"; but it has a good deal of merit. It is very well pic d; but we hesitate to call it a feature.

THE DOUBLE TRAIL" (Nestor), March 6.—See for comments, page March 9, 1912.

IE MILLS OF THE GODS" (Nestor), March 6.—Reviewed on page 876, ch 9, 1912.

BLIGHTED LIVES" (Solax), March 1.—A young man (Mace Green) in great need of a thousand dollars, appeals to his friend who owes that amount. This man, who had been his unsuccessful rival in love, ds him a check and then accuses him of forgery. In a good trial scene, is found guilty and serves in prison clothes. But the villain feels re se and although he marries the girl (Miss Cornwall) he takes care of prisoner's mother. This keeps the prisoner, when he is released, from aking vengeance on his enemy. It is very melodramatic and not very vincing nor effective. The saving grace of the picture is the natural act of Miss Cornwall and of Mr. Greenleaf.

BEAT AT HIS OWN GAME" (Imp), March 2.—A prettily set farce ure, but one that leaves something in its situation still obscure. There is a clever female impersonation in it. Mr. Gumson plays in it a man in love and somewhat jealous. The girl is played by Miss Grace Lewis. The man gets his friend and room mate to impersonate a girl and takes him to call. His sweetheart, however, soon sees through the trick and manages to get one back on the jealous lover. It is amusing. The photographs are a bit foggy.

"THE RIGHT CLUE" (Imp), March 2.—An amusing burlesque of a great "Sherlocko" detective on a safe-robbery case. This part is played by Mr. Daily in a make-up like Burns. His methods amused the audience. The man from whom the money was stolen is played by Mr. Shea and his wife is played by Miss Violet Horner. It is better than the first picture on the reel. The two together will make an acceptable filler.

"THE DUEL" (Reliance), March 2.—A story of the Kentucky mountain people. It depends for its dramatic interest on the characters of two men, one a lawyer, the other a moonshiner of the hills; and the means it uses to bring the situation to its climax is the peculiar duel code of the hills. It is not a very vital subject for a drama and one that is very hard to make effective. Mr. Walthall plays the lawyer. His opponent in the duel is not known to this reviewer, but does very well. Miss Fernley plays the girl over whom the men fight. She is afterward the lawyer's wife. Baby Rosanna plays the lawyer's child whose sudden entrance into the room brings the duel to a close and saves her father's life. Perhaps it will be a feature.

"THE PATH OF GENIUS" (Powers), March 2.—A well-acted, well-conducted, and very interesting picture illustrating the difficulties of a man of genius, a composer of music who finally wins success with the help of a true friend. There is a love story in it also, for this friend falls in love with the composer's daughter (played by Miss Elder); but, even without this, the picture has good heart interest. The one fault with the picture is that neither expression of faces nor the waving of arms conveys any adequate notion of music to us and the picture has a good deal of these. The photographs may have been very good; but the print seen by the reviewer, was nuusually poor, torn and ripped. It is a desirable filler.

"EXTRAVAGANCE" (Thanhouser), March 5.—This picture's first scene is in a back country drygoods store and its heroine is the proprietor's daughter (played by Miss La Badie). She goes to boarding school and comes back with rather extravagant ideas. Her father has to mortgage his store so that she can run an automobile, the wonder of the countryside. It is a case of "keeping up with Lizzie." The daughter has a rude awakening and goes back to simple ways. It is an unusually pleasing picture. It has the right atmosphere and true humor, and it is acted very naturally and well. The picture is wholesome and will serve as a good feature on any occasion, even for Sunday schools. The photographs are good.

"HIS GREAT UNCLE'S SPIRIT" (Thanhouser), March 8.—The hero of this picture is a slight-of-hand magician. A miserly theater manager treated him very meanly. In disguise he gets employment with the old man as secretary and sees to it that he gets messages from his great uncle ordering him to reform. The situation is handled with much skill and carefulness, and the miser is very well acted in a conventional way. The story is entertaining; but the good magician, an obverse of Mephistopholes, isn't at all moments quite convincing. The photographs and all that belongs to the mechanical end of picture-making are very well done. It is a good filler.

"THE BEST MAN WINS" (Majestic), March 5.—In this film we are made acquainted with the Mortons, an athletic family who employs a gymnasium instructor. Miss Morton is courted by both of two room mates. One of these is favored by Father Morton, one by Mother Morton. The girl (Mable Trunnelle) favors the instructor (Hurbert Prior). They get the two suitors fighting with gloves to see which is the better man. While the "mill" is whirling its arms, the girl and the instructor slip away and are married. There is fun in it and the spectators laughed. The acting is good. Most of the scenes are well photographed. It is a good filler.

"NO WEDDING BELLS FOR ME" (Eclair), March 7.—An amusing farce in which a spinster, well favored and still young, in spite of wrinkles, is forced to marry to save her inheritance. A tramp, in comedy make-up, applies at the door for a meal and falls into this lady's clutches. It is he who says, "No wedding bells." He manages to make a negro change places with him and escapes. It gets over very well and will be acceptable to many people; but it borders just a bit on what is vulgar at times. It would not be acceptable in a Sunday school, for instance. It is a better filler than most farces. The photographs are fair.

"A MYSTERY" (Powers), March 9.—A circumstantial evidence picture with a stronger situation than such usually have. The pistol had lain under a microscope. It had exploded and killed a man whom the accused had just a moment before threatened. No one saw the accident and it looked bad for the condemned man; but his innocence is proved in time to have the governor save his life. The picture appeals to one first by its pictorial excellence. It is an episode in a love story; Miss Elder plays the heroine's part and the sets as well as the photographs are commendable. The picture may pass as a feature, but it surely will be acceptable as a first-class filler.

"THE HONOR OF A PUGILIST" (Powers), March 5.—An interesting picture of sporting life. It has a prize-fighter hero and a heroine who disliked fighting and wanted her fiance, the hero, to give up the fight. He couldn't in honor do it at that date. The scenes that show us the newsy, sporting side of the story are very interesting. The fight is a fairly exciting one. But the love story drags back. The picture will make a good feature where such a subject as it shows is wanted. The photographs are good.

"FAR FROM THE BEATEN TRACK" (Imp), March 4.—A picture of the lonely North Woods; but one whose backgrounds are not very suggestive of the wilderness. We have the log cabin, the trapper, his wife and the second man, a belated, winter-bound hunter, and we realize a loneliness that is driving the woman distracted. The outcome of the situation is not very improbable; but it isn't made powerfully convincing. Miss Vivian Prescott, recently with the Biograph Company, plays the woman; Mr. King Bagot plays the husband and Mr. Daily plays the belated hunter. The acting is, as was to be expected, excellent. The photographs are good. It will serve as a fair feature.

Projection Department

Edited by F. H. RICHARDSON.

RESISTANCE PROBLEMS New York City propounds the following: "(a) When I connect a lamp in series with a 25-ampere rheostat, 110 volt D. C., what voltage do I get at the lamp? (b) When and on what voltage would it be necessary to connect two 25 ampere rheostats in multiple, and what voltage would be had at the arc? (c) What size rheostat can I connect in multiple with a lamp on 110 volts? (d) What books contain such information. Would like to buy a book having information to such calculations, definitions, series and multiple connections, etc."

(a) Voltage at D. C. arc varies between 45 and 51 regardless of what resistance you may use. The projection arc will only operate successfully within that range. A fair average for D. C. arc voltage is 48. Owing to the fact that a shorter arc is carried with A. C. the arc voltage drops to about 35. The rest of the voltage is consumed in the rheostat, appearing in the form of heat. That is what the rheostat is for—to reduce the line voltage to arc voltage. (b) Practically the same as with a single rheostat, but you would have a much higher amperage. (c) If by size you mean amperage capacity the size has nothing to do with the matter at all. You must use a rheostat having resistance suitable for 110 volts. If you use one 15 ampere and one 25 ampere rheostat in multiple you would get 15 plus 25 = 40 amperes. (d) The Handbook, for sale by The Moving Picture World, price $1.50 by mail, is the only book I know of giving the class of information you seek, and giving it in understandable form.

WRONG FROM ANY AND EVERY POINT OF VIEW.—From a certain state comes the following letter: "As you will see from my letterhead, I am an operator, and having seen somewhere in the distant past a notice in the Trouble Department of The Moving Picture World in which you stated that you had devoted some of the best years of your life to the labor movement, I am appealing to you as the most likely man that I can imagine to have a thorough understanding of my trouble, which is as follows: I want to join the operator's union, and also the I. A. T. S. E. I have tried a number of times and twice quite recently to become a member of both of these organizations, and in neither case was I successful. I discovered that the operators had organized a little while ago and therefore I wrote to the secretary, stated my case to him and requested admission to their local. To this letter I received a reply, which I will enclose in this letter, which in brief states that they would be glad to admit me. I promptly wrote asking what day I must come down, and such other necessary information as I needed and after waiting for three weeks for an answer, I finally called up on the long distance telephone and received the information that they had got into some trouble over taking in outside men and that they could do nothing for me until they received further information in the matter, and though this is two months ago at least and although he promised to write to me as soon as he heard anything, I have never heard another word from him about the matter one way or the other. Then I happened to meet one of the special organizers for the American Federation of Labor, and in the course of conversation, I presented my case to him and learned that he had just got through organizing the I. A. T. S. E. Local at ———. He wrote to the secretary at ——— and received a reply, which he showed to me, in which the secretary, Mr. ———, stated that if I was eligible that they would be glad to have me in with them. Mr. ——— (the organizer before mentioned) assured me that I was eligible, and as ——— was the nearest local, that this was the place that I would have to join. Well, to make a long story short, the upshot of it all was that Mr. ——— wrote to me telling me that they could not take me in because I was not eligible to their local, and quoted one of the articles from their constitution, which certainly stated that 'All locals must confine themselves to their own citizens,' or words to that effect.

"Now Mr. Richardson, I don't know just where I am at in the matter, but I do know that if there is any way of getting into either of these unions, particularly the stage hands'. I want to get there and I know that there is a way because I have known of a number of men who were placed in just the same position as I am that DID get in, but I never thought to ask them how they did it. I am not going into these towns looking for work or to keep any of their own boys out of a job. I have got a good job where I am now and have had this position for more than four years and can, as far as I know, have it four more years if I want it, or at least the boss says so, which is all the assurance that I want. I have had eight years' experience in the business, some on the road and some in houses; about two years on the road and about six in houses, but several times I have had a first-class position offered to me that would have paid me $35 a week, but which I had to refuse because I did not have an Alliance card, and most of these were with tricks like Hanlon's Fantasma, Forty-Five Minutes from Broadway, and others of like nature. I have put in a whole lot of hard work studying and since I have been in this town, I have put in a couple of years on the line for the City Electric Light plant (I have nothing to do during the day, so put my time to the best advantage both educationally and financially) and this, combined with my theatrical experience and a whole lot of hard work with a course in the International Correspondence Schools, thereby combining the practical with the theoretical, has made me feel that I am not getting a fair show in this little burg. I am making good money, to be sure, but then I will not always be able to work as I do now, and for this reason I want a card in the above-mentioned organizations, so that I can get out where there is a chance for a man to prove that he has ability and where I can get a chance to reap some benefit of what I have worked so long to try and learn. Am I entitled to admission, providing I can pass their examinations, or, in other words, have they got to take me in if I am competent, or must I either and work in one of their houses as a grip for 50 cents for the period six months, or else stay in the small towns for the rest of my life. I f fully competent to pass their examinations, and there are no personal jections to me that I am aware of. I am afraid that I have written a v long-winded letter which will take up a lot of your valuable time, but had to do so in order to make the matter clear to you and so that you wo understand my position. Projection in most of the places round the Mid West is pretty poor and the lack of electrical knowledge is positively ast ishing in most of the operators, who, by the way, kid me a good deal ab my electrical library, but I notice just the same that that same electri library has saved me many an hour's worry and trouble and incidenta has helped some of the sneerers out at times as well."

You will note that I have carefully concealed the location of this writ The letter was personal, not for publication and the man paid for my vice personally. However, the matter demands the attention of the craft large, hence, concealing the location, I spread it before our readers.

Both as an individual and a member of the I. A. T. S. E. I am decide opposed to operators being excluded from the organization through the eration of a law made by stage hands, for stage hands and in no w suitable for operators. The law which keeps the Brother out (I s "Brother," since by intention he is) is one prohibiting the introduction a member except he be a resident of that particular city for six months. this law is to be applied to operators then it means that thousands worthy, capable men will be absolutely excluded, since they are located small cities and towns where no local exists, or can exist. This law m or may not be just, as applied to stage hands. I do not know. It may may not be necessary as applied to stage hands. I do not know; but I know that it is neither necessary nor just as applied to the operator. take the stand that any man who is a competent, capable operator, able prove that fact and the further fact that he is a man of good characte is entitled to admission to the organization. More than this, I take the p sition that it is an outrage to keep him out. Unionism stands for justi as between man and man, as I have pointed out before. Has any man t nerve to stand up and say that it is justice to keep a capable man of go character out of the organization simply because he does not happen reside in one certain locality? It must not be expected that he can expe to go to a strange city, join the union and immediately displace a hon man, but that matter is easy of regulation by local law.

Now Brothers, what the stage hands do, so far as it applies solely them and their business, is none of our affair; but when it comes to applyi an exclusion law affecting probably not less than 5,000 small-town operato we most certainly have the right to speak our little piece and be listene to. In my judgment, this matter should be taken before the next co vention and the repeal of the law in question, insofar as it applies to o erators, should be unanimously demanded by all locals.

I do not profess to be infallible, however. I have expressed my ow individual opinion. I would like to hear from either individuals or loc unions on this matter. It is an open matter. There is no organizatio secret involved and it may be freely discussed. I do not believe the I. T. S. E. is doing any intentional wrong in the enforcement of the la under discussion. It is simply one of the general laws of the order, passe before the I. A. T. S. E. took jurisdiction over operators, and intended apply to stage hands. Its effect when applied to moving picture oper tors has probably never been considered. I am of the opinion that th general president, whom I believe to be a fair man, would favor an a justment of this matter in a way to fit the condition of the operator. would like to gather the general sentiment of local unions on this matte and to that end ask that discussion be had in the various unions and th result forwarded to me. It will be treated as strictly confidential. If an large number of unions seem to favor the non-application of the law i question to operators, I will, after asking their consent by mail, take th matter up with the general president and see what can be done in the ma ter. Possibly nothing can be done immediately but at least we can get i ready for the next convention. Incidentally, let it be known that union are welcome to use these columns for general discussions of such matter as this at any time.

As a rule, when convention time approaches the lack of a general mean of communication between all the unions operates to prevent concentrate effort to secure needed legislation. Through this Department all unions ar reached and by its use much good could be accomplished, it seems to me.

SALT BRINE.—Gregory, Baltimore, replies: "In answer to your inquiry I use 'Electra' carbons, soft core. I have found that carbons burning to point is due to either too much amperage or voltage and think that if part asking for information would look into the resistance of his circuit he woul find his trouble. I have had many favorable reports from operators an managers in towns who have adopted my system."

It occurs to me that the strength of the brine will have considerable do with the matter. Just strong enough to float an egg, is what Brothe Gregory uses. I think this matter might be tried out a little further perhaps

LENS TROUBLE.—Nicholasville, Ky., writes: "I notice in the projec tion department of March 2nd issue in answer to the letter from Galveston Tex., you say that convex side of all the lenses of the projection len should be toward the screen. I have a Bausch & Lomb projection lens. I took the combinations out of the mount to clean the lens, but could not get a picture fit to look at with all of the convex sides of the lens facing the screen. The lens has three separate lenses to go in the mount, viz.: ne with a flat side and a convex side, one with a deep concave side and e with both sides convex, but one side a little more than the other. the only way that I could get the lens to put up any kind of a at all was to put them in like this, viz.: the lens with the flat and conv side I put the convex side facing the lamp house. The lens with the ep concave side I put the concave side facing the screen and the conv side facing the lamp house, and the lens with both sides convex I put the side that was less convex facing the screen and the side that was ost convex facing the lamp house. But my picture does not suit t, because the picture is out of focus for about 6 inches in the per corner for about 3 feet down. When I get it in focus in the left nd corner the same trouble is in the lower right hand corner, the rest my picture is as clear as a bell. Now I kindly ask you to inform ough the Moving Picture World, what the trouble is. I throw my 60 feet and get a picture 16 ft. by 12 ft. Use volts D. C."

Y lenses should go in as follows: at the rear, facing the lamp house be the double convex lens, with the heavy convex (bulge) towards een. Next comes the dividing ring and then the concavo-convex ith its convex towards the screen. At the other end is one lens, is, in fact, two lenses cemented together. This should be mounted s convex toward the screen. The convex side of all lenses should ard the screen, just as I said before. It is possible you have left e spacing ring between the two back lenses. That you can get ossible results with the back combination reversed (both of them) d not have believed possible. If they don't give results in the posi- have indicated then there is something wrong with the lens.

KTUCKY (name of city suppressed by request), writes: "Have a trouble I would like you to help with, viz., wrong condensers. My is 11 x 8¼ feet, throw 60 feet. I think the m. p. lenses are F. Powers 6 machine; Edison lamp; condensers 13 inches from e plate. Ghosts show in picture. Their position is altered by the lamp-house. As it is, fairly good results are obtained. Suits anager, who knows a good picture when he sees one, but it suit me. I would be obliged if you will suggest a combination densers which will give better results."

7½ inch condensing lenses ought to fit your case. Your projection about 5 inches e. f. It is possible the trouble is due to spherical tion. Many condensing lenses, especially the cheaper ones, contain ult to excess. It is also possible your carbon set is at fault. You hosts." Possibly you are using A. C. and attempting to make use h craters, thus bucking the double spot proposition. It is also e that you are using D. C. and have your lamp angled too much, shadow of lower carbon tip.

MTOR DRIVE DEVICE.—Galveston, Texas, writes: "This is my first ution, and I trust it will dodge the waste basket. I enclose sketch contrivance which may be of benefit to brothers contemplating using mor drive. The sketch is self explanatory. Points in its favor are: (1) ie absolute control of speed so necessary to good projection. (2) Simplicity of operation. (3) Small expense in making. (4) Takes up little room.

"noticed in a recent issue a brother had some trouble in removing copper spring or washer from his Edison automatic fire shutter. Attached d sketch of method of removal. Sketch applies to side lift Type B shutt. Sketch shows copper spring as it would appear were it possible k into the shutter from the gate side. A is the collar which holds shutter blade to hub of friction device. It is a tight fit and must be re- by prying up with some sharp instrument. The copper spring, or , is placed between the shutter blade, which locks on three small casting of gate, and the friction disc which raises the shutter, to keep them from generating, by suction, a partial vacuum, as the moving part passes over the stationary blade at high speed."

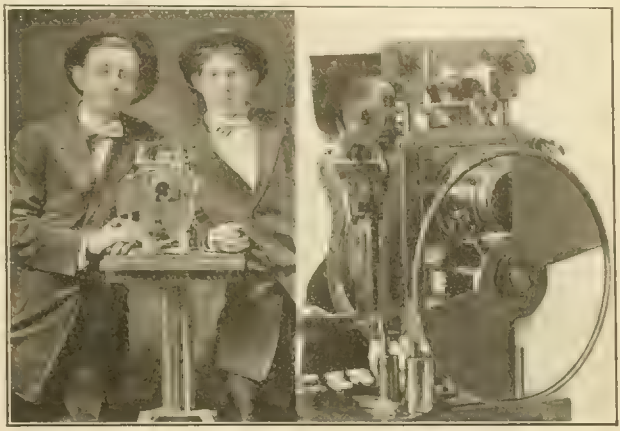
Letters of this kind dodge the waste basket every time, Galveston. That motor drive scheme looks good to me. Of course the shafts of the two pulleys would have to be in perfect alignment. In this connection remark that a motor ought never to be belted to the flywheel of a machine. It is very bad practice. If you have a machine belted to the flywheel, gentlemen, change it at once, is my advice. As to the copper It merely illustrates the fact that there are none of us so smart e know it all. I did not even know the thing was in there. I tly proceeded to dissect the one on my machine and learned some- The ring, A, is a brass washer. I pried mine off with the point eavy knife. We are obliged to you, Galveston.

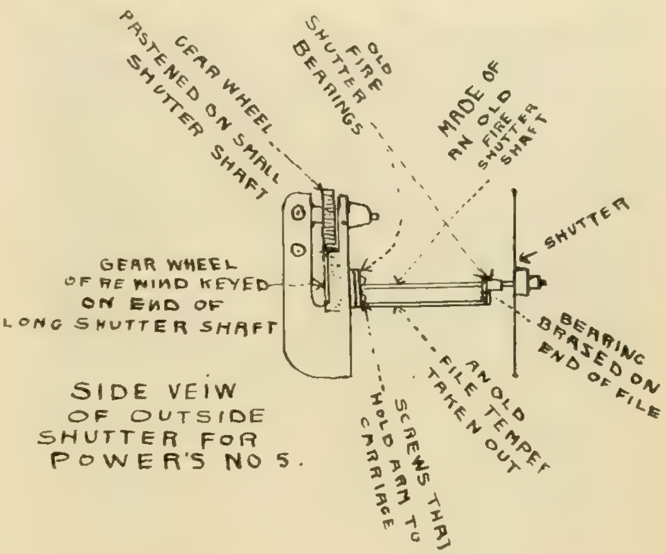
RISTANCE QUESTION.—Portland, Ore., writes: "Kindly settle the ing question: Does or does not the rheostat cut down the voltage connected up in a moving picture lamp circuit? Some of the boys it has no effect on the voltage, while others claim it governs both voltage and amperes. We are, therefore, leaving it to you."

A rheostat reduces the voltage from line pressure to arc voltage. That t it is for. Perhaps I am myself somewhat to blame for the argu- ment as I did not deal with that phase of the proposition in the handbook. My [illegible] I see that such a construction could be put on it, i. e., that the rheostat only governs amperage. It does this by reducing voltage.

OUTSIDE SHUTTER.—Sapulpa, Okla., writes: "Enclosed find photos of Powers Five with outside shutter attachment.

"Don't think we 'crank' in Oklahoma. Not so. We let 'George' do it—George being the motor. You will notice groove in flywheel in one of the views. [illegible] around the machine with me. In one of the views my assistant is also seen. Sketch shows method of attaching the shutter."





GEAR WHEEL FASTENED ON SMALL SHUTTER SHAFT
OLD FIRE SHUTTER BEARINGS
MADE OF AN OLD FIRE SHUTTER SHAFT SHUTTER
GEAR WHEEL OF REWIND KEYED ON END OF LONG SHUTTER SHAFT BEARING BRASED ON END OF FILE
AN OLD FILE TEMPER TAKEN OUT
SCREWS THAT HOLD ARM TO CARRIAGE

SIDE VEIW OF OUTSIDE SHUTTER FOR POWER'S NO 5.

The shutter attachment is ingenious. Seems to be a well-done job. You know where I stand on the motor question. If you stay right there beside the machine, where you belong, well and good. If not—that is something else again. The average operator does not, and that's the trouble with the motor proposition. Yet, I note the flywheel groove, and right there you make a mistake. DON'T belt to your flywheel! You are very much wrong there. The view showing operating clothes I have not room for, but that display of white pants looks pretty nifty, all right.

SIZE OF PICTURE.—Middlebury, Vt., writes: "I read the Department with much profit and pleasure. Will you kindly advise me as to what is the best size of picture for a hall 36 x 58 feet by 14 feet 6-inch ceiling. Level floor. Seats about 180. 52 feet 8-inches to center of lens tube? What is best size and focus stereopticon and moving picture lens? Want to show best picture possible. Have Powers' Six and Inductor."

You will not have much range of choice. The picture must clear the heads of the audience when seated in front row of chairs. Proceed as follows: Seat a tall man in a chair where front row is or will be Have some one stand by front wall and hold his hand in such position that when you sight from lens position to hand you will clear the head of the person seated, with something to space. Then measure up on the wall from the hand to ceiling. This will give you the greatest possible depth of picture you can have without interference in the light. Of course, when one of the audience down in front arises to pass out, or comes in, there will be interference, but unless you run a very small picture this cannot be helped. After measuring reduce to inches, divide by three and multiply by four, which will give the width of the picture in inches. Suppose it is nine feet from hand to ceiling. This being even division you need not reduce to inches. 9 divided by 3 = 3 which multiplied by 4 = 12. You would, therefore, have a picture 9 x 12 feet. To find equivalent focus of required lenses measure exact width of your machine aperture with an inside calliper. Multiply the throw, in feet (calling it 53 feet), by aperture measurement in fraction of an inch, and divide by width of picture, in feet. This gives you equivalent focus of required projection lens. For stereo lens do exactly the same, except that you use 3 for width of aperture, that being stage slide mat width. The largest picture you can get without interference will not be too large. Set your machine as high as you can. In ordering lens be sure to specify "equivalent focus," otherwise if you ordered a 5-inch lens they might send 5-inch back focus.

WANTS LIGHT PORTABLE.—Mr. Arthur Close, proprietor Arthur Close's Picture Plays, whose permanent address is Thirty-seventh and Nebraska Avenue, Marion, Ind., wants to secure a portable electric light outfit suitable to be mounted on a wagon. Is not looking for the cheapest possible outfit, but the lightest consistent with efficiency, as roads are none too good where he travels. Has asked my advice, but I do not feel competent to pass judgment in this matter. I, therefore, ask such of our readers as have definite information to supply same to Brother Close. He has been running with gas for six and one-half years. Says the Projection Department is his Hoyle, and has The World on file as far back as my Plain Talks to Managers and Operators. Friend Close is, I am convinced, a practical man and a hustler. I shall take it as a personal favor if those who can will help him by advice along the lines indicated.

QUESTIONS.—Newark, N. J., asks: "(1) Is it allowed to use stranded No. 6 rubber-covered wires for mains? If not, why not? (2) If there is a ground on one carbon arm of the lamp would it cause a fuse to blow? (3) If both arms be grounded the lamp would not light, of course; would that cause fuse to blow? (4) If I pull about 40 amperes through a transformer how much would I pull from the mains? (5) What fuses would you use in operating room and what size to protect meter?"

(1) I know of no rule against using No. 6 stranded, rubber-covered wires for feeders. (2) If the ground be heavy enough it might, assuming that a ground exists on the other wire somewhere. (3) It might or might not. If the ground had considerably less resistance than the arc it probably would, since it would increase the current flow. (4) A. C. arc voltage is approximately 35. You are, therefore, using 40 amperes at the arc at 35 volts. 35 x 40 = 1400 watts. Line voltage you have not given, but assuming it to be 110 you would be pulling 1,400 divided by 110 = 13 amperes (about) from the line. If line voltage is 220 you would only be using 1,400 divided by 220 = 6 amperes. (5) I prefer link fuses for projection circuits. Size to protect meter would depend on capacity of meter.

TROUBLE WITH FOCUS.—Attica, Ind., writes: "Am in trouble again. As stated some months ago my picture is out of focus on one side—either side, according to adjustment. Have located the trouble but cannot eliminate it. It lies in the alignment of the lamphouse and head. Have proven this by setting head loose on the baseboard and moving it about. Can thus throw picture out of focus on first one side and then the other, but I cannot get a perfect focus all over. How can I tell when I have the lamp, condensers, aperture and lens all in line? I think you told us this once, but cannot seem to locate it."

You will find instructions for lining on page 119, July 22, 1911 issue, together with illustration of the process. Think I republished it later also. If you haven't it order the back number. I believe, however, you can remedy the condition otherwise. Don't know what machine you have. If a Powers Six, loosen the screws holding lens ring and move the ring to one side or the other. First, however, look through the aperture at back end of lens and see if it appears to be to one side. If some other make of machine, or if you cannot move lens ring far enough, take off front-plate and file the screw holes so that plate can be moved until lens is square with opening. I may be wrong in assuming this to be the trouble, but it's worth looking into anyhow.

SOAKING CARBONS.—Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "In the February 10th issue you ask the brothers to try out and report on Mr. Geo. T. Gregory's stunt of soaking carbons in a salt water brine for two or three days, so here goes. I am using 60 cycle A. C., 110 volts, same as Mr. Gregory. Have 12-foot picture. I soaked enough carbons for a week's use for three days and allowed them to dry thoroughly; then gave them a thorough test for a week with this result: On 20 amperes there was absolutely not enough light to show a passable picture. Light instead of being white was a sort of light pink color and did not seem to be as strong as when ordinary carbons are used at this amperage. Certainly it was not as white. So I gave up the attempt to get a picture on 20 amperes, as Mr. Gregory claims to do. With 40 amperes, which is what I ordinarily use, and which I used during the week's test, the light was only very nearly as bright as with ordinary carbons. It had the same sort of light pink color, though not as bad as with 20 amperes. I found I could carry a longer arc with the soaked carbons but at irregular intervals the carbons would flame about two seconds then burn normally, this without regard to length of arc. It was present constantly during the week's test. At times carbons would burn for four or five minutes without flaming, then again it would present itself at intervals of a minute or two. This flaming was hardly noticeable on the screen and did not seem to affect the spot much, except to show around its outside edge. Seen through the lamphouse peekhole the flame seemed an inch or so in length and appeared as a sort of gas flame. In conclusion will say I could not get as good a light with soaked carbons, even at 40 amperes, as with ordinary carbons, and am inclined to think Brother Gregory is somewhat of a practical joker or else there is a fly in the ointment somewhere. Would like Brother Gregory to give us the full dope. Used Bro[illegible] in cored carbons."

I am obliged to you for making the test and reporting on same, Cleveland. No, I don't believe Brother Gregory was joking. You will have noted that one other correspondent made the test, using Electra carbons, if I rightly remember, and reported the light to be whiter but that the carbons needled. It is possible that this thing won't work at all; it is also possible that there may be a different effect with different makes of carbon, due to difference in binder. There would be a chemical effect, of course, and with different binder this might vary widely. Frankly, I am puzzled myself. Certainly Friend Gregory had a phenomenal light for A. C., and from the appearance of the arc the amperage was not at all high, though I doubted the 20 ampere part, and told him so personally. Will Brother Gregory come across with name of his carbons and any further information he can give? It is up to you Friend G.

LIGHT WAVERS.—Arbuckle, Calif., writes: "My light seems to come and go. In other words the arc is not steady. Do you think the fault lies in the transformer or in the lamp. Attached find check for handbook."

Your description of the effect is too vague for me to attempt anyth even resembling an opinion. What voltage and amperage are you usi What kind of transformer? How often does the effect occur? How h you got your carbons set? As a starter, however, begin at main operat room cutout and take all wire connections apart and clean the conta thoroughly. Be sure your transformer switch, if it has one, is making g electrical contact. Clean out the inside of your carbon jaws so that carb make good electrical contact. Set your carbons as recommended on pa 89-90 of the handbook. Be sure your lampheads are not burned ba inside the lamphouse. Remove the burned part if they are.

DRIVING OUT PIN.—New York City writes: "Have reeived much uable information from the Department before, and now that I am trouble I will have to call on 'Father' for help. Have Powers 5 and wan to drive out taper pin which holds cam to its shaft. I hammered as h as I dared for some time but it would not budge. What should I What is meant by a 'half size' lens?"

You must have tried to drive it the wrong way. Beside the la end of the pin there is, or should be, a file mark. The pin should come readily if driven the right way. If you have further trouble why take it down to the Powers's factory, No. 90 Gold Street? They remove it for you without charge. A half size lens is one of considera larger diameter than the quarter size, which latter is the small stereo l ordinarily furnished with machine outfits. "Quarter size" and "Half si refers to diameter of lens.

LENS TROUBLE.—La Grande, Ore., writes: "We have three sho here and they are engaged in a scrap just now. We are having a lit trouble with our lens. Are using a Darlot 125 MM. E. F., and it is out focus on one side. Also have a Pathe 75 MM. (not E. F.) lens and it worse than the other. Machine is Edison Exhibition Model. Use two No condensers. Have tried two 6½, two 7½, one 6½ and one 7½, one 6 and one 7 and one 7 and one 7½ but without effect. The lenses are in li all right. Would like to make suggestion as to the new model Edison lan To do away with carbons burning a crater on one side. When out of li remove small set screw on rear of upper carbon holder base (where it faste to the rack) and put in a small rod, threaded of course, so it will work t same as a screw. If the carbons get out of line, the upper one can th be moved sidewise, thus lining them, by loosening the screw rod."

The rod scheme is all right, and the suggestion is a good one, but have it work it would be necessary to cut a slot in back of lamphou and extend the rod outside. The screw, the brother refers to, is the o which clamps the upper carbon-arm to the top of the rack-bar; not t one in end of back-bar but the one on back side. As to the lens, t trouble does not lie in the condensers—that is, their focal length, at lea While I don't exactly see how it could be with that make of machine, s I am of the opinion that your lens sets out of center with the apertu It is also possible that there is something wrong with the lenses the selves. Be sure the lenses are tight in their individual mounts—those each end, I mean, and that the combinations have not been screwed in the barrel with the threads crossed, thus throwing the two combinatio out of square with each other. Also be sure there is not a faint fing mark on inside of one of the lenses of the combination. I assume that t machine is not set to one side of the screen. If so, and the angle is co siderable, or the throw short, that would, of course, account for it. I kn you said the lenses were in line but possibly you are in error. If t machine is central with screen and lenses in line and in perfect conditi (perfectly clean, etc.) then such an effect would hardly be possible. Ta the ring which holds the lens off the machine and, while running a fil hold the lens in the hole with your hand and move it from side to side a see if the focus is not brought sharp. That scrapping is mighty bad polic

????????—Harrisburg, Pa., writes: "I have something which will sta the ball rolling in the camp of the Doubting Thomases. Here it is a just as soon as I can form a company to manufacture I will have deposit $5,000 as a forfeit if my claims are not made good. Present projecti lamps consume about four horse power. I have invented one which w use about one-third that power, or possibly less, as I will use for resi ance three or four 16 c. p. lamps in series and produce from 300 to 4 more c. p. than any other lamp on the market to-day; also the carbo will last about 90 to 100 times as long as at present. I have made i portant changes in the lamp itself which have long been needed. Several these have been suggested by yourself in various articles you have wr ten. Thanks for the same, Brother Richardson. The man owning the hou where I am in charge of the operating room has purchased adjoini property and will enlarge the theater to a capacity of 800. We have tw of the latest Powers Sixes; throw is 50 feet. Will install a circular scre (concave screen I suppose you mean, Ed.); orchestra, retiring rooms a every up-to-date convenience which tends to add to comfort of our patro The owner is Mr. Lenny. It is located at No. 13 South 13th St., and is winner all the time. I have two assistants or apprentices, with more the waiting list. Would be pleased to meet and welcome visiting ope tors. I hope to call and see you next summer."

Will be pleased to see you. Now look here, Brother, I'm skeptical abo that lamp stunt. In fact, I reside right in the exact geographical middle that D. T. camp you spoke of. Mind you, I don't say you can't do what y claim. I have seen too many marvelous things in 45 years of life to di pute the possibility of anything, but ——. In the first place you say pre ent lamps consume about 4 h. p. Horsepower is watts divided by 746. Som require more than 4 h. p. and some much less. A 40 ampere A. C. a through an economizer uses only about 2 h. p. A 40 ampere D. C. through a rheostat consumes nearly 6 h. p. A gain of 300 to 400 c would not amount to very much, but it would be a gain nevertheless; b I don't see how you can figure such things when, so far as I know, t real, effective c. p. of a projection lamp has never been authoritatively giv by any one. Another thing: you say you will use three or four 16 c. lamps in series for resistance. Either you don't mean that the way it rea or you are peacefully dreaming. You would not get enough curre through three or four 16 c. p. lamps in series—assuming them to be lam designed for the voltage to be used, to light a decent, self-respecting matc much less deliver projection light. Well, Harrisburg, it is up to you. Sho us. We are from that Grand Old State just south of Iowa.

C. ECONOMIZER.—In am in receipt, in response to my request, of a letter from the Silk City Amusement Company, Paterson, N. J., highly commending the D. C. economizer (motor-generator set) sold by Mr. J. H. Hallberg, of this city. Says that he is on 220 volt lines and bills are 70 per cent. less than when using rheostatic resistance. Says light is better and repairs trifling. Has had no trouble of any kind with the machines. Has three sets in operation. Says the company would not take $1,000 apiece for them if more could not be secured. Offers to show them in operation to any one who cares to call.

While I cannot accept one letter, however strong, as final, I have reason to believe these sets are good. The main point is can the operator of average ability handle them successfully? This point I want cleared up. Mr. Hallberg claims an efficiency of about 80 per cent. Personally, I am inclined to believe he is a little high on his estimate. I would consider an efficiency of 70 per cent. as very good for such a set. Certain it is that those obliged to hook up to 220 D. C. should install a motor-generator set. The waste through rheostats is enormous where such voltage is used. On 110 volts much depends on the matter of efficiency. If Mr. Hallberg can substantiate his claim of 80 per cent. and the set can be handled by the average operator successfully, the sets would have a wide field indeed. The day of the rheostat is passing, and it ought to pass, too. As to A. C., it is time that its use for projection be abandoned. The Mercury Arc Rectifier has high efficiency and is a success. If motor-generator sets of equal efficiency and easily handled can be had, they, too, would be most excellent. Personally, I do not care what it is or who makes it or who sells it. It is the efficient, effective, easily handled and generally satisfactory device for producing satisfactory projection light, without the high ratio of loss present in the rheostat, I am looking for. Produce the goods, gentlemen, prove beyond question that they ARE the goods, and they will have my hearty indorsement and approval instanter. Until that is done I would not recommend them were my own father the manufacturer or seller.

LIGHT TROUBLE.—Clarksville, Texas, writes: "We are using an Edison and Powers Six which have just been installed. Have been unable to get a good light since. 110 volt A. C., 40 amperes, 72 ft. throw, Edison No. 2 lens, 5/8 Electra cored carbons, picture 16 ft. Screen has a bright center, then a ring of blue and a light brown. By moving lamphouse and arc closer to lens the carbons show on the screen. Have tried every adjustment I know but it doesn't help much. What size condensers should I use? The picture jumps up and down and sidewise. What is cause?

Whew! Trouble seems to be your first name. Get two 6½ and two 7½ condensers and try them in different combinations. Your light trouble must be there. That carbons-show-on-the-screen has been sprung on me before, but in all my experience I have never been able to get carbons to show on the screen through a projection lens system. Will some Brother who has had this experience set it forth, together with its cause? As to the jump. If the trouble is on the Powers machine, referring to January 6 issue, on the intermittent sprocket shaft at the inner end of bushing 670, plate 2, you will find a collar. It is between the sprocket and bushing and against the bushing. Loosen the screw holding same and with a screwdriver pry the collar tight against the bushing, using edge of sprocket for a pry. You thus shove the collar one way, the shaft the other and take the end motion out of the shaft. Hold collar over while you tighten the screw again. It is probably end motion in this shaft, hence also in intermittent sprocket, which causes film to move sidewise. The same thing is accomplished on the Edison by loosening the left hand intermittent sprocket shaft bushing and shoving it in a little. As to the jump up and down you have not described it sufficiently so that I can form an opinion. If there is any dirt on face of intermittent sprocket that is probably the cause. If not then the sprocket may not be true or maybe its teeth are badly worn, or the shaft sprung. If the jump is regular, four times to every turn of the crank, it is probable that the sprocket is defective—out of round, or else the shaft is sprung. It is also possible that your tension springs are too loose. The Powers tension is tightened by means of a screw in center of the spring plate just below the aperture. The Edison by bowing the springs out with a screwdriver. Stick it under the springs and pull out while running it up and down.

CONDENSERS.—Jersey City, N. J., asks: "(1) Why does a cracked condenser show in stereo and not in M. P.? (2) Have Power's 6, A. C. through inductor, 45 amperes at arc, picture 14 ft., throw 80 ft. What focal length condensers would you consider correct? Have used two 7½ and one 7½ and one 6½ but cannot get blue ghost out of center without sacrificing corners. Is not caused by lower carbon tip."

(1) Because focal plane is close to condenser with the stereo while it is a considerable distance away with M. P. Focal plane is the object being projected. (2) You have a 5½ inch lens, and two 7½ condensers should fill the bill. Trouble is possibly due to spherical aberration. Try another pair of condensers. Possibly you have very cheap lenses, some of which have this defect in excessive degree. Suppose, of course, you have tried moving lamphouse back.

PATHE MACHINE INSTRUCTIONS.—Ft. Wayne, Ind., asks if I am going to give detailed, photographic instructions on the Pathe machine, like has already run in the Department.

That matter, Ft. Wayne, is up to Pathe Freres. They can have it if they want it but so far they haven't made their wishes known, and I've got all I can comfortable attend to without looking for more work.

PORTABLE LIGHT PLANT.—Blountville, Tenn., writes: "Have read part of Handbook forty times. Wish to equip traveling show with electric light plant. Want smallest outfit it is possible to use. Have corresponded with Standard Electric Co., but their information is more confusing than enlightening. Some recommend a 5 K-W. generator; others a 2 K-W. Machine would always be close to generator and throw never more than [illegible] feet."

I am afraid you still need to read parts of the Handbook several times. On page 104 you will learn that it is not the throw but size of picture that is of importance. K-W. at arc voltage is the only thing which counts. Therefore it will be well to get a generator of not more than 70 volts. 25 amperes at 70 volts is 25 × 70 = 1,750 watts. If you propose to use the machine for projection light only, a 2 K-W. 70 volt D. C. generator will answer, since you will probably throw a small picture and can get along with 20 amperes, using ½ cored carbon above and 3/8 or 7-16 solid below. 20 amperes will give you a good picture 10 feet wide, though not a brilliant one, of course. However, it will be far, far better than gas. If you get a 110 volt machine, 25 amperes would then require a 3 K-W. generator, since 25 × 110 = 2,750 watts, the difference being consumed in the rheostat. Some energy would be consumed in the rheostat with a 70 volt dynamo, but if you go much below that in voltage you will probably have trouble handling the light. Some have run without any resistance at all but that I cannot recommend, unless you get a dynamo built especially for that purpose.

WESTERN PICTURES.—Anadarko, Okla., writes: "Attached find photo of our front. This is a town of about 3,500 people, uneducated as to pictures until we opened our house. There are now two theatres, both using licensed films. I would like to tell those who know so much of and about the over-production of Western pictures that we have 3,000 Kiowa and Apache Indians (we have a number of Apaches and Indians here in New York, but they're of a different breed. Ed.) to cater to, along with the general run of Western people residing here. Western people, as a rule, like the Western and Indian pictures much better than those of deeper vein. But, as picture of front will show, they are not adverse to something of the highbrow order also. Front shows posters of Cinderella, Dante's 'Inferno' and Foul Play. Have lately noticed a good deal of adverse comment as to various film exchanges, but I, for one, wish to say a good word for the Western Film Company Exchange of Oklahoma City. They certainly are to be commended for their carefulness and thoroughness in inspection. We are using 30 to 60-day service, and I have not seen a misframe or really bad place in any of their films within the past two months. To say to you that I like the Projection Department would be a waste of ink. If a person is interested in projection and the troubles connected therewith he would certainly be a queer duck not to appreciate your efforts. Some of the correspondents seem to have the idea that you should be superhuman in your endeavors to answer and explain some of their queries. A good many troubles are anticipated by some correspondent, and his explanation helps keep some one else out of hot water. Should you reproduce the picture, what is the cut worth? What line cuts do you make of your picture you have in the World?"

As to the Western pictures: I have lived in the West many years and the thing that gets my personal, individual goat is the chaps on the cowboys, even on the hottest Summer days. In real cowboy life chaps are seldom seen, except when range riding in cold or bad weather or in desert work to protect from thorns. You speak of the Editor's troubles. My dear boy you should see some of the letters as they really are. I really believe I have developed a species of second sight in divining the real thought in the mind of the writers; also I believe I could now decipher Sanskrit or even Chinese, if I had to. As to being busy, I am certainly that, and then some. By the way, if some of my friends would like to see what I can do in story writing they will find a serial story by Yours Truly beginning in March 2 Munsey's Cavalier. I collaborated with a young lady, but the story and plot is all my own. In Munsey's Railway Men's Magazine for May will be one of my short stories, also in June. The cut is worth $1.25 postpaid. Don't understand what you mean by last question. Glad to hear of the good work of Oklahoma City Exchange.

FROM FRISCO.—From San Francisco comes a friendly letter to the Editor in which the writer comments on the World by saying "Some paper. I devour it every week." Also speaks highly of the Simplex machine. Says everything is moving nicely in Frisco but that it is no place for operators to go. Says "Of course we do all we can for those who come, but chances for steady positions are few." The writer was selected to present Dante's "Inferno" over California with Mr. Harry Scott, of the Monopol Film Company. Used a Simplex and got splendid results. Says he is after all the road jobs available at $35 per and expenses. Is now running an old type machine and getting good results. Wants a modern mechanism but manager is so well satisfied with present projection that he says it's good enough. Theatre seats 2,700, runs six reels and six vaudeville acts. S. R. O. sign out every night. Throws a 21-foot picture at 110 feet with 35 amperes through a "Stupefier" as one of the Frisco managers dubbed the Rectifier. Is well pleased with fine work of producers and looks for prosperity for the picture business.

My brother, if you can give a really good projection with 35 amperes on a picture having about 330 square feet of surface, using an ordinary screen, with a dozen house lights on at that, you certainly are entitled to a medal. The manager surely ought to give you a modern mechanism. Doing the business he is, there is no excuse for anything but the best possible results.

MANAGERS' CONTRACTS.—Will such unions as have contracts with managers kindly send in AT ONCE one of the blank contracts? I have had several calls from the younger unions for such blanks. I would very much appreciate an early compliance with this request.

Manufacturers Advance Notes

"THE PRICE OF BIG BOB'S SILENCE" (Vitagraph).

A portrayal of rugged Western life by the California Vitagraph Company. This picture is notable for the acting of its two principals, Mr. Thornby as "Big Bob," the outlaw, and Mrs. Turner, mother of Florence Turner, who plays the part of Bob's mother. There is a pathetic touch to the picture that is well brought out, showing as it does the tender regard of an outlaw for his mother. The make-up of Mr. Thornby as a Western bandit is a work of art. He looks and acts the part to perfection. There is a price upon Bob's head. He is wanted for holding up stage coaches. For some years his mother has lost track of him, but her absent boy is always in her thoughts. She keeps his picture always within her sight, and in other ways expresses her deep love for her son, never realizing that he is an outlaw and a bandit.

Her physician advises her to go higher into the mountains for the betterment of her health. The old lady takes the stage coach and begins the journey. On the way the coach is held up by the bandit, who recognizes his mother. He dares not recognize her openly and allows her to proceed with her scanty savings. But somehow his identity is discovered and the sheriff makes good use of the situation.

Scene from "The Price of Big Bob's Silence" (Vitagraph).

Big Bob, knowing that his identity has been found out, crosses the Mexican border for safety. There he receives a letter from the sheriff saying that if he does not come back and surrender that his career as an outlaw will be made known to his good, old mother. Bob, during his life, had been wild and improvident, but he had too kind a heart to allow his mother to suffer on account of his erring ways. He, therefore, resolved to go back and hand himself up to the authorities. He was placed in irons to await consequences. The reward offered for the outlaw was given to his mother by the sheriff, who told her that it had been sent her by her son, and the good old lady went on her way in blissful ignorance, with blessings on her lips for the son who had been so good to her.

The picture is human in the extreme and will surely make a deep impression on all hearts. The acting of Mrs. Turner in this part is exquisite and lifts the picture out of the commonplace almost to the sublime.

"MRS. 'ENRY 'AWKINS" (Vitagraph).

The costermonger is a character that has not been overplayed in moving pictures. There is something about costermongers that is always interesting and the portrayal of them anywhere, if at all well done, usually succeeds in being highly entertaining. "Mrs. 'Enry 'Awkins" is a picture of coster life. The title is borrowed from one of Albert Chevalier's well-known coster songs, but the story of the picture has very little in common with the song lyrics. It tells of the love of two costermongers for the daughter of an old retired coster, who has laid by some money. One of the costers is something of a pugilist and a very formidable rival to the other, who earns his living in the coster way by selling vegetables from a donkey cart. Like many young women in the humbler walks of life, the coster's daughter is rather pleased with her importance at being thus courted by two young men at the same time. This places her in a position to be independent and she is quite conscious of her position.

Liza's father is a gouty old fellow and is rather inclined to look with favor upon the pugilistic suitor. Disregarding the orders of the doctor, the old man takes a drink from his bottle whenever he can get one, although for no apparent purpose. The drinking had no bearing on the story that could be very plainly seen and, from the moralist point of view, a picture that begins and ends with drinking is open to question. We took the liberty of speaking to the Vitagraph management about this phase of the picture, and they admitted that it had escaped their notice during the rush of business, but they very promptly gave us their assurance that all unnecessary drinking scenes would be cut out before release day.

Scene from "Mrs.'Enry 'Awkins" (Vitagraph).

'Enry 'Awkins, although of inferior physical strength to his rival, wins the heart of Liza by acting more like a gentleman and she consents to become Mrs. 'Enry 'Awkins. The plot is not deep; perhaps the picture was intended solely to serve as a character study of costermongers. In this it succeeds very well. The three male parts are exceedingly well played by Messrs. Brooke, Morey and Costello and Miss Norma Talmadge also contributes a faithful bit of work as Liza. On the whole the picture should be distinctly pleasing.

AMERICAN SPENDS $100,000 ON "FLYING A" PRODUCTIONS.

S. S. Hutchinson, president The American Film Manufacturing Company, is sponsor for the statement that during the past six months, the company has been in excess of $100,000 in advancing the character of "Flying A" productions.

A large sum of money has been invested in the new factory just completed. Every device tending toward a more refined manufacturing process that would add to the life of American film and increase its marketability, has been added; every advance known to the technical handling of motion pictures has been made a part of the new equipment regardless of expense. The new studio is a distinct triumph of its kind, combining as it does the latest and most improved ideas in stagecraft. The expensive residence property in hich the factory is situated is ample evidence of this—an kpensive departure intended to secure the purest of dustee air.

The western studio at La Mesa, Southern California, has so come in for its share of expensive improvements. All iose devices for the increased efficiency of "Flying A" ms introduced to the Chicago plant, were purchased in plicate for the La Mesa headquarters.

Now, in addition to the sums expended in the technical partments, the American has entered upon an expensive lvertising campaign intended to assist the exchange and hibitor in creating wide-spread public interest in its pictres. Thousands of dollars will be spent in asking the iblic to call for the "Flying A"-brand. An educational camign that will go far toward establishing the "Flying A" the public mind is now under way, and, it is predicted, will t a new standard of film publicity. The move is epochal d charged with extraordinary possibilities.

A SENSATIONAL "DREAM" PICTURE.

Under the title of "The Dream of Death," the Great rthern Feature Film Company will release for the last ek in March, an extremely sensational comedy-drama. Of is picture must be said that the acting and the scenes are usually good and beautiful. In the way of photography e pictures are excellent. The story is something unusual d is certain to attract attention.

The scene opens with a young man seated in his home and situation explained in the title is that he is waiting for wife who has gone to a theater. The impatience of the ung man suggests that she is late in returning. A sound tside attracts his attention and he goes to the window d, looking out, he sees the approach of a motor from which wife steps out accompanied by a man. This circumstance uses the jealousy of the husband, and when the wife ens he upbraids her angrily for her conduct and, refusing planations, he suddenly throws her from him with such ce that she falls upon the floor. The wife retires to her mber in great distress and goes to bed, leaving the husd in the agonizing pangs of jealousy.

Scene from "The Dream of Death" (Great Northern).

Vild with rage he enters the chamber and going to the side makes a move as if to strangle the sleeping woman, is turned from his purpose and leaves the room. Still atly distressed he sits down in a chair and goes to sleep. his troubled dreams he sees himself approach the grave his wife upon which he throws himself, sobbing and rerseful. Two officers come upon him and the next picture ws him in a cell with the warden reading the death sene. Then he is taken to the place of execution, where the otine and the executioner stand ready to carry out the dates of the law. Just as he is about to be decapitated wakes with a scream, which brings his wife from her mber. The young man is overjoyed in discovering that it but a dream, and embraces his wife with fervor. She takes from her bosom a card upon which is written a sage from her brother, explaining that he met her at theater and took her to dinner, and asking the husband's on for keeping her out so late.

he story, while extremely simple, is intensified to a near edy by the unexplained situation and the excellent acting he two principals.

"THE MAN FROM THE WEST" (Imp).

This is a Western picture of a different type. It is Western only in so far as the principal character is concerned. He comes down to New York with all his breezy Western freshness thick upon him, with much money and the reputation of seeking a wife. His friends and relatives plan a wife for him, and they, having the veneer of Eastern civilization, choose one of their own kind.

But Steve, the man from the West, has other ideas. He is not a man to allow his liberty, the most valuable asset of his life, to be bartered away, and when he sees the plump and pretty cook, and moreover when he tastes the excellent pies which she makes, he is, in the best sense of the term, a lost man. He loses his heart to the cook and defies the scheme of his relatives.

Scene from "The Man from the West" (Imp).

But his heart is in the right place. The girl who was selected for his wife-to-be was not entirely disappointed. She and her fiance receive from Steve a handsome wedding gift.

King Baggot plays the man from the West. Vivian Prescott is the cook, and William Shay has the part of the lover who marries the girl whom Steve does not marry. March 18th is the release date.

"THE MINE ON THE YUKON" (Edison).

From the story by Rex Beach, entitled "The Thaw at Sliscos," the Edison players offer a picture adaptation under the title of "The Mine on the Yukon," which is a delightful comedy-drama.

Mrs. Black is the wife of a man who has gone to the Yukon in search of gold. As she is introduced in the first scene, at which time she receives a letter from a friend of her husband's advising her that Black is dead and that he left nothing but a mine in which nobody had any faith except himself. The prospect is not alluring, but Mrs. Black decides that she will find out about the mine, her belief in her husband being sufficient to lead her to conclude that the mine must be good if he thought so. Leaving her pretty daughter at home she goes to Alaska and we see her entry at the mining camp and her reception by the rough men among whom her husband labored. After looking at the mine she decides that she will work it and hires a number of men to do the digging. Her money soon runs out and the men refuse to work without pay.

Scene from "The Mine on the Yukon" (Edison).

This compels Mrs. Black to work the mine herself or quit. She decides to work and, getting into trousers, we find her in the role of a miner. She is compelled to endure much ridicule from the miners, but that turns to admiration for her pluck. Finally she strikes pay dirt, but is immediately afterwards taken sick.

During her sickness a miner named Larson jumps her claim and when she recovers she learns that everything is lost. Shortly afterwards Larson is caught in a blizzard, but through the bravery of the Widow Black, he is rescued in time to save his life, whereupon he gratefully restores the mine to its rightful owner. While all this has been going on, Bill Jones, a friend of Mrs. Black's husband, who has been doing what he could for the widow, has become interested in the pretty daughter, whose portrait the widow has shown him. The daughter happens on the scene at a dramatic moment and we get an inkling of what may happen from the mutual admiration between the daughter and Bill Jones. This picture will be released on April 2.

"WHEN A MAN'S MARRIED" (Essanay).

One of the best of the nine great comedy subjects Essanay releases throughout the month of March is "When a Man's Married." Scintillating with brilliant situations, and bubbling with real joyous mirth, it is a pcture that at once pleases and thoroughly entertans, not only because of its superb production, but the players interpret the various roles excellently and with perfect conception of true comedy values. William McGrath, a New York clubman of wealth, finds that he cannot get along with his spouse. Divorce is mutually agreed upon, and the pair travel out to Reno, Nevada. Some months later, McGrath is a guest at the home of Judge Rathbone, an old friend, and finds his former wife under the same roof.

Scene from "When a Man's Married" (Essanay).

McGrath manages to keep out of her way for an hour or so, then, through the machinations of several schemers, he is suddenly left alone with his former spouse in the gun-room. McGrath takes it upon himself to approach her. The former Mrs. McG. warns him that all is over between them and that she wants to look upon his face no more. With this she stalks from the room. Rubbing his chin reflectively, McGrath crosses to a gun-rack, takes down a handsome shotgun and examines it with a view to some duck-hunting, away from all thoughts of former wives, etc. Suddenly the weapon is discharged, and kicks McGrath into an insensible heap against one leg of the billiard table.

The shot is heard all over the house, and an excited crowd rushes in. Mrs. McGrath thinks Mr. McGrath is dead and promptly swoons into the nearest chair. McGrath revives, suddenly sees his former wife sprawled out on the chair and instantly thinks the accidental discharge has killed her! At this moment she is revived with the aid of smelling-salt an the incident is cleared up. McGrath has an idea—th h starts to carry out by dismissing the guests from the rom Then he steals up behind the flustered lady and she, thi in him a ghost, is about to relapse into another faint, wh h catches her in his arms, pours out his story of how l el he has been without her, and begs her to re-marry him. hi is finally agreed upon, and the happy couple seek out th ol judge, who is deep in a game of chess. The matter e plained and the judge, with a sly twinkle in his eye, co u a lawbook, then writes something on a sheet of pape a hands it to McGrath. He reads:

Scene from "When a Man's Married" (Essanay)

> "I find that while you are both lawfully divorced the State of Nevada, here in New York the divor laws are different and you are still legally man ar wife. Congratulations!"

McGrath is amazed. Mrs. McGrath has also rea th astounding decision over his shoulder and, finding that Wi iam is still her lawfully wedded husband, she ins assumes her old air of authority. McGrath, realizing e in his same old hen-pecked position, tells her he is oin back to Reno for another divorce and rushes from the o Hastening upstairs, he quickly packs his grip, jams o th hat and hustles out. At the foot of the stairs he bump in wifey and together they rush into the library.

The judge and his friend are interrupted in their es game as McGrath gasps out his troubles. The judg as McGrath for the written decision he gave him, takes o pen, writes something across the face, then hands it ac McGrath takes one look, utters a whoop of joy, then the paper triumphantly before his wife's eyes. Sh se this written across the page: "I was only joking."

Realizing she and McGrath are divorced legally and ro erly, and that the judge has tricked her, she is forced t o on while McGrath takes the arm of a beautiful young la guest, beams upon her most lovingly and strides from the John Steppling is excellent in the role of McGrath. E n Blanchard splendidly portrays Mrs. McGrath, and a Cashman acquits himself nobly as the judge. The n booked for release March 29th.

"RICE AND OLD SHOES" (Lubin).

Roy Dean and his wife had been married about five years when Dean began to neglect his home for the club. His preference for his evenings at the club became so pronounced that his wife tried in different ways to bring his attentions back to herself. But everything failed. Finally, becoming desperate at her husband's neglect, Mrs. Dean (Mary Buckley), threatened to sue for divorce. Becoming angry Dean told her that if she wanted a divorce he would help her in obtaining it. Proceedings are under way when a letter from Mrs. Dean's sister reminds her that she has promised to attend her sister's wedding, which was to be celebrated the following week. Mrs. Dean shows the letter to her husband and, for the sake of appearances, they agree to attend the wedding together. The sister lives in another city.

Scene from "Rice and Old Shoes" (Lubin).

At the wedding the guests are supplied with rice and old hoes to throw at the bride and groom as they depart on heir honeymoon. One of the little flower girls mischievusly fills the brim of Mrs. Dean's hat with rice and also pills some of it down the inside of her coat without the nowledge of Mrs. Dean. On the way home in the train, Irs. Dean removes her coat, out spills the rice. The other assengers think Mr. and Mrs. Dean are bride and groom nd cause the pair much embarrassment. Arrived home, Mrs. ean takes off her hat and another shower of rice falls from . After all have gone to bed except Dean he sets looking at e little mound of rice that fell from his wife's hat. It rings to his memory scenes connected with his own wed-ing. His heart softens, the old love for his wife returns. e steals to her room and asks forgiveness for his neglect nd promises to begin all over again. And the divorce law-er loses a case.

"THE CHILD OF THE TENEMENTS" (Solax).

Cast.

Lydie Martin	Blanche Cornwall
Tom Martin	Mace Greenleaf
Their child	Magda Foy
Mike, a neighbor	Lee Beggs
Dr. Mann	Darwin Karr
Kate	Fannie Simpson

What mother wouldn't sacrifice almost everything she has and holds sacred and dear to her for her offspring? Such is the law of nature. In the Solax production of "The Child of the Tenements," the release of Friday, March 22nd, we forgive Mrs. Martin for robbing her benefactor, so that she may take her child out among the trees and flowers and give it a chance for life and happiness. We sympathize with the suffering child of the tenements and manifest a profound regard for the courageous mother. This is the story:

Lydie Martin has trouble with her ailing child. Dr. Mann, the visiting settlement doctor and the friend of the West Side poor, does all he can to help Lydie and her sick child. Tom Martin, Lydie's husband, is out of a job and things look pretty black. The child has no chance in the atmosphere of filth and dirt. Lydie plans to take her child and her husband to the country, a place in California where a neighbor has relations—a place the neighbor speaks of very often. But there is no prospect of going—her husband is out of work and three hundred dollars are needed.

One day Dr. Mann, while making his rounds of the tenements, stops in to see the Martins—for he always makes their rooms his headquarters while in the district, because it is the cleanest. He leaves his coat and bag on a chair. Mrs. Martin is wretched. She sees visions of herself and family comfortably settled out in California—but she cannot go there. Her child will not be able to grow up strong and healthy—it will be a weakling all its life. Mrs. Martin moves about the room with unsteady and sinking spirits.

When her eyes light on the wealthy doctor's coat, a sudden impulse impels her to go through the doctor's pockets. She finds his wallet, from which she removes just enough that would take her and hers to California. Just as she takes the money, an evil-minded and jealous neighbor sees the act and immediately goes off to report to the police.

In the meanwhile, Lydie Martin makes hasty preparations for a departure to California, explaining to her husband that the doctor had loaned her the money. Just as she is about to go, the police break in and she is accused of theft. The doctor is brought in and he tells the police that he loaned the money to Mrs. Martin. Mrs. Martin thanks him with grateful eyes and the little family start for fresh air and happiness.

NEW THEATER FOR YONKERS.

Mr. J. H. Hallberg, "The Economizer Man," advises us that he has just booked an order from the Square Amusement Co., Yonkers, N. Y., for their complete equipment, consisting of 300 opera chairs, Motiograph No. 1-A, 1912 Model Hallberg Special A. C. Economizer, and all accessory supplies. Mr. Hallberg also reports the sale of three of his A. C. to D. C. Economizers during the past week.

Scene from "The Child of the Tenements" (Solax).

sion the set of slides shown were given twelve encores and the publishers united in pronouncing them the finest thing that had ever been invented for the purpose.

Already there is a strong demand for these slides, but the Levi Company has been obliged to refuse orders, owing to its unwillingness to enter into the rental field. It figures that the proposition is too big to be handled from any one point and that the service can be given only by a number of distributing centers. For this reason it announces the sale of state rights and there are some excellent opportunities for money-making for those who are fortunate enough to secure these privileges.

By experimenting with the slides, the Levi Company has discovered that it can produce a perfect dissolving effect in the change of scenes through a manipulation of the slide carrier. It is now working to make the device absolutely fool-proof in operation. The song publishers are anxious to get these slides for their productions and the Levi Company is preparing to meet all demands. The company has decided that this device is too good to be cheapened in any respect and will therefore secure for models professionals of note. Instead of just merely a pretty boy and a lovely girl, we may expect to see some of the best singers on the vaudeville stage. It is not improbable that we may have Jack Norworth and Nora Bayes posing in some of their popular song hits. Along with them are hundreds of other high-class singers whose services are also available for a price, and the Levi Company has sufficient faith in this proposition to get the best that are. The consensus of opinion is that the Spiegel Motion Slide will not only revolutionize but regenerate the song slide business.

"PERCY LEARNS TO WALTZ" (Imp).

Percy's decision to learn to waltz involved him and others in all sorts of difficulties and discomforts, and these adventures when seen on the screen are highly diverting.

Percy caught the disease so badly that it became a monomania. He danced with everything and everybody he could. Unfortunately, he danced too much with the lady to whom he was not engaged. The lady who had the honor of being his fiancée was incensed at this as ladies are apt to be, and so there was a quarrel and an estrangement, and, of course, finally a reconciliation.

Scene from "Percy Learns to Waltz" (Imp).

In the character of Percy, J. R. Cumpson, who has made himself a great favorite with Imp audiences, finds an excellent opportunity of "letting himself go." So does Grace Lewis. So do, too, those fine comedians, W. H. Daly and H. S. Mack.

"Percy Learns to Waltz" is a characteristic, brisk Imp comedy—one of those Saturday offerings which are becoming so popular with Imp fans who like the lighter style of life portrayed on the screen.

The photography of this picture is exceedingly bright and clear. March 16th is the release date.

DOROTHY DAVENPORT LEAVES NESTOR.

Dorothy Davenport writes to The World to the effect that she has concluded her engagement with the Nestor Company, but that she expects to remain in California for some time doing special work with the different firms located in Los Angeles.

"THOU SHALT NOT" (Champion).

The scene herewith is laughable indeed, for it depicts the efforts of two bluecoats to part from the Rev. Smith his precious side adornments which they believe are false and a part of his make-up in a minister's disguise. The truth is, the Rev. Smith had bid his wife good-bye, but now returned to get his money which he had left in his other trousers; but the door is locked and, having little time, he enters through a window. Now Mrs. Smith had engaged a new maid and when Rev. Smith entered she mistook him for a burglar in minister's garb. She raises a cry and Smith is searched and cruelly treated, for the officers pull his whiskers to test their genuineness, despite his endeavors to explain. He is lodged in a cell. The prison is visited by women bent on reform and among them, Smith's wife. The situation is rapidly cleared up and once more the Rev. Smith pursues his mission of peace. Released Wednesday, March 27th.

Scene from "Thou Shalt Not" (Champion).

TWO KNIGHTS IN A BARROOM (Edison).

"Two Knights in a Barroom" is a farce comedy which, although not quite up to the usual high class of Edison comedies, possesses some quality and a number of amusing situations. The fun of the thing may not be generally understood since the etiquette of the barroom is not generally familiar.

The familiar figure is a tramp who has been kicked out of a freight car and is seeking assistance. He first tackles a baker, into whose cellar he descends in search of something to eat. The baker throws him out. Then he visits a cobbler, but as he is unable to pay for repairs, he is again ejected. In need of clothes he tries a tailor, but lacking money he is shown the door. Needing a shave he calls on a barber and again he gets the "boot."

On the street he meets two young men and solicits aid from them. They suggest that he needs a drink, to which suggestion he agrees and accompanies them to a barroom where he receives a large and invigorating "hooker," after which he goes to sleep in a chair in front of two suits of ancient armor, leaving his benefactors busy over a game of dice with the bartender.

In his sleep the tramp dreams that the two knights step down from their pedestals and accompany him to the various places from which he was previously ejected. He coerces successively the baker, the cobbler, the tailor and finally lands at the barber's with a stomach full of pie, a pair of new shoes and a new suit of clothes. At the barber's he gets a shave and then forces one of them into the shower bath. But the barber turns the tables on the tramp and puts him under the shower. The water splashing in the tramp's face arouses him from his sleep and he discovers that it is only the bartender squirting syphon water over him, a common treatment accorded to the "Weary Willies" who happen to stray into barrooms. This picture will be released April 3.

MACHINE STOLEN.

Stolen on the night of February 23, from Washower, 21 Graham Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., a Power's Number Six moving picture machine; serial number 3,006. Fifty dollars reward has been offered for its return and evidence for the conviction of the thief.

"CELL THIRTEEN."

Great Northern Special Feature Film Company Offers Sensational Two-Reel Subject.

An exceptionally strong drama in two reels soon to be distributed by the Great Northern Special Feature Film Company. The theme is radical, but treated delicately, in a manner not to offend, and the preachment is so strong that the subject is pardonable.

Dr. Russell is traveling with his young and beautiful wife. She is frivolous and fond of adulation, and he is a matter-of-fact husband who loves his wife but does not understand her. At a hotel, Martha, the wife, encounters the bold gaze of Marius, a man of the world. They are mutually attracted.

At the hotel a ball is given. Dr. Russell has no inclination for society and does not mingle with the dancers. His wife wanders to an isolated spot and there meets Marius, who has followed. Their love runs riot and the kisses are long to be remembered.

Scene from "Cell Thirteen."

Dr. Russell is summoned home. His wife goes too. A few days later Marius receives a letter to come to their home, which is a private sanitarium for the insane. He is to come at midnight. Marius arrives and enters the home. Dr. Russell comes with a male patient who is violently insane. Marius is stumbling about in the dark and comes on the party. He sees the physician in his office and the patient strapped to a table. He tries to escape and wanders into cell No. 13 and hides under the cot.

The physician orders the madman placed in the same cell. Marius crawls out and finds the door securely fastened. The lunatic springs upon him and then begins a death struggle. It is a thrilling and remarkable scene.

Meanwhile, Dr. Russell sees his wife attired for receiving a guest. He asks for an explanation, but the keeper rushes in to tell of the combat in Cell 13. They rush to the cell, where the maniac is overpowered and bound. The fright and his struggle with the madman has dethroned the reason of Marius and he is hopelessly insane. They find the letter summoning Marius to the guilty meeting. The doctor reads and learns of his wife's infidelity. He denounces her in merciless terms. The happiness of a husband and wife is wrecked and the interloper is rendered insane—a sad denouement, it is true—but a wonderful sermon.

"THE SCAR" (Republic).

Scheduled for early release by the Republic Company is an interesting comedy-drama entitled "The Scar." This itle does not adequately indicate the character of the subect and in the picture itself the "scar" cuts very little figure. But in the tedious search for titles that must become weariome at times to some producers, they may be excused for electing titles that do not always exactly fit the subject.

The story in this case is that of a young doctor and his wife who have some difference on account of the frivolity of the wife and the attentions of another man, which she permits in defiance of her husband's commands. The result is hat he becomes deeply incensed at her disregard for his wishes and, during a stormy scene, strikes her across the ace with a riding crop.

The blow is supposed to cause a scar to appear on the woman's face. As the result of this assault, the doctor's wife leaves him and goes to a remote small town, where she ngages in school teaching as a means of livelihood, taking with her her little daughter. The other man in the case is a real estate operator and in the course of business he is attracted to this small village, where he accidentally meets the woman. His attentions to her create considerable gossip in the village and she is compelled to resign her position as school teacher. The man comes to the front and promises to take care of her. Together they take a train to the city, but the journey is interrupted by a wreck in a tunnel.

Doctors are summoned to treat the injured and among them is the husband of the woman. The victims are brought out of the wreck and it is found that the man who caused the trouble is dead, while the woman is among the injured, the little daughter escaping unscathed. The doctor takes his wife and daughter home and the close of the picture shows them once more united and also that the scar has disappeared from the woman's face. The commendable part of this picture is the very good acting of the principal characters.

"THE MAN AND THE MAID" (American).

Jack Stevens, a wealthy young ranch owner, has sickened of the sameness of ranch life and seeks a change in the whirl of society. He goes to Coronado and is immediately spotted by the Getrich family as eligible for the hand of their marriageable daughter. Ike Getrich, the son, is commissioned to discover the position and resources of the suspect, and, upon a favorable report, is instructed to make his acquaintance and introduce him to his sister. Jack makes no objection and is soon rounded up for the branding. But the Getrich family are too eager and Jack begins to sidestep their attentions. In doing so he meets Pearl, the parlor maid, whom he finds attractive.

Scene from "The Man and the Maid" (American).

When May Getrich attempts to rope him Jack dodges until May gives up the game in disgust, whereupon the father and son attempt to sell him some fraudulent stock in something or other. Pearl, the beautiful parlor maid, overhears the plot of the plotters and tips Jack to the game. She is suspected and fired. Then Jack comes to the rescue of beauty in distress and offers Pearl a life job on the ranch, which she accepts. Thereafter the ranch is good enough for Jack.

SPIEGEL MOTION SLIDES.

Levi Company Will Place Them on a "State Rights" Plan. The Newest Thing for Illustrated Songs.

The Levi Company announces elsewhere in this issue of the Moving Picture World that it will offer the Spiegel Motion Slides for illustrated songs on a state rights plan and ask for bids. The reason for adopting this method of marketing this new song slide proposition is that the Levi Company does not wish to go into the rental business, which is absolutely necessary in handling a product of this character. Details of the plan have been fully worked out by the Levi Company and includes a return of all slides after a certain period, which will dispose of the junk question. On this plan the agency for Spiegel Motion Slides for any State or territory ought to be a valuable concession.

There is no question about the popularity of this device for illustrating songs. A special exhibition was given at the Circle Theater, New York City, on February 27th, at which a number of song publishers were present. On that occa-

POWERS PICTURE PLAYERS IN NEW MEXICO.

The Powers Motion Picture Company has established its southwestern company at Las Cruces, New Mexico, having erected a commodious and most complete studio at that point. The company, which is in charge of Director John B. O'Brien, has just sent in its first picture, which gives promise of creating a big sensation. This film, which possesses a most excellent dramatic theme and displays some splendid acting, depicts a round-up with a background of 10,000 head of cattle—indeed, it is a case of cattle, cattle, everywhere. The members of the company, besides Director O'Brien, are Gladys Fields, Leo White, Miss Dudley, E. Robles, Mrs. Mackin, F. C. McMahon, and other well-known players. A. Neilson is camera man.

AMERICAN INAUGURATES GIANT CAMPAIGN OF ADVERTISING.

It is with interest that the exhibitor and exchange man will read the advertisement of the American Film Manufacturing Company in these columns this week. The American announces that it has been successful in securing publication of its film stories in something over 70 papers each week. These publications are spread from one end of the country to the other and include daily newspapers of every size and description. The Chicago Tribune shows the largest circulation, topping the list with 287,000 readers, scattered over Chicago and the Middle West. Something more than 32 States are being used and the total number of people reached is in excess of 7,000,000.

This is enterprise of the right kind. Not only does it aid exhibitor in adding to his attendance, but the effect is felt all along the line, elevating the entire status of motion pictures and placing them on a par with all recognized amusement
That seventy editors of great American dailies should see to feature American stories in page and half-page space surely ample evidence that the newspapers are awakenin to some latent possibilities. The American is surely to congratulated on its enterprise in thus inserting the openin wedge.

"THE REVELATION" (Nestor).

A picture taken in Southern California and showing man beautiful garden scenes full of palms and flowers. The sit ation is simple. The speculator, who has just made tw millions is shown as very uncharitable, is, in fact, har hearted. He has a dream; his office appears to him and is in a time of panic. He has in his dream lost all an penniless and cast out, he begs in vain for work even the humblest. He even sees at the bottom his wife and litt boy destitute and accepting charity from the same Salvati
Army lassie to whom he had refused a quarter in the tin of his great prosperity. Then he awakes.

The effect of his dream was too soften his heart. Th is his real awakening. The picture stands largely by scenes and its photographs. The story is not very vita chiefly because it isn't very true to life. The scenes, hov ever, are often exquisite and, at this season, under Norther skies of March, pictures of summer gardens are more tha welcome. We commend it for this reason.

In amusements America has not the only "Coney Islan if judging by a series of "Urbanola" pictures which if n named "In Earl's Court, London" would make the averag American feel quite at home in "Old Coney."

Scene from "The Revelation," by The Nestor Film Co.

Calendar of Independent Releases.

M. P. Dis. & Sales Co.

MONDAY, MARCH 11th, 1912.

AMERICAN—After School (Dr.) 1000
CHAMPION—The Fatal Glass (Dr.) 950
IMP—A Timely Repentance (Dr.) 1000
NESTOR—The Revelation (Dr.)

TUESDAY, MARCH 12th, 1912.

ECLAIR—Bridge (Dr.)
MAJESTIC—The Unwilling Bigamist (Com.)
POWERS—The Power Behind the Throne (Dr.)
Republic—Two Men (Dr.)
THANHOUSER—Flying to Fortune (Dr.)

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13th, 1912.

AMBROSIO—Thomas Chatterton (Dr.)
CHAMPION—The Editor (Dr.) 950
NESTOR—The Fighting Chance (W. Dr.)
RELIANCE—The Ruling Passion (Dr.)
SOLAX—The Boarding House Heiress (Com.)

THURSDAY, MARCH 14th, 1912.

AMERICAN—A Bad Investment (Dr.) 1000
ECLAIR—The Kodak Contest (Com.)
ECLAIR—Shriner's Parade at Rochester, N. Y. (Top.)
MP—Shamus O'Brien (Dr.) 1000
REX—Eyes That See Not (Dr.)

FRIDAY, MARCH 15th, 1912.

BISON—The Deserter (Dr.)
LUX—Bill Has His Own Back (Com.) 495
LUX—Arabella Joins the S. P. C. A. (Com.) 449
SOLAX—Falling Leaves (Dr.)
THANHOUSER—The Poacher (Dr.)

SATURDAY, MARCH 16th, 1912.

GREAT NORTHERN—Capriciousness of Love (Com.)
MP—Daring Feats on a Cavalry Horse (Top.) 1000
MP—Percy Learns to Waltz (Com.)
NESTOR—The Unknown Model (Com.)
POWERS—Sogarth Aroon (Dr.)
RELIANCE—Bedelia "At Home" (Com. Dr.)
REPUBLIC—The Scar (Dr.)

SUNDAY, MARCH 17th, 1912.

ECLAIR—The World's Champion (Com.)
CLAIR—Willie's First Cigar (Com.)
MAJESTIC—The Better Influence (Dr.)
EX—In Payment Full (Dr.)

Gaumont.

TUESDAY, MARCH 12, 1912.

GAUMONT—Calino and His Boarder (Com.)
GAUMONT—What's in a Name? (Com.)

THURSDAY, MARCH 14, 1912.

GAUMONT—Gaumont's Weekly No. 4, 1912 (Topical)

SATURDAY, MARCH 16, 1912.

GAUMONT—Maternity (Dr.)

TUESDAY, MARCH 19, 1912.

GAUMONT—Jimmie—Temperance Reformer (C.-Dr.)
GAUMONT—Game Shooting from Aeroplane (Sport.)

THURSDAY, MARCH 21, 1912.

GAUMONT—Gaumont's Weekly No. 5 (Topical)

SATURDAY, MARCH 23, 1912.

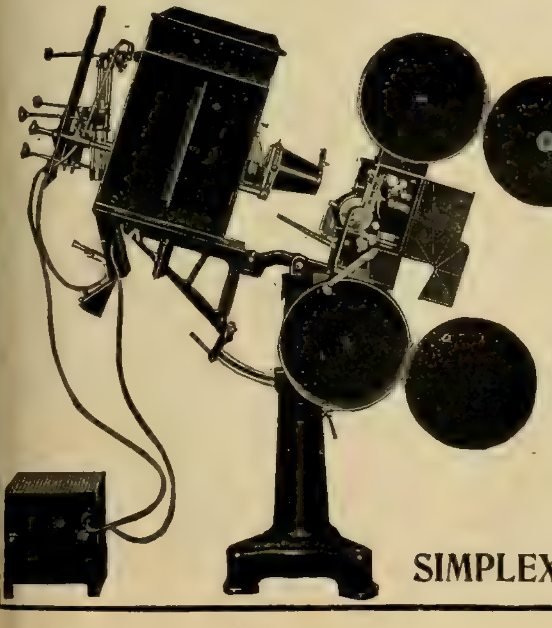
GAUMONT—An Old Romance (Dr.)

A CRUSADE IN NEWARK, N. J.

The several city departments of the city of Newark, N. J., are reported to have organized a crusade against the five-cent picture theater as now conducted in that city. It is stated that picture shows are regarded as too dangerous to be permitted in tenement houses and an attempt will be made to close all "store shows." This measure, it is claimed, will close every house on the main streets. The building department is said to be in favor of compelling every picture show to erect buildings intended for the exclusive use of such shows. Dark houses, badly ventilated places and those plainly unfitted for the purpose, will be discontinued if the departments of the city have their way.

A NEAT FOLDER.

The neat and elegant trade mark of Electra Carbons appears on a very attractive looking folder issued by Hugo Reisinger. It tells the story of the famous genuine "Electra" Pink Label Carbons, with a carefully arranged price list. The folder is an extremely handy thing to have within constant reach for every exhibitor must have carbons all the time, for without carbons there would not be any pictures.



As Exhibitors say "Years Ahead of Other Machines"

EASIEST TO HANDLE, THREAD and OPERATE
ABSOLUTELY FIREPROOF

Simplex THE PEER OF ALL PROJECTORS

No More Trouble With
CITY OFFICIAL INSPECTORS
If dealers misrepresent, send order to
SIMPLEX SALES AGENCY, 23 E. 14th St., New York

Correspondence

IN THE MISSISSIPPI VALLEY.

The Vaudette Amusement Company of Springfield, Ill., has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $2,500, to conduct theaters, amusement halls and moving picture shows. The incorporators are: W. W. Watts, Emma E. Watts, Grace B. Cumings.

"He will never get a quarter in this town for a moving picture show," declared the skeptical when Manager Watts of the Vaudette began his extensive advertising for "Dante's Inferno." It was no use to point out the success which always attends Lyman Howe upon his visits to Springfield. But he did get the crowds. Although the five reels were here three days, the house was always filled. As to the general reception of these pictures by the people of Springfield, we cannot say. What honest opinions we sought were equally divided. These expressions were from people in all walks of life and if half of them were pleased with such a demanding picture, it has accomplished much. Manager Watts and Messrs. Clements and Lecturer Whitney, gave a nice setting for the production.

After seeing the production of the Vitagraph "Vanity Fair," Mrs. Grace Creel, 23 years old, of Springfield, went to her home and took poison.. She died two weeks later. This was an opportunity for the Springfield correspondent of the Associated Press to add to his meagre space account and he put the "blame-it-to-moving-pictures" on the wire with avidity. Enterprising Manager D. C. McClellan of the Idylhour at Pekin, grabbed it while it was hot and used it as an advertisement as to the realism of the film, but denying that it would have any such an effect on his patrons. The editor of the Peoria Herald-Transcript sniffed at the dispatch and then caustically remarked: "A Springfield woman tried to commit suicide after witnessing a moving picture show. If it had been a musical comedy, one might understand it."

The Leland Hotel annex, Springfield, Ill., has been purchased by Senator Logan Hay and the ground floor may be remodeled as a vaudeville theater.

The Franklin Amusement Company of Evansville, Ind., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $7,500. The incorporators are: J. R. Brannen, Philip Fine and Harry Kornblum.

A plan to make use of moving picture films in the campaign to be waged by the city administration against unsanitary tenement houses in Cincinnati, Ohio, is being evolved by Safety Director Cosh. Cash said he thought that if pictures showing the actual conditions existing in certain tenements were taken and show to the public at large, public sentiment would soon force the proprietors of these places to remodel and rebuild along modern and sanitary lines.

The church and theater will work in unison in Wood River, Ill., hereafter. Manager Brown of the Lyric Theater, agreed after earnest solicitation from members of the church congregation to close the theater on Sunday nights and he says that he will even attend the church as he will not have any work to do on that night. His moving picture shows will hereafter be held on Tuesday and Friday nights.

The Merchants' Theater Ticket Company of Cincinnati, Ohio has been incorporated with a capital stock of $35,000. The incorporators are: Oscar C. St. Clair, Norman J. Lease, Alfred Felix, Alfred L. Heinike and William E. Wagner.

The Rose City Amusement Company of Newcastle, Ind., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000. The incorporators are: Jesse Bond, E. E. Samuel and L. C. Matlock.

The Bellaire Star Amusement Company of Bellaire, Ohio, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $25,000. The incorporators are: Donato DeSimono, C. Veechilla, Felix Di Genova, Joseph Buttitta and Antonio Negua.

The Toledo Amusement Company of Toledo, Ohio, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are: B. I. Bailey, Lawrence F. Conway, W. W. Alderyce, Fred Holderman and F. C. Wenzel.

The Central Theater Ticket Office Company of Chicago, Ill., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $1,000, to deal in theater tickets, also in merchandise. The incorporators are: Otto W. Ulrich, J. M. Johnson and K. Cornwall.

The Swasticka Production Company of Chicago, Ill., has been incorporated with a capital stock of $1,000, to do general theatrical business. The incorporators are: Thomas Shields, Frederick McGee and James E. Ford.

The item going the rounds of the Illinois press, that Farmington, Ill., as a municipality, has gone into the picture show business, has very little foundation. The story stated that only clean shows were given at a narrow profit and that educational subjects were exhibited. Dreamland was sold to Mayor H. V. Johnson, who later sold shares to others, as recently chronicled in the Moving Picture World. "The close profit" is a ten-cent advertisement.

The Lincoln, Ill., "Morning Star" declares there are too many picture shows in that city and too much carelessness in the inspection as to cleanliness and safety. Editorially, it pleads for a more rigorous enforcement of the law.

A Griggsville, Ill., man recently constructed a miniature house, all complete, about eighteen inches square. Glasses were placed in the doors and windows, lace curtains hung and the exterior artistically painted. Together with adverstisements of Griggsville merchants, it was shown at the Star Theater for a week.

"The Palace," a moving picture boat which had successfully cruised upon the Wabash, Ohio, Green and Cumberland rivers is said to have sunk in the Ohio river a few miles below Shawneetown, Ill. The boat was caught by an ice floe and before an iron tug could reach it the hull was crushed and it went to the bottom. It had a seating capacity of 300.

The Majestic Theater, Eighteenth Street, Rock Island, Ill., formerly operated by H. A. Sodini, which has been closed for some months, was reopened as a picture and vaudeville show under the management of John Bolik.

Britz Wilson, formerly a musician in moving picture shows at Terre Haute, Ind., has accepted a position as pianist at the Royal Theater at Litchfield, Ill.

The firm of Dickason & Odiorne of Barry, Ill., may move their store and Mr. Dickason will occupy the building with a moving picture show.

The Star Theater, East Main Street, Clinton, Ill., which was the first moving picture theater in Clinton, has reopened after remodeling. The change has permitted the addition of 75 more seats. Comfortable opera chairs have been substituted for the benches, a Powers "6" machine and a mirror screen have been installed. A three-reel show will be given. J. C. Wilson is proprietor.

The city council of Jerseyville, Ill., has passed an ordinance assessing a license of $60 a year, payable quarterly in advance upon all moving picture shows in the city.

The Star Electric Theater, Rich Hill, Mo., was reported to have been destroyed by fire February 7.

J. Jansen Fuhr, a newspaper man of Christiana, Norway, has been successful with his moving pictures of Sweden, Norway and Denmark, in Illinois. Towns with a large Scandinavian population have been visited.

Henry C. Engeldrum, who recently died at Paris, Ill., was one of the earliest boosters of moving pictures in connection with vaudeville shows.

The Lyric Moving Picture Theater in Strasburg, Ill., has been closed and Mr. Nolting, the manager, has moved his outfit to Neoga, Ill.

Read's Opera House at Mason, Ill., was destroyed by fire.

W. O. Stevens, manager of the Star Theater at Princeton, Ill., may erect a new brick theater next summer, it is reported.

Manager Fellis of the Opera House at Hillsboro, Ill., will build an airdome as soon as the weather permits, it is reported.

Moving picture machine operators of Rock Island, Ill., Moline, Ill., and Davenport, Iowa, have formed a union.

The Standard Theater, Pekin, Ill., has resumed its vaudeville and picture show.

Thomas A. Van Draska, formerly of Waterloo, Iowa, leased a room in the Colwell Block, Ottawa, Ill., for a moving picture show, to be opened the latter part of February.

J. Kendall of Pleasant Plains, Ill., has purchased the X-Ray Theater at Lincoln, Ill., from F. W. Parsons.

F. R. Bandy of Britt, Iowa, has purchased a site on Main Street in that city and next spring will erect a brick building. It will house his Magic Theater, a moving picture show.

W. H. Englert, owner of the Bijou Theater in Iowa City, Iowa, has secured plans for a $55,000 theater and business block in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Lux of Monticello, Ill., are operating a moving picture show in Newton, Ill.

Charles Hale of Kilbourne, Ill., has rented the Reisch Building in that city for a picture show.

G. C. Cantrell and F. D. Whittington have leased the Majestic Theater in Mt. Vernon, Ill., and promised select moving pictures.

Vaudeville has been discontinued at the Olympia Theater in Arcolea, Ill., and it will be run strictly as a picture house.

Ray Fox, an employee of the Star Theater, Aurora, Ill., and Miss Margaret Brugger have announced their marriage, which took place last fall.

Don Cheaney has rented the Renz Building at Tallula, Ill., and will conduct a moving picture show two or three nights each week.

Oscar Henson is the new singer at the Majestic Theater in Jacksonville, Ill.

Chief of Police, DeMiller of Joliet, Ill., has announced that prosecution will result unless the overflowing of theaters in that city ceases.

J. T. Converse has opened a moving picture show at Sharron, Wis.

The city council of Shelbyville, Ill., has passed an ordinance providing a penalty of from $100 to $200 to any manager or owner of an amusement house who permits his place to be overcrowded.

Ben Burns, owner and manager of the Grand Theater, Lake City, Ia., has purchased the Lyric Theater at Lohrville and will conduct both places

H. B. Jameson, manager of the Wildey Theater Edwardsville, Ill., has adopted a plan of reserving seats for six or more. At his presentation o "Dante's Inferno," a single order for a party o 111 persons was placed. This gave him some desirable publicity.

A Pekin, Ill., paper says that at the request o D. C. McClellan, manager of the Idylhour Theater the Selig Company of Chicago, writes that it may take a historical picture dealing with early lif on the Illinois River. Among the things whic Mr. McClellan suggested should be incorporated i the film were the early visit of the Jesuit priest and other explorers, featuring La Salle, who buil Fort Creve Coeur, and Starved Rock, which abound in pretty Indian legends.

The Rex Amusement and Realty Company of St Louis, Mo., has been incorporated with a capita stock of $5,000. The incorporators are: Edmon Koeln, William Slevers and Theodore Rassieur. Thi company plans to erect a three-story fire-proof building at Grand and Lucas Avenues. The buildin will seat about 2,500 persons and will be availabl for drama as well as pictures and vaudeville. Th kind of shows has not been decided.

A Decatur, Ill., paper reports that A. Sigfried theatrical manager of that city, has contracted wit Carl Laemmle of the Imp Film Company, to mak a series of pictures in Decatur.

S. I. Heeter, superintendent of schools, and Judg Hugo Hanft, headed a delegation which proteste before the license committee of the board of aldermen against a license for a moving picture theate at Selby Avenue and Chatsworth Street, St. Paul Minn. It is declared to be too close to the Hil school.

F. H. M.

Miss Edna Hallar, of Canton, Ill., has accepte a position as pianist at Greenland Theater, Pekin Ill.

Karl Davis, formerly with the Talbot Hippodrome and the Dane Booking Agency, of St. Louis has leased the Wildey Theater, at Edwardsville Ill., until July 15. H. B. Jamison, who has ha the management since Jan. 22, has left Edwardsville.

F. W. Parsons is back at the X-Ray Theater in Lincoln, Ill. A grand opening "by the 'new old progressive manager" was held Thursday, Feb 15.

Newman & Heise, of La Salle, Ill., have sol the Majestic Theater, at Spring Valley, to Loui Murphy, Paul Prokop, John Facer and Willia Dorman, and will continue the place as a pictur and vaudeville theater. Louis Heise has move to La Salle, where he will assist his partner, Mr Newman, in the management of the Majestic, i that city.

Owners of the motion picture theaters in Bloomington, Ill., filed a petition February 14 with th city clerk, asking the city council that the theaters be allowed to open on Sunday. A total o 1757 names appeared on the petition. This actio means that a referendum will be held in Apri at the time of the city election when the peopl will vote yes or no on the proposition. A moote question is whether the issue is one of publi policy.

E. E. Alger, of Paxton, Ill., has sold the Crysta Theater, in Gibson City, Ill., to Grover Horn Mr. Alger will devote all of his time to his Paxto Theater.

Harry Loper, owner of the Lyric Theater, Springfield, Ill., was given judgment for $7,750 agains the city of Springfield for damages to his caf by a mob during a race riot three years ago.

The Parents' and Teachers' Association and Kin dergarten Mothers' Association, of Lincoln schoo Minneapolis, Minn., are said to have rejoiced a the meeting because there are no moving pictur shows within the Lincoln school district.

The International Harvester Company's film "Th Romance of the Reaper" was recently exhibite before the Better Farming Club, in Aurora, Ill.

The Majestic Theater Company has been orga ized at Belvidere, Ill., by Joe Tabor, owner the Majestic Theater, and in the spring a han some building to be used for a moving picture an vaudeville show house will be erected.

The Springfield News, Springfield, Ill., has e tablished a Saturday feature department "In th Moving Picture World," aiming to give a loc twist to all the gossip concerning development in photoplay circles.

The Savoy Theater, on Sixth Street, Springfiel Ill., had a very appropriate program for Lincoln birthday, repeating the Vitagraph "The Batt Hymn of the Republic." In addition this hou gave the Biograph, "The Blot in the 'Scutcheon and a split reel.

The San Marcos Theater Company, of San Marco Tex., has been incorporated with a capital sto of $18,000. The incorporators are J. R. Porte William Reed, A. H. Rogers, and C. L. Hopkin

The Jefferson Amusement Company, of St. Loui Mo., has been incorporated with a capital sto of $2,000. The incorporators are Ben Friedma Julius Feist, and George Yeager.

The Grand Amusement Company, of Tulsa, Okla has been incorporated with a capital stock $5,000. The incorporators are W. A. Stuart, M. Stuart and C. W. Connelly.

The Mothers' Club, of Ridgely school, Sprin field, Ill., has purchased a stereopticon and donat it to the school.

F. H. M.

NEW ENGLAND.

On Monday, February 11, the committee on legal affairs of the Massachusetts Legislature, held a hearing concerning the bills which had been presented with a view to stopping all Sunday shows. The writer was present at this hearing, and the debate was heated, as a number of clergymen spoke against Sunday shows, while representatives of the city spoke in behalf of the shows. Chief License Clerk Casey, representing the city of Boston, spoke in the interests of maintaining Sunday shows and put in a mighty good word for the way in which the photoplay theaters were conducted in the State of Massachusetts. Exhibitors will be glad to learn that the bills were all given "leave to withdraw," and that the moving picture interests in Massachusetts have no more to fear from this quarter—at least until next year's session of the legislature. There were nine distinct bills which affected the observation of Sunday, but not even one of them was able to pass the sensible Committee on Legal Affairs.

Putnam & Costello of Worcester, Mass., have filed in court an attachment of $3,000 against Louise George and A. Belair of Springfield, Mass. Messrs. Putnam & Costello claim that a moving picture was operated in Indian Orchard, and that the receipts and expenses of the theater were misrepresented by the defendants.

Rhode Island is having a session of legislature, and is having a few bills turn up which affect the photoplay interests. An ordinance has just been presented to the city council which, if passed, will place the chief of police in full charge of the censoring of all posters, signs and other theatrical advertising. There has been considerable dissatisfaction in Providence, due to the fact that some theaters post up advertisements without first securing the permission of the owner of the property. An ordinance covering this matter has also been drafted for the councils.

Another bill of prime importance to the moving picture interests of Rhode Island, was introduced before the legislature last week. This bill, if passed by the committee, will give the mayors of cities, and the Town Councils in the smaller towns where there are no mayors, the full authority to grant licenses for theatrical entertainments to be held on and after 5 P. M. Sundays. The bill, as it was introduced into the legislature, stated that the entertainments should be of a "literary or musical character." Photoplay prgrams made up of educational and scenic subjects, and augmented by music, can easily come under this designation. If the bill is passed, it will be a great boon to the photoplay theaters of Rhode Island.

William Markwell, who operates the Dreamland Theater, White River Junction, Vt., as a photoplay theater, has just purchased the property on South Main Street, which was used for a theater on the ground floor, the upper stories being occupied as business offices. It is understood that Mr. Markwell will reconstruct this building, and erect a large photoplay theater, to be devoted to vaudeville and pictures

The Park Theater, Bridgeport, Conn., is finding the vaudeville and photoplay proposition an excellent one, according to reliable reports. Business is better than when "legitimate" attractions were offered. But the Park now and then casts off the photoplays to play a "one-night stand."

It is hoped by the management that the new theater, on Hampton Block, Northampton, Mass., will be ready for its opening by Washington's Birthday. The final touches are being made on the new theater, which will offer popular vaudeville and pictures under the management of William Youngsten, a well-known Boston man. The house should prove a winner, as there is little or no real competition in Northampton.

It is understood on the best authority, that Charles Lovenberg, the B. F. Keith representative in Providence, stands ready to oppose any bills placed before the Rhode Island legislature which tend to allow Sunday shows in that State. A bill which will attempt to legalize Sunday shows has been introduced into the legislature. This bill is even more extreme than the one which provides that certain sorts of entertainment may be permitted on Sundays, on and after 5 P. M., and this bill will be fought by Mr. Lovenberg. There isn't any reason why the photoplay theaters shouldn't be open on Sundays, provided the programs are of a nature in keeping with the Lord's Day.

Worcester, Mass., has a church that recognizes the lure of the motion pictures. Grace Church of that city has bought a complete apparatus, and, according to the announcements of the Rev. J. E. Charlton, the church will give regular entertainments. One by one they are coming to appreciate motography and its truly tremendous influence over the public.

Mayor Burns of Somerville, Mass., has just appointed two members of the Somerville police department to act as the official moving picture censors of the city. The writer has it on reliable authority, that the appointments were the result of recent criticisms by church people of the films that were being shown in the Somerville picture houses. The censors are Lieutenant E. A. Carter and Sergeant G. H. Carleton. They were instructed that their duty in this matter would be to blue-pencil what they considered objectionable films. As far as can be learned, there have not been any films exhibited in Somerville that could be called "objectionable" in any sense of the word, but that the whole matter is due to the oversensitiveness of certain church members, who see evil where there is none.

These columns have told of the troubles arising over the South End Theater, Boston, which was secured last spring by Marcus Loew from Messrs. Farren & Edwards. According to the Supreme Judicial Court this theater is legally minus an entrance, in that the owners control the theater, and the lesses control the lobby. If Edwards & Farren decide to take possession of the lobby, this will leave the South End Theater without any entrance. This means that the house must close up while a new entrance is made at considerable cost, loss of room inside the theater, etc. No definite action has as yet been taken by either party.

Colonel Charles J. Jones, known as "Buffalo" Jones, came to Tremont Temple, Boston, where he gave his unique motion picture lecture, "Lassoing Wild Animals in Africa." Buffalo Jones gave two shows daily, February 13 to 16 inclusive, and did a fine business. Buffalo Jones has a tremendously interesting fund of stories, which he relates in connection with the reels, and the lecture proved to be remarkable. Buffalo Jones played two engagements at the Star Theater, Boston, in previous years and was found to be a good box-office attraction.

There is going to be a new and up to-date photoplay theater in Beverley, Mass., and the Ware Brothers are the owners. There were about 150 remonstrants to the new photoplay house, and a meeting of aldermen was held to thresh the matter out. However, the house will be built, as most of Beverley wants the new theater, and over 800 people signed a document to that effect.

New Haven, Conn., has a new photoplay theater, the Foy, formerly called the Auditorium. The new house is run under the direction of the local Y. M. C. A., and pictures are to be carefully censored before being exhibited. The house has been overhauled and renovated, with a new set of fire escapes. The Foy Theater is under the direction of C. M. Cummings and L. A. McMahon, and seats 700 people.

Mr. McMahon was formerly manager of the Grand Opera, New Haven, Conn., but resigned to enter upon his new duties at the Foy Theater.

There is a rumor going around Boston that a new photoplay and vaudeville house will soon be erected in Park Square, and that Marcus Loew will be found to be the lessee. Nothing definite is known, however. If this is the case, the Loew interests will have three houses in the Hub, as the South End and Orpheum Theaters are now operated by these people.

Manager Jack Levy of the Supreme Theater, Jamaica Plain, Mass., will be a very busy manager as the Superb Theater, Roxbury Crossing, will be operated under his management. Mr. Levy has the name of being a clever and popular manager, and is well liked by his associates.

The Eagle Theater, opposite the Roxbury Theater, Boston, hopes to open February 19. Vaudeville and pictures are to be given.

Mr. J. L. Rome, a well known business man of Gardner, Mass., intended to open a first-class theater, devoted to vaudeville and pictures, but was unable to secure a permit from the Board of Selectmen. Mr. Rome is now thinking of opening a photoplay house in Fitchburg, Mass., where he will find no trouble in procuring a license.

The Star Theater, Lawrence, Mass., a photoplay theater, was used last week as a meeting place for the striking mill operatives of this city. William Haywood, one of the strike leaders, spoke in the Star Theater to crowds on February 21.

P. F. Shea & Company have transferred Robert J. McDonald from the Gilmore Theater, Springfield, Mass., to the Franklin Square Theater of Worcester, Mass. Mr. M. McDonald was very successful in his management of the Gilmore, and was very popular with his associates.

The Pastime Theater, Lowell, Mass., is now operating under different management and business is said to be picking up in first-class shape.

The Whittenton, Mass., Nickle Theater found it had booked a winner when Kalem's "Colleen Bawn" was contracted for. The Nickle is doing very nicely and business was unusually brisk when the Kalem feature was used last week.

Division 4, A. O. H. was given a benefit performance of photoplays at the Richmond Theater, North Adams, Mass. Overflow houses were the rule, and a good sum of money was taken in.

The Bijou Theater of Hartford, Conn., has recently been sold to Mr. James Luddy. After considerable money has been spent in alterations, the Bijou will reopen under the management of Joseph Boyle. The house is located on Main Street, and does a fair business.

The Colonial Theater, Lawrence, Mass., which has been presenting vaudeville and pictures, has closed its doors. Manager John F. Adams has had charge of this house for nearly two years, and now expects to enter business in Lowell, Mass. The strike of mill operatives at Lawrence, Mass., had effect on the business of the Colonial, and no doubt forced the closing sooner than was anticipated, although business had not been very good at the Colonial for a long while.

James W. Bingham has been appointed manager of the Gilmore Theater, Springfield, Mass., succeeding Mr. R. J. McDonald. Mr. Bingham is in line to make good in his managerial capacity, having had charge of the Gilmore some years back.

The New Portland Theater, Portland, Me., has just completed two years as a vaudeville and picture house, under the management of James W. Greeley. To celebrate this anniversary, the employes of the house were given a banquet, held at the Falmouth Hotel. Mr. Hiram Abrams, one of the owners of the new Portland, was present. The house is doing very well, and uses choice service from the Sales Company, in connection with the vaudeville program.

The Alhambra Theater, Stamford, Conn., which has been offering stock-company attractions, has been taken over by Jones Brothers, who will cast out the stock company and replace it with vaudeville and pictures. The house should make good now, as it will not have much competition.

The Loomer Opera House, Willimantic, Conn., had a couple of busy days when it presented the "Crusaders." These reels seem to be moneymakers wherever exhibited in New England.

The Town Hall and Pastime Theaters, both of Brunswick, Maine, are still "dark." The smallpox epidemic, which made the closing of these theaters necessary, is now in its eighth week.

Mr. John W. Barry of New Bedford, Mass., is ill, and it is said quite seriously. Mr. Barry is a very well known man in motion picture circles, and it is hoped that he will recover speedily.

Chester, Mass., is to have a program of motion pictures, which will be supplied by the Star Amusement Company of Westfield, Mass. The shows will be given in the Town Hall, which has been hired for the purpose, to be used once a week until the Chester public has been educated to the photoplay, when the shows will be increased in number.

The Comique Theater, Boston, is still true to the old and discredited methods of doing business, and is still filling up every available inch of lobby space with sensational, blood and thunder announcements, posters, banners, etc. The house was justly reprimanded on Saturday, February 24, by a prominent city official, who happened to pass by this house. A Wild-West picture was being "billed" to the utmost by the Comique, and a "cowboy" in full regalia was stationed in the lobby, to attract business. The city official immediately ordered this stopped. It is a pity that such methods as these are still in vogue, even if by a small percentage of houses, as it has a most pernicious influence on other houses that are trying to attract the better class of trade.

A mighty fine editorial on motion pictures was published in the "Monitor," a Boston newspaper, with such sentences as, "Not enough weight has heretofore been given to the motion picture as an educational factor," etc.

Robert Doherty, manager of the Lyric Theater, Fall River, Mass., reports that his new house is doing very well, and that it has jumped into popular favor. The Lyric is easily one of the most up-to-date houses in Fall River, and should be prosperous.

Bristol, R. I., is to have a new theater playing vaudeville and pictures and it will be operated by Messrs. Spitz and Nathanson, who own the Empire Theater, Providence, R. I. The house will open about March 15, after renovations and improvements have been made. Messrs. Spitz and Nathanson own a string of houses and all of them are considered to be money-makers.

Just at this time when many people are finding much good in motography, and what is more important, are saying so in print, Miss Flora Pope, assistant superintendent of schools in Lynn, Mass., managed to get into the lime-light by saying that the harmful effects of too frequent attendance at moving picture shows are becoming noticeable among primary pupils. This was stated in Miss Pope's report to the Lynn school board. She favors a law that photoplay theaters bar young people from all evening performances, and admit them to not more than 2 matinee performances each week. Miss Pope is evidently a regular mind-reader! She has found out to her own satisfaction that pictures weaken the powers of concentration, and that, more horrible than all else, they weaken the nervous system. Thus we find the photoplay to be harmful to both the mental and physical conditions of the young! But that is not all! Miss Pope is sure that the moral effect of the photoplay is pernicious! This denounement of the pictures is very sweeping and some live exhibitor in Lynn should button-hole Miss Pope and show her the light, by explaining how utterly absurd and undeserved are her statements. The writer was informed by a Lynn exhibitor that Mayor William P. Connery of Lynn, is of an absolutely different frame of mind, and thinks that photoplays are a remedy to prevent the younger generation from becoming "mollycoddles." Mayor Connery visited every house in Lynn, according to the writer's information, and after he had completed his tour, stated that he most emphatically took issue with Miss Pope's statements that the photoplay had a demoralizing influence. With so sensible and fair a mayor, there doesn't seem to be much chance for Miss Pope. And besides, we are surprised at Miss Pope's attitude—it is behind the times.

HENRY.

LOUISVILLE.

With the advent of pleasant weather, Louisville picture houses have more than made up for the slack conditions which prevailed during the cold wave.

The feature of the week was the introduction of green trading stamps in the theaters operated by the Princess Amusement Company, including the Columbia, Casino, and the Orpheum. Twenty cents' worth of stamps are given with each five-cent admission ticket. This is a new plan in Louisville theatrical circles, and other houses are looking somewhat askance at the idea. So far, it has proved remarkably popular among residents of the Gateway City, it is reported, and will doubtless be continued. Giving trading stamps with each ticket means that in effect a reduction in price to four and two-fifth cents. This is provided that all of the stickers are redeemed. The cut is so slight as to be hardly noticeable, and yet it has perceptibly stimulated the attendance at the various houses. Another innovation is the selling of roasted peanuts in the Princess houses. The nuts are vended only during the short intermission between performances, and interrupt the exhibition in no way. The nuts are served hot, and without shells, eliminating the nuisance of a littered floor.

A. F. Mayer, treasurer of the Princess Amusement Company, will in the future represent the Swanson-Crawford Film Exchange, of St. Louis, in Louisville. Mr. Mayer will have supervision of distribution of the films for the entire South. Temporarily, he will conduct the affairs of the exchange form his office at Hopkins' Theater. Later he will probably open other offices. The Swanson-Crawford Company is a newcomer in Louisville.

Louisville may have a new moving picture and vaudeville house in the near future, Col. John H. and Col. James P. Whallen, proprietors of the Buckingham, a local burlesque house, having decided to erect such a place on the site of two buildings which were destroyed by fire recently. The place is on Jefferson Street, just east of Fourth Street, and is generally considered ideal for such a purpose. Should the venture be definitely decided on, work will begin soon and the place will be rushed to completion. The theater will be modeled largely on the lines of the St. Louis Hippodrome, it is said.

The Royal Theater, Eighteenth Street and Broadway, under the management of the Majestic Theater Company, presented a vaudeville act, entitled "School Days," to theatergoers recently with success. The sketch was patterned after the well-known musical comedy and was fairly well acted by Louisville amateurs. "Young Cy" Reinhart, son of Charles, was a member of the company, and acquitted himself well, though he has not all his father's mellow voice. William Hibbitt, a promising amateur, took the leading role. The Royal put on a special performance for the school-children of Louisville, admitting them for five cents. The showhouse also ran pictures of the Equitable fire.

M. Switow, head of the Falls Cities Amusement Company, has gone on a short visit to Martinsville, Ind., the famous health resort. Mr. Switow will take life easy for a time. He has been in rather poor health recently, and it is hoped that the baths will remedy this.

"Cy" Reinhart has remained with the Novelty and is delighting Louisville folk with his famous yodeling song.

Fred Dolle and other officers of the Ideal Amusement Company have practically concluded arrangements to take up the advertising slide business. Arthur V. Sheckler, of Louisville, will have immediate charge of the plan. The Ideal controls four houses and will be able to start off with that number, with the chances bright for additions.

The Princess Theater has been opened at Russellville, Ky., by Messrs. Vaden & Allen, of Little Rock, Ark. The theater is being remodeled and the interior will be handsomely decorated.

Work on one of the finest theaters in southern Kentucky will begin shortly at Bowling Green. Dr. John E. Gray will finance the company which will erect the new show house. The theater will go up on State Street, near Eleventh, and will cost $15,000. It will seat about 1,500 people. During the winter, legitimate shows will be staged, but moving pictures will be run in the summer.

W. H. Wassman, of Knoxville, Tenn., has been granted a permit for remodeling a building at 423 South Gay Street for the Rex Theater. The alterations will cost $15,000. The front of the building will be changed entirely, stone and pressed brick entering into the construction. The building has a frontage of 21 feet and a depth of 120. The seating capacity will be 320, exclusive of a balcony, which will probably be installed later. It is thought that the Rex will run its first film about March 20. Mr. Wassman operates the Crystal Theater, adjoining the Rex. Billiard rooms will be opened over the two theaters.

The Princess Theater, Church Street and Fifth Avenue, Nashville, will be completed within the next few days. The tile setting is finished and the marble has been set, while the painting of the ceiling and walls is well advanced. The theater will cater especially to women and children.

About $12,000 will be expended in the remodeling of the Blevins building, Bristol, Tenn. The place has been leased by a Washington syndicate, operating a string of houses. Architects are preparing plans, and work will begin with their completion.

G. D. CRAIN, JR.

PHILADELPHIA.

It was decided at a conference held in the office of Assistant District Attorney Charles E. Fox, to postpone the presentation to Councils of the special ordinance to regulate the attendance of children at moving picture parlors until Robert D. Dripps, the common councilman who will present the ordinance, has had more time to prepare it.

J. Louis Bretinger, who represents the Exhibitors' League, which is composed of proprietors of moving picture houses, strenuously objected to certain phrases of the proposed ordinance as it has been proposed. He said that as the school law allows children to work at the age of 14 it would be unfair to place the age limiting their unchaperoned attendance at moving pictures at 16. He also asked that the hours be changed and that the framers of the ordinance take into consideration the fact that school is dismissed at any time from 2 to 3.30 o'clock in different localities, according to the accommodations for pupils. Mr. Bretinger requested, and those present agreed with him, that the ordinance shall be made applicable to all places of amusement including skating rinks, theaters and vaudeville houses.

The curfew part of the ordinance will be retained and when the measure passes, as Mr. Dripps thinks it will if it is carefully prepared, children will be forbidden to enter places of amusement, unless they are attended by their parents or guardians, after 9 o'clock at night.

It is understood that Clarence P. Sterner, No. 619 Land Title Building, has been retained by some of those in the moving picture business who oppose the whole scheme and who regard the proposed city ordinance as an invasion of their rights under the State laws. Mr. Sterner is most aggressive in his opposition to additional restrictions being placed upon the moving picture business by special ordinance.

He asserts that the police power now existant is ample for the protection of the public and those who have built up the moving picture business and points out that each additional encroachment means added expense and a reduction in income too great for the business as it is now conducted. It is understood that his clients will test the proposed curfew law in the higher courts.

One of the largest moving picture houses ever erected in a summer amusement park will be built at Point Breeze Race Track by a new syndicate formed to take over the property. Thomas J. Ryan who has important concessions at Willow Grove, Luna Park and Coney Island, is one of those most active in the new venture which will include all the usual displays and a vast auditorium for the moving picture display.

All the moving picture houses operated by corporations or joint stock companies must file statements showing income before March 1 or suffer penalties ranging from $1,000 to $10,000. Some of them are delinquent now and it is doubtful if they know the grave consequences of delay beyond March 1.

Moving pictures were used by John Wanamaker, the merchant king, to illustrate his talk on the coronation of George V at Bethany Sunday School when he celebrated the fifty-fourth year of his connection with this, the largest Sunday School in the world. The institution was founded by Mr. Wanamaker, who regards moving pictures as one of the greatest of all modern educational agents.

Charles M. Schwab, the steel manufacturer, has grown weary of his opera house at South Bethlehem and has turned it over to professionals, who will put in pictures with a vaudeville show on the side.

Mr. George B. Graff has opened the Quaker City Feature Film Exchange at No. 804 Cherry Street. Mr. Graff has just returned from a trip to London and in speaking of the moving picture houses there he said, "In some of the moving picture theaters in Bradford, tea and sweet biscuits or crackers are served free during the afternoon as a special attraction for the ladies and children. The prices of admission range from 4 cents to 36 cents."

Manager Charles Thropp, of the Coliseum Theater, Sixtieth and Market Streets, is installing a General Electric Mercury Arc Rectifier. He reports business as being extremely good.

The Palace Theater, East Greenville, Pa., opened on February 15, under the management of Mr. Pine Bird. Pictures and vaudeville will be the policy.

Mr. John H. Andrews, manager of Vernon Palace, No. 5704 Germantown Avenue, slipped on Broad Street about a week ago and was injured but not seriously. He is coming around again all right and expects to be back on the job in a few days.

Mr. Arthur Heyman, of the Calehuff Supply Company, was suddenly called home from his trip on account of the death of his son Arthur, Jr., on Saturday, February 10, at the age of eight years.

Efforts are being made in Atlantic City, N. J., to have introduced a bill in the City Councils to examine and license moving picture operators. It is said that the proprietors and operators will welcome such a step.

It might be of particular interest to proprietors of moving picture houses to know that on all the letter heads and envelopes and particularly on the programs of the Franklin Theater, Fifty-second a Girard Avenue, there is a line, "The Motion Pictu Is The Thing." Mr. J. Hesser Walraven is ma ager of the house and as he was on the road f several years he ought to know.

Several large manufacturing concerns that a national advertisers are experimenting with slid with a view to using them in the moving pictu houses. They claim that they can reach more pe ple in this way than through the magazines a newspapers. The idea is to advertise their goo and on the bottom have the local dealer's nam who gets the benefit of the advertisement by getti the exhibitor in his neighborhood to use the slid

Mr. Charles Church, special agent of the Moti Picture Patents Company, stopped off, en rout to visit his friend Mr. Chtrles A. Calehuff, of t Calehuff Supply Company, last week.

The Aurora Theater, No. 2132 Germantown Av nue, which is one of the largest and most up-to-da houses in that section of the city, seems unable adopt a definite policy for the house. After openi with vaudeville and pictures, the acts were dropp and a better class of pictures shown. Recentl however, they seem to be undecided as one we they have vaudeville and the next straight pi tures. This has been going on now for sever weeks.

John D. Allen, architect, is drawing plans for theater to seat 1,800, which will be erected at Fort first Street and Lancaster Avenue, for Mrs. Jenn Effinger. Pictures will be shown in the new hou which is to cost $100,000, complete.

Vernon Rayner Carrick, a moving picture m of Llanerch, Pa., is a candidate for membership the Philadelphia Sovereign Consistory.

The Alseem Company, a moving picture propos tion, has been incorporated in New Jersey Thomas A. Smith, R. Preston Read and George Re sen. It has a capital stock of $225,000.

Six or eight roughs undertook to break up a pe formance in the Majestic Theater last week a nearly stampeded the audience by hurling missil at the performers on the stage. The police rushe into the auditorium and made eight arrests. Sma fines were imposed upon the rowdies by the con mitting magistrates and the effect of the arres was nil. The antics of these rowdies might ha created a panic, with perhaps twenty or thirty pe sons trampled to death, yet their offense wa made light of and a few dollars of costs and fin imposed which sent them from the courtroo hooting at the law and jeering at their prosecutor It is now proposed to offer, at the next session the Pennsylvania legislature, a bill which wi make it a felony to say or do anything in a publ hall, theater or auditorium inciting to panic. Th penalty will be a fine of not less than $500 an not more than $5,000, or from one year to ten yea in the penitentiary. Clarence P. Sterner, La Title Building, a lawyer who has made a speci study of the laws governing theaters and all ma ters pertaining thereto, is drafting the measu and it will be of such a character as to preve a repetition of the scenes enacted at the Adelp Theater when the "Playboy of the Western World was produced by Lady Gregory's Irish player The idea is to prevent stampedes following pan and to make as nearly impossible, as may b false alarms of fire and other disturbances tendin to panic. Senator James P. McNichol, the lead of the Senate, is keenly interested in all measure looking to the safeguarding of the public in th aters, as to morals as well as to bodily safety and it is understood that he will father the bi on passage.

The Great Northern Railroad is working up series of films for use on cars to better illustra the great Second World's Christian Citizenshi Conference, which will be held at Portland, Ore June 29-July 6, 1913. Nothing approaching th plan of educational publicity outlined for this a fair has ever before been attempted by the rai roads and steamship lines of the world. It estimated that the transportation will cost u ward of $3,000,000. Delegates and orators wi come from all parts of the world.

Rev. Dr. Frederic Poole, of the Chinese Missio in Philadelphia, has started a movement lookin to the placing of moving picture films in all th public and private schools of the United State

In the Evening Bulletin, the leading newspap of Pennsylvania, an editorial reads as follows "It is possible that motion pictures will eventuall become as much a part of the school week a Friday afternoon speaking or debating was year ago. Educators in a dozen cities including Phi adelphia, St. Paul, Detroit, Newark, Minneapoli Denver, and San Francisco, are already in fav of their use for giving instruction in history an geography, and Dr. Maxwell, superintendent o the City Schools in New York, has finally give his support to the idea. The National Educatio Association, comprising representatives from vi tually every state in the Union, is also conside ing the question and may exert its influence towa introducing the films as a regular part of th usual system of instruction."

A New Jersey charter has been secured by th incorporators of the Lyric Theater Company, As bury Park, N. J. The capital stock is fixed a $125,000. The local office at No. 728 Mattiso Avenue, Asbury Park, N. J. The agent in th state is Carolyn T. Gardiner, Lakewood, N. J.

To facilitate entrance and exit at moving pictur houses the police are asked to rigidly enforce th w "keep to the right" order of Director Porter, the Department of Public Safety. On many rrow streets it is impossible for those passing to press through the waiting crowds in front popular moving picture houses and those who ant to get in are held back by those trying get out. Under the "keep to the right" rule e pedestrians will have the right of way on the ght side of the walk and the lineup can be carried ong the line of the building so as to afford sy exit to those who, perforce, must start out e other way and keep on going that way until crossing is reached.

The sale of Chestnut Hill Park, best known as hite City, will close one of the largest moving cture houses in the city. A syndicate of Gerntown millionaires bought the property to get l of the park, which attracted not only very rge crowds, but sometimes crowds not altogether sirable in an ultra exclusive section of the city. It is now proposed to fix the Curfew limit at years and the bell is to ring at 9:30 P. M. inead of 8, as originally proposed in the Dripps dinance. The Philadelphia W. C. T. U. has dorsed the 8 o'clock ordinance. This is the me outfit that opposed Olga Nethersole's perrmance of "Sappho" at a time when not a ngle woman present had ever read a book more rilling than "Uncle Tom's Cabin" or "Black eauty." None had seen Miss Nethersole in any ay or any other actress of note.

Religious meetings are being held on Sunday enings at the Lehigh Palace, Germantown and high Avenues. Special music is furnished and oving pictures are made a part of the enterinment. Great crowds are attracted by the mbination.

An achievement in moving picture photography, which E. M. Newman, the traveler and lecturer, particularly proud, was the posing of His Royal ighness Wilhelm of Germany and his daughter, e Crown Princess. In this picture the royal rty is seen at play with their two favorite dogs. r. Newman has the only copy of this film in istence.

The Twentieth Century Theater, Mannyunk, ened on February 17. The crowd was so great at it took three policemen to keep the people line. Everything about the house, inside and itside, is above the standard.

The office of the Franklin Theater, Fifty-second reet and Girard Avenue, was broken into on ebruary 3, but the thieves were scared away by e sudden appearance of the police. In the room here the attempted robbery occurred were movg picture machines and several thousand dollars' orth of films.

Mr. F. P. Bloomfield, of the Motion Picture reen Company, has been in town for some time oking up several prospects.

The Moving Picture Exhibitors' League of Philelphia have asked the Thomas A. Edison Co. to nate a picture machine for use in their meeting oms.

The Auditorium Theater, No. 1426 South Street, der the management of John Gibson, is about the rgest picture house in the city reserved for lored patrons. The only criticism that can be made of the house is that the projection is very poor and that the pictures are sacrificed.

A. K. Greenland, of Gaumont & Company, gave a demonstration at the headquarters of the Calehuff Supply Company on February 22 for the benefit of the exchange men.

A vaudeville team working in the Colonial Theater at Lancaster, Pa., put their stuff over so effectively that Edward Davis, a house painter, laughed himself to death. His heart failed him when the last yarn was pulled.

The Nixon-Nirdlinger Vaudeville Agency, of this city, has filed a suit in the Chester County Courts against W. I. W. Jones, proprietor of the Coatesville Opera House, for $166.67, the same being the amount of commission due on business aggregating $3,323. It is understood that Mr. Jones claims the pictures did the business and not the players sent by the agency.

The White Rats Society of New York has taken possession of the Family Theater, at Lancaster, Pa., and will run films along with better-class vaudeville. They paid $50,000 for the equity.

A suit in equity has been begun by Harry G. Sundheim, counsel for J. Fred Nixon-Nirdlinger, to determine the ownership of the Orpheum Theater on Chelten Avenue, west of Germantown Avenue, which has just been conveyed to Marshall W. Taylor, manager of the Keystone and Liberty Theaters. The theater is in the course of erection and is expected to be finished about May 1, and it was to add an important link to the chain of moving picture-vaudeville houses controlled by the Nixon-Nirdlinger-Zimmerman-Taylor combination. It was announced several weeks ago that the Orpheum had been sold by Albert M. Greenfield, representing Louis H. Cahan, to J. Fred Nixon-Nirdlinger.

On December 19, 1911, a conveyance of the half-finished structure was made by Louis H. Cahan to Ida S. Goldman for a nominal consideration. Ida S. Goldman, subsequently to this conveyance, married Louis B. Cohen. On February 19th of this year, they jointly conveyed the theater to Alva T. and Harry J. Koehler, who a day later conveyed the property to Marshall W. Taylor. The latter two deeds were recorded on Wednesday, February 21.

The suit in equity has been begun to have all these conveyances declared null and void on the grounds that there is an outstanding agreement of sale between Louis H. Cahan and J. Fred Nixon-Nirdlinger in which the latter has agreed to complete the theater and take it over on May 1. One of the allegations in the suit is that under the agreement a sum of $65,000 has already been spent on the theater by J. Fred Nixon-Nirdlinger.

CLEMENT H. CONGDON.

Among the Exhibitors

Marlin, Tex.—J. W. Christian is erecting a playhouse on Railroad Street.

Baltimore, Md.—The Foreman Construction Co. has been awarded the contract for the erection of a new vaudeville playhouse at 1118 Light Street for Jos. Brodie. Will cost $10,000 and seat 450.

Lake Charles, La.—Josiah Pearce & Sons are preparing plans for a new moving picture theater to be erected here at a cost of $50,000.

Evansville, Ind.—J. R. Brannen and others will erect a new theater to be called The Franklin, at 1011-13 Franklin Street.

Homer, Neb.—Plans are being prepared for a new Opera House to be erected here by F. E. Colbey, at a cost of $9,000.

Bryan, Tex.—J. M. Carson and J. B. Crum have leased the ground floor of the Masonic Temple and will establish a moving picture show.

Chicago, Ill.—Katharina Stoecka will erect a one-story brick theater at 612 W. 31st Street at a cost of $6,000.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—A beautiful photoplay theater with a seating capacity of about 1,100 will be constructed in South Burdick Street, to be completed by July 4, 1912. It will occupy the entire plot of land, size 68 by 100 feet. A handsome lobby, well illuminated, will stretch across the entire front of the building and the decorations will be very rich. The building will be constructed by the Elite Theater Company, of which Harry S. Waterman is the business manager, and is well known in theatrical circles, having been lessee of many different theaters in Michigan, Indiana and Illinois. The aggregate cost of the land and property will be approximately $65,000.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Plans have been prepared and work has begun on the new moving picture theater to be erected here by the Orpheum Amusement Company. The building to be erected will be devoted exclusively to the moving picture business and will be called the Alhambra. Under the present plans it will be one of the most modern and attractive theaters of its kind in the Middle West. The main entrance will be especially elaborate. The front of the building will be thirty feet wide and thirty-six feet high and will provide a seating capacity of about 600.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The Miles Theater has reopened as one of the largest and best-equipped vaudeville houses in the Northwest. The new house has a seating capacity of 2,223, all on two floors, there being no gallery. The main auditorium has 1,097 seats, the front balcony 486, and the rear balcony 410. There is 240 box seats. The interior of the house is decorated in rose and gray, with gold trimmings. Marble pillars and wainscoting are used throughout. The stage in the new Miles will be 30 x 62, one of the largest in Minneapolis.

St. Louis, Mo.—The new King's vaudeville and moving picture theater on King's Highway, near Delmar Avenue, has thrown open its doors to the public after being under course of construction for several months. It is the tenth house of its kind to be opened by O, T. Crawford, the house being fireproof and able to seat about 2,000 people.

Binghamton, N. Y.—Arthur B. Empie has purchased the Hippodrome Theater at 36 Court Street. During the time the Hippodrome is closed a new picture machine and mirror screen will be installed and the seats entirely rearranged to make them more comfortable.

Lincoln, Ill.—J. Kendall has purchased the X-Ray Theater from F. W. Parsons.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum; postage stamps accepted.

SITUATIONS WANTED.

OPERATOR—Massachusetts card, wishes to ange present position. Boston or vicinity. ARR, 124 Jefferson Avenue, Everett, Mass.

AT LIBERTY—Good operator. Philadelphia linse. Two years' experience. Powers, Edison Maines. Can produce results. Electrician. Address ERATOR, 105 Chambers St., New York City.

LIVE WIRE PUBLICITY MAN—Desiring to make change, seeks opportunity with manufacturer, state rights" company, circuit or theater whose blicity department can use a man with wide exrience in theater and picture advertising; who is adept copy writer, expert theatrical sign writer d designer and competent manager. Best of ferences. "UTILITY," care of Moving Picture orld, New York City.

COMPETENT, EXPERIENCED OPERATOR—With owledge of all machines, wants position. Will go ywhere. Address FRED READER, 1014 S. Jefrson Street, Chicago, Ill.

MANAGER—Will take complete charge of Moving cture House in Greater New York on commission. t me build up your business. "MANAGER," re of Moving Picture World, New York City.

HELP WANTED.

WANTED—Pianist for Vaudeville and Pictures; eady job. BROWN & DION, Kane, Pa.

PIANIST WANTED—Lady or man pianist. One o can play classical, who can play to pictures and udeville. Must be able to read music at sight. e who is UNION. Seven hours' work daily, inding Sunday. Transportation will be furnished. ate last place employed. Reply at once, P. O. X 1419, Muskogee, Okla.

EQUIPMENT WANTED.

WANTED—Moving Picture Machine in good condition. Give description and price. W. A. CRANDALL, Anderson, S. C.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—Moving Picture machine head. Used three days. Cheap. No dealer. Sent subject to examination. C. M. CHENEY, 5356 Calumet Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE—80 Hardesty "Anti-Panic" Theater chairs, in good condition; wire hat racks, and floor rings. Will sell all for $50, or what have you to offer in exchange? Address H. E. HARTMAN, Lyric Theater, Siegfried, Pa.

FOR SALE—Motion Picture Camera, tripod, magazines and developing outfit. CAMERA, care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

FOR SALE—Cheap, if sold this month. 350 Opera Chairs, 2 Motiograph machines, No. 1-A, 1912 model. 7 Fans. 1 Piano. Galvanized booth, 7 feet square. Fort Wayne compensarc. Complete line of other goods for Moving Picture Theaters. Above goods used only seven months. Address, LOUIS KUSTAS, 320 Main Street, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

THEATERS FOR SALE.

MOVING PICTURE HOUSE for sale at a sacrifice. Good location, five miles from Boston. Capacity 225 seats. F. L., care of Moving Picture World, New York City.

Only exclusive Picture show in City of 15,000. Best paying show in Iowa. Seat 300. Excellent reason for selling. For further particulars address A. ENGLE, Empire Theater, Fort Dodge, Iowa.

THEATERS WANTED.

THEATERS WANTED—Live Propositions in the Middle West. B. C. ARMSTRONG, Theater Broker. 83A, Columbus, Ohio, Confidential service.

WANTED—Moving Picture Theater in or near New York City. H. C. BARRINGTON, 148 Greenpoint Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

MISCELLANEOUS

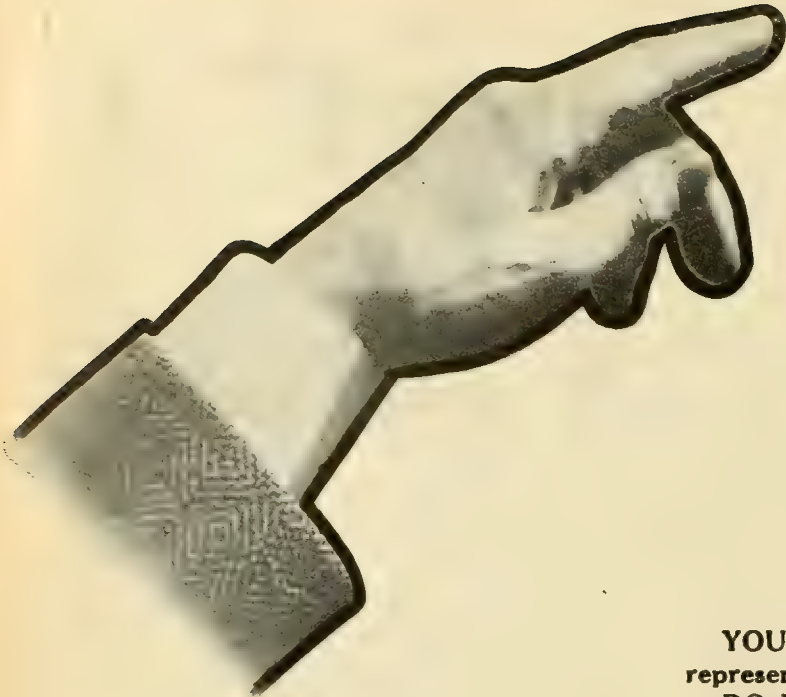
FOR RENT, IN HEART OF ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Vacant lot. Most desirable and convenient. Lease to suit and reasonable size. 60 x 90. JAMES A. HUMPHRYS, Humphrys Buildings, Atlantic City, N. J. Permanent population 50,000. Summer population 300,000.

SCENERY AND SCREEN for your picture house free. Write for proposition. JESSE COX SCENIC COMPANY, 1221 Roberts Street, Estherville, Iowa.

FEATURE FILMS—3 reels, for sale. New in New York and Jersey States. Sacrifice. LOUIS care MILLER, 28 Union Square, New York City.

FOR SALE—Three reels "Passion Play," Pathe. colored, run two weeks; "Anthony and Cleopatra" and three others; also Five Hundred Fifty Dollar Victor Auxetiophone. Z. A. BELL, 728 West Eleventh St., Los Angeles, California.

MOVING PICTURE TENT—Wanted quick. Will sell colored "Passion Play" like new. 2100-ft; "Gt. Train Robbery." 15 other A-1 reels. Also swell Lubin and Model B Gas Outfit. No reasonable offer refused for a fine, complete road outfit, includes everything. Have made enough with this outfit to locate permanently. GEO. BARNARD, Millbrook, Duchess Co., N. Y. Will exchange reels for tent.



7000,00

AMERICA

Before Yo

YOUR OWN HOME PAPER IS AMONG THEM. Th represent the FLOWER OF AMERICAN DAILIES.

DO YOU FULLY UNDERSTAND WHAT THIS GIA ADVERTISING VALUE MEANS TO YOU? Has any oth motion picture manufacturer, Trust or Independent, Ev Done As Much For You?

"COMING AMERICANS"

(Each of these releases will be advertised to SEVEN MILLION people. You will feel the demand. Prepare to meet it by insisting that your exchange buy BOTH AMERICANS. Help us to help you.)

"The Broken Ties"

Release Thursday, March 7. Western Drama. Length 1000 feet. A brilliant, virile drama sure to please.

"After School"

Release Monday, March 2. Western Drama. Length, 1000 feet. An old, old story handled from a new and novel angle. Thoroughly "AMERICAN".

"A Bad Investment"

Release Thursday, March 14. Western Farce-Drama. Length, 1000 feet. A Western tale of a mining stock deal, a wayward son and an over-wise Father. You will want it if you like real farce and superfine photography.

"Full Value"

Release Monday, March 18. Western Social-Drama. Length, 1000 feet. A love-making "boss," and a pretty stenographer play leading roles in "Full Value"—a dainty, charming bit of film that will entertain and interest.

Alabama
- Birmingham Ledger
- Mobile Register

Arizona
- Tucson

Arkansas
- Little Rock Democrat
- Fort Smith Southwest American

California
- Los Angeles Record
- San Francisco News
- San Diego Sun
- Sacramento Star
- Fresno Tribune
- Berkeley Independent

Colorado
- Denver Express
- Pueblo Leader

Connecticut
- New Haven Times Leader

Georgia
- Atlanta Journal

Illinois
- Chicago Tribune
- Peoria Journal
- Springfield State Journal

Indiana
- Terre Haute Post
- Evansville Press
- Logansport Reporter

Iowa
- Des Moines News
- Sioux City News

Kansas
- Wichita Beacon

Kentucky
- Louisville Herald
- Covington Post

Louisiana
- New Orleans States
- Shreveport Times

Michigan
- Detroit Times
- Saginaw News
- Grand Rapids Press
- Sault Ste. Marie News
- Bay City Times

AMERICAN FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

People read

STORIES
how Them

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS HAVE AND WILL BE SNT TO MAKE THE "FLYING A" FAMILIAR TO ERY AMERICAN HOUSEHOLD.

CONSIDER WHAT THIS LIST OF DAILIES MEAN TO YU—7,000,000 PEOPLE READ "FLYING A" STORIES, WANT TO SEE THEM— Even before you get the Film.

YOU SUPPLY THE DEMAND—WE CREATE IT!

Michigan Cont'd
- Jackson Citizen Press
- Muskegon Chronicle

Minnesota
- Minneapolis News
- St. Paul News

Missouri
- St. Joseph News-Press

Montana
- Missoula Sentinel

Nebraska
- Omaha News

New Jersey
- Newark Star

New York
- Albany Times Union
- Brooklyn Citizen
- Erie Herald

Ohio
- Cleveland Press
- Cincinnati Post
- Toledo News Bee
- Columbus Citizen
- Akron Press

Oklahoma
- Oklahoma News
- Muskogee Times Democrat

Oregon
- Portland News

Pennsylvania
- Pittsburg Press
- Philadelphia Star
- Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader

Tennessee
- Memphis Press

Texas
- Austin Tribune
- Houston Post
- Dallas Dispatch

Washington
- Seattle Star
- Spokane Press
- Tacoma Times

Wisconsin
- Milwaukee Journal
- Madison State-Journal
- Superior Telegram

The Chicago Sunday Tribune.

PART SEVEN

SPECIAL FEATURES

The Real Estate Fraud

Photo Play In Story Form

An Assisted Elopement—A Moving Picture Short Story Showing How Love Always Finds a Way

"DOUBLE" SUITS LAST FOR MEN

Mayor Gaynor of New York, Whose Boom for Democratic

A Short Story for an Idle Hour

SECOND SECTION

The San Diego Sun

The Grub Stake Mortgage---A Moving Picture Story of California Life

nk Floor, Ashland Block, CHICAGO, ILL.

No
Other Motion
Pictures of Sarah
Bernhardt
in all the World

TO ALL STATE RIGHTS BUYERS:

We
Will Prosecute Infringement with Every Resource of the Law

Like the Noonday Sun
Alone in Blazing Majesty
Giving Light and Life to Art

MADAME SARAH

BERNHARDT

Illuminates the whole Motion Picture World
Through Her Stupendous Genius Revealed in Her First and Only Photo Play

Dumas' Heart-Gripping Drama

"CAMILLE"

In which she is taking the nations by storm and making a girdle of her pictured glory around the globe

Our Contract with

Never Did a Play

Gives us
Absolute Control of her Motion Picture Poses

ONLY A FEW STATES LEFT

Her Drawing Power is Stronger than that of all Other Stage Stars Combined

Immediate Action Necessary to Secure Any Rights Whatever

A splendid associated photo play

The greatest comedienne of France

RÉJANE

in

"SANS-GÉNE"

Sardou's Delightful Comedy of the Court of Napoleon

3 REELS—3,075 FEET

These Photo Plays Together Run Two and One-half Hours

FRENCH AMERICAN FILM CO.

403 Times Building, New York

Kind
Sell
Like this Photo Play
of Bernhardt
in
"Camille"

We Are Making
New Records for Selling
State Rights

Special
4-color Paper
Perfect Publicity
Everywhere

STATE

SPIEGEL'S MOTION

for

Illustrated Songs

Can be shown in both Licensed

The greatest scientific invention of the present century.

We offer State Control for a period of two years.

Come to New York and see them on the screen.

Railroad Transportation refunded to buyers.

A live business proposition for live business men.

A big money producer today---a bigger one next week-- still bigger next month---a gold mine next year and th State buyers reap the harvest.

DON'T WAIT ACT QUICK

Write Wire Phon

Bryant 4997

"EVERYBODY'S DOING IT'

RIGHTS

SONG SLIDES

for

Golden Song Review

and Independent Theatres

Pick your State, start your Exchange and make BIG money right off the jump.

The demand has already been created. Exhibitors and Exchanges are flooding us with checks, telegrams and inquiries.

Three Releases a week, and every release means a bigger income.

Rates are extremely low.

The Slides Are Ready Now.

LEVI CO., Inc.

1560 Broadway, New York.

EXCLUSIVE MAKERS

The Largest Lantern Slide Makers in the World

Calendar of Licensed Releases.

CURRENT RELEASES.

MONDAY, MARCH 11th, 1912.

BIOGRAPH—A Spanish Dilemma (Comedy)
BIOGRAPH—The Engagement Ring (Comedy)
KALEM—A Spartan Mother (Dr.)	1000
LUBIN—Tough Guy Levi (Comedy)
LUBIN—Wifey's Ma Comes Back (Comedy)
PATHE—Pathe's Weekly No. 11, 1912 (Topical)
SELIG—A Crucial Test (Dr.)	1000
VITAGRAPH—First Woman Jury in America (Comedy)	1000

TUESDAY, MARCH 12th, 1912.

EDISON—The Baby (Comedy)	1000
ESSANAY—The Ranch Widower's Daughters (Comedy)	1000
C. G. P. C.—The Poison Cup (Dr.)
C. G. P. C.—The Rell Brothers (Acrobatic)
CINES—From Tent to Mansion (Dr.)
SELIG—Bounder (Dr.)	1000
VITAGRAPH—The Five Senses (Comedy)	300
VITAGRAPH—A Story of the Circus (Dr.)	700

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 13th, 1912.

EDISON—Her Polished Family (Comedy)	1000
ECLIPSE—The Sentry on Guard (Dr.)	1015
KALEM—A Victim of Circumstance (Dr.)	1000
PATHE—A Midget Sherlock Holmes (Am. Comedy)
C. G. P. C.—Daix and His Dog (Acrobatic)
LUBIN—His Wife's Mother (Dr.)	1000
VITAGRAPH—Mrs. 'Enry 'Awkins (Dr.)	1000

THURSDAY, MARCH 14th, 1912.

BIOGRAPH—Iola's Promise (Dr.)
ESSANAY—A Flurry in Furniture (Comedy)	1000
LUBIN—The Price of a Silver Fox (Dr.)	1000
MELIES—The Sheriff's Daughter (Dr.)	1000
PATHE—When Duty Calls (Am. Dr.)
SELIG—The Slip (Dr.)	1000

FRIDAY, MARCH 15th, 1912.

EDISON—For the Commonwealth (Dr.)	1000
ESSANAY—The Madam (Dr.)	1000
KALEM—The Belle of New Orleans (Dr.)	1000
SELIG—Across the Isthmus of Panama in 1912 (Topical)	1000
C. G. P. C.—The Coin of Fate (Dr.)
VITAGRAPH—The Great Diamond Robbery (Com.)	1000

SATURDAY, MARCH 16th, 1912.

EDISON—Personally Conducted (Sc.)	1000
ESSANAY—The Bandit's Child (Dr.)	1000
CINES—Out of Tune (Comedy)
CINES—Zoological Gardens in Rome (Sc.)
LUBIN—The Preacher and the Gossips (Com.)	1000
PATHE—The Arrow of Defiance (Am. Dr.)
VITAGRAPH—Ranch by the Sea (Dr.)	1000

ADVANCE RELEASES.

MONDAY, MARCH 18th, 1912.

BIOGRAPH—The Root of Evil (Dr.)
KALEM—Reconciled by Burglars (Comedy)
KALEM—The Kalemites Visit Gibraltar (Sc)
LUBIN—The New Constable (Com.)	1000
PATHE—Pathe's Weekly No. 12, 1912 (Topical)	1000
SELIG—The Girl of the Lighthouse (Dr.)	1000
VITAGRAPH—The Black Wall (Dr.)	1000

TUESDAY, MARCH 19th, 1912.

EDISON—Her Face ((Com.-Dr.)	1000
ESSANAY—Out of the Depths (Dr.)	1000
C. G. P. C.—The Dog Detective (Dr.)
C. G. P. C.—The Electric Spark (Edu.)
CINES—Father's Toothache (Com.)
CINES—The City of Tripoli (Sc.)
SELIG—The "Epidemic" in Paradise Gulch (Com.)	1000
VITAGRAPH—The Old Silver Watch (Dr.)	1000

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20th, 1912.

EDISON—Dress Suits in Pawn (Com.)	1000
ECLIPSE—The Song of the Gypsy (Dr.)
KALEM—The Defeat of the Brewery Gang (Dr.)	1000
PATHE—The Price of Gratitude (Dr.)
LUBIN—The Surprise Party Surprised (Com.)	1000
VITAGRAPH—The Two Penitents (Dr.)	1000

THURSDAY, MARCH 21st, 1912.

BIOGRAPH—A Voice from the Deep (Com.)
BIOGRAPH—Hot Stuff (Com.)
ESSANAY—Cupid's Leap Year Pranks (Com.)	1000
LUBIN—A College Girl (Dr.)	1000
MELIES—Troubles of XL Outfit (Dr.)	1000
PATHE—The Wrong Bride (Dr.)
SELIG—The Ones Who Suffer (Dr.)	1000

FRIDAY, MARCH 22nd, 1912.

EDISON—The House with the Tall Porch (Dr.)	1000
ESSANAY—A Record Romance (Com.)	1000
KALEM—A Bucktown Romance (Com.)	1000
SELIG—The Junior Officer (Dr.)	1000
C. G. P. C.—David and Saul (Biblical)
VITAGRAPH—Mr. Bolter's Infatuation (Com.)	1000

SATURDAY, MARCH 23rd, 1912.

EDISON—Incidents of the Durbar at Delhi (Top.)	600
EDISON—Tommy's Geography Lesson (Com.)	400
ESSANAY—The Deputy's Love Affair (Dr.)	1000
CINES—The Deserter (Dr.)
LUBIN—The Revolutionists (Dr.)	1000
PATHE—The Rival Constables (Com.)
C. G. P. C.—Karlberg (Sweden) War School Exercises (Military)
VITAGRAPH—Her Forgotten Dancing Shoes (Com.)	500
VITAGRAPH—Taft and His Cabinet (Top.)	500

EXHIBITORS' ADVERTISING AND SPECIALTY COMPANY
ARTHUR D. JACOBS, Pres. BEN TITLE, Sec'y and Treas.
REMOVED TO EXHIBITORS' BUILDING
30 UNION SQUARE, Between 15th and 16th Streets
One Block from 14th St. Subway Station
Occupying Two Large Floors (over 5000 sq. ft.) with the Largest Line of MOVING PICTURE POSTERS in America

FEATURE POSTERS FOR FEATURE FILMS
(Include 1c. for each sheet for prepaid postage, if ordered sent by mail). Three-sheets 30c. (A. B. C. 3 Sheets 35c.) Eight-sheets 75c.
"POWER BEHIND THE THRONE;" EAST LYNNE" and "DR. JEKYLL & MR. HYDE"
A SPARTAN MOTHER, STORY OF THE CIRCUS, VICTIM OF CIRCUMSTANCE, WHEN DUTY CALLS, THE MADMAN, THE BANDIT'S CHILD, SHRINKING RAWHIDE, TURNING POINT, CHOLERA ON THE PLAINS, STRING OF PEARLS, HEIR APPARENT, MOTHER LOVE, BELL OF PENANCE, JUSTICE OF THE DESERT, PATCHWORK QUILT, DIAMOND "S" RANCH, DIAMOND BROOCH, A MEXICAN COURTSHIP, THE DANITES, THE NURSE, THE GIRL DEPUTY, UNDER BURNING SKIES, THE LITTLE BLACK BOX, CAPTURED BY WIRELESS, BROKEN SPUR, WINNING IS LOSING, TWO CONVICT BROTHERS, HIS WIFE'S JEALOUSY, CAUGHT IN THE TOILS, HOBO'S REDEMPTION, BATTLE OF POTTSBURG BRIDGE, PASSING OF J. B. RANDALL & CO., TRICKED INTO HAPPINESS, MELODY OF LOVE, EQUITABLE FIRE, PLAYMATES, THE TEST, THE JEWELS, TIMELY RESCUE, THE STOWAWAY, THE IMPOSTOR, THE BLIND MINER, THE HEART OF A BOSS, HIS MOTHER, THROUGH THE DRIFTS, JOSEPH IN EGYPT, DELHI DURBAR, BRUTUS, DESERT TRAIL, JACK AND THE BEAN STALK AND OTHER LICENSED FEATURES PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE.
Send Money Order or N. Y. Draft. No Personal Checks or C. O. D.

And Another! Read what a member of the New York field of Exhibitors, perhaps the most critical in America, has to say in regards to the

VAUDEVILLE PICTURES
MANHATTAN THEATRE
GANE'S
MOVING PICTURES VAUDEVILLE
DANTE'S INFERNO
THE MASTERPIECE OF MOTION PHOTOGRAPHY
COME AND SEE HELL AND YOU'LL SIN NO MORE PROGRAMME TO-DAY
DANTE'S INFERNO

Manhattan Theatre Broadway and 31st St., New York City

PERFECTION CONCAVE SCREEN

"I certainly am proud of the New PERFECTION CONCAVE SCREEN which I have just installed in the Manhattan Theatre, corner of Broadway and 31st St. Firstly, because I find it fully merits the claims made by its manufacturers, and, secondly, because it enables me to produce the best Moving Pictures in New York City. The results proved a revelation to me. The pictures are now equally distinct and the characters and outlines in exact proportion as viewed from all parts of my theatre. In addition, the side seats in the theatre, which formerly were shunned by patrons because of the blurred appearance of the characters, are occupied with satisfaction. In addition, the eye comfort is noticeable in all parts of the house. The new screen gives a better and brighter picture than any screen I have had heretofore. Mechanically the screen is a marvel of Twentieth Century ingenuity, and I earnestly recommend it to any exhibitor who is looking for perfect satisfaction in a screen."

Wm J Gane

We can satisfy you as well as the above party. Write for information.

Inventors Specialty Mfg. Co.

401 ASHLAND BLOCK CHICAGO, ILL.

EXHIBITOR'S "BUSINESS BOOSTERS"

Feature Posters, Banners, Heralds For All Feature Films

Licensed and independent. Something new every week.

EIGHT SHEETS 75c. THREE SHEETS 30 and 35c. ONE SHEET POSTERS 15c.

(Add 1c. per sheet for postage if ordered sent by mail.)

Have in stock the following: Bernhardt, The Deserter, Battle of the Redmen, Fansgene, The Danites, The Diamond "S" Ranch, Bell of Penance, Shrinking Rawhide, Turning Point, Cholera on the Plains, String of Pearls, Heir Apparent, Mother Love, You Remember Ellen, Spartan Mother, War on the Plains, Indian Massacre, Justice of the Desert, Trapped by Wireless, Corsican Brothers, Princess of the Hills, Battle of Pottsburg Bridge, Cinderella, Arrah-Na-Pogue, Two Orphans, Vanity Fair, Uncle Tom's Cabin, Dr. Jekyll & Mr. Hyde, East Lynn, and all feature subjects for past or future releases.

CLASSY DISPLAY BANNERS—3 x 12 ft., lithographed in 4 colors, on heavy muslin (with eyelets in corners for hanging), for any release, Licensed and Independent. $1.00 EACH.

These banners are works of art, and as "BUSINESS BOOSTERS" they cannot be equalled, as they cater to both sides of the street.

THE CAILLE TICKET CHOPPER

is made of the best quartered oak and built very strongly. All metal parts exposed are of polished cast bronze. Mechanical parts of tool steel. The glass is ¼-inch French plate.

Best in appearance and best in construction of any chopper ever made—we guarantee it absolutely.

SOUVENIR POST CARDS of all popular photo players, $4.00 per 1,000. They are great money-getters for Photo Play shows.

REMITTANCE must accompany order. Remit by postal or Express Money Order or New York Draft. No personal checks or C. O. D.

PHOTO PLAY ADVERTISING & SPECIALTY CO.

MAIN OFFICE—121-123 4th AVENUE, PITTSBURGH, PA.

BRANCH OFFICES

1022 Superior Ave., Cleveland, O. 26 W. Naghten St., Columbus, O. Equity Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

A REMARKABLE CIN-ES FEATURE PRODUCTION

(Released April 13, 1912)

MADAME ROLAND

Magnificent—Historic—Thrilling

Vividly describing an important episode of that terrible uprising, the French Revolution, this film will impress itself upon the public.

True to the historic facts, it pictures dramatically the accusation and trial of that extraordinary character, Madame Roland, and finally her trip in the "fatal cart" to the Guillotine, surrounded by a fanatical mob.

Full of action—elaborate settings—over two hundred people in the film. Your audience will be stirred to the utmost.

This is the film for your feature program.

GEORGE KLEINE

166 North State St., Chicago, Ill.

LICENSED BY MOTION PICTURE PATENTS CO.

WHO THEY ARE IN "NICHOLAS NICKLEBY."

In accordance with their custom in the matter of feature pictures, Thanhouser Company sends The World the complete cast of "Nicholas Nickleby," released in two reels, Tuesday, March 19th. You'll notice some good old names here:

Nicholas Nickleby	Harry Benham
Madeline Bray	Mignon Anderson
Kate Nickleby	Frances Gibson
Nicholas' Mother	Inda Palmer
Nicholas' Uncle	Justus D. Barnes
Smike	N. S. Wood
Squeers	David Thompson
Mrs. Squeers	Isabel Madigan
Squeers' son	The Thanhouser Kid
Fannie Squeers	Mrs. Grace Eline
Gryde	Etienne Girardot
Crummles	Harry A. Marks
Mrs. Crummles	Louise Trinder
Crummles Youngsters	Grace Eline, Will Morgan
Madeline's father	George Moss
Lord Frederick Verisoft	John Ashley
Sir Mulberry Hawk	Reginald Carrington
Newman Noggs	Oren Hooper
Cherryble Brothers	Harry Blakemore, John Maher
Miss La Creevy	Victory Bateman
Mr. Pluck	Walter Thomas
Mr. Pyke	Carl Grimmer
Lenville	Mikail Mitsoraz
Nicholas' support (in play):
Benvolio	John Harkness
Juliet	Ethyle Cook
Lady Capulet	Eleanor Rose

THEY PRAISE "SHAMUS O'BRIEN."

Several private exhibitions of the Imp Films Company's drama, "Shamus O'Brien," have been given in the company's projection room at 101st street, New York, to representative film men from all over the United States, together with others from across the Atlantic, including Mr. J. F. Brockliss, of London, and Mr. H. A. Brown, president of the Walturdaw Company, of London, two of the most influential men in the British film business. Without exception the film has received unstinted praise as the finest piece of work the Imp Films Company has produced. Its success is a foregone conclusion.

The picture was conceived and made in five days, which, having regard to the wonderful amount of work it contains, is really a remarkable piece of quick film making. The details are accurate to a nicety and the picture may be regarded as a triumph of motographic art.

AMERICAN TO RELEASE NEW SCENIC.

"Winter Sports and Pastimes of Coronado Beach," the scenic American to be released Thursday, March 28th, promises some especially fine things for those lovers of the scenic film.

The pictures constituting this film were taken at an opportune time. January 1 is a big day at Coronado Beach and, while the greater part of the United States is basking beside steam radiators California, or that part of it of which Coronado Beach is the center, is disporting itself in the warm waters by swimming races, yacht races, polo matches, automobile races, etc.

The San Diego Rowing Club is the largest organization of the kind in America, comprising some 500 members, and every New Year's Day for the past eighteen years the organization gathers at Coronado Beach, where races of every character are featured.

The American release for March 28th contains some excellent views of the famous polo match between the San Diego Club and the speedy crack Canadian team from Calgary, who were present New Year's day to settle the honors.

Nineteen entries of some of the fastest yachts in the country entered the open competition in the afternoon. The winning boat is seen crossing the line after an exciting battle for supremacy.

The opening pictures show California's famous hotels, the botanical gardens in and around the Hotel Del Coronado, noted for its magnificent verandas, gardens, etc. The photography is above average, the settings chosen with exquisite taste and the general grouping of subjects calculated to please.

INQUIRIES

E. H. R.—Offering ideas for scenic films about California to companies aving studios there is offering coals in Newcastle. Querying the companies vithout studios is equally useless, since this field is left to those already n the ground. Scenic suggestions seldom bring cash returns unless a romance s woven about the scenery. Better stick to photoplays and call them cripts instead of "Screeds."

F. E. M.—Miss Mabel Normand was the stenographer who made herself omely to hold her position in Vitagraph's "The Subduing of Mrs. Nagg." 'his seems to answer your second question as well. Miss Cassinelli appears n most of the Eastern Essanay productions. We do not know whether liss Violet Reid of the Lubin company, was ever with Biograph, but we are nclined to thing that she was. Miss Leonard was with the Biograph a ouple of years ago.

RICHARD ROE.—We've heard Laemmle pronounced so many ways we are uzzled ourselves, but "Lem-ley" is about as near to it as you need get.

W. A. G.—We do not recommend any concern of the class you mention, ut we believe that your scenario will be safe enough. It seems rather a opeless sort of proposition, though.

J. A. M.—We do not place the film you mention. We do not trace Mr. 'ruze back of his connection with the Thanhouser Company. You probably an get his photograph. Write them. None of the personalities you ask for re at hand. You've picked the two companies that do not make an effort o record casts and back data is not available. Visioning is a process too omplicated to explain in this department. The Scientific American might dvise you of some back number giving the information. Briefly it is done y double exposure when a character is to be visioned in or out and by ut-out masks in the lens tube where part of the field is entirely occupied.

LUCY B.—It depends on the length of the scenes, but twenty average cenes will not run more than one reel.

MRS. I. J. C.—Jack Standing had the lead in Lubin's "Git a Horse." We do not answer Biograph questions and Mike was made by that company.

INQUISITIVE SALLY.—Mr. Blackwell is with a California Kalem company, not the El Kalems in Egypt. We imagine that Glendale, Los Angeles, Cal., will reach him. We don't know the name of the latest photoplay he s in.

J. S.—Lubin is correct and the girl is Miss Edna Payne.

IRISH.—Why not write the Fox Company? Their address is 4600 Sunset Avenue, Hollywood, Los Angeles, Cal.

D. D.—We do not find the player cast by the company you mention.

L. G.—Almost every issue we tell someone we do not answer Biograph uestions and you ask twice. Naughty!

G. H. H.—Miss Phillips is not now with Essanay. We do not know about Mr. Lanning. Miss Clara Bladnick was both Mistress and Maid in Kalem's "The Maid's Double." It was Frederick Santley who played in Kalem's "The Lost Freight Car." The address to which scenarios should be sent all depends on the company. Send a stamped and addressed envelope and we will send you a list of addresses.

J. A. M.—"The Higher Law" was the first Thanhouser Mr. Cruze played in. Miss Violet Heming was the Lady Clare in the film of that title and Joseph Graybill the blackmailer in "The Silent Witness." Mutt and Jeff and Desperate Desmond have been dropped by the Nestor Company. David H. Thompson was Hare in "East Lynne." James Cruze was both Jekyll and Hyde. What's the right title for the Selig film? You have it wrong. We do not tell Biograph names.

J. A. M.—William Clifford is with Bison. Nestor answer later.

A FAN.—Vitagraph is pronounced with the short "i." Tom Santschi was Adrian in Selig's "The Secret Wedding." Carlyle Blackwell was Frank in "An Interrupted Wedding," and Miss Alice Joyce the girl in that Kalem release.

A. A. C. M.—The word Kalem is coined from the initials of the members of the company when formed: Messrs. Kleine, Long and Marion, with a couple of extra letters to give the vowels. Mr. Kleine since sold his interest. Miss Lawrence left for Europe several weeks ago. At the time of leaving it was stated that her connection on her return was not certain though it is known that the Lubin Company made an effort to get her to sign a contract.

O. T.—Guy T. Oliver is with the Eclair Company.

J. D. B.—Miss Elsie Glynn is no longer with the Lubin Company and is not at the moment with any company, but it should not be long before she is snapped up. Her engagement with the Lubin Company has just terminated.

H. B. R.—Send us the damaged scenario of which you speak and send your name and address at the same time. The last is not for publication unless you so request, but we like to know whom we are talking to.

G. T. F.—Guy Coombs was Christie in Kalem's "The Two Spies. He is the former Edison ployer.

A. B. D.—Miss Vedah Bertram is already seen with the Western Essanay Company. Her name has appeared in several of the recent casts.

L. M. S.—Miss Alice Joyce did occasionally pose for advertisements but it does not follow that every corset advertisement in which there is shown a woman is a photograph of Miss Joyce. She has not posed for advertising matter for more than a year.

T. J. L.—Most of the Vitagraph children are regular in their attendance at school, most of them going to P. S. 153, to be exact. Their education is not neglected for their picture work.

C. D. T.—George Lessey played both of the brothers in Edison's "The Corsican Brothers." The doubles were done through trick photography. The doubles in Kalem's "Her Maid's Double" were also played by the same person.

B. H.—The company is reading a little slowly just now on account of changes in the staff and the absence of some field companies, but they are handling scripts as rapidly as possible. It only takes "a few minutes to read a script," but sometimes it takes several days to get the numerous few minutes required to read a half hundred stories.

L. R. F.—Miss Kathlyn Williams was the Nina Brooks of Selig's "The Prosecuting Attorney," and she is the Lady of the Leopards in "Lost in the Jungle." You're right in both guesses, but when you insinuate that the leopards were coach dogs, you're calling some perfectly reputable leopards cruel names.

L. P. P.—James Morrison was the sheriff, and Jack Richardson the repulsed suitor, in American's "The Sheriff's Sisters."

F. Y. M.—We've had four films by that title in the last thirteen months, and two were released ten days apart. Which is the one you want to know about?

A. C. D.—Darwin Karr is with Solax since the Edison engagement

W. L. C.—Miss Mildred Bracken is with the Melies Company, but her father is with the Bison Company.

C. L. C.—The theme you suggest is too old to stand much chance for a sale. Better hold on until you get a better idea before starting in. Most of the obvious ideas are worse than stale.

M. E. G.—Miss Mabel Moore was Mildred in Essanay's "A False Suspicion." Francis Bushman was the Weston in "Alias Billy Sargent." Miss Myrtle Stedman was the girl in "The Bully of Bingo Gulch.

W. R. C.—When a script is submitted at "usual rates," you cannot sue for more than the sum sent you, since the matter of payment is left to the discretion of the company. Mark your price if you want not less than a stated sum, but it is not a good plan as a rule. Better write and ask if that is all they ever pay, and if it is, send your next story somewhere else.

M. T. W.—It was Owen Moore, not King Baggot, who left the Imp. It would seem that you have mistaken one for the other for some time. Mr. Baggot had the part you mention.

E. M. Y.—The Pathe Weekly is handled by the exchanges as any other film would be. It goes first to those who pay for dated material and then becomes a "commercial" or filler film. We do not know that they pay for tips, but presume that they would be willing to make some arrangement if you help them to a novel subject. Write them direct.

J. M. D.—William Clifford is with the Bison Company.

M. F. H.—To state what photoplay required the largest cast of characters would involve more research than interest in the question would warrant.

I. L. E.—Any report that Miss Lawrence has connected herself with any company, either Licensed or Independent, is incorrect. She has gone abroad for a rest after a hard year's work and announces her intention of taking a long vacation.

G. T.—Ask the question again in a couple of weeks when there may be some definite information to be had. The matter is up in the air at present.

DELL.—This department is for the answering of questions, not for the booming of the photoplayer.

A. S. Y.—"R. U. E." means right upper entrance, that is the entrance to the scene on the right hand side of the stage as you face the audience and the one nearest the back drop. These and similar symbols are purely stage directions and are not to be included in photoplay because they are not necessary. Up stage is toward the rear and down stage is near the footlights. The corresponding terms in photoplay would be toward or from the camera as the case may be. It is better to leave it to the director to plan to suit his own ideas and the conditions of the moment.

C. K. H.—We do not know the lady's age and wouldn't be mean enough to tell if we did.

The Song and the Singer.

By Clarence E. Sinn.

"The Swedish Ladies' Trio, Harmony Singers," of popularity, is composed of three talented young ladies whose vocal qualifications are a credit [illegible] to their native Sweden that land of gifted singers. The roster is: Miss Rose Pearson, 1st soprano; Miss Marie Sohlberg, 2d soprano; and Miss Signa Mortenson, contralto. The harmonious blending of voices, the full rich chords of this well balanced trio, is a treat to hear and never fails to win admiration from house staff and performers, as well as the audience. Miss Mortenson has a wonderful contralto voice of great depth and power, singing low "D" (4th added line below, treble staff) with ease and purity. They have been singing principally in the better small time houses of the larger cities of the Middle West; played 15 weeks on the Pantages circuit last season, where they were next to headliners on the best bill of the year, and are now on Frank Q. Doyle's time. They might well style themselves the "International Trio," as their repertoire includes Swedish, German, French, Italian and English (principally the latter), and ranges from classic to popular songs. They have played numerous return engagements, in some cases three times at the same house in one season. They will probably be heard in the East in the near future. Among their most successful American songs are "A Garland of Old Fashioned Roses" (Forster); "Down By the Old Mill Stream" (Tell Taylor); "You Are the Ideal of My Dreams" (Shapiro); "Oh You Beautiful Doll" (Remick).

Tell Taylor Notes.

Earl Smith's "O'er the Billowy Sea" (bass solo) is pushing itself to the front rapidly and promises to achieve a place among the classic songs of that description. It is suited as well to alto and baritone voices as to bass, and should be on the list of every singer who can use a good standard number. Some of the other Tell Taylor (House of Ballads) successes are "When We Were Sweethearts." "Some Day," "Way Down South," "Down By the Old Mill Stream," "Forty Years Ago" and "Under the Old Oak Tree."

Mr. Tom Faxon is still on the road demonstrating and reports business very good. The Tell Taylor (Chicago) professional department is in Room 40, Grand Opera House Building. Charley Hudson, professional manager and his able assistants are always there to welcome any and all of the profession.

Aufderheide Notes.

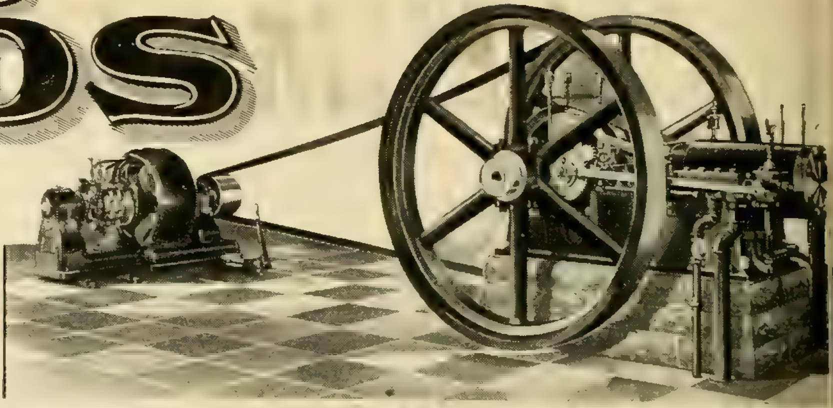
Dobes & Dorel, "Those Frisco Bears," in their entertaining singing and dancing skit, are using "That Lovin' Bear Cat Dance" with a riotous closing of their act. The new song "Dusty," ready from the press the 25th, is already being sung by several prominent artists. This promises to be one of the most popular "rag" songs of the coming season. Others are "Dusty Rag" (vocal) and "In Bamboo Land."

Forster Notes.

Among the Forster hits are "At the Rag-Time Ball," "Gee, But It's Great To Be Loved," "Garland of Old Fashioned Roses," "Kentucky Rag," each of which is being sung with success by the top liners.

From the Thompson Music Company it is learned "Let Me Know the Day Before," one of the new songs, has been placed with several good acts.

THE Foos



Special Electric, Gas, Gasoline, and Kerosene Engines

furnish light equal to the best central station service at less than half the cost. Ask us how we can reduce your charges for current from 25 to 75 per cent. Bulletin S. E. 98.

TOM McCAREY Presents

Attell-Kilbane Championship Contest Films

20 ROUNDS

MOST SCIENTIFIC THE WORLD HAS EVER PRODUCED

Sporting authorities proclaim this the most wonderful exhibition ever caught by camera. Strictly hgh-class in every way. 3,000 feet. Ready for delivery. All prints, 15c per foot.

State and Foreign Country Rights for Sale

In making offer deposit with express company or send 10% with offer. Act quickly.

FOLLOWING STATES SOLD: NEW YORK, OHIO, PENNSYLVANIA, NEW JERSEY, DISTRICT COLUMBIA, INDIANA, MICHIGAN

Address all communications to

LOS ANGELES PROJECTION CO., 727 1-2 South Main St.
Los Angeles, Cal.

HEADQUARTERS FOR :: :: :: :: SUPPLIES AT :: :: :: :: WHOLESALE

MACHINES—MACHINE PARTS—
ASBESTOS WIRE, CARBONS—
POSTER FRAMES, ETC.

KEYSTONE SALES CO., 58 NORTH 2nd STREET
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

THE GAUMONT WEEKLY

EVERY THURSDAY

THE BACKBONE OF THE INDEPENDENT PROGRAM! None like ours. So kick till you get it o ——— o ——— o ——— o ——— o

SATURDAY, MARCH 23---961 FEET

DRAMA DAY

An Old Romance

The tale of a sincere friendship that, through the cruelty of circumstances, was necessarily terminated only to be renewed as the embers were almost cold.

TUESDAY, MARCH 19---923 FEET

COMEDY DAY

JIMMIE, TEMPERANCE REFORMER

—AND—

GAME SHOOTING FROM AEROPLANE

This time Jimmie has a real moral to teach. His papa gets it good and heavy. You bet he swears off drinking and rides the water wagon never to fall off again.

GAUMONT INDEPENDENT

Scene from An Old Romance

TUESDAY, MARCH 26

995 Feet

HE WHO LAUGHS LAST, LAUGHS BEST

JIMMIE AND HIS DONKEY

SATURDAY, MARCH 30

870 Feet

THE VILLAGE IDIOT'S GRATITUDE

Scene from Jimmie, Temperance Reformer

LAST MOMENT TO ORDER

TUESDAY, MARCH 12th—

CALINO AND HIS BOARDERS and WHAT'S IN A NAME—928 Feet

Saturday, March 16th—MATERNITY—977 Feet

Gaumont

GAUMONT CO., AGENTS
FLUSHING, N. Y.

Gaumont

COMING!!!

THE MOST STUPENDOUS HAND-COLORED SPECTACLE EVER FILMED

Saturday, April 6—1210 Feet—Hand Colored

$30.00 Extra for Hand Coloring

A picturesque and interesting story dealing with the days of chivalry and the golden hours when knighthood flourished supreme.

$30.00 Extra for Hand Coloring

THE MARGRAVE'S DAUGHTER

EUROPE and ASIA bowed in homage to this hand-colored masterpiece. The Glasgow Times credited it with being a series of oil paintings replete with interest, because of the noble story that grips the whole theme.

A Feature in all Its Splendor! A Big Box-Office Revolutionizer!

The Slides that Please the Eyes
SCOTT & VAN ALTENA
Special Slides for Scientific Advertising Purposes
59 Pearl Street New York City

The Leading Topic of the Moving Picture Industry
"Spiegel's Motion Slides"
WRITE FOR ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, DEPT W
AMERICAN MOTION SLIDE CO.
611 First National Bank Building CHICAGO, ILL.

FILMS FOR RENT
6 Reels per week......... $8.00 12 Reels per week........ $14.00
18 Reels per week......... 17.00 21 Reels per week........ 20.00
Lithographs and Songs Free—Express one way. We buy and sell Second-hand Outfits.
Allowances on Old Outfits toward payment of new.
Address Department A.
AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO.
107 N. Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois.

PURE AIR
Is as necessary in your theater as fire exits. The public demand sanitary conditions. You can satisfy them at the cost of a few cents a day by using
"Aroma Foam" Perfumed Disinfectant
4 quarts $1.80
5 gallons at $1.50 per gallon............ 7.50
Including large compressed air sprayer.
Allowance of $1.50 expressage on orders of 5 gallons.
SANITARY SERVICE CORPORATION, 82 Wall Street
Address Laboratory, 1293 FULTON STREET, BROOKLYN

Feature Posters for Feature Films
(Include 1c. for each sheet for prepaid postage if ordered sent by mail.) Three-sheets 30c. Eight-sheets 75c.
Shrinking Rawhide, Turning Point, Cholera on the Plains, String of Pearls, Heir Apparent, Mother Love, Bell of Penance, Justice of the Desert, Patchwork Quilt, Diamond "S" Ranch, Diamond Brooch, A Mexican Courtship, The Danites, The Nurse, The Girl Deputy, Under Burning Skies, The Little Black Box, Captured by Wireless, Broken Spur, Winning is Losing, Two Convict Brothers, His Wife's Jealousy, Caught in the Toils, Hobo's Redemption, Battle of Pottsburg Bridge, Passing of J. B. Randall & Co., Tricked into Happiness, Melody of Love, Equitable Fire, Playmates, The Test, The Jewels, Timely Rescue, The Stowaway, The Imposter, The Blind Miner, The Heart of a Boss, His Mother, Through the Drifts, Joseph in Egypt, Delhi Durbar, Brutus, Desert Trail, Jack and the Beanstalk, and other Licensed Features Past, Present and Future.
Powers No. 5, complete. $100.00.
Edison Model B, $100.00.
All moving picture supplies at rock bottom prices. Anything and everything in the moving picture line but the film.
STERN'S NEW YORK POSTER AND SIGN CO.
43 EAST 21st STREET NEW YORK, N. Y.

Song Slide Releases

Excelsior Slide Co.

"We Swear by Washington"—Pub. by Rodney Powe, New York.

"Come Down to Your Italian Romeo"—Pub. by Gus E-wards Song Review Co., New York.

"Nothing to Do Till To-Morrow"—Pub. by Joe Mors Music Co.

"Back to the Factory, Mary"—Pub. by Joe Morris Mu C., New York.

"When I Was a Kid Like You"—Pub. by Gus Edwa Song Review Co., New York.

DeWitt C. Wheeler.

"As Long as the Band Will Play"—Pub. by M. Witma & Sons.

"Honey Dear"—Pub. by Jos. M. Daly, Boston.

"Daddy"—Pub. by J. H. Remick & Co.

"I Like Your Apron and Your Bonnet and Your Lit Quaker Gown"—Pub. by J. H. Remick & Co.

"Oh, You Little Bo-Peep"—F. A. Mills.

"Hand in Hand"—Pub. by J. H. Remick & Co.

"I'll Try Anything Once"—Pub. by J. H. Remick & Co.

A. L. Simpson, Inc.

"In Bamboo Land"—Pub. by J. H. Aufderheide & C, Indianapolis, Ind.

"Heart of Gold"—Pub. by Simpson, N. Y.

"Go Find a Sweetheart from the Emerald Isle"—Pub. Shapiro, New York City.

"Arrah! Come In Out of the Rain, Barney McShane' Pub. by J. Fred Helf Co., New York.

"I Fondly Dream, Dear One, of You"—Pub. by Simpso, New York.

"A Dream of a Garden and You"—Pub. by Ideal Mu Pub. Co., New York.

"I Am Lonesome Without You, My Dear"—Pub. by J Reinhorn, New York.

"In the Spring"—Pub. by Musicians' Music Pub. Co., N York City.

"The Turkey Trot Glide"—Pub. by Weymann & Son, Ph-adelphia, Pa.

Scott & Van Altena.

"Ephraham Jones' Brass Band"—Pub. by Leo Feist.

"'Neath the Mississippi Moon"—Pub. by Geo. Mey Music Co.

"Swaying Harmony"—Pub. by Chas. K. Harris.

"I'm Looking for a Girl to Take My Old Girl's Place"—Longbrake & Edwards.

"It Must Be Love"—Pub. by Geo Meyer Music Co.

"If Every Star Was a Pickaninny."

"That One Little Girl Is You"—Brown Music Co.

"Take Me To Your Arms Again"—Chas. K. Harris.

"The Hour of Love"—Weyman.

Levi & Co.

"The Gaby Glide"—Pub. by Shapiro.

"My Marguerite"—Pub. by Shapiro.

"He Never, Never Said Good-Bye"—Pub. by Shapiro.

"You're Just the Girlie I Adore"—Pub. by Shapiro.

Niagara Slide Co.

"One Kind Word"—Pub. by Burdick.

"If I Knew"—Pub. by Burdick.

"Knight of the Road"—Pub. by Burdick.

E-Z SLIDE
MAKE THEM YOURSELF
Clear as Glass—Will Outlast Glass
You can write or print on them as easily as on a sheet of writing paper
Ask your Film Exchange for them or write to BATTERSHALL & OLESON 39 W. ADAMS ST. CHICAGO, ILL.

FOR SALE
15 feature films, all big money makers, and a new moving picture machine, complete, will take $1,250 cash for the lot. There is $25,000 easy money waiting for some one who will get this outfit and go to Panama. List of films: Wolgast-Moran fight, 3 reels; Johnson-Ketchell fight, 3 reels; The Great Bull Fight, 1 reel, Italy Turkey War, 1 reel, The Great Train Robbery, 1 reel, White Caps or the Kentucky Night Riders, 1 reel; Custer's Last Fight, 1 reel; James Boys in Missouri, 1 reel; The Diver's Remorse, 1 reel, and the Paris, Rome, New York Black Hand, 2 reels. All film in first class condition. Apply to W. Morris, 3 W. 104th St., New York.

One-Half Sheet Synopsis; 1 and 3 sheet osters; 4 Page Booklets and Lobby Frames or all our Features.

Exhibitors are requested to write for addresses of parties handling our Features.

THE CALL OF A WOMAN

A Mammouth Masterpiece of Dramatic Art in Three Reels

PORTRAYED BY STAR PERFORMERS OF INTERNATIONAL REPUTATION

Only a Few States Left for a

'VICTIM OF THE MORMONS"

Read what a State Right
uyer writes:
"Wish to compliment you
ery highly upon a 'Victim
f the Mormons.' It is one rand production. May ire you to ship second opy."

Annie Bell Appeals in Vain to Owen Brown

GOING FAST

"THE NIHILIST'S CONSPIRACY"

A Thrilling Auto Chase

Through city and country at break-neck speed, smashing gates, etc.; showing Auto going over precipice with real passengers going to their doom.

COMING SOON

THE DEAD MAN'S CHILD

The Most Thrilling Detective Drama Ever Staged
A Wonderfully Exciting Feature Film

REAT NORTHERN SPECIAL FEATURE FILM CO.
ONE UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK

HOW WASHINGTON CROSSED THE DELAWARE

U. S. HISTORY SERIES No. 7

WILL BE RELEASED MARCH 29th, 1912, BY THOMAS A. EDISON, INC.

Don't fail to order our

Special One and Three-Sheet Posters

(Two entirely different subjects) for the above film, as the demand for the film will continue many months. Price 15c. and 35c., respectively. Special rates to exchanges. Order today from

A. B. C. COMPANY, Cleveland, Ohio

WE ARE GETTING OUT A NEW SCHEME OF POST CARD ADVERTISING. IF INTERESTED, WRITE FOR FREE SAMPLES AND PARTICULARS

LICENSED Film Stories

LUBIN.

THE NEW CONSTABLE (Mar. 18).—The ladies of Woodlawn Heights have great difficulty in keeping servants until Mrs. Dean calls a mass meeting to discuss the matter. After much debate it is resolved that the cause of the trouble is the homely appearance of Donegan, the town constable. The mayor agrees to supply the void. In quick order Kelly, the new cop, arrives in Woodlawn Heights. He is a beauty and is the delight of every woman in the town. The problem is solved; the ladies of the town are contented and have no more trouble with their servants.

THE SURPRISE PARTY SURPRISED (Mar. 20).—One evening Farmer John Marson, his wife and two daughters, Ruth, about 20, and Pearl,, 8 years old, were taken by storm with a surprise party. While the party was in full swing a wagon load of orphans bound for the asylum broke down near the house. Pearl got busy and invited all of the kiddies into the house. As they looked hungry she led the way to the store-room and immediately started to investigate the baskets of "goodies" brought in by the guests. The children had a feast. Time for refreshments arrived and Mama and Ruth explored the store-room. The baskets were empty and the little orphans, worn out by their feast and fun, were half asleep. This was an unexpected condition for the party, but they took it good naturedly and laughed it off as a good joke.

A COLLEGE GIRL (Mar. 21).—Jean Sherwood, a college girl, arriving at her room, receives word to come home. Her mother is dying, and after a kiss and a promise to keep the children together, Jean, her little brother and sister are left orphans. With the advice of Dr. Grey, Jean determines to leave college and keep the home. She finds little time to attend receptions, but decides to accept an invitation sent her for a ball. On the night of the ball the nurse tells her that Tommy is ill and wants her. She goes to the nursery. The boy pleads with her to remain, which she does. Dr. Grey, the physician, has an invitation to the dance and is telling his young friend, Dr. Gardiner, that he should meet Jean. Dr. Gardiner is interested and goes to the ball, but is disapointed at not finding Jean there. Next day Tommy's condition is much worse. Jean 'phones Dr. Grey, but Dr. Gardiner gets the message and goes in Dr. Grey's place. He and Jean work with Tommy until the crisis is over. On his return home Dr. Gardiner tells Dr. Grey of his infatuation for Jean and finally tells Jean and promises to help her take care of the children and is accepted.

THE REVOLUTIONISTS (Mar. 23).—Doctor Busso, a physician, is in love with Juanita, a young Spanish beauty. Juanita, however, has other aspirations and gives her heart and hand to Don Guillie, a Mexican, who is an officer in the army of the Mexican republic. Busso joins the revolutionists. Two years pass. Don Guillie has married Juanita and their union has been blessed by a young Senor. The baby is taken sick. Don Guillie receives word that the revolutionist is in the neighborhood and commanding that the don go in immediate pursuit of the man. Don Guillie finally departs. Way up in the mountains a desperate battle between Don Guillie's troops and the revolutionists is waged. Down in the valley a no less desperate battle is being fought by an anxious mother, with death. Busso flees from his pursuers. Close pressed he jumps into the window of a house he chances to pass. The house is the home of Don Guillie and he finds there the dying babe. Recalling his old-time medical skill he saves the baby's life. Just then the father returns from the battle. The mother secrets the saviour of her child in an adjoining room. Don Guillie is delighted to find the baby recovered but sadly disappointed at his failure to capture the revolutionist. An accident discloses the presence of Busso and Don Guillie arrests him. The mother then tells her husband of the signal service rendered by his captive. He permits the revolutionist to escape.

VITAGRAPH.

SUNSET, OR HER ONLY ROMANCE (Mar. 16).—Mary Burton lives and works with her brother Bob, to run the ranch and keep their younger sister Alice at school. Mary longs for society and romance. When James Stamford, a forest ranger, comes to the Burton home with a letter of introduction asking for board, it is readily given.

Alice Burton comes home from school. It is not long before she and James Stamford are very intimate. He proposes to Alice but she will not consent to marry him until she has gotten her sister's approval. Mary gives it with the secret wish that it was herself instead of Alice.

ESSANAY.

OUT OF THE DEPTHS (Mar. 19).—James Grey, a clerk employed by Levette & Co., appropriate some money to send his sick mother to a sanitarium, after having vainly pleaded with Levette to furnish him with the necessary amount. The shortage is discovered, Grey is sent to the penitentiary, and his mother, unfortunately seeing the newspaper notice, dies of heart-failure. Fifteen years later Grey has lived down his past, and has risen to a position of political influence. He runs for Mayor of the town and is elected by a splendid majority. Grey now becomes engaged to a charming society girl and the future looks rosy, when one night he is visited by an old fellow clerk who used to work in the office where Grey stole the money. This ruffian now threatens to expose Grey's prison record if he isn't supplied with money. Grey allows himself to be blackmailed several times, then drives the follew from the house. Swearing vengeance, the blackmailer goes to the home of Grey's fiancée and is on the point of exposing the Mayor when he is instantly killed by a bolt of lightning through the window, caused by a terrific storm raging outside. Grey is saved from unjust exposure and the tragic incident is closed forever.

CUPID'S LEAP YEAR PRANKS (Mar. 21).—Drowsy Duster, a genial specimen of the genus "hobo" is the target for an old maid who, taking advantage of leap year, proposes to him. He finally tells her to get the license and he will wait. The moment she is gone he flees for his life. Drowsy now goes to sleep before a classy billboard on which is depicted "La Belle Cassie," a noted actress. Suddenly Cassie comes to life, steps out of the sign and asks Drowsy to escort her home. He joyfully does so where he obtains a shave and swell clothes. Cassie now takes him to the theater, where Drowsy is suddenly called upon to take the part of the hero, who is ill. Drowsy costumes up in old Roman style, rehearses his role of sawing off the villain's head and is a great hit. The manager engages him on the spot at a fabulous salary, the curtain goes up, Drowsy and Cassie prepare to make their entrance when—Drowsy is rudely jerked to his feet and gazes into the grinning face of the old maid, who has returned with the marriage license and a minister. With despairing looks toward the billboard, and cursing his beautiful dream, Drowsy is forced to listen to the minister toll off the words that unites him for life to the old maid.

A RECORD ROMANCE (Mar. 22).—Young Parks, a salesman employed by John Dexter & Co., falls in love with Ruth, old Dexter's pretty daughter. Dexter, however, will not countenance any love-making and forbids Parks to come to the house. The old fellow now discharges his stenographer and Ruth, who comes to the office, begs to be allowed to do the work. Dexter finally consents and shows her the workings of the dictagraph machine he uses. The old man now plans a month's hunting and, catching Parks again making love to Ruth, he shuts himself in his office after all have gone home, and dictates Park's discharge on a dictagraph record. Parks happens to be working late and hears this through the closed door. Dexter storms out, Parks goes in, smashes the record and dictates another, raising his own salary ten a week, the other help five, installing new furnishings, etc. Next morning Ruth transcribes this astonishing letter on the typewriter, and old Plodder, the chief clerk, is amazed at old Dexter's supposed generosity. Parks now marries Ruth and they go on their honeymoon. Dexter gets word of this out at the hunting lodge and, after a series of hardships, manages to get to the city office as Parks and Ruth arrive. Matters are finally adjusted through the monthly report, which shows a 75 per cent. business increase over any other month in the firm's history, all because of the new furnishings which made the boys hustle. Dexter forgives, and happiness reigns.

THE DEPUTY'S LOVE AFAIR (Mar. 23).—Bill Simpson, a sturdy young Westerner, is made a deputy and his star is forwarded to him. Simpson is in love with pretty Olive Farnum, a daughter of the plains, and they are practically engaged. Dolores, a Mexican girl, also loves Simpson and plans to break his engagement to Olive. She enlists the aid of Pedro, a Mexican lover, and craftily promises to marry him if he will carry out her scheme. Pedro agrees and she sends him to Olive, then gets Simpson. Pedro is repulsed by Olive, but persistently takes her in his arms just as Dolores and Simpson, in the distance, look on. Simpson believes Olive false and is heartbroken. Pedro now goes to Dolores, but she laughs at him and refuses to keep her promise of marriage. He strikes her and flees. She furiously sends some Mexican vaqueros in pursuit to catch and hang him. Pedro takes refuge in Olive's cabin and begs her to save him, promising to confess Dolores' plot Olive hurries to Simpson and begs him to save Pedro. At first he sternly refuses, but she points to his star and he returns with her, rescues Pedro from the vaqueros and then listens to his confession. Pedro is allowed to go, then Simpson begs Olive's forgiveness for having doubted her, gains it and they are happy once more.

KALEM.

RECONCILED BY BURGLARS (Mar. 18—Sweethearts often quarrel and Jack and N le proved no exception. She tossed him the eng ment ring and ordered him from the house. W n the young man reached his home, he found awai g him an invitation to a week-end house party d immediately began preparations. Nellie also e ceived an invitation from the same hostess d the two lovers, each knowing nothing of e other's plans, started for the party.

At the railroad station their two suit cases e came switched. Reaching their destination, y refused to recognize each other, much to the s tonishment of hostess and guests, who thought t m ardent lovers.

To their horror, when they prepared for e night, the lovers found they had the wrong g s. Each refused to communicate with the other d make the exchange. During the night two burg s entered the rooms of Nellie and Jack. Jack o powered his man and hearing screams from Nel s room, rushed to her assistance. The guests, awa ed from their slumbers, hastened to the scene d carried off the midnight marauders and the sw hearts become reconciled.

THE KALEMITES VISIT GIBRALTAR (Mar.).—As the boat bearing the Kalem players approa s Gibraltar, you will see some splendid views f this celebrated fortress, the most impressive in e world. Going ashore, the party is just in t e to witness a parade of the Queen's drummers d the Frontier Guards. Many other interesting sig s meet the eye in this quaint city.

THE DEFEAT OF THE BREWERY GA G (Mar. 20).—James Thorpe is petitioned to bec e a candidate on the Reform ticket. He accepts d starts a strenuous campaign. Slim Jim and s pal, Reddy, arrive in town, via the box-car ro . That night, in search of plunder, they attempt o enter the home of the Thorpe's. Mrs. Thorpe s covers the burglars and fires at one, mortally wou ing him; bue he manages to crawl to the ren vous, where he expires. Bill Homas, a polit l thug, finds that the dead burglar is an exact do e of the Reform candidate, Thorpe. He has the la r abducted and brought to the retreat, where h s made prisoner. The dead burglar is then dres d in Thorpe's clothes and carried stealthily into s house, where he is later discovered by the w . She is horrified at the discovery, but determines o carry on the campaign and she personally addre s many of the meetings.

The morning of Election Day arrives. Tho , from his brewery prison, reaches through the w dow and captures one of his own carrier pige . He succeeds in sending a message which is car d to his home. Thorpe's son, upon the arrival of e pigeon, secures the message, takes it to his mot r and a rescue party is soon on the way. Thorpe s liberated and the gang rounded up. The clos g scenes show the triumphant election of Thorpe

A BUCKTOWN ROMANCE (Mar. 22).—e widow Lane learns from the reading of her husband's will that if she marries again she l lose the $1,700 a year, which he has provided r her. Perk Cherry, proprietor of the village bar shop, reads in the newspaper of the widow's i come, and decides that this is the chance fo handsome bachelor. Procuring a bouquet of flow , he proceeds to call on the dusky widow.

Shortly after his arrival, another guest, in e person of Roost Sweet, the village swell, puts in appearance. Perk believing he has no chance agai t the swell, takes his departure. Arriving at barber shop, he writes a note to Roost, asking h to cease his attentions to the widow, and stat he will sell his complete emporium for $30. T looks good to Roost. He borrows $30 from widow and buys the barber shop.

The next day, when calling on the widow, during her absence from the room, Roost reads will and finds that the widow is cut off if marries again. As soon as an opportunity prese itself, Roost goes back to his barber shop. writes to the widow, canceling their engagem . This angers the young woman, who calls on R and makes things a trifle lively for him.

Perk calls on the widow, and between them t scheme to get the best of Roost. The widow nishes the money to purchase a barber shop fit. She fits up her parlor and enters into a partnership with Perk, while Roost waits in v for customers.

SELIG.

THE GIRL OF THE LIGHTHOUSE (March 18) Jenna is the daughter of old Manuel, keeper the lighthouse. She loves Tony, the hero of fishing fleet. But Pedro is determined that T shall not possess Jenna.

Tony presents Jenna with a silk scarf. T puts to sea in the face of a threatening sto . Pedro stays ashore and plans a deadly act agai Tony. The storm breaks over the sea with t rible fury. At its height Pedro forces his way the lighthouse, overcomes the resistance of Manuel and Jenna, and extinguishes the light.

While old Manuel lies senseless on the floor Pedro is in the tower above, Jenna stretches scarf across the tower stairs, so that he trips falls heavily as he descends. While he lies conscious Jenna runs up to the lamp tower relights the beacon, so that Tony is saved. Pe

Progressive, Prosperous Exhibitors Are Using

Cin-es and Urban-Eclipse Films regularly in their programs

Our releases offer an excellent variety of drama s, comedies, travelogue subjects, and often magnificent historic productions.

Next week we will release the following:

Cin-es Tuesday,
March 19, 1912

Father's Toothache

(Comedy)

The City of Tripoli

(Travelogue)

Eclipse, Wednesday
March 20, 1912

The Song of the Gypsy

An excellent drama

Cin-es, Friday,
March 23, 1912

The Deserter

A war drama

For synopses of these films look under "Licensed Film Stories," or in our regular Bulletin.

See review of "The Song of the Gypsy," by Mr. Jas. S. McQuade, in the Moving Picture World, issue of March 9th.

GEORGE KLEINE, 166 No. State Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

Licensed by Motion Picture Patents Co.

If you have something you don't

WANT

and

WANT

something you don't have,
and

WANT

everybody to get acquainted with your

WANT

ADVERTISE THE FACTS in the

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

Classified advertising rates, 3c per word. Minimum charge, 50c. Display rates given on request.

THE CRYSTAL FILM CO.

PRODUCERS OF

"CRYSTAL" and "ARROW"
FILMS

SPECIAL MOTION PICTURES
FOR ADVERTISING, EDUCATIONAL, AND OTHER PURPOSES.

PERFORATING, PRINTING AND DEVELOPING

A PERFECT PLANT, EQUIPPED WITH THE VERY BEST MACHINERY AND OPERATED BY EXPERTS.

INSPECTION OF OUR STUDIO AND LABORATORIES IS INVITED

THE CRYSTAL FILM CO.
WENDOVER AND PARK AVES., NEW YORK, N. Y.

meets a terrible end at the moment that Tony and Jenna seal their love.

THE EPIDEMIC IN PARADISE GULCH (March 19).—The Little Hades school on the plains in Wyoming needs a teacher. Miss Williams, a very pretty Eastern girl, whom the ranchmen hear of through an advertisement, is selected. Little Hades Valley is shy on young women, so Miss Williams is given a warm reception. Each of the cowboys, in his bashful way, tries to make love to the new teacher. Miss Williams does not lead them on. However, she manages to have a lot of innocent amusement at the boys' expense. After a couple of months Jack Knight, her fiance, comes to Little Hades Valley. The cowboys are disgusted at the way they have carried on and for not asking if Miss Williams was engaged in the first place.

THE ONES WHO SUFFER (March 21).—Tom Jennings is a young man who gets started wrong and commits a burglary. Jennings is sentenced to a term in San Quentin prison. After a time he succeeds in escaping down the prison wall to the sea, and swims to freedom. He is discovered by a clergyman. He throws himself on the minister's mercy, who gives Jennings a change of clothes and throws the officers off his track. But John Lane sees the minister befriend the convict and informs the guards of what he saw.

In the meantime Jennings has made good in the city, where he works for the railroad company. Posters offering reward for Jennings have been circulated, and both John Lane and Detective Stroud have laid one away in their pockets for future reference. Lane becomes a clerk under Jennings in the railroad offices, and recognizes the former convict. He gives him away to the detectives, who arrests him. Jennings is returned to the penitentiary and Lane feels very happy in the possession of the reward. While he is serving the remainder of his term Jennings' wife dies of a broken heart, and her baby goes with her. When Jennings is released he sets about locating Lane. On a certain night, while Lane is pouring over his accounts, Jennings enters the room, seats himself opposite Lane, then presents his pistol to Lane's breast and announces that his hour of vengeance has arrived. Just as the tragedy is about to be consummated, Mrs. Lane comes down the stairs beyond the portières with her year-old baby. Jennings drops his gun and slips away into the night unobserved by the woman.

THE JUNIOR OFFICER (March 22).—John Hampton loves Ethel Temple. Ethel and he have attended college together and both look forward to the time when John shall have made enough to satisfy old man Temple that he is capable of giving Ethel the position in the world as a wife which the father thinks she is entitled to.

But the Temples are well to do and suddenly become very wealthy. Mr. and Mrs. Temple decide that Ethel must marry either wealth or title. Enter Count DeBrissac, a beggarly young French nobleman. Ethel is prevailed upon to forsake her college lover and marry the Count.

John Hampton decided to work his way around the world. He ships on an Atlantic liner as sailor.

Scenes show that Ethel has a most tragic time with the miserable Frenchman. Five years later, Temple induces the Count to take a voyage to the Mediterranean with Ethel, in order to try to shake off the influence of the actress he has taken a fancy to. The actress learns of the trip and takes passage on the same steamer. They all sail on Hampton's ship. Hampton having in the meantime become a junior officer in the trans-Atlantic service. The complications which ensue on board ship, and Hampton's nobility in bringing the Count to his senses and reuniting him with his wife, are geographically portrayed.

EDISON.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED (March 16).—We take a personally conducted tour of the island of Bermuda accompanied by a bride and groom. They are personally conducted by a trusted guide who looks after the interests of all his company. An enjoyable picture all the way through and a fortune of good things to come from this wonderful island.

HER FACE March 19).—A well-to-do lawyer, Mr Parmester, is more interested in poetry than in his profession. He lives in an apartment across the court from which can be seen at times the figure of a young woman and though he has never seen her face her personality serves as a sort of lay figure about which he builds a verse entitled "Her Face." After laying the paper down on his desk after it is finished, he leaves the room and the paper blows out of the window and lands on the windowsill of the young lady opposite. When Parmester discovers the situation he climbs out of his window and up on the opposite side, just as the wind blows the paper into the young woman's room. As she is not there he climbs in to get it, but before he can reach it he hears her coming and hides behind the curtain. The young woman finds the poem and realizes that it is meant as a description of herself. When she starts to take down her hair and loosen her dress, Parmester makes his presence known and the young woman demands an explanation. He confesses that he came for the verses. In the midst of their conversation the maid opens the door and announces a young man who has been paying attention to her. Parmester comes to the rescue and puts a ring into the lady's hand which she slips on her finger. The other young man, highly incensed, leaves them.

DRESS SUITS IN PAWN (March 20).—Oliver and Henry, college chums, receive invitations to a dance to be given by a girl whom they both admire. They are in a quandary what to do as their dress suits are in pawn. At last they hit upon an idea; they will pawn some of their wearing apparel in exchange for their dress suits. At the pawn shop the broker decides the collateral offered insufficient to redeem the two dress suits and offers a dress suit and a half in exchange. They accept his offer and agree to wear the coat alternately at the social function.

Oliver wins the privilege of wearing the garment first. On the eventful evening they are welcomed by Miss Ethel and immediately write their names on her dancing program, after which Henry steals out on the porch and patiently waits. At the termination of the first dance Oliver slips out to the porch and surrenders the precious attire to Henry, who immediately enters the house. Once with the whirling dancers he forgets his part of the contract and poor Oliver is left out on the porch gazing through the window at the gay throng inside. He induces the butler to deliver a message to Oliver reminding him of his contract. By this time Ethel becomes apprehensive at Oliver's non-appearance and upon interrogating the butler learns of his hiding place. She locates him and he makes a full confeccion of his predicament. Ethel now induces the butler to surrender his own dress suit and vest to Oliver, who now, properly attired, returns with Ethel to the ball room where he declares his love and learns to his joy that the feeling is mutual.

THE HOUSE WITH THE TALL PORCH (March 22).—The story itself deals with an old aristocratic father's love for his son, who falls in love with a young married woman. The father objects to the match and the quarrel that ensues causes the boy to leave home, and years afterwards when he returns he finds the old proud aristocrat a broken-hearted old man. The son returns and is received with open arms. The joy is too great for the father and he dies in the arms of his boy.

INCIDENTS OF THE DURBAR AT DELHI (March 23).—In a long military procession extending for six miles are thousands of soldiers on horses, camels and afoot constituting what is known as the "State Entry." Scenes taken on Durbar Plain depict a grand military review. Soldiers and spectators form a great spectacle reaching far beyond the vision of the eye. An exceptional view shows a regiment mounted on camels moving like a great caravan. Among the many other interesting views are King George and Queen Mary with their escort, the immense encampment of the Maharajah of Cashmere, including an excellent picture of His Highness at close range, the departure of the Maharajah of Fitiala after the ceremonies are over and the curious methods of transportation.

TOMMY'S GEOGRAPHY LESSON (March 23).—Father tries to get Tommy to put his mind upon his geography lesson but Tommy, with an eye to everything except his duty, stealthily tries to tell his little sister how to make her drawing. The little sister is taken by her nurse and made ready for bed while Tommy falls asleep over his task, but is roughly awakened by his father. The little sister comes in ready for bed and kisses them good night. Mother leaves the room to put the little one to bed. Tommy glances at his father and finds that he has gone to sleep. In a few short moments Tommy is sleeping peacefully in his chair and dreams "If I was only Dad and Dad was me." A transformation takes place and Tommy is soon attired in his father's clothes, while father assumes the latter's dress. In Tommy's dream his attitude towards his father is excruciatingly funny. Mother comes in and awakens them both and Tommy, after telling his dream to father, is laughingly sent to bed.

BIOGRAPH.

THE ROOT OF EVIL (March 18).—The daughter of a wealthy man has clandestinely married his secretary. Their secret is discovered by the man's confidential adviser, an unscrupulous, designing villain, who hoped to marry her himself, simply to obtain the father's wealth. Of course, he makes known his discovery, and is effusive in his sympathy for such a misalliance delicately urging the father on to extreme measures, which resulted in his disowning his daughter and making a new will in favor of the adviser. In their new home, the young husband contracts an incurable disease, and five years after her departure from her father's home, we find her the widowed mother of a small child. Meanwhile, the schemer has more strongly ingratiated himself in the esteem of the father. The daughter in desperation makes a vain appeal to her father, but is repulsed. The shock, however, is too much for the old man, and he is stricken dangerously ill. His trusted servant feels that now is the time to effect a reconciliation and goes after the daughter. The adviser, fearing for his own chances, poisons the wine the doctor leaves as a tonic for the sick ma his plan would have succeeded had not the granddaughter seen the act, and by imitatin poisoned the villain's own drink, thereby ing the result of his design.

A VOICE FROM THE DEEP (March 21).– and Harold are rivals, and both take the ob their affections for an outing. Each tries the girl from the other, but while they q another young man escorts her into the surf blames the other for the affair, and during argument Percy pushes Harold from the pie the water. Harold at once conceives the i making Percy imagine he has committed by remaining out of sight under the pier. imaginary crime almost drives Percy insane. a relief he experiences when he sees that his turns up very much alive.

HOT STUFF (March 21).—A cigar dr comes to the village and is at once attract Hank Hawkins' sweetheart, who is in turn fl by his attentions. Poor Hank is forgotten by his sweetheart's folks, with whom the mer makes quite a hit. A party is given girl's house, to which Hank does not recei "invite." As the drummer is the guest of he is master of ceremonies, hence when a s tion is made to make some taffy, he insists cooking it. Hank views the festivities t the window, and, to get even, he doses the p taffy, which they put on the window-led cool, with Tobasco sauce. You may imagin result.

PATHE.

PATHE'S WEEKLY, NO. 11, 1912 (Mar. Tarrytown, N. Y. Powerful tugboats attem break up the solid ice covering the river fro city to Albany.

Paris, France. Reichelt, a tailor, who in a new parachute for aeroplanists, tests hi vention by leaping from the Eiffel Tower. parachute fails to work, and the inventor is d to death upon the ground. 1. Seeming to r that he was about to die, Reichelt hesitate fore taking the leap. 2. The fall of 328 f made in four seconds.

Newark, N. J. A 96-mile hurricane lea trail of wreckage in the residential section.

Davos, Switzerland. The Annual Ski C brings together many well trained experts as petitors.

Houston, Tex. Fire sweeps a great secti the city, resulting in a loss of over $5,00 1. The Cleveland Compress Company had on 32,000 bales of cotton. These were totall stroyed. Loss $1,944,000. 2. Sixteen hu bales of cotton were burned on the 67 car stroyed at the McFaddin press.

Tecuciu, Roumania. The most interesting o year's army manoeuvres is a sham battle be the artillery and cavalry troops.

Mt. Vernon, Va. President Taft honors the ory of Washington by placing a wreath on the of the first president of the United States.

Potsdam, Germany. The Kaiser and Chan Bethman-Hollweg witness a great military re and later attended the religious services in ce tion of the 200th anniversary of the birth of eric II.

Springfield, Mo. A passenger train is s 42 miles West of this town for 12 hours i worst snowdrifts in years.

Paris, France. Advance Spring styles in wa suits and afternoon house gowns.

A MIDGET SHERLOCK HOLMES (Mar. Happy Hooligan and Dinky Mike, looking for are presented with an entire fruit store by an ian. The reason for this generosity is, tha Italian is threatened by the black hand. Afte two heroes get the store, the black-hand sentatives appear and demand that the $1,0 left at the old stone bridge. Dinky Mike e a method of outwitting the black hand, whi does successfully.

WHEN DUTY CALLS (Mar. 14).—Dr. Rus just received $5,600 for a new hospital, an posits it in his desk drawer. Mr. Burns, gentleman who earns his living by depriving people of what belongs to them, gets wise t treasure box, and decides to rob the house. Burns is the proud possessor of a baby w desperately ill, and while this does not inte with his profession, he has still enough hea desire the baby cured. Consequently, his sends for a physician. She sends for Doctor As he is about to leave, Dr. Rush is met b burglar in his own house, and is badly he Nevertheless, he goes where duty calls, and while treating the sick child, is again seen b burglar. The recognition is mutual and resul the burglar's reformation.

THE ARROW OF DEFIANCE (Mar. 16).– Indians take to the war path, and a scout, lea of the fact, warns all the settlers in the re who immediately go to the stockade. A no sent to the Indians, demanding that they retu their reservation, but the chief's reply to this [illegible] is an arrow, which means, in the guage of the primitive men, defiance. A fight ensues at the stockade, but ultimately settlers win and a little orphan Indian boy, [illegible] throughout the film, is adopted by settlers.

SEE THE POINT

BIO
RECOGNIZED
STANDARD
CARBONS

THERE ARE

Two Points

TO

BIO CARBONS

Besides they burn longer, burn brighter, burn whiter than any other.

None genuine without the word "BIO" on every carbon. Take no substitute.

Every "BIO" User A "BIO" Booster

Charles L. Kiewert Co.

NEW YORK 165 Greenwich St. MILWAUKEE 114 Huron St. SAN FRANCISCO 19 Sutter St.

If You Get the Best Films ---Get the Best Lens, Too

Even a good film will be spoiled if it is shown through a poor lens—but every film is shown to the very best advantage if you use a

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lens

This perfect moving picture lens is the result of fifty years' experience, and is the best that has ever been produced for the purpose. It gives brilliant, clear and clean-cut pictures—just the kind that increase your audiences and thus increase your profits.

Write for special Projection Lens Booklet 62-D.

Our name, backed by over half a century of experience, is on all our products lenses, microscopes, field glasses projection apparatus, engineering and other scientific instruments.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.

NEW YORK WASHINGTON CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO
LONDON ROCHESTER, N.Y. FRANKFORT

THE SAFETY

Of the public

DEPENDS ON THE EQUIPMENT

Of your theatre. One of the most important things is your Operating Booth. We manufacture the BEST, SIMPLEST and MOST COMPLETE operating booth on the market.

These booths are portable, and can be moved from place to place, and have been approved by the FIRE UNDERWRITERS of the following states.

MASSACHUSETTS
CONNECTICUT
VERMONT
PENNSYLVANIA
MAINE
NEW HAMPSHIRE
RHODE ISLAND
NEW YORK

Drop us a line and get our prices before ordering elsewhere. The best approved booth is made by the

NEW YORK FIREPROOF CONSTRUCTION COMPANY

43 East 21st Street New York City

THE PRICE OF GRATITUDE (March 20).—Out in Waco County many crimes have taken place and the sheriff is in wrong with the Governor. Finally, the sheriff makes a capture of a bandit, who has previously been of service to the sheriff's daughter. His daughter is instrumental in letting the bandit escape and the sheriff is compelled to resign office.

THE WRONG BRIDE (March 21).—A man engaged to a Mexican girl is at the same time carrying on a flirtation with another. On the day of his marriage he casts the latter off, but she interrupts the prospective bride on her way to church, and after hearing the girl's story the bride changes clothes and the unscrupulous man marries the wrong girl.

THE RIVAL CONSTABLES (March 23).—In a Suffragette town, a woman is elected constable, but the old constable refuses to give up his badge. About that time, old Hirum Peckwith loses some chickens and the rival constables start on a man hunt. This gives rise to many laughable situations.

C. G. P. C.

THE POISON CUP (Mar. 12).—This story takes place in an old French castle and tells of the love of a page for a princess. His love is reciprocated, but the princess is about to be forced into a marriage by her father, with a prince of another country. The page attempts to poison his rival but is discovered. He is finally saved from death himself by the aid of the princess. Finally they marry.

THE RELL BROTHERS (Mar. 12).—An acrobatic film of more than the usual interest.

DAIX AND HIS DOG (Mar. 13).—This film shows to what high intelligence a dog may be trained by a man who understands dog nature.

THE COIN OF FATE (Mar. 15).—A young girl with a sick mother, has been given a coin by a wealthy man, who has lost his only child, with which she intends to buy medicine for her ailing parent. The coin proves to be a counterfeit, however, and she is in trouble with the police. The circumstance is noted by her benefactor in the daily papers, and seeking her out, he adopts her in place of his own daughter, and she lives happily ever after.

THE DOG DETECTIVE (March 19).—Nick Winter, the famous detective, is put on a remarkably difficult case of kidnapping, and being unable to solve the mystery alone, he calls to his aid an intelligent dog, who performs the work for him.

THE ELECTRIC SPARK (March 19).—An educational picture which every boy and girl will find interesting and instructive. It shows many interesting experiments with this mysterious force.

DAVID AND SAUL (March 22).—This old Bible story does not need any description. It is not, however, the story of David and Delilah, but is the tale surrounding the time when David had Saul at his mercy and cut off only a portion of Saul's garment.

KARLBERG (SWEDEN) WAR SCHOOL EXERCISES (March 23).—A very interesting view of the setting-up exercises as practiced in the Swedish Army schools and barracks. Well photographed and decidedly entertaining.

CINES.

FROM TENT TO MANSION (Mar. 12).—Tommy, a youthful member of a traveling circus, is found in distress upon the street by a wealthy lady and taken to her home. She is so pleased with the lad that she wishes to adopt him and sends the showman a sum of money as a compensation for the loss of his services.

Although Tommy is well treated, he yearns for his beloved companion, Lily, a trapeze performer. One night he dreams that she is being mistreated and steals away to find her.

The countess follows him and after settling with the showman, brings joy to the children's hearts by taking them both to her luxurious home and adopting them as her own.

FATHER'S TOOTHACHE (March 19).—The vivacious Elsie has a bad fall, and is severely injured. Consequently, Dr. Howe comes quite often, and soon gets very well acquainted: but the stern father opposes anything more than friendship.

Later, father has a terrible toothache. Much against his will he sends for the doctor. Doctor naturally has father at his mercy, and makes the conditions for the cure rather high. The old man will not consent at first, but the pain grows worse, and finally he sees no other way out of his predicament.

THE CITY OF TRIPOLI (March 19).—An interesting topical subject, showing the most important streets, the famous Catholic Church, ancient Roman monuments, and a splendid panoramic view of the whole city.

THE DESERTER (March 23).—Peter, a handsome sergeant of the Grenadiers, is informed that his mother is dying. Heartbroken, he asks for a short leave of absence, but this is sternly refused. He, therefore, decides to desert.

Stealing away, he reaches home and rushes into his mother's dying embrace. After a short stay he returns to his regiment, but is immediately seized and condemned to be shot.

Bernice, his sweetheart, a brave little cantiniere of the regiment, gains an audience with the Emperor, and, after making a strong plea for Peter's life, succeeds in obtaining a grant of pardon. With this she rushes to the camp, and arrives just is time to save the life of her sweetheart.

MELIES.

THE REMITTANCE MAN (Mar. 28).—Cecil Rand has been allowed a monthly remittance by his brother, the Earl of Essex, and sent to Western America to make something of himself. He registers at a rough Western hotel, where he soon has a fight with Buck, a gambler and inebriate, who made sport of his English clothes, and after "licking" Buck, leaves the hotel.

Helen Evans, the pretty daughter of a miner, has witnessed the encounter, and rather falls in love with the Englishman. She hurries home and places a card reading "Room to let," on her house. Sure enough, Rand applies for it and is taken in. Helen determines to make a Westerner of him, and making him change his English riding costume for a real Western outfit, secured for him a position in her father's mine.

But Buck has never forgotten his beating, and revenge is his creed. He steals unobserved to the mine, and as miner Evans is being lowered in the shaft, cuts the rope. Great confusion follows, and Helen, in her excitement, promises to marry the man who saves her father. Buck rescues him and in a few days claims his bride, and when she says she loves Rand, he accuses Rand of having cut the rope. When things look worst for Rand and Helen, Ah Ling, the local launder, brings a satisfactory solution of the mystery by identifying the knife found near the rope as that of Buck's, which had maliciously cut off his own queue. Buck is put under arrest, and to complete Rand's happiness, news is received that the Earl's death has made him heir of the title and estate. And he invites Helen to share it with him.

Scene from "The Remittance Man" (Melies).

ECLIPSE.

THE SONG OF THE GYPSY (March 20).—Marcella, a beautiful gypsy girl, attracts the attention of Sylvester, the artist. After painting her portrait, he is charmed with her voice, and generously arranges that she attend the Conservatory of Music. There she makes rapid progress, and, a few years later, becomes a noted prima donna at the opera.

Meanwhile, a friend discovers that the artist, Sylvester, has been reduced to poverty. He kindly arranges a benefit concert in his behalf. When requested, Marcella graciously offers her services, and attracts a brilliant audience. In the midst of her song Marcella has a vision of the past, and suddenly the thought of her neglect forces her to rush from the hall to find her former benefactor. She reaches the old man just in time to calm his last moments with her gypsy songs he loved so well.

Among the Exhibitors.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The Orpheum Amusement Co. will erect a new moving picture theater at 42-44 W. Washington Street, to cost $25,000.

Houston, Tex.—R. Phillips has sold the Dixie Moving Picture Show to Sam Parish.

Berwick, Pa.—Sult Brothers have purchased the Dickson property on East Front Street and are erecting a motion picture and vaudeville theater which will have a seating capacity of 600. Messrs. Sult Brothers are also the lessees of the loca House here, which has a seating capacity and operates in conjunction with vaudeville ing pictures and illustrated slides.

Mt. Pulaski, Logan Co., Ill.—Mr. W. W. proprietor of Mt. Pulaski's favorite amu house, a photoplay theater, is contemplati remodeling and refixing of it, which will the patrons' pleasure. Several changes have place during the past months, all of whic been appreciated.

Jonesboro, Ark.—A contract has just be to Henry Leismaster for the erection of a building at 322 Main Street to be used moving picture theater and vaudeville theate bined. A. J. Kerfoot will be manager.

Humboldt, Ia.—A new motion picture and ville house to be called the New Majestic, opened in the Arnold Block by Arthur C. Hog Walla Walla, Wash.—Clarence Crews, known to his friends as "Doc," and who prietor of the Dime and Arcade photoplay th is negotiating the leasing of the Rose T which is located in the Rose Building. Thi venture will be named after Mr. Crews' first house, which for many years has proved a as a high-class vaudeville theater, under the agement of the Rose Theater Company.

Grinnell, Iowa.—Mr. W. H. Wart, proprie the Bijou, is installing a new picture t here which will cost $7,000.

Iowa City, Ia.—W. H. Englebart, owner Bijou Theater, has approved plans for the er of a new $55,000 theater which he will er the spring.

Modesto, Cal.—W. R. Mensinger will erect story theater and office building at 10th Streets, at a cost of $40,000.

Princeton, Ill.—Mr. York of this place, wi tablish a moving picture show in the room for occupied by the Brems bakery.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Plans have been prepar V. E. Winterrowd & Co., for the erection of a story theater at 42-44 W. Washington Stree cost $25,000.

Dewey, Okla.—The Yale Theater will pro erect a new theater here.

Wooster, Ohio.—Messrs. Saal & Knepper, prietors of the Grand Theater, one of Ohio's rate little photoplay houses, will, in the nea ture, have constructed a high-classed theater, uring 96 x 30. Plans for this new construction at present being worked upon and it is said, completed it will possess 300 seats. This i fourth theater of its kind to be built here population of 6,500.

Alton, Ia.—Walter Brown has purchased th terest of E. F. Roby in the Mystic Theater.

Bedford, Ia.—A. K. Morris, former propr of the Voque, has purchased the Fern M Picture Show.

Barnes City, Ia.—Walter Bowen and Leslie A will open a motion picture theater here.

Carroll, Ia.—Moorhead & Fairchild have o a motion picture theater here.

Dubuque, Ia.—The Standard Film Co. of Chic bought the Princess Theater here.

Kellerton, Ia.—A moving picture show will at Camp's Hall soon.

Ocheydan, Ia.—L. W. Clark will conduct a tion picture theater here.

Huntsville, Tex.—R. Phillips sold the Dixie tion Picture Theater to Sam Parish.

Mexia, Tex.—J. D. Murphy has opened a m picture show here.

Ft. Smith, Ark.—Jake Wells, Auby Mitter and Clarence Weis, who operate a chain of thea are planning a new vaudeville theater for this which will cost $30,000 when completed.

Detroit, Mich.—David Stott will build a new ater at Broadway and Gratiot Avenues.

New Albany, Ind.—M. Switow, who operat chain of theaters in Louisville and elsewhere planning a theater for this city with a seating pacity of 1,000.

Anderson, Ind.—F. J. Hartman has purchased Americus Theater and will remodel it.

Carthage, Mo.—Anderson, Coffee & Caulkins establish a high-class picture show in the r formerly occupied by the Holiday Hardware sto Plymouth, Wis.—The Plymouth Theater has sold to Julian Silverthorn by J. J. Greeko.

Duluth, Minn.—C. B. Sullivan and A. Lange dissolved their partnership in the Pastime Thea

Rhinelander, Wis.—P. J. Hanson is remode the Bijou Theater and expects to reopen it to public shortly. Messrs. Hanson & Taylor will on high-class moving pictures and some vaudev

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Ben Burns, owner and m ager of the Grant Theater, has purchased the L at Lohrville.

Make Your Own Slide

Without the aid of photography, from newspaper cut post cards, colored illustrations, photos, etc. Mak Your Own announcement slides, advertisement illustrated song slides, colored pictures from com papers. Slides from political office seekers' cards. Ju The Thing For Election. Slides can be made in a fe minutes. Plain Or In Colors. Complete Outfit a Directions $1.00.

MIDLAND TRANSPARENCY CO.
313 Ramge Bldg., Dept. W. Omaha, Neb

39,500,000 People Read the Daily News

News illustrations of sensational events create greater interest than mere news articles.

MAKE YOUR THEATRE A NEWS CENTRE

Use current event news slides and play to a capacity house.

LIVE NEWS DRAWS THE PUBLIC

Every man, woman and child in your city is keenly interested in the world's great events. This service reaches you while public interest is keenest. It covers every event of interest—wars—sports—strikes—disasters—events that make history, and all the leading daily happenings here and abroad.

4 Slides Daily—24 per Week, at $12.00 per Week
2 Slides Daily—12 per Week, at $6.50 per Week

Two Colored Posters Furnished Free

Three Current Event Photos 14" x 17" for lobby display with printed news titles at $5.00 per week.
Wire, phone or write for contracts. Terms weekly

HUNTON-FELL-ELLIOTT, INC., 1328 Broadway, New York City

'IT COSTS YOU NOTHING" To Compare MIRROROIDE With Any Other Curtains and Screens Now on the Market.

THE DIFFERENCE IS PLAINLY SHOWN

IRROROIDE Is the Result of Over Two Years' Experimenting. Two Years on the Market. Results Endorsed the World Over as the World's Best.

MAKE US SHOW YOU

worn Affidavits from MIRROROIDE Users Which Claim That MIRROROIDE Will Save You ⅓ on Your Juice ill and Carbon Bill. Get Our Booklet of Testimonials, Circulars, and Our Large Demonstration Samples, A and B rades, ¼ Yard, Free. Simply Write MIRROROIDE. Can be Applied to Any Plaster Wall by Your Local aper Hanger. In Screen Form Ready to Tack. No Tightening Devices Needed. Rollable Curtains Mounted on a 4-Inch Cypress Roller, Ready to Hang.

MIRROROIDE

s a Pure Silver Finish. A Mercury Foil 4-Ply Coating United With Texture of Woven Canvas. Cannot Crack, eel or Tarnish. Stands Any Climate. Will You Let Us Prove to You That You Can Reduce Your Juice Bill ⅓. arbon Bill ½. Still Obtain Daylight Pictures 90 Per Cent Brighter, Clearer, and Without Haze, Glare or Eye-train. Write Now. Get Our Artificial Leather Samples for Wall Decorating, Seats, Etc. Strictly Guaranteed. Variable Speed Motors for Any Make Projection Machines.

. H. GENTER CO. NEWBURGH, N. Y.

LECTURES ON SPECIAL FILMS

Prepared by W. STEPHEN BUSH

EACH $1.00 PER COPY POSTAGE PAID

How to Put On the Passion Play (SECOND EDITION
FOR PATHE FRERES WORLD-RENOWNED PRODUCTION

How to Put On The Crusaders, or Jerusalem Delivered
FOR WORLD'S BEST FILM CO., FEATURE FILM (Copyright 1911)

Key and Complete Lecture for Dante's Inferno
FOR MILANO FILM CO., (Italy) FIVE REEL PRODUCTION

ORDER NOW Only a limited edition of each $1.00 PER COPY

COPYRIGHTED AND FOR SALE ONLY BY

MOVING PICTURE WORLD, Box 226, Madison Square P. O., New York City

Independent Film Stories

AMBROSIO.

THE DUCHESS' LADY COMPANION (Mar. 6).—Elene, an orphan of education and refinement, secures a position as lady companion to a duchess. The son of the duchess falls in love with Elene, and she reciprocates his affection. A rejected suitor informs the duchess of the state of affairs and Elene is turned away. Humiliated and destitute, the girl seeks death in the sea but is rescued by fishermen and carried back to the duchess' villa where she is restored to health. The love of the young man grows deeper, and disregarding his mother's opposition he makes her his wife. The duchess accepts the inevitable and Elene is welcomed as a daughter.

RELIANCE.

THE RULING PASSION (Mar. 13).—Van Wert, an old musician, is discharged from the orchestra where he has played for many years. He tries hard to secure another position, but his old age militates against him. His savings exhausted, he is compelled to acept work in the orchestra of a low dance hall. His artistic soul rebels against the trashy music he is compelled to play, and, finally, when the merry-making in the hall is at its height, he tells his awed audience what he thinks of them and leaves. The young piano player, sympathizing with the old man, follows him home and persuades him to come back. He falls in love with Van Wert's daughter, however, and when the father opposes their marriage the young people elope. Time elapses, and the youth dies, leaving his wife with a little daughter. The years go by and the young widow has a hard struggle for existence and is finally obliged to take rooms in a poor tenement. The old man, again jobless, lives in the same building. The child hears the strains of the old man's violin, and inheriting a love for music, she listens, transfixed by the stirring tones. She is discovered by Van Wert, who, without knowing her identity, teaches her music. Finding him faint with hunger one day the child calls her mother and a happy reconciliation follows. Their joy is intensified by the receipt of a letter advising Van Wert that an opera he had submitted has been accepted, and that he will never again know the pain of poverty.

BEDELIA'S "AT HOME" (Mar. 16).—Bedelia's husband rises in the political world, and she aspires to society leadership. Mike, however, has no leaning for society, so he fakes up a telegram calling him away on the day Bedelia is having an "at home," and joins a poker game at Grogan's saloon. Word reaches Bedelia that the train her husband was to have taken has been wrecked and all passengers killed. The "at home" is turned into a mourning party, Bedelia's guests sitting up with her. Mike comes home in the small hours of the morning and is taken for a ghost at first, but finally convinces all that he is alive. He tells a thrilling story of his narrow escape from death, but when information is received that the train was not wrecked he has to confess his duplicity and is adequately punished by his irate spouse.

CHAMPION.

FOR HOME AND HONOR (Mar. 18).—Edward Stanton, an Englishman, lives unhappily with his wife. Out hunting one day he meets Margaret King, a country maiden. He wins her confidence and persuades her to elope. The wife is deserted and the couple go to Liverpool, where Stanton weds the girl, despite his previous marriage.

An accident to his first wife, however, prevents the crime of bigamy, being thrown from a carriage and instantly killed. Stanton soon tires of the girl and begins a flirtation with another woman. Margaret becomes indignant and takes him to task. They quarrel. Margaret leaves him and comes to America, where she becomes the wife of an estimable man.

While stopping at a Washington hotel, she again meets Stanton. Again a desire to possess her is aroused within him, but Margaret climbs the fire escape to the room occupied by Stanton and there demands him to cease his persecutions. He refuses and she shoots him. Her arrest and trial soon follow. Stanton is not dangerously wounded, and when he regains his better nature he makes a clean breast of the true facts to the Court and completely exonerates Margaret.

IRELAND AND ISRAEL (Mar. 20).—Abie Wedertzky arrives in America and is an object of ridicule by the hangers-on around the Battery in New York. He is surrounded by a gang of toughs, who treat him roughly until Pat Riley, a champion pugilist, comes to his aid. Pat gives Abie his card and invites him to his home. Abie joins a gymnasium and becomes a boxer, visits the Battery and gets revenge on his tormentors.

Later there is a boxing entertainment at the Manhattan Athletic Club, the wind-up to be a 25-round go between Riley and another for championship honors. Tom Sharkey is the referee and master of ceremonies and it is the first appearance of the celebrated pugilist in moving pictures. Abie goes on in a preliminary and is bested in a ludicrous scene. Pat is whipped at the end of four rounds and his friends all desert him, save Abie.

The years go by and Pat is reduced to poverty, while Abie prospers as a real estate dealer, having slightly changed his name. Pat is ill in bed and his family in reduced circumstances, and to make matters worse the wife is served with a writ of ejectment, the rent being in arrears. She is desperate and takes the paper to the real estate dealer and is recognized by Abie as his friend's wife. Abie accompanies her home and proves to be a ministering angel. He awakens Pat and they clasp hands in a happy reunion.

REPUBLIC.

A NEW LEASE ON LIFE (Mar. 19).—Fred Meredith is a victim of the "white plague." While assisting an old lady who has fallen in the street, he is brought to the notice of Mr. Walters, a rich philanthropist, and his daughter. He invites Fred to call at his house, which he does. Fred is advised to go to a sanitarium.

He arrives at Ray Brook Sanitarium. Scenes are shown where Fred is taking the cure, right on to his final discharge from the sanitarium.

He decides to go to a health resort and while there receives a visit from his benefactors. Fred has been indulging in various winter sports and persuades Mr. Walters and Bertha to visit the skating race with him. The box office is robbed. Fred goes after the robbers. The hold-up men are thrown from their sleigh over a cliff, one of them is killed and the other tries to escape with the money but is captured by Fred.

Fred realizes that Bertha's interest in him has grown to love, and that he also loves her; thus two loving and sincere hearts are united.

THE FACE AT THE WINDOW (Mar. 23).—A young gambler stops at the Caribou Road House. He meets Bess Lloyd and falls in love with her. He finally asks her to marry him, but she states she cannot as she is promised to another. Pete Benson, Bess' sweetheart, arrives. The gambler decides to hit the trail, but he must see Bess before he goes; he calls on her and during their conversation Bess lets fall a remark that she is sorry the gambler is going away. He misconstrues her meaning and so far forgets himself that he takes her in his arms and kisses her.

Pete has seen from a distance the gambler take the girl in his arms. As the gambler leaves he comes to Bess and expresses his anger. The gambler leaves the road house and takes the trail. He stops near the cabin where Bess lives. Pete follows the gambler and on the edge of a cliff they have a fight. Pete becomes heated and incidentally pushes the gambler over the cliff; Pete returns to his house. The gambler is picked up by some trappers and taken to their hut.

Bess and the invited guests arrive at the road house for the wedding. Pete's nerves are all unstrung, but he eventually arrives at the road house. In the meantime the gambler goes to the road house and through the window sees the wedding about to take place. Pete sees the gambler's face at the window and collapses. He is carried to another room and becomes temporarily insane. He flees to the seat of his crime. A searching party is led by the gambler. Pete, looging over the cliff, loses his balance and falls. The searchers find his dead body later and he is brought back to the road house.

Bess learns that the gambler was attacked by Pete and the real cause of Pete's madness. She appreciates the gambler's silence in the matter. When all is over and as he is about to cross the trail and out of her life, she expresses her wish for him to stay and eventually marries him.

NESTOR.

THE REVELATION (Mar. 11).—Arthur Colville is a member of the Stock Exchange. He accumulates a fortune. The power of gold dominates him to such an extent as to make him cold even toward his own wife and son, not to speak of other people asking aid.

After spending the evening at the opera, Mr. Colville makes himself comfortable in a rocker facing the fire-place. He falls asleep and dreams. At his office everything goes wrong and the vagaries of the stock market completely wipe away his fortune. By rapid stages he descends to the level of a beggar. In a dilapidated attic where he lives, his only child is ill unto death and his wife almost mad with hunger and grief. The doctor calls and does his utmost to save the boy's life.. Then he suddenly awakes. The father instinct makes him rush into his child's bed-room. He takes up the boy and makes sure he is well. Colville firmly decides to change his mode of living and devote his time and money to the welfare of mankind.

THE FIGHTING CHANCE (Mar. 13).—Trego Bill and Pete, two outlaws, are partners. While Bill is dreaming of going to a new country to commence all over again, and live on the square, Pete enters and asks Bill for money. Pete is angry, and takes out a reward placard, reading, "$500 Reward for information leading to the cap Trego Bill—John Kelly, sheriff."

Pete decides to pose as a stranger and betr partner to gain the reward. The sheriff a men, headed by Pete, start off for Bill's Bill, in the meanwhile, has packed up, and le note for Pete, starts away. On the trail the sheriff and posse with Pete, and becom picious. Hides until they have passed, the back to see what they are after. Dismountin distance from the shack, Bill creeps up an hears enough of their conversation to convin that Pete has betrayed him. He hurries to the sheriff's horses are tied. Selecting Pet drives him off, so that when the sheriff and h return, they mount and ride away, leaving l catch his horse.

As he comes up to his horse, Bill appears cuses Pete. A violent quarrel arises. Pete Bill and runs. Bill stops to bind up his then follows. Pete runs on and on until he to a shack. Seeing a ladder leading to the and fearing Bill's appearance at any mome climbs up and crawls into the window. Pr he hears voices below, and looking through in the trap door, he sees a man and wife away a couple of bags of gold. They soon Pete drops down into the room and secures t just as the woman, who was only bidding h band good-bye in the path, returns. She spri Pete, and they struggle; Pete finally knoc down, and picking up the gold to run out, by Bill. The wife runs out, calling after h band and overtaking him as the men struggle man returns just in time to prevent Pete fro ing Bill with his upraised knife. As the h covers Pete with his revolver, Bill hear sheriff and his men approaching with the whom they had met on the road. He run leaving Pete to be placed under arrest.

THE UNKNOWN MODEL (Mar. 16). Brown's birthday is approaching. Hubby deci surprise her with a new dress. A dressma taken into his confidence. Brown steals his "measure" and then proceeds to get a model

His office is stormed by a bevy of pretty Mrs. Brown happens to drop in, and in a of fun poses as a model. The dressmaker pr engages her. Promising to report for duty morrow, Mrs. Brown departs, but not unt dressmaker has acquainted her with Mr. B intentions.

In due time the dress is finished, and Mr. is informed to call at the dressmaker's a p. m. to see the creation on the Business detains him, and the Mrs. Slips o noticed by the dressmaker. Brown manag get through with his business deal and ma "Marathon dash" to the dressmaker's. The finds that both model and dress have van The police are quickly called into the case they soon catch Mrs. Brown with the goods o headquarters Brown realizes that the sur though on his wife is "on" him.

AMERICAN.

A BAD INVESTMENT (Mar. 14).—Jack loves Maud Brooks. When he told his fathe old gentleman refused to give him any assi whatever in a financial way. Jack returns father and announces his intention of makin own way. The old gentleman heartily agrees shows his appreciation by giving his son a for $3,000, and advises him against investi mining stock. Jack bids his sweetheart and goodby and heads for the glorious West. He impresses the miners and cowboys around saloon by his prodigality, lighting his cigars $5.00 bills, etc., and it soon reaches the ears mining sharp. He continues to meet the Eas and takes him to an old abandoned sluice mi manages to sell it to him for two-thirds capital. Jack immediately hires miners and sits down and waits for the gold to come. miners, in the plot with the sharper, work they have earned his remaining $1,000 and th foreman informs him that the mine is wort Jack wires his father for help telling him investment, but is refused.

Jack hunts up the mining sharp and hires to go in and sell his father stock in the mi which he invested. The sharp succeeds beyon wildest expectations, unloading on the old g man $10,000 worth of stock in Jack's $2,500 ve A few days later Jack returns home and his father. He informs him he has purchase same plant that Jack himself fell for and t man is forced to admit his son's cleverness. he does to Jack's sweetheart, by introduci son as his private secretary.

THE FULL VALUE (Mar. 18).—Jack Ray loves the pretty stenographer in the office an

LANTERN SLIDE
Of Every Description for Advertising Announcements and Lectu
Made to order on short notice
Finest Work. Lowest Prices
PREMIER SLIDE CO.
Geo. J. Goldthorpe & Co.
96 Decker Bldg., 33 Union Square, New Y

Why Spend Money for Experiments
When We Offer You a Perfect Screen, Long Past That Stage?

A screen that rolls
Beautiful Daylight pictures
Saves half your juice bill
No eye strain, glare
No veil to mar the perfect surface

A PERFECT reproduction and blending of the natural colors of your picture, with the soft, harmonious effects that are true to life and nature only

Our price less than many inferior curtains now on the market. Write today for particulars

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREENS anufactured by AMERICAN THEATRE CURTAIN & SUPPLY CO., Main & Chestnut, St. Louis, Mo.

ATTENTION

New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Rhode Island Theatre Managers

WE HAVE THE ABOVE STATE AND TERRITORIAL RIGHTS FOR

NOW READY
ZIGOMAR
FOR BOOKING

THE FEATURE OF FEATURES

The Greatest Sensation ever produced in Motion Pictures. A production in 3 reels. Time brings progress. Today it is the Feature Film.

ZIGOMAR HAS THE CALL

Elegant photo lobby displays. One and three sheet lithos, booklets, cuts and banners. Write for dates and terms. Be first to show ZIGOMAR in your town.

FEATURE PHOTOPLAY CO., 145 West 45th St., Exchange Building New York

---

For reference as to Quality consult the following: The Vitagraph Co. of America, The dependent Moving Pictures Co. of America, The Powers Picture Plays Co., Nestor Co., hanhouser Co., Rex, Champion, Melies, Gaumont, St. Louis Motion Picture Co., Kineacolor Co. of America, N. Y. Motion Picture Co., Bison, Crystal Film Co.

"What the Dickens"

Admirers have to say about his works is no stronger or more flattering than what the "Corcoran" admirers say of his developing tanks.

Suppose you ask them?

A. J. CORCORAN, Inc.
11 JOHN STREET :: NEW YORK CITY

attentions were not unpleasing to the lady. But the manager also admires her and determines to show her attentions. Flattered, the thoughtless girl accepted his attentions and allowed him to escort her home. They are observed by Jack. He then hurries to the home of the girl and demands that she choose between him and his employer. She answers him in kind and then leaves him abruptly. When he reports for duty the next morning he is discharged. In the weeks that follow he finds work impossible to secure and is soon reduced to poverty.

In the meantime the employer has made more and more advances to the girl, until one morning in the office believing her acquiescent, he attempts to insult her. Freeing herself from his arms the outraged girl takes her hat and leaves his employ. The manager determines to humble the girl. Her mother's property is listed with the firm and he determines to defraud her out of it. He tells his new stenographer to call the young man employed to take Jack's old position, and outlines his plans to him.

The new employee is something of a grafter himself and he sees a way to make some money himself out of the deal. He hurries from the office and seeking an equally unscrupulous crony, tells him that the widow's property can be bought for so much money. They can buy it and then force the real estate firm to pay them a decent profit. It happened that Jack was seated on the bench when the proposition was broached and gathered that no matter who made the profit, the real estate firm or his agent, the widow was sure to lose. He hurries to her with his information and asks her to allow him to engineer the deal.

When the agent comes to her with his proposition she refers him to Jack, stating that he had already secured an option on the property. Seeing that his chance for profit has fallen through, the agent tells Jack to do business direct with the firm.

Jack calls at the real estate office and knowing that the property is necessary to the firm to further other plans, forces his old employer to pay full value for the property.

The disgruntled manager makes out a check and Jack hurries back to the widow with the good news. And the old sweetheart learns the full value of the man that loves her and their differences are settled.

LUX.

BILL HAS HIS OWN BACK (Mar. 15).—Bill receives notice, while working in a hotel, that his services are no longer required. He plans, with one of the housemaids, who has also been discharged, to "get his own back" on the manager of the hotel. Disguised as a wealthy traveler and his lady, the conspirators manage to get a room in the hotel from which to work sundry amusing little pranks, which result in the immediate and indignant departure of the guests. Having caused the departure of the last guest in the hotel, Bill and the housemaid depart in a lordly manner, which thoroughly deceives the bewildered manager, who retires to lament the loss of a good reputation.

ARABELLA JOINS THE S. P. C. A. (Mar. 15).—Arabella becomes a member of the S. P. C. A., and fully realizes the responsibility of her position. She is called to prevent cruel actions being perpetrated against nearly as many animals as entered the Ark. Finally, her home strongly resembles a menagerie. However, "noblesse oblige", Her obligations certainly afford food for much humor.

MAJESTIC.

THE BETTER INFLUENCE (Mar. 17).—Henry Marion, broken-hearted by the death of his wife shortly after the birth of a baby boy, places the child with his wife's mother and, mad for an entire change of existence, moves to New York.

There for five years he loses sight of his baby boy, but finds that careless living and the society of careless men and women have not brought joy nor even contentment. He becomes entangled with a widow named Mrs. Bennet Allan. A scoffing visit to a Salvation Army Hall by Marion and Mrs. Allan and a gay party almost brings him to his senses, for the sight of a sweet young girl in the uniform of the Army praying for a blessing upon the scoffers before her, makes him quiet the noisy interruptions of the party. He leads them away to finish the evening in his apartment where a telegram awaits him that his late wife's mother has suddenly died of heart disease, and that he must make immediate arrangements for the care of his little son now five years old. He fetches the boy to New York and there Mrs. Allen finds a worthy rival in an innocent child.

The boy's little fingers reach out and the Salvation Army girl is also arrayed against the forces that are disintegrating the character of the child's father, and the babe that cost the father so much at his birth is the means of preserving the finer instincts of his father and leading him into paths bathed in the pure sunshine of tender love.

LEAP YEAR (Mar. 19).—Any man loved by two girls at the same time is in a most embarrassing position, but in Richard Lee's case the situation was rendered the more susceptible of trouble in that the girls were sisters and that he was in love wholeheartedly with but one of them. At last he mustered up courage to buy an engagement ring and prepared to ask Mabel Benton the fateful question.

Mabel, who was ready enough to make him the happiest man in the world, was sidetracked by her sister Grace, who was laboring under the erroneous impression that she was the real object of Dick's attentions, and Dick, innocently seized with chills that ever affect true lovers, neglected to state that Mabel was the girl the ring was intended for.

Grace, misunderstanding the silence, determined to help him along and bethought her of the Leap Year privilege and calmly proposed to the astounded and abashed Dick.

Mabel's heart was broken and Dick, engaged to the wrong girl, ready to commit suicide. Now Dick's father, exiled for business reasons ten years in Australia and unknown to the Benton family, was on his way home, and Dick, thrown into contact with a tramp, of habits alcoholic, unclean and unethical, determined on a desperate expedient to force Grace to release him from his engagement. His plan of passing off the disreputable and thieving old bum as his father caused a series of complications that while distinctly humerous, nearly landed Dick in jail; but the opportune arrival of his real parent saved the situation after Grace had repudiated her engagement and tender-hearted little Mabel had flown to Dick's rescue, no matter how terrible his father appeared.

GREAT NORTHERN.

THE CALL OF A WOMAN (3 Reels).—Owen Brown, member of a gang of toughs, is touched in his better nature by a girl named Annie Bell. The latter is still going to school and on her way home is annoyed by three thugs who are routed by Brown. The girl takes a kindly interest in Brown and rescues him from his debasing surroundings. He is educated and shows great talents. He suffers a sun-stroke and while under treatment tastes a glass of wine, which brings back his craving for drink and he has a sad moral relapse. He later somewhat redeems himself, but loses his mind after writing an autographic novel. He is nursed back into sanity by Annie, who then becomes his life-partner.

GAUMONT.

JIMMIE, TEMPERANCE REFORMER (Mar. 19).—The family of ragpickers, of which Jimmie is the oldest son, is really a very happy group of individuals. The only beclouding circumstance is the regular Saturday spree of the father. Jimmie does his best to straighten up this one big fault—first by entreaty and then by the clever ruse of pretending to be intoxicated one Friday. The father is horror-stricken at the conduct of his son and goes to reprimand him, when the son reveals his soberness and succeeds in shaming his father into abstinance on Saturdays. Papa behaves all day, but on Sunday develops an irresistible thirst, and breaks into a run for the closest saloon, only to be restrained by Jimmie, the temperance reformer, again—this time by the "saturated with water" cure.

GAME SHOOTING FROM AEROPLANE (Mar. 19).—Lagagneux, one of France's leading aviators, portrays his skill with the rifle, while soaring and volplaning in the atmospheric altitudes.

AN OLD ROMANCE (Mar. 23).—Jeanne is ardently in love with Henry, an honorable, manly fellow who is just as deeply in love with her. Unfortunately Jeanne's parents had arranged a match with a young man of higher social position and of greater affluence. With heartfelt reluctance the two lovers separate, supposedly forever. Jeanne and the parents' choice are married and really enjoy a very happy life, except for the fact their young son is not robust and strong. An epidemic of croup grips the neighborhood and claims the little fellow as a victim. His parents wire at once for their specialist, who, owing to his inability to attend to the case, sends a young assistant in his place. To their mutual surprise, the physician turns out to be the former Henry, whom Jeanne had never quite forgotten. The husband watches his wife with increasing jealousy and fairly flies into a rage when he finds Henry offering his wife consolation about her child's illness in the form of an embrace. In spite of the fact that the child is pulled through, the husband is about to denounce his wife, when she presents correspondence that shows the sterling calibre of Henry to the humiliation of Jeanne's husband.

THANHOUSER.

NICHOLAS NICKLEBY (Mar. 19).—PART I. Nicholas Nickleby was the son of a country gentleman who died leaving his family destitute. The son, his sister, Kate, and their mother, went to London, hoping that the father's brother, Ralph, would aid them to secure a livelihood. Ralph, a money-lender and a miser, was indifferent to the claims of those of his own blood, but the beauty of Kate impressed him and he thought that she might be of assistance to him in his business life. To get the girl in his power he sent Nicholas to Yorkshire, as assistant to a schoolmaster, Squeers, promising to care for his mother and sister. With Nicholas out of the way, he planned to use the girl to lure rich men to his home, and loan them money on excessive terms.

The girl, however, was too high-minded and pure to lend herself to any such scheme, although for some time she did not believe that her uncle was to blame. In the meantime, Nicholas found that the "school" was a den of infamy—the neglected, starved and ill-treated, and Squ drunken, brutal, ignorant tyrant. For th of his mother and sister, he stood it as long could, but finally the cruelty of Squeers to drudge. Smike, aroused his just indignatio thrashed Squeers soundly, and left the scho ever. Returning home, he finds his uncle, reviling the two helpless women, and telling that he will force them to obey his com Nicholas enters just in time, declares h protect his mother and sister, and orders t grateful and heartless uncle from the hous addition he promises Smike that he will have with them for the rest of his life.

PART II. Nicholas Nickleby, after his but unfortunate experience at the school of ford Squeers, returns to London determined t a home for his mother and sister. He fails work, and his uncle, Ralph, offers to see th women are cared for, if Nicholas will go o the world and shift for himself. Nicholas, w prospects, consents, and leaves London, panied by the faithful Smike.

At a roadside inn the wayfarers fall i Vincent Crummels, a theatrical manager, who them employment. They gladly accept, and new vocation, Nicholas quickly achieves fam arouses the jealousy of other members of th pany and one of the men plots to "take him a peg," but the vigorous tactics of Nicholas the scheme to naught.

In the meantime Nicholas' sister Kate ha exposed to insult in the home of her uncl he does not defend her. His clerk, Newman who has kept a watch over her, warns Nichola he comes to London, post haste.

Immediately after his arrival, Nichola chance, meets Sir Mulberry Hawk, who has a his sister with his attentions, and Nichola cessfully defends her honor.

Nicholas secures employment with the f Cherryble Brothers. At their establis Nicholas meets Medeline Bray, with who falls in love. He is able to prevent her being united to a worthless old miser, who h father in his power, and in the end wins he

THE TAMING OF MARY (Mar. 22).—They an old married couple, yet she was jealo seemed to her that every woman they me designs on her middle-aged husband. They on a pleasure trip South, but he failed to himself—his wife would not let him. Then the aid of a friend, he decided to make o perate effort to cure his wife of her foolishn

The wife received a letter one day sign friend," enclosing the photograph of her h and a beautiful woman, and from appearance were very much in love with each other friend" explained that he would enable the to confront the brazen creature if she so d and told her where to meet him. She was pro on hand at the appointed hour, armed with a whip, willing and eager to get her name newspapers.

She met the woman, but did not lift a ha her. No, it was not her husband's long lost but under the circumstances, the wife coul wax angry. Furthermore it taught her a and she stopped being jealous, for the bes to cure such a woman is to make her ridi and that was exactly what happened in this

THE GOLF CADDIE'S DOG (Mar. 22).—Th was a beautiful golf player, the woman w beautiful girl. The man, however, loved her. were playing over the course in St. Augustin although their twosomes were onesided, Mr. had nothing on them when it came to the match. Their darky caddy looked on and app for he greatly admired the young man, and t the girl with tolerance, because a good seemed to be very fond of her.

Then came the quarrel. The girl could n out of a bunker, and in a rage because the laughed, she decided to get out of her e ment. It was a sad blow for the man, and e sad for the caddy. He had been "carrying do but now he had lost two patrons at one fell s

The girl came to the links one day, hire caddy, and started around by herself. Af short time, she met a young man, sent her back to the house, and flirted with her new ad The caddy did not approve. He objected t second suitor, first because he could not play and second because he was a dude. Lastly h a very poor opinion of the girl who would a hero and accept the attentions of a ma didn't play golf.

On the way back to the clubhouse the thought deeply. He saw his hero "teeing and decided to start something. So he went got his "trifling" dog, and made him mad he turned him loose on the links, gave the

INCANDESCENT LAMP
FOR PARKS, Theaters, SHOW
CARBON LAMPS
CLASS A. | CLASS B.
Clear - 10c | Clear -
Colored - 11c | Colored -
Tungsten Lamps, 60 W., 60c; 40
40c.
SAFETY ELECTRIC
342 N. Michigan Ave., Chicag

LUX FILMS

THE WORTH-WHILE FILM

BILL HAS HIS OWN BACK

Comedy—Length 495 feet

Arabella Joins the S. P. C. A.

Comedy—Length 449 feet

An exciting film which will afford much laughter.

R. PRIEUR

10 East 15th St. New York City

Telephone 3427 Stuyvesant

Sold Only Through MOTION PICTURE DISTRIBUTING & SALES CO.

ONLY EASTMAN RAW STOCK USED.

WRITE US, AND WE WILL PLACE YOU ON OUR MAILING LIST

W. E. GREENE
FILM EXCHANGE, Inc.

THE OLDEST AND LARGEST INDEPENDENT
ILM EXCHANGE IN NEW ENGLAND

Mr. Exhibitor:

Start the Season right by using an Independent Service from a Reliable House. We are buying the Output of the Sales Co. and have some choice services open. Write, wire, or call today at

W. E. Greene Film Exchange, Inc.
228 TREMONT ST., BOSTON, MASS.

Telephone: 2187-3790 Oxford

AgfA

CELLULOID POSITIVE

CELLULOID NEGATIVE

AND

NON=FLAM POSITIVE

(Made Under License of the Patentee)

Raw Film Supply Co.
15 East 26th Street
New York

Tel. Mad. Sq. 7876 Cable Rawfilm New York

The outcome was as he had expected. The "dude" deserted the girl and climbed a tree. The "hero" who was not in the plot, rescued the maiden in distress, restored himself to her good graces, and the caddy again found pleasure and profit in "carrying double."

How do you make a good natured dog mad? Give a darkey caddy some hot water, and plenty of soap and he will tell you, if he feels so inclined. There is nothing magical about it, but it can be worked most effectively, and is proven in this case.

IMP.

THE MAN FROM THE WEST (Mar. 18).—Cousin Steve, from the West, finds his way to the East. He stayed with his relatives and mistook their innocent attentions for designs upon his peace of mind. He did not understand the Eastern veneer of civilization. He got into trouble with the butler; he saw a cabman abusing a horse and unwisely interfered. He rescued a girl in distress, and generally did a lot of things the average Easterner regards as unnecessary.

There was a family conspiracy to get him to marry his cousin, who loved another. Steve, too, had conceived other ideas. The cook of the family was a very comfortable and good-natured girl, with whom Steve in his blunt, homely way had struck up a flirtation, and then a friendship. She made excellent pies and Steve liked pies, and liked the maker so much that he decided to marry her.

Steve in his good-heartedness makes a very handsome present to the man in love with his cousin, whom Steve regards somewhat critically as a clothes-horse and not a woman.

This story proves that, after all, the heart is the predisposing factor in marriage even amongst men of the primitive type of Cousin Steve, who are supposed to fall for more externals.

BETTER THAN GOLD (Mar. 21).—A good-natured miner, Jim Stafford, harbored in his house a young couple, who had not met with the best of luck. They had a child. Harry Green, the husband, drank somewhat and gambled and lost. Matters came to that point when both he and his wife were penniless. So in Jim's absence they steal his money and by way of payment, they leave their baby.

Jim accepts the child. He reared the child until she was of an age to be educated. So when she was rising seven, she was put into a convent. Jim and his associates took leave of her, and the former is left lamenting the loss of his little foster child.

Meanwhile, things have gone from bad to worse with Harry Green and his wife. He has become a degenerate and she has to get their bread by washing. Years pass. The child finishes her term in school and is to go home; and home she goes.

But the instincts of a mother are strong upon Myrtle Green and she makes her way to Parson Jim's house, and before the girl arrives, confesses to Jim that it was she who left the little baby in his house so many years ago. The struggle is too much for the woman; she dies.

When the girl arrives home it is to learn of her mother's death. In company with Parson Jim she visits the grave of the dead woman.

The school girl has become a woman and it is obvious that when both learn the truth, lonely Parson Jim finds a future wife in the little waif that years before was intrusted to him.

CLASSICAL DANCES BY COUNTESS THAMARA DE SWIRSKY (March 23).—The series is given by the Countess Thamara de Swirsky, who first of all offers a humorous dance and then one entitled "Spirit of Music." A series of plastic poses form part of the offering. The dancer seeks to interpret musical effects by the poetry of motion. The dances, therefore, besides having mere aesthetic value are also scientifically esteemed because of the suggested possibilities of correlating movement to sound or even light. In other words, the dances as illustrated by Mlle. de Swirsky may be regarded as a composition which appeals as strongly to the eye as music may be understood to appeal to the ear.

THE TANKVILLE CONSTABLE (March 23).—Eben Green, the Tankville constable, was a deadly enemy of the over-speeder. The local limit was ten miles an hour and Eben, brave man, held all and sundry to the strict limit of the law. The result was that he was constantly getting himself in "Dutch" with his good friends. Eben seeks repose from his labors by the wayside and falls asleep and he dreams a dream. He and his help endeavor to stop an automobile driven by a local judge, but the judge evades the obstacle, placed across the road, and in evading it, meets with an accident.

On recovery from this accident he has poor Eben arrested for attempted murder, and he is condemned to thirty years hard labor. His troubles as a convict are terrible to follow, but finally he escapes from his prison by scaling its walls, after the guards have unsuccessfully attempted to electrocute him.

The convict constable, of course, coalesces with the real constable in the picture, and when Eben awakes and comes to his senses, he changes the Tankville sign from ten miles an hour to 100 miles an hour. By this means he relieves himself of further trouble by "over-speeders."

SOLAX.

COUNT HENRI, THE HUNTER (March 20).—Count Henri leaves his mouldering castle near the outskirts of Paris, and decides to emigrate, temporarily, at least, to the land of money and heiresses. On his arrival the count is well received in American society. Had the count limited his boastful conversation to the mere recital of his family connections he would, perhaps, have been successful in getting an heiress. But the count had an imagination and so he told his host and his new acquaintances that he was a wonderful hunter and a remarkable shot.

Some of his host's friends got wise to Henri and trumped up a plan by which he is exposed. They go out to the chase and before long one of the men, who is the rival of the count, gets one of his friends to masquerade inside a bear-skin. In the course of the chase, the count meets this bear, and, of course, the first impulse of the count is to retreat to pleasanter surroundings. But the bear is not to be so easily outwitted. He pursues the flying count until in desperation the count shoots in the air. To his surprise, the count sees the bear do a somersault and then lie perfectly still. The count laborously drags back his trophy of the hunt—and then the fun first begins.

THE CHILD OF THE TENEMENTS (March 22).—Lydie Martin has trouble with her ailing child. Dr. Mann, a friend of the East Side poor, does all he can to help Lydie and her sick child. Lydie plans to take her child and her husband to the country—a place in California where a neighbor has relations. But there is no prospect of going—her husband is out of work and three hundred dollars are needed.

One day Dr. Mann, while making his rounds of the tenement, stops in to see the Martins.

When Mrs. Martin's eyes light on the wealthy doctor's coat, a sudden impulse impels her to go through the doctor's pockets. She finds his wallet, from which she removes just enough that would take her and hers to California. Just as she takes the money, an evil-minded and jealous neighfor sees the act and immediately goes off to report to the police.

In the meanwhile, Lydie Martin makes hasty preparations for a departure to California, explaining to her husband that the doctor had loaned her the money. Just as she is about to go the police break in and she is accused of theft. The doctor is brought in and he tells the police that he loaned the money to Mrs. Martin. Mrs. Martin thanks him with grateful eyes and the little family start for fresh air and happiness.

POWERS.

SOGARTH AROON (March 16).—Pretty Kitty O'Toole has two paths open to her; one leading to wealth and apparent happiness, as the wife of the young lord, while the other leads her along the same way she has always traveled—the life of the simple Irish peasant—as the helpmeet of plain Terence O'Fallon.

Influenced by a terrible and prophetic vision and advised by the good old priest, Father Aroon, she is led to choose the humbler path and remain within her own proper sphere.

SCENES OF RICHMOND, VA. (March 19).—A camera tour of this interesting city, showing the various public buildings; a bird's-eye view of the James River; fortifications used in 1863 and other places of interest connected with the Civil War; the public parks; Soldiers' Home; and the big reception tendered Governor Wilson by the State Assembly.

TENDER HEARTED MIKE (March 19).—Billy and Ethel, happily married, are about to go to the theater when a telegram arrives for Ethel stating that her mother is coming for a long visit. Ethel is delighted but poor Billy is downhearted and refuses to go out. This makes Ethel angry and a quarrel ensues after which Billy rushes from the room, leaving her in despair. Ethel then decides that life is not worth living and she writes a letter of farewell to Billy, turns on the gas and awaits the end. Meanwhile Billy, in another room, is doing the same thing, only he selects the revolver route. It is while they are both writing that a burglar enters and finds his way into the room where Ethel is seated and the same scene greets him. Instantly it dawns on him that there has been a quarrel and it is then that "Tender Hearted Mike" decides to bring them together. Going into Billy's room and holding up the would-be suicide with a gun, he backs him into the room where Ethel is seated, carrying with him Billy's farewell letter to Ethel. He then brings them face to face and, compelling each to read the other's letter, he makes them see their silly mistake and "make up." While they are spooning Mike proceeds to fill his bag, even taking the rug from under their feet, and sneaks out. Entering, unobserved by the young couple, Ethel's mother announces herself and is received with ecstatic hugs and kisses by her "children."

ECLAIR.

BRIDGE (March 12).—The Grays are called an ideal couple and while the husband is a salaried man, his wife has met socially Mrs. Ward, a leader of the smart set and by her is asked to join a bridge club. At first Mrs. Gray loses a few dollars at cards, and frightened she tells her husband, promising never to play again for m But Mrs. Ward comes for her in an auto, flattered by her attention, she goes with h another bridge party. Here she loses so money that she is afraid to tell her husband, when the woman demands payment of the Mrs. Gray turns to Hall, asking him to lend the money, and compelling him to take a necklace, an heirloom, to keep until the su paid back. This Hall does because he is in with Mrs. Gray, but when he tells her so sl indignant. Then Hall tells her the necklac valueless, and merely an imitation, and that less she will consent to elope with him, he tell her husband everything. Thereupon Gray does the right thing herself—she tells husband, and they start anew.

THE KODAK CONTEST (March 14).—This tells of the troubles experienced by two fa while trying to win a prize offered by a newsp for the best amateur photograph. It is a co film replete with laughable situations and to prove popular.

THE WORLD'S CHAMPION (March 17).—Be ful Armande is delighted with the boxing be and she'll never marry, except the world cham Gontran is deeply in love with her and in to win Armande's love decides to fight the champion. His friends, to play a joke on tip a negro and tell him to make Gontran be that he is the world champion, and, in his n they send a challenge to Gontran. Gontra rather annoyed, but in spite of a fearful fr he must accept the challenge and fight. Arm is present, watching the fighters. At the sig the negro, Gontran gets more and more fright and even falls without being injured. Arm turns away from him and smiles at the n Jealousy giving Gontran courage, he jumps and seeing that the negro is even more fright than himself, punches him and finally knocks out. This time Armande cannot resist and consents to become Gontran's wife.

IT PAYS TO BE KIND (March 19).—Mrs. a wealthy widow living in Philadelphia, mourning for her dead daughter, receives a from her brother Charles, who suggests that visit her nieces who have never seen her, and whether one of them will not come and live her and take her daughter's place. Mrs. makes the visit, but, in order to test her ni she conceals the fact that she is wealthy, goes as a poor woman who must work for living. The nieces having discharged their decide that the poor aunt must take her p On the arrival she is escorted to the kitche put to work. All the nieces, save one, treat aunt with coldness and rudeness. The youn niece is kind, thoughtful and affectionate, takes the aunt's part on all occasions. After Burt has learned all that is necessary, she d pears. Soon after the nieces receive a letter Uncle Charles inviting them to accompany hi Philadelphia on a trip of pleasure and educat and to meet a dear friend of his. They arriv the beautiful home of Mrs. Burt who, surrou by her servants and dressed in elegant app greets them much to the mortification of the who had treated her cruelly. Mrs. Burt in Mabel, the younger niece, to remain with her take the place in her heart and home, made by the death of her daughter. The others re to New York, sadder but wiser girls.

A SYMPHONY IN BLACK AND WHITE (M 21).—George Washington Jones, a negro porte a hotel, gets an invitation from his dusky sw heart to a party. She tells George to dres and make a showing. He appropriates a suit g to him by a traveling man to have cleaned the way to the party he stops at the club h gets into a crap game and goes broke, wagers coat and loses it. A friend of his wins garment, the pants and vest following with sequent losses. A nearby clothes line offer gingham gown, hung out to dry by Widow Fl This Jones appropriates as well.

What happens when he calls on his dusky sw heart is well worth seeing as many novel unique effects are used to brighten the humo the story.

REX.

EYES THAT SEE NOT (Mar. 14).—Pov fought its barren battle there in the homes of t mill-workers. So the leader of the mill-wor decided to go to their tyrant god and petition to grant his slaves at least as much considera as the machines in his mill. On the roof-ga of the palatial home he found the mill-own wife. Her little daughter was with her, and thought of his own little child lying on a sick-

Mr. Almost Butt

Mr. State Right Buyer, and you

Mr. Exhibitor and Theatre Manager

MAKE A FORTUNE BEFORE JULY!

(JACK) JOHNSON vs. (JIM) FLYNN

World's Heavyweight Championship Battle

(About 2000 feet) JULY, 1912 (2 Reels)

¶ Showing Relative Merits of Both Contestants, Signing Articles, and the Posting of $15,000 Forfeits. Johnson guaranteed $30,000, Win, Lose or Draw, by Jack Curley, Promotor. MOST BEAUTIFUL PHOTOGRAPHY EVER PRODUCED.

Showing JOHNSON
- Doing Road Work,
- His Chicago Residence,
- Skidding With Automobile,
- Speeding With Automobile,
- Playing Medicine Ball,
- Skipping the Rope,
- Boxing,
- Posing for Press,
- Signing Articles,
- Posting Forfeits.

WHO WILL WIN?

State Rights for Sale

WIRE TODAY

Cheapest prices in the history of features.

Showing FLYNN
- Boxing,
- Wrestling,
- Punching the Bag,
- Skipping the Rope,
- Playing Medicine Ball,
- Posing for Press,
- Shadow Boxing,
- On the Road,
- Posting Forfeits,
- Signing Articles.

The actual posting of forfeits and signing of articles are portrayed in all their realism.

¶ The pictures depict, besides the Contestants, such well-known celebrities as Jack Curley, Jim Flynn's Manager, Al Tearney, Stakeholder, and many others.

WRITE, WIRE OR CALL

JOHNSON-FLYNN FEATURE FILM COMPANY
710 First National Bank Building - - - - CHICAGO

In maniac rage he advanced upon the woman to touch her silk and tell her it was to be the crape of his suffering child; and she, fearing the light in his eyes and the strength in his arms, hurled him away and he went toppling over the roof into the depths below.

By a miracle he lived, and by a miracle the conscience-stricken woman felt constrained to visit him. As she entered the squalor of his home, she saw a cot and a dying child upon it. She went back to her home, took her child into her arms, and realized that love alone was wealth. And the yellow thing that before she had called gold she gave as food for the hungry.

IN PAYMENT FULL (Mar. 17).—She was tired of her plain dresses. So that night she told her husband of the desire that was to be the disaster. And so the next day at the office the guilty pen left a balance in the figures, and the sin was concealed under the silks it bought. The woman was happy.

His act was discovered, and he was taken away to jail. The wife went to the judge with her woman's tears and a weeping plea, but in the stern eyes of earth's law sentiment is no extenuation. So the barred gates of hope closed behind him, and on the four stone walls he saw the handwriting and read its message. The years went by, and one day a woman older than her birthdays sat in the twilight, and peering into the gloom saw her heart reflected.

Among the Exhibitors

Portland, Ore.—Plans have been completed by Bennes & Hendricks for a moving picture theater for the Grand Amusement Company, to be located on Sixth Street, between Washington and Stark Streets. The theater will be 50 x 100 feet in size and will have a seating capacity for 500 people.

Malden, Mass.—The Plaza Theater has been opened under new management and will be conducted as a motion picture show.

Jefferson City, Mo.—Otto Holtschneider and William Luecke have purchased the Star Picture Theater.

Peoria, Ill.—The Standard Theater has again opened with high-class moving picture performances.

Hendrick, Ia.—Hal Jennings will start a motion picture theater here.

Wheeling, W. Va.—The New Colonial Theater, Market and Sixteenth Streets, adjoining the old post office, built by Charles A. Feinler expressly for the exhibition of high-class motion pictures, has opened and is now doing an excellent business.

Seattle, Wash.—John H. Clemmer, owner of the Clem and Casino theaters in Spokane, Wash., and his son, the owner of the Dream Theater in this city, are financing an exclusive photo playhouse costing $100,000, to be built in Seattle. The house will be 60 by 108 feet, and will seat 1,500.

Yonkers, N. Y.—George H. Brennan announces that he will build a motion picture and vaudeville theater to cost $200,000. A site has been selected on Getty Square.

Louisville, Ky.—The directors of the Colonial Amusement Company have decided to establish a string of moving picture theaters in nearly all of the smaller cities and towns adjacent to Lexington.

Joplin, Mo.—Ben Marks has purchased the Gem moving picture theater on East Fifth Street and will convert same into a moving picture and vaudeville show.

Leavenworth, Kan.—Rife H. Smith has sold his moving picture theater to Guy Coleman and E. S. Dillingham.

Big Fork, Mont.—A K. Millett has purchased the N. E. Beebe moving picture and vaudeville theater here.

Hibbing, Mont.—John A Healy, owner of the Healy Theater, has leased it to H. J. Seigel and L. F. Alerdt, who will devote the house to motion pictures and vaudeville.

White River Junction, Vt.—A. Sawyer recently sold to W. Markwell, proprietor of the picture establishment known as Dreamland, the two-story frame building on South Main Street. The upper story of this building has been used as a motion picture theater, while stores and offices occupied the ground floor.

Canton, O.—Plans for another motion picture theater in Canton were consummated recently by G. H. Harkraver, who closed a lease with the Gibbs Estate for the lot in East Tuscarawas Street, on the Southwest corner of Cherry and Fifth Streets.

Estherville, Ia.—Henry Graff has had his old wooden building vacated preparatory to tearing it down to make room for his new $15,000 brick building for a moving picture theater.

Portsmouth, O.—The new $16,000 Lyric Motion Picture Theater has been opened under the management of Ray Duvandeck.

Durham, N. C.—W. L. Younger has accepted the position as manager of the Edisonia.

Grundy Center, Iowa.—Otis Palmer and Amos Albright will erect a moving picture theater here.

Winnebago City, Minn.—W. A. Besha will open a moving picture theater in the Mrs. Watts Building.

Eagle Grove, Pa.—C. T. Smith, proprietor of the Princess Moving Picture Theater, purchased W. F. Insel's Armory Opera House.

Lanesboro, Minn.—Christ Omacht will open a moving picture theater here.

Cando, N. D.—F. J. Walker has sold his moving picture theater to Albert Glasknap.

Chicago, Ill.—John A. Send, 2410 W. Chicago Avenue, will erect a moving picture theater at 2410 W. Chicago Avenue, to cost $7,000.

Miamisburg, Ohio.—Messrs. Lou and Harry Weaver have bought the Star Motion Picture Theater from Walter Britton.

Denver, Col.—The Crystal Theater has been sold by Alexander Pantages to the Crystal Theater Company, who will run it as a vaudeville and picture house.

Carroll, Iowa.—Moorhead & Fairchild of Onawa have made arrangements to open a moving picture theater here.

Tama, Iowa.—Fife & Russell have purchased the Moyer Moving Picture Theater here.

E. Waupun, Wis.—The Scenic Moving Picture here will be remodeled.

Peoria, Ill.—E. L. Harris, owning three-fourths, buys the one-fourth interest of S. A. Oakley, in the Alhambra Amusement Company, owning the Columbia Theater, which is the largest and best equipped exclusibe motion picture theater in Peoria.

Manning, Ia.—Fred Dethlefts will open a moving picture theater here.

Antigo, Wis.—The Palace Motion Picture Theater will be reopened.

Oshkosh, Wis.—Manager Greeko of the Plymouth moving picture theater at Plymouth, Wis., will open a moving picture theater here.

Crystal, Mich.—Bert Silver, owner of the Silver Family Circus, will erect a moving picture theater here.

Los Angeles, Cal.—The Fairview Theater Company, 627 Fairview avenue, will erect a moving picture theater.

Athens, Tenn.—The Picto Moving Picture Theater, recently burned, will be rebuilt under the management of Robert Magill.

Rheinlander, Wis.—P. J. Hanson has purchased the Bijou Theater, and is improving, remodeling, enlarging it.

Manchester, Ia.—Cal. W. Martin sold the Lyr Theater here to G. W. Prescott.

Iowa Falls, Ia.—C. T. Smith has purchased t W. F. Ingels theater here.

Wheeling, W. Va.—The Lafayette Avenue Mo ing Picture Theater will be opened in a short tim Washington, Pa.—The Board of Education wi purchase and install moving picture machines the various public schools throughout the city.

Fraser, Col.—A motion picture show is to established here. The latest pictures direct wi be shown.

Estherville, Iowa.—Leonard A. Wright has rent the Palace Theater and will convert it into moving picture theater.

Cando, N. D.—The Glassner Moving Picture Th ater will be improved.

Chippewa Falls, Wis.—The Lyric Moving Theat will be opened for business here.

Detroit, Mich.—A deal has been closed by Bohm and Abraham Rubinger, through which the will open a theater here called the Hippodrom playing vaudeville with pictures.

Rookville, Ind.—Plans are being considered f the erection of a new Opera House here. Howar Maxwell, J. S. McFadden and others, are intereste Bowling Green, Ky.—Dr. John E. Gray will ere a moving picture theater here.

Sedalia, Mo.—M. D. Moore purchased Wood' Opera House for $40,000, and will remodel into fir proof theater.

Gaffney, S. C.—A. Lolis Wood and J. K. Woo have announced that they will establish a new mo ing picture theater here.

Independent Films For Sale
Low Prices—Send for Price List
F. C. LEIBOW, 61 W. 14th St., N. Y. City

Make Your Lobby Display Attractive

ROYAL IMPROVE YOUR Lobby
FRAME YOUR POSTERS
BRASS EASELS AND BRASS RAILING
BRASS POSTER FRAMES FOR EASELS AND WALLS

There is nothing more fascinating to the public than a bright brass frame to display your photos or posters.

We make Lobby and Theatre Fixtures and Brass Rails of every description.

Write for Catalog.

THE NEWMAN MFG. CO.
717-719 Sycamore St.,
Cincinnati, O.

National Film Distributing Co.

RELEASED DATES.

Monday, March 11, 1912.
Belmar—A Ranch Feud............(Western Drama)
Clarendon—Trials of a Martyr............(Comedy)
Deut. Biograph—Song of the Sea..........(Drama)

Tuesday, March 12, 1912.
Wrytograph—Sandy Martin's Trade...(W. Drama)
Cricks & Martin—Dippy's Plight..........(Comedy)
Hepworth -A Falling Star ....(Farce-Comedy)

Wednesday, March 13, 1912.
Mohawk—Blue Bird's Dive.........(Indian Drama)
Helios—A Crushed Pearl..................(Drama)
Latium—A Blind Boy's Dream............(Comedy)

Thursday, March 14, 1912.
Washington—A Race With Death..(Western Drama)
Hepworth—The Whisper ....(Comedy)
Mondia -The Masked Intruder.............(Drama)

Friday, March 15, 1912.
Wrytograph—A Crushed Flower...(Western Drama)
Bioscope—Buffeting the Tide..............(Drama)
Clarendon—Four of a Kind...............(Comedy)

Saturday, March 16, 1912.
Mohawk—Red Feather's Escape.....(Indian Drama)
Savoia—Marching Men ....(Comedy)
Aquila—A Victim of Patience.............(Drama)

Sunday, March 17, 1912.
Arrowhead—A Drama of the Far North....(Drama)
Pasquali -Marie's Grief ....(Farce Comedy)
Messter Butler and Maid..................(Comedy)

The Operator's Bible
A MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK
Price $1.50 Postage Paid
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
125 EAST 23rd STREET :: :: NEW YORK CITY

WATCH THIS SPACE

FOR FUTURE FEATURE FILMS

OUR NEWEST IMPORTATIONS

THE FOUR DAREDEVILS
3000 FEET (8 SHEET POSTERS)

TRISTAN AND ISOLDE
2 REELS (COLORED)

NOTRE DAME DE PARIS
3 REELS (COLORED) (3 AND 12 SHEET POSTERS)

THE SIEGE OF CALAIS
2 REELS (COLORED) (3 AND 12 SHEET POSTERS)

SINS OF LOVE
3 REELS (EXTRAORDINARY POSTERS)

A ROMANCE OF THE MEXICAN REVOLUTION
4 REELS (POSTERS AND PHOTOGRAPHS)

and many others

AGENTS FOR EVERY STATE WANTED. Exhibitors Preferred

Feature Film Co.
108 E. 12th St., New York
We handle no Dupes

FILM INSURANCE

Feature Film Buyers, protect your investment.

"CELLUKOTE"

A scientific process of applying a coat of celluloid to the emulsion side of the film.

No Rain Storms Possible

Clean films and Brighter Pictures. Makes film stronger and lasts longer. Prevents damage to Emulsion and Picture side.

Films that have been in service can be Cleaned, Buffed and "Cellukoted" and made almost equal to new.

Recommended and endorsed by Monopol Film Co., Carnival Feature Co., Buffalo Bill and Pawnee Bill Film Co., Raising-the-Maine Film Co., and many others.

Send for sample and literature.

The "Cellukote" Company
SUITE 705
145 West 45th Street, New York City

Ornamental Theatres

PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

Theatres Designed Everywhere

Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
2549 Archer Avenue, :: CHICAGO, ILL.

Licensed Exhibitors Only, New York State and City

DANTE'S INFERNO—MILANO—FIVE REELS

THE most spectacular and sensational picture ever produced. Unprecedented run at GANES' MANHATTAN THEATRE, BROADWAY AND 31st STREET, NEW YORK CITY, OF SIX SOLID WEEKS, FAIR THEATRE, EAST 14th STREET, FOUR WEEKS.

All sizes posters, one-half, 1, 3, 8, 24 sheets, booklets, etc.

Do YOU want a money getter?

Be the first to play this masterpiece in your section.

Call, Write or Telegraph

THE SUPERIOR FEATURE FILM CO.
32 Union Square, New York City

INDEPENDENT Release Dates

M. P. DISTRIBUTING & SALES CO.

AMERICAN.

Feb. 29—An Assisted Elopement (Com.).......1000
Mar. 4—From the Four Hundred to the Herd (W. Dr.).............................1000
Mar. 7—The Broken Ties (W. Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 11—After School (Dr.)...................1000
Mar. 14—A Bad Investment (Dr.)..............1000
Mar. 18—The Full Value (Dr.)................1000

CHAMPION.

Feb. 21—A Wife's Discovery (Com.).......... 950
Feb. 26—The Robbery at the Railroad Station (Com.-Dr.) ....
Feb. 26—A Higher Power (Dr.)...............
Feb. 28—Wrongly Accused (Dr.)..............
Mar. 4—The Manicurist (Dr.)............... 950
Mar. 6—Blind (Dr.)........................ 950
Mar. 11—The Fatal Glass (Dr.)............... 950
Mar. 13—The Editor (Dr.).................... 950
Mar. 18—For Home and Honor (Dr.).......... 950
Mar. 20—Ireland and Israel (Com.-Dr.)....... 950

COMET.

Jan. 8—Mr. Whoops, the Detective (Com.)....
Jan. 12—The Widow (Com.-Dr.)..............
Jan. 15—The Braid (Dr.)....................
Jan. 19—Thirty Days (Com.)..................

ECLAIR.

Mar. 3—The Interrupted Telegram (Dr.)......
Mar. 3—Prague, the Beautiful (Scenic.)......
Mar. 5—A Child's Plea (Am.-Dr.)..........
Mar. 7—No Wedding Bells for Me (Am.-Com.)
Mar. 10—Alcohol (2 reels) (Dr.)...............
Mar. 12—Bridge (Dr.) ....
Mar. 14—The Kodak Contest (Com.)...........
Mar. 14—Shriners' Parade at Rochester, N. Y. (Topical) ....
Mar. 17—The World's Champion (Com.).......
Mar. 17—Willie's First Cigar (Com.)..........
Mar. 19—It Pays to be Kind (Am. Dr.)........
Mar. 21—A Symphony in Black and White (Am.-Com.) ....
Mar. 24—At the Height of Her Triumph (Dr.)..
Mar. 24—Ancient Philae—Nubia, Egypt (Scenic)

GREAT NORTHERN.

Jan. 27—A Friend to Children (Com.)..........
Jan. 27—The Man With the Puppets (Com.)....
Feb. 3—Vengeance vs. Love (Dr.).............
Feb. 10—A Burglar's Love (Dr.)..............
Feb. 17—Unexpected Duty (Com.).............
Feb. 17—Along the Italian Riviera (Scenic)....
Feb. 24—Those Married Men (Com.),..........
Mar. 2—Revenge Is Sweet (Com.)............
Mar. 2—Obverse and Reverse (Com.)........
Mar. 9—For Her Sake (Dr.)..................
Mar. 16—Capriciousness of Love (Com.).......

IMP.

Mar. 2—Beat at His Own Game (Com.)....... 400
Mar. 2—The Right Clue (Com.)............... 600
Mar. 4—Far From the Beaten Track (Dr.)....1000
Mar. 7—The Call of the Drum (Dr.)..........1000
Mar. 9—The Home Strike Breakers (Com.).. 600
Mar. 9—Rhoda Royal's Trained Horses (Top.). 400
Mar. 11—A Timely Repentance (Dr.)..........1000
Mar. 14—Shamus O'Brien (Dr.)................1000
Mar. 16—Daring Feats on a Cavalry Horse (Topical) 400
Mar. 16—Percy Learns to Waltz (Com.)....... 600
Mar. 18—The Man From the West (Com.-Dr.)..1000
Mar. 21—Better Than Gold (Dr.).............1000
Mar. 23—Classical Dances by Countess Thamara de Swirsky (Dancing) 400
Mar. 23—The Tankville Constable (Com.)...... 600

LUX.

Feb. 9—The Tramp's Dog (Dr.)............... 744
Feb. 9—Weaving Carpet (Ind.) 239
Feb. 16—Bill Tunes the Piano (Com.).......... 541
Feb. 16—Baby's Ghost (Com.).................. 400
Feb. 23—The Cook's Revenge (Com.)......... 459
Feb. 23—Bill's Motor (Com.)................... 414
Mar. 1—Bill and the Lions (Com.)............ 377
Mar. 1—The Skivvy's Ghost (Com.)........... 557
Mar. 8—A Romance of the Stock Exchange (Dr.) 761
Mar. 8—A Rough Sea (Scenic)................. 223
Mar. 15—Bill Has His Own Back (Com.).... 495
Mar. 15—Arabella Joins the S. P. C. A. (Com.) 449

BISON.

(N. Y. M. P. CO.)

Jan. 30—Love and Jealousy (Dr.).............
Feb. 2—The Empty Water Keg (Dr.)........
Feb. 6—The Protection of the Cross (Dr.)......
Feb. 9—A Tenderfoot's Revenge (Dr.)........
Feb. 13—"Broncho" Bill's Love Affair........
Feb. 16—Wild West Circus....................
Feb. 20—The Deputy's Sweetheart (Dr.).......
Feb. 23—War On the Plains (W. Dr.)........
Mar. 1—The Indian Massacre (Dr.)...........
Mar. 8—The Battle of the Redmen (Dr.)......
Mar. 15—The Deserter (Dr.).................
Mar. 22—Blazing the Trail (Dr.)..............
Mar. 29—The Crisis (Dr.)....................

AMBROSIO.

Jan. 31—Sammy, the Little Bootblack (Dr.)...
Jan. 31—Tweedledum's Father and his Worthy Son (Com.) ....
Feb. 7—Tweedledum a Riding Schoolmaster..
Feb. 7—Called Back on the Right Path........
Feb. 14—Father's Fault ....
Feb. 21—Accursed Rock ....
Feb. 28—Tweedledum's Evasion (Com.)........
Feb. 28—Tweedledum's New Year's Gift (Com.)
Mar. 6—Duchess' Lady Companion............
Mar. 13—Thomas Chatterton (Dr.).............

ITALA.

(By N. Y. M. P. Co.)

Jan. 20—No Release On This Date............
Jan. 27—Toto Enamorato (Com.)..............
Feb. 3—The Ascent of the Matterhorn........
Feb. 3—Anarchical Attempt (Com.)............
Feb. 10—Toto, Door-Keeper (Com.) ....
Feb. 10—Hunting Ducks (Sporting)............
Feb. 17—The Italian Army in Tripoli..........
Feb. 17—Making a Cinematograph Scene.......

MAJESTIC.

Feb. 4—A Game for Two (Com.).............
Feb. 9—Honor Thy Father (Dr.).............
Feb. 11—Arresting Father (Dr.) ....
Feb. 16—His Step-Mother (Com.).............
Feb. 18—Petticoat Perfidy (Com.).............
Feb. 25—Bought (Dr.) ....
Feb. 27—Strip Poker (Com.).................
Mar. 3—Does Your Wife Love You? (Com.)..
Mar. 5—The Best Man Wins (Com.)..........
Mar. 10—The Closed Bible (Dr.)...............
Mar. 12—The Unwilling Bigamist (Com.)......
Mar. 17—The Better Influence (Dr.)...........
Mar. 19—Leap Year (Dr.)....................

NESTOR.

Feb. 26—The Smugglers (Dr.)................
Feb. 26—At Rolling Forks (W. Dr.)..........
Mar. 2—His Good Intentions (Com.).........
Mar. 2—The Battle of Roses (Topical)........
Mar. 4—The Mills of the Gods (Dr.)..........
Mar. 6—The Double Trail (W. Dr.)..........
Mar. 9—The Village Rivals (Com.)..........
Mar. 9—Arizona—the New State (Scenic).....
Mar. 11—The Revelation (Dr.)................
Mar. 13—The Fighting Chance (W. Dr.)......
Mar. 16—The Unknown Model (Com.)..........
Mar. 18—The Feudal Debt (Dr.)...............
Mar. 20—A Pair of Jacks (W. Com.-Dr)......
Mar. 23—Over a Cracker Bowl (Com.)........
Mar. 23—Santa Fe (Scenic) ....

POWERS.

Feb. 10—A Waiter of Weight (Com.-Dr.)......
Feb. 13—The Turning Point (Dr.)............
Feb. 17—A Woman of No Importance (Dr.)....
Feb. 20—His Brother Willie (Com.)...........
Feb. 24—As Fate Would Have It (Dr.)........
Feb. 27—A Tangled Courtship (Dr.)...........
Mar. 2—The Path of Genius (Dr.)............
Mar. 5—The Honor of a Pugilist (Dr.)........
Mar. 9—The Mystery (Dr.)...................
Mar. 12—The Power Behind the Throne (Dr.)..
Mar. 16—Sogarth Aroon (Dr.).................
Mar. 19—Tender Hearted Mike (Com.-Dr.)......
Mar. 19—Scenes of Richmond (Scenic)..........

RELIANCE.

Feb. 7—The Stolen Letter (Dr.)..............
Feb. 10—Bedelia's Busy Morning (Com.)......
Feb. 10—Natural History Series, No. 3 (Edu.)..
Feb. 14—Wanted a Wife (Dr.)................
Feb. 17—The Gambler's Daughter (Dr.)........
Feb. 21—Key West Celebration (Topical.)....
Feb. 21—Bedelia and Mrs. Busybody (Com.)...
Feb. 24—A Child's First Love (Dr.)..........
Feb. 28—Bedelia and the Suffragette (Com.)..
Mar. 2—The Duel (Dr.).......................
Mar. 6—The Yeggman (Dr.).................
Mar. 9—The Better Man (Dr.)...............
Mar. 13—The Ruling Passion (Dr.)............
Mar. 16—Bedelia's "At Home" (Com.-Dr.).....

REPUBLIC.

Feb. 11—The Reckoning (Dr.)................
Feb. 17—Human Nature (Com.-Dr.)............
Feb. 18—The Girl Who Waited (Dr.)..........
Feb. 24—A Tangled Skein (Dr.)..............
Feb. 27—In the Government Service (Dr.)......
Mar. 2—His Partner's Wife (Dr.)............
Mar. 5—The Dream (Dr.)...................
Mar. 9—A Brand from the Burning (Dr.)....
Mar. 12—Two Men (Dr.).....................
Mar. 16—The Scar (Dr.).....................
Mar. 19—A New Lease on Life (Dr.)..........
Mar. 23—The Face at the Window (Dr.).......

REX.

Feb. 1—Fine Feathers (Dr.).................
Feb. 4—Readin', Ritin' an' Rithmetic (Com.-Dr.) ....
Feb. 8—The Bargain (Dr.)...................
Feb. 11—Through Twisting Lanes (Dr.).......
Feb. 15—Taming Mrs. Shrew (Com.-Dr.)......
Feb. 18—So Speaks the Heart (Dr.)..........
Feb. 22—Under Her Wing (Dr.)..............
Feb. 25—The End of the Circle (Dr.)..........
Feb. 29—The Final Pardon (Dr.).............
Mar. 3—Through Flaming Gates (Dr.).........
Mar. 7—Making Heroes (Vocational)..........
Mar. 7—Blowing Up the John Day Rapids (Vocational) ....
Mar. 10—Songs of Childhood Days (Dr.)........
Mar. 14—Eyes that See Not (Dr.).............
Mar. 17—In Payment Full (Dr.).............

SOLAX.

Feb. 14—Bessie's Suitors (Com.).............
Feb. 16—A Terrible Lesson (Dr.).............
Feb. 18—The Wise Witch of Fairyland (Dr.)..
Feb. 21—Hubby Does the Washing (Com.)....
Feb. 23—God Disposes (Dr.)..................
Feb. 25—His Lordship's White Feather (Dr.)..
Feb. 28—Algie, the Miner (Com.)............
Mar. 1—Blighted Lives (Dr.)...............
Mar. 6—Sealed Lips (Dr.)..................
Mar. 8—The Animated Bathtub (Com.).......
Mar. 13—Nearly An Heiress (Dr.)............
Mar. 15—Falling Leaves (Com.)..............
Mar. 13—The Boarding House Heiress (Com.)..
Mar. 15—Falling Leaves (Dr.)................
Mar. 20—Count Henri, the Hunter (Com.)....
Mar. 22—The Child of the Tenements (Dr.).....

THANHOUSER.

Feb 2—On Probation (Dr.)...................
Feb. 6—The Trouble Maker (Dr.).............
Feb. 9—The Signal Code (Dr.)..............
Feb. 13—The Silent Witness (Dr.)............
Feb. 16—Surelock Jones, Detective (Com.)....
Feb. 20—Washington In Danger (Hist.-Dr.)....
Feb. 23—A Message from Niagara (Dr.).......
Feb. 27—The Guilty Baby (Dr.)...............
Mar. 1—The Arab's Bride (Dr.)..............
Mar. 5—Extravagance (Dr.).................
Mar. 8—His Great Uncle's Spirit (Dr.)........
Mar. 12—Flying to Fortune (Dr.).............
Mar. 15—The Poacher (Dr.)..................
Mar. 19—Nicholas Nickleby (Parts 1 & 2) (Dr.)
Mar. 22—The Taming of Mary (Com.-Dr.)......
Mar. 22—The Golf Caddie's Dog (Dr.)........

MISCELLANEOUS.

GAUMONT.

Feb. 29—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 2, 1912 (Top.)
Mar. 2—The Tale of a Dog (Dr.)............
Mar. 5—Jimmie Saves the Situation (Com.)..
Mar. 5—The Wonderful Adventures of Herr Munchausen (Com.) ....
Mar. 7—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 3, 1912 (Top.)
Mar. 9—The Trust (2 reels) (Dr.)...........
Mar. 12—Calino and His Boarder (Com.)......
Mar. 12—What's In a Name (Com.)..........
Mar. 14—Gaumont's Weekly, No. 4, 1912 (Top.)
Mar. 16—Maternity (Dr.) ....
Mar. 19—Jimmie, Temperance Reformer (Com.Dr.)
Mar. 19—Game Shooting from Aeroplane (Sporting) ....
Mar. 21—Gaumont's Weekly No. 5 (Topical)..
Mar. 23—An Old Romance (Dr.)............

GREAT NORTHERN SPECIAL FEATURE FILM CO.

Feb. 5—A Victim of the Mormons (3 reels—Dr.) 3200

FEATURE AND EDUCATIONAL FILM CO.

Nov. 20—Love and Aviation (Dr.)............
Nov. 20—Zigomar (Dr.)......................
Dec. 18—The Love Chase (Com.).............

SPECIAL ROLL TICKETS The Big Ticket. Any Printing
Any Colors
5,000 - - $1.25 20,000 - - $4.60 50,000 - - $7.50
10,000 - $2.50 25,000 - $5.50 100,000 - - $10.00
Get the Samples Stock Tickets, 6 Cents
NATIONAL TICKET COMPANY - - - Shamokin, Pa.

THE MAJESTIC

Pictures possess all the attributes of the most popular pictures ever produced.

One of the most convincing proofs of the popularity of Majestic Pictures is the splendid sale they have in Europe, where the Renters reserve the right to buy whatever pictures they like. They buy in the open market and pictures sell strictly on merit, which assures the Exhibitor a program of quality and the public a good, clean, wholesome show.

There are some Exchanges in America not buying Majestic pictures and Exhibitors taking service from these Exchanges are being deprived of some of the best Motion Pictures ever produced—best in plot, best in acting, best in photography and best in moral.

Therefore, if the Exhibitor wants the best and will fight for his rights, he will secure Two Majestics every blessed week of his life.

Two Weekly Releases

SUNDAY AND TUESDAY

SUNDAY, MARCH 17th, "The Better Influence"—a child story of beautiful sentiment—the regeneration of a young father.

TUESDAY, MARCH 19th, "Leap Year"—a timely farcical love story of complications.

Do not miss "THE UNWILLING BIGAMIST," a splendid farce comedy with a noteworthy double exposure effect

SUNDAY, MARCH 24th, "The Eternal Masculine"—Comedy of sentiment.

TUESDAY, MARCH 26th, "Opportunity" — Comedy of Bohemian Life.

GET TWO MAJESTICS EACH WEEK

The Majestic Motion Picture Co.

145 W. 45th ST. NEW YORK CITY

Sold through the Sales Co.

LICENSED Release Dates

BIOGRAPH.

Feb. 15—The Mender of Nets (Dr.)............
Feb. 19—The Fatal Chocolate (Com.).........
Feb. 19—Got a Match (Com.)...............
Feb. 22—Under Burning Skies (Dr.)..........
Feb. 26—The Sunbeam (Dr.).................
Feb. 29—A Message from the Moon (Com.)....
Feb. 29—Priscilla's Capture (Com.)............
Mar. 4—A Siren of Impulse (Dr.)............
Mar. 7—A String of Pearls (Dr.)............
Mar. 11—A Spanish Dilemma (Com.)..........
Mar. 11—The Engagement Ring (Com.).......
Mar. 14—Iola's Promise (Dr.)...............
Mar. 18—The Root of Evil (Dr.)............
Mar. 21—A Voice from the Deep (Com.)......
Mar. 21—Hot Stuff (Com.)...................

CINES.

(G. Kleine.)

Feb. 17—Darling (Com.) ....
Feb. 17—Kerka Falls (Scenic).................
Feb. 20—Leah's Trick (Com.)................
Feb. 20—The Valley of the Umbria (Scenic)...
Feb. 24—Daughter of the Regiment (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 27—Happy in Spite of Herself (Com.-Dr.).
Feb. 27—Jenkins, A Perfect Steward (Com.)...
Mar. 2—A Sister's Stratagem (Com.).........
Mar. 5—The Chauffeur (Com.-Dr.).............
Mar. 5—Lucca, Italy (Scenic)................
Mar. 9—The Moorish Bride (Dr.)............
Mar. 12—From Tent to Mansion (Dr.).........
Mar. 16—Out of Tune (Com.)..................
Mar. 16—Zoological Gardens in Rome (Sc.)....
Mar. 19—Father's Toothache (Com.)...........
Mar. 19—The City of Tripoli (Scenic)..........
Mar. 23—The Deserter (Dr.)..................

EDISON.

Feb. 20—The Muse (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 21—One Thousand Miles Through the Rockies (Sc.) 350
Feb. 21—Everything Comes to Him Who "Waits" (Com.) 650
Feb. 23—Children Who Labor (Edu. & Dr.)...1000
Feb. 24—New York City Street Cleaning (Vocational) 425
Feb. 24—The Lost Kitten (Com.).............. 575
Feb. 27—How Motion Pictures Are Made and Shown (Vocational) 1000
Feb. 28—My Double and How He Undid Me (Com.) 1000
Mar. 1—Tony's Oath of Vengeance (Dr.).....1000
Mar. 2—A Cowboy's Stratagem (Com.)....... 620
Mar. 2—The Jam Closet (Com.).............. 380
Mar. 5—Lost—Three Hours (Com.)...........1000
Mar. 6—The Yarn of the Nancy Bell (Com.).. 970
Mar. 8—The Heir Apparent (Dr.).............1050
Mar. 9—New York Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock Association, Madison Square Garden (Ind.) 540
Mar. 9—The Patent Housekeeper (Com.)...... 460
Mar. 12—The Baby (Com.)...................1000
Mar. 13—Her Polished Family (Com.).........1000
Mar. 15—For the Commonwealth (Dr.).........1000
Mar. 16—Personally Conducted (Scenic)........1000
Mar. 19—Her Face (Com.-Dr.).................1000
Mar. 20—Dress Suits in Pawn (Com.)..........1000
Mar. 22—The House With the Tall Porch (Dr.)..1000
Mar. 23—Incidents of the Durbar at Delhi (Top.) 600
Mar. 23—Tommy's Geography Lesson (Com.).. 400

ESSANAY.

Feb. 13—Tracked Down (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 15—There's Many a Slip (Com.)..........1000
Feb. 16—The Wife of a Genius (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 17—The Prospector's Legacy (W. Dr.)...1000
Feb. 20—The Biter Bitten (Com.)..............
Feb. 20—Curiosity (Com.) ....
Feb. 22—The "Lemon" (Com.) 1000
Feb. 23—The Little Black Box (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 24—A Western Kimono (Com.) 1000
Feb. 27—Positive Proof (Dr.)................1000
Feb. 29—Her Masterful Man (Com.)...........1000
Mar. 1—Do Dreams Come True? (Com.)......1000
Mar. 2—The Ranch Girl's Mistake (Dr.)......1000
Mar. 5—The Turning Point (Dr.)..............1000
Mar. 7—Getting a Hired Girl (Com.).........1000
Mar. 8—The Baby of the Boarding House (Com.)
Mar. 8—Trombone Tommy (Com.).............
Mar. 9—A Romance of the West (Dr.).......1000
Mar. 12—The Ranch Widower's Daughters (Com.) 1000
Mar. 14—A Flurry in Furniture (Com.)........1000
Mar. 15—The Madman (Dr.)..................1000
Mar. 16—The Bandit's Child (Dr.).............1000
Mar. 19—Out of the Depths (Dr.)..............1000
Mar. 21—Cupid's Leap Year Pranks (Com.)....1000
Mar. 22—A Record Romance (Com.)...........1000
Mar. 23—The Deputy's Love Affair (Dr.)......1000

KALEM.

Feb. 2—A Princess of the Hills (Dr.).........1000
Feb. 5—Battle of Pottsburg Bridge (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 7—The Swimming Party (Com.)..........
Feb. 7—Floral Parade at San Diego, Cal. (Topical) ....
Feb. 9—The Vagabonds (Dr.).................1000
Feb. 12—An American Invasion (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 14—Far From Erin's Isle (Com.).........1000
Feb. 16—Caught in the Toils (Dr.).............1000
Feb. 19—The Alcalde's Conspiracy (Dr.)......1000
Feb. 21—The Girl Deputy (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 23—Back to the Kitchen (Com.).........1000
Feb. 26—The Bell of Pennance (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 28—A Tenderfoot's Troubles (Com.)......
Feb. 28—A Visit to Madeira (Scenic)..........
Mar. 1—Trapped by Wireless (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 4—You Remember Ellen (Dr.)..........1000
Mar. 6—The Romance of a Dry Town (Com.)..1000
Mar. 8—Captain Rivera's Reward (Dr.).......1000
Mar. 11—A Spartan Mother (Dr.)..............1000
Mar. 13—A Victim of Circumstance (Dr.)......1000
Mar. 15—The Belle of New Orleans (Dr.)......1000
Mar. 18—Reconciled by Burglars (Com.)......
Mar. 18—The Kalemites Visit Gibraltar (Sc.)..
Mar. 20—The Defeat of the Brewery Gang (Dr.)1000
Mar. 22—A Bucktown Romance (Com.).......1000

LUBIN.

Feb. 10—An Antique Ring (Dr.)..............1000
Feb. 12—'Tis an Ill Wind that Blows No Good (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 14—His Mistake (Dr.)...................1000
Feb. 15—A Note in the Orange (Com.).......... 680
Feb. 15—Oversea Celebration (Educational) 350
Feb. 17—Gingerbread Cupid (Com.)...........1000
Feb. 19—Army Aviation Practice (Novelty).... 200
Feb. 19—A Midwinter Night's Dream (Dr.)... 800
Feb. 21—In Dis-a-Countree (Dr.)..............1000
Feb. 22—Her Heart's Refuge (Dr.)............1000
Feb. 24—Willie, the Hunter (Com.)........... 700
Feb. 24—Pottery Making in America (Edu.).. 300
Feb. 26—A Matter of Business (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 28—Love and Tears (Dr.).................1000
Feb. 29—Betty and the Doctor (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 2—A Mexican Courtship (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 4—Fishing In Florida (Vocational)......
Mar. 4—The Baby Tramp (Com.).............
Mar. 6—My Princess (Dr.)...................1000
Mar. 7—The Handicap (Dr.)..................1000
Mar. 9—Mother Love (Dr.)...................1000
Mar. 11—Tough Guy Levi (Com.).............
Mar. 11—Wifey's Ma Comes Back (Com.)......
Mar. 13—His Wife's Mother (Dr.).............1000
Mar. 14—The Price of a Silver Fox (Dr.)......1000
Mar. 16—The Preacher and the Gossip (Com.)..1000
Mar. 18—The New Constable (Com.)...........1000
Mar. 20—The Surprise Party Surprised (Com.)..1000
Mar. 21—A College Girl (Dr.) 1000
Mar. 23—The Revolutionist (Dr.)..............1000

MELIES.

Jan. 4—A Woman's Gratitude (Dr.)..........1000
Jan. 11—Roped In (Dr.).......................1000
Jan. 18—The Outlaw and the Baby (Dr.).....1000
Jan. 25—The Mortgage (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 1—Cowboy vs. Tenderfoot (Dr.).........1000
Feb. 8—Dodging the Sheriff (Dr.).............1000
Feb. 15—Smiling Bob (Dr.)....................1000
Jan. 22—Melita's Ruse (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 29—Oil (Dr.) 1000
Mar. 7—Seven Bars of Gold (Dr.)..........1000
Mar. 14—The Sheriff's Daughter (Dr.).........1000
Mar. 21—Troubles of the XL Outfit (Dr.)......1000
Mar. 28—The Remittance Man (Dr.)...........1000

ECLIPSE.

(G. Kleine.)

Jan. 24—A Woman's Wrath (Dr.)............ 980
Jan. 31—Kitty In Dreamland (Juvenile)......... 575
Jan. 31—Earl's Court. London (Scenic)...... 415
Feb. 7—Captured by Wireless (Dr.)........... 950
Feb. 7—Bird's Eye View of Rotterdam (Sc.)... 50
Feb. 14—The Gambler's Wife (Dr.)............1015
Feb. 21—The King's Command (Dr.)...........1000
Feb. 28—Cousin Bill (Com.)...................
Feb. 28—A Glimpse of Tripoli (Scenic)........
Mar. 6—The Factory Girl (Dr.)...............
Mar. 13—The Sentry on Guard (Dr.)...........1015
Mar. 20—The Song of the Gypsy (Dr.).........

PATHE.

Feb. 7—A Boomerang Joke (Am. Com.)......
Feb. 8—Niagara Falls In Winter (Am. Sc.)..
Feb. 10—Two Brothers (Am. Dr.).............
Feb. 12—Pathe's Weekly, No. 7, 1912 (Topical)..1000
Feb. 14—Two Convict Brothers (Am. Dr.)......
Feb. 15—His Wife's Jealousy (Am. Dr.)......
Feb. 17—Pawnee Love (Indian Dr.)...........
Feb. 19—Pathe's Weekly No. 8—1912 (Top.)..1000
Feb. 21—Marriage or Death (Am. Dr.).........1000
Feb. 22—Poor Jimmy (Am. Dr.)...............1000
Feb. 24—Phantom Lovers (Am. Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 26—Pathe's Weekly, No. 9—1912 (Topical)
Feb. 28—The Squaw's Debt of Gratitude (Dr.)..
Feb. 29—The Ordeal (Com.)...................
Mar. 2—His Mexican Sweetheart (Dr.)........
Mar. 4—Pathe's Weekly, No. 10, 1912 (Topical)
Mar. 6—Cholera on the Plains (Am.-Dr.)......
Mar. 7—Buster's Nightmare (Am.-Com.)......
Mar. 8—Small Trades in Havana (Ind.)......
Mar. 9—How the Play Was Advertised (Am.-Com.) ....
Mar. 11—Pathe's Weekly No. 11, 1912 (Top.)
Mar. 13—A Midget Sherlock Holmes (Am.-Com.)
Mar. 14—When Duty Calls (Am.-Dr.).........
Mar. 16—The Arrow of Defiance (Am.-Dr.)....
Mar. 18—Pathe's Weekly No. 12, 1912 (Top).
Mar. 20—The Price of Gratitude (Dr.).........
Mar. 21—The Wrong Bride (Dr.)..............
Mar. 23—The Rival Constables (Com.).........

C. G. P. C.

Feb. 8—The Three Kittens (Animal)........
Feb. 9—Philemon and Baucis (Mythological)..
Feb. 9—Hunting Marabout in Abyssinia (Ind. and Sc.) ....
Feb. 13—Quieting the Neighbors (Com.).......
Feb. 13—New Year's Celebration in Japan (Sc.)
Feb. 16—La Favorita (Dr.)....................
Feb. 20—The Gamekeeper (Dr.) ....
Feb. 20—The Motion Picture Man in the Dark Continent (Sc.) ....
Feb. 23—The Presentiment (Dr.) ....
Feb. 23—Ancient Rome (Sc.) ....
Feb. 27—Asbestos Quarry (Ind.)...............
Feb. 27—The Tumbler's Kids (Dr.)...........
Feb. 28—Wrestling in Indo China (Wrestling)..
Feb. 29—The Great Market in Tananarive, Madagascar (Scenic) ....
Mar. 1—An Adventure of Van Dyck (Dr.)......
Mar. 1—Hunting Bears in Malaya (Scenic)....
Mar. 5—The Six Little Drummers (Com.-Dr.)
Mar. 7—Starfish, Sea Uuchins and Scallops (Educational) ....
Mar. 8—An Episode of the Hundred Years War (Hist.-Dr.).....................
Mar. 12—The Poison Cup (Dr.)................
Mar. 12—The Rell Brothers (Acrobatic)........
Mar. 13—Daix and His Dog (Acrobatic)........
Mar. 15—The Coin of Fate (Dr.)..............
Mar. 19—The Dog Detective (Dr.).............
Mar. 19—The Electric Spark (Edu.)...........
Mar. 22—David and Saul (Biblical)...........
Mar. 23—Karlberg (Sweden) War School Exercises (Military) ....

SELIG.

Feb. 1—The Little Stowaway (Dr.)...........100
Feb. 2—Bunkie (Dr.)........................100
Feb. 5—The Girl He Left Behind (Dr.)......100
Feb. 6—The Widow of Rickie O'Neal (Com.)..100
Feb. 8—The Horseshoe (Dr.) 100
Feb. 9—A Mysterious Gallant (Com.)..........
Feb. 9—First Aid to the Injured (Edu.)........
Feb. 12—A Broken Spur (Dr.)................100
Feb. 13—Disillusioned (Dr.)...................100
Feb. 15—The Hypnotic Detective (Dr.).......100
Feb. 16—The Little Match Seller (Dr.).......
Feb. 16—The Taos Indians at Home, New Mexico (Educational) ....
Feb. 19—The Danites—Part 1 (Dr.)..........100
Feb. 20—The Danites—Part 2 (Dr.)..........100
Feb. 22—When Memory Calls (Dr.)...........100
Feb. 23—A Persistent Suitor (Com.)..........
Feb. 23—Seeing Detroit (Sport. & Sc.)........
Feb. 26—When Women Rule (Dr.)............100
Feb. 27—In Little Italy (Dr.)................100
Feb. 29—The "Diamond S" Ranch (Western)..100
Mar. 1—As Told by Princess Bess (Dr.)......100
Mar. 4—The Shrinking Rawhide (Dr.).........100
Mar. 5—The Ace of Spades (Dr.).............100
Mar. 7—The Brotherhood of Man (Dr.).......100
Mar. 8—Hypnotized (Com.) 100
Mar. 11—A Crucial Test (Dr.)................1000
Mar. 12—Bounder (Dr.).......................1000
Mar. 14—The Slip (Dr.)......................1000
Mar. 15—Across the Isthmus of Panama in 1912 (Top.) 1000
Mar. 18—The Girl of the Lighthouse (Dr.)....1000
Mar. 19—The "Epidemic" in Paradise Gulch (Com.) 1000
Mar. 21—The Ones Who Suffer (Dr.)..........1000
Mar. 22—The Junior Officer (Dr.).............1000

VITAGRAPH.

Feb. 10—Playmates (Dr.).......................1000
Feb. 12—The Heart of a Man (Dr.)............1000
Feb. 13—Winning is Losing (Com.-Dr.)........1000
Feb. 14—Bunny and the Twins (Com.).........1000
Feb. 16—The Chocolate Revolver (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 17—The Hobo's Redemption (Dr.)........1000
Feb. 19—The Struggle (Dr.) 1000
Feb. 20—The Love of John Ruskin (Dr.).....1000
Feb. 21—Her Last Shot (Dr.)..................1000
Feb. 23—Cure for Pokeritis (Com.)............1000
Feb. 24—Cowboy Damon and Pythias (Dr.)....1000
Feb. 26—Stenographer Wanted (Com.).........1000
Feb. 27—Justice of the Desert (Dr.)..........1000
Feb. 28—The Patchwork Quilt (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 1—The Diamond Brooch (Dr.)...........1000
Mar. 2—The Telephone Girl (Com.)...........1000
Mar. 4—Lulu's Anarchist (Com.).............1000
Mar 5—Cardinal Wolsey (Hist.-Dr.)..........1000
Mar. 6—Irene's Infatuation (Com.)...........1000
Mar. 8—How States Are Made (W. Dr.)......1000
Mar. 9—Mrs. Carter's Necklace (Dr.)........1000
Mar. 11—First Woman Jury in America (Com.).1000
Mar. 12—The Five Senses (Com.)............... 800
Mar. 12—A Story of the Circus (Dr.)......... 700
Mar. 13—Mrs. 'Enry 'Awkins (Dr.)............1000
Mar. 15—The Great Diamond Robbery (Com.)..1000
Mar. 16—"Sunset," or Her Only Romance (Dr.)1000
Mar. 18—The Black Wall (Dr.).................1000
Mar. 19—The Old Silver Watch (Dr.)..........1000
Mar. 20—The Two Penitents (Dr.).............1000
Mar. 22—Mr. Bolter's Infatuation (Com.)......1000
Mar. 23—Her Forgotten Dancing Shoes (Com.).. 500
Mar. 23—Taft and His Cabinet (Topical)...... 500

GOLD MINE!!!

3 REEL FEATURE FOR $700.
Elegant Photography—New Film.

OLD MEXICO

BULL FIGHTS—Complete Corrida: 6 bulls and Champion Matadors.
COCK FIGHT—to the finish.
REVOLUTIONARY SCENES—timely & interesting subjects.
INAUGURATION OF PRES. MADERO.
SOCIAL LIFE—Grand Banquet Scene.
RANCH LIFE, and other subjects.
Everything Worth Seeing With Instructive Lecture.

WHY PAY $5,000 FOR ONE STATE RIGHT. Take these pictures anywhere in the world and get your money back in 3 weeks. Five times as much real money as State Right propositions.

SENSATIONAL SUBJECTS ATTRACT EVERYONE AND PLEASE THE MASSES. These pictures a real gold mine. See the world with them.

SELLING ONLY SEVEN SETS—PROTECTED. ALSO HAVE FOR SALE SOME MAGNIFICENT OLD MEXICO NEGATIVES—Bull Fights, etc.

EUGENE L. MILLER
NAPOLEON, OHIO

OPERATORS WANTED

can furnish profitable occasional asgnments to free lance moving picture mera operators wherever located t me have name, address quickly.

DIRECTOR,
Care of M. P. World
New York City

ving Picture Theatres for Sale

Town of ten thousand. Illinois. Finest pice theatre in the town. Seating 230. Decoed by Chicago Decorative Co.
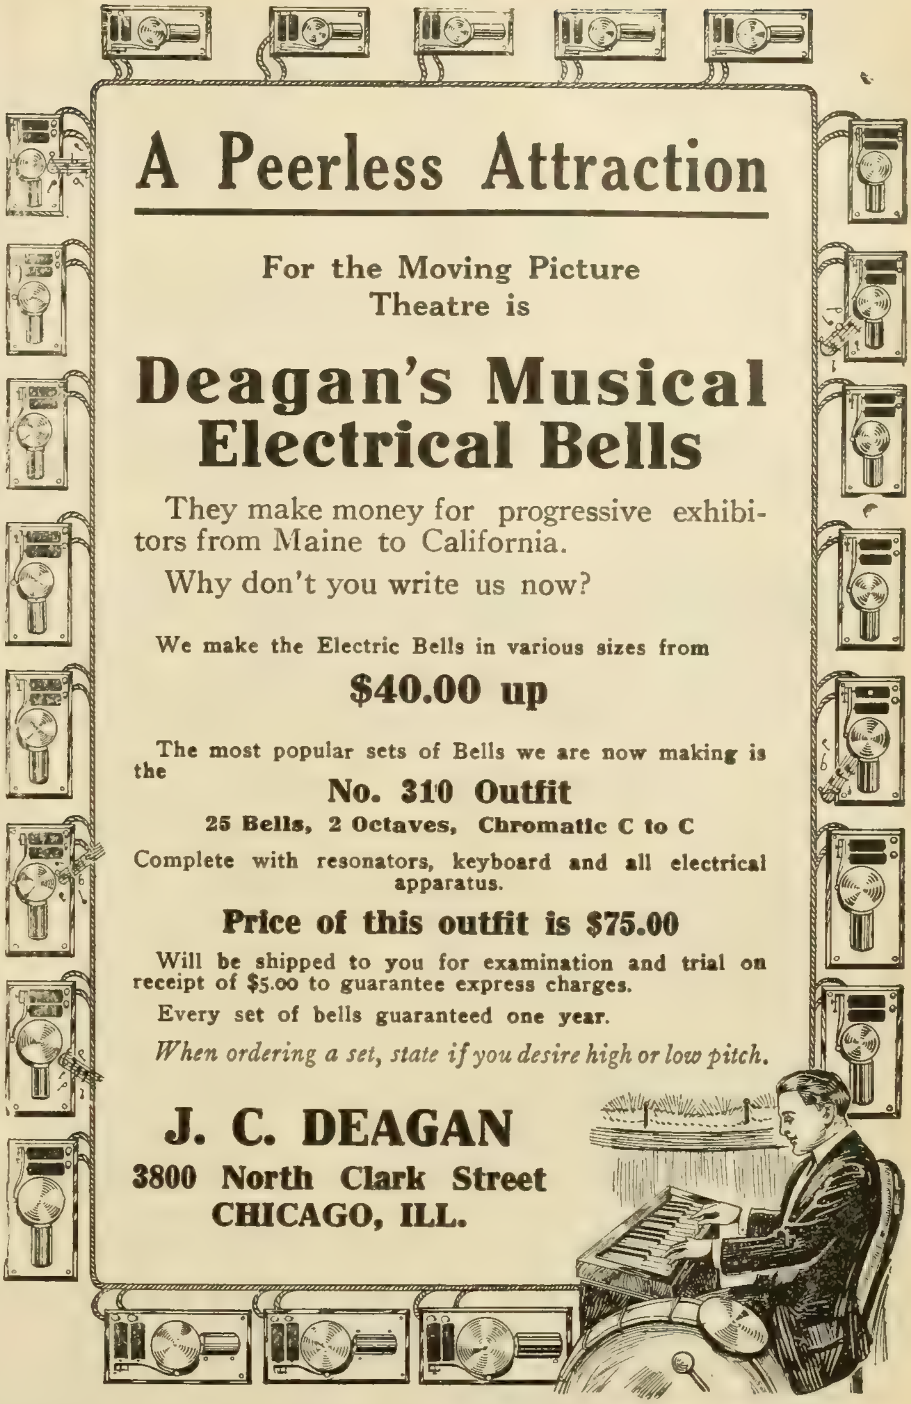
Moving Picture Theatre in Indiana. Town
000. Seating 150.
ite The Lyric Film Supply Co., Terre Haute, Ind.



A Peerless Attraction

For the Moving Picture Theatre is

Deagan's Musical Electrical Bells

They make money for progressive exhibitors from Maine to California.

Why don't you write us now?

We make the Electric Bells in various sizes from

$40.00 up

The most popular sets of Bells we are now making is the

No. 310 Outfit

25 Bells, 2 Octaves, Chromatic C to C

Complete with resonators, keyboard and all electrical apparatus.

Price of this outfit is $75.00

Will be shipped to you for examination and trial on receipt of $5.00 to guarantee express charges.

Every set of bells guaranteed one year.

When ordering a set, state if you desire high or low pitch.

J. C. DEAGAN
3800 North Clark Street
CHICAGO, ILL.

Advertising for Licensed Theatres Only

Feature Banner 12 ft. long x 3 ft. wide
With Original Litho, 50c.

One-sheet, 15c; bought back for 5c

Lithographs Rented, Mounted on Canvas, One-Sheet 5c, 3-Sheets 25c, 8-Sheets 50c.

ARTHUR BRADY, 124 EAST 14th STREET
NEW YORK CITY
TELEPHONE 3118 STUYVESANT

SOLD OUT!

EVERY COPY OF MARCH ISSUE

Send Order Now for April Issue of

PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE

Devoted to stories of INDEPENDENT MADE PICTURES and profusely illustrated. We prepay it to you. Write to-day and we will send you full particulars.

PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE
Suite 401-402 600-630 So. Dearborn Street CHICAGO, ILLINOIS
F. A. LEAR, General Manager

YOU WILL DO THE SAME THING OVER

One of our numerous customers writes: We beg to ackNOwledge receipt of your letter, and are very pleased to be able to inform you that we still continue to draw

MORE

people into our Hall than our opposition who run nothing else but first run programmes; this, we feel sure, is entirely owing to your supplying us with

FEATURE

Subjects: Our receipts have increased 30 per cent. on the last month with the aid of your

FILMS

which we run on Thursdays, making this day equal to Saturday in receipts.

PLEASE

arrange to supply us in future with a two reel feature for Tuesday and a three reel for Thursday.

INDEPENDENT FILM SERVICE

233 N. 8th Street, Philadelphia

Bell Phone: Market 334. Cable: "Bradfilms," Phila.

☞! COMING: OUR LADY OF LOURDES AND BERNADETTE, 2 Reel Lenten Film

---

Columbia Feature Film Company

Attell-Moran Championship Fight - - -	2 Reels
Ten Nights in a Barroom (Tinted) - - -	4 "
Siege of Calais (Tinted) - - - - -	2 "
Gaumont's Delhi Durbar - - - - - -	1 "
" Christian Martyrs (Hand Colored)	1 "
" Heaven's Messenger " "	1 "

WE RELEASE EVERY WEEK

The Gaumont Weekly—animated news of the world. Greatest of them all.

COMING

Angel of the Trail - - - - 2 Reels—March 1st
Gaumont's—The Trust - - - 2 " —March 9th

BEING IMPORTED

The Passion Play. Life of Moses.

We buy nothing but new copies and prices are right. Better get in line and boost your receipts.

422 N. High St., Columbus, Ohio.

Ah— h— h—

IT IS HERE—AT LAST

THE CHINESE REVOLUTION

PORTRAYED FOR THE FIRST TIME ANYWHERE in Motography

—IN TWO REELS—

We have purchased the exclusive rights for the United States, Canada and Mexico from the well-known Anataka firm,

THE PATHE'S OF JAPAN

State right men act quick—Don't delay until the public has lost all interest. Just Think! China a Republic. This picture shows History in its making.

A vivid portrayal of the Fighting, Massacring, Murdering and awe-inspiring, blood-curdling battles of the Chinese Rebellion closing with the Sensational capture of the City of Nanking.

Something Every One Can Appreciate—Does not Require an Educated Mind to Understand

We don't want a fortune for it. A real live subject. You will turn them away by the thousands, as is being done in the Coast Cities already played.

Special 1 and 3 sheet posters, uniforms, rifles and other ballyho matter furnished at wholesale—in fact, everything to help you get the money.

Think! You State Right Men. Ponder over the opportunity that stares you in the face. You can't afford to pass this up.

WIRE—WRITE—CALL—ACT QUICK AND GRAB THIS WHILE IT'S HOT

ORIENTAL FILM COMPANY

1237-39 Van Ness Avenue San Francisco, Cal.

MOTION PICTURE SUPPLIES

WHOLESALE RETAIL

MACHINES EDISON
MOTIOGRAPH
POWERS
SIMPLEX
STANDARD

CARBONS ARCO
BIO
ELECTRA
EXCELO
SEAMAN

Reels, Carrying Cases, Rewinders, Machine Parts, Disinfectants
Everything for the Motion Picture Theatre, except the film

H. A. MACKIE, Inc., 21 East Fourteenth St., Phone Stuyvesant 2478 New York City

RELIANCE FILMS

Released Wednesday, Mar. 20, 1912

HIDE AND SEEK

A telling melodrama of temptation and its results. How a child playing a simple game thwarts the efforts of two men turned criminals through the temptation of money.

RELIANCE.

Released Saturday, March 23, 1912

JEALOUSY

A clever combination of tragedy and comedy. How a young husband foolishly lets his jealousy get the best of him. Full of tears and laughter. Another Natural History subject with it!

Up from the Primitive

Wonderfully interesting series of little creatures with primitive and prehistoric traits.

CARLTON MOTION PICTURE LABORATORIES, 540 West 21st St., New York

---

DO YOU WANT AN Expert Operator, Manager, Cashier, Drummer, Lecturer, Pianist, Usher, Singer, or Vaudeville Acts ? ? ? ?

If so, don't waste time looking for them; get me to look for you.

Drop a Line, Wire or Phone 1405 Madison Square

TAYLOR'S THEATRICAL AGENCY, 49-51 West 28th St.
NEW YORK CITY

In answering advertisements kindly mention The Moving Picture World.

Just a Moment
The Operator is getting there as fast as he can.

ERKO ADVERTISING AND ANNOUNCEMENT SLIDES

Are superior in quality and artistic design. 25c. up. Send for catalog.

Stereopticons and Moving Picture Machines and Calcium Gas

Complete stock of guaranteed repair parts for all machines

ERKER BROS. OPTICAL CO., 601 OLIVE STREET, ST. LOUIS, MO.

When Your Picture Machine Needs Repairing

Why don't you send it to us?

We have the best equipped machine shop in the country and can repair any make of machine. Write us and get acquainted.

We buy second hand machines.

GEO. M. HOKE SUPPLY CO., 176 N. State St., Bet. Lake & Randolph Chicago, Ill.

MORTIMER FILM CLEANER

Makes Dirty Films Clean and Bright

The only dry cleaning process—it cleans while film is being re-wound. Positively prevents "rain" and spots. Simple, effective and guaranteed not to injure the film. Cost of operation but one cent per film. No progressive theater or exchange can afford to be without it.

WHAT SOME OF OUR CUSTOMERS SAY

"Worth their weight in gold." Miles Bros., Los Angeles.
"Improves the films at the least 75%." Richard Dabb, Shenandoah, Pa.
"We like the cleaners very much." Warioto Film Co., Nashville, Tenn.
"Well worth the money to any motion picture house." Hyman & Hirsch, Chicago.
"It does excellent work." W. E. Greene Film Exch., Boston, Mass.

If your exchange cannot supply you, send orders direct to

MORTIMER FILM CLEANER CO. 704 Fidelity Bldg., Portland, Maine

250

COLD COPIES

Brand New

Independent make Bison, Thanhouser, Imp, Nestor, Yankee, Powers' Champion

ABOUT ONE YEAR OLD

3 CENTS A FOOT

Posters Extra 5 Cts. Each

WRITE FOR LIST

INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS

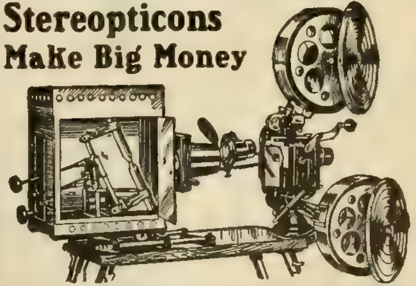
5 West 14th Street, N. Y.

DID YOU SEE AD

ON PAGE 918, LAST WEEK'S ISSUE?

EXHIBITORS ADVERTISING CO.
117 North Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

Moving Picture Machines Stereopticons Make Big Money



Motion Picture Theatre Supplies

We carry on hand at all times the largest and most complete line of Repairs and Supplies for all Standard Machines, also Tickets, Carbons, Screens, Chairs, etc. Can ship at once. Special Slides made to order. We also handle Motiograph, Edison and Powers Machines. Write to-day for THEATER CATALOGUE

CHICAGO PROJECTING CO.

219 S. Deaborn St., Dept. A, Chicago, Ill.

BIG ELECTRIC BILLS

and poor light are chronic diseases in the motion picture business. Are you suffering? If so, any well informed exhibitor will tell you HALLBERG, "The Economizer Man", is the only doctor for your ailments.

Troy, Mo., Feb. 28, 1912.

J. H. Hallberg,

Dear Sir.—Last May I bought a Hallberg Economizer of you and am more than pleased with the light and juice saving devices of the machine. I would not do without it.

Yours truly,
L. J. Henry.

"THE HALLBERG ECONOMIZERS"

Made for either alternating or direct current circuit, and for changing A. C. to D. C.

READ MY GUARANTEE BELOW

I make allowance on your old Saver in Trade for a HALLBERG

GUARANTEED TO SAVE

On 100 to 125 Volts A.C., 60 to 70%.
On 200 to 250 Volts A.C., 75 to 85%.
On 100 to 125 Volts D.C., 50%.
On 200 to 250 Volts D.C., 70%.
On 500 to 600 Volts D.C., 90%.
And To Improve Your Light 50% Over Use on Rheostat.

Over 2,000 in use for A.C. as well as D.C., and my G. E. Mercury Arc Rectifier and A.C. to D.C. Economizers are the goods for those who want D.C. at the arc on A.C. circuits.

IF YOU WANT A MOVING PICTURE MACHINE OF ANY MAKE, I AM SPECIAL JOBBER OF EDISON, POWERS, MOTIOGRAPH, SIMPLEX and STANDARD MACHINES, and Make Allowance In Trade For Your Old Machine.

25c. IN STAMPS

Brings to you Hallberg's Motion Picture Catalogue, The Reference Book.

Nothing like it ever published before.

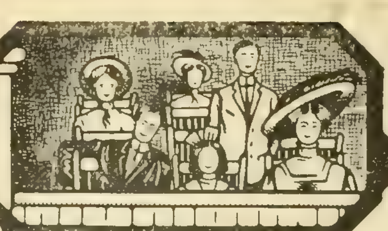
Will prove a constant guide and money-maker to every proprietor, manager and operator. Send 25 cts. to-day.

I Equip Theaters Completely

And carry in stock the highest grade goods required for your theater. Free catalogues, circulars and pamphlets furnished of individual items you require. Send for Chair folders.

J. H. HALLBERG

36 East 23d St., New York



From the Patrons View Point

What Causes People

to continually patronize one Picture Theatre in preference to another? Of course, location, appearances, films, etc. have a great deal to do with it, but quality of the picture is what builds up a steady patronage that makes the business profitable.

This depends largely on your light and if you are using any other device than a to step down your current you are not getting best results.

FORT WAYNE COMPENSARC

With our machine you can produce a clear, white, steady light that won't worry your "house" by continuous flickering and will surprise you with the difference it makes with the films.

It is the only device that can be changed instantly to any of the three intensities without breaking the circuit between adjustments.

But this is not all. We will guarantee that our Compensarc

Will Cut 65% from Your Light Bill and we'll send you one on 30 days' free trial to prove it.

We have a little 22 page booklet that explains all the reasons why If you want a better light at ⅓ your present cost, send for it today. It's free.

FT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
of GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY
1402 Broadway
Fort Wayne, Ind.

C5

ANOTHER ENTERPRISE TRIUMPH

TOGO CALCIUM GAS OUTFIT

Complete with Rubber Tubing and Keyless Jet

SUPERIOR WORKMANSHIP and HIGH GRADE MATERIAL combined with SAFETY and SIMPLICITY place the TOGO far ahead of any other cheap outfit.

PORTABLE and ready for instant use - $25.00.

Anyone can operate it

MANUFACTURED BY

The Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co., 564 W. Randolph St., Chicago

FOR SALE BY ALL DEALERS

HOW ABOUT YOUR PICTURE SCREEN? IS IT GIVING PERFECT SATISFACTION?

If not, now is the time to secure one of our celebrated

ELECTRIC CURTAINS FREE!!

A guaranteed screen all installed anywhere without one cent of cost to you.

Write for particulars

DE BERRI CURTAIN CO.
NATIONAL THEATRE ADVERTISERS
176 North State Street :: :: Chicago, Ill.

EXHIBITORS' HEADQUARTERS

CALEHUFF SUPPLY COMPANY

(Incorporated)

50 North Eighth Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Jobbers in Edison Kinetoscopes, Powers Cameragraphs.

Machines repaired by expert mechanics. Genuine parts only used.

SPECIALTIES

Mirror Screens
Chairs
Tickets
Pianos
Bio & Electric Carbons
Special Gundlach Len-
Condensers
Edison Transformers
Ft.WayneCompensarcs
Asbestos State Booths
Asbestos Wire
Switches
Plugs Spotlights
Gas Making Outfits
Limes Film Cement
Disinfectant
Scenery
Stage Effects
Theatres Bought, Sold, Rented

CHAS. A. CALEHUFF, Pres. and Gen. Mgr.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY

'Das Lichtbild-Theater"

The most up-to-date and most comprehensive Journal of the Cinematograph Industry in Germany.

Editor-Proprietor: LUDWIG BRAUNER

BERLIN SW 68. MARKGRAFENSTRASSE 92/92.

nual subscription abroad, $3.00. Write for specimen copy.

OVING PICTURE MACHINES
LANTERNS

BRIGHTER THAN CALCIUM.

OZO-CARBI-LIGHT

PATENTED

NO SATURATOR- OPENS NEW FIELDS FOR MOVING PICTURES.

ECIAL SLIDES TO ORDER ALSO CARRY SLIDES ON ALL SUBJECTS.

oore Hubbell & Co.
N.Franklin St. Chicago Ill Send for Catalogue.

WURLITZER

rld's Largest Mfrs. Established 1856

Wu zer PianOrchestra and Mandolin Sextet in Royal Theatre, Lima, O.

Vrite for 32-page booklet, showing litzer Automatic Musical Instruments

in the leading picture theatres of the country.

e Wurlitzer Instruments furnish better music than musicians duce expenses. 50 different styles; time payments; big free. If you can't call, write to our nearest branch.

he Rudolph Wurlitzer Company

CINNATI 21 E. 4th
NEW YORK 25-27 W. 32d
CHICAGO 329-331 S. Wabash
PHILADELPHIA 1835 Chestnut
.OUIS Olive St.
CLEVELAND 800 Huron Road
BUFFALO 701 Main
LOUISVILLE 426 W. Green
COLUMBUS.O. 57 E. Main

"ARCO BIOGRAPH"

stamped on a carbon, means

STANDARD OF MERIT

The only RELIABLE BRAND without abbreviation of marks.

L. E. FRORUP & CO.

232 Greenwich St. New York City

American Moving Picture Machine Co.

MANUFACTURERS OF THE

STANDARD

Automatic Moving Picture Machine

101-102 Beekman Street New York

INDIRECT LIGHT

ENABLES you to have "Daylight Pictures" with any curtain or machine.

Thousands of houses have installed "THE EYE COMFORT SYSTEM" of "INDIRECT ILLUMINATION" during the past year.

Not a light in range of vision nor any light that will throw a shadow on the screens.

No glaring light to detract from the picture—more perfect detail—saves expense of usher.

At small cost you can secure this equipment.

Free engineering report. Don't let amateur electricians arrange your lighting system. Our expert engineering staff will furnish report free of charge. Fill out coupon below and mail to us today.

National X-Ray Reflector Co.,
235 Jackson Blvd., Chicago.

Distance, screen to machine ....

Width of house ....Ceiling height ....

Name and Address ....

RADIANT VELLUM

Patent applied for

A NEW cloth for screens. This Vellum, owing to its extraordinary brilliancy, permits you to show Films or Slides by daylight. A high grade screen at a reasonable price.

Radiant Vellum is made in continuous rolls 41 inches wide and may be joined into screens of any size.

Send for price list.

Samples, one-half yard, mailed on receipt of 25c.

WILLIAMS, BROWN & EARLE, Inc.

Manufacturers of Special Projection Apparatus of all kinds, and Manufacturers' Sole Agents for white Condensers and Oxodium.

Dept. 64. 916-918 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

BUY YOUR FILM
FROM A RESPONSIBLE FIRM

We offer to unaffiliated exchanges throughout the country:

INDEPENDENT GOODS

at 30, 60, 90 days and older. FEATURES—The best that can be obtained in the American and European markets.

BARGAINS IN SECOND-HAND FILM

MASKO FILM COMPANY

145 West 45th Street, New York

"Make your own film"

of local interest—it will make your th prominent by showing a local feature film time to time. Buy the "Junior Profes Outfit," with which you can make films t than some of the manufacturers are turning
The complete outfit can be bought outright, full instructions how to take, develop and my own patents, scores of highly satisfied tomers.

N. Y. greatest Jobbing laboratory and chanical workshop, special Films, Titles, car rented, special lenses, projecting machines single arc dissolvers. All motion picture plies, film stock, condensers, wire lugs, e picture machine repairing. Write me at on what you are interested—for catalo

EBERHARD SCHNEIDER
219 Second Avenue, near 14th St., New

MR. ALMOST BUTT

Is not the name of a film!
Is not a goat!
He butts in next week! Watch!

BE AN OPERATOR

Our home study course tells how. It is scientific, practical and complete. Illustrated with many original drawings it goes down to the kernel. Our course makes you a skilled operator. You can secure a license anywhere after completing our course. Ask for Booklet B—it is free.

DIAMOND OPERATING SCHOOL
8 South 15th St., St. Louis, Mo.

Dissolving Effect with Single Stereopticon

Every Exhibitor and Operator should have a

Reid's Diffuser

Can be used with any machine. Prepaid for $2.00

Reid's Diffuser Co., 26 Waverly Ct., Chicago, Ill.

An open value-giving policy
Is as pleasing as an honest countenance
We give value received and then some.
Kansas City Slide Co.
14th & GRAND AVE. KANSAS CITY, MO.

If you want Advertising and Song Sl

Write to

A. L. SIMPSON, I

The Most Reliable Slide Maker in the Bus

113 W. 132nd Street, New York

"La Cinematografia Italiana ed Este

IS ITALY'S LEADING PAPER FOR ANIMATED PICTURE
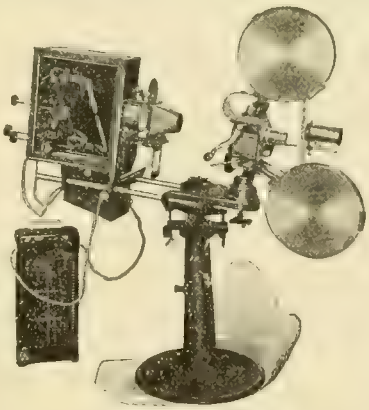
PUBLISHED FORTNIGHTLY.
32, 36 and 40 large pages, 8 shillings per a
($1.60).
Editor-prop'r: Prof. GUALTIERO I. FA
Via Cumiana, 81 (Barriera S. Paolo) Torino,



MOTIOGRAPH MACHINES

EVERY MOTIOGRAPH IS A MOTIOGRAPH THROUGH AND THROUGH

BUILT FOR THOSE WHO WANT THE BEST

MUCH HAS BEEN SAID BY OTHER MAKERS ABOUT THE GREATNESS OF THEIR FACTORIES—FEW PEOPLE REALIZE THAT THE GREATEST OF THEM ALL IS THE MOTIOGRAPH PLANT.

The reason it has not been necessary to exploit it has been the HIGH STANDARD QUALITY of the MOTIOGRAPH—For four years the MOTIOGRAPH has been less advertised than any other make and still it has forged steadily forward in popular favor—Our competitors are forced to spend thousands of dollars yearly more than we do, and still we go onward.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES

and buy because of the size of advertising space—but read the small, direct MOTIOGRAPH Talks.

THE MOTIOGRAPH organization is a unit which represents a HIGH DEGREE OF EFFICIENCY in Motion Picture Machine construction and THAT IS WHY THE MOTIOGRAPH maintains its REPUTATION OF THE BEST BUILT MACHINE ON EARTH.

Manufactured by The Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company

For Sale by Live Dealers Everywhere. 564-572 W. Randolph St., CHICAGO, ILL.

20,000 roll tickets, $1.20; 50 ⅝ cored carbons, $1.15; stereopticon objectives, 50c to $3.00; stereopticons, $15; rheostats, $3 to $5; arc lamps, $1.75, $2 and $2.25; condensers, 50c; calcium jets, $2.80; acetylene jets, $2.50; gas generators, $3.50; moving picture objectives, $2.75; jackets, $2. List of moving picture repair parts at fair prices. Sprocket wheels, 85c; films, 1c a foot. Catalogue. All makes of moving picture machines repaired at reasonable prices. L. HETZ, 302 East 23rd St., New York City

IMPORTANT NOTICE

We Wish To Advise The Public

that E. A. SCHULTZ is not in any way connected with the Manufacturers of the MOTIOGRAPH Moving Picture Machine. We are not responsible for his debts or obligations.

We will pay a REWARD of $10.00 for information leading to recovery of 1912 Model MOTIOGRAPH Outfit with trunks and accessories, number of machine is 9112144, Motion Picture Patents Co. License No. 6089, number of Framer is 0487.

The Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co.
564 W. Randolph St. Chicago, Ill.

PATHE'S WEEKLY

The Motion Picture
Exhibitor's Mascot
ISSUED EVERY MONDAY
Book It Every Week

Increase Your Income

SEND FOR OUR
32 -- PAGE -- 32
EXCLUSIVE
MOVING PICTURE THEATRE Catalogue
—OF—
100 CLASSIFIED SOUVENIRS 100
AND COMPLETE PLANS NOW USED BY THOUSANDS
OF THEATRES
PLAYING TO STANDING ROOM ONLY
— WRITE TODAY —
United States Factories Co.
500 Great Lakes Bldg., CHICAGO

Headquarters for
ASBESTOS
CURTAINS and PICTURE BOOTHS
SEND FOR BOOKLET
C. W. Trainer Mfg. Co.
39 Pearl St., Boston

World's Greatest Moving Picture
ZIGOMAR

We Offer 300 more to the Trap Drummers

Get your order in at once. At our special offer price—$10.00

This high-grade Orchestra Drum, 10 thumb screw rods, transparent drum heads, solid shells, maple, rosewood, walnut.

Size, 3 x 14—3 x 15—4 x 15—4 x 14. This offer for September and October.

E. P. Zeidler Drum Co., Cleveland, O.

Sterling Terminals

POSITIVELY the best terminal ever devised for motion picture arc lamps. GUARANTEED to prevent burned off wires.

Price $1.00 per pair postpaid

YOUR MONEY BACK IF YOU WANT IT

STERLING NOVELTY CO., 500 Main St., Warren Ohio

THE BEST BY TEST

Swaab Film Service Co.
(INDEPENDENT FILM ONLY)

Will supply you with the Sales Co.'s choice program. Ask for terms.

Motiograph and Power Machines

Carbons—Electra, $2.00 per 100; $19.00 per 1000, and other supplies at corresponding prices.

129 N. Eighth Street Philadelphia Pa,

HERE AT LAST
A place to buy parts for M. P. machines for less
One of our SPECIALS
Intermittent SPROCKETS $1.50 FOR POWERS EDISON Machines
Write for Price List
PITTSBURG M.P. SUPPLY CO., Pittsburg, Pa.

Films For Rent

Reliable Service. Independent Films. Banners and Posters supplied. 12-Reel Shipment $12.00

THE FILM EXCHANGE
61 West 14th Street, New York City

You Should Demand
EXCELSIOR SLIDES

From your Exchange when you want hits. This week's release by world's foremost Song Writer—

Gus Edwards—
"When I was a kid like you"
"Wake, baby eyes of blue"
By Whitmark & Sons

The two of the biggest hits of the century—posed by some of the leading performers of the vaudeville stage.

EXCELSIOR SLIDE CO.
61 W. 14th St., New York
PHONE CHELSEA 4351

Still making the best Advertising Slides on the market.

Orchestra Music
FOR MOVING PICTURES

Violin, Cornet and Drum parts have been added to the popular "Orpheum Collection" of piano music (dramatic and descriptive) for Moving Pictures. Practical for piano alone or any number of above instruments. Issued in two parts: No. 1 and No. 2.

Piano, 58 cents each; both No.'s $1.15
Violin, 40 cents each; both " 75c
Cornet, 35 cents each; both " 65c
Drums, 30 cents each; both " 55c

Send for free sample pages.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1501 Sedgwick St., Chicago, Ill.

McKENNA

BRASS
RAILINGS
EASELS
GRILLES
CUSPIDORS

BRASS
KICK PLATES
STAIR TREADS, DOOR SILLS

McKenna Bros. Brass Co.
PITTSBURGH, PA.

OPERA CHAIRS

FOR EVERY PURPOSE
1,000 STYLES

ESTABLISHED 1865
WRITE FOR CAT. No. 31

115-117 So. Wabash Ave.
Chicago, Ill.
The A. H. Andrews Co.
Branches in all Leading Citie
New York Office, 1165 Broadway. Seattle Office, 508-10-12 First Ave., So.
San Francisco Office, 673 Mission St.

Get Our Prices
Before You Buy

The Wisconsin Seating
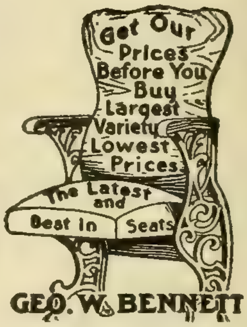
Company

New London,
Wisconsin, U. S. A.



OPERA CHAIRS

GEO. W. BENNETT
34-36 E. 3rd Street
CINCINNATI, OHIO

95 Cts.

buys a STEEL FRAME ABSOLUTELY NON-BREAKABLE Theatre Chair like cut. Goods used a short time only, and refinished at factory. Cannot be distinguished from new chairs. Subject to prior sale, therefore, act quick.

STEEL FURNITURE CO., Grand Ripids, Mich.

THEATRE SEATING—Send for Moving Picture Chair Cat. "V4," Upholstered Chair Cat. "V5."
AMERICAN SEATING COMPANY
Chicago New York Boston Philadelphia

SCENARIO WRITERS!

If your scenarios do not sell find out why. Perhaps your manuscript can be rewritten and made saleable, and your mistakes may be corrected in future manuscripts. The author of "Technique of the Photoplay," etc., will give your manuscript personal criticism and revision for a fee of only $2.

REVISION—Scenarios having a reasonable chance of a sale will be edited and revised and a typewritten copy supplied for one dollar per finished page. Send the manuscript and a reading fee of one dollar. If the scenario will not warrant further expense, it will be returned to you; if it does, you will be advised as to full cost. Please note that this covers no criticism.

Exhibitors!

Submit your difficulties to the author of "The Photoplay Theater," and other articles on management, for advice and suggestion, the result of twenty years' experience in amusement enterprises. Simple questions $1 each.

Epes Winthrop Sargent
Box 70, Madison Square Station
New York City

WANTED
BY

ATLANTIC FILM CO.

1000 REELS

MOVING PICTURE FILM
FOR EXPORT

Send Lists With Detail Information

145 West 45th Street, New York

YOU CAN BANK THE PRICE of a new machine by having LAVEZZI rebuild your old one.

Outside shutter, 3 wings	$10.00
Oil bath, automatic speed..............	3.00
Non vibrating machine, table adjustable	8.00
Intermittent action, comprising of Lavezzi's improved Cam Star arbor and sprocket	12.00
Edison 2 pin rebuilt, with above action	25.00

LAVEZZI MACHINE WORKS
2940 Herndon Street CHICAGO

SONG SLIDES

NORTH AMERICAN SLIDE CO.
23 N. Ninth Street Phila., Pa.

Slides of the General Film Co.'s Fire, Phila., now ready. A set of 20 slides, $8.00 ; order quick. The Great Austin Flood, 22 plain slides, $4.50; 22 colored slides, $8.00. Italy-Turkish War, 30 plain slides, $6.50; 30 colored slides, $10.00.

SONG SLIDES

Operators!

I guarantee quick and satisfactory repair work on all machines. Only genuine parts supplied. Get my prices on ONE DROP OIL and BULL DOG CEMENT the best articles of their kind on the market.

H. A. MACKIE CO., Inc.
21 East 14th Street New York
'Phone: 2478 Stuyvesant

OH! MR. EXHIBITOR!! THINK OF THE MOTHERLESS, THE FATHERLESS, AND THE Childless homes as the result of theater panics. Protect the lives of your patrons by installing our "ANTI-PANIC" THEATER CHAIR. 26 Dead at Cannonsburg, 176 at Boyertown, 575 at Iriquois Theater, Chicago. Make these horrors impossible.

Our chair is a friend to the Public.
It advertises your theater and makes your business grow.
It is a space-saver, life-saver, money-saver. Gives 25% more seating.

IT IS THE ONLY SANITARY CHAIR

It will make your theater all aisles.
It is the world's greatest theater chair, perfected to the highest degree.

Write today for Circular A. THE HARDESTY MFG. CO., Canal Dover, Ohio, U. S. A.

☆ G. MÉLIÈS ☆

DORA SETS THE COWBOYS' HEARTS A-FLUTTER

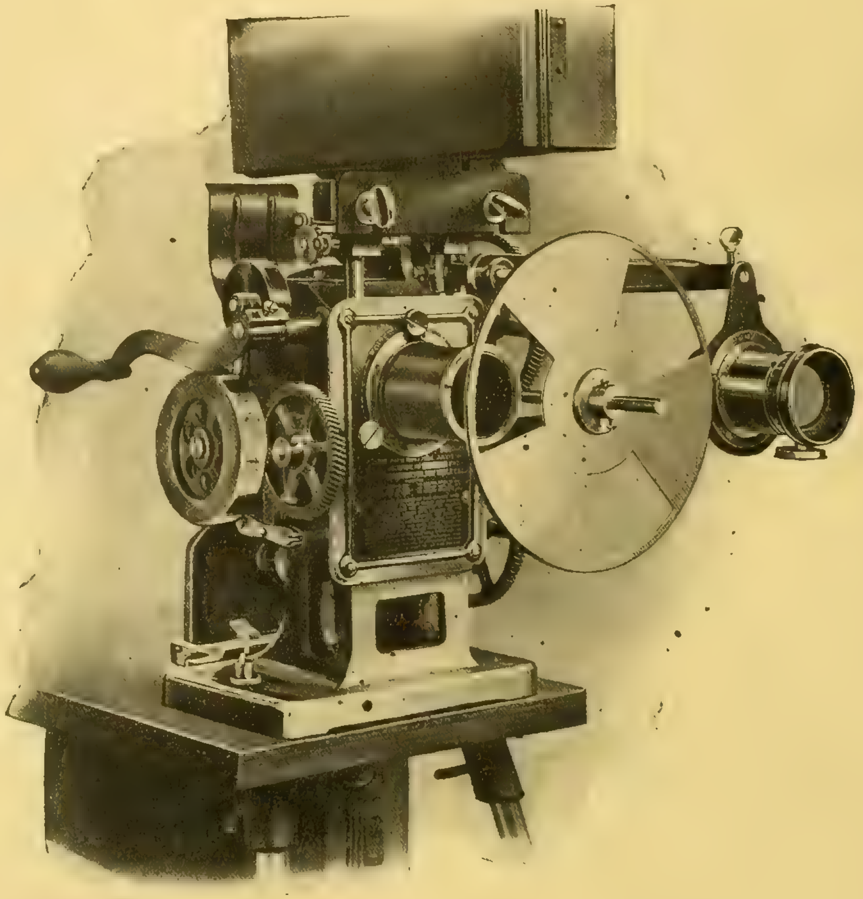
TROUBLES OF THE X-L OUTFIT

Dora, a pretty nurse, just graduated, is called for her first case to attend cowboy "Tide Water" Pete at the X-L Ranch, where, unwittingly, she turns the hearts of all the cowboys topsy-turvy, so that by the time Pete is well they have become so fond of her that they do not want her to go back home. "Shorty" Sam feigns illness to keep her with them, but to no avail. Finally in desparation "Long" Jim resolves to wound himself in the foot, but accidentally misses and shoots Ralph, son of the ranchman, who is in love with Dora. She is obliged to stay and attend him, and the long period of convalescence affords a romance that ends to the satisfaction of the whole camp.

★ G. MELIES, 204 EAST 38th ST., NEW YORK CITY ★

APPROX. 1000 FT. 3-21-12

?



Why is POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH No. 6 recognized as the leading moving picture machine?

Because in it the most vital point of all has been developed to the highest degree—PERFECT PROJECTION.

Why is "POWER'S" known in every civilized country, and used in nearly all the leading houses?

Because it has won confidence from its users. They know it is made of the best material, and is a product of the oldest experience and most advanced scientific knowledge.

Why is it that all the prominent lecturers use "POWER'S"?

Because they know when the public pays good money they have got to "show them", and only the best will do it.

"Sufficiency"! Mr. Exhibitor. These are only a few reasons for "POWER'S" supremacy. Ask any operator. He will tell you that "POWER'S" tops them all.

Rush of business has swamped us, but in our new quarters, which are larger and superior in every way to the old, we can give you better and prompter service than ever before. How about you now?

Send for Catalogue and proposition G.

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

90 GOLD STREET, NEW YORK

For fourteen years the leading manufacturers of motion picture machines.

CAREY PRESS, N. Y.

ol. 11. No. 12 March 23, 1912 Price, 10c.

H P HOFFMAN

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "The Lighted Candle" (Majestic).

125 East 23rd Street New York—Chicago 169 W. Washington St.

THE THANHOUSER TWO-A-WEEK

Tues., April 30 "CRY OF THE CHILDREN"
IN TWO REELS

Tues., April 30 "CRY OF THE CHILDREN
IN TWO REELS

EXTRA!

Thanhouser "Child Labor" Masterpiece

THE CRY OF THE CHILDREN

Suggested by the Famous Poem of

ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING

A Two-Reel Feature

TUES. APRIL 30

RELEASED TUESDAY, MARCH 26

"Made in Florida"

For Sale—A Life

This is an all-star dramatic effort by our all-star Southern Stock and should enjoy a feature position on your bill. Your audience will like it mostly for its simplicity of story; the plot is a tremendous one BUT easy to understand and remember. And it is a plot that has its origin IN REAL, EVERY DAY LIFE. That's the kind that brings people back to your show.

RELEASED FRIDAY, MARCH, 29

A NOVEL Picture

"My Baby's Voice"

The telephone switchboard operator has at last come into her own—in the film. The great power she actually wields is given moving picture recognition in this peachy heart-interest story and you want to grab the reel quick before the idea is done to death. Its biggest appeal now is its NOVELTY!

Thanhouser Co., New Rochelle, N. Y.

Send me FREE Lobby Decorations for your features "In March." I am / am not getting "The Thanhouser News"

Name........................

Address........................

Exchange........................

THANHOUSER COMPANY

New Rochelle, New York

Sales Company Agents for U. S. and Canada

Next Feature, "CRY OF THE CHILDREN"

GETTING 2 2 A WEEK?

FOUR-A-WEEK

Essanay

ARE YOU DOPING OUT YOUR WEEKLY PROGRAM?

Here is a

DRAMA—FARCE-COMEDY—COMEDY—WESTERN

for you!

4 FEATURE PHOTOPLAYS!

RELEASED TUESDAY, MARCH 19th

"OUT OF THE DEPTHS"

A feature dramatic production de-luxe! Thrilling and tremendous intense situations! A smashing big climax! Superb cast, and photography above par! A sensation on any bill!

RELEASED THURSDAY, MARCH 21st

"CUPID'S LEAP YEAR PRANKS"

Want to set 'em laughing? Want 'em to roar, roar, roar with mirth to the very last foot and go out saying "Bully"?—then get this hilarious one quick! It's a scream!

RELEASED FRIDAY, MARCH 22nd

"A RECORD ROMANCE"

A brilliant comedy with a clean-cut story of the trials befalling love in a business office. Smartly acted and photographed the right way—the "Essanay way." 'Nuff sed!

RELEASED SATURDAY, MARCH 23rd

"THE DEPUTY'S LOVE AFFAIR"

A splendid dramatic subject pulsating with the hot blood of the Mexican border. Mr. G. M. Anderson in a great role. You must have this one!

NEXT WEEK!

"AT THE END OF THE TRAIL"

(A Tragedy of the North Woods)

NEXT WEEK!

"ALKALI" Bests Broncho Billy

(A Roaring Western Comedy)

EXHIBITORS EVERYWHERE ARE COMMENTING ON THE EXCELLENCE OF ESSANAY POSTERS GET YOUR NAME ON OUR MAILING LIST!

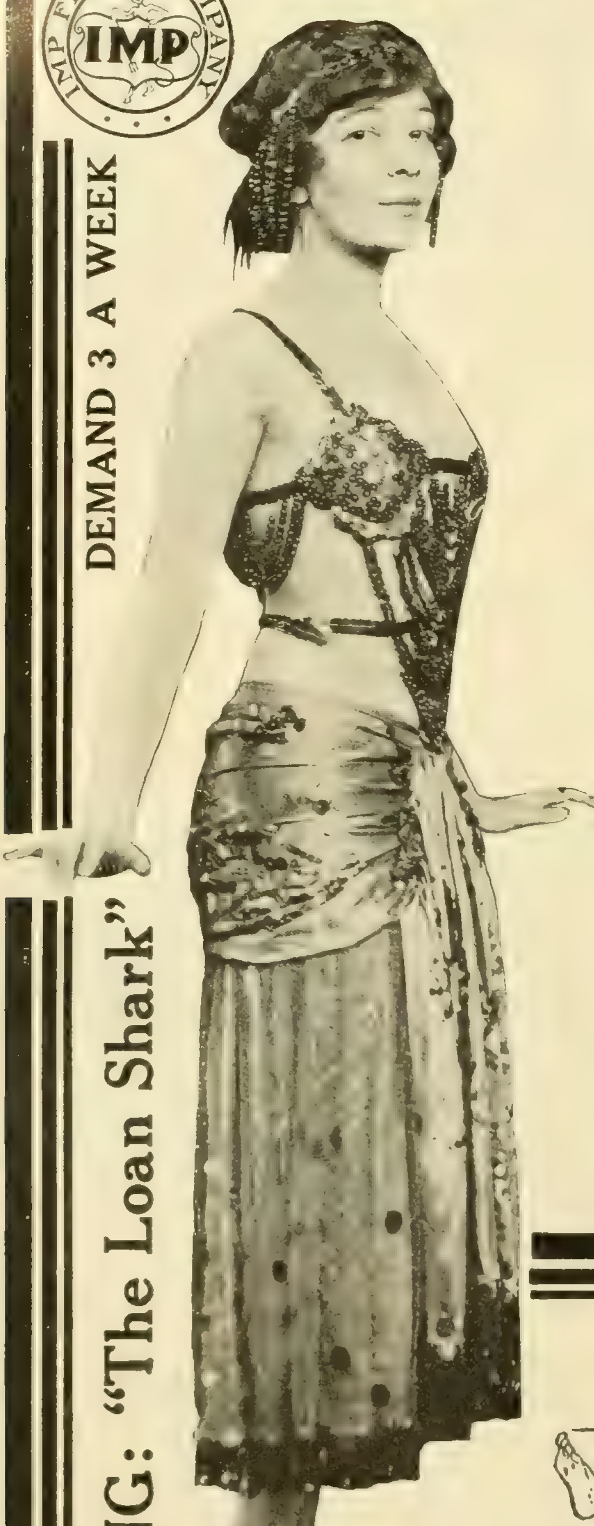
Essanay Film Manufacturing Co.
521 First National Bank Building, Chicago, Ill.

—OFFICES IN—

LONDON BERLIN BARCELONA

DEMAND 3 A WEEK

COMING: “The Loan Shark”



WHO'S THIS?

This is the Russian Countess de Swirsky who posed a series of wonderful costume dances for the Saturday Split Imp of March 23d. This is her first, last and only appearance in motion pictures. Another instance showing that the Imp spends money like water to give you SOMETHING NEW AND DIFFERENT all the time. Will you get this novelty or miss it? It's for YOU TO DECIDE!
On the same reel we will release “The Tankville Constable” — rattling good comedy—copyright 1912.

How About “Shamus O'Brien?”

Will you get this 2,000-foot Imp feature of Thursday, March 14th, or will you miss it just as you've missed other great Imps? Go after it, man, go after it with all your heart, soul and gizzard!

Another Imp Prize Winner

On Saturday, March 30th, we release “THE SQUNK CITY FIRE COMPANY,” which won one of the big prizes in our great scenario contest. It's 600 feet of dog-goned foolishness, the kind that brings roars of laughter. On the same reel, “THE BABY,” which will be talked about for months to come. DON'T YOU MISS IT!

“The Romance of An Old Maid”

Monday, March 25th. A mighty pretty story, full of heart interest.

“Tempted But True”

Thursday, March 28th. King Baggot at his very best. Enough said.

IMP FILMS COMPANY

Carl Laemmle, Pres. 102 W. 101st St., New York

“EXHIBITORS, WAKE UP!” is the title of Article No. 1 in a sensational series of Ten Articles by Carl Laemmle appearing exclusively in “The Implet.” They hit out in all directions. You must not miss a single Article of the whole series. If you are not getting “The Implet” now, get your name and address on the mailing list this very day! This Laemmle Series will appear in “The Implet” and nowhere else!

Getting Better Every Minute!

If you could read the hundreds of glowing testimonials received by ECLAIR extolling its productions, you would realize how necessary every subject must be to your program.

GET THIS ART FILM

A LIVING MEMORY

OUT TUES. MAR. 26

With ALEC FRANCIS, DOROTHY GIBSON, JULIA STUART and a strong cast

MAGNIFICENT POSTERS IN FIVE COLORS AND GOLD

WRITE FOR SAMPLE

A Laughing Comedy, on THURSDAY, MARCH 28

BROOMS AND DUSTPANS

With all the ECLAIR FAVORITE PLAYERS in a merry story with a point

A Paris History-Drama, on SUNDAY MARCH 31

ON THE EVE OF AUSTERLITZ

A STORY OF NAPOLEON

WRITE FOR OUR NEW BOOKLET

ECLAIR FILM CO. FORT LEE, N. J.

Sales Company Sole Agents

Make Your Lobby Display Attractive

ROYAL IMPROVE YOUR Lobby
FRAME YOUR POSTERS
BRASS EASELS AND BRASS RAILING
BRASS POSTER FRAMES FOR EASELS AND WALLS

There is nothing more fascinating to the public than a bright brass frame to display your photos or posters.

We make Lobby and Theatre Fixtures and Brass Rails of every description.

Write for Catalog.

THE NEWMAN MFG. CO.
717-719 Sycamore St.,
Cincinnati, O.

The Operator's Bible

A MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK

Price $1.50 Postage Paid

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
125 EAST 23rd STREET :: :: NEW YORK CITY

A GREAT FEATURE REEL!

Get In On It! A Sure-pop Success!

"KID CANFIELD"

KID CANFIELD

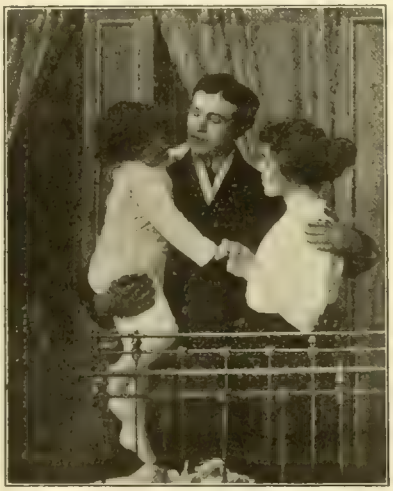
The Reformed Gambler

In Two Wonderful Reels Comprising Two Thousand Feet

A Regular Champion Release, Monday, April 1st, 1912

Part 1. Depicts the startling and adventurous career of this once notorious gambler in the West, from his mischievous boyhood up until his entrance into his nefarious calling as "a runner" of gambling joints.

Part 2. The marvelous expose in actual demonstration by Canfield of the gambler's trickery and dishonest methods of fleecing victims.



THE DIVORCE CURE

DEEPLY EDUCATIONAL!

"IRELAND AND ISRAEL"

Champ Favorite for March 20th

All the papers welcome it strongly. You can't miss getting it.

THE DIVORCE CURE

A Pleasure-giver for April 3rd.

A very pleasing picture of a wealthy young couple, who, having no children, tire of each other. Separtion seems inevitable, but the offices of two good friends bring them together. See the lovely orphan child and the baby. To sum it up in one word, it's a peach!

GET THEM ALL. EVERY CHAMP IS GOOD

THE CHAMPION FILM COMPANY

MARK M. DINTENFASS, Mgr.

145 West 45th Street, New York, N. Y.

HEADQUARTERS FOR :: :: :: :: SUPPLIES AT :: :: :: :: WHOLESALE

MACHINES—MACHINE PARTS—
ASBESTOS WIRE, CARBONS—
POSTER FRAMES, ETC.

KEYSTONE SALES CO., 58 NORTH 2nd STREET
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

STATES UNSOLD

FOR

20 YEARS IN SING SING

GREATEST MOVING PICTURE EVER MADE

Connecticut	$650
Delaware	400
Idaho	450
District of Columbia and Maryland	600
Massachusetts	700
Montana	450
Nebraska	550
New Hampshire	500
Rhode Island	350
Vermont	500
Wyoming	400
Maine	500

These prices include one print of film and three reels, complete lobby display and carrying crate outfit for street drive and one week's advance billing. Terms 20% deposit on acceptance, balance C. O. D., subject to examination. Write in for our prices on two and three states with one outfit.

Cinch Your State by Wire Today

America's Feature Film Co.

403 Schiller Building,
CHICAGO, ILL.

Is This More "Laemmle Luck" ?

L. F. Sargent, Laona, Wis., writes: "Words cannot express my appreciation of the excellent service you have been sending me." Would you call this "Laemmle Luck" or rattling good films and corking good service? Whichever it is, don't you want some of it? Wouldn't you like to feel like writing that sort of a letter to YOUR exchange instead of fighting for what you ought to have? Hook up with Laemmle and grin.

Carl Laemmle, President

The Laemmle Film Service

New Number:
204 West Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

Sykes Block, Minneapolis, Minn.
1312 Farnam St., Omaha, Neb.
421 Walnut St., Des Moines, Iowa

The BIGGEST and BEST film rentor in the World

COMING

Characters in the big spectacular melodrama—

"The Sewer"

Two Reels, Released Wed., April 24th

Released Wednesday, March 27th

Billy's Shoes

Longfellow says: "Leave footprints on the sands of time so that a forlorn and shipwrecked brother, seeing, shall take heart again." Billy Quirk, however, after he got through with his mountain shoes, wished that he had not left footprints, for these footprints got him into an awful scrape.

Released Friday, March 29th

Handle With Care

Another Billy Quirk comedy, in which a whole town of Rubes get excited about a box of "goodies" directed to some college boys. The box is marked "Dynamite—Handle with Care." The town's mayor, constable, fire department, and entire voting population, including the suffragettes, all come out to see that the dynamite does not explode.

Solax Company

CONGRESS AVE., FLUSHING, N. Y.

SALES COMPANY Agents in U. S. A. and Canada

POWERS PICTURE PLAYS

A Drama and a Comedy this week

Release for Tuesday, March 26th

"His Daughter's Loyalty"

Release for Saturday March 30th "WHO'S WHO?"

SEE SYNOPSES

"Action Speaks Louder than Words"

POWERS MOTION PICTURE COMPANY,

511 West 42nd Street New York City

GREAT NORTHERN

Release for Saturday, March 16th

CAPRICIOUSNESS OF LOVE

A delightfully amusing feature comedy. Portrayed by star performers.

Release for Saturday, March 23rd SPLIT COMEDY RELL

A NARROW ESCAPE

An amusing comedy, depicting the escapades of a couple of husbands who love their boon companions better than their spouses, and, worshipping too freely at the shrine of Bacchus, come home with the milk in the morning.

UNLUCKY MIKE

A ludicrous farce. A big laugh all through.

ALL FIRST-CLASS INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES HANDLE OUR PRODUCT!

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO., 7 E. 14th St., N. Y.

(NORDISK FILM CO. OF COPENHAGEN.)

SPECIAL FEATURE FILMS

are great "spreads" but you can't feed your public jam all the time. You know that, and we know that you know it but what we're afraid you do not know is, the release dates of the two most appetizing morsels on the bill of fare:

Tuesday, March 26th

"An Ex-Convict's Ordeal"

An ex-convict—reformed—is starting a new life in the frozen North. A clean love affair, beautiful scenes with dogs and sledges in gorgeous snow settings make this picture refreshing to the eye.

Saturday, March 30th

"Life or Gold"

"In the midst of life" who thinks of death—but in the face of death—OH LIFE—LIFE—LIFE! How differently you would live it—just one more chance. Oh the horror of your helplessness, as it slips from your grasp—the mortal fear—the bitter remorse. Few indeed are given "one more chance," but the old miser in this picture is returned from the very jaws of death and his joy in life as he never knew it—his gratitude and fulfilment of promise made in that hour of living death make this picture awe-inspiring in its intensity.

March 12th—"TWO MEN"
March 16th—"THE SCAR"
March 19th—"A NEW LEASE ON LIFE"
March 23rd—"THE FACE AT THE WINDOW"

To get your name on our list for free lobby display matter—fill in and return to us—

Name of Theater....................
Address ....
Town .... State ....
Age service you use ....
Name of Exchange ....

Dept. W

Republic Film Co.
145 W. 45th St., N. Y. C.

TWO SUR-PRIZES!

(Seems to be a FORWARD "March !")

ON THURSDAY, MARCH 21st

"THE PRICE OF MONEY"

"ROSES AND YOUTH"

Gee, LOOK at the picture !
A record-breaking, history-making ultra-dramatic !
It's the Price of Money for You!

ON SUNDAY, MARCH 24th

"THE STRENGTH OF THE WEAK"

"THE MOMENT OF REALIZATION"

A TRIUMPHILM!
Every move is a picture!
It will be the Strength of the Week!
The synopses, on another page, will convince you

The Rex Motion Picture Masterpiece Co.

573 Eleventh Avenue, New York

"EVERY INCH A FILM"
Sold through Motion Picture Dist. & Sales Co.
Your exchange knows you want Sunday and Thursday REX, but REMIND IT !

STATE-RIGHT MEN! BEHOLD!

Capt. Scott's South Pole Expedition!

In Two Reels

Never Anything Timelier---State Exclusivity Guaranteed

All Infringements Promptly Prosecuted. Fully Copyrighted

A COMPLETE two-reel reproduction of the entire Antarctic expedition of Captain Scott, on which the world has at present directed its focus. Full Pictorial account of all of the British explorer's hardships, pleasures and frigid zone experiences. Positively the biggest feature film is put on the market. Wonderful pictures of the Terra Nova breaking the ice-pack, the great barrier life in the Antarctic, the midnight Sun in all its splendour, immense flocks of penguins, sports on the ice that never melts, sleighing expeditions, a perfect record of a wonderful expedition.

Absolute copyright protection — Nation wide advertising campaign — Lithos of special design in many sizes — Cyclonic Publicity assured.

Write, Wire or 'Phone at Once to the

GAUMONT CO.

FLUSHING, NEW YORK

Remember—Back of This Film Stands the Reputation of Gaumont

Gaumont

Our attorneys are GOLDIE & GUMM, 27 William Street, New York. They stand prepared to relentlessly prosecute the first infringer. They will go to any extreme to land their man—so will we.

Gaumont

AgfA

CELLULOID POSITIVE

CELLULOID NEGATIVE

AND

NON=FLAM POSITIVE

(Made Under License of the Patentee)

Raw Film Supply Co.

15 East 26th Street
New York

Tel. Mad. Sq. 7876 Cable Rawfilm New York

Oldest and Best

NESTOR

Always a Feature

3 A WEEK

3 A WEEK

"The Worth-While Film"

Monday, March 18th, 1912.

THE FEUDAL DEBT

A Vibrant Drama of Old Kentucky.
GET IT! Thrills, Delights and Charms.
1000 feet of Inimitable Film. GET IT!

SCENE FROM

A PAIR OF JACKS

Release of Wednesday, March 20th.

The One Best Bet Western Comedy-Drama.
GET IT! Joyous, Beauteous and Victorious.
985 feet of Superior Film. GET IT!

Saturday, March 23rd

OVER A CRACKER BOWL

700 feet of Classy, Clever, Clean Comedy.

SANTA FE (N. M.)

A 300-ft. Scenic of Quaint and Rare Beauty
You'll need this Split Reel. GET IT NOW!

COMING NESTORS

March 25th, Romance of a Gambler (Drama)
March 27th, Across the Sierras (W. Drama)
March 30th, The Bachelor and The Baby (Comedy)

For mammoth PHOTO of entire NESTOR FILM COMPANY, send 50c in stamps to

DAVID HORSLEY : : BAYONNE, N. J.

EXTERIOR ILLUMINATION AT MINIMUM COST

K&M

KOERTING & MATHIESEN

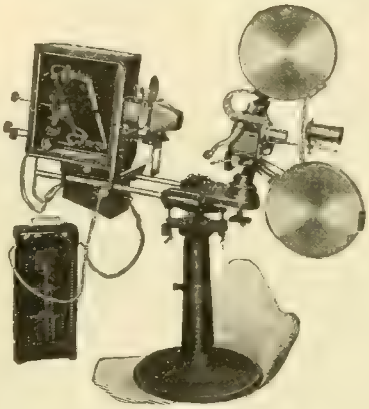
SOLE MANUFACTURERS OF

EXCELLO FLAMING ARC LAMPS

GEO. W. ARMSTRONG, General Manager

We recommend { "EXCELLO" FLAMING ARC CARBONS, "ELECTRA" PINK LABEL CARBONS, } and will handle no others

KOERTING & MATHIESEN CO. 22 East 21st St., New York



MOTIOGRAPH MACHINES

EVERY MOTIOGRAPH
IS A MOTIOGRAPH
THROUGH AND THROUGH
BUILT FOR THOSE WHO WANT THE BEST

MUCH HAS BEEN SAID BY OTHER MAKERS ABOUT THE GREATNESS OF THEIR FACTORIES—FEW PEOPLE REALIZE THAT THE GREATEST OF THEM ALL IS THE MOTIOGRAPH PLANT.

The reason it has not been necessary to exploit it has been the HIGH STANDARD QUALITY of the MOTIOGRAPH—For four years the MOTIOGRAPH has been less advertised than any other make and still it has forged steadily forward in popular favor—Our competitors are forced to spend thousands of dollars yearly more than we do, and still we go onward.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES

and buy because of the size of advertising space—but read the small, direct MOTIOGRAPH Talks.

THE MOTIOGRAPH organization is a unit which represents a HIGH DEGREE OF EFFICIENCY in Motion Picture Machine construction and THAT IS WHY THE MOTIOGRAPH maintains its REPUTATION OF THE BEST BUILT MACHINE ON EARTH.

Manufactured by The Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company

For Sale by Live Dealers Everywhere. 564-572 W. Randolph St., CHICAGO, ILL.

READY NOW

SPECIAL ONE, THREE AND SIX SHEET POSTERS

(Entirely different Subjects)

For Kalem's great Release of April 3rd

THE SPANISH REVOLT OF 1836

Order today from your exchange or direct from us. Prices 15c., 35c. and 70c. respectively. Special rates to exchanges.

DON'T FORGET We have three sheets for
PATHE'S CAIN AND ABEL | KALEM'S THE O'NEILL
PATHE'S DELHI DURBAR | KALEM'S BATTLE OF POTTSBURG BRIDGE
AND MANY OTHERS. WRITE FOR LIST.

A. B. C. COMPANY, CLEVELAND, OHIO

HAND-COLORED $30 extra for coloring HAND-COLORED

1210 FEET MASTERPIECE - SATURDAY, APRIL 6th

A pageant showing a story of the days when iron-armored knights roamed the wooded wilds in quest of adventure—A mediaeval romance,

THE Margrave's Daughter

A picturesque and interesting story dealing with the days of chivalry and the golden hours when knighthood flourished supreme.

EUROPE and ASIA bowed in homage to this hand-colored masterpiece. The Edinborough (Scotland) Times credited it with being a series of oil paintings replete with interest, because of the noble story that grips the whole theme.

The Most Stupendous Hand-Colored Spectacle Ever Filmed

TUESDAY, MARCH 26—995 FEET

He Who Laughs Last Laughs Best
AND
JIMMIE and HIS DONKEY

Two corking good comedies that will convulse the most blase and lifeless.

Rich - Dignified - Powerful

SATURDAY, MARCH 30

THE VILLAGE IDIOT'S GRATITUDE

A gripping drama depicting the depths of an idiot's gratitude. Exceedingly interesting because of its psychological value.

Don't miss it

GAUMONT INDEPENDENT

Scene from He Who Laughs Last Laughs Best

Gaumont

Scene from The Village Idiot's Gratitude

LAST MOMENT TO ORDER

Jimmie, Temperance Reformer, and Game Shooting from Aeroplane
TUESDAY, MARCH 19—923 Feet

AN OLD ROMANCE
SATURDAY, MARCH 23—961 Feet

GAUMONT CO., Flushing, N. Y.

LUBIN FILMS

Released Wednesday, March 20th, 1912 Length about 1000 feet

THE SURPRISE PARTY SURPRISED

A surprise party is pulled off on Ruth Marson, daughter of Farmer John Marson and wife. The baskets of good things are put away in the storeroom, when a wagonload of orphans bound for the asylum breaks down at the door. Little Pearl, the eight-year-old child, invites the orphans in and, taking them to the storeroom, sets them at work on the baskets. The party are deprived of the supper, but enjoy the joke and Mother puts the kiddies to bed in the spare room.

Released Thursday, March 21st, 1912

Length about 1,000 feet

A COLLEGE GIRL

A very pathetic story of Jean Sherwood who with her little brother and sister are left orphans. Jean leaves college and keeps the home. On one rare occasion she accepts an invitation to attend a dance, but just as she is ready to go the nurse informs her that Tommy is very ill and wants his sister to stay home; a young doctor attends the boy and, admiring Jean's devotion, offers to make a new home for all.

Released Saturday, March 23rd, 1912

Length About 1,000 feet

The REVOLUTIONIST

Don Guillie, officer in the Army of the Mexican Republic, is married to a Spanish beauty, and has a little son. Dr. Bosso loved the Senorita before her marriage, and to alleviate his broken heart joins the revolutionary forces and becomes a commander. Guillie is ordered to engage the rebels and capture Bosso. The revolutionists are scattered and Bosso escapes and hides himself in Guillie's house, where he cures the child. He is discovered and arrested, but the Don in gratitude for saving the boy's life permits him to escape.

Split Reel :: Released Monday, March 25th, 1912 :: Split Reel

HER UNCLE JOHN

Grace Jones, who is already engaged to a charming young man, one morning is going to work when she drops her handbag. A fresh young fellow picks it up, hands it to her, and endeavors to scrape acquaintance. The lover, however, appears on the scene and blocks the attempted freedom. Mr. Fresh, however, is very persistent and in many ways tries to press his suit. Finally he is beautifully cornered and treated to a sound thrashing by the sweetheart and Uncle John.

HOODOOED

John Brown breaks a mirror and is told that it means seven years' bad luck. The Hoodoo can only be removed by getting another glass exactly alike and inducing someone else to break it. After a big run of mishaps he gets another glass and succeeds in getting Jim Sling, the Chinaman, to break it. All the shelves in the laundry fall down and Brown finds a big roll of money.

LUBIN MANUFACTURING COMPANY,

MODEL NEW STUDIOS
20th and Indiana Avenue
Philadelphia, Pa.

CHICAGO: 154 WEST LAKE ST. B. NICHOLS, 86 WARDOUR ST., LONDON, W., ENGLAND. BERLIN: 35 FRIEDRICH STR.

VITAGRAPH

"THE BLACK WALL"

MONDAY, MARCH 18th

'Way down deep into the bowels of the earth. In the coal mines where men and children are shut out from the rest of the world by a black wall. Their thrilling rescue from impending death.

"THE OLD SILVER WATCH"

TUESDAY, MARCH 19th

Timely and up to the minute. A brother and sister separated in childhood are reunited many years afterward by an heirloom given to the brother by his mother.

"THE TWO PENITENTS"

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20th

They meet and right the wrongs committed against each other years before. A Western picture taken from life and facts.

"MR. BOLTER'S INFATUATION"

FRIDAY, MARCH 22nd

He falls for the charms of a show girl. She makes a date with him and "stands him up." He gets "wise" and learns she made a "boob" of him. She has the laugh on him and so have we.

"HER FORGOTTEN DANCING SHOES" } Split Reel
"TAFT AND HIS CABINET"

SATURDAY, MARCH 23rd

"HER FORGOTTEN DANCING SHOES" is a comedy, bright and sprightly.
"TAFT AND HIS CABINET" takes us into the presence of President Taft at work with his cabinet officers. Then we are given a personally conducted tour through Washington, D. C., and all the sights pointed out to us.

NEXT WEEK NEXT WEEK

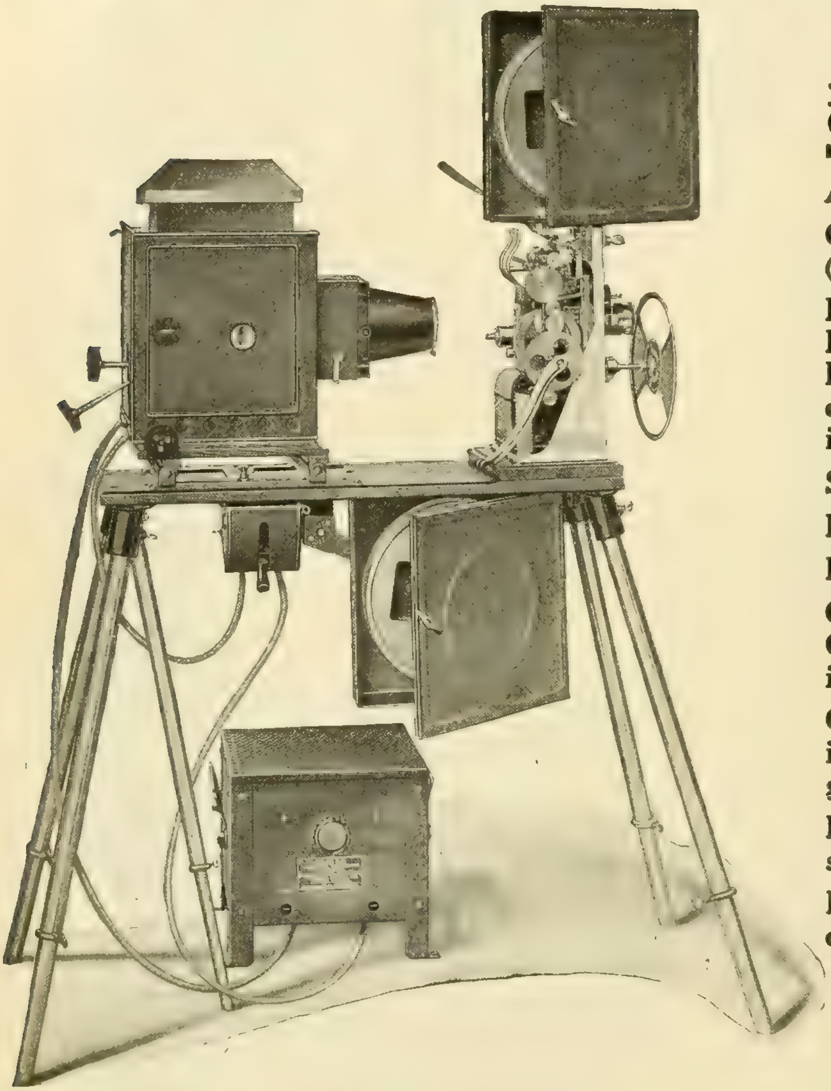
"PRICE OF BIG BOB'S SILENCE"—It's golden. MONDAY, MARCH 25th.
"HIS MOTHER'S SHROUD"—Russian drama. TUESDAY, MARCH 26th.
"THE GOVERNOR WHO HAD A HEART"—Full of feeling. WEDNESDAY, MARCH 27th.
"THE HAUNTED ROCKER" }
"THE SUIT OF ARMOR" } —Split Reel. FRIDAY, MARCH 29th.
"NEMESIS"—Can't get away from it. SATURDAY, MARCH 30th.

THE EDISON KINETOSCOPE



UNDERWRITERS' TYPE "B"

The Acme of Perfection in a Motion Picture Machine

SPECIAL FEATURES

Adjustable Outside Revolving Shutte

Chain Drive (new) or Belt Drive Takeu (optional).

Extra large and improved Lamp Hous Double doors and square condens holder. With this style no more inconvenience when a condenser chang is necessary.

Steel Bearings and Hardened Shafts.

New Heavy Brass Arc Lamp Terminal

Double Magazine Rollers.

Oil Guard over gears operating th Outside Shutter so as to prevent splashing of oil on film or lenses.

Oil Cups on shutter shaft bearings an intermediate pinion of the chain c gears driving the shutter.

Hardened Bearing in the Brack supporting the outside shutter.

Five extra-heavy legs, 1¼ inches i diameter.

Edison "B" means Efficiency Durability and Satisfaction Guaranteed to be Mechanicall Perfect.

No other business to-day holds out suc rich promise of big returns on such sma investment and at such low operating cost the moving picture business.

No other business gets under way so quickl gets into its stride and starts making mone within so short a time. A show starts makin money from the minute you open the door A good show keeps on making money, ar keeps its profits clear by starting with the be machine made. Send to-day for complete i formation regarding the Edison Kinetoscop and a copy of the Edison Kinetogram.

CURRENT EDISON FILMS

Tell Your Exchange You Want Them

Mar. 26—"The Lighthouse Keeper's Daughter." 1,000 feet. Drama.

Mar. 27—"Percival Chubbs and the Widow." 1,000 feet. Comedy.

Mar. 29—"How Washington Crossed the Delaware." 1,000 feet. Historical.

Mar. 30—"A Funeral That Flashed in the Pan." 1,000 feet. Comedy.

Apr. 2—"The Mine on the Yukon," from "The Thaw at Slisco's," by Rex Beach. 1,000 feet. Drama.

Apr. 3—"Two Knights in a Barroom." 1,000 feet. Comedy.

Apr. 5—"Charlie's Reform," produced in co-operation with the Division of Recreation of the Russell Sage Foundation. 1,000 feet. Drama.

Apr. 6—"Rowdy and His New Pal." 675 feet. Comedy-Drama. "Dr. Brompton-Watts' Age Adjuster." 325 feet. Comedy.

THOMAS A. EDISON
INCORPORATED
239 Lakeside Avenue
Orange, - - - - New Jerse

FOLLOW THE FLAG

The Leading Motion Picture Producer of the World

FOLLOW THE FLAG

SELIG

SELIG

March 25th

Sons of the Northwoods

A sterling drama of life and romance in The Great Canadian Northwest. A picture teeming with thrills and excitement. Pictured in midwinter in the isolate and barren north. A Real Feature. Messrs. Clary, Weed & Stowell and Miss Williams in the principal roles.

About 1000 Ft.

March 26th

The Hobo

A strong drama portraying the degenerating influence of drink, and the innate nobleness of man. Messrs. Bosworth, Clark, Rawlinson and Richardson and Misses Eyton and Hayward play the principal roles.

About 1000 Ft.

COMING

COMING

THE QUALITY and POPULARITY OF

Selig Nature Reproductions

MEANS PROSPERITY AND ARTISTIC SUCCESS TO ALL WHO SHOW THEM

TRADE MARK

SELIG

SELIG

March 28th

A WAIF of the SEA

A strong virile story of life on the deep sea that brings a choke and a sob to those who watch it. Messrs. Santschi, Huntly, Hernandez and Clark and Miss Eyton and Master Roy Clark are the principal players.

About 1000 Ft.

March 29th

All on Account of Checkers

A comedy of new and clever situations, delightful acting, and a thousand laughs. A group of Selig's best comedy players furnish one of the most enjoyable comedy reels of the year. You know how scarce real comedies are.—Here is one.—Don't miss it.

About 1000 Ft.

FOLLOW THE FLAG

Selig Polyscope Co.

TRADE S MARK

Chicago U.S.A.

FOLLOW THE FLAG

EUROPEAN OFFICES

LONDON — BERLIN — ST PETERSBURG.

KALEM

Jean of the Jail

A splendid dramatic story full of action

Released Monday, April 1st

The Spanish Revolt of 1836

A story of romance and war, culminating in the overthrow of a despot

Released Wed., April 3d

Special one-, three- and six-sheet, four-color litho posters, and special piano music for this feature. (Complete piano score, 25 cts.)

The Schoolma'm of Stone Gulch

Something new in a Western comedy

Released Friday, April 5th

COMING MONDAY, ARPIL 8th

THE TIDE OF BATTLE

A thrilling war story. Special one and three sheet, four-color litho posters for this subject

Exhibitors should read our "Kalendar" from cover to cover
It contains information of value to you

KALEM COMPANY
INCORPORATED
NEW YORK, 235-239 W. 23rd St.
86 Wardour St., LONDON, W.
BERLIN, 35 Friedrich Str.
PARIS, 13 Rue du Faubourg Montmartre

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE WORLD PHOTOGRAPHIC PUBLISHING COMPANY
(Beach Building)
J. P. CHALMERS, Editor and Manager.
125 E. 23d. Street, NEW YORK
Telephone call, 1343-1344 Gramercy
Entered at the General Post Office in New York City as Second Class Matter.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES: $3.00 per year. Post free in the United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands. Canada, $3.50. Foreign Countries, $4.00, Post Paid.

WESTERN OFFICE: 169 W. Washington St. (Post Bldg.), Chicago, Ill. Phone, Main 3145. Automatic Phone 32732.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES ON APPLICATION.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS (No Display), Three Cents per Word; Minimum Charge, 50c.

Address all correspondence "Moving Picture World, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square, New York," and not to individuals.

Vol. 11
MARCH 23, 1912
No. 12

INDEX TO CONTENTS.

ADVERTISING FOR EXHIBITORS..........1058
AMATEUR SCENARIO WRITER, THE........1053
AMONG THE EXHIBITORS 1098-1106
ASTA NEILSEN PICTURES, THE...........1054

BUYING A THEATER 1047

CALENDAR OF INDEPENDENT RELEASES..1080
CALENDAR OF LICENSED RELEASES......1082
CHICAGO LETTER, THE 1056
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Licensed)......1062
COMMENTS ON THE FILMS (Independent)..1063
CORRESPONDENCE 1084

EXHIBITION AT DAYTON, OHIO.............1044

FACTS AND COMMENTS.......................1040

GREAT PREPARATIONS FOR DAYTON CONVENTION 1043

INDEPENDENT FILM STORIES...............1100
INDEPENDENT RELEASE DATES..............1108
IN THE MISSISSIPPI VALLEY.............1086
INQUIRIES 1061
IT IS TIME TO ACT........................1042

KINGSLEY, WALTER J. 1052

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR...................1087
LICENSED FILM STORIES 1093
LICENSED RELEASE DATES..................1110
LOUISVILLE, KY. 1084

MARION OPTIMISTIC 1052
MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE..1043
MOVING PICTURE EDUCATOR..............1045
MANUFACTURERS' ADVANCE NOTES........1074
MUSIC FOR THE PICTURE..................1048

NAVY IN MOVING PICTURES................1046
NEW ENGLAND 1085
NEW SCHOOL, THE 1041

OBSERVATIONS BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN.1069

PERFECTION CONCAVE SCREEN, THE......1057
PHILADELPHIA 1084
PICTURES FROM A PUBLIC VIEWPOINT...1050
PORTLAND, ORE. 1084
PROJECTION DEPARTMENT 1065

"ROAD AGENT'S LOVE, A" (Essanay)......1070

SCENARIO WRITER, THE.....................1060
SONG SLIDE RELEASES......................1090
SPECTATOR, THE 1072
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Independent)......1100
STORIES OF THE FILMS (Licensed)........1092

INDEX TO ADVERTISERS.

CARBON IMPORTERS.
FRORUP, L. E. 1113
KIEWERT, CHAS. L..............................1117
REISINGER, HUGO 1099

ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT.
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL CO.....................1107
DETROIT ENGINE WORKS.......................1103
FOOS GAS ENGINE CO..........................1091
FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC CO.....................1107
HALLBERG, J. H. 1117
ILG ELECTRIC CO. 1112
KOERTING, MATHIESEN 1032
KEYSTONE SALES CO.............................1026
MACKIE, H. A., INC.....................1118-1093
SAFETY ELEC. CO. 1116
SCHNEIDER, E. 1107
STERN MFG. CO. 1098
WILLIAMS, BROWN & EARL.....................1116

FILM IMPORTERS AND BROKERS.
INTERNATIONAL FILM TRADERS...........1115

FIREPROOF APPARATUS.
H. W. JOHNS-MANVILLE 1103
ELECTRIC AD-LITE CO.........................1103

FILM EXCHANGES.
BRADENBURG, GEO. 1111
BUCKEYE LAKE SHORE FILM CO..........1111
CALEHUFF, CHAS. 1113
CINCINNATI BUCKEYE FILM CO............1116
COLUMBIA FEATURE FILM CO..............1111
FEATURE FILM CO. 1107
GREENE, W. E. 1103
HETZ, L. 1116
LAEMMLE FILM SERVICE 1027
LYRIC FILM CO..................................1116
SWAAB FILM SERVICE CO......................1115

INDEPENDENT FILM MANUFACTURERS.
(in Sales Co.)
AMERICAN 1101
BISON 1081
CHAMPION 1026
ECLAIR 1025
GREAT NORTHERN 1028
IMP 1099-1024
LUX 1101
MAJESTIC 1109
MOTION PICTURE DIS. & SALES CO.........1095
NESTOR 1030
POWERS 1028
REPUBLIC 1029
RELIANCE 1115
REX 1029
SOLAX 1027
THANHOUSER 1022

INDEPENDENT FILM MANUFACTURERS.
(not in Sales Co.)
CRYSTAL FILM CO. 1101
GAUMONT CO. 1030-1033

LICENSED FILM MANUFACTURERS.
EDISON 1036
ESSANAY 1023
KALEM 1038
KLEINE 1097
LUBIN 1034
MELIES 1119
PATHE FRERES 1107
SELIG 1036
VITAGRAPH 1035

MISCELLANEOUS.
A. B. C. CO..1032
AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO.........................1090
BARCKHOFF, CARL 1111
BRADY, ARTHUR 1111
CALLAWAY CO. 1116
CELLUKOTE CO. 1113
CHAMBLESS, JAS. 1115
CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS 1083
CORCORAN, A. J. 1099
DAVIS, A. 1114
EXHIBITORS' ADV. CO. 1114
EXHIBITORS' ADV. & SPEC. CO................1082
GUNDLACH MANHATTAN CO. 1111
HOKE, GEO. 1116
HUNTOON, ROLFES CO. 1097
JOHNSON COIN COUNTING MACH. CO......1093
JONES, TOM, CO....................................1091
KRAUS MFG. CO. 1095
KINGERY MFG. CO. 1083
LAVEZZI CO. 1090
McKENNA BROS. 1118
MEEKER, JOS. L. 1083
MIDLAND TRANSPARENCY CO. 1090
MORTIMER FILM CLEANER 1115
NATIONAL TICKET CO. 1108
NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR CO.............1103
NEWMAN MFG. CO. 1025
OPERATOR'S HANDBOOK 1025
PHOTOPLAY ADV. & SPEC. CO...................1114
PHOTOPLAY MAGAZINE 1111
PITTSBURG PHOTOPLAY CO.......................1115
RAW FILM SUPPLY CO.............................1030
REID DIFFUSER CO. 1114
SANITARY SERVICE CO............................1090
SERGENT, E. W. 1118
STEBBINS, C. M. 1090
STERLING NOVELTY CO. 1106
TAKITO, OGAWA 1112
TAYLOR, F. C. 1115
THREE IN ONE OIL CO.............................1103
TRAINER, C. W. 1116

LECTURES.
MARION, L. M. 1113
MOVING PICTURE WORLD 1114

MOVING PICTURE MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN 1113
EDISON 1036
ENTERPRISE OPTICAL CO.........................1032
POWERS 1120
SIMPLEX 1080

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
DEAGAN, J. C. 1107
SINN, C. E. 1116
WURLITZER, RUDOLPH 1113
ZEIDLER DRUM CO. 1116

OPERA CHAIR MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN SEATING CO. 1118
ANDREWS, A. H. 1118
BENNETT, GEO. 1118
HARDESTY CHAIR CO. 1118
STAFFORD, E. H. 1118
STEEL FURNITURE CO. 1118
WISCONSIN SEATING CO. 1118

PROJECTING SCREENS.
AMERICAN THEATER CURTAIN CO........1116
DeBERRI CURTAIN CO.............................1115
INVENTORS' SPECIALTY CO......................1103
MIRROROID CO. 1103

SLIDE MANUFACTURERS.
AMERICAN MOTION SLIDE 1090
BATERSHALL & OLESON 1081
CHICAGO SONG SLIDE 1090
LEVI CO. 1091
SCOTT & VAN ALTENA 1090
SIMPSON, A. L. 1116
UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO. 1083

FEATURE FILM COMPANIES.
AMERICA'S FEATURE FILM CO.................1027
FEATURE & EDUCATIONAL FILM CO.........1116
FEATURE PHOTOPLAY CO. 1093
FRENCH-AMERICAN FILM CO. 1088-1089
GREAT NORTHERN SPL. FILM CO.............1095
LOS ANGELES PROJECTION CO................1112
TOURNAMENT FILM CO............................1086

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.
DECORATORS' SUPPLY CO. 1107

Facts and Comments

AN exhibitor's success depends a good deal on his ability to judge the likes and dislikes of his audience. This he can only do by completely eliminating his own personal likes and dislikes. Even experienced showmen often fail in this, being consciously or unconsciously influenced by their individual views and tastes. As the percentage of experienced showmen in the ranks of exhibitors is comparatively small the danger of being misled by personal opinion is very great indeed. The amateur or new recruit cannot bring himself to imagine that other people, such for instance as his audience, may radically differ from him in their judgment of a program. We know of one exhibitor, a man who had studied the "game" of politics very thoroughly and successfully, for he occupied the best political position in the county. One might think that studying the public as a politician meant some training for a future exhibitor of motion pictures. The facts prove the contrary. This exhibitor overfed his patrons with comedy. The noises made by the small boys sounded to him like the echo of genuine popular approval. By catering to this element he began destroying order in his place. The good people were annoyed and stayed away. You must be absolutely detached from all personal predilections, when you begin to prepare your programs. It is said that every creature delights in its own likeness. An audience must be studied. There are points of resemblance between all audiences and there are the peculiarities, by which one audience is distinguished from another.

* * *

IT does not seem that there is much in the contention recently made in regard to the replacing of the motion picture by stock companies. As one looks at the pictures, Licensed, Independent and otherwise, many familiar faces appear on the screen and not a small percentage thereof will be recognized as the former major and minor stars of stock companies. A few years ago these thespians electrified the feminine world of such prominent suburbs as Brooklyn, Hoboken and Yonkers. They loomed large within their own little orbits, but now they are lost in the great army of the wordless players.

* * *

IT has been remarked that a great change has come over the vaudeville that, in some of the big houses, is still mixed with the pictures. The change consists in the introduction of short dramatic sketches, in which two or more persons take part and which last longer than the ordinary and commonplace piece of vaudeville. Is it not reasonable to assume, as some critics have assumed that this is directly due to the influence of the motion picture? The motion picture has begotten and nourished a taste for the one-act playlet and it is to gratify this taste of the public that the short dramatic sketches have now been so largely included in vaudeville programs. The fact is that the motion picture has created a sharp distaste for the lower or anthropoid forms of vaudeville and has compelled a higher standard. The motion picture refusing to descend to the lower level of cheap vaudeville, the vaudeville branch had to come up to the better and higher quality of the motion picture. We think the end of this evolution will be the final extinction of vaudeville in all the best houses. The short plays, to be sure, are an improvement over the inferior grade of vaudeville, but they cannot be compared to the best photoplays. The photoplay will win in the end.

* * *

MOST communities are at times afflicted with fanatical reformers who employ a particularly despicable brand of spies. One of the latter kind had watched a motion picture house for many days and nights, seeking to obtain evidence of offences against the law. As the theater in question is conducted in a very clean and orderly way, the creature's vigilance was ill rewarded, until, just as he was about to give up in disgust, he saw a colored woman take three white children into a matinee performance. The sleuth reasoned that a colored woman could neither be the parent or the guardian of white children and he hastened to lay his "evidence" before the Grand Jury. That body gravely proposed to indict the exhibitor, until it learned that the colored woman was a nurse in the family of a very prominent citizen, whereupon all proceedings were of course quickly abandoned. Incidents of this kind show what exhibitors have to contend with in the lawful pursuit of their vocation.

* * *

WHEN is a "trade journal" not a trade journal? A weekly publication, which gives a little more than one-third of its space to motion pictures is, according to its own definition, not a trade journal. It clearly follows then that the motion picture is not a trade, otherwise the weekly publication would be about 35 per cent. trade journal and 65 per cent. "something else again" as our friends Potash and Perlmutter would say. If a larger circulation and a heavier advertising patronage make this paper a trade journal we plead guilty without expectation of mitigating circumstances or benefit of clergy. Now then, what is the superior 65 per cent. and what is a trade journal, anyway?

* * *

ATTENTION to detail is the life of the exhibiting business. The number of exhibitors who win out in the race for public patronage through earnest study of the daily needs of the business is great. Seating capacity and location and service being about equal, it is often a very trifling thing which turns the scales in the rival's favor. Take for example the treatment of so-called split reels. The separation of the subjects on a split reel is not only a benefit to the exhibitor, because he gets the most material out of it, but it also greatly helps the audience. The audience very often had scarcely had time to fully understand the first subject, when without any pause whatever a new title and a new subject are introduced and the result is confusion. If a spectator happened to look away for a moment when the new title was shown, his bewilderment is complete and his enjoyment is practically over. This may be considered a small matter, but it is a detail of management that should not be neglected.

The New School.

By Louis Reeves Harrison

"OH JOY!" the little boy was saying when a lady stopped his father on the street and asked why Kiddo was so happy. "Sh-sh!" said the cruel parent behind his hand, "he thinks he is going to the circus, but I am taking him to the dentist." Kiddo's aversion to being improved by torture is that which makes him keep the truant officers busy and leads him to commit perjury and forgery rather than submit to brain-wrenching propositions concerning the relation of the unknown quantity, X, to past participles and other purgatorial equations. His mother gave him body and soul from the fulness of her own as her contribution to the divine plan of evolution, and his body and soul do not rebel against our present educational system because there is anything particularly wrong about them. Kiddo has a native interest in what is going on in the world, his mind has been prepared in advance to receive and store all sorts of information, but it can not be rammed into his brain through his eyes and ears with any benefit to be compared with that which springs up in the fertile soil of his thoughts from natural and spontaneous growth. If his interest is reached, education becomes a sport instead of a burden.

Now arises some good old-timer, who once had seven years of Latin trephined into his unwilling subconsciousness, and could not conjugate "amo" if he was ever called upon to do so, and denounces the idea of sugar-coating instruction of any kind, but he has an erroneous view of what I mean by appealing to Kiddo's interest. I do not think it possible to make all forms of discipline entertaining, nor do I believe in the tricks and devices used to conceal the barrenness of our modern system. I simply believe it will be supplanted by greatly improved methods which will include the use of moving pictures.

Perhaps Kiddo has an unsatisfied desire for sugar; his father thinks this appetite is inordinate and his mother refuses candy because it may injure growing teeth, so the little fellow scrapes cake pans and sorghum barrels in pursuit of his crying need. His parents are committing a blunder by not giving what he craves in such form as it can be easily assimilated, and they are as much at fault in not responding to his active and progressive interest in all that is going on within range of his senses because it is in his nature, as in our own, to go through an astonishing amount of drudgery in order to achieve a result in which he has a live interest. It is from interest in a project that self activity springs.

Wherever the subject of educational moving pictures s raised will be found those who have already foreseen and prophesied their use or adaptability in the study of history, geography, physics, chemistry and the manual rts. That has all been superficially discussed from many points of view, but the deeper purposes of secondary inerest and those reaching the abundant energies of little men and women remain unconsidered. The idea of a lot f pampered children attending picture shows to acquire nformation in a lackadaisical manner does not fit in with he necessity of preparing them to overcome difficulties. would not take the time to write a page on that subject. do not believe in abandoning any good scheme of trainng at all, but I do believe in the employment of moving pictures to quicken susceptibility and appreciation of the worth and value of knowledge, by enlisting the natural, wholesome and spontaneous interest of childkind.

For instance, like all the rest of his sex, Kiddo is a fighter from instinct and liable to become a disorderly one if left to his own devices, but repeated views of boy scouts, one of the best organizations in the world, would arouse a desire for military discipline with all its advantages of fine physical exercise and subordination of primitive egotism to the general good. He would undertake of his own account and could be sympathetically helped and led to see the necessity of government, even to appreciate the vital issue of unselfish concern for others which is the basis of public spirit.

Historical periods can not only be made as interesting as they are in ordinary photoplays, but also can be made to enlist sympathy for those oppressed or unjustly treated —the poor, the weak, the sick, the overworked—a silent lesson being suggested by its interweaving with the dramatic material used. The establishment of clean habits, a difficult problem under the present system, yet a solid groundwork for character building, can be made easier of solution in the presentation of types of manhood in contrast with those of the dude, the rowdy, or the low-brow. Behavior thus becomes associated with popular success and leads by initiation to greater kindness of heart and improved manners. The valuation of conduct is largely a matter of feeling among children and they can be powerfully influenced by screen stories which bring them face to face with scenes and events where nobility wins out.

The best photoplays are already at work educating children, the only pity being that the best are not repeated, as they have a beauty that does not fade. This is especially true when the little dramas clothe some fine idea with dramatic intensity or poetic charm and always so when they call forth esthetic judgment, or parallel some actual experience which might be an asset in the lives of any of us. The interest which is native to the subject presented has its limited value, but the thought it acts in motion is of the kind that makes the soul grow strong.

There is nothing weakening in the doctrine of interest; it is what keeps us all going; is the power behind both physical and mental action, and the way it is quickening thought to-day through the medium of moving pictures would surprise those who are conducting our schools. The trouble with the average man has been that his work forced him to live in a narrow little world of his own. He could read about what was going on elsewhere, but words are not pictures and very few people are imaginative enough to call up a scene from a verbal description, so the ordinary man forgot as fast as he read. He was not stimulated, as are ordinary men of to-day by the moving pictures, to seize upon new opportunities and greatly extend his knowledge. Now the child of to-day is the man of yesterday in many respects, and we must accord him all the educational opportunities we enjoy that lend themselves naturally to his interest and comprehension. If moving pictures are educating us through enlisting our interest, we must give all that there is of honest value in them to our children. That is their birthright.

I have only offered what is herein contained as prefatory and suggestive, but if any one imagines for a moment that the subject is not of first importance, he is unaware that the whole country is aflame with educational possibilities and propositions and will be when current political problems are stale and forgotten.

It Is Time To Act.

THE question of perpetuating historic events for the benefit of coming generations has been discussed theoretically in every possible aspect, but we regret to say that only in one small obscure corner of the world has any practical action been taken. It appears that very recently the government of Sweden has instituted a department, which is to be devoted to the filming of important historic events, of current customs and manners in Sweden and of its present social institutions The cinematographic records thus obtained are to be carefully preserved. The choice of proper subjects has been intrusted to a scholar of national renown and we have no doubt that the necessary technical equipment is in competent hands.

If there is any country in the world in which the motion picture may be used to advantage as the maker of a complete record of historic events, customs, scenes and institutions, it surely is the United States. Nowhere else in the world are social changes more rapid than here. Even the physical aspect of the country has within a few generations in many places undergone profound changes. No country in the world has so much history crowded into the narrow space of scarcely three centuries. Let us look at some examples. The pen of Washington Irving has preserved for us a picture of New York as it existed in the days of the Knickerbockers. Now the pen of Irving, while elegant and graceful was far from being accurate and much of the historic truth was lost in his satire, often both thin and coarse. Nevertheless, even in the somewhat distorted features, we are still able to recognize the lineaments of the real man and we are therefore under obligations to this writer. How much more complete and how full of absorbing interest would be a cinematographic reproduction of the changes that have taken place on and about the island of Manhattan from the day the States General of Holland took possession to the day of permanent English dominion. Our own generation will look as different to our descendants one hundred years from now as the old Dutch burghers of Nieuw Amsterdam look to us. How much better could we understand the history and development of the original thirteen colonies in moving pictures. Even the posthumous attempt to perpetuate historic events has been essayed with notable success. Take for example the series of historic pictures issued by the Edison Company. Take them as a whole and they show in vivid demonstration why the country owes its existence to Washington. No amount of biographies can make us realize this fact half as well as the pictures.

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD feels that an effort must be made by the general government, and, as far as possible, by the State government in co-operation, to establish a bureau similar to the one just now created in Sweden.

Mr. F. H. Richardson, the editor of our "Projection Department," who is essentially a man of action, has for some time past endeavored to break through the red tape of Washington's officialdom in order to get the thing started. Several communications were addressed to the President and at last have elicited a response from Herbert Putnam, Librarian of Congress, to whom the matter was referred. Mr. Putnam in writing to the MOVING PICTURE WORLD suggests that "such records are to be preserved in the collections of the Library of Congress." He states "one objection might be as to the space they would occupy; another would be as to the form which they should take, the material in the library being supposed to be that which is directly responsive to inspection, study and other use rather than negatives which would have their use only as a basis for reproductions."

Of course there is not a reader of this paper who could not set Mr. Putnam right. If there is anything more directly responsive to inspection than a moving picture traveling across a curtain, we should like to have it defined. The library of the future, as often pointed out in these columns before, will have a branch devoted entirely to cinematographic records. We have been in the Congressional and other libraries and have often had to wait from ten to fifteen minutes for a book. In a well regulated exhibition room, accessible at all times to the general public, it would not take an operator half that time to get his picture started on the screen. The space taken up by the reels most likely to be called for, would be only slightly larger than the space occupied by books. We do not for the moment take into consideration the greater psychic force of the picture as compared with the cold black type, but are merely regarding the question of convenience raised by the communication of the Librarian of Congress. If Congress would take this matter in hand and give it the attention which it so richly deserves, there would be no trouble whatever about the arrangement of such details as set out in the letter of the Librarian of Congress.

We owe it to our children and to our children's children to give them the greater benefits of this new educational force. It is a question wholly free from partisan politics. Indeed it will eventually lessen the undoubted evils of extreme partisanship along with the numerous other benefits which it is bound to confer on later generations. The children of to-day who will be the voters of to-morrow will be able to see much of the follies and foibles of all parties and profit accordingly. They will approach the ballot boxes with a greater fund of useful knowledge and information than we possess at this time. This knowledge and information will be within the reach of all. Careful and independent thinking will be encouraged and many problems which have baffled us and our ancestors may be solved by them.

BEWARE OF FALSE CLAIMS.

Exhibitors are frequently approached with an offer of Dante's Inferno, which is no Inferno at all, but a very feeble representation of Purgatory. This film is using the paper intended for the real Dante's Inferno, the five-reel Milano production. The Helios production, while inferior to the Milano, has at least the right to be called Dante's Inferno, because it deals, however imperfectly, with that subject. The other production, however, is falsely labeled, and the patrons seeing that there is no resemblance whatever between the pictures and the paper are disgusted and feel that they have been imposed upon. The State courts in Ohio have decided that the use of the real Milano paper for the Helios production was improper, and have enjoined the owners of the Helios film from using such paper. The same of course holds true with even greater use of the improper use of Milano paper for this weak print of Purgatory falsely parading as Dante's Inferno.

SCOTT SOUTH POLE EXPEDITION IN PICTURES.

The Gaumont Company announces on another page of this issue that it has secured the motion pictures of the Scott Antarctic South Pole Expedition, and will offer them to exhibitors on the state right plan. These pictures are in two reels and represent the progress of the Scott Expedition from Wellington, New Zealand, from which point it proceeded in a direct line toward the South Pole. They will show the start of the expedition and its progress through fields of ice—a novelty in this respect being views showing how an arctic ship breaks its way through the great ice packs.

These pictures are fully protected by copyright and a full line of pictorial posters will be supplied. Goldie & Gumm, of 27 William Street, New York, are attorneys for the Gaumont Company and will prosecute any attempt to dupe the Scott Expedition pictures.

Motion Picture Exhibitors' League
OF AMERICA

GREAT PREPARATIONS FOR DAYTON CONVENTION.

EVERY indication points to a record breaking meeting of exhibitors at Dayton, Ohio, on March 26 and 27. The committee in charge of the meeting have been hard at work for the past month stirring up interest. President Neff and his official family have left nothing undone when it comes to preparing an interesting program, so that when the members and their guests arrive at the convention city they will find everything in fine shape for their reception and plenty to occupy their time in the way of business and amusement. There is little doubt but that this meeting will mark an epoch in the work of organization of the motion picture exhibitor and be an eventful one in the history of the Ohio association.

An invitation has been extended to every exhibitor in the United States, whether a member of the league or not, to attend the Dayton convention. That many of these not already affiliated will attend there is no question, while it is reasonably sure that every exhibitor in Ohio, who is not unavoidably detained at home, will be there. In all probability it will be the largest meeting of exhibitors ever held.

Large delegations from Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, New York, Wisconsin, West Virginia, Michigan, Alabama and Pennsylvania are expected to be present, and individual exhibitors from as far distant states as California and Massachusetts have signified an intention of being present.

The entertainment of so large a body of delegates as are expected will cost a considerable sum, but the entertainment committee announces that it has enough funds on hand to provide for all. One of the big features of the entertainment program will be a banquet to the delegates and visitors. Already preparations have been made to seat 600 at the tables. Provision for all will be made if required. The program, as at present outlined, is as follows:

March 25—At 8 o'clock P. M., a preliminary meeting of the directors of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America will be held for the purpose of transacting National League business. Every officer will be present.

March 26—At 10 o'clock A. M., all members and visitors will meet at the Auditorium Theater, where a short session will be held for the purpose of appointing committees. While this business is being transacted an automobile ride will be given the ladies and visitors. Various points of interest in and about Dayton will be visited.

At 2 o'clock the automobile parade will start from the Auditorium Theater to the big hall of the National Cash Register Company. Moving pictures of this parade will be taken and it is expected that every automobile in Dayton and the surrounding country will be in line. Arriving at the Cash Register Hall the convention will assemble to listen to addresses by the officers, exhibitors and others.

At 4 o'clock the delegates and visitors will be taken on a trip of inspection through the works of the Cash Register

Group of West Virginia Exhibitors Taken at Recent State Meeting. National League President M. A. Neff in Middle.

J. J. Huss, Secretary. W. A. Pettis, 1st Vice-Pres. M. A. Neff, President. J. H. Broomhall, 2d Vice-Pres. Max Stearns, Treasurer.

OFFICERS OF MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE OF OHIO.

Company. There will also be an exhibit of all the latest mechanical devices adapted to the motion picture business.

At 5 o'clock a special exhibition of Kinemacolor and other special feature pictures will commence and run throughout the evening for those who wish to see them.

At 8 o'clock the members and visitors will be given an opportunity to attend a special vaudeville entertainment.

March 27—At 10 o'clock A. M., the convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League will assemble in the Convention Hall for the transaction of business and motion pictures will be taken of the gathering. For the ladies attending the convention special entertainment will be provided by the leading stores of Dayton, commencing at 9 o'clock A. M.

The big banquet will take place during the evening of the 27th. That this will be some banquet there is not the slightest doubt. Good speakers will be in attendance, among whom it is expected will be the Hon. J. B. Foraker, former U. S. Senator and counsel for the association; Hon. J. M. Cox and Hon. J. J. Lentz. An address of welcome will be delivered by Hon. E. W. Phillips, mayor of Dayton, to which President Neff will respond. There will be plenty of good music and lots of good things to eat.

EXHIBITION AT DAYTON, OHIO.

Dayton of the future will be known as a convention town, and it is the great spirit of the Daytonians that made it possible for the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Ohio to prepare what will prove to be the biggest moving picture convention ever held in this country.

The National Cash Register Works, that made Dayton famous, offered their splendid industrial and educational hall for the use of the convention. This hall alone will be a revelation to many exhibitors and show them improvements that they should adopt for their own theaters.

The Chamber of Commerce offered its services and donated a sum of money to the entertainment committee.

It is reported that the street railways will give free transportation to the wearers of the official badge.

The theaters have agreed to keep open doors to the visitors.

All along the line we find Daytonians willing to do something to boom the big convention.

The stores are inviting the visitors to make themselves at home, and one of them in particular will give fine musical selections. At the convention hall, the R. Wurlitzer Company will have a specimen of their special picture musical instrument—the one-man orchestra—a self-playing piano with flute, violin, cymbals, snare and base drum attachments. These instruments can be played together or separately at will, either by a pianist or by the automatic action. Mr. Robert Hope Jones, the inventor, will be present at the convention and will be pleased to say a word on the "Music of the Future for the Picture" and give a description of "The One-Man Orchestra."

The Foos Gas Engine Company are making arrangements to have an outfit on the ground, to show to the exhibitor how he can save on his electric bill, by generating his own current.

The National Waterproof Film Company has promised to send a film to show how the rainy films can be made clean and new.

The Coin Machine Company will send a machine to show how much money can be saved monthly by having the change made by a machine.

Lavezzi announces that he will display some of his machine parts for which he made a great name.

The Sterling Economizer will be there and the representative will give a demonstration and show how much can be saved on the current.

The National Cash Register Company will have on display something entirely new for moving picture theaters—the theater ticket machine. With this machine there will be no chance for the doorman to pass tickets to the cashier and the disadvantages of the ticket rolls will be eliminated.

While the Zenith Manufacturing Company have some of their Illuminated Interchangeable signs in actual use in some of the Dayton theaters, they have decided to have an exhibit for the convenience of the visitors.

Mr. Nolan, of Cincinnati, will exhibit and demonstrate his new fireproof magazine with its moisture arrangement.

Still another new invention is promised for the exhibition of Dayton; it is a new reel manufactured by the Lang Manufacturing Company, inventors of the rewinder of the same name.

The most important feature will be the one to settle the curtain question. You know and have heard of the plain plaster walls, of the mirror screens, of the aluminum preparations, of the metallic cloths, etc., and the exhibitor is fairly at a loss when he listens to all the able salesmen.

Several screens will be on exhibition and on Tuesday evening, March 26th, at 7 o'clock sharp, a practical demonstration will be given of all the curtains present and willing to stand the test. The same picture will be thrown on the various curtains, the same machine will be in charge of the same operator, the current, the throw, the surroundings, etc., will be the same, consequently the best curtain will win. This is the way to show certain improvements. Be just and fair to every one. All on the same level, leave no door open for arguments that the picture shown on a certain curtain was of inferior quality to the one shown on another screen, that the throw was shorter or longer, that the current was weaker, that the operator did not know how to focus his picture, etc., etc.

Useless to say that all the motion picture machine manufacturers have secured spaces and will have able representatives to demonstrate their new models. Transformers, rheostats, brass frames and easels, slides, posters, carbons, tickets and many other and new devices will be on exhibition.

More are coming and the theater managers who will visit Dayton will be well repaid, as a couple of hours spent in the exhibition room will be a source of valuable information.

ANOTHER STATE ASSOCIATION.

There is a strong movement on among exhibitors of Kentucky looking toward the formation of a branch of the Exhibitors' League of America. President Neff has had many assurances from exhibitors in that state to the effect that they are ready to co-operate and it is expected that the plans for an early convention will be formulated at the Dayton convention.

The Moving Picture Educator

THE EDUCATIONAL PICTURE AND THE PRESS.

BUT a few weeks ago attention was directed to the fact that the magazines, periodicals and newspapers were giving unusual attention to the advantages of the moving picture in striking contrast to their former adverse criticisms. During the last few weeks several of the largest newspapers in various parts of the United States have been devoting whole pages of their Sunday edition magazine to all phases of cinematography. One of the most interesting points is the attention paid by these papers to the educational features of the picture, some with strangely assumed audacity claiming that advanced and educational cinematography is a result of the "campaign which they have waged in its behalf." One Sunday newspaper has six pages of moving picture matter, and while it cannot be shown that this paper has done anything advantageous to the cause of cinematography, they modestly (yet untruthfully) claim that the present status of educational moving picture work is the outcome of these "six months campaign," while without doubt their inspiration is drawn from this page. Another paper, with several pages of interesting matter, reprints that which has appeared on this page without giving credit to the source of their information. One paper, besides advocating educational cinematography, quotes the leading spirit of one film manufacturer as saying: "I am going to educate the coming generation." This extraordinary claim together with the use of the personal pronoun is unique, unfortunately for the author of these words the educational pictures released from his manufactory do not form more than one-tenth of the total releases, while none are upon scientific subjects.

The majority of the educational pictures come from Franco-American firms and are of a thorough and most valuable nature.

The thoroughly American film maker is not yet aroused to the great interest and value of the educational picture, despite the fact (which he must realize) that they are the pictures of the future. To the writer of these pages it is of peculiar interest to read how newspapers, but recently converted, are claiming to have been "prophets all the time," and manufacturers finding that the trend is towards the educational picture, assuming the credit of such advances.

The educational features of the Moving Picture World ante-date them all and these pages have been the inspiration of almost all that is "abroad in the land" and the contents of these pages are repeatedly coming back again in both American and European newspapers, magazines and trade journals.

The Moving Picture Educator is the first and only messenger and recorder of educational cinematography and is gratified to find how fully others are advocating the wide scope here laid down; but the Educator will concede to none that priority which is its own. While this wave of enthusiastic support is being given to educational moving pictures, it is well to note that the real standing of the educational picture to-day is far behind the possibilities so often presented by the Moving Picture Educator. The demand is greater than the supply, the requirements larger than are at present being filled, calling for less boasting of the present condition and more activity to meet the cry of those who ask to be benefited by the large possibilities of the educational pictures.

IGNORANCE A CRIME.

The law does not accept or allow "lack of knowledge" as a full and sufficient reason for escaping the consequences of guilt. "Criminal negligence" has its evil results as dangerous as "malicious intent." To bridge the gulf between knowledge and ignorance, there sometimes may creep in "extenuating circumstances" which relieve from direct culpability, but taken as a whole the law comes to but one conclusion that ignorance may be a crime.

Again ignorance is often too commonly associated with poverty and vice, this is because of a too broad application of the word, the dictionaries tell us that ignorance is "lack of knowledge," "uninformed," "unacquainted with actual condition or truth."

To this indicement many so-called educated people must plead guilty to the crime of ignorance. This again is not a fault or crime if rightly associated with the proper application of the principles: thus a lawyer is ignorant of the medical profession, while a clergyman would be ignorant as a lawyer; here there is no guilt. If however either one should be ignorant of the benefits of the other, there would be guilt; should that ignorance lead one to critise that which he did not know, the quality of the guilt would be intensified and deserving of the severest retributive action.

Cinematography is now old enough and sufficiently well known to warrant the expectation that all people of average education shall be acquainted with its great and grand possibilities. Especially does this apply to those who stand as leaders in educational matters. The professor or teacher, college president or school principal or even clergyman, who to-day is ignorant of the proper status of the moving picture is guilty of a crime, Should his ignorance lead him to criticise or openly attack, he is guilty to a dastardly degree.

We unfortunately occasionally read of opposition to the moving picture progress from educational quarters. This only proves that in those quarters there is a deplorable lack of knowledge which reflects great discredit upon those who give expression to such opinions.

A clergyman recently indulged in a wholesale condemnation of moving pictures, adding that "he had never seen the pictures and intended never to do so." More despicable ignorance cannot be imagined, and such a man, guilty of such a crime, is not only unfit to appear as a teacher in any capacity, but is positively unfit as an associate for his fellow man, as his whole personality would be detrimental to the common advances of civilization; "the interpretation of the scriptures, and the preaching of the gospel by such a man would be objectionable," is the opinion rendered by another clergyman. We are rapidly approaching the time when ignorance of, and prejudice to, the advancement of educational cinematography, will be as flagrant as was the injustice to humanity, when it was argued that "knowledge would prejudicially affect the common people, and make them equal to their superiors." Whenever it is conceded that ignorance is a crime, it is also allowed that knowledge is power; consequently the power derived from a knowledge of cinematography, educationally applied, will entitle our next article.

"A CHILD'S PLEA" (Eclair).

The effectiveness of a child's plea to her father, who is a lawyer, in behalf of another child whose father is in trouble is the purpose of this drama.

The two fathers thus so brought together were friends in their youth and rivals for the affection of the same Kentucky girl. While hunting with a third friend, the latter is accidentally shot by the unexpected discharge of a gun in the hands of one of the rivals. The other immediately sees his advantage and threatens to accuse his friend of the crime as a deliberate one, unless he leaves the State, to which, for his own safety, he agrees.

Freed from rivalry the accuser now marries and becomes a successful lawyer. The scapegoat also marries and returns, and is arrested for the murder and would have been convicted but for the meeting of the children whose pleas cause deep remorse to break the hardened spirit of the lawyer, who rushes to court and confesses his duplicity and falseness, much to his wife's shame and repugnance. Full and free confessions, interwoven with innocent childhood's wiles, bring about a reconciliation of the former friends and of their families, and another happy victory is recorded and a great wrong righted by force of the purity is childhood.

NOTES.

Even as in this country eastern and western makers are educating each other by pictures of their own localities, so the European firms are sending in pictures of their places and industries of interest, while no doubt they are receiving from this country films which will interest their people and make them acquainted with typical and progressive American life.

The most recent films acquainted us with Ancient-Philea, Prague, capital of Bohemia; the City of Mosques; the Turkish Police; Arabian Pottery; the Culture of the Sugarcane; Hunting Marabout in Abyssinia; Hunting Bears in Malaga; and Starfish and Sea Urchins.

The Durbar in India by the Gaumont Company gives a very fair idea of the superb setting of the coronation of the Emperor and Empress of India, King George V. and Queen Mary of England.

Within the limits of one reel and in one color it naturally lacks both beauty and detail. Thanks, however, to cinematography we are enabled to see and know what the actual scene was so far as general appearances go as well if not better than if present. Several bird's-eye views show the great expanse of the canvas city and the large and ceremonious processions.

The enthronement and homage of native princes is shown at close range and in detail giving clear exhibition of royal court etiquette. The most extraordinary and unique event ought to be seen by everyone of average intelligence for the material aid it imparts in the knowledge of one of the most important events of the times.

The interchange of pictures whereby Eastern pictures are shown in the West and Western pictures are shown in the East is both interesting and profitable.

"Denver, the Queen of the Plains," presents a typical Western city is a credit to the people of that State, well known for industry and enterprise; besides presenting a model of what a new and modern city should be. Spokane with its lumber industries is thoroughly representative of its great logging and timber-making factories, giving the non-traveling Easterners good ideas of what the famous Western lumber life is like. To the children they are superior to the "reading of many books."

The Eclair Company are continuing the good work of producing advanced educational pictures. The next immediate releases are: "The Alahambra Granada," "Arabian Manners and Customs," "Luxor and Thebes" and "The Fishes of Tropical Rivers." These are all acceptable subjects and a review of them will appear later.

The sending of greetings by the moving picture is perhaps the latest evidence of its universal adaptability, besides fulfilling a most extraordinary mission. The Italian government arranged for the families of the soldiers doing duty in Tripoli to pass before the cinematograph, "from the wives of the officers to the brothers, sisters and babies of the privates. They are all defiled before the moving picture machine waving their handkerchiefs and throwing kisses. The films are to be sent to the front, and in the evenings when things are quiet will be displayed before the soldiers who will thus receive visible messages from home.

The Edison pictures of life in the United States army call forth patriotic appreciation wherever shown. It would seem that a governmental use of this series would aid considerably in securing recruits now so eagerly called for by the War Office; surely, if the methods of advertising now used by the government are at all attractive, an exhibition of this film series would be much more so. Young America is always aroused at the practice with the great disappearing guns, the shooting at a target five miles away provoking much enthusiasm as each successive shot is nearer the target. When, with the third shot, the target is destroyed, patriotic joy is unbounded.

The athletic and indoor sports are evidently an attractive part of the soldier's life, and any youth with military ambitions will find them much quickened by this series.

The Duke of Montpensier, a descendant of the royal family of France, who, with several other princes of the house of Bourbon, have proved their activity as travelers and explorers, relates that he captivated the savages of Indo-China with the cinematograph and phonograph. It was recently pointed out that the rapid-fire instruction by cinematography would be best exemplified by its uses among uncivilized people. This latest report ratifies that prediction, and the conquest of obscure races will be possible, not only by most peaceful methods but by educational ones at the same time. War will soon seem a barbarous relic of past ages.

The constant production of industrial films revealing the secrets of unknown yet important industries is very entertaining to the average intellectual mind. "Sulphur Mining in Sicily" is one of the latest of this class of picture; it is also a most welcome one. It is pictures of this nature that are appreciated by adults, who feels that they are learning something which is an addition to, and not part of, any common schooling.

The Navy in Moving Pictures.

Edison Company Commissioned by Navy Department to Picture South Atlantic Fleet at Target Practice.

By William N. Taft.

REALIZING the advertising value of motion picture films and at attractiveness of the views exhibited thereon, the Navy Department, through Secretary Meyer, has just permitted the Thomas A. Edison, Inc., to do something never before allowed—to take moving pictures of the United States warships at target practice.

While there have been a number of views taken of naval vessels and life on board ship, there has never before been a consecutive set of films made of the work done by the sailors, of the maneuvers, of the ships, of the day's routine and of the target practice. It is this last feature that the Navy Department desires particularly to present to the public, and especial efforts will be made to secure good views of the efficiency of Uncle Sam's men-of-war.

Under the latest system of target practice large squares of canvas, 21 feet by 22 feet, mounted on a wooden-lattice work, are towed along at a considerable distance from the battleship which then has an opportunity of firing on a moving target approximately the same size as the "vital" portions of an enemy's vessel. In this manner the gunners secure excellent practice in judging distance, direction and aim and the result of their work is easily ascertained by counting and measuring the number, size and position of the "hits" on the targets. As an aid to determining the exact position of the "hits," the noses of the projectiles are painted with vari-colored paints which, heated by the friction of the air, splash over the canvas target and give an excellent guide as to the precise location of contact of each shell.

The Edison Company, after some solicitation, finally obtained permission from Secretary Meyer to send a number of cameras and men with the South Atlantic Squadron when it holds its annual target practice off Capes Charles and Henry this spring. The department has arranged that at least one of the representatives of the moving picture company will be on board the vessel towing the targets past the fleet and views will be made of the ships firing and the impact of the projectiles upon the targets. Owing to the fact that it requires a shutter with a speed of 1 1/2000 of a second to "catch" a projectile in flight (this feat was actually accomplished at Fortress Monroe last spring) it will be practically impossible for the moving picture cameras to hope to snap the flight of the shells, but the impact of the projectile and the damage done by it, together with the splash as it enters the water, will all be visible on the finished film.

It is thought that this will impress upon the public, far better than statistics showing the ability of our gunners, the accuracy of the fleet and the degree of certainty with which a foreign armada could be destroyed once it came within range.

In addition to films showing the target practice, the moving picture photographers will also take views depicting the life of a sailor in the navy from the time he arises from his hammock when "reveille" sounds at sunrise until he turns in again at "taps"—something never before done so completely and thoroughly. The various drills, evolutions and exercises together with Jack's recreations above and below decks will all be displayed on the films, and it is planned to take at least a score of reels to show the life of a tar in all its detail. A feature of the views will be a reproduction of boxing bouts, wrestling matches and competitive drills for the championship of the navy.

The Navy Department believes that these pictures, a number of which will be purchased by the government, will be of great value in the recruiting of sailors, and sets of the views will be placed on exhibition—free—at recruiting stations throughout the country at stated intervals. Also it is practically a certainty that the views will be of great interest to the general public, most of whom have a decidedly hazy idea of the life of a sailor on board one of Uncle Sam's big gray dreadnoughts.

EDWARDS WITH H. A. MACKIE, INC.

The many friends of Mr. H. T. Edwards, well known to the film trade, will be glad to learn that he is now general manager of H. A. Mackie, Inc., a corporation doing a wholesale business in motion picture supplies at 21 East 14th Street, New York. H. A. Mackie is not connected with the company, either as an officer or employee, and the trade in general is notified that all correspondence, to receive prompt attention, must be addressed H. A. Mackie, Inc.

Buying A Theater.

By Epes Winthrop Sargent.

Author of The Photoplay Theater, etc.

HERE'S a letter that came to the Moving Picture World the other day that will interest others than the writer, who asks:

> Will you kindly publish a few pointers for the benefit of persons who are contemplating buying a theater? I do not mean pointers that mean success after the purchase is made, but what things must be taken into consideration by the buyer before closing the deal?

There are so many things that enter into the consideration of a purchase that is not easy to list them properly within the limits of such an article as this, but they may be classified roughly as externals, internals and extraneous.

Of the externals, the first considerations should be the location of the house. Is it on the right street? Is it on the right side of the right street? Is it in the right part of the right side of the right street?

Each business thoroughfare has its good and bad side, the good side, as a rule, being that which is shady in the afternoon, the west side of north and south streets and the south side of the east and west streets, but this does not always hold good. Your house will be open in the afternoons and evenings. Watch the street not only in front of the theater but above and below the location both afternoon and evening.

Will you get the people coming from both ways, or will you get only those coming from one end of the street? If the former, you probably have twice as many to draw from as in the latter case, but if you are sufficiently close to the center, you may be able to draw from the other end with advertising that will cost less than the additional rental of a central location.

Each residential district has its own little business center and if a house is located in that center it draws from all territory where a house only a few blocks over gets only a part of the patronage unless a strong advertising bid is made. Be satisfied that the location is right.

The next external is the appearance of the exterior. Does it look like a theater or only a makeshift? If the latter, will it be possible to make improvement at reasonable cost? Can you build up your entrance? Can you better the approach? Can you lower the step-up lobby, or make a ramp, or inclined approach? What sort of stores are on either side? Is the general character of the block good or bad? A block with a saloon on either corner, a pool parlor, a cigar store and a clothing store will not help your trade, whereas a couple of drygoods stores will bring the women and children, who in turn will bring the men. The chief drygoods store or grocery of the section will bring you more trade than all the advertising you can afford to do. Count the extra rental as part of the advertising expense.

If you contemplate improving the entrance, make certain that you can arrange with the owner of the property. If your new falsework or sign is to rise above the first floor level, and you do not control the offices above, make sure that consents may be obtained and at a reasonable sum, and that there are no building regulations to interfere.

If the house is well situated and looks all right, or can be made to look right, turn your attention to the internals.

Will the seating capacity, multiplied by the prices of admission yield a proper return for the sort of show you contemplate? In the business district you can count on two and a half or three houses a day. In some sections on but one and a half. Figure out what it is.

If you can get the money into the house, look to the house itself. Are the chairs the right sort, or will they have to be replaced? If they are right, but old, how soon will they have to be renewed? Are the floor coverings in good repair, or will they presently become an expense? Is the piano owned by the house or rented? Is the screen the right sort or will you need a new one? Is the operating room properly equipped or just limping along? Hint to the operator that if you take the house you'll give him what he needs. Find out what he wants and deduce from that what he really does need. All this is to figured in as a part of the real cost of the house. What you pay the present owner is merely a part of the actual investment. If he plans to sell, it's almost a certainty that he has let the house run down.

Look to the heating plant, the wiring, the condition of the walls, find out about the ownership of the candy vending machines, the deals with those using advertising slides, and how far ahead these slides have been paid for. Make certain that all property is fully paid and not purchased on installments. Ascertain just what the present proprietor claims as his property, to be removed after sale.

Look to the ventilating apparatus and the conditions of the cellar and the yard back of the theater if there is one. Make certain that there are no objectionable neighbors in the rear. The yard of the house in the next street may smell to high heaven when the summer sun comes out, and cost a lot of disinfectant to keep the house open if you run the year 'round.

If you are satisfied that the house is reasonably in accordance with the description, look into the extraneous matters. Find out why the present proprietor is willing to sell. Don't ask him. Ask others.

Perhaps he knows that the building next door is to come down in a month or two and that for many weeks the sidewalk will be blocked. Perhaps some undesirable business is to be brought into the block. It may be that repeated violations of the law have endangered the license. The saloonkeeper or the cigar man may tell you; perhaps not the first one you ask but the one where the proprietor does not trade.

Visit the owner of the property. Find out about the present lease and if a renewal may be had at its expiration on the same or slightly higher terms. Visit the Fire Department and learn whether there are regulations that will require almost prohibitive changes in the house. Learn just how the house is regarded by the department. Go to the Building Department and make the same inquiries. Ask as to conformity with the present laws and the probability of coming adverse legislation. See the police commissioner and the official who licenses the theaters. The man who is selling "on account of sickness" may have been made ill by the thought of what he is going to be up against presently. Find out just what made him sick or you may learn too late that the sickness is contagious, though confined to theater owners. There are about two hundred other things that may suggest themselves, but if you cover all this ground, you stand a reasonably good chance of not seriously regretting the purchase; but remember that usually the would-be seller has two reasons for selling—the real one and the one he gives you.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS IN WASHINGTON, D. C.

Alan J. Bachrach, of the Pastime Amusement Company, Washington, D. C., is making a good effort to place educational pictures before his patrons in general and public school children in particular. Mr. Bachrach's plan is to give free exhibitions at 11 o'clock every Saturday morning to school children, but teachers and parents are welcome. The show lasts about an hour and a half, during which three reels of pictures and sixty lantern slides are shown. A lecture accompanies the slides and is delivered by some competent person. On the occasion of the second show of the educational series Mr. E. P. Cowell, of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, gave the lecture.

To create interest and to make the exhibitions of greater practical value to the children, small cash prizes are offered for the five best essays written on the subjects illustrated on the screen.

Mr. Bachrach gets his service from the General Film Company. He says that by starting at 11 o'clock the free exhibition does not interfere with his regular program, which is scheduled for 1 o'clock. He closes the educational exhibition with a good comedy of interest to the children, thus giving them a few laughs with the instructive material.

So far the newspapers have assisted Mr. Bachrach's enterprise by printing his advance notices and have given the entertainment some good reviews in the news columns. Looks as though the idea might be a winner. Mr. Bachrach considers it a good advertisement.

NEW PICTURE HOUSE FOR ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Victoria Theater, in this city, formerly devoted to vaudeville, was reopened February 12, under new management as an exclusive moving picture house. The Rochester Amusement Company has leased the theater for ten years and has placed same under the management of John J. Farren, who is also secretary of the company. Mr. Farren is well known in amusement circles, having been connected with the Bijou Dream, when it was under the management of Harry Davis; he was also manager of the Hippodrome for three years, where through his ability and courteous manner to the patrons, he made many friends, who are wishing him success upon his new enterprise. The show will run continuously from 12 M. to 11 P. M. Licensed films will be shown, changed daily, and vocal music furnished by a quartet. The admission is 5 cents. The theater has a seating capacity of 1,600.

Music for the Picture

PLAYING THE PICTURES.

READERS of the Moving Picture World are beginning to show a lively interest in the character of music to be used with the pictures. Several communications on the subject have appeared in these columns recently and some seem to have aroused criticism. The World is pleased to give space to communications of this sort, since it tends to bring out the best opinions on the subject of proper music for pictures, a subject, by the way, that is becoming more and more important as the pictures continue to improve.

Mr. Harold Kimpton, vaudeville pianist and singer of illustrated songs, now at the Lyceum Theater, Thief River Falls, Minn., takes issue with recent suggestions from Mr. Vail. His letter is interesting and is given here:

"In your issue of Feb. 24th I notice an article on 'Playing the Pictures' contributed by Mr. Vail. While very much enjoying Clarence Sinn's articles on the same subject that have frequently appeared in your columns, I certainly must ask your permission to let me register a protest in this case. In the first place, I fully recognize the splendid opportunities some photoplays give a pianist for introducing classical compositions; in fact, I use many of these works myself on pictures that demand 'music worth while,' but I honestly believe Mr. Vail's daily program would be every bit as monotonous as a repertoire consisting only of so-called popular music. If he really does feature such compositions as are listed, then I readily give him great credit for attempting such a Herculean task, at the same time censuring him for so wasting his genius in a picture theater.

"I believe the majority of pianists who read your magazine will agree with me that the only successful way of 'playing pictures' is to have a repertoire varied enough to include the best of the standard and popular compositions. Cater to your audience. Give them what they like. Just because a pianist has developed 'acute classical mania,' that is no sufficient reason why his audiences should have that kind of music inflicted on them all the time, and if Mr. Vail's admirers really 'get' his stuff, then I have also to pat them on the back for their evident culture in things musical.

"Another important thing: This program in question is almost entirely composed of the works of foreigners, with a few isolated exceptions. The latter-day American composers have contributed music that is well worth considering, no matter how highly cultured a pianist becomes. For instance, Chas. N. Daniels has given us several delightful little works under his nom de plume of 'Neil Moret' which are a great aid in 'playing the pictures,' and other brilliant and versatile American writers have dandy numbers which strike the public's fancy far better than some of that musty old stuff in question. In conclusion, I beg leave to append a varied program which I am at present using to the apparent satisfaction of my audiences and employers alike. With best regards, "HAROLD KIMPTON."

DRAMATIC:

Dream of the Violets	John T. Hall
Serenade	C. Roland Flick, Op. 2
Heartsease	Neil Moret
Evening Star (Arr. by Liszt)	Wagner
Prelude in C Sharp Minor, Rachmaninoff, Op. 3, No. 2

RELIGIOUS:

Simple Aveu	Thorne
Largo	Handel

MILITARY:

Attaque les Ulans	C. Bohm, Op. 213
From Battle to Victory	Von Blon
National Emblem	Bagley

INDIAN:

Indian Summer	Neil Moret
Heap Big Injun	Sawyer
Cloud Chief	J. Ernest Philie

COMEDY:

Slippery Place	J. Bodewalt Lampe
Staccato Polka	C. Bohm
Red Devil	Lucien Denni
Grace and Beauty Rag	James Scott

WESTERN:

March from "Dream City"	Victor Herbert
American Conquest	(Ascher Edition)
Under the Tents	Chas N. Daniels
Marceline	Trinkhaus

SUGGESTIONS BY LYLE C. TRUE.

Being a subscriber to the Moving Picture World and an enthusiast on "Playing the Pictures," thinking it might be of interest to others who enthuse, too, I submit a musical programme of one of our shows to demonstrate what is being done in the "Wild and Wooly." The following releases were accompanied by this music with violin and piano:

"First Violin" (Vitagraph): Selection, "Mignon," Thomas; "Legende," Wieniawski; "Nocturne Op, 37, No. 1," Chopin.

"Physician's Honor" (Lubin): "In the Shadows," Finck; "Flight of the Birds," Rice; "Cavatina," Raff; "Madrigale," Simonetti; "Day Dreams," Spring Maid.

"Grip Snatcher" (Essanay): "Funeral March of a Marionette" (comic), Gounod; "Mysterious Rag," Snyder; "Please Go 'Way and Let Me Sleep"; "Punchinello," Herbert.

Sincerely, LYLE C. TRUE,
Director (Pianist), Folk Theater,
San Francisco, Cal.

MUSIC WITH THE PICTURES.

Owing to the numerous inquiries and discussions relative to "playing the pictures," and having played the pictures at intervals since 1899, I feel that I am somewhat competent to offer a few and I hope valuable suggestions on this subject, which I trust will be helpful to the picture fraternity in general.

Taking the pictures of to-day, at their present state of perfection, they should be treated the same as a real dramatic performance instead of a reflection upon the screen. This is a point that should never be overlooked, and the keynote to successful picture playing.

Play a curtain raiser, suitable to the title of the picture, then work into the action of the picture without a stop. Follow the action of the play and the principal actor and modulate your music to suit their action, gradually increasing or decreasing the volume, also the tempo to suit; and continue the music and, if possible, cause the music to cease as the picture ends. If the picture fades away, let the strains of the music also diminish with it, and when the last vision disappears, immediately stop. And if the picture ends with a grand climax, bring the music up with a grand finale.

In regard to the selection of music, select the pieces that are popular. Songs are better as a rule. They may be selected and used regardless of their age, just so they are familiar to your audience, and then try to blend them with the action of the picture, and that not only helps to explain the picture, but pleases the ear as well.

It is well to see the picture once through first and one will find it a great help if he will take a pencil and note down suitable pieces as the different scenes appear, and, if possible, memorize them, so as not to be handicapped by having to turn the music, and if one can only memorize two pieces a day, in a short time you will have at your fingers' end, so to speak, any number of pieces suitable to almost any scene. If memorizing is impossible then arrange your music as a vaudeville director would do, having them all in regular order, so as to follow as the scenes appear, but you will not give as smooth a performance as if you had them all memorized. But by constant practice and close application, there is no reason why anyone with any musical talent whatsoever cannot in a short while be able to skillfully "play with the pictures." H. H. TUGGLE.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PIANISTS.

By C. K. Aiken.

There is no more recurring theme in pictures than domestic trouble. Time and again the central interest of a story lies in this alone. A pianist should always play to such situations. His music must, in drama of this kind, reflect the prevailing emotion strongly enough so that real life acting is suggested. "Meditation," from "Thais," by Massenet, is a number which can be played to good effect. "Contemplation," by Maurice Telma, is another.

Often domestic trouble becomes turbulent. In this case the music should almost sound the note of tragedy. Beethoven's "Sonata Pathetique" is the first piece that comes to my mind capable of giving this impression. The opening page will many times be quite enough for the purpose. Those who unhappily regard it as too difficult should play an adaptation. The simple chord progressions rendered with a rolling bass are better than nothing. The Biograph "Blot in the 'Scutcheon" had many scenes strong in tragical power. It is useless to try to accompany such a picture without music of depth and intensity.

Every pianist ought to be interested in playing for Edison's "Jack and the Beanstalk." The strides of the giant and the giantess may be caricatured by playing down in the bass something like the Raikaczy March; the distinction between Jack and the Gant may be suggested by playing the same thing higher up on the keyboard and faster. Mendelsohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" (Smith's transcription) is excellent while the Giant sleeps. For the most part the music should be graceful and animated somewhat like Chaminade's "The Flatterer."

Western pictures, like Selig's "The Danites," are frequently difficult to play for. Very classical music is inappropriate, and so is the popular. On the whole, a middle course is advisable. In "The Danites," compositions by Edward Holst and Engleman, go well. The tavern scene at the opening of the second reel may be worked up with any old English jig. "The Song of the Soul," if played at the very last, sets off the whole picture nicely. Western pictures demand music of only a semi-classical nature. There must be plenty of life and vim, Spindler's "Charge of the Hussars," for example, when the action is slow and yet not sad, a musical comedy selection may be used.

Have you observed the fact that the Moving Picture World outclasses all other publications in the amount of real information published each week? One hundred pages is some picture paper.

DOLLY SPURR GETS NEW HOUSE.

Dolly Spurr, manager of the Royal Theater, of Marion, Ind., writes that she has leased the Grand Theater, a large vaudeville house in that city, and rechristened it the "Royal-Grand." The old Royal will be retained for a special Saturday show, but it was not large enough for the rapidly growing patronage, hence the purchase of the Grand.

The new house has been equipped with two picture machines and a room for ladies and children, where the mothers may leave their little ones in charge of a maid. The opening took place March 14th, when the following program was shown: "Shamus O'Brien" (Imp), "A Bad Investment" (American), "Songs of Childhood Days" (Rex), "Bedelia and the Suffragettes" (Reliance). A full orchestra was in attendance and souvenirs were distributed.

Dolly Spurr has also leased the Airdome for the summer, which will be transformed into a veritable summer palace. Soft drinks will be sold. Independent pictures will be shown in all the Spurr houses.

NEW PICTURE COMPANY.

The American Associated Amusement Company has been launched at Oklahoma City, Okla., with a capital stock of $100,000. J. D. Robertson, Renfro Turner, A. K. Riley, John S. Watson, Warren Jennings and outside capitalists are behind the enterprise, according to the Daily Oklahoman of March 3d. It is the plan of the promoters to build a theater seating 1,500 to be devoted exclusively to the motion picture. From the report it would appear that the new company intends to make pictures, also.

POWERS PLAYERS HAVE TROUBLE ON MEXICAN BORDER.

Owing to an outbreak of the Mexican troubles near Las Cruces, New Mex., the Powers Motion Picture Company's organization was compelled to temporarily abandon its studio at that place and retire forty miles into the mountains.

The company came very near being embroiled in the battle that took place at Las Cruces and only escaped by an exceedingly narrow margin. Director O'Brien, however, with an eye to business managed to secure a good picture of the big fight, which the Powers people will shortly release in a split reel.

Besides Director O'Brien, the members of the company are Gladys Fields, Miss Dudley, Leo White, Mrs. Mackin, F. C. McMahon, E. Robles, A. Neilson and others.

Powers Stock Company at Las Cruces, N. Mex.

The Pictures From the Public Viewpoint

Realities and Unrealities on the Screen.

THERE is no question whatever in the minds of those who go continuously to see the pictures, and who look at them with any other idea than that of mere amusement, that the standard of work of the actors and actresses is improving. Every month sees less and less meaningless gesticulation, more and more restraint—almost every new picture marks some slight change in the personal methods of the caste in "getting it over"—most of them for the better.

This is perhaps the more marked in the newer companies than in the old—certainly some of the most marked improvement is being shown in some of the independent companies. Even those which have been synonymous with good work, in the minds of the audiences who see their productions, are showing the effect of the increasing demand for natural, sincere, unmelodramatic acting on the screen. While there is still entirely too much personal action, under the delusion that because the picture is silent, therefore the audience cannot understand without a great deal of talk with hands, feet and body, the improvement in this phase is most marked, even during the last six months.

I was particularly impressed with this when watching Mr. Johnston's acting in "The Awakening," by the American Eclair company. The story is nothing that we haven't had before in various guises—young man, coming home to mother and the girls, led astray by companions, gets a little too much liquor on board, comes home half spiflicated, falls asleep with his head on the supper table, grief of mother and girls. Then he dreams a dream, gets drunk all over again, kills a woman in a cafe, is taken to jail and faces the chair and finally—wakes up. Then, as climax—"Never again."

But instead of coming in and staggering around the room, and knocking things over and generally behaving as only a very, very drunken beast would behave, in an endeavor to convince his audience that he really is drunk, Mr. Johnston "carries his liquor" like a gentleman. He doesn't stagger. He doesn't knock things over. He doesn't lurch and stutter. Instead he, "gets over" his condition by a very simple and artistic copying of the actions of a man who has a little too much—his mouth is dry—and he moistens his lips; his head is confused and he winks a couple of times as he passes his hand over his forehead—he moves slowly and carefully—he shows impatience at being petted, while responding to his mother's caresses, as a loving son would do—and this little touch of his involuntary movement away while patting her arm is very well done.

The result is the audience knows to a hair just how badly off he is. The rest of the play is well managed and natural, but just like any other vision play—the real beauty of it lies in its first few hundred feet. It is unfortunate that the capable actor couldn't devise some other means of swearing off than that never-used-in-real-life-gesture of hand raised aloft, followed by eyes, when the "never again" part comes in!

* * *

One wishes for a law which will prevent a capable company presenting a faulty playlet in so convincing a manner that you have to forgive the faults for the sake of the acting—more especially when the play is pathetic and your heart strings are tugged, and you know all the time that it never happened and in all probability never would happen, that way. Imp, in "Mrs. Mathews, Dressmaker," is the offender this time.

The dressmaker has a husband and a baby. Husband has to work, though sick, breaks down, dies. Dressmaker goes back to dressmaking. Mrs. Mathews demands dress by a certain hour, dressmaker is late with the gown. When she finally sends it, Mrs. Mathews is incensed and won't pay—then. Consequently, when dressmaker's little girl falls ill, Mrs. the dressmaker has no money to buy medicine. Druggist who has put up the medicine refuses it to the distracted mother with a heart and face of stone, a woman customer in the store pays no attention to the frantic mother's plea—mother resolves to steal the medicine, does so, is caught, haled to the police station, policeman is sent with note to Mrs. Mathews, who comes to station, pays money due dressmaker, and finally procures her a position and sends her baskets of food.

Now then, Mr. Imp man. The audience wants to know the following things, if you please—and you don't tell them. In the first place, your distracted mother puts her little sick girl on the bed, and rushes off for medicine. When she gets back to little sick girl, little sick girl is discovered to have changed her clothes and put on her nightie! Who helped in the emergency? Next, they want to know why, if mother had no credit at drug store she resolved to steal rather than ask credit somewhere else? She isn't poverty striken—she has a nice looking, though modest, home—a sewing machine, dress-form, bed, chairs—nice paper on the walls—evidently a good home. She must eat. She must buy things to eat from grocers, milkmen, butchers, etc. Did her credit run out with them all, all at once? Mrs. Dressmaker herself is plump and well fed—she hasn't been starving. She is also pretty. She is also in great distress. Is it natural that a druggist who had put up a prescription should refuse it for lack of a few cents, when she plainly shows him a child's life may be at stake? If he was such a hard-hearted man, how about the woman in the store who pays no attention to the distracted mother? When they get to the police station, druggist, dressmaker and parent, with the policemen all sit down and wait for another policeman to go fetch Mrs. Mathews by a note. What's the matter with the telephone? Do policemen run errands for people accused of theft? Do angry accusers sit around and wait for help to come to those they accuse?

The thing doesn't ring true. To be true, we should have seen Mrs. Dressmaker in dire poverty—see her refused credit at other places—learn of great financial distress. Stealing that medicine ought to have been the very last resort she had—not the first she thought of. There should have been no woman customer in the store when she pleaded with the druggist—one person so utterly without feeling as that druggist is hard enough to swallow in a play of this kind—but two, and one a woman!

The baby ought to have been undressed and put to bed by the mother or else stayed dressed throughout the play. She was too sick to do it herself—she couldn't even stand up. And mother was too hurried in going after doctor and medicine to do it—yet it was done.

Now, present scribe admits gladly that this thing was well acted, well staged, well done. It was well photographed and well presented. But it slurs over details which hit the observer between the eyes, and not all the good acting could carry through improbabilities which fairly force themselves down the throats of the audience, however disinclined they may be to swallow anything save the dose of pathos prepared by the Imp doctor!

* * *

There is another bit of foolish plot in "Bird in a Gilded Cage"—about as well done bit of society drama as has been seen recently, too, by the way. It is well acted, excellently staged, and the lighting effects and the vision scene are top notch. But there is one strained point. When the wife, disheartened, disgusted and sick of her bargain of marriage with a rich but drunken beast, decides to leave him, she goes to her own home—naturally. She arrived in a well-done snow storm. But, to her dismay, she sees through the windows her sister being married to her former lover. So she turns back to her "cage" again. Now then, was it natural that she didn't know her sister was going to be married? Would a sister get married and not let rich sister know it? Rich sister hadn't been cast off—quite the contrary, mother was much pleased with rich sister's marriage. Of course, it is easy to see why this strain was put in—it was to make a good contrast, since the lover, now being consoled by little sister, had previously been shown disheartened, peeping through those same windows at big sister being married to rich man.

But how much more artistic, Mr. Producer, if you had shown her coming home to a house "For Rent"—or to a house burned down, so that she actually had no other place to go but back to her "cage." Even if little sister's marriage was a surprise, one wonders why that prevented big sister from coming home to mother!

It is these little things which audiences are picking up and taking hold of—I speak not only with my own mouth, but those things I hear, those comments which are made around me, when I go to the picture show.

* * *

Run over in your mind the most effective picture dramas of the last few months. They will be found almost invariably to have few scenes and few characters, rather than new scenes every ten seconds. Too many scene changes, too many disjointed bits of action, show a weak plot, and confuse an audience. It also makes for unreality of presentation. American shows, in the "Grub Stake Mortgage," an example of this undue haste. Young engineers, sent to examine and report on gold mining claims, friend American, do not hop down a hole, poke a tool into three places, shake their heads and jump out again! Examining a claim for a report is a somewhat more lengthy matter. The little difficulty could have been easily avoided by a change in title and showing the engineer just finishing his examination—it wasn't necessary to show both start and finish and thus confine the examination to about half a minute!

But I cheerfully hand it to your two men—the villain for not being at all stagey, and your hero for being natural, and as for the fight between the two, it was corkingly well done—no bluff about it! I wanted to call "down in front" to the heroine, though, she stood too much in front and I couldn't see as many of those very realistic blows as I wanted to!

* * *

It is unfortunate that the rush to get out the stipulated number of releases per week should be allowed to affect the quality of output, yet even with those producers which the whole picture world looks upon as leaders in their line, are not immune to this hurry disease. Edison, for instance, usually produces pretty good films—good plays, good plots, good photography. Yet in the "Commuter's Wife" they have deliberately gone back several years to those early days in picturedom when audiences believed what they were told in the titles, and excused anachronisms on the ground that "it was only a picture." The time has gone by, Edison—gone by a long, long time ago—when you can call a scene "night" and show it in "daylight" and get away with it. But when you call it "night" and show half the action in semi-darkness and half in bright and streaming sunlight, then you go so much too far that even the most ignorant of your audiences gives you the laugh.

In the "Commuter's Wife," which is a comedy (?) with two lone women frightened by a supposed burglar as the principal source of fun, we have first, a small boy who wakes up in what we are told is the middle of the night. That strong sunlight (or electric light) is playing over the head of his bed through the window makes no difference. The title says it's night and so it is night! We see ladies in night gowns, and using lamps, and see that the rooms are dark until the lamps are carried in, when they become light, so we perforce are made to believe that it really is night, and that this bright light shining on the child is moonlight!

But when papa comes home late and lets himself in with a latch key, behold it is bright afternoon, with the sun shining on the porch and throwing dancing shadows—and the operator didn't even diaphragm down his lens to give a make-believe attempt at darkness some vermisimilitude!

Yet, when papa gets in out of the bright sunlight, he lights a match (which the producer, suddenly alive to the exigencies of the occasion, shows to be a lighted match by a very wavery spot light on the man's face!) to go upstairs, and when he and the women sneak downstairs, lamp in hand, to find the kid and the dog asleep on the back porch, behold the operator has been instructed and this time his lens is diaphragmed down and we do now, and at last, understand that it is truly night and that papa coming home in the middle of the night in broad daylight was all a mistake!

With audiences educated to understand that a sunlight picture stained blue or green means moonlight, why try to force real sunlight down their throats for night time? And, if your policy abjures stained films, why not cut out the sunlight homecoming in the middle of the night and by just so much, add to the apparent reality of a playlet which entirely fails of convincing because so illy handled?

C. H. CLAUDY.

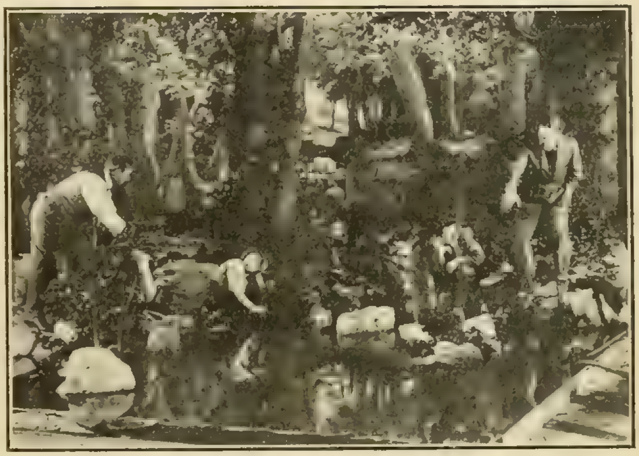
LAST CALL FOR FORT WAYNE.

Indiana Exhibitors Are Assured a Good Time.

By the time Indiana exhibitors receive this issue of The World many of them will have made preparations to attend the two-day convention of the Indiana Moving Picture Exhibitors' League at Fort Wayne, March 19 and 20. The Fort Wayne exhibitors have gone to great pains to get up a good program in which business and pleasure will be well mixed. Indiana exhibitors are drawing closer together, with the result that many matters of importance are being settled satisfactorily as between the exhibitors and those with whom they are doing business. These conventions are doing wonders, as all who have attended previous meetings will acknowledge. Every exhibitor in Indiana and especially those in the vicinity of Fort Wayne are urged to be present at the convention March 19 and 20.

AMBITIOUS REX STUDIO SCENE.

There are reproduced herewith two views taken this week at the Rex Studio, New York, of a scene from the coming Rex release, entitled, "The Price of Money." Here we have a woodland dell with its babbling brook of real water; with real moss and stones. The upper plate shows the scene as it will appear in the film. The lower cut gives an idea of how the set appeared in the studio. It shows the improvised "tank," only four inches in depth, and the hose with which it was filled. The second cut shows also Mr. Edwin Porter, the Rex director, at the left, rehearsing Miss Cleo Ridgley in her part. On the right, Mr. Phillips Smalley and Mr. Richard Murphy, the scenic artist, are seen adding some finishing touches to one of the prettiest and most natural looking studio "exteriors" that it has ever been our pleasure to look at.



PAPAYANAKOS BROS. BUY NEW HOUSE.

On March 1st Papayanakos Brothers, owners of the Photoplay and Wonderland theaters at Watertown, N. Y., took possession of the Lyric Theater, of that city, a vaudeville house operated for some time by Grafton Greene. The house was closed two weeks for repairs and then opened as an exclusive picture theater. It has been greatly improved and beautified, a mirror screen and a Powers projecting machine being among the additions to the equipment.

SENSATIONAL ESSANAY PICTURE.

A big, sensational feature in "The Turn of the Tide," a splendid dramatic subject from the Chicago studio of Essanay, is a fatal collision between an automobile and a train. It is one of the most realistic features ever portrayed, and the effect is wonderful. The train is running at a high rate of speed when a big racing car, dashing toward the tracks, strikes the train squarely. The auto explodes, killing the chauffeur and his mechanic, and leaving nothing but a burning pile of rubbish in the wake of the disappearing express. This sensational feature-film is booked for early release, and will undoubtedly cause a world of comment.

Marion Optimistic.

Kalem Company's President Returns from a Six Weeks' Trip With Glowing Report on the Picture Business.

FRANK J. MARION, of the Kalem Company, returned to New York on Sunday, March 10, after a trip across the continent and back which extended over a period of six weeks, and during which he visited many of the larger cities of the southern tier of states from New Orleans to Los Angeles and back to Jacksonville, Fla. Speaking generally Mr. Marion said that the business of the exhibitor was in a most healthful condition throughout the territory traversed by him.

"What was most noticeable," said he, "was the great change in the attitude of banks and money loaning interests toward the motion picture theater as an investment. It is not so long ago that a picture theater was looked upon as an extremely unstable concern, but the banks have discovered that the business is now upon a permanent basis and that it is the most popular form of amusement extant, with the result that they are making large loans to reliable promoters of motion picture enterprises.

"I also discovered that there is a disposition among exhibitors, whether using Licensed or Independent pictures, to co-operate for the advancement of the common interest. The old days of ruinous competition have passed. Licensed exhibitors are dividing the service so that they do not encroach upon each other where there are several exhibitors in one town. I assume that Independent exhibitors are doing the same.

"Another cause for the general good condition of business is the large quantity of available advertising matter. Large posters are especially desired by exhibitors for feature advertising and there is an abundance of these to be had, and they are in general use.

"I also found that exhibitors are hungry for anything in the way of a hint that will aid them to increase their patronage. They are not so much interested in the character of the pictures. Everywhere I found, among both Licensed and Independents, the feeling that the quality of the pictures was dependable. The belief was that all the manufacturers were improving their output as rapidly as possible and that the question of good pictures was practically settled. Consequently they were devoting their energies toward improving their houses and to extending their influence in their several communities.

"My first stop was in New Orleans, La. where I went to supervise the selection of our new studio at that place, and to establish our new company. While there I discovered that the people were most kindly disposed toward motion pictures. We obtained without solicitation the hearty cooperation of the city officials, who came to the front with assurances of aid in whatever undertaking we might engage in. We have secured a fine old Colonial home on Bayou St. John, belonging to the old Paterno family, which has occupied it for several generations. It is delightfully situated and possesses many characteristic beauties. The New Orleans company numbers among its members Mr. Tom Moore, a brother of Owen Moore, and Miss Lottie Pickford, sister of Mary Pickford (a rather singular combination, isn't it?); Miss Allison Skipworth, an actress of wide experience; Stewart Holmes and Ralph Mitchell, one of the old Kalem players. Altogether we have a very capable company and are looking for some good features from them.

"I found the exhibition business in New Orleans in splendid condition. Pictures are the principal amusement of the people there. The firm of Josiah Pearce & Sons have done much to put it on the high plane it now occupies. This firm owns several magnificent houses in that city and is building others."

"At Los Angeles, Cal., the situation is remarkable. Los Angeles is now the hub of the universe of the picture business. It is a wonderful sight to see the picture players of the various companies coming in at night after their day's work is done. There is an almost continuous parade of them, with the players in all sorts of make-up, giving the streets the air of a carnival. The people of the town take the greatest interest in the work of the picture companies and one of the chief pastimes is to make automobile trips into the surrounding country to watch the various companies making pictures. Last year when I went to El Paso, Tex., I stood on a hill overlooking Jaurez and could see little bands of insurgents posted on every hill. This year, from a hill at Santa Monica, I could see a company of picture players on every hill. It is really remarkable. Pictures have become one of the institutions of Los Angeles.

"The Kalem Company has a new studio at Santa Monica. It is the abandoned terminal of the Pacific Electric Company and is on three car lines. It was built with the purpose of making it one of the show places, but a change of plans led to its abandonment and we secured it on a long lease. The building is of stucco in mission style and red tiled roof with the surrounding grounds beautifully parked. Everything is bright and new, for it has never been in use. When alterations have been made we will have as fine a studio as any in that city.

"Returning to Jacksonville, Fla., I found our Southern company engaged with some big undertakings. They have projected a number of big war pictures that will be features of their class. I made a brief trip over to Cuba, but found nothing there to interest American picture makers. The only pictures that go in Cuba are the 'hot stuff' kind and not fit to be seen by women and children. They want nothing else."

Mr. Marion was accompanied by his wife and both enjoyed the trip immensely. He wishes to recommend to all picture men a certain decoction named the "Ojen Cocktail," compounded only at the Café Louisianne in New Orleans. This, Mr. Marion declares, is the most seductive tipple he has discovered anywhere, and that it cannot be found outside of New Orleans, or the Café Louisianne.

As a final shot, just as the World representative was escaping down the elevator Mr. Marion declared that the Kalem Irish pictures had interested exhibitors everywhere he went and that he was deluged with inquiries regarding the pictures now being made by the El Kalems in Egypt.

WALTER J. KINGSLEY,

Press representative and advertising manager for the French-American Film Company exploiting the photoplays, Bernhardt in "Camille" and Rejane in "Sans Gene," is a newspaper man of long experience, having been abroad as a special correspondent, covering the Boer War for the London Daily Express and the Russo-Japanese War for the London Daily Mail. He was for several years a London correspondent. In the United States has held every position on a newspaper from cub reporter to manager editor. For over a year was editor of the Yokohama Daily Advertiser.

As a press agent has handled Bernhardt, Forbes Robertson, Geo. M. Cohan, Raymond Hitchcock, went around the world with M. B. Leavitt, and has been the general representative of several of the biggest theatrical firms. Also handled the press campaign of the Folies Bergere music hall and restaurant. Was press agent for the Japanese Government during the events leading up to the war with Russia.

Mr. Kingsley's experience and acquaintance is worldwide; he is at home anywhere they publish newspapers or have theaters. Motion pictures appeal to him as the best field for advertising enterprise, hence his acceptance of an executive position with the French-American Film Company. He is also personal press representative for the Countess of Warwick, who is now lecturing in this country.

The Amateur Scenario Writer.

By Helen Merritt

NINE-TENTHS, and probably more, of the struggling writers of the United States of today have turned within the past few years, more or less hopefully, to the growing moving picture field and have said to themselves: "Here, perchance, I may find reward, if not recognition." And because struggling writers have to consider material things, the majority have been able to regard with equanimity the prospect of their work being unrecognized, save by the editor on whose recognition it may depend for the necessary check which the said S. W. is willing to take in lieu of credit for his work from the playgoing public. Some of those who started out so hopefully have fallen by the way; others are still toiling along the narrow path which may lead, if not to success, to checks; while still others have actually arrived and have found that their glorious dream of being able to make a living by the pen, has changed to a grand reality.

When a young man or a young woman turns to authorship the term as used here meaning to the writing of books, short stories, verse, special articles or any kind of hack writing, he or she realizes that the ultimate fate of the undertaking lies in the hands of the editors to whom the work shall be submitted. In this particular he who takes up scenario writing differs not one whit from he who begins to write short stories. The editor is the man who can make him or mar him, and probably "all editors will look alike to him." But if he has first tried the short story writing, and has then switched off to scenarios, he will tell you that there is a difference. The training which goes to make a successful judge of scenarios must differ from that which goes to make the successful magazine editor, judging by the finished product. The scenario editor at this time is more approachable. It may be that this approachableness is only temporary and that, when the field of scenario writers is as overcrowded as that of magazine writers, scenario editors will entrench themselves behind barriers, well nigh unsurmountable and so formidable that only the most courageous will dare to storm them. Let us be thankful, friends, that we are in the ranks of the noble army of scenario writers now, rather than at the time predicted (if it ever arrives).

The scenario editor, as has been intimated, seems to treat the novice with more charity and leniency than does the magazine editor. His manner of refusal is not so curt. He does not consider it beneath his dignity sometimes to point out where a writer has failed. If he reads a scenario and it has promise he has actually been known to inform the writer of that fact and sometimes even to go so far as to show him what particular feature is lacking which, if there, would make the declined scenario available. He makes suggestions, sometimes taking the time to write them, but more often by means of a printed slip which he sends to those whose work he considers promising, when he returns it because it is not exactly up to his standard. You can imagine how pleasantly this method of declination strikes the writer who has been accustomed to receive from the magazine editor the stereotyped rejection slip with not a word of comment or encouragement, and not a particle of difference between the slip sent to the writer whose work is hopelessly bad, and that sent to the one who later is able to place the same work in a more important publication, perhaps.

One film manufacturer has an editor who deserves the biggest kind of credit for his way of helping young writers, or old writers new to the business of scenario writing, along the hard path they have to travel. This editor sometimes declines with a regulation excuse; that is, I have reason to believe, when the story declined has nothing in it which seems to the editor to give promise of better work in the future. If he gets hold of one which is well written, which shows that the writer has the right idea and with a little coaching may be able to express it acceptably, he sends with the returned scenario a printed sheet. The sheet begins with a brief note stating that the scenario is not available for the use of that particular company, for the reason checked off below. It adds "this does not necessarily impliy lack of merit, as your story indicates talent for writing, and we trust you will not grow discouraged, but will continue submitting work to us which we will be pleased to consider, and to which we will give our most careful attention."

How's that for a declination? To the disappointed author does it not mean a store of fresh courage? Then, again, the list of "reasons" which follow the introductory note, checked to show in just what the scenario errs, are perhaps the very best guide a novice could have, which will show him how to steer clear of the things this editor does not want, and how to get in the things which he does. There are seventeen of the reasons and they run the whole gamut. The first one "not available for present use" covers perhaps a multitude of sins, but the others are practical and specific, as follows:

"Not sufficient humor for a comedy. Requires environment which would necessitate too much expense to stage correctly. Would fail to pass the National Board of Censorship. Identical to magazine story. Similar theme used before. Could be used for magazine story, but would fail to 'get over' in a picture. Indian stories not required. Not sufficient action to theme. Too conventional. Too small a cast to make interesting picture. Too melodramatic. Not in proper scenario form. Plot not strong enough. Too immoral. Too unpleasant. Too improbable."

What could be more satisfactory to the writer than that? If there is anything, I have not yet come across it. The writer whose scenario comes back with one of those printed sheets will, of course, feel a pang of regret for his rejected work, but the worst of it will be lost in the interest which this way of showing him his mistakes will arouse. More power to the man who devised this way of being kind to scenario writers. Would there were more like him.

Another well known company prints on the back of its declination slips two guides which are useful to the novice, first a brief synopsis of "What We Like," and the other a brief outline of "We Don't Want," ending up with a few words describing clearly how the manuscript should be prepared. This company, by the way, issues a neat pamphlet on "How to Write a Photoplay," and sends it willingly to any one requesting it, and enclosing a stamped envelope for its return. The pamphlet is a splendid guide for beginners, and contains some points which are of value to trained writers, especially to those whom success has made a trifle careless, perhaps.

One company sends out a sample scenario on receipt of a stamped addressed envelope and this is a good thing for those who are writers, but who have no idea of the form in which a scenario should be presented to make it acceptable. I am free to confess that the little work I did in this line before I received just the kind of guidance I needed, in Mr. Sargent's sample scenario, printed in his series of articles in the Moving Picture World, must have been enough to make even the kindest hearted editor think harsh thoughts. To those who did not reap the benefit to be derived from Mr. Sargent's work, the sample scenario offered by these film makers will be a boon.

Right here, I want to say that while there may be careless scenario editors, I for one have had no fault to find in this respect, so far. I try to prepare a manuscript so that it appeals to the editor by its tidiness and correctness as well as by its literary merit (if it has any). I believe that the synopsis, at least, of every scenario is read in every office to which it is sent, and I am sure that responsible people do not make a practice of defacing manuscript just for the sake of giving the author a job at recopying. So far I have not had to recopy except in cases where a fault has been pointed out to me, which by recopying I have been able to eliminate.

And what about the scenarios which do not "come back?" What joy there is in the thin envelope rather than in the fat one. If it is only a notice that the scenario has been received and will be duly considered, it brings some meed of satisfaction. If it is an acceptance, and a "promise to pay," there is a thrill of real pleasure. If it is a check—but why say anything about that. You scenario writers do not need to be told what that means. Perhaps you had counted on getting $15 and only get $10. But the small disappointment is swallowed up in the general gladness that it is a check and not a returned manuscript.

So, if you have "arrived," if you get more checks than declinations, and if you are firmly convinced that you can write scenarios and that some time you are going to write one which will make you famous, isn't what has been said in the foregoing article nearly true, as judged by your personal experience. Don't you owe something to the helpful editors? Don't you believe that they mean well by you? And don't you feel glad that you are a scenario, rather than a short story writer? To be sure you do not see your name on the printed page. But, by and by, and it is not going to be a very long by and by either, when you write a corking good scenario, your name is going to appear before an audience larger by many times than the roster of readers of even the Saturday Evening Post, or the Ladies' Home Journal. And about that time, editors will begin bidding for your work, knowing that your name on a film will mean "Success" spelled with a big S.

And then, dear writer, right then, you will begin to reap the material rewards. When the time comes that film companies feel that they must have your name on their film, once in every so long, they will "fish" for you, and they will fish with a golden bait. And make believe you won't bite.

The Asta Neilsen Pictures.

FOREMOST GERMAN ACTRESS INDUCED TO APPEAR IN SIX THREE-REEL FEATURE PHOTOPLAYS FOR THE DEUTSCHES BIOGRAPH COMPANY.

THE year of 1912 seems destined to be a memorable one in the history of motion pictures. It is probable that within the year all barriers between the legitimate stage and the photo-drama will have been let down and the motion picture will be found occupying its rightful and destined place as one of the fine arts. This state of affairs will, of course, be brought about by precedent. It is quite necessary that the motion picture shall be taken up by the acknowledged heads of the dramatic profession before it can be fully endorsed and recognized in a formal way. This precedent, having been establishment, all else will follow as a natural sequence.

The year of 1912 will be fraught with great surprises in the field of Motography. Precedents will be established during the year, such as would have been incredible one year ago. The first of these great precedents, which for some time have existed only as prophesies, have already appeared in the early months of this year. France has seen the handwriting on the wall and its greatest actress, Sarah Bernhardt, has transferred her art from the speaking stage to that of the more universal photoplay. In England Sir Herbert Tree has recognized the photgraphic medium as the most universal and permanent vehicle for the dramatic art.

In this respect Germany has not been backward, nor behind the others, for simultaneously with the acquiescence of the great stars of other countries there appears, as an exponent of the pictured drama, the great German emotional actress, Asta Neilsen. Asta Neilsen, although perhaps not so well known in our country as some other foreign players whose names are household words with us, is a star of equal magnitude to the best of any other nation. Her name in German speaking countries means as much as the name of Mrs. Patrick Campbell means to English theater-goers. It stands on a par with that of Julia Marlowe in this country, or with Sarah Bernhardt's name in France. Those who have seen her work maintain that it stands for more than these names just enumerated. Her admirers are firm in their belief that she possesses all the talents and abilities of Miss Marlowe, Mrs. Campbell and Madame Bernhardt rolled into one. That is a strong assertion, to be sure, but they who have seen her complacently bid the American public to wait and be convinced, feeling quite sure that their assertions are well grounded.

Miss Neilsen, who has been appearing in the leading theaters of Germany, Denmark and other Teutonic countries, is acknowledged as the supreme exponent of her particular line of endeavor. While engaged in this work she was approached by representatives of the Deutsches Biograph Company, who were authorized to make her an irresistible offer for her appearance in a series of dramas before the camera. The offer proved to be irresistible. At this writing the dramas are an accomplished fact, and reproductions thereof are already in America, awaiting their day of release.

In New York recently a World representative had an interview with Mr. A. H. Brown, of the Walturdaw Company of London, England. Mr. Brown was just departing for Europe after having been five weeks in the United States, completing negotiations for the American rights of the Asta Neilsen pictures. These he informed us had been satisfactorily disposed of to the Tournament Film Company of Toledo, Ohio, that concern having secured them at an enormous figure. Mr. Brown was enthusiastic over the extraordinary reception these pictures had been accorded in London. Their success there was as prompt as it was universal. The name of Asta Neilsen in London at the time of Mr. Brown's departure for America was a national topic, and, although that lady had never appeared in London, in a brief few weeks she was as well known there as in her own country.

The Tournament Film Company at this time of writing has on hand for distribution, as state right features, six dramas in which Miss Neilsen appears, as follows: "The Great Moment" (four reels), "Gypsy Blood" (three reels), "The Course of True Love" (three reels), "The Traitress" (three reels), "Moths" (three reels), and "The Better Way" (three and a half reels). Naturally, in securing the greatest of German actresses, the Deutsches Bioscope Company spared no expense to provide her with the best possible vehicles. To this end the plays in which she was to appear were written, by arrangement, with several of the best-known German and Danish dramatists. By reason of this fact the Neilsen pictures are not lacking in strength in a department that has been lamentably slighted in many instances. Space forbids a detailed description of the plays acquired by the Tournament Film Company, but in order to give an idea of the character of the dramas, we will append an outline of

"The Traitress."

A drama involving the depths of love, jealousy and revenge, combined into a thrilling and human war story. Miss Neilsen appears as "Yvonne," the daughter of the aged Marquis de Bougeval, both ardent French patriots. Their home is impressed by a German army corps, to which they are obliged to submit. During the course of the occupation Yvonne came to know a young German lieutenant and, through his gallant and gentlemanly bearing, fell deeply in love with him. The German lieutenant, however, did not return her affection, and, when Yvonne became convinced of this, she suffered all the agonies of a woman scorned. Her scorned love engendered hate, and filled her with an overwhelming desire for revenge.

Yvonne determines to inform the French forces of the status of the German occupation at her home, and give them information which will facilitate the capture of the chateau. Upon leaving her home, however, she is challenged by a sentry. She appeals to the German lieutenant, whom she loves, to be allowed to pass the lines, but the lieutenant sustains the action of the sentry. This action serves only to intensify the hatred of the girl toward the lieutenant. During the night she manages to elude the guard and proceeds to the French headquarters. There she gives her information and returns unseen. In the morning the German garrison, occupying Yvonne's home, is captured and some of the officers, including the lieutenant, are condemned to die the following day at dawn. Here a reaction takes place within the mind of Yvonne. She is torn with the bitterest anguish by the thought that the man she loves has been condemned to die as a result of her own action.

Prior to this time Yvonne had been courted by the French officer now in command, a man whom she could not love. In her great despair she sends for him and offers to become his wife if he will spare the life of the German lieutenant. This seems to be an agreeable proposition to the French captain, and with the girl he appears before the condemned prisoner. There the agreement is related to him, but the proposition is distasteful to him and he prefers to meet his fate as a soldier rather than to have any such influence on the girl's future. After her plan has been thus indignantly spurned, Yvonne is beside herself with frenzy. In desperation she evolves another plan, which makes of her a traitress. She mounts a horse and hastens to the headquarters of the German forces and there sets forth the plight of the German detachment at the chateau; explaining that several of the officers are to be executed at sunrise. An attack upon the chateau is at once planned, and a desperate encounter takes place. The fighting is fierce and soon the Hussars are engaged in hand to hand conflict with the French. By force of overwhelming numbers the French ranks soon become confused and are finally routed. In the combat the French captain, whom Yvonne had promised to marry, receives his death wound. Just before he expires he draws his revolver and shoots Yvonne. In her lover's arms she breathes her last, and thus, by the sacrifice of her own life, she expiates her treachery.

It can be seen from the foregoing scenario that there are vast possibilities for emotional work by Miss Neilsen, and it can be said that the possibilities have been lived up to, to the ultimate of perfection. Those who have seen her work maintain that for mobility of expression the features of Miss Neilsen have never been excelled. Her control of the principles of Delsarte is unlimited if not inspired. Her admirers predict a wonderful success in America for the pictures in which she appears, all of which, if true, redounds to the credit of the Tournament Film Company of Toledo for their enterprise in so promptly securing the American rights for them. It is probable that the Neilsen dramas will be reviewed in these pages from time to time as they appear.

Miss Neilsen's portrait appears on yonder page.

H. F. H.

DANTE'S INFERNO AT WILKES-BARRE, PA.

The poet's vision of hell has certainly demonstrated at the Savoy Theater, at Wilkes-Barre—where the one week's engagement has just closed with a result of having shown to 25,000 people in the week—that the public is ready to and does appreciate the great value of this glorious work. It would have been held over for another week, but owing to the fact that Collins & Collins have a contract at York, Pa., for this week, a return date will be played in the near future.

Miss
Asta
Nielsen

The German
Bernhardt

CHICAGO LETTER.

By Jas. S. McQuade.

IN a recent Sunday issue of the St. Louis Republic an entire page was devoted to an article treating of the dangers to which young stranger girls are subjected on arrival in that city. One of the good angels, who is seeking to protect these girls, is Miss Ellen Petersen, whose reputation as philanthropist and social worker is very high in St. Louis. Sergeant Harrington, of the Union Station police squad, St. Louis, bears the following testimony to Miss Petersen's work:

"Undoubtedly there is room for a great deal of moral and social improvement at Union Station. I cannot say too much in praise of Miss Petersen's work, but she needs assistance, and above all a place where she can send the unprotected and homeless girls. I know that she spends the greater part of her own salary taking care of them, for they must be taken care of, and there is no public provision for this purpose."

When a woman of Miss Petersen's acknowledged character and good works makes such a charge as is included in the following excerpt against moving picture theaters in St. Louis, one is forced to give it careful and serious consideration: "Often these young girls make the acquaintance of men while about the station between trains. An invitation to a nickelodeon and a restaurant, and you hear no more of them.

"I look upon the nickelodeons as cesspools of iniquity. Maybe it is not the fault of the proprietors. The auditoriums are dark and there is always some noise or conversation, and many things happen there that could not occur in a dramatic or music theater, where there is usually some light and absolute silence.

"When I was an officer of the Juvenile Court I found that most of the delinquent young girls attributed their fall to nickelodeons. Many of these girls, mere children, told me that the wickedness practised in such places was almost unbelievable.

"Perhaps it is the fault of the people who patronize these places. I am sure that there are many respectable people who go to picture shows. I only know that innumerable young girls have told me that they learned their first lessons in vice in such places.

"I know, too, that good, uplifting instructive pictures are hard to get. The social societies that have tried to get such films have found it a matter of extreme difficulty.

"There can be no doubt about it. The conditions are appalling."

Notice Miss Petersen's reference to "dark auditoriums" in St. Louis. During a visit to St. Louis several months ago, I stepped into a small theater on one of the leading streets. The house was so dark that I could not see the seats that were occupied or those that were not, until accustoming my eyes to the change from the light on the street. I spoke to the manager about it and he talked of intended improvements. All the larger picture theaters visited by me were well lighted, both in the downtown and residential districts.

Is it not a crying shame that there should be found a single dark picture theater in America in this day of splendid indirect lighting systems, that can be installed at very reasonable outlays? In cities where such are not in force, there should be passed immediately an ironclad ordinance making it obligatory on all picture theater owners to have their houses well lighted during the exhibition of pictures, under penalty of fine or imprisonment, or both. This would not only prevent viciously inclined persons from bringing odium on picture houses, but it would also protect the progressive up-to-date exhibitor from the humiliation of being classed with the man who is in the business merely as an opportunist, without any care or regard for its future. Reputable progressive moving picture exhibitors owe it to themselves to press the passage of ordinances in their cities, such as have been referred to. It is high time that such exaggerated statements, as are liable to be made even by good, estimable ladies of Miss Petersen's standing, should be made wholly impossible.

"Cesspools of iniquity!" Now no matter how dark a picture theater may be, it cannot be quite that. It seems so fashionable nowadays among some well-meaning ladies of good intentions to cry, "mad dog!" when speaking of nickelodeons. But just as the poor dog, which the pious Quaker called "mad," was perfectly safe and sane, yet nevertheless was stoned to death; so many praiseworthy exhibitors are being obliged to run the gauntlet between insensate speech and an ignorance of the facts. There is big work before the National Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America. Let exhibitors, big and little, see that their houses are put, and kept, in order.

Strong Support for Picture Theaters.

Sidney Smith, secretary of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Illinois, has been devoting himself zealously to the gathering of material that will offset the allegations made by the friends of the proposed amended ordinance regulating attendance at picture theaters by minors. Among letters from prominent clergymen and others is the following from the Rev. Albert E. Selcer, rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Morgan Park, Ill.:

"I understand that there is a movement on foot originating among certain ill-advised people requesting the authorities to prohibit all children of sixteen and under attending moving picture shows and like amusements unless accompanied by parents or guardians. I sincerely hope the authorities will do nothing of the kind. I should regard it as no less than a calamity. I have made it my business as a priest, and as a volunteer probation officer, to visit moving picture shows generally, and feel sure, at any rate so far as the West Side is concerned, that such a restriction would work more harm than good, by reason of its throwing the children on the streets, and, later on, into the parks at night, to say nothing of the dancing halls.

"The children must spend their evenings somewhere, and it is certain that an evening spent at a picture show, where education, sociology, comedy and drama rub elbows, is productive of more good than running about the streets, or indulging in questionable (to say the least) amusements.

"I am enclosing a clipping from the official diary of the Episcopal bishop of North Dakota. What he says about picture shows covers my position exactly, except that I should add to what he says, the various portions of larger cities, especially among the working class."

Herewith is the clipping referred to, from the diary of the Right Rev. Cameron Mann, D.D., Episcopal bishop of North Dakota:

"Jan. 25, 1912—Day given to writing letters and articles. At night went to the moving picture show, a clean and really interesting one. I honestly think that this sort of thing, properly managed, solves the problem of public entertainments in small cities and villages, and it has immense possibilities of instruction."

As the Rev. Mr. Selcer has confined his attention to picture theaters on the West Side, and as the ladies moving the passage of the amendment represent the women's clubs of the West Side, the conflicting conclusions are rather surprising.

The Famous Tetrazzini and Moving Pictures.

The Los Angeles studio of the Selig Polyscope Company was honored Tuesday, March 5, by a visit from the world famous songstress, Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini, who spent the forenoon visiting the different departments of the plant under the guidance of Manager James L. McGee. Mme. Tetrazzini herself expressed the desire to visit the studio, and through the local manager of her Los Angeles season, Len Behymer, the trip to Edendale was arranged.

The famous Italian prima donna is a real moving picture "fan," and attends picture theaters in every city in which she spends sufficient time to "take in" the photoplays.

After visiting the studio, property room, scenic department, dressing rooms, gardens and new office building, the diva was invited into the projecting room, where the three full reels of "The Coming of Columbus"—the Selig $50,000 production, which has not been publicly exhibited as yet—were run for her inspection. Mme. Tetrazzini clapped her hands and exclaimed "Bravo! bravo!" all through the picture, and declared it the finest "show" she had ever seen.

Mme. Tetrazzini was especially interested in the glass studio, where the process of "putting on" a photoplay and the arrangements of the sets held her close attention. She is a woman of fascinating personality and democratic bearing. She fairly bubbles over with fun, and might be described as, "strong on comedy." When asked if she would like to walk before the camera in the garden, so as to take home a motion picture souvenir of her visit, she accepted the proposition with smiles and, in the midst of a group comprised of her own party and studio people, she carried on a graphic pantomime while the operator turned the crank.

Mme. Tetrazzini maintains a moving picture gallery at her home in Switzerland, where she holds private exhibits of many of the best films of the day. Her enthusiam for moving picture entertainment is fairly infectious.

Accompanying the great singer were William H. Leahy, her American manager, Mrs. Leahy, Mr. Mozelli and Len Behymer.

Chicago Film Brevities.

C. W. Tiede, owner and manager of the Crystal Theater, Burlington, Wis., sold out to Prawles & Hansen recently, and has gone to Albuquerque, N. M., where he expects to secure another house.

* * *

The World has just received a postal card from William H. Bell, Sidney, Australia, in which he states that J. D. Williams and himself have had some great sport recently in catching man-eating sharks. The photograph on the back of the postal shows the two gentlemen holding the shark's mouth open, while they are releasing the hook. Mr. Bell was formerly manager of the G. F. Co.'s branch on N. Clark Street.

* * *

H. L. Sargent, owner of the Majestic, Osceola, Ia., sold out that house recently to Sherm Myers, of Anita, Ia., who will take possession some time this month. The Majestic had a successful career under Mr. Sargent's management.

* * *

Ed. J. McErlane, manager of the booking department of the Laemmle branch in Minneapolis, was a visitor at the World office last week. He reported that business in the Minnesota metropolis is very satisfactory.

* * *

F. H. & E. A. Franke, proprietors and managers of the California Theater, 26th Street and Trumbell Avenue, this city, recently acquired the Clark Theater, on Clark Street and Wilson Avenue. This house seats 1,200 people, being the second largest and finest outlying theater in Chicago. Heretofore it has been offering high class vaudeville. Under the new management straight picture programs will be given. E. A. Franke is manager. The Messrs. Franke have been very successful with houses that have been formerly considered "lemons." The California offers a high grade Independent service and the Clark a Licensed program.

* * *

C. F. Stark, special commercial agent of the Essanay Company, has returned from a visit to Toronto and Montreal. While in Toronto Mr. Stark was especially struck by the Strand Theater, a high class picture house using a Licensed service, the program being confined to pictures exclusively. The Strand seats 1,000 people and always shows to capacity. The prices are 10, 20 and 35 cents, the latter price being paid for box seats. Mr. Stark found the exhibiting business very prosperous in all the cities visited on the other side of the border.

EXHIBITORS' ADV. & SPEC. CO. IN NEW HOME.

The above concern (Arthur D. Jacobs, president and general manager; Ben Title, secretary and treasurer), formerly located at 105 East 14th Street, after months of preparations have at last removed and are now located at their new premises, No. 30 Union Square, between 15th and 16th Streets, one block from the 14th Street subway station, and within five minutes' walk from all Licensed exchanges. Two immense floors of over 5,000 square feet of floor space are occupied by this progressive concern (which started in business less than two years ago, with one of the largest and most complete line of posters and other advertising facilities for moving picture theaters in the United States.

In addition to being the largest handlers in the East, if not in the United States, for A. B. C., Vitagraph and all other makes of Licensed posters, they have been appointed sole eastern distributors for "Hennegan's Money Getters," embracing stock and special posters of all kinds, from half-sheets to eight sheets, heralds, and complete line of "Passion Play" paper.

The first floor is occupied by the general offices, sample and showroom, while the second floor is devoted to stockroom and sign painting department. Orders for printing are turned out in twenty-four hours so that the exhibitor may obtain anything he may require to advertise his show from a throwaway to an eight sheet, the motto of the firm being "If It's Anything to Advertise a Picture Theater We Have It."

The Perfection Concave Screen.

At the request of the president of the Inventor's Specialty Manufacturing Company, a World representative called at Gane's Manhattan Theater, New York City, to observe an actual exhibition of moving pictures projected upon this latest projection surface, it being the first one of the kind to be installed in New York City.

There are many good arguments in favor of the concave screen idea, which are based, of course, on the existing laws of optics. Briefly, the principle of the concave screen is that of a projection surface describing the same relative arc as that of the curvature of the lens in the projector. In other words it bears the same curve relation to the lens that the outer tire of a wagon wheel bears to the curvature of the hub. In a wagon wheel the length of all spokes are the same. With the concave screen, one of the principal objects is to make all the rays of light from the projector of the same length, like the spokes of a wheel.

Light rays from a projector striking on a flat screen surface are unequal in length. No one will dispute that point. The rays that strike the center are in most cases the shortest, for the reason that they are directly in line with the projector. The rays at the extreme sides of the sheet are the longest. In many cases the difference in the length of rays is more than a foot. It has been figured out by the Concave Screen people that some rays being longer than others, a perfect focus is not possible on a flat screen. They find that when a picture is in exact focus in the center of the sheet, it is to some extent out of focus around the edges, owing to the difference in length of rays. These points were borne in mind by the reviewer at the time of the exhibition. The theory of the concave screen is based on existing facts. The value of such a screen to an exhibitor depends greatly upon the length of throw. For instance: At a throw of one hundred feet or more the curvature of the concave screen necessarily becomes less and less, owing to the diminishing curvature of the arc described at that distance. However, as the throw shortens, or the picture screen sets nearer the lens, the greater the benefit to be derived from a concave surface. It is a principle that should apply admirably to short throws where a wide angle lens is in use. At Gane's Theater the throw is about one hundred feet, therefore there was no occular demonstration of what the apparatus will do on shorter distances, but it is quite easy to figure out, without the actual demonstration, that it will be a help to those exhibitors operating at close quarters.

One claim of the Inventor's Specialty Manufacturing Company is that distortion is not so apparent from the boxes on either side of the stage. The picture was looked at from this angle as well as from in front. By request, the picture was first thrown on the old curtain with a flat surface, which was later raised out of the way. There is some difference in favor of the concave screen. On the flat surface the sense of distortion was not only apparent but a source of annoyance. When the flat screen was lifted and the picture viewed at a very acute angle, it cannot be said that all distortion disappeared, but the foreshortening did not seem so obvious and it was actually lost sight of, because the picture itself diverted the mind from anything irritating or extraneous.

The concave screen is a beautifully built apparatus. An examination of it behind the scenes showed it to be built on scientific lines. The article is a surface of wood fiber, mounted upon a framework that radiates from a central point, causing it, from the rear, to resemble a huge spider web. The gradations are skillfully worked out and the work of joining is admirably done. This screen comes in four sections which bolt together, after which the joints on the projection surface are smoothed over. The surface itself is treated with a secret preparation which is calculated to intensify the brightness of the picture. One of the claims of the Concave people is that of relief from eye strain. The concave surface corresponding to some extent with the curvature of the eye is deemed the reason for this. The concave screen is a screen that must be built to order for each house, because in few theaters is the throw and size of picture the same. The concave screen varies with the measurements of the house.

After watching the projection on the concave screen the management of the Gane's Manhattan Theater was questioned as to their opinion and they gave it their unqualified endorsement. They claim that they get a better light, a better focus and that old and worn reels show up decidedly better on the concave screen than on the former flat surface. Besides, patrons sitting at the sides are no longer dissatisfied as some of them were formerly. These are the opinions of Mr. William J. Gane and his house manager. H. F. H.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT.

THE SPECIAL RELEASE.

III. The Lobby and the House.

(Copyright, 1912, by Epes Winthrop Sargent.)

DO not overload your lobby for the special release. Even managers who ordinarily keep their house fronts clean and attractive are tempted to fill it up with cheap posters, photographs and the what not that is offered for special booming when, as a matter of fact, there is no time when it is more important that the lobby should look clean, natural and attractive than when strangers come to see the place. You will do some special advertising as a matter of course, but to obscure the entrance with banners and overload the limited capacity with special paper is to defeat the very ends for which the special was procured.

For the day you will give all your boards over to the special paper and photograph frames will help materially to make the lobby attractive, but do not overlook the important fact that you have another show to-morrow that will need some talking about and plan to have your lantern slide advertisements more attractive than ever. If you know what is coming and that it is particularly worth while (and it will pay you to make certain that it will be a little better than usual), have some photographic slides made if you can get a copy, or at least make your home-made stuff more attractive than usual. Your outside display will be needed for the special, but you do not need to advertise the special inside, beyond a slide or two to announce that it is a two-day feature, where such is the case. Make the slides help you to bring new patrons. Don't lose sight of the lean to-morrow in the fat to-day. There must be some falling off in the attendance, but you can keep this decrease to the minimum if you will make a tactful appeal for trade to those whose interest has been aroused by the special feature.

Fix the Lobby Up.

Getting out into the lobby again, make certain that it is as attractive as possible. Two or three days before the special comes have the paint cleaned and, if necessary, touched up. Look to the metal work and see that it is polished. Remove damaged pictures from frames and see that all glasses are whole. If you have many frames remove some that there may be plenty of space for those who wait to gain admission. Only those frames that hang on the walls should be retained for the photographic display. Take the easel frames inside and hang them up, storing the easels somewhere where they will not be in the way. Clear the decks for action and what you do leave will be doubly attractive.

Do not call in the window bills and use these for the lobby display. Get fresh paper or, when the paper comes, reserve some of the most attractive for this purpose.

Look into the box office. Make certain that all boxes and papers that may have accumulated are removed. Every bit of your house from the sidewalk to the rear wall is going to be on review and you cannot tell what oversight may cost you a dollar or so a week in the trade you might establish. Get your ticket seller to wear her prettiest waist; send the ushers' and doormen's uniforms out to be pressed and see that they have clean collars and faces to match; have the house swept with even more than usual care. Company is coming and what is good enough for the family may not be quite good enough for them, though the best is none too good for the family.

Don't Hide Behind Banners.

If you are in the downtown section where you must depend upon the transient trade, painted banners may be excused, but there is no excuse for almost wholly hiding the entrance behind banners, hung lithos and loose boards as is sometimes done. The release should be strong enough to draw the crowd and if you make the front look like the old style dime museum or store show you will frighten away many who might have come to see the release, but who do not care to enter so unattractive a place.

If you have been using costumed men for your street advertising draw them in just before the show starts or have others in costume to stand near the entrance, but do no more toward a ballyhoo than this. Do not use an outside lecturer or music and avoid the megaphone man. To get the best results live up to the dignity of your offering and do not cheapen the aspect of the house at the very moment when you are making your appeal to the better class. Run things quietly and in order and let the appearance of trade be your best advertisement.

If you issue programs be careful that too many do not lie upon the floor. Have an extra boy if necessary to pick them up, but do not permit him to wander about the place, standing in the way of those who wish to see the reels. There is entirely too much interest shown in the pictures by the average house attendant. He is apt to put himself about halfway down the aisle and stand gaping at the show to the discomfort of the seated patrons and the irritation of those who wish to be shown seats.

Handling the Overflow.

Be careful of your overflow. If standees are permitted by the fire laws, let them come in and wait for seats, but do not herd them like cattle or give them the impression that they should be grateful to you for permitting them to watch the performance. Let your house staff be alert to put them to no more discomfort than is necessary. Do not order them about or yell at them. Place a man at the head of the aisle or each aisle, if there is more than one, and let no more persons down than there are seats vacated. Try and give those who enter first the first chance at sea and be particularly attentive to the women and children. If you emplo the reserved seat system, if only for the day, and have it clearly unde stood that the reserved seat is good only for the performance marke much of your worry will be dispensed with and your advance sale wi bring much money to the house in advance of the days of showing an save a box office rush. If you run more than a day, have a special bo office for the advance sale and sell through the regular window only fo the show running or about to commence. If you are on the last re and there are empty seats let the seat holders enter and occupy the u reserved section until the show for which they hold coupons starts, but you plan your hours conveniently you will have little trouble with thos who come too soon or too late.

Don't Over-Decorate.

The special decoration of the house or lobby is a grave error. Kee your house as natural as possible; give the suggestion that this is wha you always have to offer and see to it that, when the special passes, yo conform as closely to the new standard as is possible with the regula policy.

Don't be afraid to spend a few dollars for extra help or extra musi Regard the special release as a business bringer that will have its pe manent effect on the house and do not regret the expenses that will sho a profit for weeks after, even if they do bring down the net profit on th special release. If you break even on the work you are more than fo tunate. If you do things properly you can show an ultimate profit on wha appears directly to be a loss, but if you handle things right you'll hav an immediate as well as a future gain that will surprise you.

Post Card Booming.

Following the lead of some of the manufacturers on both the License and Independent sides, many exhibitors are turning to postcards fo special advertising and the Kraus Manufacturing Company, 14 East 17 stree sends quite a collection of postcards of interiors and exteriors in wha they call their semi-photographic process. They are responsible for th Marion Leonard picture recently distributed, the Reliance Company's wor and other big stuff and, while their specialty is cards in hundred thou sand lots, they take the same care with the small order, making up th sheets of several orders instead of just one. The card is a half tone pr duct, but looks like photography though the cost is very considerabl smaller. There are other companies turning out reproductions, but th Kraus Company is mentioned since they are doing the bulk of the photosho trade and understand it.

Where the advertising appropriation permits, the most effective use the card is for free distribution to patrons who may wish to send them friends, but since the patronage of the theatres is largely made up children it is well to limit the number to a patron and have the given out by some member of the house staff rather than leave them o the desk for the patrons to use in such quantities as they please. It is wort the slight extra cost to have your interior made by flashlight while th audience is seated, advertising the fact that on a certain day and at certain show the flashlight will be made. Your local photographer wi possibly make the plate free if he is permitted to sell copies for his ow benefit, and you have a full house instead of a rather dismal interio Where you have only one view made, the exterior is to be preferred sinc it forms the better advertisment.

We even know one exhibitor who is using postcards now and, with th patent process cutting the cost to within the reach of even the small houses, you cannot well afford to be without them.

A Shrewd Move.

